38,281. Was not any of it in cheques?—Yes, there might possibly be some of it in cheques, but Mr. Smith was not so particular at that election as the last; for at the last election he would not pay a farthing away except by cheque.

38,282. I will give you a bit of information, for it is only fair I should help you as much as I can; did you receive cash as well as cheques?—I think so, from what I remember; but perhaps I may be able to tell you for certain.

38,283. I should like to know, and I would rather you should tell me from your own account?—No, I cannot.

38,284. Have you any means of knowing what you received altogether?—I could only do it by asking Mr. Smith.

38,285. On that occasion how much did you receive for yourself?—30*l.*

38,286. Out of that?—Yes, sir.

38,287. Did you receive a retaining fee besides, of five or ten guineas?—I received ten guineas at first, but then that was deducted at the end. Mr. Smith paid me 10*l.* of my salary at the beginning, and 20*l.* at the latter end, making 30*l.* altogether.

38,288. That is what I was going to take, "Received "30*l.* for myself at twice"?—Yes, at twice; I cannot say whether by cheque. I do not think he paid me purposely for myself, but when he paid me the last payment I probably took 20*l.* for myself.

38,289. The money you had was first 10*l.*, and then 20*l.*?—Yes.

38,290. Besides that did you not charge the 5*l.* retainer?—No, sir, my son had 5*l.* at that election, the same as he did this.

38,291. What for?—For being clerk in the committee room at Redhill that was.

38,292. That would not be a retaining fee I suppose?—Oh dear no, not at all.

38,293. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Your son is not a voter?—No.

38,294. (The Chief Commissioner.) You have no documents by which you can give us any correct details about that?—No, I have only this book.

38,295. What is that book?—Perhaps you will look at it.

38,296. No, I would rather you told me what it was?—It is for 1863.

38,297. Whose handwriting is it in?—It refers to the election of 1863. This is Mr. Buckland's handwriting, and this is mine (pointing to different parts of the book). It seems to have been made up altogether, when we were reckoning up our accounts and putting it into shape.

38,298. Is there any more of your handwriting except in the first page?—Yes, there are four leaves.

38,299. Will you let me look at it? (It was handed to the Chief Commissioner.) Oh, that is your handwriting; when was this written?—I should suppose when we were copying off our little items, so as to make them intelligible.

38,300. I am not sure when the election was in 1863?—I think it was in February.

38,301. I see the items in this book come to an untimely end?—Well, we do not care what becomes of them after the election is over.

38,302. There is very little in your handwriting; this part is in Mr. Buckland's handwriting?—Yes.

38,303. I cannot get anything out of this?—But there is something in it.

38,304. What is it?—All the money.

38,305. What is the total sum?—There is 4*l.* 10*s.* and 9*l.* 18*s.* and 8*l.* 1*s.*; you will find that there.

38,306. Do you see in the book a cheque that is dated the 2nd of May, and drawn for 2*l.* 5*s.*?—No, there are no money entries here, only my expenditure.

38,307. But by looking at that book can you tell me how much money you paid to voters in 1863?—I should think not a bit more than I have in this book.

38,308. You mean from this book?—Yes, or any.

38,309. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Have you the names of the men there, Mr. Apted?—Yes.

38,310. (The Chief Commissioner) I should like to know that rather?—I am only looking myself to see they are all voters. I see the expenditure goes a great way for voters, beyond what it was this time. It is 67*l.* 10*s.*; no, not so great a way, for I did not have anybody else like Rose and Ede, as I had here. I put them all in one.

38,311. I will take them at 67*l.* 10*s.*?—Just so; that is right.

38,312. Tell me what you paid altogether for refreshments; you told me yesterday it was very large, that there was a good deal of it?—I should think probably 100*l.*, but I do not know for certain; that is not down there, Mr. Smith would give me the money to pay, and then I should not enter it into my account.

38,313. I should like to know what you did pay for refreshments; perhaps you can tell me?—I cannot.

38,314. What makes you fix it at 100*l.*?—I have only done it at a venture, for it might be 20*l.* under or over.

38,315. I should like to know?—I will endeavour to find out.

38,316. "Refreshments," perhaps 100*l.*?—Yes.

38,317. Other expenses, about? I want a sketch of it, you know?—There is paid to Mr. Pitt 21*l.* 6*s.*; he was captain of the battalion.

TWENTY-FIFTH DAY.

J. H. Apted.

19 Sept. 1866.

38,318. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) David Pitt?—Yes.

38,319. (The Chief Commissioner.) Mr. Pitt had 21*l.* 6*s.*?—21*l.* 6*s.* for his men.

(Mr. Commissioner Smith.) David Pitt told us he only had 3*l.* at that election.

(Witness.) I have got 4*l.* down to him. I think he might have made a mistake. It was three years ago.

Pitt (from the body of the hall): I said I had 4*l.* in my evidence.

38,320. (The Chief Commissioner.) That is so; you are quite right. (To witness.) Tell me, if you please, what else did you pay? I do not mean each particular sum, but large sums, aggregate sums?—I paid 40*l.* 10*s.*, including that 21*l.* 6*s.*; say 20*l.* more. That is for refreshments.

38,321. That is in addition to the 100*l.* for refreshments?—No, that is not.

38,322. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did Pitt have money to distribute to his men, beyond the 4*l.* in 1863?—I went and gave him the money to pay his men with.

38,323. How much did you give him in all?—21*l.* 6*s.*; 10*s.* each.

38,324. To pay his men?—Yes. He didn't have it himself; he had none of that himself.

38,325. But did it pass through his hands?—I think it all passed through his hands. I should think he paid them all, and I should think it all passed through his hands.

38,326. What men were they?—They were men employed to protect Mr. Gower and to "pitch into" the others, if the others interfered with us.

38,327. He was captain of the "roughs"?—No, they were not roughs, our party; they were Reigate men.

38,328. They were paid to protect Mr. Gower?—They were.

38,329. (The Chief Commissioner.) Will you do me the favour, Mr. Apted, to tell me what other sums were paid besides the 21*l.* to Mr. Pitt. I do not want each item, but you can give me the aggregate?—There is "travelling and personal expenses" 8*l.* 10*s.*, that's all. That was a good deal for refreshing people.

38,330. Then I will not take it?—That would be refreshments, not at meetings, because whenever I sent for a man, and he was away from home, I always gave him something.

38,331. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) How much would the travelling expenses come to?—8*l.* 10*s.*

38,332. That would include refreshments?—Nothing else.

38,333. (The Chief Commissioner.) I see you received on the 2nd of April 2*l.* 5*s.* I wonder what that was for?—In 1863?

38,334. Yes; and you received June 29th a small sum of 3*l.*?—I should say probably they were two little bills that were left unpaid.

38,335. Would that come under the heads we have got; "refreshments," or something of that kind?—I should think so.

38,336. Do you under the 67*l.* include sums paid to messengers? You said 67*l.* was paid to voters. I should like to know whether you included in that messengers?—Oh, yes; all these people were employed.

38,337. Therefore, you would include messengers, so?—Yes, include messengers.

38,338. I mean that would be one denomination under which they come?—Yes.

38,339. One moment, I will not detain you long. I think you ought to allow me to add, but I will not do it without your permission, 8*l.* for your own expenses, personal expenses; because I see that while other canvassing, refreshments, and messengers are charged, there is specially named this sum?—I have charged nothing; these are expenses that I have gone to personally, independent of any meetings.

38,340. That is what I say; I quite understand that. I have not put you down anything for that; I have only written, "personal expenses," and you have not told me what to put opposite to it?—Personal expenses, 8*l.* 10*s.*

38,341. That is what I wanted?—That included the travelling.

38,342. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Your own travelling?—Only my own travelling.

38,343. (The Chief Commissioner.) That is all you get from that book. Now, perhaps, having turned your mind to that 1863 election, you can tell me very nearly how much money you received from Mr. Smith?—I should think more than 150*l.*

38,344. You said just now 150*l.* to 200*l.*?—Well, and that is what I should say now, when you come to guess three years ago.

38,345. It is nothing more than a guess then?—Nothing more than a guess.

38,346. Then I ought not to bind you to it at all, if it is only a guess?—It is only a guess.

38,347. Can you find out for me how much it was?—I have no doubt I can.

38,348. Not by going to Mr. Smith?—That's the only way I can.

38,349. That won't do, because we can get it from Mr. Smith himself. Can't you tell us?—I cannot.

38,350. I suppose it was not over 200*l.*?—No, I should think not.

38,351. Then it is right to tell you that you have already accounted for 227*l.*?—Then it was more. I told you it was a mere guess.

38,352. No, you did not, indeed; you told me nothing of the kind?—I have been telling you it was between 150*l.* and 200*l.*

38,353. What you told me was this, and I am sure I am very candid with you; what you told me was this, "Between 150*l.* and 200*l.*"; you could not tell me nearer. But the other expenses you have given me pretty nearly according to the fact; and those expenses which you have given me out of the book amount to 227*l.*?—Then, that's about it; or from that to ——; I should think it might have come to 240*l.*; I don't know.

38,354. Now, you think you may have received that from Mr. Smith?—It is not evidence to go upon, because when I talk about a book three years ago it really amounts to nothing.

38,355. I quite agree with you that it is not at all conclusive; I will dismiss it, and there's an end of it?—It really amounts to nothing.

38,356. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I want to know the number of men employed?—There was 67*l.* 10*s.* paid them.

Don't you think it might be 80*l.*? I have a reason for asking?—I beg your pardon; 67*l.* 10*s.*

38,357. I have a reason for asking?—There's the book.

38,358. The book does not help us?—I know nothing, only what I wrote in the book. It is three years ago.

38,359. Don't you think it might be 80*l.*?—I dare say it might; and it might not.

38,360. I think you will find it is?—It is just as likely not to be as it is to be.

38,361. My impression is that it is. You do not know the evidence I have?—Well, if you have any evidence more than I have—— As near as I can give you, it is 67*l.* 10*s.* That is only because it is in this book.

38,362–3. Now I want the number of men.—Twenty.

38,364. Then that would be paid to twenty men?—Yes, they were better paid that election than they were this.

38,365. That is a little bit more than 3*l.* a head?—Yes.

38,366. Now, was that your first election?—Oh dear no; I have been in every election in Reigate.

38,367. I will refer to your evidence, and we shall see. It was the first election on which you received money for yourself?—Exactly.

38,368. At any previous election had any money gone through your hand?—Yes.

38,369–70. I want to go back to 1859? (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) In the meantime I want to see the names of the men?—Yes (handing in the list). You will find them in the first leaf.

38,371. (The Chief Commissioner.) In 1859 you say you received no money for yourself. Now, can you tell me shortly, from memory or books, how much money you paid to voters in 1859?—None.

38,372. You cannot tell me a bit?—I didn't have any.

38,373. I beg your pardon; I thought you said that money passed through your hands?—Yes.

38,374. What was that for?—That was to pay for meetings. Mr. Wilkinson asked me to go round and pay the meetings as they were held, so that no bills might be run.

38,375. Am I correct in taking this, "I paid no "voters money."?—I paid no money to voters, except the public house people were voters.

38,376. Except for refreshments at public houses?—That is all.

38,377. I dare say you will be able to tell me how much you paid away in refreshments?—Every meeting I attended. Mr. Cape came for me and asked me to get up meetings. I told him I would not decoy working men away from their homes without I paid for their beer. He then said, "You go and attend to "the men; give them what you think is necessary; "get the bill and pay it, and I'll pay you every "night."

38,378. And how much did he pay you?—He paid me every night. I cannot possibly give you the account.

38,379. Let us keep to 1859?—In 1859, I was the agent of Mr. Wilkinson then.

38,380. Did you receive money for yourself?—Not a farthing.

38,381. Did you receive money to pay voters?—No, not a farthing.

38,382. You understand what I mean?—I will not say, not a farthing. The bill posting we paid for. I think I paid one man 2*l.* for bill posting on that occasion, and one or two other trifles; but we did not what you call "put on men." There were no men put on; it is only for work that we could not do without.

38,383. Do you think you paid any money to voters beyond a 5*l.* note?—No, I do not think I did.

38,384. How much money did you pay in refreshments then?—Every one found their own.

38,385. But you paid for refreshments at public houses, didn't you, the same as you did in the previous election?—No, there was no time; there was only the nomination day and the polling day.

38,386. How much money went through your hands in 1859 at that election?—57*l.* odd, altogether; but there was more paid; Mr. Norman Wilkinson paid himself.

38,387. Did you pay it for him?—My audited account came to 57*l.* odd.

38,388. Did that include the polling?—Yes.

38,389. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I believe the polling book cost 50*l.*?—Oh no, a very trifle; I don't know what it was.

38,390. (The Chief Commissioner.) I have taken it you paid away 57*l.*?—Altogether, including auditor's fee and everything else for Mr. Wilkinson. He paid privately for the carriages and all that kind of thing. He attended to it, and paid it out of his own pocket; and I didn't interfere with it.

38,391. Do you know anything about money paid to voters?—No.

38,392. Do you know who paid it?—There was none. It was upon that occasion I went to one voter down at Earlswood, and he promised he would come and vote for nothing if I would not tell anybody. He was never more ashamed in all his life.

38,393. You told us that yesterday?—Yes; he thought he was underworking other people.

38,394. Did you not think so too?—No.

38,395. Did you not think he was underworking, in fact?—He was not working. I told him he ought to work for money and vote for principle, and I didn't employ him to do work.

38,396. I did not refer to that; but from what you know did the other voters receive more than he did at that election?—No; not one of them received a half-penny to my knowledge.

38,397. The inference is pretty strong from the fact that the man told you himself that he thought he was underworking other people?—Yes, he said he was underworking other people.

38,398. Then the inference is pretty strong?—The man would not inquire into it; he spoke only from previous elections.

38,399. I wish you to tell me candidly, is that all you know about that election that is important. Do you not know yourself of either Mr. Wilkinson, or some one else, having paid money which was received by voters?—No. I do not believe there was one penny paid by any man living. I do not believe that one single voter had one single penny, or a penny's value.

38,400. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That was on your side?—On our side; and 161 votes were obtained.

38,401. (The Chief Commissioner.) Now tell me, do you believe on Monson's side that they were paid?—I am sure they were.

38,402. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) From what you saw, or from reputation?—Yes.

38,403. (The Chief Commissioner.) You think they were?—Yes. I do not say they were bribed, but put on.

38,404. "Put on." I have avoided the term "bribed"?—That is the term that is generally used.

38,405. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) "Put on"?—Yes.

38,406. (The Chief Commissioner.) Now, in the second election of 1858 what character did you fill then?—The second election in 1858?

38,407. Yes; that was in October, between Wilkinson and Monson?—I was against Mr. Wilkinson; I was in favour of Mr. Monson. Wait a moment!

38,408. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Which election do you mean; October 1858; Monson and Wilkinson?—I have never voted for Monson, so that I must have been in favour of Mr. Wilkinson.

38,409. (The Chief Commissioner.) What were you then? Can you recollect whether you were agent or anything at all?—I could not have been agent, for I was a pure voluntary agent. I was not a paid agent. I had no money of any kind of Mr. Wilkinson's, never.

38,410. Did you receive any fee for yourself, for your services?—No.

38,411. Do you know of any voters being put on?—Oh, yes.

38,412. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You had money pass through your hand?—No, not for that purpose.

TWENTY-FIFTH DAY.

J. H. Apted.

19 Sept. 1866.

38,413. (The Chief Commissioner.) For what purpose?—Only to pay the expenses of the meetings; for that only, and that I received every day.

38,414. Whom did you receive it from?—Mr. Cape.

38,415. How much did you receive altogether?—I do not think it amounted to a great deal. Each meeting cost about a 1*l.* or 30*s.*, or something like that; except it was a large meeting, and then it would cost more.

38,416. You received, how much?—I think if you said from 15*l.* to 20*l.* it would be about as much as I did receive.

38,417. Now, was all that 15*l.* or 20*l.*, or whatever it was, paid for refreshments in public houses?—Yes, not including rooms at all; I paid for no rooms.

38,418. Did you know of any voters being put on on that election?—Yes.

38,419. Can you tell me how many, without giving me their names?—No; I only know a few, as I casually heard them. I had nothing to do with them.

38,420. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) On both sides?—On both sides.

38,421. (The Chief Commissioner.) Have you any notion, Mr. Apted, how many you were aware of being "put on"? I want to know to what extent; that is the object of my question?—I think there were about half a dozen "put on" down at Emery's, that I am aware of.

38,422. Which side was that?—That was our side.

38,423. Can you tell me any others?—No, I cannot say that I can, not with any certainty.

38,424. No, we do not want it with any certainty?—I am not saying now that these people did not work, for I do not know whether they did or not.

38,425. I have adopted your expression because that will cover all difficulties. In using the words "put on" the only requisite is a voter and money; Never mind what he was paid for?—That's it.

38,426. Can you tell me whether any were put on on the other side in the election of October 1858?—I did not know much of the other side at that time.

38,427. You have mentioned half a dozen at this place. You might have heard of others, you know?—I did hear occasionally of one; I should think they were about even.

38,428. Did they bribe at that time? You know we have got a rough estimate of 1863; 5*l.* odd shillings a head?—Twice as high as it was this time.

38,429. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) In 1858?—In 1858. I should think that those that were paid; there were not so many of them; I should think they might probably average from 2*l* to 3*l.* each.

38,430. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Men that were "put on"?—No man is "put on" without being paid. It does not mean being "put on" the committee; it is "put on" to work, or the "pay "list" if you like.

38,431. (The Chief Commissioner.) The men "put "on," you think they had from 2*l.* to 3*l.*?—I should think so; it depends a good deal upon the length of the election.

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And the closeness of the contest.

38,432. (The Chief Commissioner.) You cannot give me any other information as to that election?—No.

38,433. I wish you would if you could?—I cannot.

38,434. Then we will go back to the election which has been a good deal talked about, the Doulton election of February 1858 were you for Wilkinson then?—No, I was not.

38,435. Whom were you for?—I think Sir Henry Rawlinson put up at that time.

38,436. Yes, he did; you are quite right?—Then I was for him. I was very much inclined to Mr. Doulton at first. He attended a meeting here in the town hall, and his sentiments were my sentiments; but he told me that he meant to buy the borough, whether or no.

38,437. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) He said that to you?—He said they had got plenty of money. That is when he came to me to ask me to act for him.

38,438. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I am sure you will be very cautious, because we are speaking now of a gentleman who is absent?—I don't care about that. He has as much right to answer.

38,439–40. I am only calling your attention to it, that's all. I am sure you will be very cautious?—I shall not speak against any one on account of their being absent.

But I am only calling your attention to being more careful?

38,441. (The Chief Commissioner.) It was at the town hall, at the first meeting?—No; I didn't say that he told me at the town hall.

38,442. It was my mistake then?—I said I had a very favourable impression when he attended at the town hall; and I took the chair at his first meeting.

38,443. And when he told you that you seceded?—I did.

38,444. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Can you give us the words he said, or near them?—He said, "We shall be sure to win; we have got money, and "we mean to use it."

38,445. (The Chief Commissioner.) Those are, as far as you recollect, the expressions he used?—Yes.

38,446. Then he did not say he was determined to buy the borough? It is only your inference?—I have told you that.

38,447. Did he say so in addition?—He did. They meant to buy the borough, for they had got money, and they meant to use it. I wish to say that it was not true that he ever offered me a sum of money.

38,448. I do not think I have said so?—No; but a report got about at that election, and he wrote to me to contradict it.

38,449. Never mind that?—Only it was said he had offered me 100*l.*; and I wrote to him to say it was not so; and he might print it if he liked.

38,450. Never mind that; you seceded when he told you that?—Yes.

38,451. Why?—Because I thought it was an impudent thing for him to say.

38,452. You did not think it an impudent thing for him to do?—I do.

38,453. Why?—Because there is no money will buy my vote.

38,454. I am not talking of your vote, you know?—Then I consider the others are as pure as myself.

38,455. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Mr. Apted, I wish you would define your notion of a pure voter?—We have had a good many strangers in the borough since then.

(The Chief Commissioner.) These, I think, are nearly your words: "I thought it was an impudent "thing for him to say, because I thought the borough "was as pure as myself, and I would not take money "for my vote."

38,456. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You did not say that to Mr. Doulton?—I told him the reason why I left him. I said, "Sir, if that's your game I'll "leave you."

(The Chief Commissioner.) Those are the words I have taken the opportunity of putting into your mouth.

(Witness.) What is that?

38,457. "I thought when he told me this it was an "impudent thing to say, because I thought the "borough was as pure as I was"?—No, that is not my words.

38,458. I make a mistake then?—I said "because "no money would buy my vote, and I thought the "rest of the borough was as pure as I was." That's my words.

38,459. Now we have got it quite right. Now, I am sure you will forgive me for asking you: are you still of the same opinion? aye or no?—Well, since that time a number of strangers have come into our borough that I can't depend upon so much as we could our old inhabitants.

38,460. Did any of the voters in the Doulton election in 1858 vote in this election of 1865?—Yes, I should think perhaps a dozen might, but Mr. Doulton only got very few votes.

38,461. We have examined a number of witnesses who were voters in 1865, and who were voters in 1858; so the bad leaven was already in the borough at that time?—But I should suppose out of Mr. Doulton's 100 votes——

(Mr. Commissioner Smith.) He had 116.

(Witness.) Out of that 116 I should suppose he had 70 pure voters. I should suppose with all his money he could not buy above 35 or 40.

38,462. (The Chief Commissioner.) Then you leave 47 voters at any rate who were—?—Who were ignorant, who didn't care much which way they went, who went any way they were employed.

38,463. Who were "put on"?—"Put on."

38,464. Bearing in mind that there were that number—now, that we have got into figures, which are safe things when we can get at them; bearing in mind that, are you surprised now, and do you think now, it was an impudent thing for Mr. Doulton to say to you?—I think the issue proved that. I do think so still; and I should think so of any man now, quite as much as I did then.

38,465. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You do not think money will have any influence at all?—I have never said that. It has not influence enough to buy this borough; that I am quite certain.

38,466. (The Chief Commissioner.) Surely you have forgotten what you told me what you paid away to voters that were "put on"?—Well, that does not make them impure.

38,467. It was ignorance?—Some of them were ignorant. Ignorance runs among all classes.

38,468. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was that the reason why they were put on, because you should "secure" them?—No, I have never acknowledged that yet.

38,469. You have used the expression "to secure" them; and you have used the expression that those who were paid for Doulton were ignorant men, who would go any way, which way they were paid?—No, that's wrong.

38,470. That is what you said?—No, I didn't. I deny that altogether. You make up assertions, and put them into my mouth.

38,471–2. (The Chief Commissioner.) I tell you candidly I don't care whether 37 voted for Doulton or not. What I endeavoured to do was to fix the fact that there were 40 voters "put on"?—Yes, I think there was that number on the part of Mr. Doulton.

38,473. The only other matter I want to remind you about is this: you said in 1863 you believed you received from 150*l.* to 200*l.*, but you could not find out how much the sum was without going to Mr. Smith?—No, I could not.

38,474. I should very much like to know what it was?—If I could possibly let you know I would. I do not know what source to apply to, except to Mr. Smith.

38,475. Yes, but I can go to him myself for it. Don't you think you have anything at home that will tell you. It is a biggish sum of money, taking it at 150*l.*?—I don't know whether Mr. Buckland can. I and Mr. Buckland worked together; whether he has got any item I don't know.

38,476. I cannot oblige you to do it, but if you could give it me I should be obliged to you; if you could tell me the money you paid away?—I should be very pleased to do it, if I had an opportunity of finding it.

38,477. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I pointedly called your attention yesterday to a question which I wish you to consider again, with regard to Mr. Gower. I asked you whether he had been aware of the employment of voters and canvassers and paid agents to the extent to which they were employed?—Yes; and my answer was then, that at the time of the election I believed him to be fully aware of it.

38,478. To the full extent to which they had gone?—Well, I said, "as well as I did," but I did not know the real extent that it had gone, any further than our own locality. I merely said "to the extent that I "did."

(The Chief Commissioner.) You did. I have got your own words, "as much as I did."

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You told me that first when you went to him and told him they were buying your voters, or winning your voters——

(Witness.) We went as a deputation.

38,479. And then he refused?—Yes; we came away without any answer at all.

38,480. He demurred?—He did decidedly demur.

38,481. When did you get any authority to increase the number of canvassers from him? You know the object I have in asking the question?—I do. I am not purposely saying any thing to implicate Mr. Gower,—far from it. It makes me feel very sorry to think that the error was committed. But the error was committed, and it can't be undone. That is, Mr. Gower, instead of coming to his agents, and telling us that we were to "put on," and be cautious not to "put on" too many, he went incautiously and injudiciously to the meeting below and told all the people they should be paid for their labour. Then I had as many as 40 people, I do believe quite 40 people, the very next day, stating that they had done so much work, and Mr. Gower had expressed his wish that they should be paid. I do not say that at all to implicate Mr. Gower. I feel sorry the thing ever was done.

38,482. No, no. We expect you to tell us candidly exactly how the matter occurred.

(The Chief Commissioner.) We hope you will certainly, if we do not expect it.

38,483. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you ever apply to anybody else except Mr. Smith for money?—No.

38,484. Not to Mr. Gower personally?—No, not for money, but merely to say that we needed money, for him to send to Mr. Smith. We did not expect him to give us money.

38,485. When was the occasion upon which you did apply to Mr. Gower?—I do not know; I think it is probable I mentioned it every time I saw him. I think that is very probable.

38,486. Then was the application made generally, or for any specific sums?—I think if I recollect right, when we went up as a deputation, we made up an item of what we considered the expenses of the election would cost.

38,487. When was that? That would be very early, would it not?—No, not very early; oh, no! This was when we found or when we believed bribery was going on amongst Mr. Monson's supporters. Then we found that our own canvassers that we had on, which was only very few, a limited number indeed, were not sufficient to compete with them. We then had a meeting together, and we thought it was necessary to put a number of people on, and we estimated what the expense of the election would be; and we felt it our duty to lay it before Mr. Gower, to tell him what he was about, so that he could either give it up or leave it alone, just as he liked.

TWENTY-FIFTH DAY.

J. H. Apted.

19 Sept. 1866.

38,488. Then you did bring to Mr. Gower's attention the fact that a number of men would be required to be "put on"?—Oh, yes.

38,489. That is what I gather from my impression of the evidence yesterday. Then a very few days afterwards you heard or suspected that the Monson party were bribing?—Oh, no, before that. That was our reason for putting them on.

38,490. Because you had heard the Monson party —— ?—Were going in among our voters.

38,491. And offering terms?—Yes.

38,492. Then what took place between the deputation and Mr. Gower?—We represented to him the state of the case; and he said he would consider the matter, but he could not see his way clear; he did not like this expenditure of money.

38,493. Then at that time you got no definite answer?—No, no definite answer at all.

38,494. Was that the only time that you went to Mr. Gower?—Yes, we never went to his house any other time.

38,495. But at any place?—About money?

38,496. Yes, about money?—Well, I think I mentioned money to him every time I saw him almost.

38,497. Was there a specific occasion when money was applied for?—Well, I think very likely after we had been to him as a deputation, if we saw him when he came back, we should most probably go to him; but I forget.

38,498. You do not recollect any thing at all about a deputation going to him on a second occasion at the town hall?—Here in Reigate, you mean?

38,499. Yes, anywhere?—Well, I think it very likely it did; it seems to me natural that it should do so; but whether we did or not I don't know.

38,500. There are only one or two more small things I want to ask you about, because, probably, they ought to be brought to your attention. You spoke yesterday of going up to the "Black Horse"? (Witness.) Going down to the "Black Horse."

38,501. Going down you call it; and finding Johnson was there?—Yes.

38,502. Was that not the night before the writ was coming down?—I think the writ was to be down the next day. I think that is quite right.

38,503. I see by reference to the shorthand writer's notes as to that that you did go into the meeting?—I did.

38,504. And spoke there?—And spoke there.

38,505. Did you allude in your speech, do you recollect, to the fact of that being the last night before the writ coming down?—I did; I recollect that perfectly well.

38,506. Probably you have seen what was reported of Johnson's evidence?—Yes; but Johnson's evidence, I deny it as far as I am concerned.

38,507. Did you say to them in effect, alluding to that being the last night before the writ coming down, they might enjoy themselves that night, but they must be more cautious in future?—No. I told them I didn't wish to interfere personally with their enjoyments, but it was going against our election to be meeting in public houses, especially now as the writ was coming down, and I hoped none of them would do it again.

38,508. Then was it before or after that night that you paid the money to Hodge at the "Angel"?—It was before that night.

38,509. Were all those meetings before that night that you paid those monies?—Yes.

38,510. Did you pay any account for refreshments after that night?—I should think so, because there were refreshments that I did not hear of. As I heard of them I went and paid for them.

38,511. But did you pay for any refreshments that were had after that night?—Not to my knowledge, except at Mr. Glover's for my own men. I had a man who had been out at times, and I sent him to Glover's house to dinner; it is an eating house. Only trifling sums of that kind. We had no other meeting after that.

38,512. Did you at any time, either before the writ or after, tell the men that they might have what they wanted?—Yes, very frequently.

38,513. I mean when there were several of these men together?—Well, perhaps two of them have been out canvassing, and I have said, "Go into Glover's "and get what you like to eat and drink; go and "have your dinner, and then come in again; I want "you."

38,514. There is one man, William Monk, in particular, that you told that to?—A man that I had no sort of dealing with.

38,515. Did you tell him that?—I did not.

38,516. I ask the question, because he has said so?—Mr. Joyes will bear me out. He came and asked me to go for his vote, and I refused to go because I would not have any dealings with him.

38,517. Do you recollect one evening walking along the street with Johnson and Monk?—I do, and I produce the book.

38,518. Is that the same one; you swear that is the same one?—I do. I will tell you what occurred. I was not walking with Mr. Johnson, I was walking with a friend, and I was holding the list in my hand; we were talking about the majority we had on the list; I dropped the list on the pavement, and I said, "If the other party had that list instead of us it "would be worth all 100*l.*," alluding to the number of 150 majority we had on the list. Those are my entries in the book, I had no other.

38,519. Was it a very fine night when you dropped it?—I don't know. I was going like this, and it fell out of my hand.

38,520. It was a very fine night?—I dare say it was; I don't know; I didn't keep a register.

38,521. Perhaps you can tell me whether it was a very fine night?

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I can tell you. In July 1865 it was very hot.

38,522. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I ask the question because the outside cover is so clean?—There is one leaf off it.

38,523–4. Don't say more about it; I was rather curious to see what the book was?—Now, you have the list, if you will allow me to show you one name who said that I offered him money or something.

I don't want to ask any more about it.

38,525. (The Chief Commissioner.) He did not say you paid him money?—No. It is with respect to a man named Mitchell; I have put him down Monson on this list; he has never been altered. He came in here and wanted to arrange about money. I said, "Mr. Mitchell, if that's your game we can't do it." He wanted constant employment up to the day of the election, and I would not give it him.

38,526. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Were you present when the deputation came from the railway men?—They came to me.

38,527. To you?—Yes.

38,528. Just tell us very shortly what was offered you on that occasion by the railway men?—You have had it correctly before.

38,529. Then what was said about that is correct?—It is correct; but that every one of the railway men knew about the extra 2*l.* I do not know. I believe from their evidence they did not know.

38,530. (The Chief Commissioner.) Very likely, indeed. It might have been a fishing deputation?—Yes, that's the way I took it.

38,531. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Do you know of any monies being advanced by any one in Reigate on the part of Mr. Monson in 1865?—Advanced?

38,532. Yes?—No, I do not. On the part of Mr. Monson?

38,533. Yes?—No.

38,534. No contribution, or anything of that kind?—No, I do not.

38,535. I do not wish to mention names?—I do not. I have heard rumours, but only rumours.

38,536. Rumours?—That's all. I have nothing else to go upon. I cannot give you any information.

38,537. Anything substantial?—No, I do not. You mean during the election, I presume?

38,538. Or about it, during it, or before it, or about it?—Getting up the petition the town was debauched with money.

38,539. I don't care about the petition. What I mean is, any monies contributed for the support of Mr. Monson?—I do not know. I never made it my business to inquire.

38,540. Or with regard to 1863 do you know?—I do not. It was generally supposed the Reform Club had some hand it it.

38,541. The Reform Club has enough to answer for?—I think they have, more than they can do.

The witness withdrew.

Mr. Mulley recalled and examined.

Mr. Mulley.

38,542. (The Chief Commissioner.) Upon referring to your evidence I see you spent about 30*l.*; 30*l.* passed through your hands, and what you received for yourself was something like 12*l.*?—I received nothing for myself.

38,543. I want to get this quite right; you spent about 30*l.*?—30*l.* or 39*l.*

38,544. No, 30*l.* And you received from Mr. Smith in all 42*l.*?—I think that is the sum.

38,545. Then there would be according to that, if I am right, 12*l.* remaining to you. I will tell you what you did receive exactly, you received money for certain people amounting altogether to 30*l.* (the learned Commissioner read the list of names and the amounts, as given in by the witness on the previous examination)?—That's right.

38,546. That amounts, if I am correct, to 30*l.*?—Yes.

38,547. And you received 42*l.*?—I think about 42*l.*

38,548. That would leave 12*l.* for what you call a fee for yourself?—No, nothing at all. That is accounted for to Mr. Smith, every farthing of it.

38,549. But you did not give us an account of it?—I never kept an account. I handed the account to Mr. Smith. I never reserved an account for myself. I let Mr. Smith have the original accounts.

38,550. You say you exhausted the whole 42*l.*?—Yes, and more too.

38,551. You had nothing for yourself?—Not a farthing.

38,552. You did not tell us how you exhausted the difference between the 30*l.* and 42*l.*?—I told you I could not then; but I have since remembered that I paid five men, what we call roughs, I paid five of them, and only three of them I charged Mr. Smith. I paid them 10*s.* each for two days' work.

38,553. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And you only charged for three?—I only charged for three. I paid the others. However, I have accounted to Mr. Smith without that for every farthing, and for sums beyond.

38,554. (The Chief Commissioner.) Can you tell me how you accounted for it?—I cannot. The account I handed to Mr. Smith will explain it. If I had the account here I could explain it easily enough.

38,555. And would equally that story about the dog?—Yes.

38,556. Where would that 5*l.* come from; did you receive that from Mr. Smith?—That was in 1863.

38,557. You are quite right. I quite understand your explanation of it, but I had forgotten it was in 1863?—I cannot explain anything about the items at all unless Mr. Smith will let me have the account that I handed to him. I have no account by me or with me. I have accounted for 2*l.* 10*s.* now to you.

38,558. You have only accounted for three men, that would be 1*l.* 10*s.*?—Just so; I did not charge that. I have accounted to Mr. Smith.

38,559. Now, I want to know this, have you anything to do with the fire brigade down there?—Yes.

38,560. How many members are there?—11, I think.

38,561. Did you receive any money for the fire brigade?—No.

38,562. Nothing at all?—No. In what way do you mean?

38,563. In any way whatever?—I beg your pardon; yes. I thought you meant for the fire brigade for service.

38,564. No; what money did you receive?—I received 5*l.* from Mr. Gower for the fire brigade.

38,565. But you received it from Mr. Smith?—I received it from Mr. Smith; but I don't think that is included in anything that I either received or expended.

38,566. Are you at the head of the fire brigade?—No.

38,567. Who is?—Well, at the present time I believe Mr. Collins, the butcher.

38,568. At that time?—Mr. Steer I believe at that time.

38,569. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) When was it?—In 1865. I should think it was about a month before the election. I have no note of it at all; I never kept it. I handed the 5*l.* over to the secretary.

38,570. Who was the secretary?—Mr. Markwick.

38,571. That is the gentleman who has been called here?—Not that I am aware of.

38,572. Then you know nothing more of it?—Nothing more whatever.

38,573. Did you receive any other sum for the fire brigade, do you recollect?—No, I think not. It was proposed that some of the brigade should wait upon certain gentlemen to see what we could get, to get a new engine, and keep the engine better than what we had, but the thing seemed to fall to the ground. I being a pretty good worker myself I succeeded in my first attempt. I think an attempt was made upon Mr. Monson and Lord Monson, and it failed. I understood they said they would give something after the election, but it has never come yet.

38,574. Probably that 5*l.* came out of the residue?—No, I think not. Oh dear no; it is a separate sum I think. I think I received that cheque from Mr. Smith, I will not be sure—I cannot be sure now, it is so long. I think that was a separate cheque, I won't be positive.

TWENTY-FIFTH DAY.

Mr. Mulley.

19 Sept. 1866.

38,575. Were there many voters among the fire brigade ?—I think they were all voters, with one exception. Mr. Cook was not a voter.

38,576. How much was collected for the new engine that was got up ?—But very little.

38,577. How much ?—I cannot tell ; it fell to the ground.

38,578. How much in addition to the 5*l.* ?—I don't think there was hardly anything, if anything.

38,579. (The Chief Commissioner.) Has nothing been done with the 5*l.* in the way of improving the engine, or anything of that sort ?—There were some things paid for. We got some helmets I believe. Mr. Markwick could supply a statement of what was done with the 5*l.*

38,580. I dare say he supplied it to you too ?—I was not secretary.

38,581. That would not make any difference. What, were you above Mr. Markwick in it ?—No ; Mr. Markwick is secretary ; I am simply one of the committee.

38,582. Did he not make an account to the committee ?—Yes, he did make a statement of what had been done with it. We had been put to some expense in going out to practise with horses, and having the engine cleaned and put in working order.

38,583. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Then did it lie idle all the time, or good for nothing until the election came on ?—We had not had it so very long It was sent from Reigate Old Town, and it was out of order, and it wanted being put in order.

38,584. (The Chief Commissioner.) Perhaps you will forgive me for asking a question not exactly connected with this. Where is that engine ?—At Redhill.

38,585. Is there a Reigate engine too ?—Yes ; this is a Reigate engine ; but they have got a new one, and they gave us the old one.

38,586. Did you happen to see the Reigate engine brought out a few days ago ?—No.

38,587. Is it in good condition ?—No, it is not in good condition.

38,588. Are there any shafts to the Reigate engine ?—I cannot tell. There is a pole.

38,589. You cannot give any other account of the 12*l.* ?—I cannot at all. I have no idea even of the account I made.

38,590. Did you apply to Mr. Monson for money ?—No. Some of the other party did ; some of the brigade on Lord Monson's committee ; they applied to Lord Monson. The reply I understand was, they would consider, or something, after the election. Mr. Monson wanted to lay it before Lord Monson, and consequently we got nothing from either of them.

38,591. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That is the only contribution you received ?—I think it is.

The witness withdrew.

J. Andrews.

JOHN ANDREWS recalled and examined.

38,592. (The Chief Commissioner.) I called you before, didn't I, Mr. Andrews ?—Yes.

38,593. I think it was you who told me that no money passed through your hands ?—Yes.

38,594. You said that you had not received anything except 1*l.* for the services of your boy ?—That is all.

38,595. The services of your boy, whom you had lent ?—Yes ; he was lent four days and a few nights.

38,596. Well now, why did you not receive something more ?—I do not know.

38,597. You did not tell me that you were expecting to receive anything ?—I was not asked that question ; if I was I should have answered.

38,598. Then perhaps I am to blame, and not you, but you certainly misled me very much, because I had reason to believe that you did send in a claim ?—I send in a claim ?

38,599. I see you sent in a claim for a very large sum, 13*l.* 10*s.* ?—I was canvassing five weeks.

38,600. You did not tell us a word about this ; you were sworn to tell the whole truth ?—Yes, I answered all the questions asked me. I did not know I was placed here to make a statement. If I did I should have made a statement.

38,601. Perhaps that is excuse enough for you ?—I came here to-day to make a statement to that effect.

38,602. You were a voter ?—I was a voter.

38,603. Being a voter, and having given your vote, you sent in this in the next month, August, "To five "weeks canvassing and labour done in the late elec- "tion for the return of Leveson Gower, 12*l.* 10*s.* ; "posting and cleaning down bills from off my house, "1*l.* : 13*l.* 10*s.*" You are a voter ?—Yes.

38,604. And you sent in that bill. You did not tell me of it before ?—No ; I came here to-day to make the statement.

38,605. Well, I must be satisfied with that ; perhaps you are right and we are wrong ?—I have never received the money for that.

38,606. How is that ?—I never applied for the money.

38,607. But the bill went in ?—I have been waiting to have the money sent.

38,608. You made no application, you say ; but this bill is an application ?—This is an application decidedly.

38,609. I am sure you mean to be correct, but it misleads one ?—I should have made the statement, provided you had asked me for it before, but I was not aware that I had to make a statement.

38,610. Perhaps that is our fault more than yours ; it misled me. I was surprised to find this claim. I had booked you as a pure voter, barring the 1*l.* for lending your boy, which sounded plausible, and I thought perhaps there was nothing in that. Then I was rather surprised by finding this. I suppose this is your handwriting (showing witness a paper) ?—I believe it is. I do not think it ought to have been sent in. It is not paid.

38,611. It led me and another Commissioner to think you filled a very different position in the borough than what you do in my opinion, because, although a voter, you sent in a bill for canvassing. This is not a common "fiver ;" it is 13*l.* 10*s.* for canvassing and attending committee meetings ?—I attended, perhaps, four or five meetings. I was on the executive committee, and had a certain part to canvass.

38,612. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You also posted up bills ?—I posted them up and cleaned them down.

38,613. (The Chief Commissioner.) Have you ever been paid anything ?—Never, only a sovereign.

38,614. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Were you put on to canvass ?—Yes.

38,615. Who put you on ?—Mr. Green told me I was to do the best I could, and I was to go and canvass all I could, and make reports of them.

38,616. Were you to be paid for being put on ?—I was to receive something for it, for my labour done.

38,617. Was anything said at the time you were put on that you were to receive anything for it?—No stated sum. I was to be paid for what I had done, loss of time, which I gave the whole of my time; I did no other work, and I was about all day.

38,618. You posted your walls and charged 1*l.* ?—Yes; a very small sum, too, for what I put up.

38,619. Did you put them up?—Yes.

38,620. All the bills you could get?—They were brought to me to stick up.

38,621. Is yours a corner house?—Yes; and we were posting them up on the market house.

38,622. You have only a charge for "posting and "cleaning bills off my house"?—Posting and cleaning down.

38,623. "Posting and cleaning down bills from off "my house, 1*l.*"?—Yes.

38,624. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Why didn't you sue for the money?—Well, I do not know, I am sure.

38,625. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you volunteer to put these bills up?—I was asked to put them up.

38,626. Who asked you?—They were sent down to me from the committee room. I had a long list of committee men.

38,627. I suppose you said in the committee room, "I have got a blank wall, I will post up some bills"?—No, I did not.

38,628. (The Chief Commissioner.) Well, we will not keep it up. It looks very much as if you were asked the question when we were upon this before. You said, "I have been paid 1*l.* for the services of "my boy"?—It was.

38,629. Well, would not most men know if they were specifying one particular sum that they were making it appear that they were not paid more?—Yes, I have not been paid any more. I came here to-day to make a disclosure of this account.

38,630. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did Mr. Green canvass you?—He authorized me to go on and do the best I could for the support of Mr. Gower.

38,631. Because I see on the former occasion you said Mr. Green did not canvass you?—Not canvass me; he told me to do the best I could.

38,632. You do not understand that as being canvassed?—I do not think that; Mr. Gower canvassed me himself.

38,633. Then being put on as a canvasser you do not consider being canvassed?—I think not.

38,634. Don't you understand that, being put on, your vote is to go with it?—No.

38,635. It did go with it?—Yes, because I promised Mr. Gower.

38,636. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Do you consider you are to canvass for one candidate and vote for another?—No.

38,637. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What do you mean by not being canvassed when you were asked whether you would be put on?—I promised Mr. Gower when he called, and Mr. Green put me on.

38,638. You do not call it being canvassed when a man is asked to work?—Not when he is asked to work. He did not mention my vote.

JAMES MILLS sworn and examined.

J. Mills.

38,639. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Were you a voter at the last election?—Yes.

38,640. Were you living in the town?—No.

38,641. Where were you living at the last election?—Glover's-field or Lesbourne-land, whichever you like to call it.

38,642. You were living there?—I was living there.

38,643. What are you?—A gardener.

38,644. What rent do you pay?—16*l.* a year.

38,645. Are you living in the borough now?—No.

38,646. Did you remove before or after the election?—I have only just removed, about three weeks.

38,647. For whom did you vote?—Mr. Gower.

38,648. Were you on the committee?—Yes.

38,649. And were you put on to work?—Well, I was put on. I suppose it was to do something.

38,650. Who put you on?—Mr. Apted and Mr. Buckland.

38,651. Job Apted?—Job Apted.

38,652. Were you to get anything for it?—No stated sum. I said, "I suppose I shall be paid for my "trouble."

38,653. At the time that you were put on for canvassing were you also put on the committee?—Yes, I was on the committee as early as most of them.

38,654. Well, did you do any work?—Well, I went about canvassing a little.

38,655. Amongst your fellow gardeners?—Amongst my fellow gardeners.

38,656. And just the same as we have heard before, the old tale; some of your fellow gardeners canvassed you?—That is it. We all stuck to one another.

38,657. I suppose you very soon learned that you were all put on in the garden?—Yes; Mr. Gower came himself, and I promised when he first came. Mr. Monson came afterward. I told him I had promised Mr. Gower.

38,658. To make the matter short, you voted?—Yes.

38,659. Did you receive any money for being put on before the election?—No.

38,660. Never received anything then?—No.

38,661. Did you receive anything after?—Yes.

38,662. How much after?—30*s.*

38,663. Who paid you?—Mr. Apted; Job Apted.

38,664. I suppose, in truth, you really did nothing?—Well, I did not do much certainly. I went to one or two meetings and tried to keep them together.

38,665. When you were paid by Apted did you tell him what you had done? Did you give him any account of your labour?—Well, I went to a meeting on Earlswood common and took one or two with me.

38,666. That really was all you did?—That was all I did.

38,667. Quite so. Took one or two to the Earlswood meeting. I mean to say, when you got the 30*s.* from Apted, did you give him an account or tell him what you had done?—No.

38,668. Did he tell you whether you might expect more than the 30*s.*?—No, he did not.

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You did expect more?

38,669. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you expect more?—I cannot say. There was no stated sum. I did not know what I was to have.

38,670. Did not you hear about a 5*l.* note?—Not from Mr. Gower.

38,671. Did you from Mr. Monson's party hear anything about a 5*l.* note?—I did hear something about notes being passed there.

38,672. Was there any offer to you?—Nothing particular.

38,673. Anything out of the particular?—No; nothing at all.

38,674. Not even whispered to you?—Not a 5*l.* note.

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) How much?

38,675. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What was offered to you?—No stated sum whatever.

38,676. Not for the Monson party?—No. They only asked me which party I was going to vote for, and I said I had promised Gower.

38,677. Who canvassed you on the part of Mr. Monson?—Green; he came once.

TWENTY-FIFTH DAY.

J. Mills.

19 Sept. 1866.

38,678. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) The bootmaker ?

(Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was that the bootmaker ?—Yes.

38,679. Did he offer you anything ?—No.

38,680. Or offer to put you on canvassing ?—No.

38,681. Was 30*s.* the only money you received on account of the election ?—Well, I had 5*s.* and 7*s.* 6*d.* for watching.

38,682. Who paid you that ?—Pullen.

38,683. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Where did he get it from ?—I do not know.

38,684. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) How many nights were you watching for that ?—One night and a half.

38,685. Were those the only monies that you received ?—That is all.

38,686. (The Chief Commissioner.) Have you been at any other election ?—No.

The witness withdrew.

J. H. Apted.

Job Heath Apted recalled and examined.

38,687. (The Chief Commissioner.) Mr. Apted, I promised I would call your attention to this in Court. It was the 26th October 1865. This is the stump cheque, you know; "Self 30*l.*, canvassers 30*l.*" You remember I asked you the question whether Mr. Smith entered you as 30*l.* for your own fee ?—That is on my cheque. I dare say it is quite right.

38,688. It cannot help being. Are you able to inform me by memory whether Pullen received 7*s.* 6*d.* from you to pay the last witness Mills ?—No.

38,689. I think he did ?—He received money from me, but not for that purpose.

38,690. Oh ! I thought I recollected he did according to my account ?—Not for that purpose. I had given him money.

38,691. He would not be a man who would have money himself ?—No. Yes, he was a paid man himself.

38,692. Yes, but I mean he was not a person through whose hand money would go ?—No.

38,693. Well, did he receive any money from you ? I want to fix you with that 7*s.* 6*d.*—No. I think it is probably Mr. Legg ; I do not know; I think it is probable. I do not recollect anything of the sort.

The witness withdrew.

D. Hewson.

David Hewson called, sworn, and examined.

38,694. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are you ?—A gardener.

38,695. What rent do you pay for your house ?—40*l.*

38,696. Is that so ?—That is so.

38,697. Then you are a master gardener I suppose ?—Yes.

38,698. You employ men ?—Yes, I do.

38,699. Were you employed at the last election ?—No.

38,700. At all ?—Not at all.

38,701. Did you vote ?—I did not.

38,702. Were you canvassed ?—Not at all by any one.

38,703. I suppose you have a vote ?—I have.

38,704. And you did not vote for anybody ?—I did not.

38,705. Where do you live ?—London-road.

38,706. Did you vote in 1863 ?—I think I did.

38,707. For whom did you vote in 1863 ?—Leveson Gower ; Mr. Gower.

38,708. For Mr. Gower. Were you on his committee in 1863 ?—I was for a week.

38,709. And worked during that week, I suppose ; worked for him during that week ?—I did as much as I could.

38,710. Of course. And what remuneration did you receive for that ?—30*s.*

38,711. Was that all you received in 1863 ?—That is all.

38,712. Did you receive it before the polling or after the polling ?—Before the polling.

38,713. (The Chief Commissioner.) Whom did he vote for in 1863 ?—Mr. Gower.

38,714. Who paid you the 30*s.* ?—At the committee room ?

38,715. Anywhere ?—At the "Wheatsheaf."

38,716. Who paid you ?—I cannot say. There were three or four of them.

38,717. I wish you would tell me who paid you. Who paid you in 1863, please ?—1863 ?

38,718. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Yes. You were paid before the polling. You voted for Mr. Gower ?—I voted——

38,719. (The Chief Commissioner.) Who paid you the 30*s.* ?—Well, Mr. Rees, Mr. Green, and Mr. Featherstone ; they were present.

38,720. Who handed you the money ?—I cannot say out of the three.

38,721. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Were there many being paid on the same night ?—At the same time ?

38,722. Yes ; at the same time. Were there many, many being paid ? Were many paid as you were ?—How many ?

38,723. Were there many ?—I cannot tell you about that. I do not trouble about other people.

38,724. About how many were there ?—There might be 10 or a dozen, or 14.

38,725. That were being paid as you were ?—I cannot tell about that.

38,726. Did you see it ?—No; I never saw any other money pass.

38,727. Were they at a table ? Did you go up where they were sitting at a table and receive your 30*s.* ?—When once a door is shut against you what are you to see ? You cannot see through it.

38,728. Never mind about the door being shut. Were there three men at the table with money before them ?—There were three.

38,729. Was there money before them ?—Yes ; the money was paid.

38,730. Was the money before them ? You know what it is ; if you go into a bank there are people with money before them, and they pay it out.—They took and paid me.

38,731. Did you leave the house immediately ?—Yes.

38,732. Did you give a receipt for it ?—No.

38,733. Who told you to go there to receive the money ?—I was authorized by different parties.

38,734. Who told you to go there to receive the money ?—I cannot tell you the different parties.

38,735. Can't you tell me one who told you to go there ?—I cannot recollect any one at the present time.

38,736. How came you to go there then ?—I go there every day and every evening.

38,737. Then was it by accident you went there that evening ?—Well, possibly it might be.

38,738. And you received the 30*s.*?—Yes, accidentally.

38,739. Very well. Then you voted for Mr. Gower?—I did.

38,740. Nobody canvassed you at the last election?—No, not a soul.

38,741. How is that?—I do not know at all.

38,742. You were living there as usual?—Yes, and got a standard.

38,743. (The Chief Commissioner.) What did you say?—A standard.

38,744. What do you mean by a standard?—A sitting.

38,745. At the market? What do you mean?—You may make what you like of it.

38,746. Just answer properly, and do explain?—Well I have got a house.

38,747. Is that what you mean by "a standard"?—Yes; where I can lay down.

38,748. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Is that what you mean?—Well, take it as such if you think proper.

38,749. No; I think nothing at all about it. I want you to speak in plain English?—Well, I have got some of that about me, but you do not understand me.

38,750. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Don't be angry. How is it that you did not vote last time?—Because I had no inclination.

38,751. That is a pretty good reason, but I want to know——; you supported Mr. Gower, you know, at the last election in 1863, and how is it you did not vote this time?—How didn't I do it?

38,752. Yes; is there any reason why you did not?—No particular reason. I liked the gentleman well enough.

38,753. But not well enough to vote for him without a consideration; is that it?—Well, put it down to such.

38,754. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You say we are to take it down as such; that you did not vote at the last election because you could not get a consideration? Is that so?—No; I never would no more.

38,755. Were you in the town at the last election?—Yes.

38,756. Simply answer the questions properly and with decency if you can?—I will so.

38,757. I ask you, were you in the town on the day of the last polling, at the election of 1865?—Certainly I was.

38,758. Were you at your work all the day?—Yes.

38,759. Where?—Am I supposed to tell you where I was.

38,760. Yes?—Well, that will take me all my time to recollect that.

38,761. Then were you at your work?—I am so every day of the week.

38,762. Were you at your work during the whole of the day of polling, at the election of 1865?—Yes; I never saw anything of the polling going forward. That is a question to ask me, I consider.

38,763. Do you know Mr. Featherstone?—Yes, well.

38,764. Did you see him on the polling day, 1865?—I did not.

38,765. Will you swear you did not?—I did not.

38,766. Will you swear you did not?—I did not.

38,767. I ask you, will you swear you did not see Mr. Featherstone on the day of the polling, at the election of 1865?—Not to my recollection.

38,768. Will you swear you did not?—Well, I should not like to swear it.

38,769. And will you swear that Mr. Featherstone did not speak to you?—I should not like to swear to a thing that is an untruth.

38,770. Will you swear Mr. Featherstone did not speak to you on the day of the polling of 1865?—I do not recollect he did.

38,771. Will you swear he did not?—No, I won't swear he did not.

38,772. Now, will you swear that he did not speak to you in reference to your polling?—No, that I won't swear.

38,773. Were you at the "Warwick Arms" that day?—What, the last election do you mean?

38,774. Yes?—No.

38,775. Will you swear you were not?—Yes, I went in, on consideration.

38,776. Did you see Featherstone there?—No, I have no recollection of it.

38,777. What?—No recollection of seeing him.

38,778. What time of the day did you go to the "Warwick Arms"?—About 11. I think it was between 11 and 12.

38,779. That would be about the usual time you would be at work, on an ordinary day?—I am not so poor as to be at work at any time.

38,780. You told me that you were at work?—Well, I can go to work when I please, and I can leave off when I please.

38,781. Don't deal so lightly with your oath; answer seriously. You told me that you had been at work all the day?—When.

38,782. On the day of polling?—So I was. That is quite correct, and far away from home too.

38,783. Far away from home?—Yes, I believe it was now I come to consider.

38,784. Then what took you to the "Warwick Arms" at 11 o'clock if you were far away?—Sometimes I am at Redhill, sometimes at Gatton; if I think proper to go at any time.

38,785. Where is your home?—Close to the market place.

38,786. At Redhill?—Yes.

38,787. And were you at work near the "Warwick Arms"?—No.

38,788. Then did anybody call for you?—I am called away from my work almost every day.

38,789. When you are called here as a witness you are supposed to tell the truth as to your doings on that day and the day of the polling?—I will do that if I possibly can.

38,790. Who sent for you to go to the "Warwick Arms"?—No one sent for me. When I think proper to go and have a glass anywhere I go and get it, no matter where and when.

38,791. How came you at the "Warwick Arms" if your story be true, that you were far away from home on that day?—"Far away"? Well, perhaps it might be half a mile.

38,792. Do you call that far away?—It is some distance to walk for a breakfast.

38,793. Was there a breakfast at the "Warwick "Arms"?—I do not know.

38,794. Did you have any refreshment at the "Warwick Arms" on the polling day?—Not a drop or bit.

38,795. Whom did you see at the "Warwick Arms" to speak to?—Several there.

38,796. Did you go into any of the private rooms?—I stood at the bar and called for what I required.

38,797. Is your recollection sufficiently clear for that?—Quite sufficiently.

38,798. Didn't you see Featherstone at the "War-"wick Arms"?—Not to my recollection.

38,799. Did anybody speak to you in reference to the election at the "Warwick Arms"?—No.

38,800. On the day of polling. You know you are a voter?—I know I am.

38,801. Was there any committee sitting at the "Warwick Arms"? Not that I know of. I know nothing at all about it, because I never took no interest in it before; I did not trouble anything about it.

TWENTY-FIFTH DAY.

D. Hewson.

19 Sept. 1866.

38,802. Yes, you voted for Gower before?—Quite right; but I never took no interest in it on the last occasion.

38,803. Will you swear on your solemn oath that nobody asked you about your vote at the last election in 1865?—Not to my knowledge.

38,804. Not one of your fellow gardeners?—Not to my knowledge.

38,805. You believe you never were asked?—Not to my recollection at all.

38,806. Weren't you hanging about at the "Warwick "Arms" and expecting to be paid for your vote on that day?—Me?

38,807. Yes?—I would not give a dump for the best five hundred that was ever offered to me for my vote.

38,808. You would not what?—I would not receive the best five hundred that was ever offered to me, not for my vote.

38,809. Will you swear you did not speak to Featherstone on that day?—I won't swear that I did not speak to the man. Understand me. But to refer to my vote, I don't think he ever spoke to me respecting it.

38,810. How long did you remain at the "Warwick Arms"?—How long?

38,811. Yes?—I am sure I do not know. Perhaps ten minutes or a quarter of a hour.

38,812. What became of you in the afternoon?—I do not know, I am sure. I went somewhere else, I suppose.

38,813. Then is your recollection so blank that you cannot give any account of yourself on that day?—I cannot tell from day to day, you know.

38,814. Oh, yes! that is a particular day; the polling day. It is a sort of day that everybody recollects?—Well, it is a day that I cannot recollect myself. I cannot recollect it.

38,815. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Are you sure it was only 30*s.* you received?—That is all.

38,816. In 1863; I call your attention to it?—Very good.

38,817. Because it is just possible you might have forgotten, for I see you are put down here as having received 3*l.*?—30*s.*

38,818. (The Chief Commissioner.) Was the 30*s.* before the election?—No. 30*s.* before the election; that is quite right.

38,819. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Well, what was after?—Not a farthing; not a fraction.

38,820. You are put down 3*l.* received from Mr. Green, who is standing behind you in the box?—Very well. Here is the one that can rectify it, behind me.

38,821. What do you say to it? Here is "Hewson, 3*l.*"?—30*s.* I received; that is all I received.

38,822. Did you receive any more?—No, not a penny. I will take my solemn oath of it.

38,823. But you are taking your solemn oath; you are upon your oath. Or in any shape or form did you receive it?—No.

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien, inspecting an entry.) He was to receive 4*l.* 10*s.*: "By cash on account 3*l.*; "1*l.* 10*s.* due."

38,824. (Mr. Commissioner Smith, showing an entry to witness.) Is that your handwriting?—No.

38,125. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Whose handwriting is it?

(Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Whose handwriting is it, upon your solemn oath?—That is my handwriting; but who put the amount down?

38,826. You were asked whether that was your handwriting?—That is my handwriting, but the amount never was received; not by me.

38,827. Let us cut this short. You must be more careful not to deal so lightly with an oath?—That is true; 30*s.* I received, I take my oath of it.

38,828. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You received 3*l.*?—It was put down as such, but I never received it.

38,829. Didn't your wife receive a pound for making favours?—That had nothing to do with Mr. Green.

38,830. Did not she receive a pound?—I do not know what she received.

38,831. Do not be so foolish?—She made some for both parties.

38,832. I am only asking you now on behalf of the Gower party. Do not be so foolish in the way you answer; you will only get yourself into trouble. Didn't she receive some money for it?—No doubt she did.

38,833. (The Chief Commissioner.) Well, why didn't you answer before when the gentleman first asked you the question? It takes up so much time. Well, tell me this, you say you didn't vote in 1865; but you received some money, didn't you? Do pray let us have it at once?—1865?

38,834. Yes. In this last election you received some money, didn't you?—No.

38,835. You did, I think, from Mr. Green?—Oh, did I?

38,836. But, "Oh, did I?" is not the way for a man like you to give an answer. Let us have it. Is your name Hewson? I am speaking of 1865?—Is that the last election?

38,837. Yes. Mr. Green paid you, or gave it to somebody to pay you; I suppose paid you himself; 10*s.* entered here, at any rate, and perhaps other sums besides?—For what purpose?

38,838. At the election. Did you receive it?—I never received a fraction.

38,839. There is "John Hewson, 10*s.*" I will put a score under it?—Very well, it is false.

38,840. Very well. That is a sensible answer.

(Mr. Green, referring to entry.) No, that is Herne; a labourer of the name of Herne.

(The Chief Commissioner, to witness.) I beg your pardon; it is quite right; but you should have answered sooner. It is not worth all the time; it is not indeed.

38,841. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I must ask you a few more questions about the "Warwick Arms." You have said you were there at 11. Were you in there at about 2 o'clock?—Not to my knowledge. It is possible I might.

38,842. Possible you might?—Oh yes, I am just as liable to be there at 2 as at 12.

38,843. Now be very cautious, and answer this question carefully. When you were there, outside the house, did not Mr. Featherstone ask you to come in and have some lunch?—Not to my knowledge.

38,844. Didn't he ask you whether you had voted? Now be cautious about this; I have a reason for asking you?—No.

38,845. Will you swear he did not?—I believe he never did such a thing.

38,846. Will you swear he did not?—I believe he did nothing of the sort.

38,847. I will go farther. Didn't you say, "I "have got nothing, and I don't intend to vote"?—No.

38,848. Will you swear you never used such words? Not to that effect.

38,849. Be cautious, and give a true story of what took place between you and Featherstone?—Nothing on that occasion at all; not at the last election. On the last election there was nothing.

38,850. If you recollect, you can tell me. Featherstone spoke to you at the "Warwick Arms." I believe he spoke to you out of the window, and asked you whether you had voted?—It was never my intention to vote.

38,851. That is not an answer to a very plain question. Did Featherstone ask you whether you had voted?—Not to my recollection.

38,852. Will you swear he did not?—No, I would not swear it, because I ain't sure whether he did or did not speak to me on that day, occasionally or not.

38,853. And you told him you had received nothing, and you did not intend to vote?—Oh dear, I don't want anything.

38,854. Did you say so?—No, never.

38,855. Did you allude to Featherstone to what the others were receiving on the other side?—Nothing.

38,856. Did you go in and have anything with Featherstone?—No.

38,857. Did you go into the room where Featherstone was?—Not to my knowledge. He might be there, but I never saw him, nor yet spoke to him at the election.

38,858. Didn't you go in at the request of Featherstone?—Not to my knowledge.

38,859. Will you swear you did not?—I won't swear it, because I won't take a false oath to my knowledge.

38,860. Didn't you say to Featherstone, referring to your vote, "I have got nothing, and I don't intend "to vote;" or "I have got nothing to vote for"?—Them words were never spoken by me.

38,861. Or anything approaching to it?—No.

38,862. Well, we shall see. Mr. Featherstone will be here?—Well, I am at any time at your command and any day. A thing of that sort never was spoken.

The witness withdrew.

JAMES MILLS (before examined).

J. Mills.

Addressing the Court, said: I remember that besides what I have told you there was 10*s.* I had.

38,863. (The Chief Commissioner.) Besides the 7*s.* 6*d.*? Who paid you?—Mr. Apted.

38,864. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) That was for going to Earlswood?—Yes.

The witness withdrew.

WILLIAM WOODMAN called, sworn, and examined.

W. Woodman.

38,865. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What is your business?—Bricklayer and builder.

38,866. You were a voter at the last election?—Yes.

38,867. For whom did you vote?—Mr. Richardson.

38,868. What rent did you pay for your house?—I was living in a house that I built myself.

38,869–70. Oh, what was the value of that?

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) The yearly ratal?—I think it was rated somewhere about 25*l.* a year.

38,871. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I suppose before that you had been on Monson's committee?—Not as I am aware of.

38,872. Had you acted for Mr. Monson before you voted for Mr. Richardson?—Well, certainly I had acted for Mr. Monson under one of his agents.

38,873. Under which agent did you act?—Mr. Nichols.

38,874. What were your duties then; as agent or sub-agent?—I was to take messages to different committee rooms or anything, act as messenger, do what was required of me to do.

38,875. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) But you are a builder?—Yes.

38,876. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Bricklayer and builder?—Yes.

38,877. You have men under you?—Yes.

38,878. Many?—A few sometimes.

38,879. You are in a fair way of business?—I don't know what you call a fair way of business.

38,880. Having several men under you?—Oh yes, I have a few sometimes.

38,881. To what extent; 20 or 30?—Sometimes I have one; sometimes no one at all; sometimes 15 or 20.

38,882. According to the work you have?—According to the contracts I have.

38,883. How long were you put on this election as messenger by Mr. Nichols?—I do not know the time when I went on for Mr. Nichols; but I was on with him somewhere about three or four days off the polling.

38,884. Only that?—No.

38,885. About three or four days before the polling you were put on. Was there any arrangement about what you were to be paid?—No.

38,886. Were you paid?—I was paid what I charged.

38,887. How much were you paid?—35*l.*

38,888. For your work as messenger?—Yes.

38,889. When were you paid that?—Two or three days before the election.

38,890. Are you a friend of Mr. Nichols'?—No.

38,891. Intimate with him?—No.

38,892. Do you use his house?—If I want a glass ale when I am passing I go in there and have it.

38,893. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you say Mr. Nichols paid you?—Yes.

38,894. When?—It might be three days before the election.

38,895. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) It was not on a Sunday?—No, I never use public houses on Sunday.

38,896. A respectable man would not?—No, of course not.

38,897. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) A gentleman of your class would not use a public house on Sunday?—Of course not. They generally keep it in stock.

38,898. Then you were put on three or four days before the election?—No, I did not say that. I said it was paid to me three or four days before the election. I said I was put on for Mr. Monson about the commencement of the election.

38,899. But you did not get any real work as a messenger till three or four days before the election?—Oh yes, I was at work all the time.

38,900. At Nichols' house?—Oh no.

38,901. Carrying circulars?—Yes, anything that he required.

38,902. How often were you engaged?—Three or four times a day.

38,903. Were you rather busy in your business just before the election?—I was rather busy.

38,904. How many men had you under you?—At that time?

38,905. Yes?—I could not state how many men I had under me at the time.

38,906. Twenty or thirty?—No, I did not have so many at that time.

38,907. Were they only at one job, or at different houses?—I cannot say. I have a great deal of jobbing work going on sometimes.

38,908. And you had then?—Well, I might have had; I cannot say.

38,909. Do you work yourself at your own business?—Sometimes. When I have a job that requires me, I go to work at it.

38,910. But if you have your work distributed over a large area, I suppose you superintend; you go to the various places?—I go and inspect the men.

38,911. Had you many spots where your men were at work?—I cannot say how many it was.

38,912. During those few weeks before the election?—I could not say how many it was.

38,913. But you had a good many?—I had several during the time.

TWENTY-FIFTH DAY.

W. Woodman.

19 Sept. 1866.

38,914. Do you keep any account in your books, not only of your men, but of your own time?—I do not require to keep any account of my own time. It is the men's time that I look after.

38,915. I am simply asking you whether you keep any diary of your own time?—No, I do not require it. It is only the men's time.

38,916. If you work at your own business, and make up your bills, don't you calculate your time?—I never work on day work. It is only piecework.

38,917. Tell me, when was this money paid by Nichols?—When I sent my bill in.

38,918. When was it?—About two or three days before the election.

38,919. Why did you send in a bill before the election?—Why did I? Because I wanted the money.

38,920. How was the money paid? — By Mr. Nichols.

38,921. Yes, be cautious how you answer?—I think I had a 10*l.* note, and the rest was in gold.

38,922. All in gold?—Yes, I think it was.

38,923. Three or four days before the election?—Yes; I think three or four days before the election.

38,924. (The Chief Commissioner.) I understand that you won't say what money you received it in?—Sir?

38,925. Did I understand you by your answer to say you won't pledge yourself what money you received it in; what coin?—No, I would not pledge myself.

38,926. Well, I want the answer?—Well, I told you to the best of my knowledge.

38,927-8. "I won't pledge myself what coin it was "in"?—No, I won't.

38,929. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was there anybody present when it was paid?—I do not think there was.

38,930. Where was it paid?—Paid down at Mr. Nichols's house.

38,931. Where?—The "Grapes."

38,932. What part of the house?—Well, I do not know. His rooms are numbered, and I am not much accustomed to using the house. I think it was in No. 1. I think it was the first door; at any rate, as near as I can say, it is the first door that you enter,—the first door.

38,933. Why do you keep laughing all this time that you are giving this evidence? — I am not laughing.

38,954. Yes, I can see that there is a sort of a smile or a laugh every now and then?—Well, it may be usual to me.

38,935. Well, don't you think it is rather a serious matter being upon your oath?—Well, I am upon my oath, and I am telling you the truth.

38,936. Then, if you are telling us the truth, you can tell us what coin this was in?—Well, I am telling you as nearly as I can.

38,937. You are quite certain that it was a 10*l.* note, and the rest in gold?—That is to the best of my opinion. It is a long time ago, and I do not remember.

38,938. It is not so long ago that you do not recollect. Will you swear that you had 25 sovereigns given to you?—It was 35*l.*

38,939. Will you swear that you had 25 sovereigns; you say it was a 10*l.* note and the rest in cash?—Well, I would not be certain how it was. I believe it was a 10*l.* note and the rest in gold.

38,940. Was it paid at one time?—All at one time.

38,941. Then you can better recollect how it was paid. Was any of it paid by cheque?—No.

38,942. Do you know that man William Clark?—William Clark?

38,943. Yes. Do you know William Clark?—Well, I know two or three William Clarks.

38,944. I believe he is a painter?—Yes, I know William Clark the painter.

38,945. And house decorator?—Yes.

38,946. Was he there when you were paid?—No.

38,947. Had you seen him at the "Grapes" just before the polling?—I might have seen him there. He used to be over at Reigate different times; but I do not recollect any particular time of seeing him there. I have seen him there different times.

38,948. (The Chief Commissioner.) Do you belong to Reigate or to Redhill?—Redhill.

38,949. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Had you and Clark had any conversation about this matter?—About the election?

38,950. Yes?—Not as I recollect.

38,951. And about money?—No.

38,952. Have you had any conversation with Mr. Nichols since the election?—About money?

38,953. Yes?—Never.

38,954. Or about the evidence to be given here to-day?—No.

38,955. Or before this Commission, perhaps; not to-day?—No.

38,956. Was anything said to you when you were put on as to what was to be the rate of pay?—No.

38,957. How came you to make up your bill for 35*l.*?—Because it was worth it, what I did.

38,958. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Oh, certainly, I understand. As a man of business you sent in the account?—Yes.

38,959. And of course you gave a receipt, did you? You sent in the bill and they paid it. Did you give a receipt?—I believe I did.

38,960. No, no; we will have an answer to it?—Well, you have got the answer. I say I believe I did.

38,961. Did you give a receipt to Mr. Nichols for that sum of money? Did you give him a receipt?—I said I believe I did.

38,962. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you give a receipt you are asked?—I have answered the question twice. I said I believe I did.

38,963. That is not an answer?—Then I cannot give any further answer.

38,964. (Mr. Commiioner O'Brien.) Did you?—I told you I believe I did, but whether I did or not I would not swear.

38,965. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you send in an account?—I gave him an account.

38,966. How did you make out your account?—For services; for my services during the election.

38,967. Did you make it out from any entries in a book?—No.

38,968. Then how did you charge?—For what I did.

38,969. Upon what scale? What did you take as the groundwork?—For going to and fro taking circulars; going to meetings; neglecting my own work, and attending upon theirs.

38,970. Is that the way in which you made out your bill?—Yes.

38,971. Those particular words?—No.

38,972. How was it worded?—I do not know. I got a certain plan from Mr. Nichols for a certain sum.

38,973. Did you keep any copy of it?—I believe I have got the copy at home.

38,974. Why didn't you bring it with you?—Well, I didn't think anything about it. I got rather a short notice.

38,975. Then you will bring it here to-morrow morning?—Certainly, if you require it.

38,976. How far is your house from here?—About a mile and a half.

38,977. Then you can bring it this afternoon?—No, I could not without a conveyance.

38,978. Oh yes you could. We must have that?—I could not get back this afternoon.

38,979. (The Chief Commissioner.) Are you married?—Yes.

38,980. Have you a family?—Yes.

38,981. You say you sometimes employ men, and sometimes do not; do you keep any banking account, ever?—Banking account?

38,982. Have you ever any account open at any bank?—No.

38,983. Never have, I mean?—No, the funds never rose so high.

38,984. What I want to know is this; what time of day was it that you received the money; about what time in the day did you receive the money from Mr. Nichols?—From Mr. Nichols?

38,985. Yes?—Well, I don't know. I think it was about——

38,986. I do not want to fix you accurately. I won't take any advantage. About what time of the day? Was it before dinner or after dinner?—I think it was in the morning.

38,987. Was it on a Monday morning or Saturday?—It was not on the Saturday; it was the beginning of the week.

38,988. A day or two before the election?—I would not say the day.

38,989. Well, then, I will take your answer, "I "cannot say what day it was I received the money." Is that right?—If there was only one speaking at a time I should know what to do.

38,990. Then I will wait. You shall not have any disadvantage. Tell me, please, must I take your answer; "You cannot say what day it was you received "the money"?—No, I could not.

38,991. What did you do with the money when you got it?—Kept it.

38,992–3. I know that. That is no answer.

What did you do with the money?—What did I do with the money?

38,994. What did you do with the money after you got it?—I put it in my pocket and kept it for myself.

38,995. You know that is not an answer. I have not the least objection, if you want to produce any jest?—I don't want to jest. The money was given to me the same as if I sent in a bill to any other person for work I did.

38,996. Well, but to tell me that you put the money in your pocket is the answer of an idle man. If there is anything to laugh at, let us all laugh; but don't tell us you put it in your pocket?—I kept it till I paid it away for other accounts.

38,997. To whom?—Anybody I owed debts to.

38,998. To whom?—I cannot say.

38,999. Then I am to take your answers all in the negative; "I cannot tell what day I received the "money; I cannot tell to whom I paid the money"?—I cannot tell.

39,000. Shall I take your answer, "I cannot tell "what I did with the money after I received it"?—I kept it for my own uses.

39,001. How did you use it? You could not use money without getting rid of it?—Certainly not.

39,002. Shall I take down that you cannot tell what you did with the money?—Only paying it away.

39,003. Whom did you pay?—Well, I cannot tell.

39,004. Well, that is a very simple question; it is a very plain question, and wants a proper answer, as "I paid John Davis or William Jones."—I did not have any of those men to pay.

39,005. Whom did you pay?—I paid nobody.

39,006. "I cannot tell what day I received the "money; I do not know what I did with the money; "and I paid nobody with it." Have you got it now?—The money?

39,007. Yes.—No, I wish I had.

39,008. If you have not got the money now, where is it?—Well, I have got three or four children to keep, and a wife.

39,009. Did you give it to your wife?—When she required it; but I do not know that I did that money.

39,010. I am talking about that money?—No, I cannot tell that I did.

39,011. Did you pay away anything for your wife?—I cannot tell that I did pay anything for my wife.

39,012. Did you pay anything for your children?—No.

39,013. Did you lend it to Mr. Nichols back again?—Lend it Nichols? he is the wrong man.

39,014. Oh no, no; but he is a very respectable man?—No; but I would sooner have borrowed anything of him than lent him.

39,015. You know I am trying by every means in my power to account for the money. Did you say, "That is a great deal of money for me to take away; "I will leave some of it with you"?—He did not ask me.

39,016. But did you ask him?—No.

39,017. Did you give anybody that 35*l.*?—No.

39,018. Can you tell any one bill you paid with it?—No.

39,019. Did you ever have as much as 35*l.* in your pocket before?—Oh yes, I have had 100*l.* in my pocket before.

39,020. What did you do with it?—Paid it where I owed it.

39,021. Did you do the same with this 35*l.*?—No, I did not owe anything.

39,022. What did you do with it?—I kept it till I wanted it.

39,023. When did you want it?—When the bills came in; baker's bills and grocer's bills.

39,024. But you must have paid it away or put it in the bank?—I have not got any banking account.

39,025. Did you pay the 35*l.* away as you paid such a sum as the 100*l.* when you had that in your pocket?—Paid 100*l.*?

39,026. You told me when you had 100*l.* you paid it where you owed it?—Well, but that was never anything to do with an election.

39,027. No, I mean for work done, building a house, or anything like that?—Yes, work done.

39,028. Well, did you pay that money away where you owed it?—If anybody brought in their bills I did.

39,029. Did you pay any of it away in paying bills as they fell due?—No, not with that money I did not.

38,030. "I did not pay it away in paying bills "when they fell due"?—Not all that money; leastways, it was all mixed up together. If I had 20*l.* in my pocket I put it all together, and I did not know which it was I paid away.

39,031. Had you 20*l.* in your pocket besides?—Very likely.

39,032. Shall I take that down?—If you like.

39,033. Did you pay that 35*l.* away to persons for your family?—It might have gone for my housekeeping bills.

39,034. Did you pay your housekeeping bills yourself, or did your wife?—I do sometimes, and sometimes my wife.

39,035. Did you show the money to your wife?—No, it is a bad plan.

39,036. Did you show the money to your wife?—No.

39,037. Did you show it to your children?—No.

39,038. Did you tell anybody you received it?—No.

39,039. Did you keep it dark?—Yes.

39,040. Have you told anybody since that you received it?—I would not swear to that.

39,041. I mean something more by this question; I want you to attend to it. Have you ever told anybody since that Nichols paid you 35*l.*?—I would not swear to it.

39,042. I want rather a better answer than that?—I tell you I would not swear to it.

39,043. Then you may have told somebody?—I might have done.

39,044. Whom did you tell?—That is the very thing you ask me about. If I had known who I told it to I should have known if I had told any one or not.

TWENTY-FIFTH DAY.

W. Woodman.

19 Sept. 1866.

39,045. You are mistaken, I have not mentioned who it was; I ask you ?—Not that I am aware of.

39,046. Now you say you are not aware ?—No.

39,047. Will you swear that you have told nobody ?—No.

39,048. Then listen to this; it may be that you and Nichols are the only two persons who know of this transaction ?—All that I am aware of.

39,049. It may be that you and Nichols are the only two persons who know of this transaction ?—All that I am aware of.

39,050. May it be that you and Nichols are the only two persons who know of this transaction ?—It may be.

39,051. "It may be for anything I know." If you do not like that answer you shall alter it; "It may "be for anything I know that Nichols and I are the "only persons who know of this transaction about "the 35*l.*"—Certainly; that is my answer.

39,052. Does Nichols know anything about it ?—He knows that he paid me the money, I dare say.

39,053. Does he recollect it ?—I dare say he does.

39,054. No, but does he ?—Well, I do not know; I could not say.

39,055. Be very cautious about this answer, pray do. Does Nichols recollect anything about this transaction ?—I dare say he does.

39,056. I want more than that ?—I could not say any more.

39,057. Do you swear that ?—I could not swear to it.

39,058. Now, mark my question; it is very meaning. Will you swear that ?—I have swore.

39,059. Have you ? I think you have not. I have let you off that. Now I want to know ?—Well, I have told you, I dare say Mr. Nichols knows about the transaction.

39,060. Why do you dare say he does ? — Well, I should suppose he does.

39,061. Why ?—Because if he paid me money I dare say he knows that he paid me.

39,062. Will you swear that is your only reason ?—My only reason.

39,063. Your only reason for thinking that he recollects it ?—I have given you my answer.

39,064. Will you swear that you don't know if Nichols does recollect it ?—Will I swear that he does not know ? No, I would not swear to that.

39,065. Will you swear that Nichols does recollect it ?—No, I won't swear that he did recollect it. I won't swear either way. I could not, because I could not account for his memory.

39,066. You could not account for his memory ?—Certainly not.

39,067. Will you swear that you have had no conversation with Nichols about it within this last week ?—No, I have not had any conversation——

39,068. Is this your answer, "I will swear that I "have had no conversation with Nichols about that "35*l.* within this week" ?—Yes.

39,069. Do you swear that ?—Yes.

39,070. Will you swear that you have not within a fortnight ?—Yes, or within a month.

39,071. Within a month ?—Yes.

39,072. Will you swear that ?—No.

39,073. Will you swear that you have not within two months ?—No, I will not say that, because I have not seen him.

39,074. I will give you three months.—I will say four.

39,075. Will you swear that you have not had any conversation with Nichols about it within the last four months ?—Yes.

39,076. Will you say five ?—Yes, I will say five.

39,077. Will you swear that you have never had any conversation with Nichols about that 35*l.* since the time he paid it to you ?—No.

39,078. When did you have any talk with him about it ?—The only time was when he paid me.

39,079. You say then, that since that time you did not have any conversation with Nichols about it ?—We never required it.

39,080. That is argument. All I want is question and answer at present. Will your swear that you never had any conversation with Nichols about this 35*l.* since the day he paid it to you ?—No.

39,081. You will not swear it ?—I will swear that I have not.

39,082. Then he paid you the 35*l.* on a day you cannot mention; you cannot say what day it was, and you have never mentioned the subject to him, or he to you, since ?—Yes.

39,083. Is that right ?—Yes.

39,084. You really mean to say that is right ?—I have given you my answer.

39,085. Have you ever had any conversation with Nichols about the evidence you were going to give here ?—No.

39,086. Not at all ?—No.

39,087. Eh ?—No.

39,088. Had you with anybody else ?—No.

39,089. When did you receive your summons ?—I do not know.

39,090. About how long ago, was it a fortnight ?—No; yesterday morning I believe I received it.

39,091. Was that a summons, or simply a letter ?—A summons.

39,092. (The Chief Commissioner.) Had you agreed with Mr. Nichols beforehand how much you were to receive ?—No.

39,093. Did he express any astonishment when you sent in your bill for 35*l.* ?—No.

39,094. Do you recollect at all what passed between you at that time ?—All that passed was, that he paid me the bill.

39,095. Without any question ?—Yes.

39,096. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Without asking you what you had done for it ?—He knew what I had done.

39,097. (The Chief Commissioner.) You paid no money out of pocket ?—No, I could not afford it.

39,098. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Was this the first transaction in money matters you had with Mr. Nichols ?—Was this one of money did you say ?

39,099. Was it the first of any money transactions ?—I have known Mr. Nichols a long time.

39,100. That is not an answer to my question; was that the first money transaction you had with Mr. Nichols ?—The first money transaction ?

39,101. It is a very simple question; it does not require such very great reiteration ?—Well, it was not really the first.

39,102. How long had you been having money transactions with Mr. Nichols ?—Upon no occasion.

39,103. How long had you been having money transactions with Mr. Nichols ?—Well, I had a little amount of money from him on Rawlinson's committee. I do not mean Mr. Rawlinson, but at the election of 1863.

39,104. How much had you from him then ?—I think it was about 2*l.*, or something of that sort, for work which I had done.

39,105. He was then working for Mr. Gower ?—Yes.

39,106. Did you vote for Mr. Gower then ?—Yes.

39,107. But you had that transaction with him. Had you any money transactions between 1863 and 1865 ?—Are you speaking of private affairs or election affairs ? I want to know whether you are inquiring into private affairs ?

39,108. I am ?—I will just ask you this question, whether this is an electioneering inquiry or a private inquiry ?

39,109. I am asking you whether you had any money transactions between you and Mr. Nichols from 1863 to 1865 ?—No.

39,110. What do you mean by saying no; why did you not answer before?—I did not know whether you had got on an electioneering inquiry, or an inquiry into my private affairs.

39,111. There may be other inquiries besides electioneering inquiries. Had you any money transactions with Mr. Nichols from 1863 to 1865?—No.

39,112. Did you owe him anything in 1865?—No.

39,113. Did you ever owe him anything?—No.

39,114. Never in his debt at all?—No.

39,115. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did he owe you anything?—No.

39,116. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you vote before 1863?—What election was that?

39,117. That was the election in which Mr. Gower and Mr. Wilkinson were?—I voted in 1863.

39,118. Did you vote before?—No.

39,119. Was that your first time of voting?—Yes.

39,120. And you received 2*l.* on that occasion?—I believe it was.

39,121. When was it you received it?—I received it over at the "White Hart," at the committee room.

39,122. Now, there is a great deal of mystery about this 35*l.*, can you not clear it up a little. You say you got a 10*l.* note, that is rather a large thing; where did you change the 10*l.*?—I do not know.

39,123. Do you recollect now what became of the 10*l.*; it is not every day a man would have 10*l.*; where did you change it?—I could not say.

39,124. Do you recollect changing a 10*l.* note about that time?—I had several at that time.

39,125. Tell me where you changed one?—Where I changed one. There is a gentleman who often changes a note for me (pointing).

39,126. Where?—There; Mr. Lambert is there.

39,127. When will you say he changed one?—I could not say.

39,128. You do not know when you changed that note?—No, I often changed one.

39,129. You hesitated when I asked you whether you had any money transactions between yourself and Mr. Nichols, but you answered very quickly when you said you owed no money to Mr. Nichols or Mr. Nichols to you; were there any money transactions otherwise?—No.

39,130. Do you know what Mr. Nichols is besides keeping the "Grapes;" has he any other office?—I do not know; he is a sheriff's officer, something of that description; but I do not know what he is.

39,131. He was a bailiff for the county court?—He might be.

39,132. You never had any transactions with reference to his official duties. He has an official duty as a bailiff; have you ever had any dealings with him in that capacity; he is a bailiff; you know what I mean?—I do not know what you mean.

39,133. Have you had any dealings with him as a bailiff?—In what way?

39,134. He is bailiff of the county court?—I do not exactly know what you mean.

39,135. Have you been brought up or threatened to be brought up before the county court?—Not that I am aware of.

39,136. You had no dealings with Mr. Nichols in that capacity?—No, none whatever.

39,137. Has any judgment or anything of that kind been out against you?—No.

39,138. That is all the explanation you can give of the receipt of the 35*l.*?—That is all.

39,139. Now it is a very strange thing; that was a great windfall, was it not?—I do not know; they say it is an ill wind that blows nobody any good.

39,140. It was a windfall?—I do not know that it was a windfall for me at all, because I lost my time.

39,141. No windfall at all?—No.

39,142. Not 35*l.*?—No, if I had been attending to my business I should have got that amount of money I dare say.

39,143. You never told your wife about it?—No.

39,144. You cannot recollect where you changed the 10*l.*?—No, and if I could recollect where, very likely they would not remember now.

39,145. Do you recollect whether you kept the 10*l.* in your pocket?—I could not tell you.

39,146. You might have kept it for two or three months?—No, I did not keep it that time.

39,147. How long?—I could not tell you.

39,148. You cannot tell me at all anything about it?—No.

39,149. Nothing whatever?—No.

39,150. And to this hour I suppose your wife is in ignorance that you received the 35*l.*?—Yes, she is over at Redhill.

39,151. She is in ignorance?—Oh, I thought you said in England; I beg your pardon.

39,152. She does not know it?—No.

39,153. And no other human being besides you and Mr. Nichols?—No.

39,154. (The Chief Commissioner.) The world will know it for the first time to-morrow morning?—They will to a great extent.

39,155. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Do you keep trading books?—I do sometimes.

39,156. Answer the question; do you keep books for your business?—I keep books for my own accounts.

39,157. Do you keep accounts of your household expenses?—No.

39,158. Never?—No.

39,159. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Had you any letters from Mr. Nichols?—No, not that I am aware of.

39,160. Lately?—No.

39,161. Or any communication from him through another party?—No.

39,162. You have seen Mr. Nichols here to-day?—I do not know, but I think I saw him when I first came up here.

39,163. You did not speak to him to day?—Not that I am aware of.

39,164. What do you mean by that?—I would not say positively; I rode over in a trap, and I will not say I did not say "Good morning, Mr. Nichols," as I passed him, but in the town you meet so many people you cannot recollect every one you pass.

39,165. Did you stop at the "Grapes"?—To-day?

39,166. Yes?—I had a glass of ale there.

39,167. And you cannot say whether you spoke to Mr. Nichols or not?—I might have said "Good "morning."

39,168. Did you; you might do a great many things?—No, I will not say I did or did not. I might say "Good morning."

39,169. Did he say, "What brings you here"?—No.

39,170. Who supplied you with a glass of ale?—The waiter.

39,171. Was Mr. Nichols there?—Not when I asked for a glass of ale.

39,172. Was he afterwards?—He came in just as I was going out.

39,173. At any rate, you spoke to him then?—I will not say, I will not swear I did not say "Good "morning" to him.

39,174. (The Chief Commissioner.) Do you still say that you will not swear whether you said "Good "morning" or not, when you met him in the doorway at his own house?—No, I will not; I have often gone in his house.

39,175. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You do not often go into his house to come before the Commission?—Yes.

39,176. Oh no, you do not, you mistake. This was a particular occasion; did you come over in your own

TWENTY-FIFTH DAY.

W. Woodman.

19 Sept. 1866.

cart?—No, no one's. Oh, yes, I did, I rode part of the way in one.

39,177. Whose?—Mr. Bunhill's, of the "Marquis "of Granby."

39,178. What time did you come into Mr. Nichols' this morning?—I do not know what time it was I came in; it was somewhere close upon 11 when I had a glass of ale.

39,179. How long did you remain there?—Perhaps 10 or 20 minutes in conversation with the man with whom I rode.

39,180. Who is he?—Mr. Bunhill, of the "Mar-"quis of Granby."

39,181. You did not vote for Mr. Monson?—I did not say that I did.

39,182. Who asked you to vote for Mr. Richardson?—Nobody.

39,183. What, after receiving 35*l.* of Mr. Monson's money; you knew it was Mr. Monson's money?—I do not know whose money it was.

39,184. Did you not know you were working for Mr. Monson?—No.

39,185. Did you not know you were working for Mr. Monson?—Certainly not; I was employed by Mr. Nichols.

39,186. To do what? What were you to do when you were employed by Mr. Nichols?—To do what he required me to do.

39,187. What did he require you to do?—I attended different committee meetings.

39,188. What committee meetings?—Mr. Monson's.

39,189. Did you not know you were working for Mr. Monson?—Yes, I was working for Mr. Monson.

39,190. You were working on behalf of Mr. Monson?—Yes, for his cause.

39,191. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) For Mr. Nichols' cause?—You may put it down which way you like.

39,192. I want you to tell a consistent story?—So I am; I was working for Mr. Monson.

39,193. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I asked you whether you were working for Mr. Monson, and you said you did not know; do you not know?—I do.

39,194. I asked you why you did not vote for Mr. Monson?—Why did not I vote for him?

39,195. Yes?—Because Mr. Richardson came at the eleventh hour.

39,196. That is not a reason?—It is a reason.

39,197. Because he came at the eleventh hour you, who had been receiving Mr. Monson's money, and had already got 35*l.*, voted for Mr. Richardson?—Yes.

39,198. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You had got 35*l.* according to your account?—According to my account. I was not receiving it for any vote. I did not promise any vote.

39,199. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Now we have a pure voter here; you did not promise Mr. Nichols that you would vote for Mr. Monson?—No.

39,200. You did not intend to vote for Mr. Monson?—It was my own discretion.

39,201. Did you intend to vote for him?—That was according to my own opinion.

39,202. Had you made up your mind to vote for Mr. Monson?—I had not.

39,203. (The Chief Commissioner.) Not when you received the money?—No.

39,204. And therefore you were free to vote for Mr. Richardson?—He came at the eleventh hour.

39,205. Nobody asked you to vote for him, and you received no money?—I never received any money.

39,206. Were you at the "Castle" during any period of the election time?—I believe not.

39,207. Just recollect yourself?—Well, I will; I think I may say not.

39,208. That you did not see James Apted there?—No.

39,209. You never saw him with reference to the election at all?—I have seen him to speak to.

39,210. Nothing passed between you?—Not a word.

39,211. No money, or anything of the kind?—No.

39,212. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What time in the day did you vote?—I should say it was somewhere about 3 o'clock. I will not say exactly, but somewhere about that hour.

The witness withdrew.

J. Andrews.

JOHN ANDREWS recalled and examined.

39,213. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You know a witness named William Clarke?—Yes.

39,214. He was examined here a few days ago?—Yes.

39,215. I will just remind you of a fact which he stated in his evidence, that he had received 35*l.* from Mr. Nichols?—I never heard that from him, but I have heard it in evidence here.

39,216. He stated that he had received 35*l.* from Mr. Nichols?—Yes 25*l.*, and 10*l.* in arrears.

39,217. At the time of the election, or after the election, did Clarke tell you what he had received for election?—He told me that he had got this 10*l.*, which was in arrear, and ought to have been paid the election before, and that he had got 2*l.* since.

39,218. When did he tell you that?—Since the election, and before last Christmas; it was a month or six weeks after the election.

39,219. 10*l.* in arrears, and 2*l.* besides?—Yes; he told me I believe in Redhill; and there in Redhill he has told the same tale; one man in particular, I think, accompanied me the same time that he told me.

39,220. Who was that?—I cannot recollect his name now, but there was a person I believe.

39,221. Perhaps some other time you can recollect it?—I believe it was Willett the baker was present at the same time, or at all events he has told the same to him.

39,222. Where is Willett the baker?—He is a confectioner opposite my shop.

39,223. Where is it?—At Warwick-town, Redhill.

39,224. There was another witness in the box today, Hewson; were you at the "Warwick Arms" on the morning ot the polling?—Yes, I was there about half-past 1.

39,225. Did you see the man Hewson there?—Yes.

39,227. Was Featherstone there?—Yes.

39,227. What passed?—Featherstone put his head out of the window and saw Hewson; he said, "Halloa, "Hewson, have you voted yet?" Hewson said, "No, "I have got nothing to vote for," and Featherstone said, "Stop and have a bit of lunch."

39,228. (The Chief Commissioner.) On the polling day?—Yes, about half-past 1. I know the time well, because I had had my dinner, and I dined about 1 o'clock.

39,229. You saw William Featherstone?—He was there having lunch, I believe.

39,230. Was young Featherstone there?—There is the one (pointing to young Featherstone.)

39,231. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You mean the elder Featherstone?—Yes, and Hewson said he had got nothing to vote for.

39,232. Was anything else said between them?—

He said, "If you have not polled come up and have a "bit of lunch," and I believe he went up.

39,233. After Hewson left the box as a witness did he speak to you?—I spoke to him and told him about the lunch; he said, "I know I did, but I paid "for it;" he did not deny me. I told him he had been with the same people, and he said that he knew he had.

The witness withdrew.

THOMAS APPS sworn and examined. T. Apps.

39,234. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are you?—A brickmaker.

39,235. What rent do you pay for your house?—5*s.* a week.

39,236. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Not at all; I never had one.

39,237. Had you a vote in 1863?—Yes.

39,238. Then your "never" was wrong?—I never had one last election.

39,239. For whom did you vote in 1863?—Mr. Gower.

39,240. Were you on Mr. Gower's committee?—Yes.

39,241. I believe you had been canvassed on behalf of Mr. Wilkinson before you promised Mr. Gower?—Yes, I had been asked.

39,242. Who asked you on behalf of Mr. Wilkinson?—Mr. Wilkinson did himself, at least the brother of Mr. Wilkinson.

39,243. And I think you gave a kind of promise?—I told him I did not know then.

39,244. A kind of promise; you gave him hope, he had a hope of you?—A kind of a hope perhaps.

39,245. I believe he went away rejoicing after he saw you?—I never promised him.

39,246. And afterwards you went on Mr. Gower's committee; who placed you on Mr. Gower's committee?—I do not know; Corderoy asked me, and Mr. Gower too.

39,247. And I think Spence asked you?—He might have done; Corderoy was along with him.

39,248. Did you go with Corderoy to the poll?—Yes.

39,249. What did you receive for the work that you did for him?—I never did anything but the committee.

39,250. Did you get anything for your work?—1*l.* a day for the two days.

39,251. The polling and nomination?—Yes.

39,252. Who paid you?—Corderoy.

39,253. When did he pay you?—A few months after the election.

39,254. Did you send any bill to him?—No.

39,255. He came to you?—Yes; I think it was Thomas Jordan told me that Corderoy had got the money.

39,256. Is that all you received altogether?—Yes, that was all.

39,257. How is it you had not a vote this time?—I was out of the book; I had changed about my house. I suppose that was it.

The witness withdrew.

JABEZ TYRRELL, sen. sworn and examined. J. Tyrrell, sen.

39,258. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What are you?—If I tell you what I am I dare say I shall make you laugh; I am an invalid.

39,259. That is too serious a matter to laugh at?—I have been an invalid as much as four years.

39,260. I am very sorry to hear it; did you keep the "Victoria"?—I do now.

39,261. Then I suppose that we may say that you are a publican?—No; a beer shop man.

39,262. You keep a beer shop, the "Queen Vic-"toria"?—Yes.

39,263. At Earlswood?—Yes.

39,264. For whom did you vote?—For Mr. Monson.

39,265. What rent do you pay for your house?—12*l.* rent, and 12*l.* rates.

39,266. Had you any money left at your house to be paid away?—Yes.

39,267. After the election?—After the election, none before.

39,268. How long after?—I cannot say to a few days.

39,268. Was it some months after?—No, not months; some time the next week.

39,270. Was it left with you?—Yes.

39,271. How much?—15*l.*; 5*l.* each.

39,272. Who gave you the money?—Thomas Jordan.

39,273. Did he tell you to whom you were to pay it?—Yes, or else I should not have parted with it. I should have kept it myself if he had not told me the names.

39,274. To whom did he say you must pay the money?—5*l.* to each of my sons James and Jabez, and 5*l.* to Thomas Funnell.

39,275. Those are the three, 5*l.* to each?—Yes.

39,276. Your two boys?—Yes.

39,277. And Thomas Funnell?—Yes, a little shopkeeper who lives with them.

39,278. You paid the money to them?—I did. I did not rob them. If they had had 20*l.* a piece I should have paid them.

39,279. You had the money from Thomas Jordan?—Yes, the elder.

39,280. Did Jordan tell you what the money was for?—For work.

39,281. Done when?—On the election; they were about at work in their trap.

39,282. In the cart?—Yes, what they called doing their work. He said, "Will you turn this here money "to your two sons and to Funnell, instead of my "troubling myself after it," and I said, "If you "leave it it will be all right," and they had the money.

39,283. (The Chief Commissioner.) So they said?—Yes, they had the money.

39,284. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did the Monson party have any meeting at your house?—Two little bits of meetings.

39,285. There were some refreshments, and so on?—I suppose there was to be drinking, or else I should not have wanted them there.

39,286. What did it all come to?—I think both items about 3*l.* or 4*l.*

39,287. Each time?—No, altogether.

39,288. Who paid it?—Mr. Jordan. We never had any bill, only he came and I chalked the sum. If you came to my house to-night I should set up a chalk, and you came to pay me to-morrow I should have no bill against you, I should rub the chalk out, and have no bill.

39,289. So Mr. Jordan paid the money, and you rubbed the chalk off?—Yes.

39,290. Did Mr. Jordan tell you to supply the refreshments?—He was there himself, and other people; a jovial company.

39,291. Did anybody besides Mr. Jordan pay?—Mr. Jordan paid.

39,292. Did you have anything besides for the use of the house?—Yes.

39,293. How much besides that?—10*l.*

39,294. For the use of the house?—For the use of my room.

TWENTY-FIFTH DAY.

J. Tyrrell, sen.

19 Sept. 1866.

39,295. Who paid that?—James Jordan.

39,296. Was there any regular meeting at your house?—No.

39,297. Only those two meetings?—Well, I call them bits of meetings; they only amounted to 3*l.* or 4*l.*

39,298. And then you got 10*l.* besides?—I had 10*l.* for the use of the house.

39,299. Did they make any use of the house?—They could come in when they liked; they had two meetings there.

39,300. Was there anything else done in your house for the election excepting those two meetings?—I did not bar any one, to tell you the truth; it is my living.

39,301. Did people come to your house on account of the election excepting at those two meetings?—I do not know about that; I never kept account of who came or who did not.

39,302. Did you keep a room apart for the use of the election?—When they wished it that room was left to them, no one else could come in; they had the room.

39,303. Did any person come and occupy the room except on those two meetings?—They might.

39,304. Did they come?—They were otherwise engaged.

39,305. Did they come and occupy the rooms on any other occasion?—No, no other meeting did not.

39,306. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Had you voted before?—Yes.

39,307. In 1863?—Yes; I voted for Mr. Wilkinson.

39,308. Did your two sons vote?—No, they did not then, they had not got any votes.

39,309. Was your house engaged? Were you on his committee?—Yes, I was engaged for Mr. Wilkinson then.

39,310. What did Mr. Wilkinson pay for the use of the rooms then?—5l.

39,311. You voted for him?—Yes.

39,312. Had you anything for yourself for your exertions as committee man?—That was all I received.

39,313. Except the refreshments; you received the bill for refreshments?—The refreshments, and nothing else.

39,314. Do you know what amount of refreshments you were paid for?—I do not know, because it is all chalked out.

39,315. Had they any meeting?—Yes, several meetings. Mr. Wilkinson never met there, only Mr. Norman Wilkinson.

39,316. They had several meetings at your house?—Yes, at the committee room, and sometimes there was not above 4*s.* that they paid for next morning. I do not call that anything but just a small bit; 4*s.* and 5*s.* was about the lot I had from Mr. Wilkinson, so I do not want to talk about Mr. Wilkinson's election; what we had was a teetotaler or two, and they never had much beer, and therefore we did not make much of that. A teetotaler is not any good to publics.

39,317. (The Chief Commissioner.) You received 5l. in 1863 for the use of your room from Mr. Wilkinson?—Yes.

39,318. You received it from Mr. Wilkinson himself?—No.

39,319. Who from?—Mr. Langridge paid me the 5l. for the use of the room.

39,320. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Who took the leading part at the two meetings at your house in 1865?—Mr. Jordan.

39,321. Was the candidate there?—Do you mean Mr. Monson?

39,322. Yes?—He was there one night; there was no drinking all the time he was there; he is another teetotaler; he was a great bargain.

The witness withdrew.

William Potter sworn and examined.

W. Potter.

39,323. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—A day-labouring man.

39,324. How much rent do you pay?—15*l.* a year.

39,325. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Mr. Gower.

39,326. Were you on his committee?—No.

39,327. Did you do any work for him?—No, no work at all for any of them.

39,328. You did not?—No, I never worked at any meeting.

39,329. Did you receive anything before the election?—No, nor yet after.

39,330. Nothing at all?—No.

39,331. How was that?—Because I did not get any.

39,332. Did you look for anything?—No. I was promised a little, but I did not get that.

39,333. Who was it promised you something?—Mr. Symonds, I work for.

39,334. Did he promise you anything?—He said he thought he might get a little, but he never did give me any.

39,335. Did you speak to him again about it a second time, about your getting a little?—I asked him about it once, but he made a laugh on it.

39,336. You had a vote in 1863, had you not?—Yes.

39,337. Who did you vote before in 1863?—The same man, Mr. Gower.

39,338. Were you more lucky in 1863?—I do not know what you mean.

39,339. Did you receive anything in 1863?—Not that I am aware of.

39,340. You had been asked to vote for Mr. Wilkinson in that year?—I had been asked.

39,341. You promised you would vote for Mr. Wilkinson?—No, I never promised him; I do not not think I did.

39,342. I thought you had promised to vote for Mr. Wilkinson?—No, I do not remember it.

39,343. What did he say when he asked you for your vote? What was it you said to him?—I do not know what I did say now.

39,344. Were you put on Mr. Gower's committee after that?—I never went on Mr. Gower's committee that I know of.

39,345. Were you put on his committee? You hear what I say, do you not?—Yes.

39,346. Were you put on Mr. Gower's committee in 1863?—I do not understand what you mean.

39,347. You remember the election in 1863?—Yes; for Mr. Gower, was it not?

39,348. Yes, and Mr. Wilkinson. You voted for Mr. Gower?—Yes.

39,349. Did you receive anything for your vote?—No.

39,350. Not the first time?—Not that I am aware of, not a halfpenny.

39,351. Why did you not get something the first time?—I did not.

39,352. Why did you not get something the first time?—I do not know how it was I did not get any.

39,353. You had promised Mr. Wilkinson to vote for him?—Yes, but I did not know it.

39,354. Who asked you to go to Mr. Gower's people?—I do not know; it did not matter to me who it was.

39,355. Do you not remember somebody telling you that if you voted for Mr. Gower you should be paid?—Yes.

39,356. Who told you?—I cannot tell you; I do not recollect anybody saying anything to me besides my master. My master said there might, perhaps, be a trifle for me.

39,357. Was that the first time he said it?—The first time.

39,358. Who promised that to you the last time?—My master.

39,359. Who promised the first time?—I really do not know; that was said once.

The Chief Commissioner stated that the man clearly did not understand the questions, and it was no use wasting any further time with him.

Mr. Rees produced the original accounts of the election of 1863 (of which copies were given to Mr. Smith), and informed the Commissioners that the accounts amounted to nearly 300*l.*

HENRY GREEN called, and examination resumed.

H. Green.

39,360. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I was calling your attention yesterday to this document, which is signed by you and Mr. Rees, accounting for the expenditure of 168*l.* 3*s.* 2*d.*?—Yes, that I say is a misstatement in some way or other; now I have the book I can see it.

39,361. Allow me to see that; the date of it is the 7th of February?—Yes. This was sent into Mr. Smith on the same day; Mr. Rees must have known that.

39,362. If you recollect it commences in January?—Yes, it commences in January; that was when we began paying first.

39,363. So that it includes all the expenditure, from January down to the 7th of February, how do you account for that?—I am going to look it over if you will allow me. (The witness looked at his book and the account.) That is a fac-simile of my book; I think it is a fac-simile.

39,364. That book, I am afraid, could not have been made at the time?—This book was made at the time I paid the monies.

39,365. Do not be in too great a hurry to answer; I do not wish to take any advantage of you. Otherwise your book is false; you say you received 210*l.* only from Mr. Smith, is that in your book?—It is in this book.

39,366. I will ask you whether you did not receive over 300*l.*?—Do you mean in '63?

39,368. Over 300*l.*?—No.

39,369. I mean did not over 300*l.* pass through your hands, considerably over?—No, this is the only money that passed through Mr. Rees' and my hands; I mean with the exception of the money which was paid for our own services.

39,370. Now you are getting into a difficulty, and I will give you an opportunity of coming out of it. Did you receive any more money from Mr. Smith with reference to this election than 210*l.*?—I received no more money in that election but the money stated here, 210*l.* There might have been 3*l.* or 4*l.* over—the balance.

39,371. No, there is returned here, as expenditure between you and Mr. Rees, 317*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*?—That is a mistake.

39,372. Here are the vouchers here?—I never received that.

39,373. Here are the vouchers here, and I will tell you more; there is entered in Mr. Smith's account, which I have in my possession, an amount paid to you of 289*l.* 18*s.* 1*d.*?—What are the accounts?

39,374. They amount to 303*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*?—I never received it.

39,375. Then you paid it out of your own pocket, I suppose. Here are vouchers which Mr. Rees produces as monies which he and you expended in the election of '63?—We did not then, as all I paid is here; here is my book and the receipts of the men.

39,376. That leaves you short, according to your own account, of 50*l.*?—No, not 40*l.*

39,377. In this it is 168*l.* 3*s.* 2*d.*?—It is just as I received the money.

39,378. According to your own account it is 210*l.*?—There is an error somewhere, it never passed through my hands.

39,379. There can be no error here according to your own account?—Ask Mr. Rees. That is not the statement he sent in.

39,380. Here is your own handwriting, admitting that you expended 168*l.* 3*s.* 2*d.* Is that your handwriting (the document was handed to the witness?)—That is mine.

39,381. And you tell us you received 210*l.* I am taking that; it is your own account?—That is all I received.

39,382. Then that leaves a deficiency of 42*l.*?—I cannot account for it. That was not the statement which we sent in.

39,383. You told me that this was a transcript of your book?—That is a transcript of my book.

39,384. Why did you make that, it was not a statement you sent in?—There must have been other accounts included in that paper which perhaps Mr. Rees can explain. I cannot. Mr. Rees did the principal part of the writing, I paid the men and took the receipts.

39,385. This is a transcript of your book, and you told me you put down what you received and expended; therefore you received 210*l.*, and expended 168*l.* 3*s.* 2*d.* I ask you again how you explain that difference?—I cannot account for it, perhaps Mr. Rees may when he gets the book.

39,386. Now turn to your account of the monies you received from Mr. Smith. On January the 4th did you receive 5*l.*?—Do you mean in '63 or '65.

39,387. I am in '63?—Yes, that was it.

39,388. Is it in your book?—No, it is not; that was the first payment.

39,389. Did you receive on the 31st of January 52*l.* 10*s.*?—No, certainly not, here is the account; on the 24th of January I received 20*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*

39,390. Did you not receive 52*l.* 10*s.* on the 31st of January?—No, 30*l.*

39,391. Did you receive on the 6th of February 30*l.* I am afraid this book is of little value?—I received 30*l.* then.

39,392. Did you receive on February 7th 130*l.*?—I did.

39,393. Did you receive on the 10th of February 9*l.* 16*s.* 5*d.*?—Yes; that was the balance I was just alluding to, a little balance to square up accounts.

39,394. Do not be running away upon balances. I am asking you now about receipts?—Mr. Rees and me did receive that.

39,395. Did you receive on March 21st 19*l.*?—Yes, that was paid to Newman.

39,396. Did you receive on April 8th 8*l.* 9*s.* 9*d.*?—I have no knowledge of that.

39,397. Your book will tell you?—No, those are after settling accounts.

39,398. I am asking you with regard to all the monies you received at and about the election; do not be running away to times. Did you receive 8*l.* 9*s.* 9*d.*?—I have no remembrance of it.

39,399. Did you receive on May 26th 35*l.*?—Yes, that was my own fee.

39,400. Is that in your book?—No, that is my own fee.

39,401. That would not be your own fee; you received 40*l.*?—I received 40*l.* altogether; 5*l.* the first time, and on May 6th 30*l.* by cheque and 5*l.* in gold.

39,402. That makes up the account to 289*l.* 18*s.* 2*d.*, and taking away your 40*l.* makes it about 240*l.*?—Yes. The 19*l.* was part of Mr. Newman's bill at the public house.

39,403. I want to know what you received from Mr. Smith, not what you did with it?—Very well.

39,404. (The Chief Commissioner.) The gentleman does not want to know what you did with the money, it is only what you received?—We go very straight with the first five cheques. On the 24th of January I received 20*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*

TWENTY-FIFTH DAY.

H. Green.

19 Sept. 1866.

39,405. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) There is not the slightest doubt in the world about January 31st; look here, "Cheque to Green for Redhill and Reigate "messengers, 52*l.* 10*s.*" ?—That is a mistake; I only received 30*l.* I will swear that I only received 30*l.*, and Mr. Rees was there.

39,406. Will you allow me to see the entry of that in your book; do not be talking about mistakes, we have had so many ?—There is no mistake about this book.

39,407. Show me the entry of January the 31st. (The book was handed to Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What do you mean by saying that you received nothing on January 31st?—30*l.* I said.

39,408. Pardon me; you said you had received nothing ?—I could not have said that. You said I received 52*l.*, and I said 30*l.*

39,409. I understood you to tell me you had received nothing, but it may have been a mistake. Are all the other items right ?—That is all I received. The 9*l.* was for paying me, Featherstone, and Mr. Rees. I remember that small sum. Mr. Rees has not got it. The 8*l.* I have no account whatever of. The 19*l.* I can explain; it was paid to Newman, or I suppose I had more money than I had there and paid 1*s.*, if I only had 30*l.*

39,410. One side of this is receipts ?—Yes, the receipts of every man.

39,411. And the other is expenditure ?—Yes.

39,412. Now look at the book yourself and explain it to me; is one leaf of the book payments and the other expenditure, or how ? — There is the 31st January, 30*l.*; then we go on expending it.

39,413. Is one leaf of the book receipts and the other expenditure ?—Here is 31st January, 30*l.*, and here it is that I paid that week, 37*l.* odd.

39,414. I am not asking you how you expended it, I am asking you as to the receipts ?—There are the receipts.

39,415. Do you keep one page of your book for receipts and the other for expenditure ?—I do, there it is. (The witness handed the book to the Commissioner).

39,416. You have January 31st here upon this side ?—Yes, it is paid, 30*l.*

39,417. Here you have it on the same side, expenditure ?—That was roughly kept, but there was an account taken from that book and passed into Mr. Smith. The money was received by Mr. Rees and me jointly.

39,418. What is the meaning of this leaf being torn out here; the date is under January the 31st ?—I do not know what that means.

39,419. Just look at yourself ?—It has not been torn out for any purpose.

39,420. It is unfortunutely a recent tear ?—No, on my oath it is not.

39,421. Do not be appealing to your oath. Just look at it (the book was handed to the witness) ?—If you can see it is recently torn it is more than I can. Here is the date, January 31st, it follows in rotation with the last, though the leaf is torn out.

39,422. I have no doubt they do, but there is that unfortunate leaf torn out. It is under the date of January 31st?—Yes.

39,423. How is that?—I cannot say; it was torn out for no purpose.

39,424. Show me the book again (the book was returned to the Commissioner). It is unfortunate that this leaf is torn out just at the very time about which we are in dispute?—That is not where the cash is entered, that is where the men are being paid; it is merely entered in the book, and these are the right accounts given in items from that.

39,425. This amounts to 303*l.* ?—That is a mistake, we never received 303*l.*

39,426. Everything is a mistake ?—I know I never had it; if I had I should say so.

39,427. Now I will call your attention again to this, "Cheque to Mr. Green for Redhill and Reigate messengers, 52*l.* 10*s.* Now with that leaf torn out I ask you did you not receive 52*l.* 10*s.* ?—No, never.

39,428. I see here there are pages 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12; 12 pages of that most important day, January 31st, and one of those in the centre unfortunately is missing, and I see there was writing upon it. You can give no explanation of it?—I can give no explanation of it. I am sure that is the money I received.

39,429. Who tore that; that is a private memorandum book ?—I think some of these names were taken down at the side before the men came, and they said there is the money at the end of the election. Miles was one.

39,430. Who tore it ?—It would be at the same time in the room paying the men if torn out at all. I will swear I have not touched it.

39,431. All the monies received are here ?—All the money with the exception of 19*l.* and the 9*l.*, the balance retained up to the day of the poll to pay the men. That is merely put down in the rough merely as a memorandum, because I was employed, in the book you have got. Those accounts ought to explain everything that you have in your hand.

39,432. Will you show me the next receipt of money that you have at that time?—After what date ?

39,433. After the 31st of January ?—Yes, the 6th of February 30*l.*

39,434. Now the next ?—130*l.* on the 7th.

39,435. The next day ?—Yes.

39,436. What is the next date ? — There is no entry in there after the 7th, we settled up all the money there excepting a little balance going to Mr. Rees and Mr. Featherstone and myself.

39,437. You received a large sum of money after the 7th ?—No. I will explain that 19*l.* if you will allow me.

39,438. (The Chief Commissioner.) You received 72*l.* or 73*l.* after that ?—My own salary with it.

39,439. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) None of that is in after the 7th ?—None of it relates to after the 7th; the other is in the account you have.

39,440. Confine yourself to your transactions with Mr. Smith; we want to know the sums paid to you ?—The book goes up to February the 7th.

39,441. Why did not you enter after that ?—Because we had settled up with the men.

39,442. You received money after ?—Yes.

39,443. You received 9*l.*, 19*l.*, 8*l.* 9*s.* 3*d.*, and 35*l* ?—35*l.* was my own salary, 19*l.* went to J. Newman, the 8*l.* I do not know about, and the 9*l.* was I think the balances of our accounts; Rees', mine, and Featherstone's; and Featherstone was present when it was done. Newman kept the "Wheatsheaf."

39,444. Then unfortunately you did not enter in this book any monies received by you after the 7th ?—Not after the 7th.

39,445. There is still, you know, that unfortunate difference ? — I know I received nothing but this money.

39,446. You do not know in what cheques, you have no memorandum ?—I will tell you how it was paid to me.

39,447. You have no memorandum at all ?—I have a pretty good memory of this.

39,448. My question is, have you any memorandum of the money you received after the 7th of February ?—No.

39,449. (The Chief Commissioner.) You only recollect it from memory ?—Only from memory. I remember the 19*l.* perfectly, and I remember the 35*l.* perfectly.

39,450. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You did not confess it till I called your attention to it ?—I never thought it was in my account, it was part of Mr. Newman's bill, the 9*l.* I have told you about; and of the 8*l.* I have no recollection.

39,451. You have left us entirely in the dark as to how you expended it, or caused that mistake ?—I cannot explain it in any way. Mr. Rees and me made it out from this book, and he must explain it as well as me. As the monies were expended we made it out week by week; we kept a very good account at first.

39,452. I will read it to you; the first week is 20*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.* ?—Yes.

39,453. The next week is 37*l.* 3*s.* 8*d.* monies expended ?—Quite right.

39,454. The next week is 24*l.* 10*s.* ?—That was for watchers.

39,455. Never mind. The next week, 135*l.* 3*s.* 3*d.* ?—Quite right.

39,456. And the next week you expended 80*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* ?—For what. I should like to know amazingly.

39,457. These are charges thus: February 7th 1863, canvassers and other accounts, "Younger, 30*s.* "balance, and six days." "Eastmond, 30*s.* balance, "and six days." ?—I paid up Eastmond by this account. I never paid him that.

39,458. Look at your own handwriting, it confirms it ?—Oh, yes, I see this is quite right; this is part part of the 130*l.* I imagine this is part that I have got the return for here.

39,459. (The Chief Commissioner.) Very likely; I dare say it is.—There is no 80*l.* there. We were never paid that afterwards. I am perfectly satisfied that that is a part of these accounts; that is merely a rough copy of what was paid, February 7th.

39,460, (Mr. Comissioner O'Brien.) Remember you are dealing with gentlemen who know figures quite as well as yourself ?—That is quite right; why should there be two lists ? I know what that is now; that is the paper when Mr. Rees and me made out the accounts to see what balances were owing.

39,461. (The Chief Commissioner.) I see you have got in this as well, Mr. Barber——?—That was a bill, 14*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.*

39,462. It does not matter at present what it was paid out for; it does not affect it ?—These are the balances.

39,463. That is money received by you ?—We never expended that.

39,464. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) According to these bills, which Mr. Rees says he made out and which seems to be a true account of all expenditure, you expended 303*l.* ?—We did not. I am sure we did not expend it, and Mr. Rees knows that that is wrong; it is merely a rough sketch. If you could get the correct copy we sent in to Mr. Smith you would find it then; that copy we signed is not the copy, and however we signed it I cannot conceive.

39,465. Tell me what it is if it is not expenditure ?—Here is Longhurst, I will take his name; there is no harm in taking his name. February 7th 1863, 30*s.* balance and six days makes 3*l.* 15*s.* 3*d.*, balance due on account of Mr. Nichols 3*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*, and night-work 30*s.* makes it come to 8*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*; that is the same amount there on the other side, then there is Longhurst four days, and there again it is four days 1*l.* This is merely the rough copy that he made out when we had to produce the accounts to Mr. Smith; this is merely the rough copy made out from this book. He had no business to produce it, and Mr. Rees ought to have known that. I am quite sure that our accounts are made up quite right; there may be a pound or two out, but that is all; you cannot be quite certain in election matters.

39,466. (The Chief Commissioner.) You mean that this sheet is a copy of the accounts in that ?—A rough copy.

39,467. What is this for ?—Merely to get an amount that we should claim from Mr. Smith to pay the men the 130*l.* There is no deception about it if you could get the correct account.

39,468. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You mean that this is not a part of the account ?—Not at all; that is merely a copy of this. I am only anxious that you should get the truth; I am quite as anxious as you are.

39,469. Take these three papers into your hand. (The papers were handed to the witness). Apart from the 80*l.*, are those accounts which you sent in ?—These are the accounts which we sent in.

39,470. Is there any sum total to them ?—No sum total as I can see, only the total of every week.

39,471. I mean the sum total of all ?—No, that was made out in another sheet.

39,472. Another sheet in addition ?—Yes, that we sent in to Mr. Smith; it was a fair copy from that.

39,473. Does that contain all the accounts you have sent in ?—Yes, all with the exception of 35*l.*, my fee, 19*l.* to J. Newman of the "Wheatsheaf," the 8*l.* that I have no remembrance of, and the 9*l.* 16*s.* 5*d.*, which was the balance I think owing to me, Featherstone, and Mr. Rees.

39,474. Now, mark this; these do not include a farthing of your own fee ?—That is quite right.

39,475. Altogether that makes 217*l.* 19*s.* 5*d.* ?—Altogether 217*l.* 19*s.* 5*d.* The 7*l.* which is more than I received was I think given. I only take it from memory.

39,476. (The Chief Commissioner.) 217*l.* 9*s.* 5*d.* ?—212*l.* and 5*l.*

39,477. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That is money you say you paid out of pocket ?—It was expended on election purposes, as is described by the bill.

39,478. There is no mistake now ?—Not the least; for the 80*l.* has nothing to do with it, which I think is proved pretty plainly now.

39,479. 217*l.* you expended ?—Yes.

39,480. How do you account for 168*l.* 3*s.* 2*d.* ?—I cannot conceive the mistake.

39,481. Let me call your attention to it for a moment ?—You see it is exclusive of Barker's 14*l.* odd for ribbons and various bills which I see is in that.

39,482. Then in fact you give an explanation which, if it does not mean deception, means this, "We "have expended on behalf of Mr. Gower 168*l.* 3*s.* 2*d.*, "and we have received from Mr. Gower 168*l.* 3*s.* "2*d.*" ?—And the cash you have in your hand.

39,483. You see there is 60*l.* deficient ?—It is plain we paid that away, for here are the receipts.

39,484. Would it not be better to apply your mind to accounting for the 60*l.*; can you give an explanation of that ?—I am going to try. The only explanation I can give is that is a false account which I did not make out.

39,485. A false account ?—It is not a false one to this extent, namely, that the money was paid away.

39,486. Do you see your signature to it ?—Yes, and Mr. Rees; but how we came to sign it I do not know.

39,487. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I thought before I left the Court it was a fac simile of yours ?—So it is; there is 217*l.* 9*s.* 5*d.* We carry that out in this way.

39,488. (The Chief Commissioner.) You mean the entries are correct, but the sums carried out are not ?—There must be something wrong; neither can I see the motive of it. I saw the account before it came out to you, and I spoke to Mr. De Rutzen about it and told him it was wrong. It is 217*l.*; the items must have been added up wrong.

39,489. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) There is a deficiency to the extent of 60*l.*; you suppose it must be added wrongly up to the extent of 60*l.* ?—Mr. Allen, the Chief Commissioner, cast up the items to the extent of 217*l.*

39,490. (The Chief Commissioner.) Yes, I did; did I do it wrong ?—No; quite right, but there must be wrong somewhere.

39,491. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) The 217*l.* did not include your fee of 40*l.* ?—No.

39,492. That brings it up to 257*l* ?—Yes, I suppose so. 217*l.* and 40*l.* is 257*l.* of course.

39,493. You received 257*l.* ?—Yes.

39,494. How is that reconcilable with this, that

TWENTY-FIFTH DAY.

H. Green.

19 Sept. 1866.

you said you only received 210*l.*?—I always said that was without my fee.

39,495. (The Chief Commissioner.) You say, "It "did not include my fee"?—Yes. The 19*l.* I have explained which was given by Newman, who will explain it if you swear him.

39,496. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) The 60*l.* remains unaccounted for then? Had you made any arrangement beforehand about your fee?—No; you are alluding to 1863.

39,497. How was the 40*l.* made up?—Mr. Smith gave me 5*l.* as a retainer, and afterwards he paid me by cheque 30*l.* and 5*l.* in gold. It was the 26th of May when he paid me the balance.

39,498. (The Chief Commissioner.) The 26th of May he paid you the balance?—Yes, of 35*l.*; 30*l.* by cheque and 5*l.* in gold or by note.

39,499. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You are sure of that?—Quite sure; the cheque I changed myself.

39,500. (The Chief Commissioner.) Was that before the election?—It was before the election, very early he paid it me. He gave me a cheque and Mr. Gower was with him.

39,501. (The Chief Commissioner.) You received a cheque for 30*l.*?—Yes, and 5*l.* change.

39,502. Are you sure it was 30*l.*?—Yes, I changed the cheque myself; it was a 30*l.* cheque.

39,503. Are you sure it was a 30*l.* cheque?—Yes, it was a 30*l.* cheque I am positive.

39,504. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Do not be so positive; I like to see a man who is not so positive?—He might have drawn the other cheque in my name and sent it by his clerk; it was drawn in two cheques, one 30*l.* and the other 5*l.*

39,505. On the 26th of May?—Yes; on the 26th of May.

39,506. Are you sure it was not a cheque of 31*l.* 10*s.*?—I am sure.

39,507. Perfectly sure?—Perfectly sure.

39,508. (The Chief Commissioner.) Perfectly sure?—Perfectly sure. I am confident.

39,509. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I never wish to take in any one. Now I have got Mr. Smith's banking book, and you are credited for a cheque for 31*l.* 10*s.* in May?—Then the 1*l.* 10*s.* must have been for some little trifle to some person to pay some account for him.

39,510. I called your attention again and again to it, but it was all useless?—I know.

39,511. You told me you had gone to the bank and cashed a 30*l.* cheque?—(No answer).

39,512. (The Chief Commissioner.) That you swore distinctly, and now you see it is a cheque for 31*l.* 10*s.*?—It must have been for some small matter; at all events it is not far off.

39,513. You have not yet accounted for the difference between the 30*l.* and 52*l.*?—I am sure I never had it.

39,514. You are as sure of that as of the other, I suppose?—I am sure of it.

39,515. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Can you give me the names or any of the names of parties in 1863 that have not been called here before?—No.

39,516. Just look at the book and tell me the name of any man that was not called?—Goring, James.

39,517. He has not been paid?—No.

39,518. How much did you pay him?—I paid him 6*l.* 15*s.*

39,519. What was that for?—For canvassing. Bennett and Davey, they have been called I think; then there is Kenward.

39,520. (The Chief Commissioner.) Is not that Kenward who is an agent?—He is an agent this year.

39,521. Just tell me what Kenward got. I should very much like to know what Kenward got in 1863?—6*l.* 15*s.*

39,522. Can you mention anybody else?—Henry Finch.

39,523. We have had him already; can you mention anybody else?—No, I think not; I made no other entry; it is all down here.

33,524. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I think you had not been employed in any previous elections?—I had not.

39,525. That was in 1863?—Yes.

33,526. Now in 1865. I suppose you have an account of the monies you received in 1865?—We kept no accounts; our committee room was in the town hall; we kept no accounts.

39,527. That is unfortunate, is it not?—It is very unfortunate.

39,528. It will not be much worse, it could not be; still they might have assisted us?—I thought we kept the account in '63 uncommonly well.

39,529. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was that Joseph Finch you told us of?—Henry.

39,530. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What arrangement did you make with Mr. Smith in 1865?—No arrangement was made; I knew I should be paid.

39,531. How much?—50*l.*

39,532. Why should you know you would be paid 50*l.*?—I did not say 50*l.*; but I knew I should be paid.

39,533. Who put you to work, Mr. Gower or Mr. Smith?—Mr. Smith.

39,534. How long before the election?—A considerable time; it was the 8th or 9th of May; the 9th of May, if I remember correctly.

39,535. At the outset I will ask you have you any mode except your memory (which you will pardon me for saying is not a very good one) by which you made out the accounts?—I have not a good memory in money matters, I am sorry to say; I wish I had.

39,536. How much money did you receive from Mr. Smith?—I received 200*l.* altogether.

39,537. Have you any mode except your memory which enables you to say how much money you received from Mr. Smith?—No, I have not.

39,538. Did you make no memorandums of any kind or sort, or in any shape or form, of the money you received from Mr. Smith?—I made some memorandums afterwards when the petition was over.

39,539. Not at the time?—No; it was after the petition that I put it down.

39,540. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) From memory?—Yes.

39,541. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Whose figures are these?—They are mine.

39,542. When were those made?—They were made very recently.

39,543. When?—Perhaps three or four weeks ago, perhaps four or five.

39,544. Where did you get the matter to make them?—Here is the account. I sent to Mr. Smith.

39,545. Did you go to Mr. Smith's office?—No, it is from my memory.

39,546. Did you go to Mr. Smith's office, or where did you get this, for instance, "June 13th, 10*l.*"?—I remember it perfectly well.

39,547. Do you mean to say that in January last you remembered it was the 13th of June you received 10*l.*?—I might have made slight memorandums at the time.

39,548. Where are those memorandums?—I have no memorandums.

39,549. You made this up about a month ago?—Yes.

39,550. What from?—From the copy I gave Mr. Smith. I had a copy, and that is a copy of the copy I had. I might make 50 copies.

39,551. You gave Mr. Smith an account; where is the copy you gave Mr. Smith?—That is it.

39,552. No it is not, it cannot be?—It is a fac simile.

39,553. Where is the copy itself?—That I do not know.

39,554. Where is the copy itself?—I have not got it.

39,555. Pray do attend; you say you take these figures from a certain paper you call a copy; where is that copy?—I have no copy.

39,556. It is a hopeless embranglement. Tell me the date at which you put the memorandums down?—A month or five weeks ago.

39,587. Since the Commission came here?—No.

39,558. How long before the Commission came here?—It might have been a fortnight before the Commission.

33,559. That will now be, I am sorry to say, more than a month ago?—I say a fortnight before the Commission came down here.

39,560. Keep the account in your hand, and tell me from what paper did you make it out?—I had some memorandums at the time of the election, which were destroyed at the time of the petition.

39,561. You will not escape me, I can tell you. From what memorandums did you make this out?—None.

39,562. From what, then, did you make it out?—I made it out from memory.

39,563. Do pray now attend. Did anybody assist you in making out the first entry?—That is, "June "the 13th, 10*l.*"

39,564. Did anybody assist you to make out the entry of "June the 13th, 10*l.*," when, a month ago, you sat down to make that account out?—Nobody assisted me; money is pretty well engraven on my mind.

39,565. I thought you said there were memorandums?—There were slight ones.

39,566. Give me another entry?—June 22nd, 10*l.*

39,567. What day in the week was that?—I do not remember.

59,568. Oh, indeed! go on to the next?—There is another of 29th June, 50*l.*

39,569. Did anybody assist you in that?—No.

39,570. How did this memory of yours supply you with the date of the 29th of June?—It supplies me very well in 1865.

39,571. Was the 29th of June engraved on your memory sufficiently to account for that?—No doubt it was to the extent of my receiving 50*l.*

39,572. The next?—July 15th, 30*l.*

39,573. Anything else?—Yes.

39,574. What is it?—A loan of 10*l.*

39,575. From whom?—Mr. Smith.

39,576. What date is that?—That is set down some time in August.

39,577. Well, this miraculous memory of yours enabled you a month ago to put down what you received in 1865?—That is the account.

39,578. But these were monies you received, another man's monies that you were to account for?—Yes.

39,579. There was June the 13th, 10*l.*; June the 24th, 60*l.*; then in July, 50*l.* and 30*l.*?—Well, it was made out from memorandums.

39,580. (The Chief Commissioner.) What is the date of that loan?—I do not know, but it was some time in August.

39,581. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Why cannot you tell the particular date of that when you have got all this so pat?—I cannot tell.

39,582. (The Chief Commissioner.) The loan was from Mr. Smith. Was that a cheque?—I think it was a cheque.

39,583. Who was it payable to?—To myself, I think. I cannot say whether it was to myself or Mr. Smith, but I should think it would be to myself.

39,584. Have you got August the 24th?—No, sir.

39,585. That is five guineas?—That is to my son.

39,586. October the 30th, 30*l.*?—That is right.

39,587. Were all these payments by cheques?—I think so.

39,588. Surely you would recollect that?—Yes, they were by cheques.

39,589. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Cannot you tell me; October is nearer than July?—Perhaps I can tell you if you will let me look at the accounts. No, I do not remember the date.

39,590. But you have such a marvellous memory?—This is not very marvellous; it is matter that gets very much impressed upon your mind, too much so, I am sorry to say.

39,591. What do you say was the first day?—June.

39,592. That you remember?—Yes.

39,593. I ask you again did you not see Mr. Smith in reference to the monies you received from him before the Commission came down here?—I have seen Mr. Smith, but not in reference to the monies.

39,594. When you saw Mr. Smith did you not speak to him as to the monies you received for the election?—Yes; we went through the accounts.

39,595. And taken from this cheque book; why did you not tell me so at once, but you said money was so engraven on your memory?—We went through the accounts.

39,596. (The Chief Commissioner.) You say you received 200*l.* altogether?—I know that from memory. I went to Mr. Smith, and we made it out from paper.

39,597. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Why did you not tell me that? At that time you had had an expenditure of what?—200*l.*

39,598. This is what you expended; there are your receipts; you are making for yourself now an account of the monies you had expended sent in in your own handwriting?—This is it.

39,599. Allow me to see it; I dare say I have a copy of it. On one side there is 122*l.* 10*s.*, and there is 27*l.* 10*s.*, which makes 150*l.*; very nice even money; I do like nice even money; and then you put down your own fee of 50*l.*, and that made the 200*l.* very nicely; that is a very nice account of 200*l.*?—It is not such a very nice even money, because there was a balance in hand of 5*l.* 5*s.* 3*d.* to carry on.

39,600. I will read it for you; it is a summary. There is 122*l.* 10*s.* and 27*l.* 10*s.*, which makes 150*l.*, and then your own fee of 50*l.* makes 200*l.*?—In making that up you will see a balance of 5*l.* odd.

39,601. I only take the summary. You were paid that in cheques?—I think it was.

39,602. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I will tell you now, Mr. Green, that I knew of the interview between you and Mr. Smith, and I will tell you the reason, because I do not want to keep anything back from you. The reason is this: in Mr. Smith's cheque book there is a deficiency of 30*l.* paid to you, and beside the loan of 10*l.* and that other of 20*l.*, for which there is no cheque. Just consider that, and come here and explain it to-morrow morning at 11.

Adjourned until 11 o'clock the following morning.

TWENTY-SIXTH DAY.

Thursday, 20th September 1866.

HENRY GREEN called and further examined.

39,603. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You mentioned yesterday that you had received 200*l.* from Mr. Smith?—Yes.

39,604. You sent in this statement as having received 217*l.*?—That is the amount I received.

39,605. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) That was in 1863?—No, 1865; there is the loan.

39,606. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) 100*l.* and 10*l.*, which you say was a loan?—Yes.

TWENTY-SIXTH DAY.

H. Green.

20 Sept. 1866.

39,607. Instead of the 217*l.* which you have got in your account against Mr. Smith ?—Yes.

39,608. You give that not as the result of any momorandum of your own at all ?—No, 9*l.* I remembered after that, and that I had a cheque for 7*l.* as well as 10*l.*

39,609. I do not want you to account for it, I only want to know the monies you received ?—That is the only money I received.

39,610. You balanced the account as between you and Mr. Smith, that is a balanced account which you have in your hand now ?—Yes.

39,611. Of expenditure on your part and of receipts from Mr. Smith, that is the character of the account in your hand ?—Yes.

39,612. That is balanced on the supposition that you only received 200*l.* from Mr. Smith, if you look at it ?—Yes, it is.

39,613. Then how do you account for the balancing if you received 217*l.* ?—There was a loan of 10*l.* which Mr. Smith has not got in his account, and 7*l.* which Mr. Smith always said he paid to Featherstone, but which I did.

39,614. Then your expenditure will not balance?—This will show what I received and expended.

39,615. Do you mean to say you owe him 7*l.* ?—I do not owe him more than that, because he owes me money for other accounts.

39,616. Oh, the election expenditure ; do you mean you have 7*l.* in hand ?—I have more than 7*l.*

39,617. How much more ?—22*l.*, including the loan.

39,618. I am not speaking of the loan whatever ; how much was it without it ?—22*l.*

39,619. How much without the loan ?—Oh, without the loan it would be 12*l.* 3*s.* 3*d.*

39,620. Unexpended ?—Yes.

39,621. Though your account is balanced ; when did you and Mr. Smith balance the account ?—This account was balanced about the petition time, or before the petition.

39,622. That was in November ?—Before the petition ; it was balanced when I sent in the account, which was about a fortnight or a month after the election.

39,623. You know the petition and election are different things altogether, if you will only confine your attention to the election I should be obliged. When was this account balanced ?—When I sent in the account to Mr. Smith.

39,624. I want to know when that was, how soon after the election ?—I think, as far as I can remember, a little before Christmas.

39,625. Then no expenditure was incurred since then ?—Not with the election, only the petition business, and so on.

39,626. I am speaking with reference to the election, never mind the petition now. The case stands thus : that you had in your hands 12*l.* something last Christmas, at the time you balanced your account with Mr. Smith, unexplained ; will you be kind enough to give me any sums you have there, or in any other list that we have not got ?—There are not any in this list, there are none here.

39,627. Your list corresponds with what I hold in my hand ; perhaps I can shorten this for you if I read it ?—There is Rees, 10*l.*, shall I give you the refreshments before that ?

39,628. No, never mind ; I only want the fresh sums you have ?—There are no fresh sums, there are only what you have called, I am sure of that ; there are the watchers, but they are no voters ; there is Wood.

39,629. How much did you pay him ?—40*s.*

39,630. What is his Christian name ?—Thomas ; it is Wood of Redhill, this Wood has not been up ; his name is Thomas Wood, of Warwick-town.

39,631. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Is there not a man named Waghorne ?—He has been called ; he stated he received 3*l.*

39,632. Will you be kind enough to give me another name ?—That is all ; the others have been called.

39,633. You mentioned another name ?— I mentioned yesterday Gorridge.

39,634. Where is Wood in this list ?—At the end, he was paid after the election, among the last names you will find Wood, 40*s.*

39,635. (The Chief Commissioner.) You do not find any other names ?—None other, I am quite sure all the other men have been examined, and have sworn to the amounts.

39,636. Do you know whether they agree with you in the amounts ?—Yes, they quite agree.

39,637. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Wait one half minute, I do not wish to ask you any question about your accounts, but I wish to ask you about this man, William Clarke, he stated in his evidence that he spoke to you about 10*l.* which was stated to be owing from the last election of 1863 ?—Yes.

39,638. And you said that he was well worth the money, and he should have the 10*l.* after the election ?—No.

39,639. Is that so ?—No, he hunted us all up very much, but I never said anything of the sort to him.

39,640. Did he mention 10*l.* ?—Yes.

39,641. As owing to him ?—Yes. I will tell you what occurred ; Mr. Smith was in committee, and Clarke asked for me, and I came out, and he asked me for the 10*l.* ; I said, I had nothing to do with it ; and I went and saw Mr. Smith, and his answer was that he would have nothing to do with it, which I conveyed to him.

39,642. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He was the man who had kept back the 10*l.* ?—Yes.

39,643. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Do you remember the transaction of the two fives ?—I was in the committee room when it was given to him by Mr. Mulley ; I did not see it given, but I was in the room when it was given, with Apted.

39,644. Do you know whether, as a fact, he had authority from Mr. Smith to keep the 10*l.* for himself ?—I do not know that he had any authority for it.

39,645. Now let me ask you one general question. You have given an account of all these sums you have paid men, did you in any of your canvassing promise money to men which has not been paid ?—No, I did not ; there have been two or three men who have sworn to it, but I did not.

39,646. Do you know of any man who was put on, you understand that ?—Oh, I understand the term.

39,647. Put on to work and did not get paid ?—No ; I do not know of any men who were put on and did not get paid ; here is the list of those I put on, and they all got paid.

39,648. That I think we have a copy of ?—Yes.

39,649. I am not dealing with that, I am dealing with facts of which we have not got a copy ?—I never put on any one who was not paid.

39,650. Though you have not actually promised, was the general conviction amongst these men that those people who were put on should be paid for their work ?—I did not tell any one. I know those three have sworn against me, Robbins, Jupp, and Luck.

39,651. Did you canvass them at all ?—Yes.

39,652. In what way ?—Luck spoke truth in saying I canvassed him as he was going from work. Being in the interest of Mr. Gower I thought it my duty to canvass every one. I asked him whether he would vote for Mr. Gower, and he said, "What will you give "me." Of course I said I could give him nothing at all, and that was all that passed.

39,653. Did you ask him to work ?—No, none of those three. I asked these others to work.

39,654. Did you ask any but those who appear in your list to work ?—I did not.

39,655. Or put any on with that understanding ?—I did not, I could put on a dozen if I liked, I did not think it right to put on men, I had 14 or 15 on.

39,656. Did you pay any scores for refreshments ?—I paid Brockwell.

39,657. Is Brockwell in your account?—It is in the account.

39,658. Was the refreshment given generally to the voters?—To canvassers, not generally to the voters.

39,659. Were you present when the canvassers had their refreshments?—I was not.

39,660. Did the canvassers have authority to go into a house and get what they liked?—No.

39,661. In what way did the canvassers get their refreshments?—Of an evening.

39,662. When they closed they went into a house for an evening and drank there?—If they had done their work.

39,663. How lately up to the period of the election did the canvassers have that authority to go in and get their refreshments?—Up to the nomination day, but not after the nomination day.

39,664. Was it ever said to any of them that they were not to do so on the night before the nomination?—We did not allow any drinking on nomination or polling day, not among the canvassers.

39,665. You say that up to the nomination, the night before the nomination, these canvassers had authority to go into a house and get refreshment?—Yes.

39,666. Who put a stop to it the night before the nomination?—I stopped it.

39,667. In what way?—I told them they should have no more refreshments after that, it was not suitable.

39,668. You did not permit them to have refreshments on the night of the nomination?—Not on the nomination and polling day.

39,669. I understand you that they were to have refreshments up to the night before the nomination?—Yes.

39,670. Then you stopped it on nomination day?—Yes.

39,671. Was it done by telling the landlords to stop the supply?—No, by telling the canvassers; Room, I told him, and I told Thorpe; they were canvassers.

39,672. What was Room?—He was captain of some of the canvassers.

39,673. How many canvassers did Room have under him?—No particular number, he and Thorpe had their quantity between them.

39,674. Which Thorpe?—Edward Thorpe.

39,675. Commonly called Ned Thorpe, the man we had here the other day?—Yes.

39,676. Who put Ned Thorpe on?—I did.

39,677. Did you consider Ned Thorpe was an influential man to be put on?—We considered him a very influential man to go amongst that class of voters, he did in 1863, he was put on, and he was not on the list of voters, and we paid him the same, 7*s.* 6*d.* a day.

39,678. Then Thorpe was one of the captains?—He was one, I considered.

39,679. Did you inform Ned Thorpe that he was not to have any more refreshments?—No more on the nomination, the night before the nomination.

39,680. As you have been a very active man in the election, I want to know generally whether there is any other information you can give the Commissioners?—No.

The witness withdrew.

JAMES GORRIDGE sworn and examined.

J. Gorridge.

39,681. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—A labourer.

39,682. What do you pay for you house?—6*s.* a week.

39,683. Have you got a vote now?—No.

39,684. You did not vote at the last election?—No.

39,685. Had you got a vote?—No.

39,686. Who did you vote for in 1863?—For Mr. Gower.

39,687. Who asked you to vote for him?—Nobody.

39,688. Who did you vote for him?—Because they asked me if I would go on the committee.

39,689. Who asked you?—Mr. Green.

39,690. And did you go on the committee?—Yes.

39,691. Did you do any work?—Yes.

39,692. What?—I attended the committee and took messages.

39,693. What did you receive for doing it?—7*s.* 6*d.* a day.

39,694. How much altogether?—I cannot tell you.

39,695. For how many days?—I think it was somewhere about a fortnight.

39,696. Twelve or 14 days?—14 days.

39,697. I should like to know what you did get?—I am sure I do not know.

39,698. Can you tell me whether it was five guineas?—I cannot tell, I never kept an account, but I should say about five guineas.

39,699. Who paid it you?—Mr. Green.

39,700. Did he ever read over something?—No.

39,701. Were you to have it before you voted or after?—Before.

39,702. Was that your first election?—Yes.

The witness withdrew.

GEORGE HEWETT sworn and examined.

G. Hewett.

39,703. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What are you?—A miller and farmer.

39,704. I suppose you pay a good rental?—Something over 100*l.*

39,705. For the house that gives the vote what do you pay?—That is something like the rental altogether.

39,706. For your property in Reigate?—Yes, the property I hire and use.

39,707. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

39,708. For whom?—Mr. Monson.

39,709. Had you voted at the previous election?—Once before I voted.

39,710. When?—1863, I think it was for Mr. Gower; I have only voted twice.

39,711. Now about 1865, were you on Mr. Monson's committee?—Not that I am aware of.

39,712. How came you to change your opinions and vote for Mr. Monson in 1865; you voted for Mr. Gower in 1863?—I heard that he said he would never come forward again.

39,713. Was that the only reason?—Yes.

39,714. Did you receive any consideration?—No, none whatever.

39,715. Of any sort, shape, or description?—No.

39,716. In 1865?—No.

39,717. Was anything offered?—No.

39,718. From anybody on the part of Mr. Monson?—Not at all.

39,719. In 1863, was anything offered to you on that occasion?—No.

39,720. Did you take an active part in either of the elections?—I never took any part.

39,721. Either for Mr. Gower or for Mr. Monson?—For neither of them.

39,722. Except your vote?—Yes.

39,723. Did anything pass your hand to give to anybody?—No.

TWENTY-SIXTH DAY.

G. Hewett.

20 Sept. 1866.

39,724. Not in the least ?—No.

39,725. I am afraid there is a mistake in your name; there is another George Hewett on the register. Where do you live ?—Trumpet-hill.

The Chief Commissioner informed the witness he was very sorry the mistake had been made; but he would take his answer in the fullest sense, that he had never received anything.

The witness withdrew.

T. Buckland.

THOMAS BUCKLAND sworn and examined.

39,726. (The Chief Commissioner.) When did you begin to work in the elections; how far back ? Was it as far back as Doulton's election in February 1858 ?—No; I was a printer at that time.

39,727. Did you commence to work as soon as October 1858 ?—No.

39,728. There was a general election in 1859; did you commence to work then ?—No.

39,729. Then we come down to 1863; you were engaged then ?—Yes.

39,730. And you voted in 1863 ?—No.

39,731. You had no vote ?—I had none.

39,732. What are you ?—I am a land agent.

39,733. What was your vote for, a house ?—Yes.

39,734. What is the value yearly ?—10*l.*; it is an old house, and there are the repairs.

39,735. Who did you vote for last election ?—For Mr. Gower.

39,736. 1863 was your first election ?—Yes, and I had no vote then.

39,737. I want you to tell me who you were employed for in 1863 ?—Mr. Gower.

39,738. What were you employed as ?—As agent; a sort of sub-agent.

39,739. You went out canvassing, did you not ?—Yes.

39,740. Have you got a list of the monies you paid out to the voters in 1863 ?—I am sorry to say I have nothing relating to that election whatever; I was an apprentice on that occasion.

39,741. All I want to know in the first instance is how much money you paid away ?—I really have not the remotest idea.

39,742. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Do not say not the remotest idea ?—I really have not.

39,743. (The Chief Commissioner.) We will see. Will you tell me, please, how many voters (do not mind the amount of money), but how many voters you paid money to ?—I remember paying George Curtis something at Redhill, and some companion of his.

39,744. Do you know his name ?—I do not remember his name. I have no doubt Curtis will give you the information. I know he had a companion when he came over here.

39,745. And some other voters did you pay; did you pay 20 altogether ?—I really do not remember that I paid any more on that occasion; it was not my duty to pay them.

39,746. But you did receive money to pay out ?—I think a very little.

39,747. We will come to the amount soon; but you did receive money. Now tell me about how many voters you paid money to; do you think it was 20 ?—No.

39,748. Or 10 ?—No.

39,749. Do you think you paid five ?—No, I do not think I did.

39,750. I was in hopes of getting from you a little more accurate information, but I dare say it is not your fault ?—It has passed from my mind.

39,751. All you remember at first is Curtis and his friend; do you remember how much you paid them ?—I think Curtis had 3*l.* and then 2*l.*

39,752. How much altogether ?—5*l.* altogether.

39,753. He and his friend ?—No, himself.

39,754. How much did his friend have ?—I suppose he had the same.

39,755. They were voters ?—Yes; they were out of Mr. Wilkinson's camp. I remember the reason we paid them, because they were so persecuted because they voted for Mr. Gower instead of Mr. Wilkinson.

39,756. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) They were persecuted afterwards ?—Yes; and I think that was the reason we paid them.

39,757. What is Curtis ?—A coal man, something like that.

39,758. Who did Curtis work for ?—On the railway.

39,759. Was that the reason they directed your attention to your paying them, because they were persecuted after as they voted for Mr. Gower ?—That reminded me of one point, I remember that was the reason we paid them so much.

39,760. (The Chief Commissioner.) I suppose at the time you were receiving money in 1863 you put down what money you received ?—Yes.

39,761. Who did you account to for it ?—Mr. Smith, I should think.

39,762. Can you tell me, then, where those accounts are which you paid ?—No doubt Mr. Smith would have them.

39,763. Have you nothing whatever ?—I have not the slightest thing, except Mr. Apted yesterday referred to some book in which my writing occurred.

39,764. You have nothing whatever ?—Nothing whatever. I have got the old canvassing list I had in 1863, and that is, I believe, all I have.

39,765. If you have no memorandum cannot you tell me yourself how much money you received in 1863 ?—I really cannot; I am sorry to say I have no account whatever; but I do not doubt the account I sent to Mr. Smith was accurate.

39,766. I have no reason at present to doubt that at all. Can you tell me about the money you received from Mr. Smith in a lump ?—No, I cannot.

39,767. Did you receive any money except from Mr. Smith ?—No.

39,768. What did you do with Mr. Apted in 1863 ?—He was a friend of mine; we went together.

39,769. Any one else ?—We went together. I believe we always went canvassing together; that is, when I say always I mean generally.

39,770. Did you receive any money for yourself on that election ?—I think I received a retainer of 5*l.*

39,771. You had been retained at previous elections, had you not ?—No.

39,772. You had not been retained as early as 1858 ?—No. I was a printer; I printed for Mr. Doulton, but took no part in the election.

39,773. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Had you any vote in 1858 ?—No; I had no vote till 1865.

39,774. Were you a master printer ?—A journeyman printer; I managed Mr. Altringham's business.

39,775. (The Chief Commissioner.) I rather think you received a retaining fee shortly before the election; your retaining fee I suppose was 5*l.* ?—5*l.* or guineas.

39,776. Just to remind you of it, I see you received 5*l.* on the 20th of January 1863, a little before the election, or had you been at work before that ?—I engaged when the election took place.

39,777. The 6th of February it took place ?—And that cheque I had given me there is no doubt.

39,778. Fifteen days before; on the 20th of January ?—I must have had something before that. I remember it by having felt bound by having received the retainer.

39,779. In what way did you receive the retainer, by money or cheque ?—Cheque, I think.

39,780. You cannot give me the date of it ?—I cannot.

39,781. Then I should think it must have been October ?—It was early; it was not more than a fortnight after the death of Lord Monson.

39,782. I do not know when that was?—It was at the very commencement.

39,783. I find 5*l.* paid to you on the 6th or 7th of October?—I dare say that might be about the election; it was a very long time about.

39,784. If you find you are wrong you can always set yourself right; but I will put it down "received 6th of October '62, 5*l.* retainer"?—I have no recollection of it.

39,785. No; if I am wrong, or you find that you are, it can easily be set right.—Very well.

39,786. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You do not remember the name of Carter's friend?—No.

39,787. Carter said that he was paid by Mr. Buckland, by one of Mr. Smith's cheques, 3*l.*, and after by Mr. Buckland 2*l.*?—That is correct; I remember the 2*l.* in gold. I believe I have now got a receipt in my cash box.

39,788. (The Chief Commissioner.) Then if you have that receipt I dare say you have a good many other receipts?—No.

39,789. You made me rather jump at that. Have you no other receipts?—No; I recollect seeing that.

39,790. I want to go quickly through this; I see you received again 5*l.* in the January following, the 20th of January?—Yes; but I have no recollection of it.

39,791. I can show you the cheque at any time.—No, I do not doubt it at all; I know I took an active part.

39,792. I suppose you were paid 5*l.* on February 4th?—I might have received it.

39,793. I mean that it appears so?—Yes.

39,794. It is unfortunate you cannot tell me how much you expended?—I very much regret it; it would be more satisfactory to me.

39,795. You think there are no means by which you could ascertain it? Did you receive a good deal of money after the election was over?—My impression is that I did not receive much.

39,796. You paid a great deal away in '63?—If I did I do not remember it; I have no doubt I had money, but I have entirely forgotten what sum.

39,797. I see on the 25th of July '63 you received 5*l.*, according to the banker's account?—On account of the election that took place in January?

39,798. Look at it.—It must be for other business; I had other business.

39,799. Look at it.—It must have been for something else; I received my fee of course.

39,800. I have got that in the beginning.—I do not mean the 5*l.*

39,801. How much?—I think it was 30*l.* or 35 guineas. I do not think this has anything to do with the election; I had other transactions with Mr. Smith.

39,802. I dare say it does, because I see here the name of Carter at the next page, 10*l.*; it looks very much as if it was for the election from that 10*l.*?—No, the cheque from Mr. Smith for Carter was 3*l.*

39,803. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was his friend working on the railway?—I believe he was.

39,804. Was his name Hitchcock?—No. If anybody has got a voters' list of that year I can tell you his name.

39,805. (The Chief Commissioner.) I see in October '63 5*l.*?—That is the one you first referred to as a retainer.

39,806. No, the retainer was in '62, this is in October '63, a year after.—I had the retainer five or six weeks before the election.

39,807. After the election was over the payments may have been very much later?—No; I should think that everything connected with the election was settled up within six weeks or two months.

39,808. What was that 5*l.*?—That was not for the election. I was constantly going to Mr. Smith for money, and paying various things in business; I had sometimes considerable cheques to send to London.

39,809. How much was your fee when the election was over?—I believe 30 guineas.

39,810. Was it paid before the election?—After.

39,811. When?—I really cannot tell.

39,812. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I believe you are secretary to the Land Society?—No, the Holmsdale Building Society.

39,813. It is a house and freehold land society?—No, I think that is a mistake; I acted as agent, but scarcely as secretary to the Land Society; I sold land. I should be very glad to fill the post of secretary.

39,814. Did you have the receipt of money?—Yes, from purchasers of land in this neighbourhood.

39,815. (The Chief Commissioner) I see on November 26th, a little before the time you received the 30*l.*, you received 25*l.*?—I am in a maze about that.

39,816. The 26th of November you received 30*l.*?—I really cannot assist you in the matter; I have other business with Mr. Smith, and I think it must be that. My impression is I had very little money to expend on that occasion; I know I had a retainer and a fee, and it was 30*l.* or guineas.

39,817. Then you received 30*l.*, do you think it was your fee?—Yes.

39,818. This that you do not remember would be about a month after?—I do not think that had any reference to this election, it could not possibly be.

39,819. Was there any talk of a petition at this time after the election?—Yes.

39,820. I suppose you gave your services in working up the petition?—No, I was on the other side.

39,821. But you gave your services all the same in enabling the Gower party to resist the petition?—I do not think I took a great deal of trouble about it.

39,822. I will leave out a great deal of trouble, you did give your services?—No; we acted on the defensive.

39,823. Did you not hold up your hands on the defensive?—Of course.

39,824. And for what you did then did you not receive money?—I do not think I did.

39,825. You must know whether you received money or not?—I do not believe I did, I have no reason whatever to believe I did.

39,826. In the April of the following year, I grant you it is a year after, did you receive 20*l.*?—Oh, yes; but that had nothing to do with the election.

39,827. You are certain of it?—Yes.

39,828. You think it had nothing to do with the election?—Yes. I really wish to call attention to this, that I am constantly doing business with Mr. Smith, connected with my own private business transactions.

39,829. (Mr. Commisioner Smith.) Is he solicitor to the building society?—Yes.

39,830. And in that capacity having business with him would money often pass through your hands?—Yes.

39,831. When did you begin to be connected with the building society?—In 1855.

39,832. I see money is paid for the Reigate Building Society?—That is not the Holmesdale Society.

39,833. (The Chief Commissioner.) Now you must recollect that all the 5*l.* have been received by you previous to the time you received your fee?—Yes.

39,834. I see here we have 5*l.*, 10*l.*, 20*l.*, 4*l.*, 7*l.*, in all 70*l.* received?—I did not receive so much as that.

39,835. That includes the fee, not of 30*l.*, but of 35*l.*, that is the retainer?—I might have received it.

39,836. There would be just 35*l.* for the election?—It is possible I might have received it, it is just possible I may have received as much as that.

39,837. As you have no accounts all, of course I must make it out as well as I can, and I dare say we shall do very well; you have no accounts?—No, and I am sorry for it.

TWENTY-SIXTH DAY.

T. Buckland.

20 Sept. 1866.

39,838. Do you not think you received more?—No, I do not think I received that.

39,839. Is it not possible you received more?—No, I think it cannot be possible.

39,840. Do you think that may be about what you did receive?—I really am not able to form an opinion.

39,841. Could you now tell us, having given you a notion of what you may have received, can you tell us how much money you paid to voters? that is of much more importance to us in this Inquiry than what may have been paid to you; what did you pay to the voters?—If you have got any account I wish you would refer to it.

39,842. I have not got an account. I wish I had. —My memory does not serve me on this occasion; it don't, indeed.

39,843. Now then we will go on to 1865, if you please?—Yes.

39,844. In 1865 you voted for Mr. Gower?—Yes.

39,845. And worked with Mr. Apted?—Yes, very pleasant.

39,846. How much money did you receive in 1865? —I have a copy, this is a mere copy of my account.

39,847. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Where is the original?—It is in this old book, if you can make it out, it is more than I can.

39,848. (The Chief Commissioner.) Take that in your hand, whose handwriting is it?—Mine.

39,849. When was it made?—This one?

39,850. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) The actual one?—Six or eight weeks ago.

39,851. (The Chief Commissioner.) Has it not been made more recently still than that?—No, I think not.

39,852. Yes, I think it has; pray tell me?—Some of the notes at the bottom have been made since.

39,853. And very recently?—Very recently.

39,854. Much later; can you not fix the time?—If I should fix it, I should say the day before yesterday, referring to Mr. Johnson.

39,855. In making out that account did you make it out along with Mr. Smith?—No, sir, certainly not.

39,856. Who did you make it out with, Mr. Apted? —Oh, no, I made it myself a very long time ago.

39,857. I know you made it yourself, it is in your handwriting, but did you not make it out in conjunction with Mr. Apted?—If I had any difficulty I certainly should refer to him.

39,858. I do not wish to delay or try to catch you, but I wish you would be candid with me, do not say would or should. Mr. Apted knows very well what he did; did you make out that account with Mr. Apted?—No.

39,859. You did some of it, you made some of it out on reference to Mr. Apted, you told me?—If I got into a difficulty I might.

39,860. Do not say might, give me a straightforward answer?—No, I did not.

39,861. You never applied to Mr. Apted about it; do not think I am laying a trap for you; you say you might have applied to Mr. Apted?—Well, suppose I had a doubt whether I paid a man 2*s.* 6*d.*, 3*s.*, or 3*s.* 6*d.*, I should ask Mr. Apted whether he remembered anything about it.

39,862. But you were working together when you paid money?—Yes.

39,863. Well, when you pay money to a man, half-a-crown as you say, you do not put your hand into his pocket?—No.

39,864. What had he to do with it, except as a stander-by?—Not particularly, only to refresh my memory.

39,865. Did you or did you not make it out with Apted; did you not make it out along with him? —Certainly not, I made my own account from memorandums.

39,866. I do not ask you whether you did not, and when a man says that I think he is not attending to the question; did you make it out along with Mr. Apted?—No, I did not.

39,867. Did he assist you in making it out?—No.

39,868. Where was it made out, in Apted's house? —Oh dear no, you will find the items in the book together.

39,869. Did you make it out in your own house?—No, in my office.

39,870. Was Mr. Apted at your office?—No.

39,871. After the account was made out did you submit it to Mr. Apted?—No.

39,872. Did Mr. Apted see it?—I might have said, "Here is my account, what do you think of it."

39,873. I will take it, "When Mr. Apted came in "I did show him my account, and asked him what "he thought of it;" may I take that down?—No, I think not.

39,874. Do not look as if we were playing at it?—I am rather excitable.

39,875. No, not at all; may I take it, "I may have "shown my account to Mr. Apted when I made it "out"?—I may have done.

39,876. What did he say to it?—I do not think he thought it of much consequence.

39,877. What he say to it?—I do not remember his saying anything to it. I believe he thought it was a very simple affair.

36,878. If you know what he thought I dare say you can tell what he said?—He did not say to me anything whatever.

38,879. Now tell me this: what did you do with that account when you had made it out?—The old account I copied.

39,880. No, no, that account you have made out? —This one?

39,881. Yes?—This is merely a copy of the account I sent to Mr. Smith, that is all.

39,882. Wait a minute. I think we are coming to something now, "This is a copy of an account I "sent to Mr. Smith"?—I copied it before I sent it to him.

39,883. Had Mr. Smith requested you to send in your account to him?—Yes, he had.

39,884. That was about eight weeks ago?—Six or eight weeks. He had had my account before.

39,885. No, no; how could he have had it before? You only made it out six or eight weeks ago according to your evidence?—Oh, but I gave him the items from that book before. He knew the amounts very well, but I had it again to refer to.

39,886. When Mr. Smith six or eight weeks ago asked you to send him your account, did he hand you over, that you might copy it, the account that you had already sent into him?—No, some time before I asked for the list, the old copy, that I might refer to certain things, the November balance or something.

39,887. Yes; when was that?—I fancy it was somewhere between November and Christmas.

39,888. How did that come to pass?—Well, we had the last of the monies somewhere about the 26th October, I think, and I thought it best to put the account of that money on the back of the old account.

39,889. So you sent to Smith, and said, "The "account is not quite concluded; let me add these "last items to it"?—Yes.

39,890. You recollect something of that sort?—Yes.

39,891. I want to know whether Mr. Smith wrote to you or told you to send in an account of the monies about six weeks ago?—No. The fact was that I had got this old account. If you will allow me to tell you in my way I think you will get at it shorter. I had got this old account I sent in at the time of the audit.

39,892. Where is that old account ?—Well, it is a dirty old thing ; I have it there.

39,893. Don't abuse it ?—It is in that book ; it is the same thing.

39,894–5. I won't interrupt your story ; you were going to tell it in your own way ?—Well, I had got the old account. I did not much approve of accounts in election matters, and I had kept this old thing on my file. Mr. Smith said he must have the accounts to produce. Of course I copied it out and sent it to him.

39,896. Then Mr. Smith did send for your account about six or eight weeks ago ?—I met him.

39,897. Never mind about the word "sent ;" but did he ask you ?—Yes.

39,898. You will forgive me for saying that you said he did not ?—I did not mean to.

39,899. You said there was an old account, and you had better add the items to it ?—Yes.

39,900. "And I made this out for him, or a copy "of this" ?—A copy of that.

39,901. Now we shall see ?—The original is this old book ; there are some observations on one of these ; of course they are private.

39,902. Oh, never mind, I won't take any notice of them, I am sure you can trust to that ; nothing that I ought not. Well, now then, I see the amounts of these two accounts tally, 220*l.* ?—Yes.

39,903. That seems to be the sum total ?—That is the sum total.

39,904. 220*l.* tallies in each ?—Yes.

39,905. Well now, this account that you say is copied ; there it is all one ? — Yes, and so was Mr. Smith's ; the one that I sent in.

39,906. Ah, Mr. Smith's was copied from that ?—It was copied from one or the other ; I really forget which, but they are all the same.

39,907. What ?—That is the original that you hold in your hand there.

39,908. This is the old one ?—That is the old one.

39,909. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) When was that original made ?—Oh, the front part of it was made very early ; a very long time ago.

39,910. What do you call "very early" ?—Something like a month after the election.

39,911. The August after the election ?— Or September it might have been.

39,912. (The Chief Commissioner.) When was the latter part made up ?—Oh, not till——

39,913. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you keep your accounts daily ; enter your payments daily ?—I am afraid not very regularly in election times.

39,914. (The Chief Commissioner.) Now tell me, if you please, this old one from which you took the copies ; the one sent to Mr. Smith and the other ; some of it was made out in August ; that side ?—I should think so.

89,915. A good long time ago this, and the other very recently ?—That was made more recently.

39,916. No, no, but very recently ?—More recently.

39,917. You have told me one was made the day before yesterday ?—But this is a copy of it ; I was speaking of the notes at the bottom.

39,918. When was that made, the latter part of it ; be particular about the answer, because I think I have got a check upon you ?—I really do not know.

39,919. But do tell me ?—I can scarcely see.

39,920. Oh, I beg your pardon: I do not wish to keep it out of your hands ; I have no right to do so ?—This part of it was made——

39,921. A fortnight ago ?—Oh, more than that.

39,922. Ten days ?—I think this upper part was made about December, but this summary, and so on, was made to refresh my memory.

39,923. A fortnight ago ?—Oh, more than that.

39,924. Ten days ? — This part here has been written very lately.

39,925. That was made the day before yesterday ?—No, not so lately as that. These notes here——

39,926. Oh, never mind the notes ; I mean the figures ?—The account was made long before ; that latter part of the account was made earlier than you state.

39,927. A fortnight ago ?—Yes, I should think two months, three months.

39,928. Yes, but some of it has been made much more recently, hasn't it ?—Yes, these memorandums.

39,929. Oh, never mind them ; the figures, some of the figures ?—Oh, no, you will find them in the old book.

39,930. Now when was this copy made ? Be particular about your answer. When was this copy made ? Do you want to take it in your hand ?—No. I think that was made, or the principal part of it, about the same time as Mr. Smith's.

39,931. You see you won't condescend to help me to a date ?—About dates I have no memory ; I really have not.

39,932. About when ?—I should think about the same time as the one sent to Mr. Smith.

39,933. Was it ten days ago ?—I should think about six weeks. It was soon after I made the copy for Mr. Smith.

39,934. What did you make it for ?—It was made for my own reference.

39,935. But you had the original ?—Yes, that was a dirty one.

39,936. Shall I take it, "I made the copy because "this original looked dirty" ?—Yes, I did in a great measure ; that is the same thing.

39,937. Now I see the sum total in your account, in this account, appears to be 220*l.* ?—Yes.

39,938. 220*l.* Now look at this account, or at the original, whichever you like ; there is 220*l.* I have not gone closely into it yet. Does 220*l.* represent the sum which you received from Mr. Smith altogether ?—Yes ; I must qualify the answer a little.

39,939. You shall in any way you like ?—Thank you.

39,940. I hope you don't suspect me of trying to trap you ?—No, I do not ; you are a gentleman

39,941. "220*l.* represents the sums of money that "I received" ?—That I had to account for ; it does.

39,942. You have no business to account for money you did not receive ?—I paid a few small sums, as what I consider a mere messenger ; they are in Mr. Smith's account. I certainly received the money, but I did not consider that I had to account for it, because I paid it as mere messenger. 220*l.* is all the money I received that I consider I had to account for.

39,943. How much money did you receive that you ought not to account for ?—There was a cheque for 8*l.* and for 5*l.*

39,944. Why was it you had not to account for that ?—Because it appeared in Mr. Smith's account.

39,945. Well, all these moneys would appear in Mr. Smith's account, because they were all paid to you, I presume, by cheques from Mr. Smith on his banker ?—Yes, I think they were.

39,946. They would all appear in Mr. Smith's account ?—Quite right, but I can explain that.

39,947. Why do you except this 13*l.* ? — 13*l.* altogether.

39,948. "I received 13*l.* over the 220*l.* the amount "of this account which I have not put in it or "accounted for." That is right ?—Yes.

39,949. That is the way I have taken your answer? —That is correct.

39,950. Now tell me why you did not account for the 13*l.* You may have a very good reason, but I do not understand it yet ?—If you will allow me to explain it in my way you can get at it, and then you can ask me the question after.

39,951. I am sorry I have not put it plain ?—You do put it plain, but there is something peculiar about this. These men came to my office and said they really had done work for Mr. Gower, and they expected to be paid, and so on, and as Mr. Smith was not at home I went to his office and represented the matter for them after the election, and he gave me the cheques for 13*l.*, which I cashed, and I gave the money to the men. You will find on the cheques the names of the parties.

39,952. Wasn't it paid to you ?—Yes, it was.

39,953. It is like that other money you paid to canvassers, "Pay George Buckland or bearer" ?—No, I rather think he did not put my name. To my recollection it was "Smith," "Chilcott," and so on ; they were the names that he paid.

39,954. I shall see when I look at the cheques ?—Yes ; all I wished to guard against was that I would not say that the 220*l.* included all, because it does not.

39,955. "220*l.* represents all the money I received "from Smith but that 13*l.*" ?—Yes, sir, exactly.

39,956. I will put it down in my own words, bar that "exactly." You did not send in that account to Smith ?—Certainly not ; that is not my writing at all.

39,957. No, quite right; nor that one (pointing to another) ?—No.

39,958. Quite right ?—My writing is so plain to me that——

39,959. Look at that?—I cannot see at that distance.

39,960. No, no, of course you must have it in your hand. Is that the account sent into Mr. Smith ?—Yes ; oh, yes, that is my writing.

39,961. Will you say exactly ?—There is no doubt of it.

39,962. Just look at the end of it; you shall do it yourself ; tell me what it amounts to at the bottom ; you will see at the bottom, I think ?—140*l.*

39,963. That is the account you sent in to Smith ? —That is not the last one I sent in.

39,964. What ?—That is not the account I sent in. I do not think ; not now. I thought this was my own.

39,965. A man must know his handwriting ; look at the back of it ?—That is my writing ; oh, yes, clear.

39,966. Well, then, that is the account you sent in to Mr. Smith ?—Oh, no doubt of it ; I do not know why I should doubt ; it is the 80*l.* being separate, not being in this shape. You really must excuse me.

39,967. I will excuse you ?—That is my account in every sense ; I was frightened at the thing being separated, the account for the 220*l.* I looked at these figures, and it frightened me when I saw it. I thought it was not my own writing.

39,968. Well now, tell me this ; look at the first bill, how much does it amount to ; 140*l.*, or what is it ; 140*l.* odd. ?—140*l.*

39,969. Well, now, that does not account for 220*l.*? —No, but there is this separate sum.

39,970. I am coming to that ; I see there is after that another account for 80*l.* ?—Yes.

39,971. What is that for ?—These amounts were paid in November, after the audit, to men that had not been paid.

39,972. Stop.

39,973. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You sent in that before the audit ?—The one part of it.

39,974. The first account before the audit.

39,975. (The Chief Commissioner.) You sent in the first 140*l.* before the audit ?—Yes ; I sent these both in together, understand, but they formed two separate accounts.

39,976. "The amount at the end of the account "represents sums paid after the audit account was "sent in" ?—Yes.

39,977. Now, one moment——?—That is my own services.

39,978. One moment, now, pray. Does either of those accounts include your own fee ?—Yes, the 80*l.*

39,979. Your own fee ?

39,981. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you tell me that before ?—You did not ask me.

39,982. And also monies you paid away to voters? —Yes.

39,983. Voters ?—Yes.

39,984. Very well, then ; that account was not delivered as a whole, you know, to Mr. Smith all in one, at once ?—Yes, both delivered together, but I separated the sum as I have it on my old account.

39,985. Never mind your old account, please ; I only want to know ; you have got all those leaves in your hand at the present moment ; three, I believe ? —Yes.

39,986. Were all those delivered at the same time to Mr. Smith ?—These two ; not that one ; these were both delivered at the same time.

39,987. Just look through them, please ?—Oh, yes, that is so.

39,988. Don't answer in a hurry. Perhaps it is my manner that appears to be hasty, but it is entirely unintentional. Just look if all these leaves were delivered to Mr. Smith at the same time when they were first delivered. Look at the 80*l.* at the end, on the last leaf. Now when was that given in to Mr. Smith ?—The same time as the other it was sent in ; one is expenses paid in November, perhaps some in December, and the other is expenses paid up to the end of the audit.

39,989. Very well. Did not Mr. Smith want your account in the first instance in order to make up his expenses for the audit ?—Yes.

39,990. Then how did he get it ?—I explained to you, I think, that this old account, a portion of it, he did have, and I asked for it back again.

39,991. Mr. Smith wanted it before the audit came on to return his expenses for the purpose of their being audited ?—Yes.

39,992. Well, did'nt he get your account to put into it ?—He had particulars ; I think he had that old statement for a time, and I got it back again ; the front portion of it.

39,993. What did you furnish him with in order to make up his audit expenses ?—That account.

39,994. Which account ?—The first one, because I had not paid the other then.

39,995. Did you furnish him with that account which you hold in your hands before he returned his audit expenses ?—Not this very one ; I did not.

39,996. When did you furnish him with this very one ?—About six or eight weeks before this Inquiry.

39,997. There it is ; now we have got it at last. Now when you furnished him with this, was this last one of 80*l.* along with it ?—Yes, I sent them both at the same time.

39,998. You sent them both at the same time ?— Yes.

39,999. About six weeks ago ?—It may be eight.

40,000. Oh, no doubt ?—I wish to give it you quite clear, and not deceive you about it.

40,001. Now then, the account which Mr. Smith had before the audit, copied from this, you know, which you sent him, of which you sent him a copy, was that for 140*l.* ?—140*l.* was my account before the audit.

40,002. "My account up to the audit was 140*l.*" Now then, will you let me look at the account, if you please ?—That, of course, includes the amount paid to Mr. Apted.

40,003. What ?—Mr. Apted and Mr. Joyes.

40,004. Includes that ?—Yes.

40,005. Then you say (it is a very curious thing), your account up to the audit was 140*l.* ?—Yes, 1*s.* 5½*d.*

40,006. Yes, yes, I dare say you are quite right. Well, your fee is after the audit ?—Yes, it is, I gave the receipt before, and I had perfect confidence in Mr. Smith that I should have it. I think my fee was included in the audit.

40,007. I understand.

40,008. (The Chief Commissioner.) And that 50*l.* of yours was included in the subsequent account ?— Yes.

40,009. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was it 50*l.* or 55*l.* ?—I think 50*l.*

(The Chief Commissioner.) And perhaps there was a 5*l.* retainer included.

40,010. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was there a 5*l.* included?—I do not think I had 5*l.* on this occasion.

40,011. (The Chief Commissioner.) On that occasion? I dare say you will be able to explain this on behalf of Mr. Smith; I see in Mr. Smith's audited expenses he returns you there as having received your fee?—Yes, he would do so. I gave him a receipt for my fee.

40,012. But you had not received it?—I had not.

40,013. What I want to get at is this; the account first sent in was 140*l.* plus 80*l.*?—Yes.

40,014. Never mind the odd monies?—Yes.

40,015. That is all I want. Now tell me this; I am going to another matter; I see you claim credit for "Amount paid to canvassers after the election," you know, in this last 80*l.* account I see the name of Ede. Who is "A. Rose"?—That is "Aleck Rose" that you have heard of so much.

40,016. But you would not be paying him, would you?—Yes, I was requested to pay him.

40,017. But you will forgive me for saying Aleck Rose moved in as high a sphere as you?—Perhaps so; that is a matter of opinion.

40,018. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) That is a matter of opinion?—Yes.

40,019. (The Chief Commissioner.) Then we will retract that. Here is James Lucas, have we had him?—Yes.

40,020. Then here is a man named Ford, have we had him?—Yes.

40,021. What Francis is that?—That is Robert Rose Francis at the Philanthropic Institution at Redhill. That is where he works.

40,022. can you tell me the names of any person to whom you paid money that we have not examined?—Not one.

40,023. What is this man Skinner?—There is one or two I paid out of my salary there. I might as well clear it up now.

40,024. By all means?—I had forgotten till this examination that I paid Webb 2*l.* I find I have paid 2*l.* to Webb, 30*s.* to Loveland, and 1*l.* to Barret. That is not in my account. That is not in my account, it was out of my salary.

40,025. Then you have lost that money?—Yes.

40,026. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Is that Webb the pork butcher?—His son.

40,027. (The Chief Commissioner.) If you have left it out of your account it has been in your own wrong in one sense of the word, and you must get it as well as you can. That makes no difference as regards the men who received it at all. Is Herridge one of the men?—Well, these little half-crown things have puzzled me. It only comes to about 12*s.* altogether.

40,028. Then we won't condescend to them. Is Hedlow one?—Well, that is one of the half-crown things. The poor man is dead.

40,029. Have we had George Lucas?—Yes.

40,030. Then I think there is no other name here?—I have got the receipts for most of these small things.

40,031. We know something about them?—Yes.

40,032. Did you say we have called Ford?—You have called Ford. They have all been called but Aleck Rose in the last list; and in the first list Morphy I do not think has been called. I paid him one week's wages. He was a mere porter.

40,033. How much did you pay him?—30*s.*

40,034. That is in the account?—It is included.

40,035. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) He was engaged as what?—He was a porter at the committee room.

40,036. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did he vote for Mr. Gower?—Yes, I think he did. You will find his name.

40,037. (The Chief Commissioner.) What did he do as porter?—He attended at the committee room and gave information and went wherever he was required.

40,038. Was his time continuously occupied?—Yes, continuously; yes, it was. He was out of work at the time.

40,039. (The Chief Commissioner, referring to an entry.) Is this man's name Luce, or Love, or what?—Perhaps it is Loveland, is it at the bottom?

40,040. (The Chief Commissioner.) Oh, it is Lucas?—Lucas, you have had him here. Can you spare me my old account?

40,041. Are there any entries in this book with reference to the election?—Yes, that is where I took my information from, the principal.

40,042. Let us know what it is?—When I received on the 29th June a draft for 50*l.* I entered it here. I thought it was not to be public.

40,043. Because you thought it was not to be public, was that the reason you made it obscure?—Well, I do not know that.

40,044. Is that inserted in pencil?—Yes.

40,045. Then where is the next item?—I have been looking it through very carefully.

40,046. Then you can point them out to me if you have?—Oh, here is one. Here are two fifties. There are are one or two private matters.

40,047. Where are the entries of the payments?—Well, I do not know. I used to jot them down sometimes at the end of a week.

49,048. Did you enter the persons' names that you paid to?—Sometimes I did.

40,049. Or did you put them so as not to keep them quite so clear?—I did not think they were very clear.

40,050. Do you keep a furnished house, or do you furnish houses?—No.

40,051. Then what does "six cream jugs, 30*s.*" mean?—Oh, I keep a little shop as well.

40,052. I do not know whether the voters might be put down as "cream jugs, 30*s.* a week"?—No, no.

40,053. Then where are the payments; where did you put down your payments?—Well, you must excuse them being very rough. They are here somewhere.

40,054. I do not care about the roughness if you will only just tell me that they are original entries?—They were paid after the election.

40,055. Show me where the entries are; the monies paid before the audit for which you made out your account?—That is one, or part of it, (pointing to an entry).

40,056. These are receipts, 140*l.*?—Yes, and these are the sums in total.

40,057. These are the sums in total; when were these sums in total made up?—I cannot say.

40,058. In September?—I should say so; about September these items were set down.

40,059. But your accounts went in to Mr. Smith after the audit, about a month after?—No, I think not.

40,060. Did they not?—My impression is that it was long after.

40,061. Where did you get the names of the persons to whom you paid the money?—They are here, but you cannot make much of them.

40,062. Just tell me how you made them out?—I made them out when they were fresh; some of them are entered as pocket money.

40,063. I did not venture to look at the pocket money, I thought it was private?—No, it is not.

40,064. In your account here you have got the item "for expenses of canvassers," and so on. That would be what you call pocket money in your account?—Yes, what I should spend out.

TWENTY-SIXTH DAY.

T. Buckland.

20 Sept. 1866.

40,065. Refreshments would be entered in your account as pocket money?—Yes, I have got it so here.

40,066. Electioneering pocket money. Well, that does not clear up what I want to find out. Where do you get the names of persons to whom you paid money before the audit?—Well, I remembered most of them, and I am sure I shall for the next seven years.

40,067. Then you have no proper entry?—Well, I found this, but it is very indistinct.

40,068. That appears to account for 18*l.*?—Yes, that is a portion of it.

40,069. Then, in fact, you kept no regular account?—I think I did.

40,070. I do not call that a regular account?—Well, when one is out canvassing with an old book, you first stick it down at the time.

40,071. Well, that does not appear to be stuck down at the time, because sometimes an entry is in pencil, and sometimes in black ink, and sometimes in red ink?—Well, I should do it after I got home.

40,072. Where did you do it when you got home?—Sometimes, or generally, in this old book.

40,073. Then do I understand that this book was the only document from which you made out your account?—Yes, I believe it was.

40,074. Well, I have got just a few names here; Penfold?—That makes up the 27*l.* I think.

40,075. Then did you at times supply Penfold with money?—No, that is Edward Penfold that you examined. That is a man I had paid 30*s.* to.

40,076. Not Thomas Penfold?—No.

40,077. Did you pay Thomas Penfold?—One of his cheques, 30*l.* 10*s.*, was handed to me by Mr. Smith to pay him.

40,078. Are you sure it was the cheque for 30*l.* 10*s.*?—Yes.

40,079. Have got an entry?—Yes, "Penfold, "30*l.* 10*s.*," and I did not consider that entered into my account.

40,080. (The Chief Commissioner.) I cannot understand why you did not enter the 13*l.*?—Well, that may have been wrong, but you will find the items mentioned in Mr. Smith's account.

40,081. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Well, why did you not get in all the accounts, so that they could go to the audit at one time?—Well, really these men had not been promised anything actually, and we had not got money enough to pay. They had not sent in their bills, and they had not really made their claims.

40,082. But there was no specific sum which was promised to them?—Not any. I never promised a man a specific sum or any sum in my life.

40,083. They were expecting they were to be paid?—They were to be paid for their work, some of them. But not near all that I did pay.

40,084. Then a great many more were to be paid who were not paid?—Oh, no; I think they were all paid; but I mean to say that it is not because I paid a man that I promised him anything.

40,085. Then I supppose you had a great many more claims than you paid?—No, we paid all something; but we did not pay all that they thought they ought to have. They made a tremendous claim, and said they had done a great deal of work. When they got up here they were rather frightened about their work. A man who uses a plane all day cannot take the notion that walking about the streets is work.

40,086. Cannot you take it that walking about the streets is work?—Yes, such as a policeman does.

40,087. You are a collector and you walk about the streets to collect your rents. And so that is work?—Yes.

40,088. You consider the walking work. I should take collecting the rents as the work. Did any of the canvassers come to you and ask what they should send in their claims for before they sent them in?—When they came to me they generally told me they had been employed a certain time and been employed a great many nights, a very different tale to what they tell you.

40,089. Did you pay them their claim?—No, I formed an opinion about what I supposed they had really spent, and paid them what I supposed they would earn at their own employment.

40,090. Then did you hear that 5*l.* was about the sum that they were to be paid?—Never; I never led them to expect such a sum. No one connected with me expected it as an ordinary canvasser.

40,091. Did you ever suggest to any persons that they were to have 5*l.*?—Never; I do not think I ever induced a single man to vote for money.

40,092. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Do not say that?—I do not.

40,093. (The Chief Commissioner.) Do you know what the effect of that really is?—No.

40,094. The effect is that having done what you have done, you are not aware of having done it. It only comes to that, that you did wrong, but you are not aware that you did wrong, and therefore you sinned in ignorance?—I wish you had been with me all the time.

40,095. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I put the question to you in that way, Mr. Buckland, to see whether you recollected any particular or any general practice of yours in reference to those accounts, because it is right to draw your attention to a piece of evidence which I think was before us on the second day of our sitting here. One witness said that he had applied to you as to how the claim should be made out, and you said, "Make it out for 5*l.* and you "will have more if we can get it"?—I remember that man.

40,096. Was it said?—That is false.

40,097. (The Chief Commissioner.) No, no, no?—Yes it is.

40,098. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You say it is inaccurate?—I am very glad you referred to that man. I never mentioned any illegal expenses to the man.

40,099. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Illegal, no, no, no. He said, "He told me to charge 15*l.* to the "illegal expenses. He said, 'Why do you not send "'in a specific claim.' Q. I want to know why "you valued your work at 5*l.* Did anybody tell you "to put it at 5*l.*?—A. Yes. Q. Who did?—A. Mr. "Buckland. Q. Did he tell you why you should "put it at 5*l.*?—A. It would not do to put the "money expended, what I spent; I forget the "amounts"?—He was asked that question, but I must not go into that matter, of course.

40,100. I have read the very words that were spoken in this Court?—Well, I met Mr. Johnson at Mr. Thornton's corner, and he wanted to be paid. I said, "They will pay, why not send in "your bill?" and I believe that is every word that passed between us. In fact, I am sure that is the effect of all that passed. I met him at Mr. Thornton's corner, and I said, "Why did you not send in "your account? Send in a bill, of course he will "pay;" and the next morning, to my suprise, he sent in a bill to my house.

40,101. What was the amount?—I think it was about 4*l.* or 5*l.*

40,102. Did Johnson tell you at that time that he thought he had expended about 20*l.*?—No, never said anything of the sort.

40,103. Or that his his claim would be about 20*l.* for the money he had laid out?—He did not say that to me.

40,104. He did not?—No. I do not want to insinuate anything, but my impression is that, but perhaps I had better leave it. I do not think he thought of such a sum at that time.

40,105. But very shortly after he saw you he sent in a bill for 5*l.* ?—He sent in a bill the next morning after I saw him at the corner and said, "Why don't "you send in a bill?" If I could be favoured with those papers I should be glad.

(The Chief Commissioner.) I really think you have got them. I have got the copy. I have only got that one.

(Witness.) Yes, you have got your own and mine.

40,106. (The Chief Commissioner.) This is the one you began abusing. That is yours?—Yes, that is mine.

40,107. Well, I want you to lend me that?—I hope you will let me have this, because it is a mere copy of what you have.

40,108. I think you might let me have it?—You do not need to have it as you have got an exact copy. In question 1406, referring to this man, Johnson, before the House of Commons——

40,109. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You know if you go into this you will tempt me to cross-examine on it; and I tell you I shall cross-examine you very severely?—It is only to contradict a statement.

40,110. (The Chief Commissioner.) In the House of Commons?—Yes.

40,111. No, no; we will not have anything that is stated in the House of Commons. I do not care what he stated in the House of Commons.

(Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I have looked to the notes to see what he stated, but we have not asked a single question in reference to that.

(Witness.) No, you have not.

40,112. (The Chief Commissioner.) You are going to give me that paper?—Well, you don't want to have it. You will let me see it or look at it if I want it.

40,113. Yes. I have a right to have it. I have a right, but I do not want to stand on my right. What was the date of the first cheque received in reference to this election of 1865?—June 9th is the first I have any account of.

40,114. June 9th?—June 9th I have it. I may be mistaken as to a day or two. I should not have presented it that day. It would be later.

40,115. It was a cheque for 10*l.*?—Yes.

40,116. When should you present it?—I really do not know. If I had other business I should not present it.

40,117. June 24th, your first cheque was 10*l.*, is that right?—No, I received the cheque on June 9th.

40,118. You may have paid it in?—I may. I had another cheque after that.

40,119. I will tell you what cheques you had very shortly?—I wish just to state with regard to the man John Wheeler, he came up and he was asked if he had received 10*s.*

40,120. Well, that is all right?—And he denied having done so, which he was right in saying. The amount was paid to him.

40,121. Who for, for him?—No, for the son. He worked two days.

40,122. Was his evidence correct?—Yes.

40,123. But the amount was paid to his son?

40,124. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) His son not being a voter?—Yes.

40,125. (The Chief Commissioner.) Just tell me, you received a cheque on June 24th?—Yes.

40,126. Then you received a cheque on the 29th for 50*l.*?—Yes; but between I received a cheque for 10*l.*

40,127. I do not think you did?—I have got it down.

40,128. I cannot find it. Whom did you receive it from?—Mr. Smith.

40,129. Now, you received a cheque for 6*l.* 10*s.* on the 3rd July?—No.

40,130. Oh yes, here it is?—It must have been something else then, not the election.

40,131. I will look for it in the cheque itself?—I do not think it refers to the election.

40,132. That must refer to the election?—I think not. I do not believe I should have had such an amount from Mr. Smith in connection with the election. I was always paid even sums.

40,133. Then I will put a query to that. Now then, you have got a cheque for 5*l.* on the 13th July?—That I received on the 8th, I believe.

40,134. Well, never mind that. We are all right about that?—I did receive 5*l.* on the 8th.

40,135. Well, then you have got a cheque for 10*l.* on July 21st?—No, you are looking at when they were presented. You see you have missed a cheque for 10*l.* on the 17th June.

40,136. That is still earlier?—The 17th.

40,137. Of June?—Yes.

40,138. It must have been a private matter between you and Mr. Smith?—No, I had a cheque from Mr. Smith on the 17th June, I believe.

40,139. Very well, then, we will go on. We have got a cheque on the 13th July for 5*l.*?—Well, I presented it then. I did not receive it.

40,140. That is quite enough; I understand that. And you have got a cheque on the 21st July for 10*l.*?—No, I have not.

40,141. Well, just look a little later?—No, that must have been one of the old cheques, that was lying by.

40,142. You had a cheque for 10*l.*?—I had two 10*l.*

40,143. That is enough. Then you had a cheque for 15*l.*?—Right.

40,144. On the 14th August?—Ah! that I received on the 29th July.

40,145. Never mind, the dates are not material; the amounts are the chief thing. You got a cheque in August for 15*s.* 6*d.* I suppose you wanted to pay some man?—No; that could not have been.

40,146. Here it is. It is along with nothing but election matters?—That is for my son, then; he did act for Mr. Smith as messenger or something. He went to the "White Hart."

40,147. Has he got a vote?—No.

40,148. Very well, we will take him out; I won't keep you?—I am in no hurry, sir.

40,149. Well, the next cheque you received was 5*l.*, and that was on the 22nd of September?—No; I did not have 5*l.* then.

40,150. Yes, yes?—I only had one 5*l.* during the whole election.

40,151. Well, there it is?—Well, I did not have it.

40,152. But look at that?—I do not doubt that for a moment.

40,153. This is not Smith's writing, it is the banker's?—Well, there must be some mistake. I only had one 5*l.* Is not that the 5*l.* that we mentioned before?

40,154. Not a bit of it. Well, we will go on. Then you received a cheque for 30*l.* 10*s.*?—Right, sir. That was for Penfold. That is the one for Penfold.

40,155. Is not that in your account?—No; I merely had it to hand to him, that is all.

40,156. It was drawn in your name?—Yes, it was.

40,157 Did Penfold give account for it?—He included it in his account. He told you here that he believed that 30*l.* 10*s.* was money paid to him by me.

40,158. I have skipped the account. When was that 80*l.* received?—That was in two sums, 30*l.* and 50*l.*

40,159. But when was that?—October 26th, drawn.

40,160. You received 8*l.*?—How much?

40,161. You received 8*l.*?—I have not got it down. That is the 8*l.* I mentioned.

40,162. What 8*l.*?—That is not included in my account. That is the 8*l.* that I had with the 5*l.* 8*l.* and 5*l.* is 13*l.* I said I did not include that.

40,163. "Buckland, 80*l.*," never?—I have got it October 26th.

40,164. Never mind?—It was in two sums.

40,165. And you have got on the same date 120*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*?—That was something else; it was not the electioneering, I think. That was the building society. I could, no doubt, prove that sum. I never had such a sum pass through my hand.

40,166. (Mr. Comissioner Smith.) Did you ever have a single cheque given you for the double purpose, that is, for the two accounts; one part for the election account mixed up with the land account?—No, certainly not.

40,167. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you receive 30*l.* 10*s.*?—Yes; quite correct.

40,168. Then you received a cheque for 2*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.*?—No; no 2*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.*

40,169. It is here?—That is a private matter then.

40,170. Do you wish me to take it out?—Yes; certainly.

40,171. I will do so?—Thank you.

40,172. Then you see according to this (it is right to tell you) your account stands thus: you tell me that the amount you received was 220*l.*; didn't you tell me so?—Yes; besides the 13*l.*

40,173. And after deducting the 13*l.*, and after taking out that 1*l.*, not counting the 13*l.* (that is, the 8*l.* and the 5*l.*), and not counting the 1*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.* nor the 2*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.*, I find that instead of receiving 80*l.* you received 282*l.* 7*s.* 8*d.*?—No, I have not.

40,174. Would you like to look at the book?—No doubt it is so, but this is the only way I can explain it: Smith is continually paying sums to me, and I do not believe he will charge me with more than I have received on the election.

40,175. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Those monies you receive on account of the society you carry into some particular book?—Yes, I do; I should be able to trace them, no doubt.

40,176. (The Chief Commissioner.) You had better do so, if you please?—Then, if you please, you must kindly give me the dates.

(The Chief Commissioner, reading a memorandum.) "On my showing banker's pass book to Mr. "Buckland, and showing cheques amounting to "282*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*," (that is, after making all sorts of deductions, for the first comes to 316*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*)——

(The Witness.) When one puts in the building society he does not first produce the deed. I am very sorry this has occured, because the public are at once ready to say we have got money.

40,177. Mr. Buckland, is this right? "On my "showing the banker's pass book to Mr. Buckland, "and showing cheques amounting to 282*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* "paid to him, he says, that they must include items "referable to private accounts"?—Yes.

40,178. That is your answer?—Yes.

(The Chief Commissioner.) I do not want to ask you anything more.

40,179. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You are secretary of a building society, are you not?—Yes.

40,180. And that brings you very greatly into contact with persons of the humbler classes of life, who, like all of us, earn their bread with their labour?—Yes, it does.

40,181. You yourself received 50*l.* for your exertion at the election?—I did, that is all; and I was foolish enough to spend out of my own pocket.

40,182. 50*l.* was your fee; can you tell me how many classes of electors you canvassed?—Oh, nearly everybody I came into contact with. I am known to almost everybody.

40,183. How many did you "put on," to use the usual phrase?—I must refer before I can answer you.

40,184. How many of those did you put on?—I asked Mr. Ede to work.

40,185. No, no; how many did you put on?

40,186. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Those are the numbers you put on and paid?—I did not put all these on, they made their claim afterwards.

40,187. (The Chief Commissioner.) You must have put them on?—I did ask one to work for us, and to go with me, particularly at night; you may call that putting them on. I believe I canvassed almost everybody.

40,188. And did you get a single promise from anybody besides those you put on?—Oh, yes.

40,189. Now, who voted for Mr. Gower that you canvassed that you had not employed in any way; give me the name of any one?—I think I spoke to Mr. Holden for one. He never had any money. If I had a voter's list I think I could tell you numbers. You must excuse me for not remembering names, my memory is bad.

40,190. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I will lend you a list. They all said they did not promise, and they all said they were not asked for their votes. They were put on the committee; did you put them on the committee?—I think several asked me to put their names on. If they did, I did not ask them.

40,191. When they asked to go on the committee did you ask them for their vote?—No; they had promised before I ventured to talk about the committee; and neither did I ask any man to do a single thing after he had promised his vote, certainly, because that would be an inducement to vote my way.

40,192. That is very guarded, but it won't do?—It is the fact, however.

40,193. (The Chief Commissioner.) Shall I take your answer to be this: "I don't know of any voter "whose vote I secured without putting him on"?—No, I do not put it in that way.

40,194. Now tell me of any one whose vote you secured without putting him on?—Take Finch. I admit that I gave him a testimonial of 30*s.* afterwards, but it had no reference to his vote.

40,195. Did you in any instance pay 5*l.* to anybody?—Yes; Brown.

40,196. William Brown?—No; Edward Brown.

40,197. Has he been here?—Yes.

40,198. Did you understand the sort of sign there was going on at the time; this kind of thing (illustrating)?—No, I did not; I never made any signs in my life.

40,199. I did not say that you did, but had you ever seen one?—No, I never saw that plan adopted.

40,200. Do you mean to say that during the whole election you never knew that went on; now, be cautious?—No, I never adopted that plan.

40,201. I never said you did; that is not an answer to my question. Did you neither see, either by yourself or by anybody else, that sort of thing?—I have heard it joked about, but not in earnest.

40,202. Have you ever seen it done by way of an offer?—No.

40,203. You did not know it was an offer at that time?—I should have known if I had seen it done, but I had not seen it done.

40,204. You told me you had seen it done in jest, in joke?—Yes; I have seen people do it here.

40,205. No, but at the election you say you have seen it done in joke?—Yes.

40,206. How do you know you have never seen it done in earnest?—I am sure I have not.

40,207. Who else did you give 5*l.* to?—I paid Rose and Ede.

40,208. I do not mean that?—Oh yes, I did Mr. Nice; I cannot remember them all, you know.

40,209. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) James Nice?—Yes.

40,210. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You could not give me the name of any man you influenced to vote; therefore I won't ask you that. Give me the number of names of those you did get to vote. I want to know how many there were that you did put on?—Put on?

40,211. Yes, that you gave work to; how many?—I cannot say, only by going down the list.

40,212. How many?—If a person did a little job or so and earned 10*s.* I paid him; I don't know whether you call that putting on.

40,213. You set up for purity?—I tried to be pure, because I signed the petition; I paid one or two 30*s.*

40,214. I want the number of voters that you paid anything to?—Oh, I can get that out; I should say 25 with small sums; say 20.

40,215. And yourself is 21, and multiplying that by 10, that is 210, so that the pure voters cost 10*l.* a vote?—It is not so, because there were refreshments.

40,216. That is an average?—They did not cost that.

40,217. Did you pay anybody else besides?—I do not know why I should be made to give such an answer as that.

40,218. (The Chief Commissioner.) I will explain to you at once how my friend is right. You say a great deal of that went in refreshments, sending messages, and so on, and so it did nominally, but you recollect that the whole of that 220*l.* was spent in securing the voters, and the refreshments and carriages and so on were merely accessory to that?—Excuse me. A great part of that was distributed by Apted and Joyes, and they would bring in a larger number.

40,219. You received yourself 220*l.*?—It would be distributed over a larger number, inasmuch as——

40,220. Well, shall we double it; that will be 41?—No; taking the amount that I distributed, and that would be 47*l.* and 80*l.*, including my own salary——

40,221. You received 220*l.*, and you secured the votes of 21 persons?—Deduct 92*l.*

40,223. It is just as well that this should be stated once for all. Now look here, Mr. Buckland, supposing you were the agent, I really think it ought to be stated, supposing you were the agent under Mr. Gower, and there was nobody else, you received from Mr. Gower 220*l.* to secure these votes of 21 people, and you would say, "I paid that first to the men "themselves in money, next in refreshing them with "beer, next in carriages taking them to the poll, and "next in sending them circulars, and what not." That is indisputable. Well, then, Mr. Gower, if he is a moderate calculator, would say, "That is just "10*l.* a head; that is what those votes have cost"?—That is right so far, but you take the 53*l.* and the 80*l.*

40,224. Very well, we will double it, and that is 5*l.* a head you charge Mr. Gower with, and no man in England is so dull as to say he cannot see it. It is as clear as daylight that if you were Mr. Gower's agent that is how it would be reckoned?—Could I have a list of those amounts that you say I received.

(Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I have no doubt you can presently.

The witness withdrew.

JOB HEATH APTED recalled.

J. H. Apted.

40,225. (The Chief Commissioner.) You want to make an explanation, Mr. Apted?—There were three cheques that I had not entered in my account either as having received or paid. I have made inquiries, and I find that that one of October the 5th was paid to Mrs. Thatcher of Reigate-hill for refreshment.

40,226. How much was that paid to Mrs. Thatcher?—6*l.* 10*s.*; no, it was 5*l.* The way it was done was this; they went up to Mr. Smith for the money.

40,227. The amount of the cheque was, what?—5*l.*

40,228. Paid to Mrs. Thatcher?—Paid to Mrs. Thatcher of Reigate-hill; September 2nd, 6*l.* 10*s.* was paid to Mr. Glover. They went to Mr. Smith for the money, and he merely sent the cheques down for me to hand to them, and that is the reason that I did not put it in my account.

40,229. Where have you ascertained that fact; I have ascertained it from Mr. Smith and Mr. Glover; in fact I recollect the amounts now.

40,230. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Were the cheques in your favour?—Yes, they were drawn out in my name; they were merely sent down to me, that I should know these people were paid.

40,231. What is Glover?—A beershop keeper and eating house keeper.

40,232. Was Thatcher a voter?—The son is; I suppose it is all the same; it is Mrs. Thatcher who keeps the house.

40,233. The son was a voter?—Yes, I believe so.

40,234. Then if he votes for that, it must be his in law?—He is a voter, but whether he votes for that property I do not know; Mr. Holden probably could tell.

40,235. What is the other that you paid?—The other I do not know anything about; I cannot bring it to my recollection. That is 4*l.* exactly, and I am afraid I shall never be able to give you an account of that. I have never received it; that is all I know; it has been paid away by Mr. Smith somehow; it never came through my hands.

40,236. Is the Thatcher you mean Joseph Thatcher of Reigate-hill?—Yes. Oh, I find the mother is dead; she died since. Then it is Mr. Thatcher.

40,237. He was on the register at the time of the election?—Yes.

The witness withdrew.

WILLIAM WOODMAN recalled.

W. Woodman.

40,238. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Do you produce the copy of that account that you sent in?—I cannot find it.

40,239. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Do you carry on any other business?—Not at the present time.

40,240. Did you at the time of the election?—Yes.

40,241. What was it?—A beer house. There was one thing I was going to tell you; that amount was for the use of the room and the refreshment supplied; I made a mistake.

40,242. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Has that just come into your head?—When I was with my wife last night I thought of it.

40,243. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Your wife did not know it?—No, she did not know what refreshments there were.

40,244. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did she know that your house was occupied for the election?—No.

40,245. Did she live in the house?—She did live there at the time.

40,246. And not know that it was used for the election?—She knew there was a quantity of people coming in. She was ill at the time, and did not attend to the bar or any part of the business.

40,247. How much was paid for that one night?—I never received anything for that one night.

40,248. Tell us how much it was?—I don't know how much it was; it was in the account I showed you yesterday.

40,249. Do you keep books for your beer house?—I have not got a beer house now.

40,250. You had?—Yes.

40,251. Did you keep business books of the beer house receipts?—Are you speaking of the brewer's receipts?

40,252. You can understand my question?—No, I cannot.

40,253. I ask you a general question; did you keep books of account with reference to the business of your beer house?—No.

40,254. Not in any shape or way?—No, I only had the brewer's book; that is all I had.

40,255. You never kept any account of the returns?—No, when bills came in I used to pay them.

TWENTY-SIXTH DAY.

W. Woodman.

20 Sept. 1866.

40,256. And you kept no accounts?—No accounts; I did not require them.

40,257. How did you check your profits, then?—Oh, I did not know anything about the profits.

40,258. Who did?—Well, when the beer came in I used to get rid of it in the best way I could, sell it, and when the brewer's bill came in I used to pay it.

40,259. That would form rather an important item in your account when you kept your beer house?—Mr. Nichols told me he thought he should require my room.

40,260. When?—He did not tell me at any particular time. I received a letter to the effect that there would be a committee, and if parties required refreshment he would pay for them.

40,261. Did you make up the account on the slate?—I put it down and added it up together.

40,262. When did you add it up?—I sent the account in to Mr. Nichols.

40,263. Did you keep one slate for the purpose of keeping the account?—I kept one slate expressly for the election.

40,264. Your wife was not ill all the time, was she?—I do not say she was.

40,265. Did she help you in your business?—She used to sometimes.

40,266. You were engaged in the ordinary business of a bricklayer and builder. Who attended to the tap when you were not there?—My mother, sometimes.

40,267. Did she put it on the slates?—I never allowed anybody to have anything on credit; only when I was there.

40,268. How much did you charge for your room?—I cannot say now; I made it all up together.

40,269. Was there no agreement between you and Mr. Nichols as to what should be paid for the room?—No.

40,270. How came you to recollect when you left here that you had a meeting at that house and supplied refreshment?—Well, I thought of it just afterwards.

40,271. You were asked what you were at the time of the election; you did not say one word about keeping a beer house?—I told you I was a bricklayer and builder.

40,272. You did not say a word about the beer house?—I do not think you asked me what I had been at the time of the election; you asked me what my occupation was.

40,273. Did you see Mr. Nichols last night?—Yes, I did.

40,274. After you left here?—Yes.

40,275. Did you see a copy of the account which you sent in?—No.

40,276. Did you ask Mr. Nichols about it?—No.

40,277. Did Mr. Nichols tell you that you kept a beer house at the time?—No.

40,278. What took place between you and Mr. Nichols last night?—Nothing at all.

40,279. Do not tell me that; I shan't believe you if you do. Don't tell me that you went to Mr. Nichols after you left the court and yet did not say a word to him about it?—I had a glass of ale at his house.

40,280. And what took place between you?—He said, "How d'ye do, Woodman?" and I said, "Very "well, thank ye."

40,281. Do you mean to say you never said a word to Mr. Nichols about what took place here?—No.

40,282. Or asked him about the account?—No, I never asked him anything about the account.

40,283. (The Chief Commissioner.) At the last election in 1865 were you keeping a beer house?—I was.

40,284. Do you recollect before the election meeting Apted at Redhill?—What Apted?

40,285. Any Apted; I don't care which?—There were five or six.

40,286. Do you remember meeting Job Apted?—I might have met him.

40,287. Do you recollect telling him that you had at your house something like this, a nest of voters who meant to vote the same way as you did?—No, I do not recollect anything about it.

40,288. That you could work them to do as you liked; tell me if you said anything of that kind?—I do not recollect anything at all.

40,289. You won't say that you did not meet Apted at Redhill?—I won't say that.

40,290. Do you remember telling him that you had a nest of voters at your house?—No, I did not say anything of the kind that I recollect.

40,291. Are you quite sure you did not say it?—I do not recollect anything at all about it.

40,292. You won't say more than that; you won't say you did not say something like that?—I could almost safely say it, but I won't swear it.

40,293. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You might have said it?—Oh, I might have said it.

40,294 Then had you a "nest of voters" at your house at that time?—No.

40,295. Then why cannot you say either that you did or did not use those words, or something like them?—If I said anything it would be in a joke, but I do not recollect anything at all about it. As I said, I don't believe I said it, and I don't believe that Apted would say I did.

40,296. You said you had 35*l.*; had not you been paid, besides that, 12*l.* 10*s.* for refreshments?—No.

40,297. Well, had not you been paid 12*l.* 10*s.*?—Yes, I am quite sure I had not.

40,298. Did not you receive 12*l.* 10*s.*, I will give you the exact sum, for refreshments, in addition to the 35*l.*?—No.

40,299. Did you receive anything in addition to the 35*l.*?—No.

40,300. Nothing at all?—No.

40,301. You say that you received nothing at the last election besides the 35*l.*?—Not as I am aware of at all.

40,302. We don't want the "aware of." You know you told us the exact sum was 35*l.* Did you receive nothing besides that?—Nothing that I can recollect at all.

40,303. Were you paid for refreshments?—That included the refreshment.

40,304. Were you paid for the use of the room?—That included the use of the room.

40,305. The 35*l.* did?—Yes.

40,306. And you did not receive anything besides?—No.

40,307. In 1863, you told me, you had some little money from Mr. Nichols for work you did during the election. I asked you how much that was, and you told me that you had received 2*l.* from him?—2*l.* it was to the best of my recollection.

40,308. I dare say it was quite right, and I am not going to quarrel with it. I did not go on to ask you whether you received anything from anybody else, and you did not tell me; I daresay that was your reason. Did not you receive a cheque from Mr. Smith for some more money?—No.

40,309. Did not you receive 17*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* by cheque?—No.

40,310. Look at that (handing a paper to witness). That is "Woodman," is it not?—It is "Woodman," but it is not me.

40,311. You have no objection to my looking for the cheque?—No.

40,312. If a cheque is drawn "Pay William Wood-"man," then you will agree to it?—Certainly; of course, if I received that I received the money, but I never did.

40,313. If I find a cheque drawn in that way, "Pay William Woodman or bearer," you will admit it?—There might have been, I believe there was, another Woodman, behind the park, who kept a beer house.

The witness withdrew.

WILLIAM CARPENTER sworn and examined.

40,314. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What are you?—A blacksmith.

40,315. What rent do you pay for your house?—It was rated at 11*l.*

40,316. Then it is freehold?—Yes.

40,317. You belong to the Freehold Company?—Yes.

40,318. For whom did you vote?—For Mr. Gower.

40,319. Were you on his committee?—No; I do not know whether I was or not.

40,320. Were you put on to work?—I did not give no instructions to put me on.

40,321. Were you put on to work for him?—Yes, three or four days at bill sticking, Albuary asked me to go with him first.

40,322. Did Albuary go bill sticking with you?—Yes.

40,323. How long were you occupied in bill sticking?—I think if you look at his account you will see how many days it was. I have lost the recollection whether it was three or four days, or five or six.

40,324. You say you have lost your recollection?—I do not know how many days it was.

40,325. What did you get paid?—5*s.* a day, I think.

40,326. For how many days?—I do not know that.

40,327. How much did you get paid altogether?—That I do not know.

40,328. When were you paid?—Just after it begun.

40,329. Who paid you?—Albuary.

40,330. Don't you recollect how much he paid you?—I do not recollect the sum.

40,331. Whether it was 1*l.* or 30*s.*?—I think he said he had the bill; my time was so many days.

40,332. I want you to recollect how much you had, you do not know?—No.

40,333. (The Chief Commissioner.) Was it a guinea?—Over that, I think, a little.

40,334. You do not recollect how many days you worked?—No, I do not.

40,335. About?—I do not know. If you were to look on the bill, that would be nighest, because he said he had got it in his bill.

40,336. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I dare say you can recollect within 5*s.*?—No, not within 5*s.*

40,337. Not within 1*l.*?—No, I don't suppose I could.

40,338. Did you get 5*l.*?—No.

40,339. Was it 1*l.*?—I do not know.

40,340. Did you get any money after the election?—No.

40,341. Not for voting?—No.

40,342. Did you attend the refreshment houses?—No.

40,343. Not at all?—No.

40,344. Had you voted before?—Yes.

40,345. When?—When Mr. Wilkinson was on.

46,346. Who did you vote for then?—Mr. Wilkinson.

40,347. Was that Wilkinson against Gower?—I hardly know.

40,348. Was it in 1863?—In 1863, I think it was.

40,349. Did you get anything at that election?—No.

40,350. Not even for bill-sticking?—No, I did not do any.

40,351. Are you a bill sticker by trade?—Oh no.

40,352. When you were sticking bills for Albuary in 1865 were you doing your ordinary work as a blacksmith as well?—No.

40,353. Were you out of work?—I was out of work.

40,354. That is all that you can tell me then, that you were paid at the rate of 5*s.* per day?—That is what I was having, sir.

40,355. Did you get it?—That I cannot tell you.

40,356. And you do not know how many days you worked?—No.

40,357. (The Chief Commissioner.) How many do you think?—I cannot say.

40,358. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you work more than one day?—Oh yes, two or three days.

40,359. Did you work more than three days?—I do not know, because we used to work two or three hours of a morning, we were not all day on the work, it was just according to what bills we had to stick.

The witness withdrew.

FREDERICK JOYES sworn and examined.

F. Joyes.

40,360. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are you?—I am a grocer and tailor.

40,361. What rent do you pay for the house you occupy?—23*l.*

40,362. And I believe you were concerned rather actively in the last election for Mr. Gower?—I was.

40,363. And you voted for Mr. Gower?—I did.

40,364. Were you concerned for him in 1863?—No; Mr. Wilkinson then.

40,365. In 1865 what were you to receive for your fee?—I received nothing for a fee.

40,366. Nothing in the shape of a fee?—No.

40,367. What did you receive at first for your own services?—I did not receive anything at first for my services.

40,368. In 1865, I am speaking of the last election?—I received 20*l.*

40,369. I suppose you received that at the end of the election, or did you receive some of it during the election?—I did not receive anything during the election, in fact it was a mixed-up affair.

40,370. Can you tell me how much you received altogether?—139*l.* 7*s.* 2*d.*

40,371. From Mr. Smith?—No, I received 100*l.* from Mr. Smith, and 39*l.* 7*s.* 2*d.* from Mr. Buckland.

40,372. Mr. Buckland handed that over to you?—He handed me the cheques generally.

40,373. Was that a cheque in Buckland's name and then handed to you?—Well, I received 10*l.*, 14*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, 7*l.*, and so on, at different times.

40,374. Did you put down on a slip of paper the monies that you received?—Not that which I received from Mr. Buckland, but I did Mr. Smith's. This is merely a copy of it (handing a statement).

40,375. How did you get Mr. Buckland's amount?—I asked Mr. Buckland. I knew that I had money from him, but I did not know what the amount was, and so I asked him to tell me.

40,376. You did put down what you got from Mr. Smith?—Yes, on a piece of paper, that is all; I never kept any books at all.

40,377. You have not the piece of paper now?—No, I have not. I expected I should have to give an account to Mr. Smith; but as to Mr. Buckland, we were altogether, and I did not.

40,378. How did you ascertain when you received the sums?—I thought of them at home. My wife had the slip of paper.

40,379. You received it all by cheques from Mr. Smith?—Mr. Smith's, I think, was all in cheques, I won't be sure. Then Mr. Buckland, if he got a cheque——.

40,380. Never mind Mr. Buckland?—I think it was all in cheques, I won't be certain. I don't recollect receiving anything only by cheques from Mr. Smith.

40,381. Your wife, I think, keeps a good deal of your accounts?—Yes, most of them.

40,382. Did you send in to Mr. Smith an account of the monies you expended on behalf of the election?—I did. He asked me to send in an account of what sums he gave me, and it was 40*l.* first.

TWENTY-SIXTH DAY.

F. Joyes.

20 Sept. 1866.

40,383. And also showing how you expended them?—Yes.

40,384. You received altogether 100*l.* from Mr. Smith?—Altogether.

40,385. You sent him in an account of how that was expended, did you?—No; I sent him in an account of what he gave me first, 40*l.*

40,386. (The Chief Commissioner.) How long afterwards?—I do not know how long, some time before the election.

40,387. To whom did you send the account?—To Mr. Smith.

40,388. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That is the account you sent him in of the 40*l.*, I believe?—That is it, sir.

40,389. Keep it in your hand for a moment. When did you send him in that? Is it in your own handwriting or your wife's?—My handwriting.

40,390. Then you can tell me when was that made out?—I cannot exactly say.

40,391. I mean about?—When this Inquiry was going on, some time before the Inquiry.

40,392. Six weeks before it?—It might be six weeks, perhaps two months, when I found this Inquiry was coming on I took the account.

40,393. You only gave him an account there of 40*l.*?—Yes.

40,394. You received 100*l.* from him, you know, and there was only 20*l.* for yourself, as I understand?—No.

40,395. How was it you did not send in the account of the other 40*l.* unaccounted for?—That was because I did not know then that I had more of him. I have got other accounts, you know.

40,396. I am only stating at present that you sent in to Mr. Smith an account for 40*l.* You received 100*l.* from him, as you say, and you sent him in an account of how you expended 40*l.*, and then there would be 20*l.* for your own money, and 40*l.* besides? Have you accounted yet for the other 40*l.* to Mr. Smith?—I have not.

40,397. That is to say you have not sent him in an account of how the remaining 40*l.* was expended?—No, I have not.

40,398. I wish to give you an opportunity of showing us how you expended that 40*l.*?—I have got it here altogether, you see.

40,399. I want to know about that 40*l.*?—Well, it is not divided here, it is put altogether.

40,400. You never sent in Mr. Smith a copy of this, did you?—I never have; no one has seen it yet.

40,401. When did you make it out, I am sure you will tell me?—It was made out within this last few weeks; in fact I have made out ever so many, over and over again, entirely. That is the whole of my account.

40,402. That is the whole, entire?—That is the whole, entire; every man that I paid a farthing to.

40,403. You credit yourself here in expenditure to the extent of 169*l.* 7*s.* 2*d.* You debit Mr. Smith to having expended on behalf of the election 169*l.* 7*s.* 2*d.*, that is so?—Yes.

40,404. It is not for us to say whether you owe them or they owe you money, but I will take the list. John Dash, 10*l.*?—10*s.*

40,405. Oh, I beg your pardon.

40,406. (The Chief Commissioner.) Is that a new name?—It is a new name; he is not a voter, but was employed for two days, on the nomination and polling days.

40,407. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) When you sent in the account of 40*l.* to Mr. Smith, how was it you only sent it in to that extent?—I cannot tell you how that was. I thought I had 40*l.* of him, and I gave him an account.

40,408. But you had 100*l.*?—Yes, I cannot tell how it was.

40,409. Then Mr. Smith has never seen this account, has he?—He has never seen that.

40,410. You put down your own salary here at 50*l.*?—That is what I expected I should have had.

40,411. Instead of 20*l.*, I thought you told me your fee was to be 20*l.*?—I expected I should have had 50*l.*, and I signed a receipt for 50*l.*

40,412. When did you sign a receipt for 50*l.*?—I won't be sure when it was, whether it was before or after the election; when Mr. Smith was making up the accounts.

40,413. I suppose it was for the audit?—Yes, I believe it was.

40,414. You signed a receipt?—I signed a receipt.

40,415. (The Chief Commissioner.) Before the election?—When the accounts were wanted to be made out; I do not know whether it would be before or after.

40,416. It would be after?—I dare say it would be; I think it was after.

40,417. You gave that to Mr. Smith?—I did.

40,418. Do I understand you to say how you made out this account? Did you make it out from memory, or what?—I had lots of bits of paper; it would puzzle anybody to know how I made it out.

40,419. Your wife assisted you?—No, I had slips of paper, but I knew most of it from memory. I know each man I had to deal with, and I know what was offered and what I gave him.

40,420. I think I can see how you came to make out that account for 40*l.* I see that Mr. Smith in his account debits you with 90*l.*, and gives you credit for 50*l.*, therefore you made out an account for the 40*l.* balance. You made in out in reference to that?—I did.

40,421. Did he supply you with a memorandum of this, or show it to you?—He told me that I had got 40*l.* to account for.

40,422. (The Chief Commissioner.) That was your share, did he say?—He said that was what he had got down to me.

40,423. But when you came to prepare for a thorough examination you called up your memory from other sources, and that is the account of the expenditure of all the monies you received?—I did; I know every man and I put it all down.

40,424. Who are these (referring to the account)?—They are messengers on the polling and nomination days.

40,425. They were not voters?—No.

40,226. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I don't think we have the name of Eye. Have we had him?—No. That is Turner, I employed him as messenger on the nomination. That is Turner, my next door neighbour.

40,427. Oxtoby, 2*l.*, we have had him?—Yes.

40,428. William Roberts?—Yes, you had him.

40,429. West?—You had him. There was one man you had, named Burrell.

40,430. Edward Stephens, expenses to London, what was that?—That was a deputation to Mr. Gower.

40,431. H. Phillips?—It is not H., it is James. It is a man that is coachman for Mr. May.

40,432. We had a man who was coachman, he received nothing at all. Miles we have had?—Yes, Philip Miles.

40,433. That coachman told us he had nothing?—This man was paid on the day of election. He might have forgotten it.

40,434. This man only had 1*l.* Ede, Rose, Joyes, &c., what is that?—That was after the election was ove

40,435. Who was Ede?—A man you have had here.

40,436. And Rose?—Yes.

40,437. And Joyes, what Joyes is that?—That is my brother.

40,438. Your brother James?—No, William. There were others I gave money to after the polling was over.

40,439. You gave these men money?—Yes, to settle down, to settle themselves down.

40,440. How do you mean, to settle themselves down?—For some refreshment.

40,441. 2*l.* each ?—No.

40,442. Well, here is your handwriting ?—There is a man named Walker that I gave 1*l.* to.

40,443. You say "et cetera" ?—Well, Walker is one, now I think of it; he is gardener to Mr. Conway. I gave him 1*l.* on the polling day.

40,444. Sayers ?—That is the "Bats and Ball." I paid him.

40,445. 10*s.* ?—That is for carriages.

40,446. (The Chief Commissioner.) "H. Phillips" you say ought to be "James" ?—I think it is James, John or James.

40,447. He was called, and he said, "I thought "there was something coming to me, and 30*s.* was "what I got from Rose after the day of the election, "I was very well satisfied with that" ?—Perhaps he has forgotten it. He cannot contradict it, because I know I paid him 1*l.* I do not know what Rose paid him.

40,448. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Do you think it possible that Rose might have paid him 30*s.* and you paid him 1*l.* ?—Very possible, perhaps he has forgotten it now.

40,449. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) "John Sayers," what is that ?—That was one night, refreshments, it is a public house.

40,450. We have not had him ?—No.

40,451. Where is he of ?—Reigate, High-street, London-road.

40,452. Are there any other names, fresh names that we have not had before us ?—No; I do not think you had Burrell. That is the only one that I know of.

40,453. You told me that Mr. Buckland gave you an account of the monies he handed to you, 39*l.* 7*s.* 2*d.* ?—Yes.

40,454. You took that from Mr. Buckland himself? —Yes, I did not keep an account with him, because, of course, it was altogether. He would account for the money that he had received.

40,455. (The Chief Commissioner.) It was not a cheque to you ?—No, it was a cheque made out to him, in the three names, and then we divided it.

40,456. I see there are about 20 voters here ?—More than that, 30. I have not added them up, I do not know how many there are.

40,457. I see two or three cheques, I suppose they are called cheques, September 12th, 4*l.* 14*s.*; October 4th, cheque for three guineas, and so on, which you have not brought in. Oh, I suppose that is the two twenties ?—The two twenties.

40,458. Then there is a cheque afterwards, November 22nd, Joyes 16*l.*, which you have not brought in. I have not found the cheque itself ?—I do not recollect it.

40,459. Your expenditure would be larger, according to this, than the amount you received ?—I have had dealings with the land society when I have received cheques.

40,460. But this was from Mr. Smith ?—It may be, but I don't recollect it. I never received it, neither. I do not recollect the amount at all.

40,461. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you know, when you sent in your bill to Mr. Smith for the account of the 40*l.*, that he was in your debt ?—Yes, I knew that from the commencement.

41,462. You relied upon him to pay you ?—I thought he would pay me. People represented that I had had 50*l.* about the town, but I only had 20*l.* I know he owed me the other 30*l.*, at least I expected he did. I thought I should have had it, and I might get it now. Others have had their 50*l.*

40,463. I am speaking of the expenditure. That is the only thing you mean, that 30*l.*, by being in debt ?—That is all.

40,464. You mean that you have received all the monies that you expended on behalf of the election, and Mr. Smith having taken a receipt from you for 50*l.* and only have given you 20*l.* you then bring him in to owe 30*l.*, and, mixing up your own account with the expenditure, you show that result ?—Yes.

40,465. Will you look at that (handing the statement of account) and tell me if it is a true account of what you did receive ?—That is right, and since that there has been 10*l.* (Sayers' bill) which was not in. I went to Mr. Smith and told him that Sayers wanted his money, I did not know that he had made it out in my name, and I gave Mr. Smith the account of Sayers.

40,466. Very well, I understand it. You received 100*l.* from Mr. Smith and 39*l.* from the other man, that makes 139*l.* You have expended 119*l.*, then you have your own 50*l.*, and that is 169*l.* Now when you presented that for 40*l.* to Mr. Smith was anything said about your fee of 50*l.* ?—Nothing.

40,467. Did you yourself say anything to him ?—No, I did not.

40,468. But you relied upon being paid ?—I did.

40,469. Did you ever speak to Mr. Smith after you signed the receipt for the 50*l.* about it ?—No, I expected he would pay me some day. This petition was talked about, and I did not press for any more.

40,470. You can speak to the accuracy of this account ?—It is quite correct.

40,471. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you vote in 1863 ?—I did.

40,472. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Were you concerned at all ?—I was the same as I was with this election.

40,473. What did you receive ?—For my services ?

40,474. Yes ?—35*l.*

40,475. How much money passed through your hands ?—I cannot tell that.

40,476. Well, I won't trouble you for the exact amount. About ?—I have not the least idea whatever.

40,477. (The Chief Commissioner.) In 1863 you voted for ?—For Mr. Wilkinson.

40,478. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And were concerned for him ?—Yes, the same as I have been in this, I was a sub-agent.

40,479. And monies passed through your hands, between one and three hundred pounds ?—It might be one, it might be two, I cannot tell, I never kept any account.

40,480. From whom did you receive the money ?—I found some of it.

40,481. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) By accident ? —Yes.

40,482. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) It was left on the counter, I suppose ?—No, it was not.

40,483. It was placed in your way ?—A gentleman came to me and asked me if I was fond of gingerbread. I said I was, and he told me to go into a room in the "Swan" and look on the mantel-piece. I went and there I found some.

40,484. How much did you find ?—I think it was 100*l.*; I think it was on the nomination day.

40,485. I am sorry, but we must have the name of the gentlemen ?—I believe it was Mr. James.

40,486. Are you sure it was ?—Oh, I am sure it was.

40,487. Had you received some monies before ?—Well, I received monies in this way, that (I was out for Mr. Wilkinson the whole of the day,) when certain bills wanted paying I got the money from Mr. James to certain parties.

40,488. What I want to know is, did you receive money from any other gentleman except from that gentleman, Mr. James ?—No, not any other gentleman at all in any shape or way.

40,489. Your fee was 35*l.* ?—Yes.

40,490. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Excuse me, was that independent of the gingerbread ?—The gingerbread was not for myself.

40,491. The 35*l.* was independent of the sweetmeat ?—That was paid me after the election was over.

40,492. Can you tell me how much money besides the 100*l.* passed through your hands, as near as you can go ?—I cannot tell you only in this way, that if Mr. James wanted a bill paid he did not trouble me

TWENTY-SIXTH DAY.

F. Joyes.

20 Sept. 1866.

much, because I was not with Mr. James much. I had to meet Mr. Norman at Laker's at 10 o'clock in the morning, and I was out all day with him, therefore I had nothing to do with the affairs.

40,493. I suppose you disposed of that in the usual way, you paid voters?—Oh, yes.

40,494. I can give you the names of a few of them. Do you recollect Mr. James Dormer? You paid him?—Very likely I did.

40,495. You have no account of the money?—No account whatever.

40,496. I only want to test one or two, Amos Elliott, 2*l.* 10*s.*?—Yes.

40,497. These are some witnesses who have mentioned it?—Yes, I do not deny any of them.

40,498. You have no doubt watched the evidence that has been given before this Commission. Have you anything to say in contradiction to most of those statements?—No.

40,499. You believe them to be correct?—Yes, I paid most of them after the election was over.

40,500. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You paid them for their votes. Did you say, "You must "work"?—They always worked. I never paid for any votes.

40,501. You went through that pretence?—Yes.

40,502. But you knew it was nothing but——?—Colourable work.

40,503. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I may take it that those who voted and were paid for nominal work it was merely colourable occupation?—It was.

40,504. And that, as well as matters could be understood between parties without actually mentioning the fact, it was intended as a payment for votes?—Oh, yes.

40,505. There could be no question about it?—No.

40,506. Can you give us any fresh name in 1863? You have been giving your evidence so candidly that I ask you?—I do not think I can.

40,507. Do you think you could supply us; your memory seems very good indeed?—No.

40,508. By reference to any of the old registers?—Supply you with the names of those I gave money to?

40,509. Yes?—Oh, I could give ever so many now.

40,510. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien. We mean fresh ones that have not been before us?—Oh, some in 1863 are gone away and not voters here now. There is a man named Jackson, a plasterer.

40,511. Where is he?—I do not know where he is. He was away at the election of 1863, and we fetched him up to vote, and of course he had money from us and the other party too. That is all I know.

40,512. Any one else?—Oh, yes, others.

40,513. That have not been before us?—Well, there are the two Dewdneys that I gave money to. 10*l.*

40,514. 10*l.* a piece?—No, between the two; 5*l.* each not to vote in 1863.

40,515. Had you seen the Dewdneys?—I had not.

40,516. Do you know who had?—Mr. James Apted came to me, and said that if they had 10*l.* they would not vote; so my wife gave them 10*l.* for them not to vote.

40,517. Your wife gave James Apted 10*l.* to give to them?—Yes.

40,518. Not to vote?—Yes, not to vote.

40,519. That was a very close contest I believe; only seven or eight, or so, majority?—11 or 12, I believe; something of the sort.

40,520. Were Mr. Relf and Mr. Goldsmith active for Mr. Wilkinson on that occasion?—They were against him.

40,521. Did you ever see that 10*l.* again; was it returned to you?—No, it never came to me again.

40,522. The Dewdneys did not vote?—They did not vote.

40,523. How was it you sent it to them?—Apted came and asked for it.

40,524. You yourself had not seen either of the Dewdneys?—No.

40,525. And from information you received you found they would not vote, and you dreaded their going against you, and gave them that?—He said he could stop them.

40,526. James Apted and you were on the same side?—We were on the same side.

40,527. Was any account brought you afterwards of that 10*l.*, what had become of it?—No; I never heard any more of it. From what I have heard in evidence I fancy——

40,528. From the Dewdneys?—Yes.

40,529. You fancy what?—That they have not had it.

40,530. That is a matter that may affect others, and you know nothing about it. Is there any other?—I gave William Holdsworth 10*l.* to give to Weedon.

40,531. Did you get back that 10*l.*?—No.

40,532. Did Weedon vote on that election, Mr. Joyes?—He voted for Mr. Wilkinson.

40,533. You do not know whether he received the money or not?—I do not.

40,534. But he voted?—Yes.

40,535. You knew the man was a man likely to be led in the direction of the money?—Yes.

40,536. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you say you gave the 10*l.* to Weedon?—To Holdsworth for Weedon.

40,537. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Anything else?—James Apted 5*l.* for Bentley; Apted had 5*l.* for him.

40,538. (The Chief Commissioner.) Is he here now?—No; he has left Reigate.

40,539. Did he vote?—Yes.

40,540. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He voted?—Yes. And William Jackson, a plasterer, had 5*l.*; it was through Apted for Jackson; he has gone away.

40,541. I suppose, Mr. Joyes, the money came out of the 100*l.*?—All of it.

40,542. Then it would be almost on the very day of the election?—I only had it the day before; it was all on the day of election.

40,543. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you receive any directions at all from Mr. Smith as to the application of the money?—None at all.

40,544. You simply understood what it was meant for?—I understood certainly what it was meant for.

40,545. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Jackson was the last you told us of, 5*l.*; do you recollect any other?—No. I gave my next door neighbour 5*l.*; it was Richard Turner, who did not have it at the time, but acknowledged to having received it afterwards.

40,546. He received it in the spirit you gave it, and went away?—He did; he went away on purpose.

40,547. (The Chief Commissioner.) What is he?—He is a whitesmith.

40,548. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You do not know whether the money went to the sweep, the gentleman who went away with his wife?—No.

40,549. Anything else?—No; I recollect I had 11*l.* out of the 100*l.*, and I gave that back to Mr. James.

40,550. You paid the 100*l.* away on the nomination morning?—On the nomination morning. It was all paid before the polling.

40,551. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Had you paid any money before the year 1863?—No.

40,552. Did you pay money away otherwise than you have told us?—If Mr. James asked me to pay a bill I did it.

40,553. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you get rid of all of it?—I had 11*l.* left, and I gave it him back after I had sent our accounts in.

40,554. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Of course Mr. James knew you had the 100*l.*?—Yes.

40,555. Did you communicate to anybody else that you had this 100*l.*?—I do not expect I did, except to my wife.

40,556. Of course you mentioned it to your wife; she would have had it out of you; it is human nature?—Some of our own sub-agents, perhaps this is the first they have heard of it.

40,557. Did any one except Mr. James (who is dead, unfortunately,) know that you had received the 100*l.*?—None of them; I do not think any one knows except myself.

40,558. Of course you do not know where Mr. James had the money from?—No, no; not at all.

40,559. Did any one connected with the election know you had the 100*l.*?—No; I do not believe any one in the town knew it.

40,560. Out of the town, not even Mr. Wilkinson's party?—No; I do not know that they knew, or know to this day; in fact I dare say Mr. Wilkinson will be surprised when he hears it.

40,561. Is there anything else, Mr. Joyes, you can state for our information? Your answers are so straight and to the purpose that we wish to gain all we can from you. Do you know of anything further connected with the election it is important for us to know that you can tell?—I do not recollect.

40,562. If you should recollect anything you will let us know?—Yes, certainly.

40,563. (The Chief Commissioner.) You will do so?—Yes.

40,564. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Do you know of any other election you were engaged in?—Yes, I know of all.

40,565. I will not take you to 1857, but do you recollect the October of 1858?—Wilkinson and Monson; I worked for Wilkinson the first at that election.

40,566. I will not take you through that; you received a fee, I suppose? Did you receive anything in 1859; it was a sham election if you recollect?—It was.

40,567. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was there any money passing?—No; not a farthing to any one.

40,568. We have had evidence to a certain extent of it, though it might not be to your knowledge?—No.

40,569. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien) In the October of 1858 you were for Mr. Wilkinson?—Not the mock election.

40,570. I will pass over 1859, the mock election; but in the October of 1858 you were for Mr. Wilkinson?—I have always been for him.

40,571. It was Lord Monson and Mr. Wilkinson fought in October 1858, if you recollect, on Sir Henry Rawlinson's promotion to the India Board?—I do not recollect it, but I have always been for Mr. Wilkinson.

40,572. Were you employed as agent?—Yes; the same as now.

40,573. What did you receive?—Once I got 20*l.*; another time 35*l.*, and one was a mock election.

40,574. And you received nothing?—Just so.

40,575. Did you work for him in the same way?—Just the same as I have done now.

40,576. Did any money pass through your hands?—Always, when I was with Mr. Wilkinson.

40,577. Did any money pass through your hands on that first occasion?—There might be.

40,578. I do mean a bit of stationery; anything in that mock way?—Most likely there was; there always has been.

40,579. You think there was?—Most likely I paid money to men as I did before; I had 10*l.* for Mr. Hackblock's election; 20*l.* the next; and 35*l.* the next.

40,580. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You are speaking of the election of 1857?—I do not know the date.

40,581. Hackblock and Rawlinson?—Yes.

40,582. Hackblock came in?—Yes.

40,583. You had 10*l.* for Hackblock?—No.

40,584. In '58 how much?—20*l.*

40,585. For whom were you agent in February 1858?—For Mr. Wilkinson; the first was Hackblock.

40,586. In October 1858 did you receive anything?—What election was that?

40,587. Monson and Wilkinson.—I had 10*l.* first, 20*l.* next, 30*l.*, and 35*l.*

40,588. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You were agent for Mr. Wilkinson?—Yes, till he lost on the ballot. I went with Mr. Wilkinson till we lost the ballot, and then Mr. Truman offered me 40*l.* to go with them, but I refused it on account of the way Mr. Wilkinson was served over the ballot.

40,589. You were offered 40*l.* by the Doulton party?—Yes.

40,590. And thinking your friend Mr. Wilkinson had not been well treated you refused?—Yes.

40,591. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What was the reason?—The ballot I thought was not fair. Mr. Wilkinson was balloted out; I considered it was not fairly done, and I would not have anything to do with it.

40,592. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) The balloting took place the day before the nomination?—Yes.

40,593. And the 40*l.* was, I suppose for your vote and countenance?—Yes, I walked over to the "White Hart" with Mr. Truman when he offered it me, but I refused.

40,594. (The Chief Commissioner.) It was a day or two before the election?—Yes.

40,595. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And you went into the "White Hart"?—Yes, I went into the "White Hart" with Mr. Truman.

40,596. Can you fix the time the money was offered you?—I think it was the night of the ballot.

40,597. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was that the day before the nomination?—No, I think not; two or three days, it might be a week, before; it was a few days before the nomination. I think I had been to and come back from Redhill and was standing by side of the hall when Mr. Truman saw me and came up to me, he asked me if I would go in, I said, "No," he said, "If you will come to the 'White Hart' I "will give you 40*l.*; come with me to the 'White "Hart,'" and I did.

40,598. But you refused to receive the money?—Yes.

40,599. At that time there was no sufficient time for work?—No.

40,600. Is there anything else that you would like to tell, and which you think would be useful to us to hear?—No, there is not; but I shall be very glad if you will allow me to make one remark; I do not suppose you will, for I know you have refused it to others.

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Yes we will, what is it.

(The Witness.) Johnson in his evidence said, when you asked him with respect to the booth at Earlswood-common, and asked whether I was there, he said, "Yes." "Was Joyes active?—Yes." "What was "he doing?" he said I was in and out. "What do "you mean by in and out?—In and out of the house;" and he said I ordered beer, ale, cider. I can bring 20 witness to prove I was not there.

40,601. I suppose some of the money passed through your hands for refreshments?—Oh yes, I supplied lots of refreshments, but not there.

40,602. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Though you did not pay money there for refreshments you had paid for refreshments?—Oh yes, for lots.

40,603. (The Chief Commissioner.) A great deal of money was paid for refreshments?—Yes, every time we had a meeting there were refreshments.

40,604. In 1865?—Yes, and at all the elections.

40,605. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I am going to ask you this question as to the '57 election: did you take part in that?—Yes, Hackblock's; I took an active part then, as I did at the last election. I was under Mr. Smith.

TWENTY-SIXTH DAY.

F. Joyes.

20 Sept. 1866.

40,606. Were the voters paid in the same way?—I only heard of one case, and that was only from report.

40,607. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You do not know anything of yourself about it?—No.

The witness then withdrew.

J. Apted.

JAMES APTED recalled and examined.

40,608. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you receive from Mr. Joyes the 10*l.* in 1863 he has mentioned upon the day of the election?—I heard what Mr. Joyes said, but I have no recollection of it.

40,609. It was for the Dewdneys?—Yes, I heard what he said, but I have no recollection of it.

40,610. You went to Dewdney?—Yes.

40,611. Did you give him the 10*l.*?—No.

40,612. Did you offer it to him?—No.

40,613. When you went to him what did you say?—My instructions from Joyes and Mr. James were to go and get the two Dewdneys at any price, and if I could not get them to vote to keep them from voting. I went down to Mead-vale and saw William Dewdney, and said, "Which way are you going to "vote," he said, "I do not know what to do, I wish "to vote for Mr. Wilkinson and so does my brother "James, but we do not know; I am afraid of my "landlord." I said, "Who is your landlord; what "has he to do with it?" He said, "It is George "Morrison." I said, "If you wish to vote for Mr. "Wilkinson, Mr. Morrison is too much of a gentle-"man to take any notice of it," and, I said, "I will "meet you at James Dewdney's at 2 o'clock." I went and saw Mr. James and told him what he said. Mr. James then said to me, "Keep them back from voting "if you can if you can't get them." I went back and was there an hour and a quarter, and I think we emptied eight bottles of old wine, wine 10 years old in bottle. I kept them in tow, clinking and jingling the money in my pocket, till the chime stroke for 4, when it was too late to vote, and as the clock struck 4 I ran down the garden, jumped over the fence, ran away, and left them.

40,614. I suppose you paid for the wine?—No, I did not, I never parted with the coin. It was rare wine, Dewdney's old grape wine, the father's.

40,615. Rare wine?—Yes, the father made it.

40,616. You kept jingling the sovereigns?—Yes, and said, "How much."

40,617. However, the hope of the 10*l.* kept them from voting?—Yes.

40,618. A man of the name of Bentley was spoken of. Mr. Joyes said he gave you 5*l.* for Bentley, you did not hear his evidence?—I never received 5*l.* for a man of the name of Bentley.

40,619. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you receive any money from Frederick Joyes or Apted?—I did at different times.

40,620. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) It is some time ago, in 1863, you may have forgotten?—No, I do not forget. I can tell you from the first time to the last. Several gentlemen here have told you when the first bribery commenced here, but they have not given you the straight tip. I can do it.

40,621. I am sorry you did not do it before, but it is never too late to mend.—I can give it you from the beginning to the end, and I can tell you all about Job Apted's mock election. Mr. Wilkinson told me of it after they brought him up at the last moment.

40,622. (The Chief Commissioner.) Yes, whenever you like?—I wish it, and I will give you a straight tip.

40,623. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Do you not recollect having received money for Bentley?—I never did.

40,624. Or for Jackson at the last election?—No, Joyes paid him himself; he took him up to Ben Farrington's, locked him up at night and took his shoes off, Joyes had him locked up all night; that is a straight tip for you.

The witness then withdrew.

W. Bundle.

WILLIAM BUNDLE sworn and examined.

40,625. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What are you?—A carman.

40,626. What do you pay for your house that gives you a right to voting?—I never paid nothing.

40,627. Do you live in your own freehold?—I pay rent yearly.

40,628. What do you pay yearly?—25*l.*

40,629. And you pay it by the year?—I pay it quarterly.

40,630. Who did you vote for?—Mr. Gower.

40,631. Did you get anything?—Yes, sir.

40,632. Do you keep a beer shop as well?—I keep a public house.

40,633. What were you paid?—I was paid 15*l.* during the election.

40,634. Did you have many meetings?—No, sir.

40,635. How many meetings?—I do not know whether it was one or two.

40,636. It might be one?—I could not tell whether it was one or two of a truth.

40,637. Was there any refreshment at the meeting?—Yes.

40,638. And you were paid for that refreshment?—Yes.

40,639. Who paid for that?—I do not know.

40,640. What did you get?—I could not tell whether it was 1*l.* or 2*l.*; I was paid for it, but as to who paid me it was no odds to me so that I was paid for it.

40,641. Who paid you for the room?—Mr. Smith.

40,642. Did you send a bill in?—Yes, I did, and he paid me.

40,643. Who paid you?—Mr. Smith himself.

40,644. What is the sign of your house?—The "Marquis of Granby," near the station; it is well known.

40,645. When were you paid?—After the election.

40,646. After the election?—Yes, I do not say whether it was one week or two, I could not say that. Mr. Smith sent me a cheque for the amount.

40,647. That was all you got?—That was all I had.

40,648. Have you voted in earlier elections?—I have voted for Mr. Gower twice.

40,649. You voted in 1863?—Yes.

40,650. Did you live at the "Marquis of Granby" then?—Yes, and voted at the two last elections for Mr. Gower. I never had anything for '65.

40,651. Then what you have been speaking of happened in 1863?—Yes, that is quite right what I say.

40,652. That had reference to '63 and not '65?—Yes, I know nothing at all about the last election.

40,653. You voted for Mr. Gower?—Yes.

40,654. And they did not hire your rooms?—No.

40,655. Did they have any meetings?—They had one or two, what they had was paid for.

40,656. The bill you had in 1863 was 16*l.* 5*s.*?—I could not say to a pound.

40,657. That is your bill (showing it)?—No doubt.

40,658. 15*l.* for the room and 1*l.* 5*s.* for refreshments perhaps?—Refreshments perhaps.

40,659. You said you took the money at the time?—It was paid that evening, I should say.

40,660. You sent in a bill for 16*l.* 5*s.*?—It included refreshments, that is quite right.

40,661. And you had nothing in 1865 but for refreshments?—No, the rooms were in 1863.

40,662. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did they offer to take your house in '65?—They did not.

40,663. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Were you canvassed in 1865 by the Monson party?—No, I was canvassed only by Mr. Gower, and I promised to vote for him and no other man.

The witness then withdrew.

RICHARD LAKER sworn and examined.

R. Laker.

40,664. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—An hotel proprietor.

40,665. Where?—At the "Railway" hotel, Redhill.

40,666. Is that your own, is it a freehold?—It is mine.

40,667. How much would it be valued at; how is it rated?—Rated at 135*l.*, 10*l.* for the refreshment room, that is 145*l.* I occupy the refreshment rooms.

40,668. At the last election who did you vote for?—Mr. Gower.

40,669. And I believe you were on his committee?—I was.

40,670. Did you take an active part all through his election?—I did not, I did not out of my own house. I attended one committee at the hall at Redhill for about 10 minutes.

40,671. Was it a part of your business in the election to receive money to pay out?—Not at all. I never received a farthing, neither have I paid a farthing.

40,672. I do not mean for yourself?—No, neither for any one else.

40,673. I mean for other people?—I have never been asked that question during all the time I have lived at Redhill, for 11 years.

40,674. You received no money to pay away?—No, neither have I been asked or offered.

40,675. I suppose you have canvassed?—A few I have, five or six men in my own yard I have asked; I have told them Mr. Gower was coming.

40,676. Did you manage to carry those men with you?—I did.

40,677. Can you tell me whether you have heard their names?—One of them.

40,678. What is his name?—Sendall, a gardener, he received 5*l.*, I think he told you, from Mr. Mulley.

40,679. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) There was another man a driver of yours?—Yes, Wornham.

40,680. (The Chief Commissioner.) You canvassed how many?—Five or six, and it might be more.

40,681. Will you be kind enough to give me their names?—Henry Sendall, you have had before, and Peter Wornham, William Apted, Edward Hoare, and Thomas Barnett.

40,682. We have not had those before us?—You have had Barnett, Mr. Smith paid him 2*l.*

40,683. William Apted and Hoare, we have not had either of them, I think?—No.

40,684. Are they both in your service?—No, Hoare I discharged yesterday morning.

40,685. Where is he now?—He is living at Redhill.

40,686. He has a house there?—Yes.

40,687. Is William Apted at Redhill?—He is my ostler, and has been so 16 years.

40,688. Edward Hoare is living at Redhill, has he a house now?—Yes, in Warwick-road.

49,689. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He has only just left your service?—No, yesterday.

40,690. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you canvass him yourself?—I went into the yard, and said Mr. Gower was coming out.

40,691. Did you get him put on to work?—No, they asked me whether Mr. Gower was coming forward.

40,692. When they asked you that, then perhaps they asked you?—Oh no, I would not listen to it; not to any one.

40,693. Were they put on to work?—I do not know.

40,694. Can you tell me whether William Apted and Edward Hoare were put on to work?—I do not believe they were.

40,695. When you asked them for their votes did they promise you?—They said they would go which way I did.

40,696. Were there any committee meetings at your house?—Not at all, there was no committee meeting.

40,697. Were there any refreshments ordered at your house by Mr. Gower's people, which they paid for?—None at all.

40,698. I mean what were called election refreshments?—Yes; none at all.

40,699. Therefore you received no money from them for election refreshments whatever; if refreshments were ordered people paid for them?—If refreshments were ordered people paid for them, there were very few came, only gentlemen. My house is more for travellers, it is not so much for the neighbourhood.

40,700. On the day of the polling you took an active part, I think?—I supplied the carriages.

40,701. Had you supplied carriages on any other day besides the day of polling?—Yes, on the nomination day I supplied carriages to Mr. Gower. During his canvassing also his carriages were not here.

40,702. Then the whole time the election was going on you supplied carriages?—I did.

40,703. Who employed them?—Mr. Smith might order a carriage, or Mr. Gower might; I do not think there was anybody on the committee.

40,704. Who did you send your account into for the carriages?—Mr. Smith for 43*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.*, I think.

40,705. After the election?—Yes, a very short time after the election.

40,706. Was that the only claim you made?—That was the only claim I was paid.

40,707. Was that sum paid, the account you claimed?—It was.

40,708. That is to say your bill was paid?—My bill was paid within a few days after. Mr. Gower's wife was down, but it was not a very large bill, it came to 8*l.* 8*s.* 8*d.*, and they had a private room there; Mrs. Gower was there.

40,709. That is a private bill, that is another matter altogether?—That was all the money I received at the last election for carriages, and nothing for refreshments at all.

40,710. That is all the money you received at the last election?—That is all.

40,711. I mean no other money came to you last election excepting 42*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.*?—That is all.

40,712. Then in 1863 what part did you take in that election?—I voted for Mr. Wilkinson.

40,713. Were you on his committee?—I believe I was. I do not think there was a list of the committee out in 1863. I voted for him.

40,714. You took an active part?—I did with regard to my own men, I just asked the men.

40,715. Tell me how many persons you asked that time; tell me the number of your own men first?—About five, I consider there were; no, only four.

40,716. Did you give them anything for their votes?—I did not.

40,717. I ought not to have said votes, but did you give them anything for work?—Not a bit.

40,718. Did you get them what we call put on?—No, I did not.

40,719. You understand?—Yes.

TWENTY-SIXTH DAY.

R. Luker.

29 Sept. 1866.

40,720. Did you get them put on ?—No, I did not; I do not understand the words "put on ;" I never laid myself open to that sort of thing.

40,721. Did you get them employed, so that they might be paid for the work done ?—I did not.

40,722. On that occasion did you supply carriages ?—I did.

40,723. Are you aware that any of those four men did receive money from anybody ?—I believe Sendell did ; he told you the other day he received 5*l.* from Mr. Gower.

40,724. Did they pay your bill ?—They did.

40,725. Do you remember the amount of that ?—I think the carriages were had about 13 weeks at work, and my place was Mr. James's office.

40,726. What was your bill for the carriages ?—A little better than 100*l.*, what I paid away.

40,727. I have not come to paying away ?—Well, about 90*l.* my own bill.

40,728. That was for carriages ?—Yes.

40,729. Did you pay any money away ?—Money to drivers.

40,730. I do not care about that, include the drivers and tell me about how much it was ?—About 90*l.*

40,731. Including the drivers ?—Yes.

40,732. Have you any other bill which you were paid ?—The committee rooms and the clerks' room.

40,733. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Mr. James made your hotel his office ?—Yes.

40,734. (The Chief Commissioner.) The committee and the clerks' room ; how much were they ?—They were there 13 weeks, and upon the petition they came down and took the same room again ; it was 42*l.*

40,735. 42*l.* was not for the election ?—Yes, during the time of the election.

40,736. It included the petition ?—Yes, then they came back again, so I put it altogether.

40,737. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was that included in the 90*l.* ?—No, 42*l.* for the rooms.

40,738. Did you receive any other monies ?—Only from Mr. James, he had his bedroom there.

40,739. Oh no, that was in the ordinary course of your business ?—I supplied nothing further for the election, it was only carriages and rooms.

40,740. I suppose you cannot tell me what the committee room bill was ?—The two rooms 42*l.*, together with fire and lights, I think it was cold weather.

40,741. Was that a fair charge at any time ?—Well, I charged 5*s.* a day for the sitting room, and 1*s.* a night for lights, and 2*s.* for a fire.

40,742. Never mind, you think that was a fair charge ?—Yes, I should have had more for my room.

40,743. Did you for your own personal services receive anything ?—I did not.

40,744. You told me that at the election before, you did not, and I give you the same opportunity of saying it about this one ?—Yes ; I never had anything.

40,745. Now tell me about the election of 1859 ?—In 1859 I did not vote at all, I do not know anything about it; I was quite surprised when I heard Mr. Wilkinson was nominated.

40,746. Do you know anything about the election in 1858, between Mr. Monson and Mr. Wilkinson ?—I did not vote at all.

40,747. Had you not voted before 1863 ?—For the present Lord Monson, when he was engaged with Sir Henry Rawlinson.

40,748. That would be in February ?—Yes, on the Doulton election.

40,749. Who did you vote for at the Doulton election ?—For the present Lord Monson.

40,750. You had got the "Railway" hotel then ?—Yes.

40,751. Did you do anything for them then ?—For Mr. Wilkinson till he was balloted out, and I told him I could not vote for him, for I had promised Lord Monson years before that if ever he came forward I would not oppose him.

40,752. When Mr. Wilkinson was ballotted out, you voted for Lord Monson ?—Yes.

40,753. Whatever bill you had against Mr. Wilkinson at the time he was balloted out he paid ?—Yes.

40,754. I will not inquire what that was, I suppose you had hardly time for much charge against Mr. Monson ?—No.

40,755. Did he employ your house at all after Mr. Wilkinson had given up ?—I hardly know whether they did or not.

40,756. Very well ; that was the Doultion election ?—Yes.

40,757. Had yon anything to do with Mr. Doulton ?—Not the least in the world.

40,758. Did you not furnish him at all with rooms ?—No, they came once or twice and wanted to take rooms.

40,759. Did they make any particular offer ?—No.

40,760. Do you recollect their coming and offering to throw your vote in with the rooms ?—No.

42,761. Did you see anything more of Mr. Doulton after that ?—No ; my house lies away from the place.

40,762. I am merely asking these questions to give you an opportunity of putting yourself correctly before the public ; were there refreshments on that election furnished at all ; I mean the Doulton election ?—No, not unless the money paid was paid down.

40,763. No sort of election refreshments at that time ?—No ; a long time afterwards, after the election, Mr. Monson had a dinner at my house.

40,764. Never mind that ; which he paid for, I hope ?—Mr. Hart paid for it ; some of his committee were there.

40,765. And I dare say they were very well pleased with their dinner ?—They were.

40,766. You appear to me to have answered very well. Have you any further information to give us ?—No.

40,767. If you have I should be obliged to you for it ?—No, I have not got any.

40,768. This man Sndall was your gardener ?—He has been with me 19 years.

40,769. Was he in regular employ at that time, at the time of the election, with you ?—Yes.

40,770. And receiving regular wages by the week ?—Yes.

40,771. Do you know at all what he did for Mr. Monson ?—He used to run about at nights, because I used to blow him up for his being late of a morning.

40,772. He said, "I received 5*l.* for that from Mr. "James, and I was busy at the election" ?—He used to be out at nights. I believe he was half asleep all day long, so I suffered for that.

40,773. But what he was doing during the night you do not know ?—No.

40,774. He might have been enjoying some very good refreshment at some other house besides yours ?—He never had it at my house.

40,775. I mean some other house ?—I do not know.

The witness withdrew.

W. Joyes.

WILLIAM JOYES sworn and examined.

40,776. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You are a newsvend, I think ?—Yes.

40,777. What rent do you pay for your house ?—10*l.*

40,778. Did you vote at the last election?—I did.

40,779. For whom?—Mr. Gower.

40,780. Were you on his committee?—Yes.

40,781. Did any money pass through your hands?—Yes.

40,782. Can you tell me from whom you received the money?—I received a cheque from Mr. Smith for 16*l.*

40,783. Was that before the election or after?—The 22nd of November.

40,784. A long time after?—Yes.

40,785. Had you received any money before that?—I had. I was engaged in canvassing and other work during eight weeks, and I was allowed 10*s.* a week for my expenses. 3*l.* I received from Mr. Buckland and 1*l.* from Frederick Joyes.

40,786. I mean from Mr. Smith?—Oh, no; I beg your pardon.

40,787. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was not that a cheque for 16*l.* 10*s.* that you received from Mr. Smith?—I believe it was; I am not certain whether it was 16*l.* or 16*l.* 10*s.*

40,788. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That was the only amount you received from Mr. Smith?—It was.

40,789. But during the canvassing you had received for your own services 3*l.* from Mr. Buckland?—Not for my services.

40,790. You received 3*l.* from Mr. Buckland and 1*l.* from your brother?—Yes, for my expenses.

40,791. What did you do with the 4*l.*?—It was to come in the shape of 10*s.* a week during the time I was canvassing, as my expenses.

40,792. I meant it for yourself; I do not mean your services; it was intended for yourself?—Yes, I received 5*l.* for my services.

40,793. You received 5*l.* for your own services, of course; was that out of the 16*l.* 10*s.*?—It was.

40,794. That would leave you 11*l.* 10*s.* to account for?—Yes.

40,795. How did you expend it?—I paid Job Apted 4*l.* 10*s.*, Goldsmith 1*l.*, Thomas Dale 30*s.*, John Thrift 30*s.*, Thomas Wood, and Stone; you have had all those men.

40,796. How did you pay 4*l.* 10*s.* to Job Apted?—2*l.* he owed me and 2*l.* 10*s.* he had not put in his bill when he gave his bill to Mr. Smith, and as I had not sent in my bill at all he asked me if I would put it down. He said, "I have omitted to put it in my "account, and if you will put it in your account and "give it me," and the 2*l.* which I had not had. I did so, and handed him the money and put it in my bill.

40,797. He came to you, I understand, and said, "I have drawn my money from Mr. Smith, and do "not want to draw another cheque, but as you have "not sent in your bill put these two sums in it"?—He asked me about the 2*l.* for Attwood, which he had omitted, and wanted me to have the kindness to put it in my bill, which I did.

40,798. And the 2*l.* 10*s.*?—The 2*l.* 10*s.*, I think, I lent him to pay a bill; he had not the money; he met me promiscuously in the street, and he told me to put it down in my bill.

40,799. Had he paid it on the election?—Yes.

40,800. I do not understand about the 2*l.* 10*s.*; that would be a private affair?—That, I believe, was to pay a score of Hodge's, of Woodhatch.

40,801. But your information from Job Apted was this; he said, "I have expended 4*l.* 10*s.* which is not "in my bill; but will you be kind enough to put it in "yours"?—Yes.

40,802. It was not a good way of business. The other you accounted for; did you pay the other to the men?—I did.

40,803. They have all been examined?—Yes.

40,804. Did they admit receiving the money?—They have all admitted it.

40,805. Did Dale admit it?—He admitted, I believe, that I paid it to him.

40,806. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you pay it to Dale himself or through Mr. Barker?—I believe I paid Dale himself; that is, Thomas Dale, of London-road.

40,807. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You only received 5*l.* for yourself?—That was all.

40,808. How long had you been working?—I worked eight weeks, or nearly, within a few days.

40,809. What had you been doing; had you distributed the newspapers?—No, I did not do anything of that sort.

40,810. I only want to know what you did; did you take out bills?—I canvassed, and I was in the room below addressing circulars and going through the list of voters; that was part of my duty.

40,811. What else did you do?—I attended several committee meetings of an evening to look at the register there.

40,812. That was not much pay for eight weeks' work, was it?—I expected more.

40,813. Did you send in any bill for more?—No, I did not.

40,814. You must have sent in an account in order to get the 16*l.* 10*s.*?—Yes, I went to Mr. Smith and asked him to allow me some money. He said, "How "much do you want"? I said, "These men are "bothering me for money."

40,815. And he told you to put on the 5*l.* for yourself?—Yes, and to pay over to the other men what remained of the 16*l.* 10*s.*

40,816. (The Chief Commissioner.) The sums which you have given us in detail make up 16*l.* 10*s.*?—Yes, and I paid no other money away whatever.

40,817. Now the 4*l.* you had received for expenses, did you expend that?—I did.

40,818. You expended it?—My wages of 10*s.* a week was not much for canvassing.

40,819. Did you say Hood or Wood?—Thomas Wood, of West-street.

40,820. What did you pay Wood; was it 30*s.*?—Yes.

40,821. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Had you been engaged on former elections?—I voted on one election, but I have never been engaged before on any election.

40,822. When did you vote?—I voted when the present Lord Monson and Mr. Wilkinson contested the borough.

40,823. That would be in 1858?—Yes.

40,824. Did you vote in 1863?—No.

40,825. Did you vote in 1859, when Mr. Wilkinson put up?—If that was the last time that Mr. Monson was returned I did.

40,826. Were you on the committee?—No, I did no more than give my vote; I had nothing else to do with it.

40,827. Did you receive any money?—I did not.

40,828. Had you ever received any more than at this last election?—I have nothing.

40,829. Nothing except the 4*l.* for expenses and 5*l.* for your services?—I have not.

The witness withdrew.

JAMES WOODHOUSE sworn and examined.

J. Woodhouse.

40,830. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What are you?—A stonemason.

40,831. What rent do you pay to put you on the register?—20*l.* a year.

40,832. For whom did you vote at the last election? Mr. Monson.

40,833. Who canvassed you for Mr. Monson?—Himself.

40,834. Were you afterwards spoken to by any of his canvassers?—Yes, I saw Mr. Nichols, and he asked me if I would like to be on the committee, and I said if he liked.

TWENTY-SIXTH DAY.

J. Woodhouse.

10 Sept 1866.

40,835. Where was it that you saw Mr. Nichols?—In the street. I was coming up Bell-street at the time.

40,836. How long was it after you had promised Mr. Monson?—It might have been a week perhaps, I could not say to a short time.

40,837. How long before the election?—I saw him several times.

40,838. How long before the election, after you had seen Mr. Monson?—Some six weeks before the election I dare say it was.

40,839. Did you receive anything?—Yes, after the election.

40,840. What did you get?—2*l.*

40,841. Who paid you?—Mr. Nichols.

40,842. Did you know what it was paid for?—Oh, yes.

40,843. What was it paid for?—For services I suppose during the election; I did a little canvassing, I talked to all my friends about the election.

40,844. Over a cup of tea I suppose?—No, not over a cup of tea, nor yet over much ale. I went and canvassed a voter some miles away.

40,845. Who was that?—John Ashdown; he was paid his expenses. He was canvassed by Mr. Gower's party and he promised them, but he would not vote without his expenses.

40,846. Which way did he vote?—For Mr. Monson.

40,847. How far did he come to vote?—I should think it must be nine or ten miles from here.

40,848. Was he living nine or ten miles away?—Yes.

40,849. He had left the town?—Yes.

40,850. Had you any instructions from Mr. Nichols to offer him anything?—None whatever.

40,851. Not even his expenses?—No.

40,852. You did not succeed in getting him?—Yes.

40,853. Did you?—Yes.

40,854. Did you bring him with you?—No, I dare say it was a week before the election when I went. He said he would come if his expenses were paid, and I told him I would guarantee his expenses if I could not get him something.

40,855. He came for his expenses and voted?—He did; I paid them him.

40,856. I suppose you got that from Mr. Nichols?—I did.

40,857. It was not a portion of your 2*l.*?—It was not.

40,858. Was that all the money you got?—That was all.

40,859. What, were your expenses to go to this voter Ashdown?—I do not think you could put it down under 5*s.* or 6*s.*

40,860. I suppose you went over in the morning and came back in the afternoon?—No, I went in the afternoon.

40,861. And came back in the evening?—Yes.

40,862. Did you go after you finished your work?—No, I left my work.

40,863. Was it on a Saturday?—I think it was on a Monday.

40,864. On Holy Monday?—No, I do not have a holiday; when I can work I do. Unfortunately I cannot at the present time.

40,865. Had you voted before?—Yes.

40,866. When?—In '63.

40,867. Who did you vote for?—For Mr. Wilkinson.

40,868. Did you get anything that election?—I did.

40,869. How much?—2*l.*

40,870. Who paid you?—Frederick Joyes.

40,871. What had you done for that?—What I did was at night after my work, going round and attending meetings; I know what you will put that down as, doing nothing.

40,872. That is what you call being put on?—I never heard that before, not till yesterday.

40,873. It is a very good term. Had you voted before?—I had a vote before, but I did not exercise it; it was in the sham election. I promised Mr. Wilkinson, and he disappeared, and I never voted at all.

40,874. I believe that is all you know about the election?—That is all.

40,875. (The Chief Commissioner.) Where is J. Ashdown now?—I cannot tell you, I forget where he is, I cannot tell you just this moment.

40,876. Where was he at work when you last saw him?—I cannot remember the place now, I think I can before I leave the Court.

40,877. I wish you would tell me now. Were you paid your expenses for going to him?—No.

40,878. You cannot remember where he lived?—I cannot think of the name at the present time, I will let you know at all events.

40,879. Did you not get the 5*s.*?—No, Mr. Nichols said "I think for what you have done two sovereigns "will pay you."

40,880. Was that for the afternoon's work in going there?—No, I chatted and talked and went about the committee meetings. I went to the "White Hart" committee meeting five or six times.

The witness withdrew.

G. Nichols.

GEORGE NICHOLS sworn and examined.

40,881. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—A smith.

40,882. A whitesmith?—Yes, and a shoeing smith.

40,883. What is the value of your house?—20*l.* a year.

40,884. Is it rented?—Yes.

40,885. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Mr. Monson.

40,886. Had you voted in previous elections?—Yes.

40,887. Had you voted for Mr. Gower at the election of '63?—Yes.

40,888. On this last election of 1865 were you on the committee?—I thinky name was on.

40,889. Who put it on?—I do not know; I suppose it was put on because I signed the requisition for Mr. Monson.

40,890. Who was it who asked you to vote for Mr. Monson?—No one.

40,891. How was it you came to vote for him?—This time?

40,892. Yes, this last time?—Because I signed the requisition to ask him to come forward, and after that Mr. Gower came forward.

40,893. I believe you took an active part?—No, not much this last time; very little.

40,894. Did you pay much money away to voters?—None at all.

40,895. Did you not receive any money from any one to pay away?—No.

40,896. But you canvassed, did you not?—I occasionally asked people to vote.

40,897. Did you give, then, no account of what you had done to anybody?—No, not at all.

40,898. Was there any person over you; I mean some higher agent?—No; we used to talk together of an evening.

40,899. Who?—Several of us.

40,900. Where at?—The "Grapes."

40,901. Is that the house kept by James Nichols?—Yes.

40,902. Is he your brother?—Yes.

40,903. He keeps the "Grapes," then?—Yes.

40,904. He paid a great deal of money away, did he not?—I believe he did; I do not know.

40,905. Did he not have occasion to pay you some money to pay away?—No, never.

40,906. Did no one hand you over money to pay away to anybody?—No.

40,907. Not for refreshments?—No.

40,908. Did you not on one occasion pay some refreshment bill for the committee, or something of that sort?—No, I think not; I did not pay any refreshment bill.

40,909. Did you receive any money before the election at all?—No money at all.

40,910. No money at all?—No money at all about the election.

40,911. I do not mean about the election, but did you receive any money at all before the election?—No.

40,912. Did you receive any money after the election?—No.

40,913. But you said just now you did not receive any money at all before the election about the election; never mind whether it was about it or not?—I mean that, of course; I received money in my trade, and that was all.

40,914. You mean your trade as a whitesmith?—Yes.

40,915. I am not referring to whitesmith's bills. Did you receive any money at all before the election?—No.

40,916. Never mind whether it was about the election or not?—No, it was not; I received no money whatever.

40,917. You said you did not receive any money about the election?—All the money I received was about my business.

40,918. Was there no cheque paid to you at all?—No, I do not recollect any cheque.

40,919. Try, if you please?—No.

40,920. Did you not receive a cheque about the time of the election?—No.

40,921. I thought that you had?—No.

40,922. You know I have got the cheques here, but I have not looked as yet; try and recollect. Your name is George; did you receive a cheque?—No.

40,923. Not before the election?—No.

40,924. Did you receive a cheque after the election?—No.

40,925. Do you recollect making up some accounts about the time of the election?—I went into an account with my brother for work which I had done for him.

40,926. Before or after the election?—I received money from my brother frequently; I do not know whether it was before or after the election.

40,927. I understand your answer to be that you made up an account with your brother for work done, and handed it to him?—I made up an account, but I never made up a bill.

40,928. You made up that account for work done for your brother with him?—Yes.

40,929. Do you recollect whether that account was made up before or after the election?—I do not know.

40,930. Did he pay you that account?—He paid me some on account.

40,931. How much did he pay you on account?—Oh, several sums.

40,932. I wish you would be good enough to tell me how much; that is the information I want?—Sometimes 5*l.*, and sometimes 10*l.*; he would pay me sometimes on a Saturday night, when I wanted to pay men.

40,933. Did he pay you in cash or by cheque?—Sometimes money, cash; and sometimes by cheque.

40,934. Did that last during the whole time the election was going on?—It lasted all the time; and for some years past we have had an account, but have never settled up.

40,935. I do not want to go into any private matters previous to the election, but during the time the election was going on, can you tell me what money you received from your brother, on account of work done for him?—30*l.* perhaps.

40,936. For work done for him?—Yes.

40,937. I have taken it at 30*l.* perhaps. I do not want to tie you to the sum. Can you tell me whether it was by cash or cheques, or both?—Both, I should fancy.

40,938. Pray understand me, I am not at all going into private matters, but the 30*l.* related to work which you had done for your brother during the time of the election?—I think so.

40,939. I do not want to go into anything about the time of the election. Your brother was a very active man about the election?—Yes.

40,940. Was it in this way, that while your brother was out canvassing and doing what he had to do, you attended to his work at the "Grapes" for him?—I did my own work.

40,941. What was this paid for?—For work done, and I assisted in the house.

40,942. Was the 30*l.* paid to you for assisting in the house during the election, while your brother was out, attending of course to the election business?—I asked him for some money once, and he gave me a cheque to pay a bill. I suppose it was so.

40,943. Was that money which he handed over to you to pay a private bill?—We never had a settlement.

40,944. You asked him for a cheque, and he handed it over to you?—Yes.

40,945. Did not that cheque refer to a bill?—I do not understand that it is that; he wrote me out a cheque.

40,946. What the amount of the cheque?—I do not know.

40,947. What bank was it on? Did you take it to this bank here?—I think it was the New Bank.

40,948. What was the New Bank?—The English Joint Stock Bank.

40,949. Is that here now?—No, it has since broken down; he had an account at both places.

49,950. I only want to know where you took the cheque?—I sent it up to London. I paid it away in London.

40,951. You gave us first of all to understand that it was on a bank here?—Payable here, and I sent it away.

40,952. You did not get money for it here?—No.

40,953. You remember now to whom it was paid; I dare say you can recollect the amount?—Well, about 30*l.*

40,954. That was for 30*l.*?—Yes.

40,955. Remember that it was a 30*l.* cheque, and tell me this truly; did you owe the whole of that 30*l.* to anybody in London?—Yes, and more too.

40,956. Can you give me the date when you sent it?—No.

40,957. Can you tell me about the date, it was during the election; the election was the beginning of July?—It was before that.

40,958. It was before July?—Yes.

40,959. Are you able to tell me to whom you paid that cheque in London?—I do not remember now.

Mr. Commissioner O'Brien implored the witness to be cautious and to think over his evidence during the night.

Adjourned till to-morrow at 11 o'clock.

TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY.

J. Mazden.

21 Sept. 1866.

TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY.

Friday, 21st September 1866.

JAMES MAZDEN sworn and examined.

40,960. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—An inn keeper.

40,961. Where at?—Mead-vale.

40,962. What rent do you pay?—35*l.*

40,963. Whose house is it?—Neale Mellesh's.

40,964. Did you vote for Mr. Gower at the last election?—I did.

40,965. You were on his committee and took an active part?—I did.

40,966. I believe you were one of those who received money?—I did; here is the account.

40,967. Your account with whom?—Mr. Smith.

40,968. Who did you receive monies from in the first instance?—Mr. Smith.

40,969. All the monies you received?—I received small sums from Mr. Penfold, between 3*l.* and 4*l.*

40,970. Never mind that?—All the monies then that I received from the election were from Mr. Smith.

40,971. In what way?—In cheques.

40,972. Be good enough to tell me how much money you received altogether?—64*l.*

40,973. In cheques?—In cheques.

40,974. You are sure of that?—Yes, according to the best of my knowledge that is the amount.

40,975. In various amounts?—Yes, in various amounts; the first cheque I received was for 30*l.*

40,976. What was the first cheque?—I have not got the date of when I received it.

40,977. Can you give me the amount?—The first was 30*l.*

40,978. Do you know the second?—I think it was 15*l.*; then 10*l.* and 9*l.* I think they were the four cheques I received.

40,979. Does that make up the amount?—Yes.

40,980. That is all you received, and that was previous to the election?—After the election most of it.

40,981. What were you to receive for yourself?—50*l.*

40,982. When was that agreed upon?—At the commencement of the election, about six or seven weeks before.

40,983. The amount was agreed upon, the sum?—Yes, the amount was 50*l.* down; that was agreed upon at the beginning of the election.

40,984. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Between whom?—Between Mr. Smith and myself.

40,985. You talked of the sum?—That was the sum.

40,986. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you get paid that?—No, I did not.

40,987. None of it?—Yes, 30*l.*

40,988. When?—At the commencement.

40,989. Is that the first cheque?—That is the first cheque.

40,990. Tell me, when did you get paid the 20*l.*; 30*l.* and 20*l.* makes 50*l.*?—I was not paid the other.

40,991. I asked you whether you had been paid or not. I want to know whether you were paid it?—The 30*l.*?

40,992. No, the 20*l.*?—I have not been paid it; I have not received it.

40,993. Are you quite sure you have not received it?—I am quite sure; if I had received it I should tell you, but I have not received it.

40,994. Have you received money under any other heading which would cover it?—No, I will show you correctly how my account stands.

40,995. How much money have you paid away altogether in regard to the election?—I have paid away altogether 75*l.* 10*s.*, including the 30*l.*

40,996. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Never mind the 30*l.*; you did not pay that away?—I received it. I spent 75*l.* 10*s.* including the one I received.

40,997. Exclusive of what you received yourself?—Deducting that amount it would be 45*l.* 10*s.*; you would have to deduct 30*l.* from 75*l.* 10*s.*

40,998. How much money did you pay away altogether with regard to the election; do not let us have a conversation about it?—45*l.* 10*s.*

40,999. That is all you have paid away?—Yes.

41,000. After the election did you send in to Mr. Smith by his desire an account of the monies you had paid away?—I sent in an account.

41,001. It is a perfectly simple question; did you, after the election, send in to Mr. Smith an account at his request?—No, I saw it advertised in the papers.

41,002. Do not let us have any conversation, it is only asking you very simply aye or no; did you, after the election, send in to Mr. Smith, at his request or desire, a list of the monies you had paid away?—No.

41,003. You are quite sure of that?—Yes.

41,004. When did you send in to Mr. Smith an account of the monies you expended?—Soon after the election.

41,005. I should be obliged if you would tell me a little nearer?—I should think it would be the week following.

41,006. Why did you do that?—Because I saw it advertised that the accounts were to be sent in, that all accounts were to be sent in to Mr. Smith, on or before a certain date.

41,007. That was your reason?—Yes.

41,008. You had no conversation with Mr. Smith on the subject?—Not the slightest. I did not.

41,009. What was the the amount you sent in of money you had paid away?—I sent in the amount which I thought was due to me.

41,010. I ask you what amount?—I cannot tell you now.

41,011. "I cannot tell you what amount I sent in," shall I take that?—Yes; I do not think I should have any account.

41,012. "I cannot tell the amount I sent in to Mr. "Smith;" be kind enough to tell me how you know the amount now?—Because I have gone into it since.

41,013. Then, when you sent in your account to Mr. Smith, you sent it in without going into it?—Yes.

41,014. Then it was quite capricious what sum you put down?—20*l.* I considered was about what was due to me.

41,015. But you sent in an account; now, it comes to this, "I sent it in to Mr. Smith in the first instance, "without going into it;" what I want to know is what was the account you sent in to Mr. Smith?—20*l.*; I received some of the cheques after the election to pay the men.

41,016. I did not say one word about the monies you received, as your payments were sent in after the election to Mr. Smith; you sent in an account of what you had had?—Of the 20*l.* the payments were most of them after the election.

41,017. You sent in an account to Mr. Smith of payments you had made, and what was the amount of it?—20*l.*

41,018. You saw in the newspaper that it was necessary that the accounts by agents should be sent in to the authorized agent, Mr. Smith?—That is right.

41,019. In consequence of seeing that in the advertisements did you send in your account of disbursements?—Yes, of my claim.

41,020. Now, I want to know according to that what was the amount of the disbursements you sent in to Mr. Smith?—45*l.* is what I paid away altogether, but then I received it after.

41,021. We are getting into a conversation, and I should be much obliged if you would not do so, because I shall be obliged to press you for an answer?—20*l.* is what I say.

41,022. What do you say about 20*l.*?—20*l.* is the balance of my account.

41,023. I do not want a syllable about the balance of your account; I want to know when you saw this notice in the paper and what is the amount of the account you sent in?—20*l.*; but I received some cheques from Mr. Smith after the election to pay them.

41,024. To pay what?—To pay those men that I had got down.

41,025. You had paid them?—I have.

41,026. You had paid them?—No, not till after the election.

41,027. How much money had you received before the election?—30*l.* for my own account.

41,028. We will go into that account afterwards; do not if you please confuse accounts at all?—I cannot say what I did receive before the election; I received 45*l.* altogether before and after the election to pay these men with; that was all I received from Mr. Smith.

41,029. I want you to divide that into what you received before the election and what you received after?—I cannot tell you, or of course I would.

41,030. Now I must ask you this question, tell me exactly what sort of an account you sent in to Mr. Smith after the election in consequence of seeing this advertisement in the paper?—I sent in an account for 20*l.* due to me.

41,031. Was it for "Monies paid away by James "Mazden," was it something like that?—I cannot tell you now, but it was something like that I think.

41,032. You are a man of business?—Well, these are electioneering matters, and I forget them generally after the election and cannot remember it, and think they ought to be forgotten.

41,033. Pray do not let us have any conversation or interjection?—I did not want to accept any money, because ——

41,034. Tell me what the amount of the account was you sent in to Mr. Smith?—I do not know.

41,035. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you ever send in an account of the monies you expended?—I went to Mr. Smith and drew the money, as I thought, to pay the men.

41,036. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you ever send the account in?—I only sent in the account I tell you of. I never sent in an account of what I expended, because it was such a complicated affair, as I could not get the money to pay the men until after the election.

41,037. I have got it down that it was after the election, whatever it was. I have got it down that "After the election I sent in an account to Mr. Smith "for the monies I expended," and now I have just taken your last answer down, "I never sent in an account "to Mr. Smith of the monies I expended"?—I tell you I sent in an account to Mr. Smith at the first commencement.

41,038. Of what?—Of what was owing to me.

41,039. I ask you what was the account you sent in to Mr. Smith?—I sent in 20*l.*

41,040. What was the 20*l.* for?—For the balance of the fee.

41,041. The 20*l.* was the residue of your fee?—Yes.

41,042. Did you think that satisfied the advertisement you saw in the paper?—Of course it did.

41,043. It is not my duty to find fault with you. My only business is to get the facts?—I will tell you the truth.

41,044. Tell me, if you please, whether Mr. Smith has ever had from you an account of how you spent the 45*l.* 10*s.* you received?—He had the vouchers of it that I paid the men.

41,045. When?—As I paid them I have sent them over to Mr. Smith. I think it was after the election. So soon as I could get the money to pay the men I sent the vouchers too.

41,046. I suppose when you paid A. B.; you know what I mean, any voter?—I know what you mean.

41,047. Did you, after paying them, send the receipt for it?—I always had a receipt.

41,048. I suppose you kept that by you and put it in your account?—If Mr. Smith gave me a cheque for 20*l.*, and I paid it away, I sent the vouchers to him as I paid the money. I did not get it all at once, and I used to receive it in different cheques.

41,049. That being so, you have never since the election sent in a general account of monies paid away by you to Mr. Smith?—No.

41,050. Then Mr. Smith is only aware of what money you paid away by looking through the vouchers he received from you?—All the money I paid he has got the vouchers for.

41,051. You say you paid 45*l.* altogether before and after the election?—Yes.

41,052. Does the 45*l.* include anything for yourself?—No; that is what I paid away, 45*l.* 10*s.* I received 64*l.* from Mr. Smith altogether, and I paid away 34*l.*, deducting my fee of 30*l.*

41,053. Then we have got it wrong on the notes?—I paid away altogether 34*l.*, and there was 30*l.* for myself.

41,054. That is 64*l.* exactly?—Yes.

41,055. Putting out of your account altogether your fee what is it?—I received 34*l.*

41,056. I have got it all on my notes, and it quite startles me to question about it. It is wrong what I have got, that you received in all 64*l.* in cheque?—That is right.

41,057. "Of the 64*l.* I paid away 45*l.* 10*s.*"?—That is right, but I received from Mr. Smith 34*l.*, and paid away 11*l.* 10*s.* more than I received.

41,058. Out of your own pocket?—Yes.

41,059. Have you ever had that back?—No.

41,060. Then Mr. Smith owes you now exactly 31*l.* 10*s.*?—That is right.

41,061. 20*l.* for your own fee, and 11*l.* 10*s.* for money which he has never provided you with?—That is right.

41,062. When you say you have paid away about the election 45*l.* 10*s.* you mean you have in fact paid it away, but of that sum you have only received 34*l.* to meet it from Mr. Smith?—Yes.

41,063. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I thought you said you sent in the vouchers to Mr. Smith?—So I have.

41,064. Why did not Mr. Smith pay you the 11*l.* 10*s.* for which you had got the vouchers?—I never applied for it; in fact, until I went into it I had no idea about what it was.

41,065. Has he get the vouchers for the 11*l.* 10*s.*?—He has got all the vouchers for the 45*l.* 10*s.*

41,066. Then he has got them for the 11*l.* 10*s.*?—Yes.

41,067. Have you ever seen that paper?—No.

41,068. That is Mr. Smith's?—I have never seen that.

41,069. Cheque 15*l.*, cheque 10*l.*, and cheque 9*l.*?—The 20*l.* cheque, I think, must be a mistake. I think it is 10*l.* I received instead of 20*l.* I never saw that before. There is not my signature.

41,070. There is no signature to it?—No; what I have paid you see; you see all I received.

41,071. The 20*l.* you say is a mistake?—I think so; I think it was 10*l.*; but upon my word I did not keep an account of it, and cannot tell you. I believe it was 10*l.* I dare say you can tell by the cheque book, for I have not seen Mr. Smith to ask him about it.

41,072. Will you be so good as to tell me what the amount is you have got in your hand?—I will give it you.

21 Sept. 1866.

41,073. Tell us what it is?—75*l.* 10*s.* These were the men I had to pay.

41,074. That was the amount. When was it made out; was it the other day?—No; that is an old account.

41,075. When was it made out?—That I copied over a fortnight ago.

41,076. What did you copy it from?—From the list you see there; there is the amount I paid the men, and I took it all off in rotation.

41,077. This list is made out lately?—No.

41,078. Is that an old list?—That is an old list; one of the electioneering papers.

41,079. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) When was it made?—It has been made these 18 months. Those were the monies that I paid. Our district extends a mile and a half, I dare say. Earlswood common is in it, and those were the men I paid.

41,080. (The Chief Commissioner.) I want to know what this list is?—That is the account copied from the names in the paper.

41,081. Those are the names of the men, and here are the amounts?—Those are the amounts I paid.

41,082. Are the monies the same here as there?—Quite so.

41,083. I see that you have paid out according to the list apparently 75*l.* 10*s.*?—That is quite right.

41,084. Why did you tell me you paid out 45*l.* 10*s.*?—If you look you will see my fee is included in that. I gave you an account of that.

41,085. When did you last see Mr. Smith about this matter?—I have not seen Mr. Smith for a very long time; not since this Inquiry has gone on. I have not been to him. I thought my account was straightforward, and I would not go to him.

41,086. How long is it since you saw him?—I cannot tell you.

41,087. Did you see him during the time the accounts were sent in; about the audit?—No.

41,088. Did Mr. Smith desire you to put your own fee down at 30*l.*?—No, he did not.

41,089. He did not?—Never. I put down what I had received from him.

41,090. You had not received your fee according to your account?—I received 30*l.*, and I put that down.

41,091. Can you tell me when it was you received the first cheque?—That was the commencement, the 30*l.*

41,092. No, not the 30*l.*; it was afterwards, in October. You do not know when that was paid you, I suppose?—I could not tell.

41,093. Are you quite sure it was paid you?—Do you mean the 15*l.* cheque?

41,094. No. You say you received a cheque for 10*l.*, which you see in this account I have shown you is 20*l.*?—Yes, it is.

41,095. Supposing it was wrongly entered as 20*l.*, can you tell me when it was paid you?—No, I cannot, I have not the accounts.

41,096. Oh, here it is, "On the 1st of November 20*l.*;" so there is not much doubt about it?—I cannot tell you whether it was 10*l.* or 20*l.*

41,097. This is not in Mr. Smith's account, this is from the bankers who paid it?—Then it must be so; there is no doubt about it.

41,098. There is no doubt about it?—Of course there is not, if that is the banker's book; then, of course, it is right.

41,099. So that the money you received altogether amounts to 74*l.*, and not to 64*l.*?—That is right.

41,100. Now we will just look at this; you have received 74*l.* altogether, and you have paid away 45*l.*?—45*l.* 10*s.*

41,101. Yes, 45*l.* 10*s.* Then there is 20*l.* instead of 10*l.*, so that he owes you 30*l.*?—Yes.

41,102. Will you tell me what name is on the bottom of that paper (handing paper to witness)?—William Terry's.

41,103. We have not heard him?—No.

41,104. Where does he live?—Mead-vale.

41,105. Is he a voter?—Yes.

41,106. I see there it is 7*l.*?—1*l.*

41,107. It looks like 7*l.*, but perhaps I read it wrong?—It is 1*l.*

41,108. Now tell me this, if you please. In 1863 what part did you take in the election?—I took a part for Mr. Wilkinson.

41,109. What is Hewett's christian name?—George.

41,110. Where does he live?—He lives at Mead-vale, only he has left.

41,111. Has he gone away altogether?—Yes.

41,112. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you pay him?—No.

41,113. In 1863 you voted for Mr. Wilkinson?—Yes, I voted for him three times.

41,114. Did you work for him?—I did, and he had a committe room at my house; nine weeks I think the election was on.

41,115. Did you receive a fee on that occasion?—I did, 25*l.* for the committee and my services.

41,116. Who paid it you?—Mr. James, who is since dead.

41,117. There was a committee room at your house?—Yes, there was for nine weeks, all the time the election lasted.

41,118. You say the 25*l.* included the room and your services?—Yes.

41,119. Do you remember, have you mentioned it in your account?—No; I sent in the account "For "self and committee room."

41,120. You were paid for refreshments?—Yes.

41,121. From time to time as you went on?—Yes.

41,122. Who paid you?—A man of the name of Rose.

41,123. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Alec Rose?—No, Ephraim Rose.

41,124. (The Chief Commissioner.) Could you tell me how much?—No.

41,125. Nothing like it?—No, I could not tell you at all.

41,126. Did you pay out any money?—No; the money did not come through my hands at all, it came through Rose's hands.

41,127. Did you pay any money at all?—I do not think I did.

41,128. Try and recollect?—I do not think I did; it principally came through Rose, he had the handling of all the money, I believe, at that election.

41,129. When were you paid; I think you were about to tell me?—After the election.

41,130. In 1859, can you tell me?—I did not take much part in that election; it was only a blank election.

41,131. Who did you vote for?—Wilkinson; I voted for Wilkinson three times.

41,132. What did you receive on that occasion?—I think it was 10*l.* that I received.

41,133. Who from?—That I cannot tell you.

41,134. I wish you would?—I do not know who was the agent at that time.

41,135. Was it Cape?—Cape I think was the person.

41,136. Did you pay out any money on that occasion?—No, I did not have the handling of any money on that occasion.

41,137. Can you tell me how you voted on the second election in 1858?—I had not a vote at the time of Doulton's election.

41,138. But after that?—For Wilkinson, and the election after that; I voted for Wilkinson up to this last election.

41,139. Did you work for him?—No, I did not take any part.

41,140. Did you receive anything on that occasion?—I do not think I did.

41,141. I wish you would try and recollect, for it may make the account wrong?—No, I do not think I did; no, I did not; no, I am sure I did not.

TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY.

J. Mazden.

21 Sept. 1866.

41,142. As I do not wish to tie you down to it, I had better take it, "I do not think I received anything in "Doulton's election, which was in the February of "that year." Did you vote for him?—No; I had not a vote; I took my house the following week after the election.

41,143. Did any money go through your hands?—No, I had nothing to do with it. I took no part at all in that election.

41,144. Have you any list by which you can give me the names of persons to whom you paid money in 1863?—I did not pay any money away then, Ephraim Rose handled the money then.

41,145. I had forgotten what you told me, I understood you to say in 1863 you did not pay yourself? No, Rose paid all the voters.

41,146. I dare say you know the name of Elcock; we have had him under another name?—No, I do not know him.

41,147. We have had Broom?—Broom I do not know; he was not in my district at all.

41,148. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Were there any committee meetings at your house in 1865?—There were a few; the committee men used to meet, and would, perhaps, appoint, men to go and see voters.

41,149. Did persons in your rooms have refreshments?—In small quantities, not much.

41,150. Did you pay them?—No. Penfold paid about 3*l.* 10*s.*; that was the amount all through the election; I think he has got the bills.

41,151. Whatever it was, he has the bill?—Yes.

41,152. Did any one come and pay?—Yes, I think so; the amount for the whole election was only 3*l.* 10*s.*; it was only a little drink that was going on.

41,153. (The Chief Commissioner.) There is the name of Thatcher; which Thatcher is it?—John Thatcher, of Mead-vale.

41,154. Is he there now?—He is there now. There is one thing I wish to ask.

41,155. Yes, what is it?—There was a man of the name of James Apps, who told youI offered him 5*l.*

41,156. (Mr. Commissioner Smith, reading.) He said "He asked me for my vote, and said as I got "nothing the time before, if I came on their side "he would give me 5*l.*, as they were all going to "have the same?"—I can contradict that, I can bring a witness to corroborate and prove what I say.

41,157. (The Chief Commissioner.) You deny it?—Yes, I do deny it.

41,158. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You could only have a witness to prove a negative?—Yes, it is a negative, but I do not wish to put up with a calumny. I am quite ready to put up with and bear the blame of all I did myself.

41,159. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You canvassed him I suppose?—No, I did not, I did not canvass him at all.

41,160. You spoke to him about voting?—No, I would not have anything to do with the man.

41,161. Do you mean to say you never spoke to the man at all?—I never spoke to the man at all, not on this election; I knew him on the former election; I knew he was a man not to be depended upon.

41,162. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) He voted against you?—Yes, this election; I wish to contradict his statement.

41,163. When did you know he was going to vote against you?—I never inquired of or asked him.

DAVID DURRANT sworn and examined.

D. Durrant.

41,164. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I think you are a publican?—No, a small brewer.

41,165. What rent do you pay for your house?—It is rated at 22*l.*

41,166. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Mr. Gower.

41,167. You took an active part?—Yes.

41,168. Money passed through your hands?—Yes.

41,169. From whom did you receive the money that you paid away?—I received three cheques from Mr. Buckland.

41,170. From whom?—Mr. Thomas Buckland.

41,171. Did you receive money from anybody else?—Yes, from Mr. Smith.

41,172. How much did you receive from Mr. Buckland?—15*l.* first.

41,173. No; no. How much in all? If you will attend to my questions; how much money did you receive from Mr. Buckland?—65*l.*

41,174. How much money did you receive from Mr. Smith?—40*l.*

JAMES NICHOLS called.

J. Nichols.

41,175. (The Chief Commissioner.) I want from you, Mr. Nichols, all documents which you have got, if you please, referring to the last election of 1865?—Yes.

41,176. And 1863?—I have none of 1863.

41,177. Oh, very well, then I want all documents you have connected with the election of 1865, and banker's books and vouchers, if you will let me have them; everything. I want particularly the pass book and the book with the counterfoils?—Showing all the monies that I paid away?

41,178. Yes; I don't want to swear you at present; if you will get me those and let me have them as soon as you can?—Some time to-day?

41,179. I shall be much obliged if you will go and fetch them for me, and let me have them by 1 o'clock. You will be good enough to let me have everything, and that will save the trouble of calling for further documents?—You can have the whole of it in one document.

11,180. That will be no use?—That is the only one I have.

41,181. You have got the pass books and counterfoils?—I have got the counterfoils.

41,182. You have two accounts at different bankers, I want both?—Very well.

41,183. We have got them all, as far as I know, from the other side, and we want to get yours.

DAVID DURRANT.—Examination continued.

D. Durrant.

41,184. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You received 65*l.* from Mr. Buckland and 40*l.* from Mr. Smith?—The whole of it was from Mr. Smith, but Mr. Buckland brought part of it to me.

41,185. Then we had better take it as all from Mr. Smith?—It is all in my accounts as from Mr. Smith.

41,186. Then you received in all 105*l.*?—Yes.

41,187. Did you receive it in cheques?—Yes.

41,188. (The Chief Commissioner.) The cheques were drawn in your favour and in your name?—Yes.

TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY.

D. Durrant.

21 Sept. 1866.

41,189. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Had you received the money before or after the election ?—I received two cheques before the election.

41,190. (The Chief Commissioner.) How many afterwards ?—Two afterwards.

41,191. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) How much of that money did you expend on behalf of the election ?—I believe I spent nearly the whole of it. I may have been a pound or two short.

41,192. You have no accounts ?—No, I have no accounts.

41,193. That is not the way in which persons do business on their own account ? Did not Mr. Smith call upon you for an account ?—Yes.

41,194. He handed you over 105*l.* First of all, how much were you to have yourself ?—25*l.*

41,195. Was that agreed upon ?—Mr. Smith promised me 30*l.* himself, but when this Inquiry had taken place I understood that I had to account for 80*l.*

41,196. Was your 25*l.* agreed upon when you were set to work. Had you agreed, "I will work for you "for 25*l.* ?"—Yes.

41,197. That was agreed upon ?—Yes.

41,198. Then you know there was in your possession 105*l.* which you received from Mr. Smith, and deducting your own 25*l.* there was 80*l.* that you had to account for ?—Yes.

41,199. Did you send in to Mr. Smith an account of how you expended that 80*l.* ?—No.

41,200. Did he ever ask you for an account of it ?—Yes, seven or eight weeks ago ; then I sent it in, but never before.

41,201. He never asked you for it till seven or eight weeks ago ?—No.

41,202. Then you, not having kept an account with yourself, could only send him in a very loose one ?—That is all. I had not a correct account, so I only sent in an account as well as I could.

41,203. You did not know how you paid it away ?—I sent it in as near as I could.

41,204. Mr. Smith requested you to do it ?—Yes, he said I had 80*l.* to account for.

41,205. Did you know how much you had to account for till he told you how much it was ?—No.

41,206. And then, I see, to the best of your recollection, you made it out 79*l.* 3*s.* I think that is it ? 79*l.* ?

14,207. Look at that (handing an account to the witness). Is that your handwriting ?—No, it is not.

41,208. How much did you make it out in that account which you sent to Mr. Smith ?—Well, it was something like 70*l.* ; some odd pounds ; it did not quite reach 80*l.*

41,209. You came near it, I think ?—Yes.

4I,110. Look at the account again (handing same), and see if it is not in your handwriting ?—Yes, I see it is ; I thought at a distance it was not, but it is.

41,211. Well, I will take it for what it is worth Mr. Durrant, which is nothing you know ?—Very well, sir.

41,212. Cannot you give me an account of how you spent the money ? How many did you put on ?—I never bribed any.

41,213. No ; how many did you put on ? I really did not mean it ; how many did you employ ?—I think I paid something like five and twenty voters ; I think it was three or four or five and twenty.

41,214. That is what I want to know ?—There might have been one or two over, and there might have been one or two under.

41,215. Are the names here (referring to the account) ?—Not all of them.

41,216–7. I want the names. If you will give me the names of the voters I will not trouble you about the account ?—You have had most of them, I believe.

It is the hare we have not hunted that we want.

41,218–9. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You try and make the 25 ?—How many have you got there ?

41,220. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) We have had Williams, T. Williams, jun. ?—Yes.

41,221. And we have had Mr. Champion ?—Yes.

41,222. We had not Wilkins, had we ?

41,223. (The Chief Commissioner.) Have we had Stanton ?—Yes.

41,224. We have had all these, have we ? Tell us some we have not had, if you please. Who is Pelham ?—Pelham has been.

41,225. That is Pelling ?—I suppose it is spelt wrong.

41,226. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Be good enough to look at the list and tell us some that we have had not had ?—There is Benjamin Smith.

41,227. (The Chief Commissioner.) Of where ?—The freehold.

41,228. What is he ?—A shoemaker.

41,229. What did you pay him ?—2*l.*

41,230. Tell us another ?—You mean men that have not been examined ?

41,231. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Yes ?—I think there are but two.

41,232. Which are they ?—Mitchell of Dover's-green.

41,233. George Mitchell ?—I do not know his name. You will find Smith has been examined, only he is not in that list.

41,234. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Is that Henry Mitchell ?—He has not been examined.

41,235. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What did you pay him ?—10*s.*

41,236. For what ?—Loss of time.

41,237. What others are there ?—Fuller, of Dover's-green.

41,238. (The Chief Commissioner.) Have not we had him ?—No, I think not.

41,239. We have had a Fuller ?—I don't know whether you might have had him.

41,240. What Christian name ?—I do not know.

41,241. What did you pay him ?—10*s.*

41,242. Anybody else ?—I don't recollect any one else but what you have examined.

41,243. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was it Frederick Fuller ?—You have had all the others except them two. I don't think Fuller has been up.

41,244. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) For whom did he vote ? He voted on your side, did not he ?—Yes, for Mr. Gower.

41,245. Had you been concerned in 1863, Mr. Durrant ?—Yes.

41,246. For whom ?—For Mr. Gower ; I voted for Mr. Gower.

41,247. Were you on his committee ?—Yes.

41,248. What did you receive for your own fee on that occasion ?—15*l.*

41,249. Did any money pass through your hands ?—Yes ; I really cannot tell from——

41,250. About how much ?—I should think from 12*l.* to 14*l.* Mr. Wicks and me were at work together in the freehold, Mark Wicks.

41,251. Who paid you your fee in 1863 ?—It was paid by a cheque from Mr. Smith.

41,252. Wicks and you then worked at the freehold together ?—Yes ; I think it was from 12*l.* to 14*l.* that I received, and I think I gave Wickes 6*l.* of it.

41,253. You did not do much then ?—There was very little at the freehold ; they were very strong for Wilkinson at the freehold.

41,254. Is there any name of that time that you can recollect you paid money to that we have not had ?—Yes ; William Sherlock.

41,255. Is he there now ?—No.

41,256. How much did you pay him ?—5*l.*

41,257. Anybody else ?—No. John Martin I paid 1*l.* to, but he has been examined.

41,258. (The Chief Commissioner.) The only one we have got of you at present, I see, of 1863, is

Thomas Bradford; you paid him 2*l.* I dare say we may have more. John Martin; did you pay him?—Yes, John Martin; he has been examined.

41,259. You paid him, how much?—1*l.*

41,260. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Was there anybody else? Who told you about the cannon; Who brought word to you about it?—Mr. Williams.

41,261. He came himself?—Yes.

41,262. You sent a man. Who did you send about the cannon?

41,263. (The Chief Commissioner.) It was Russell?—I never sent to Russell. I never had anything to do with it. Williams came to me.

41,264. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) (Williams came to you and you sent him to Russell about the cannon?—I entirely left it to Williams about the cannon.

41,265. What money did you give him?—6*l.*

41,266. You put it down, did not you, in your account?—Yes, as paid to Williams for services.

41,267. You put it down as paid to him?—Yes; I told him I should do so at the time if I had to account for the money.

41,268. You told him so at the time?—Yes.

41,269. You know he had not done any service?—I know he had.

41,270. But he said that he had not. He said he did not receive any of it?—He was a man that worked as hard as any man in the parish.

41,271. How much money did he receive?—Nothing at all. He is a man who would be offended if you offered him anything.

41,272. Who? Williams, jun.?—Yes.

41,273. Then it was not very pleasant for him to be put down here as being paid 6*l.*?—It was quite his own doing. He came to me and said that Russell had got a cannon, and he should like to have it. He said, "I should like to have wheels put to it, and I could "keep it at Mr. Waters', so that I could put a horse "and have it up to the park at any time and back "again;" I said, "I can't say anything about that, "Mr. Williams, but I will inquire of the committee "about it." I came up to the town, saw Mr. Buckland and named it to him. Mr. Buckland said, "We "shall be very sorry to offend Mr. Williams; he is a "man that has taken a very active part in the election, "and everything he does is quite gratis, so let him do "as he likes; but recollect," Mr. Buckland says, "I will "have nothing to do with it myself, but let Williams "do as he likes about it." Williams came to me "again, and I says, "You can have the 6*l.*, but if I "have to give an account to Mr. Smith it will stand "against you as for your services." So I gave him 6*l.*

41,274. Was there any other member of the committee present when you spoke to Mr. Buckland?—No, not any one.

41,275. Mr. Buckland and you were working together?—Well, I was really sub-agent under Mr. Buckland. I most applied to him for any information I wanted, I never went to Mr. Smith.

41,276. Before 1863 had you been employed at an election, Mr. Durrant?—Yes, I worked in 1859.

41,277. (The Chief Commissioner.) That was the general election?—Yes, I voted for Mr. Wilkinson.

41,278. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) There was no work then; that was the election when he did not come forward?—Then it was not at that election.

41,279. Then perhaps it was in 1858?—Well, it might be 1858.

41,280. October 1858; that was Wilkinson and Monson?—Yes, it was Wilkinson and Monson.

41,281. Tell me, what did you receive at that election?—10*l.*

41,282. In the October of 1858?—Yes.

41,283. Did you pay any monies away?—I did, but I do not know what the amount was; 3*l.* or 4*l.* out of my own pocket during the election at meetings; refreshments.

41,284. Who repaid you that?—Well, after the election I sent in my account.

41,286. Who paid you?—He paid me.

41,287. Had you been engaged in the election which took place in the early part of 1858?—No, I voted for Rawlinson.

41,288. But I mean were monies passing through your hands?—No, I never took an active part.

41,289. And you got no money?—No.

41,290. Do you recollect whether you voted at all in 1859?—No, the election after that 1858 one I did not vote.

41,291. Did you supply any beer; were orders given you to supply beer after the election? We understand that you supplied a man with beer?—Which election?

41,292. The last election?—No.

41,293. Do you recollect a man who as a beershop keeper had his beer from you, and did not get his license afterwards; I forget his name?—I never supplied it.

41,294. Perhaps it is another brewer?—Yes.

(The Chief Commissioner.) I dare say you will be kind enough to look at that list. Is not it a correct list? I have taken it down as a correct list of the names of persons you paid money to; I will read it if you like. (The list was handed to the witness and read.)

41,295. Do you know whether there are any more?—No.

41,296. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did anything take place between you and William Humphrey? Did you offer to strike anything off?—If he would go to work for us in 1863.

(The Chief Commissioner.) Those that we have got proved in 1863 are Bradford, Martin, and Sherlock; you have not furnished us with any more yet.

41,297. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) There was James Woodman, that was in 1863?—Yes, he sent his account in to Mr. Smith.

41,298. John Martin was in 1863?—Yes.

41,299. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you employ a man named Wilkins?—Yes.

41,300. What is his name?—Thomas Wilkins.

41,301. What did you pay him?—I paid him 4*l.* 10*s.*

41,302. He was examined on the 27th August, and he said he had nothing; he said he got a blank?—There are plenty to prove that I paid him.

41,303. Then I must go into particulars in regard to that. Do you recollect whether you paid him anything before the election?—He had it all before the election. As soon as he left off work and I saw him he had his money, every week.

41,304. You paid him in three 30*s.*, did you?—Sometimes as soon as he had done the work he would come, and I would pay him there and then. If I did not pay it myself I gave it to some one else to pay.

41,305. How much money did you hand him yourself; we must have all the particulars, because he has denied it?—How much to him myself?

41,306. Yes?—I really cannot say how much I did.

41,307. Did you hand him any?—Yes.

41,308. About how much?—The first time I gave him 10*s.*; I cannot recollect any further payment myself, but I know that he had 4*l.* 10*s.*

41,309. That won't do in contradictory evidence, you know; it is very important that we should have the particulars. To whom did you give the money to give to him?—William Groom, I believe, paid him some.

41,310. You only recollect paying him 10*s.*?—I do not recollect anything further; that was at the commencement. Pelling paid him some.

41,311. Do you mean the man who was called up when you were examined?—Yes.

41,312. Is he a voter?—Yes. I think it was some thing like 30*s.* he paid him, I am not certain.

41,313. Who else paid him?—I really do not know whether I paid him more than 10*s.* or not; I know I paid him 10*s.*

41,314. Your man that was employed by you paid him?—Yes, I do not recollect any one else paying him.

TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY.

D. Durrant.

21 Sept. 1866.

41,315. Why did not you call our attention to that? You knew he was down in the list for 4*l.* 10*s.*, and you knew he denied it?—I thought as long as it come from me it was sufficient.

41,316. But you did not tell us now?—It come from me, you see.

41,317. I mean before. Why did not you tell us before that, before you were leaving the box; because you knew that he denied he had received any?—Well, I thought as you had got it in my account it was quite sufficient.

41,318. Your account is nothing to us at all, it is only between you and Mr. Smith. You should have told us; I should have thought you would have been anxious yourself, you know, to have said that?—The fact is, I did not think of it.

41,319. Ah, I think that is about it?—The thought did not come into my mind.

41,320. Who else did you vouch?—William Groom and Pelling.

41,321. The man who went to Woodman to canvass him?—Yes.

41,322. I see you paid a large amount in expenses?—Yes, refreshment.

41,323. The "Barley Mow," the "Bee Hive," &c., 37*l.*

41,324. (The Chief Commissioner.) The amount you paid to voters was 41*l.* 16*s.*?—Yes.

41,325. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) The "Barley Mow" is your house?—It is now; it is freehold.

41,326. It was then?—Yes.

41,327. I mean you supplied it with beer?—Yes.

41,328. There was a handsome breakfast there on the polling morning, was there not?—I don't know about handsome; there was a breakfast.

41,329. It is your own property, and you let it out to a tenant?—Yes.

41,330. There was a breakfast there on the polling morning?—Yes, there was.

41,331. And you ordered it, did not you?—I do not know about that. Yes, I believe; probably the fact is I went the day before the polling to Mr. Waters, and stated that there would be flymen down to and fro, and he was to provide for them, and they boiled a piece of beef, and there was part of it taken there, and in the morning we were all off early.

41,332. Then do you mean that this piece of beef was for the flyman?—Of course there was more than one; there were several down. I don't say that they had it all, I had some myself.

41,333. You know George Room?—George who?

41,334. Room?—No, not to my knowledge.

41,335. He keeps a private house?—No.

41,336. Did not you know of some of the voters being at Room's on the night before the polling?—No; William Groom?

41,337. Well, at Groom's house?—Yes.

41,338. Do you know of some voters being at Groom's house the night before the polling?—Yes.

41,339. You took rather an active part in seeing that they were there, did not you?—I did not.

41,340. You took part in seeing that they were there?—I were not there.

41,341. I know you were not, but you took an active part in directing that those voters should go there?—The house closed at 11 o'clock, and the men arranged among themselves for to go there. There were some voters who said they should not go home.

41,342. Did they tell you so?—I heard them say so.

41,343. Where?—Up at the "Barley Mow."

41,344. Can you give me the name of any one of them that you heard say they should not go home?—Yes, three of them.

41,345. Give me the three?—Balchin, Warren, and Gorringe.

41,346. Who was with you?—Some of the Gower friends.

41,347. All these men you knew to be shaky, did not you?—I do not know about that; they promised Mr. Gower, and always stuck to it that they should vote for him.

41,348. Did you hear any story about their coats having been a little torn, and a new coat being given to them?—Warren told me that James Apted promised him a new suit of clothes.

41,349. And had paid for the suit?—Not then. It was not paid for then.

41,350. Was not that the reason why you got some of these gentlemen to be put on?—They said they were afraid to go home; they got put on themselves.

41,351. They had got so much money in their pockets they were afraid to go home?—They said, "We shall not go home, for we shall get no rest if "we do."

41,352. Did you direct them to Groom's, or suggest that they should go there?—No, Groom did himself.

41,353. I dare say you thought it was a very good plan?—Perhaps I might.

41,354. You approved of it. Did you give directions as to how the men should be taken care of?—No, not all.

41,355. Now, just before the election had not your garden been in rather a disordered state?—Yes.

41,356. It required a great many men to take care of it?—No, I did not employ many men in my garden.

41,357. How many men did you employ to cut the hedges and just take the weeds up?—Three.

41,358. Who were they?—Wilkins was one, and Warren.

41,359. Wilkins is the man you mentioned, and Warren was one of the men who went to Groom's?—You asked me who I employed in my garden.

41,360. I only want to identify them?—Wilkins, Warren, and Sandford.

41,361. How long were those men employed in your garden?—Why, Wilkins was at work throughout the time, a great deal you know.

41,362. They were each of them rather shaky voters were not they; doubtful men?—No, I do not know about that; I do not know that they were.

41,363. Warren was one of the names you mentioned who went to Groom's because he was afraid of the Monson party?—Yes, he had just received 5*l.* from them.

41,364. That was after he had worked in your garden?—Yes.

41,365. What did you pay those men for working in the garden?—Why, let me see. Warren was at work a week in my garden, and I paid him 1*l.*; the other two I paid 5*s.* 6*d.* a day.

41,366. I am sure you will tell me. Did they really have bonâ fide work to do, honest work in your garden?—Yes.

41,367. You are quite certain of that?—I am quite certain of that.

41,368. Were the hedges very bad?—There were no hedges to do.

41,369. Because one of the men said he was put on to cut the hedges in your garden?—Not mine, he was not.

41,370. If my recollection bears me out, one of the witnesses said so?—It might have been cutting a laurel hedge, or anything of that; I don't know.

41,371. Have you got a laurel hedge?—Yes, a laurel hedge. I do not think he was, but still he might.

41,372. Do you recollect being at the "Angel" one evening?—No.

41,373. Were you ever at the "Angel?—I never was.

41,374. Or at the door?—No.

41,375. The "Angel" is not a house of yours, is it?—No.

41,376. Now don't you recollect one evening before the election telling the people who were at the "Angel" that they might go up to the "Barley Mow"?—I recollect very well never being at the "Angel."

41,377. Then do you recollect telling anybody that they might go up to the "Barley Mow"?—Where from?

41,378. From any house; to go from any house to the "Barley Mow." Did you invite your friends, and tell the people that they might go to the "Barley Mow" and get what they liked?—No.

41,379. Never?—No, nothing of what they liked.

41,380. Thomas Chitty was examined, and he said he was at the "Angel," and you came there and told the men who were there that they might go and get what they liked at the "Barley Mow"?—I never was at the "Angel." There is plenty to prove that I was not there.

41,381. You paid accounts of the "Angel," did not you?—Yes, I do not know what was paid there; not much.

41,382. You did pay something?—What was paid the men have gone and paid for, and I have paid the men the next day.

41,383. Have you carried that all into account?—Everything that was expended at the four houses.

41,384. Did you send in your account for what was paid at the "Barley Mow"?—Separate from the others? No.

41,385. Who paid for the breakfast?—I did.

41,386. How much?—About 7*l.*; it is included in the account.

41,387. Were you often at the "Barley Mow"?—Well, yes, occasionally. I have never been there during the election for half an hour at a time; no more than in and out.

41,388. Did you take an active part at the other meetings, the public house meetings?—No.

41,389. Did you take the chair?—No.

41,390. Where did you get that 6*l.* from that you gave to Williams for the cannon?—It came down with the first two cheques that I received.

41,391. You did not go direct to Mr. Smith for it?—No, Mr. Smith knew nothing of it till it was brought into Court.

41,392. Did you tell Mr. Buckland that the 6*l.* was wanted for the cannon?—I told Mr. Buckland.

41,393. You knew where the cannon was?—Of course I did.

41,394. And you knew that that man who sold it had not got it?—The cannon was up in the park.

41,395. You knew it was there?—I knew it was there.

41,396. You knew it was a useless old cannon?—I do not know about a useless one.

41,397. And did you not know at the time you parted with the 6*l.* to Williams that it was for the purpose of buying a vote?—Well, it was for the cannon of course; there was nothing named about the vote decidedly.

41,398. Let us have some plain English about that. Did you not know, as a fact, that that 6*l.* was for the purpose of buying a vote?—Decidedly I did. I was quite aware of that.

41,399. Did you authorize a man named Harsant to get ribbons?—No, I came up on the polling morning, and spent 15*s.* for ribbons. My little girl came and fetched them.

41,400. Were those ribbons distributed?—Yes.

41,401. Did you not authorize Harsant to buy ribbons?—Austin?

41,402. John Harsant?—No.

41,403. Or Sargent. Did you authorize anybody with a name like that?—Not any one. What there were I came and got myself.

41,404. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Who paid 3*l.* 8*s.* 10*d.* for ribbons, and never got the money back. He said, "Mazden told me to get the ribbons"?—Yes, Mazden.

41,405. Oh, it is quite right; of course it was not you?—No.

The witness withdrew.

JEREMIAH DEADMAN sworn and examined.

J. Deadman.

41,406. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What are you?—A carpenter.

41,407. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

41,408. For whom?—For Mr. Monson.

41,409. What rent did you pay for your house?—22*l.*

41,410. Were you on Monson's committee?—No, I was not.

41,411. Were you put on to work at all, to canvass?—No.

41,412. Did you receive anything on account of the election?—Not myself; not a farthing.

41,413. Who did?—Well, I had the paying of about 20 or 21 of the men called "roughs."

41,414. You paid the "roughs"?—Yes. I did not know anything of it. Mr. Nichols beckoned to me on the nomination morning. There was a lot round him, and he said, "Just take the money to these "men," and I said, "How many?" and he says, "20." I did not know anything about it then. I gave him the list of the names the morning after the election, and he said, "Oh, you had better take the "money and get rid of them."

41,415. Did Mr. Nichols keep the list?—I cannot say.

41,416. You did not have it again?—No; it might have been left in the room or not. I do not know.

41,417. Did you see these men paid?—Yes.

41,418. You paid them yourself?—Yes.

41,119. How much did you pay them?—7*s.*, two days each. 7*l.* 10*s.* I had to give them a little beer.

41,420. I suppose it was 3*s.* 6*d.* a day each?—Yes, 7*s.* for the two days

41,421. Did you pay 20 or 21?—21.

41,422. And what did you get for yourself?—Nothing.

41,423. Nothing at all?—Not a farthing.

41,424. Then how come you to pay these men?—I did not know I was going to pay them, only Mr. Nichols said, "You had better pay the money, and get "rid of them."

41,425. Did you know Mr. Nichols before?—Yes, I knew him.

41,426. Had you been in the habit of going to his house?—Well, I belong to the Foresters' Court there. I had the management of the order at the "Grapes," and I knew him of course, but nothing further than that; nothing whatever.

41,427. Is that all you know about it?—That is all I know about it.

41,428. Did not you receive anything from the roughs?—No, I had them bothering me for beer. I was glad to get out of them. No, I had no money; neither did I know I was going to pay them. Mr. Nichols merely asked me just to put the names down.

41,429. Did you vote in 1863?—Yes.

41,430. Who did you vote for?—Mr. Wilkinson.

41,431. Did you get any money in 1863?—Well, I took a very active part in 1863. Mr. James asked me to do so.

41,432. What did you receive in the shape of money?—Well, some time after the election as I was going up the town Mr. Joyes called me in, and said ——

41,433. Which Joyes?—Frederick Joyes. He said, "You have never made any claim upon us for all the "time you have lost;" and he says, "Here is 2*l.*" I said I did not wish for anything of the sort. He says, "You have lost time, and there is no reason "why you should not be paid."

41,434. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) The 2*l.* was forced upon you?—I never asked for a farthing. I was employed by Mr. James. He asked me on the nomination day if I would assist in bringing up the voters.

41,435. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You took the 2*l.* that was forced upon you? Now what are these

TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY.

J. Deadman.

21 Sept. 1866.

(referring to some papers) ?—They were given to me by Mr. James. He asked me to assist in getting up the voters.

41,436. Were these the names of those you had to bring up ?—Yes.

41,437. I see you had to bring up Mr. William Carruthers ?—No, that is the wrong name ; that is the opposite side, if you read that.

41,438. Did any money pass through your hands to pay away in 1863 ?—Not a farthing.

41,439. Did any monies besides the 7*l.* 10*s.* pass through your hands in 1865 ?—No, not a farthing.

41,440. Had you voted before 1863 ?—No, I think not.

41,441. Were you an elector before 1863 ?—Oh, yes. I am not certain whether I had a vote at any election before. I have been here this 10 years. I never voted before 1863.

41,442. Had you ever received money not to vote ?—No, nor offered a farthing.

41,443. You were never offered money not to vote ?—Never offered a farthing not to vote.

41,444. (The Chief Commissioner.) I do not quite understand the position which you filled in 1865. You see Mr. Nichols really made use of your services to pay other men, and they were not very pleasant men to have any dealing with. Are you sure you did not get any consideration for the trouble you took ?—Not a farthing.

41,445. Why did you do it ; I wish you would explain it ?—I had not the least thought of doing it. He nodded to me, and I went across to him. I had not the slightest thought of doing anything of the kind.

41,446. That is quite right. I am only trying to make your position a more reasonable one ?—Neither did I know that any money was to pass through my hands. He merely, as it was the nomination and he was in a hurry, asked me to put the names down. They were not voters any of them.

41,447. No, but they wanted to be paid for their time ?—Yes.

41,448. Had Mr. Nichols canvassed you much for your vote ?—Never in his life. He never asked me for a vote.

41,449. Am I right in saying that you voted for Monson out of your previous friendship for Mr. Nichols ?—Not at all.

41,450. You had repaired his house ?—No, I said I had the management for Mr. Thornton.

41,451. Did you vote for Mr. Monson by way of sticking up for your clan man ?—Not the least. Mr. Monson asked me.

41,452. And you received nothing at all for your vote ?—Not a farthing.

41,453. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You are a carpenter. You could tell the names of these roughs ?—No, I cannot. Some of them were Dorking men.

41,454. You said you took down the names ?—Yes, but I could not recollect them.

41,455. But you knew them ? Where did they come from ?—I think there were one or two from Waltham-heath.

41,456. Who brought them ?—They came up out of their own head, I suppose.

41,457. Did you know them all ?—No, I did not know them all.

41,458. Why did you call them "roughs" ? Were they navvies or what ?—That is the name they have gone by. I do not know any other way to explain it.

41,459. There were none of them Reigate men, I suppose ?—Oh, yes, some of them were ; but none of them had any votes.

The witness withdrew.

T. Wood.

THOMAS WOOD sworn and examined.

41,460. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are you ?—A labourer.

41,461. What kind of labourer ; we are all labourers ?—Any sort of labourer.

41,462. Agricultural labourer ?—I generally works about at one place and the other.

41,463. What rent do you pay for your house ?—15*l.* 12*s.*

41,464. For whom did you vote ?—Mr. Gower.

41,465. Were you on his committee ?—Yes.

41,466. Did you receive any money ?—Yes.

41,467. How much did you receive ?—1*s.* 4*d.*

41,468. I don't mean that ?—I am speaking the truth.

41,469. You said you were upon his committee, and I asked you, did you receive any money. Is 1*s.* 4*d.* the only thing you received ?—Yes.

41,470. Who gave you that ?—Mr. Green gave me a shilling on the 15th May 1865.

41,471. I really don't mean that. Did you receive any money at all after the election ?—No.

41,472. After you had voted ?—No.

41,473. Did you do anything for Mr. Gower ?—I was on the committee.

41,474. Did you canvass for him ?—No, I did not.

41,475. Who put you on the committee ?—Mr. Green.

41,476. Who did you work for ?—Who was I working for ?

41,477. Yes.—Mr. Carruthers.

41,478. And who canvassed you ?—Mr. Green.

41,479. Did not he tell you that you would be paid ?—He told me that he would see that I was paid.

41,480. That is what I want. He told you that he would see that you were paid. And then, I suppose, you allowed yourself to be put on the committee ?—Yes.

41,481. And you did expect to be paid ?—Yes, I did.

41,482. And who took you up to vote ?—I went myself.

41,483. To whom did you apply afterwards for the money ?—I never applied to any one.

41,484. Why did not you apply, as Mr. Green had said, and you promised under that expectation, that you should be paid ? Why did not you apply to him to be remunerated for your trouble ?—Mr. Green met me, and he spoke to me.

41,485. Yes, what did he say ?—He said that everything should be settled in a fortnight, but it is a very long fortnight.

41,486. How soon after the election was that ?—That was in September.

41,487. He told you in September that everything should be settled in a fortnight, and, as you say, that is a very long fortnight. He never settled with you ?—No.

41,488. Did you tell him how much you claimed ?—You merely said, "What am I to have ?"—No, I did not.

41,489. You said something of that kind to him ?—No.

41,490. What did you say to him ?—I did not say anything to him.

41,491. He spoke to you ?—He spoke to me.

41,492. I suppose your face looked inquiringly as a kind of introductory ?—Yes.

41,493. What did you expect, might I inquire ?—Well, I thought if I was paid I ought to have 5*l.*

41,494. Had you heard what the men were getting ?—Yes, 4*l.* 10*s.* and 5*l.*

41,495. Were you a Redhill voter ?—Yes.

41,496. Had you voted before ?—No.

41,497. Never before at any election ?—No, never.

The witness withdrew.

JOHN SAYERS sworn and examined.

41,498. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What are you, Mr. Sayers?—I keep a public house, the "Bats and Ball."

41,499. What rent do you pay for it?—25*l.*

41,500. Were you on either of the committees?—No.

41,501. For whom did you vote?—Mr. Gower.

41,502. Did you have a committee meeting at your house?—No.

41,503. Or did you have any meetings of that sort?—Parties called in of an evening.

41,504. When they called in of an evening did they have refreshment?—A little to drink.

41,505. Is yours a licensed house?—Yes.

41,506. A little to drink in the shape of spirits?—Not spirits, very little spirits.

41,507. Who paid for refreshments?—I could not tell you one in particular.

41,508. Did you send in any bill to Mr. Smith? Did you have any claim at all, on account of the refreshment, against Mr. Gower?—No.

41,509. Did you receive any money at all on account of the election?—No, only what I had worked for.

41,510. You did work?—Yes, I had a pair of horses and a carriage.

41,511. When was that work given you?—At the election time.

41,512, How many carriages did you supply?—I had only one; a pair of horses and a man.

41,513. What claim did you send in?—10*l.*

41,514. Was that for the horses for one day?—Oh, no, three or four days; several journeys.

41,515. And was that all the monies you received for or on account of the election?—Yes.

41,516. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you get the 10*l.*?—Yes, of Frederiek Joyes.

41,517. Did you send the account in to Mr. Smith?—The bill of it.

41,518. You had nothing for the use of your house?—Not at all.

41,519. How much did Mr. Joyes pay you?—10*l.*

41,520. That was in 1865, at the last election?—Yes, the last election.

41,521. Did you receive anything in 1863?—I think I did.

41,522. Do you know who you voted for?—Mr. Wilkinson.

(Frederick Joyes.) That was the 10*l.* that you said I did not account for. I received 90*l.*, and this was a bill I had to pay Mr. Sayers.

(Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you receive the 10*l.* in a cheque?

(Frederick Joyes.) There was an account between us, and it was settled in an account between us.

41,523. (Mr. Commissioner Smith, to the witness). Is that so?—Yes.

41,524. The account was settled between you and Mr. Joyes in other business transactions?—Yes.

41,525. Was your house used as a committee house in 1863? You voted for Wilkinson?—I do not think it was used for the committee.

41,526. Did you have any claim against Mr. Wilkinson's committee in 1863?—I do not recollect that I had.

41,527. You do not recollect whether you received anything?—No, I do not.

41,528. If you do not recollect what occurred in 1863, it is probably useless to ask you about any other election?—I have a very bad recollection.

41,529. (The Chief Commissioner) You say your horse and carriage——?—It was a pair of horses and a carriage.

41,530. Was only employed one day?—No, I did not say so.

41,531. Then I was wrong. How many days was it?—Three or four days. There were journeys to Gatton and other places.

41,532. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Do you keep a pair of horses, Mr. Sayers?—I did at that time. I do not now.

41,533. (The Chief Commissioner.) You received 10*l.* altogether. Now tell me this. How much of that 10*l.* did you put down for the horses, and how much did you put down to yourself?—Well, there was 1*l.* a day for the horses.

41,534. That is 4*l.* Was it 5*l.* for yourself?—I dare say it was 5*l.* for myself.

The witness withdrew.

CHARLES JOSEPH SMITH called, sworn, and examined.

C. J. Smith.

41,535. (The Chief Commissioner.) Mr. Smith, you are a solicitor here, in the first place?—I am.

41,536. You have got a vote, I suppose?—Yes.

41,537. Did you vote for a freehold house or a rented house?—I voted for a rented house.

41,538. Of the value of what?—80*l.* a year. It is my own house, however. I vote for it on the rental. I live in my own house.

41,539. It is freehold house?—Yes.

41,540. You voted for Mr. Gower at the last election?—I voted for Mr. Gower. I may say that I am also entitled to a vote for my offices.

41,541. You were Mr. Gower's principal agent?—I was.

41,542. Appointed by him in writing?—Yes.

41,543. Under the Act of Parliament?—Under the Act of Parliament.

41,544. How long had you been at work for him before the polling took place at the last election in 1865?—In May, about the first week in May, just after Mr. Wilkinson's death.

41,545. After Mr. Wilkinson's death he came into the field as soon as a vacancy was created?—Yes.

41,546. Did you commence work by at once appointing sub-agents, committees, and so on?—By appointing sub-agents, immediately.

41,547. The names which are familiar were the sub-agents who were under you?—They were.

41,548. Did you at once begin by paying money to them?—I did.

41,549. Without referring, can you tell me whether you began paying money to them in the month of May?—I can hardly tell that. I think pretty soon. There were some meetings held. At first, perhaps, I did not pay them.

41,550. As the election came on you from time to time paid out monies to them, and the money you paid was generally drawn by cheque?—Always so.

41,551. I was going to ask you whether always?—Always at this last election; in every case I drew a cheque.

41,552. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You paid all the election expenses by cheque?—This last election.

41,553. (The Chief Commissioner.) That was what I was leading up to; all election expenses of 1865?—There might be some small sums, 1*l.* or 2*l.*

41,554. I ask you that in case I should find two or three small sums?—Some small sums. I paid 50*l.*, 20*l.* at a time, and that was always paid by cheques.

41,555. Then we may take it that the large sums were paid by cheques?—Always.

41,556. And if I stumble upon a small sum of 1*l.* or 2*l.* I may take it that that was paid in money?—Yes, some small sums.

41,557. Were they voters, do you think?—Voters came to me and asked me for small sums. I do not think it would be much.

41,558. Then I suppose you would repay yourself by putting them together, and drawing a 5*l.* cheque

TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY.

Mr. C. J. Smith.

21 Sept. 1866.

afterwards ?—I put them into a book, of which I have given you a copy.

41,559. You have not given me an account of little sums expended from time to time ?—I think so.

41,560. I have not got it ; it is very likely you have ?—Yes, I have.

41,561. I don't think I have it. You have given me a cheque book ?—There is a long account.

41,562. On paper ?—On paper ; from the very beginning, in May to December, of every farthing, even shillings.

41,563. But that was not made out at the time ?—It was made out at the time.

41,564. But it was not made out from time to time ?—Yes, from time to time.

41,565. I will come to that in a short time. I want to know this, whether, whenever you paid out smaller sums than you cared to draw a cheque for, you entered the payment anywhere ?—In a small book that I had at the time. This book I have got, and I have given you a copy of it. I put it down at the time, therefore I know I was correct in the payments I made. I entered them every day.

41,566. What was the course of business ? A sub-agent came and said, " I want 20*l.*, would you give it " to me ?" without anything more ?—If the sub-agents came to me and asked me for money, I drew them a cheque for 50*l.* or 20*l.* I was engaged canvassing all day long with Mr. Gower, from 9 o'clock in the morning till 9 o'clock at night. Therefore I paid it on the faith that they would use the money properly ; and I gave them the cheque without inquiring further.

41,567. I am not speaking of the fees now ; it was to cover advances made by them, or to be made by them ?—By them.

41,568. Do you know whether it was always intended to cover monies paid away by them, or was it intended to meet payments which they would have to make ? Are you able to distinguish at all ?—I don't think I can distinguish. I think it was both.

41,569. I was going to ask this question next ; you think it was both ?—Yes.

41,570. Did they ever hand you over any vouchers if it was to cover payments already made ?—Not at that time, not before the election. I never asked them for any.

41,571. No, I am asking, did they after the election profess to hand you over vouchers for the monies they had paid away ?—They did to some extent ; or, rather, accounts of the monies they spent, different accounts of the monies they spent.

41,572. Suppose a sub-agent paid any voter 3*l.* or 4*l.*, did the sub-agent afterwards hand you over a receipt by A. B. the voter, of having received the 3*l.* or 4*l.* from him, the sub-agent ?—In some cases they did.

41,573. In many cases ?—Generally, I should say, but not with regard to vouchers.

41,574. Those would be vouchers. You say not to any extent. I should like you to tell me, was it ever done ? Was it the course of business ? because you would have them now if they handed them over ?—I should have them now.

41,575. Have you anything like a number of vouchers ?—No, I have not, not more than I have handed in.

41,576. I mean, compared with the payments they must have made, the vouchers would be trifling ?—Oh, very trifling.

41,577. Was it after the election that you came to a settlement with the sub-agents ?—After the election.

41,578. About how long ? Was it at one time ?—At various times, within a month after the election.

41,579. Pretty nearly, as far as you remember, all within a month after ; I don't want to tie you ?—No, because they brought in accounts long after, two months after the election.

41,580. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Which you had no knowledge of ?—Which I had no knowledge of. I had other claims made upon me by them, and I applied to Mr. Gower.

41,581. Claims to a very considerable extent ?—500*l.* I think. That was the last cheque I think that was paid me.

41,582. (The Chief Commissioner.) I do not care about any particular amount, but what I want is, the entire accounts, both the original account and the claims which were subsequently made by the persons who sent them in ; were both those sent in to what is called the audit ?—No, they were not ; only those claims that I received within the month I sent in.

41,583. You sent them in to the returning officer ?—To the returning officer.

41,584. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) The returning officer was the mayor ?—Yes.

41,585. (The Chief Commissioner.) You would at once send them to the mayor ?—I took them myself.

41,586. Can you tell me the date when they were handed over to the mayor, the accounts ?—About the 13th of September, I should think ; I did it within the two months, just within.

41,587. Perhaps I can help you ; there is the 12th of September ?—That would be the time, or the 13th.

41,588. It is dated the 12th ?—That would be the time then. I did it just within the two months.

41,589. Did you before you got those accounts from the sub-agents give them notice to produce them, or something of that sort ?—No.

41,590. Did they bring them in voluntarily ?—They brought them in as they came in.

41,591. Had there been any advertisements in the papers ?—No.

41,592. Nothing at all ?—No.

41,593. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) There was no advertisement ?—Not by me.

41,594. Of course you would be the party to advertise ?—I made no advertisement.

41,595. And you saw none ?—I saw none.

41,596. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Of course there was only one advertisement from you, calling for the accounts, immediately after the election ?—No.

41,597. Did you not advertise ?—No, I didn't advertise. It is very often done by agents ; I didn't do it. I never have done it.

41,598. (The Chief Commissioner.) Then they came in apparently as each found he would like to be paid ?—Yes.

41,599. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) But they were all in before the first two months ; the agent's accounts. You do not mean the supplementary ones ?—Yes, they were all in within the two months ; the first ones.

41,600. (The Chief Commissioner.) You said, afterwards you had further claims. But I understand you to say that all the first accounts from the agents came in within the two months ?—Yes, or within one month that I had an account from. The agent is bound to send in within two months.

41,601. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) All accounts are bound to be sent in within a month ?—Yes, or the parties are not liable ; and the agent is bound to return those within two months.

41,602. It is usual to intimate to the public, that the accounts should be sent in within the month, or the candidate will not be liable ?—It is done in some places. I never did it myself. I don't think the other agents here did.

41,603. I think somebody said he sent in the accounts in consequence of seeing the advertisements in the papers. I don't know who it was?—I think Mr. Hart inserted it.

41,604. (The Chief Commissioner.) When they sent in the first accounts before the month was up, did you render them any assistance in making out the accounts?—I think it most likely I did. They perhaps asked me what money I paid them, or what they received, and no doubt we went through them.

41,605. With your permission I will take it, "I did "assist them"?—Yes, by informing them what I paid them; I do not know what they had paid.

41,606. Of course not. Now, I suppose that system commenced pretty near as soon as the election was over?—Yes.

41,607. The latter end of July?—Yes.

41,608. As you are speaking of agents, my learned friend reminds me wisely, that I had better ask you the names of the sub-agents at once?

41,609. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Those that you recognise as sub-agents?—Yes.

41,610. (The Chief Commissioner.) Were they Buckland, Green, Job Apted, Joyes, Mazden, Durrant, Penfold, and Toplis?—Yes.

41,611. I see those are all you have put down?—Those are the principal agents.

41,612. Those are the sub-agents you recognise?—That I recognise as sub-agents.

41,613. As sub-agents who could send in accounts to you? If they had sub-agents they would receive accounts from them?—Just so.

41,614. Your system began in July?—Very shortly after the election.

41,615. You set to work early in July; they sent in their accounts within the month, having been assisted by you in ascertaining what monies had been advanced to them; and you of course believed, when you sent in what are called the election expenses, on the 12th of September, that those contained all the demands there were against you?—I only took cognizance of those demands that were then made. To say I believed there were not others, I could not say I believed there were not others, for I thought very likely there would be others; but I did not know of them myself.

41,616. The way in which it was done was this: They came to you and said, "Assist us, let us know "what money you have advanced us," and you told them. Then they set to work and sent in an account of the monies they advanced. That in an ordinary transaction would lead you to believe that the accounts they sent in exactly balanced, as near as they could, the monies they received?—Yes.

41,617. Therefore am I not right in saying, on September 12th you believed you sent in all the demands which you believed anybody had against you?—All that I was cognizant of in any way; I was not aware of any others.

41,618. But more than cognizant of; you said now you thought there would be some more, but you did not know what they would be?—No, I did not know.

41,619. I want you to explain that. Why did you think there were any more?—Because I thought there were claims that would come in from men for payment, which had not been made at the time.

41,620. That would make no difference according to my view of the case. A man comes to you and says, "I want to send in my accounts, Mr. Smith; "how much money have you paid me?" You say, "I have paid you 10*l.*, no more." He sends you in, that you may return it, a debit account which exactly covers that 10*l.*; 7*l.* paid away to voters, 3*l.* to himself. You do not deal with such small sums as that but that is an illustration; therefore you must have believed, must you not, that there were no more demands to be made against you?

41,621. Now, Mr. Smith, I will put it in this way; you said you thought other claims would be coming in. I want you to explain that. I do not see how you can have thought so?—It was only an impression; I did not know of any.

41,622. No, you didn't know of any; but these men when they sent in their accounts did not say, "These are the best accounts I can make out at "present, but I have got other demands against you"?—They said nothing of the sort.

41,623. Then what makes you think there would be other claims?—I scarcely know whether I thought so at the time. It was more from their coming in afterwards that has given me that impression now.

41,624. It rather reflected back, and you think you must have had the impression produced when you saw them?—Yes, at the time.

41,625. The shadow of that was cast before?—Yes.

41,626. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Had you been conducting agent in former elections?—I had.

41,627. Then probably your experience enables you to speak?—I experienced that very severely. Perhaps it was in consequence of that I said I thought there might be other claims come in that I knew nothing of then.

41,628. (The Chief Commissioner.) I can understand that very well indeed; but that would apply to claims made by other people. I am not referring to claims made by other people; I am referring to claims made by these same sub-agents who came in the first instance?—In former elections I had after claims made by sub-agents.

41,629. I quite understand you that you had; your previous experience would tell you, not only in elections, but in almost all other matters, that when you think you have paid everybody you find you have not?—Yes.

41,630. That is what you mean?—That is what I mean.

41,631. But this is very different. Ten men, say, come to you, sub-agents, and you assist them in the way you have described in making up their claims, and they send them in. Surely you would think there was no more money due to them?—I did not consider there was any more money due to them. If I said "I believed," it was from knowing that at former elections claims came in afterwards.

41,632. Not from those men?—Not from those men.

41,633. I want you to see the distinction; from other men, not from those men?—Made by other men upon them afterwards.

41,634. Yes, but they had accounted for all monies they had received; they had no further claim for that at all. I want you to bear this in mind. A sub-agent had received from you, according to your own showing, 20*l.* in all, for instance; you had informed him of that; he sent in a claim which, with his own fee and payments, just met that 20*l.*?—Yes.

41,635. Then you could not expect a further claim from him?—Not from him.

41,636. Were you much surprised when you found after the 12th of September that further claims did come in from the sub-agents?—I was, at the amount that was made.

41,637. Were you surprised at the fact at all?—I was at the amount.

41,638. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What was the amount?—Nearly 500*l.* I applied for a cheque for. I must state that the fees that I put down had not then been paid to the canvassers.

41,639. Had not been settled?—Had not been

TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY.

Mr. C. J. Smith.

2 Sept. 1866.

settled. They had been accounted for, but I had not paid them.

41,640. That is, when the election expenses went in?—Yes, they had not been paid, except that I considered they had been paid by the money I advanced them.

41,641. (The Chief Commissioner.) Now, the amount of fees which the sub-agents were to receive, that was settled, was it not, before the election?—No, I do not think it was. They made the claim afterwards. I agreed with Mr. Mazden, and I agreed with Mr. Toplis, but with no one else. Mazden I paid 30*l.* to.

41,642. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What did you agree with Mazden for?—50*l.*, and I paid to Mazden 30*l.*

41,643. I am speaking now of the distinct agreement?—Yes.

41,644. With Toplis?—Yes.

41,645. The same amount?—25*l.* I paid Toplis.

41,646. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What was the agreement with Toplis?—I think the agreement was for 50*l.*, but I paid him 25*l.* Toplis was to have no more except he worked; that was the understanding. I was to pay him if I considered he earned it.

41,647. (The Chief Commissioner.) You agreed with the others as to the amount of their fees?—No.

41,648. You speak that confidently?—Yes.

41,649. I will take them separately; had you agreed with Durrant as to the amount of his fee?—No.

41,650. Nor Buckland?—No.

41,651. Nor Green?—No.

41,652. Nor Apted?—No.

41,653. Nor Frederick Joyes?—No.

41,654. Nor Penfold?—No.

41,655. Then what fee they were to receive was to be settled after the election?—Yes. I do not think I said anything at all to them about it, except that I would retain their services.

41,656. A word, first, as to "retainer." Besides the fee which they got for their services, had you in each of these cases given them a 5*l.* retainer; do you recollect?—I don't think I did at this election; I did the last, in 1863.

41,657. Do you recollect whether you did in this?—I do not think I did.

41,658. Did you not do the same?—I cannot speak from recollection.

41,659. You will not say for certain?—I will not say for certain; I may have done.

41,660. Supposing you paid them 5*l.* and called it a retaining fee at starting, was it stated that that was to go as part of the general fee, or to be over and above?—No.

41,661. Nothing said?—Nothing said.

41,662. If there was you do not recollect it?—I do not think there was; I am sure there was nothing said about going in part.

41,663. My recollection is that you paid one 5*l.* to Mr. Apted?—It may be so; I could not recollect without my book.

41,664. Did Green have a retaining fee?—I cannot speak to that.

41,665. Then, in the election expenses which you sent in, how did you fix their fees?—They said what they should require to have.

41,666. And what did you put them down at?—At the different sums there stated.

41,667. They are not here, I have not got them? I mean in the detailed department of what I rendered to the mayor.

41,668. Of what you handed to the mayor?—Yes, I think they are separate there.

41,669. (The Chief Commissioner, handing witness the account.) Is that it?—Yes, but that does not seem to be so.

41,670. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) That is the draft of what you returned to the returning officer?—Yes, quite right.

41,671. What you returned to the returning officer des not give the details; it is a mere lump sum?

41,672. (The Chief Commissioner.) In the accounts which you returned, before you sent in the accounts to the returning officer, you charged those fees at some particular amount?—305*l.*

41,673. But you had fixed the amount of each sub-agent's fee?—Yes.

41,674. Can you tell me what you paid them, or charged?—50*l.* to Mr. Buckland.

41,675. That is in the account as returned to the returning officer?—Yes, I thought I had put them separately.

41,676. (The Chief Commissioner.) You returned Buckland 50*l.*?—Yes, Green, 50*l.*; Apted, 50*l.*? Joyes, I think, was 50*l.*; Mazden, I think, 50*l.*; Durrant, 25*l.*, I think; Penfold, 25*l.*; and Toplis, 25*l.*

41,677. No, Toplis, 50*l.*?—I didn't pay him 50*l.*; I only paid Toplis 25*l.*

41,678. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That would be 325*l.*?—I only returned Mazden at 30*l.*

41,679. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Have you any paper in your possession which gives you a detailed account of that 305*l.*?—Yes, I have.

41,680. Contemporaneous paper?—Yes, a rough draft.

41,681. (The Chief Commissioner.) I have a reason for asking you this. What is the return of the election; what is the lump sum?—305*l.*

41,682. That is not quite the same?—No, it is not.

41,683. And in that you have charged Mazden 25*l.* instead of 50*l.*?—30*l.* instead of 50*l.*

41,684. But you could not very well have allowed him 50*l.* I think you must have made a mistake about that. He was a person with whom you agreed beforehand a stipulated fee?—Yes.

41,685. I think there is a mistake about that?—I returned Mazden at 30*l.*, and he ought to have been returned at 50*l.*

41,686. Therefore it would come higher?—It would come higher.

41,687. Instead of being 305*l.*, it ought to be 330*l.*?—325*l.*

41,688. Now you probably recollect about this matter pretty well, because there was some talk of it both before and after, was there not?—Yes.

41,689. I mean some talk between you and the sub-agents before you returned the expenses and after?—Yes.

41,690. Did they not tell you, and was it not arranged before you sent in the election expenses, that they should receive 50*l.* a piece, with the exception, perhaps, of Durrant and Toplis; with the others was it not agreed that they should receive 50*l.* each?—Yes.

41,691. Have you not, in fact, calculated their fee in the election expenses at 30*l.*, and allowed them in the account 30*l.* for their own fee?—No, I think not.

41,692. Bear that in mind; just consider that. Did you not before you returned the election expenses arrange to return their fees in each instance at 30*l.* instead of 50*l.*?—Oh, no; decidedly not. I do not know what occurred, I never arranged with them.

41,693. But you had a conversation with them both before and after as to the amount of their fee?—Yes.

41,694. And they told you their fee was 50*l.*?—Yes.

41,695. I infer that from what I have heard. Did you not after that return them in the election expenses as at 50*l.* a head?—No.

41,696. I think I had better show you (passing an account to witness)?—I think not; I would not say without knowing. They are different accounts. I have put down, "deduct fee."

41,697. You agreed with Mazden for 50*l.*?—Yes.

41,698. That is the account sent in to the returning officer (passing the same to witness). There you have charged his fee at 30*l.*?—Yes, I have; and I have never paid him the other 20*l.*; at least I had not then. I make that out 305*l.*; Buckland, 50*l.*; Green, 50*l.*; Apted, 50*l.*; Joyes, 50*l.*: Mazden, 30*l.*; Durrant, 25*l.*; Toplis, 25*l.*; Penfold, 25*l.* That makes 305*l.*

41,699. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Instead of 325*l.*?—Yes.

41,700. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) How do you make it out; I do not quite follow you?—It is 30*l.* to Mazden. I had got down 50*l.* instead of 30*l.* That makes it 305*l.*

41,701. (The Chief Commissioner.) The difficulty remaining on going into details is rather as to Mazden?—That is 30*l.*

41,702. Why didn't you put him down 50*l.*?—That I cannot tell you.

41,703. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You had taken a receipt from him for 50*l.*?—I think I had; I do not know how that was.

41,704. (The Chief Commissioner.) You had taken a receipt from him before the election?—Yes, for 30*l.* He did not give me a receipt; I paid him 30*l.*

41,705. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) But he gave you a receipt for the 50*l.*?—Afterwards I think he did.

41,706. That receipt was given by Mr. Mazden for 50*l.*?—It is very likely he did; I know there were some receipts given for fees.

41,707. (The Chief Commissioner.) Now, then, having received their accounts, and having sent in to the election auditor the account which we have before us, you found after that 12th of September that further claims came in?—Yes.

41,708. First of all, had you paid the first set of claims before the others came in?—Not wholly, I do not think.

41,709. You had not satisfied them, you had not paid them at the time the accounts went in on the 12th of September?—No; principally I had.

41,710. Principally, but not entirely?—No.

41,711. You paid them by drawing cheques upon your banker?—Yes.

41,712. How did you pay the further claims that were made?—By cheques too.

41,713. Now, have you any of the further accounts which you received from the agents?—The total amount?

41,714. Yes?—No, I think not.

41,715. But they would come to you?—I gave them back. Prior to the petition I gave the accounts back to them again, and I have never had them since.

41,716. No, not the prior accounts; but these eight men sent you certain accounts, which you paid, and put them in the election accounts; and then they sent you in further claims?—Yes.

41,717. I suppose that was on paper?—Yes.

41,718. What has become of those further claims?—I returned them. Mr. Buckland, I returned his account. They have accounted for all this money in the accounts which they presented to you, all the other claims.

41,719. You paid these men so much apiece; and then, when they had been paid, they came back, and said, in fact, "You have not paid me enough; I find I "have other claims against you." Those claims would be on paper?—Yes.

41,720. Where are those claims?—I have not got the particulars. I gave them to the men I have not had them since, except what papers I have given up to you. There may be some accounts there.

41,721. I think not?—Then I have not got them; I gave them back again.

41,722. After you had sent in your account to the returning officer did you have a meeting with the sub-agents about their further claims?—I did.

41,723. Did you write or give them notice in the first instance, before they made any claims, and tell them to come and look into their accounts with you?—They said they had further accounts, and I said we should have a meeting.

41,724. My question is the other way. Before you received any claim, or any notice of a claim, did you invite them in the first instance to come in and go into their accounts with you?—No, I did not invite them.

41,725. You understand what I mean?—I do not.

41,726. Did it emanate from you?—Not for them to come again to go through the accounts.

41,727. But you did go through the accounts again with them. How did that come to pass?—I do not exactly understand you.

41,728. You sent in on the 12th of September what was believed to be the finish of everything?—Yes.

41,729. Now, after that I used the expression "invite," I thought you would understand it. Did not the sub-agents, at your suggestion, come to you to go further through the accounts?—No, not at my suggestion.

41,730. I mean, by that expression, did it not emanate from you, that they should come again and go through the accounts?—No, it emanated from them, if anything. They had further accounts, and that is why we went into them.

41,731. Perhaps they had, but you did not know it at the time, because you were surprised at the amount, if you were not surprised at the fact. But what I want to know is, who first started the second set of accounts, you or the sub-agents?—The sub-agents started it by making demands upon me.

41,732. Are you quite sure of that?—Yes, I think I can speak to it.

41,733. But I want you to consider about your answer; therefore I will ask you it again. I dare say you are right; but did you not tell them, or send to them, to desire that they would come and go through their accounts with you?—I have no recollection of doing so at all.

41,734. May you have said so? May it have been the case?—I do not think it was the case. I did not want to have any further accounts, and I should not send to them. That is my impression that makes me give the answer.

41,735. I do not want you to give your answer from the probability of the thing, but to give your answer from strict memory and recollection. It is not long ago.

41,736. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Although you did not send for them, you got them?—Because they brought them in; I didn't go after them.

41,737. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you not say to one of these men, "Well, come to me at such a "time, we'll go through the accounts, and see how it "stands"?—I may have said such a thing; I do not recollect. I may have said so.

41,738. I must take it down: "After I sent in the "election expenses I may have said to the sub-agents, "'If you come to me I will go into your accounts "'again.'" I will not take it down unless you assent to it.—I may have said so.

41,739. I think I will carry it a little bit further, only a very little. Don't you recollect that you did propose to them, perhaps I am wrong about that, to come to your office and go through their accounts?—I may have done so; I really could not say so.

TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY.

C. J. Smith.

21 Sept. 1866.

41,740. How do you reconcile that with the fact that you believed you had paid all the other accounts?—In consequence of the statement that they had further accounts against me.

41,741. They did not tell you that they had further accounts?—Or, rather, that I had applications from many men for money that had not been paid, and then I referred to the agents.

41,742, But the agents had no money to pay them?—No.

41,743. On the contrary, you told the agents before that, that they had drawn so much money, and they had accounted to you, or for as much as they had received; therefore, when a particular voter came to you and said, "Please, sir, I want more money," it would be useless to refer him to the sub-agent?—No, I did not refer him to the sub-agent; I referred to the sub-agent to know whether it was correct. That is the way the appointments came afterwards, in consequence of the persons who worked; because I was besieged with people coming, and, of course, I went to my agents to know what all this was.

41,744. Did you not know very well, at the time you sent in the election expenses, on the 12th of September, that there were several outstanding claims?—Yes; I think I may say I have no doubt of it. I won't say any one in particular.

41,745. You will not say any one in particular, but at the time you sent in the election expenses?—I did not go after them. If I thought there were, I did not go after them.

41,746. Among the outstanding claims did not the fees of the sub-agents themselves form items?—Yes, except (I think I mentioned that before) on the part of Mazden and Toplis.

41,747. You mentioned that Mazden and Toplis agreed beforehand?—Yes.

41,748. I see this account is headed by you "Particulars of expenses incurred in the above election." That professes to be, does it not, an account of monies paid, actually paid?—Yes, and incurred—paid, I should say.

41,749. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) No, no, there is a great difference.—No; if they were incurred they were paid.

41,750. (The Chief Commissioner.) You see it is headed so all the way through. You returned it as such, and it is signed by you?—Yes.

41,751. I suppose it is all your own handwriting?—Yes.

41,752. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Does it purport to be monies actually paid?—It does.

41,753. (The Chief Commissioner.) I see the whole amount of election expenses amounts to 1,356*l.* 19*s.* 1*d.*?—Yes.

41,754. But did you not after the 12th of September, when the election expenses went in, go through their accounts separately with each of the sub-agents, and make out a further account from them?—I think very likely I did. Yes, I believe I did. I haveno doubt we went into the whole account; most likely we did.

41,755. It was not very long ago?—About October I think; when I drew the last cheque was about the time when I went into this, when Mr. Gower paid me the last cheque; that was in October.

41,756. Have you gone through their accounts with them again since that?—Yes, sir.

41,756*a*. Much later than that?—Yes.

41,757. It is not so long ago, not so very long, since you made up these accounts with him?—No.

41,758. Is that about eight weeks ago?—Yes, they wanted again to know the payments I had made to them.

41,759. In the election expenses, you had really debited Buckland, Green, Apted, and Joyes at 50*l.* each for their own fees? How is that?—No.

41,760. At 30*l.*?—No.

41,761. You had not?—I put them at 335*l.* with the travelling expenses, and I deducted them in the election accounts as if they had been paid, exactly as if I had advanced them money.

41,762. They had not been paid?—No, that makes an error till explained; but it is explained.

41,763. "In the election expenses I had not stated "the sub-agents as having been paid 50*l.* instead of "30*l.*"?—It came to 305*l.*, some 50*l.* and some 30*l.*, put together.

41,764. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Green, Apted, Joyes, and Buckland were all with Mazden to receive 50*l.* each?—No; Mazden 30*l.* only; 305*l.* and 30*l.* expenses make the 335*l.*

41,765. What is the 30*l.* expenses?—For travelling expenses.

41,766. (The Chief Commissioner.) That is 335*l.* in the account; then can you tell me (perhaps you cannot) whether you had put down Buckland, Green, Apted, and Joyes at 50*l.* apiece?—Yes, I made it up, Mazden 30*l.*

41,767. I need hardly ask you whether when you went into these accounts eight weeks ago it was not with a view of ascertaining what money passed through your hands, with reference to this Inquiry; it was not an unnatural thing to do?—Yes.

41,768. And that was done in order to meet us?—Yes.

41,769. I only mention it that it may not stand unaccounted for?—I wished them to give every account they could to you, and it was for that reason I met them.

41,770. You have told us these expenses amounted to so much, which is noted in the expenses rendered; will you tell me whether the expenses rendered, the account I received from you gives the account commencing in April 1865?—The account beginning in April 1865 goes down to January 1866, and is a copy of the bills I spoke to at the time.

41,771. Does this contain any items registered in the election expenses?—Yes.

41,772. Look at the back of it, you will see it is endorsed, "Account of expenses for above and other "matters"?—Yes, "For above and other matters;" there are some small matters of Mr. Gower's.

41,773. Well, they are very small, never mind them, give me the words?—It is rather curiously written.

41,774. I see it is, "Reigate election expenses paid "by Mr. Smith for above and other matters"?—I mean for the above election.

41,775. Tell me what this account is. What is this account?—It is an account of all monies I paid in respect of the election of 1865 and some other matters of Mr. Gower's.

41,776. Those are so very trifling, they are not above 20*l.* in the whole, so that there will be no difficulty about it. When was this account made out?—I made it from time to time as I paid it.

41,777. You made it in the office?—Yes, and the account I made up myself, that I copied myself from my book.

41,778. When did you copy that from your book?—It was for this Inquiry.

41,779. "I copied this further account," I will put it?—The whole account.

41,780. "For the purpose of this Inquiry," and the book you have left from time to time?—From time to time, and there were a few items with regard to the election petition, I have not extracted those.

41,781. Why did you not make up your election expenses from this account?—I did up to a certain extent; up to a certain time, till the demands I received from the people.

41,782. You have got your receipts and account book in which you put down the payments as to that?—Yes.

41,783. Why did you not send a copy of the day books, separating it under headings in election expenses?—I made an account from my day book, from which I took out certain items which did not belong to the election.

41,784. But this all refers to the election?—Yes, it does.

41,785. But at the time you made out the election accounts had you made all these later payments?—I stated, if you recollect, I only made up the accounts to a certain time; my book goes on after I sent in my accounts.

41,786. Did your book go on after the expenses, I mean did the entries go on?—Yes, as I paid bills.

41,787. Did you go on entering election expenses day by day after the 12th of September?—Yes, and I could not send to the election auditor what I had not paid. I made up my book daily.

41,788. I know you did before; that was so?—Yes.

41,789. Now bear it in mind, the date you have given, the 12th of September, as to election expenses?—Excuse me, I had only to account for accounts I had received up to the 12th of August, and that was the month I made up my accounts to.

41,790. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You were not legally bound to pay anything that came in afterwards?—No, not legally.

41,791. (The Chief Commissioner.) I find that under the date of October 26th, Buckland 30*l.*; Buckland again 50*l.*; Apted 30*l.*, ditto 30*l.*; Frederick Joyes 20*l.*, ditto 20*l.*; so that Buckland received 80*l.* after the election expenses had gone in?—Yes, that is correct, that is according to the payments.

41,792. How do you account for that? I was very particular in preluding this, they came to you and would tell you what money you had advanced and what they had paid, or you would say when they came, "I "have advanced so much money, now tell me what "you have paid." Now in October you paid 80*l.*?—When I had further demands made upon me. I know I went to Mr. Gower as to a further sum of money.

41,793. Did it not occur to you they were not in reference to election expenses, were you not surprised at fresh demands?—I did not receive any demand from them; it was in October.

41,794. I am quite aware it is in October?—I knew nothing in July.

41,795. I asked you particularly whether you were surprised at further demands being made on you, and you will see my object in asking that question some time ago; did you not know at this time there was a claim by Buckland against you of 80*l.*?—No, I knew that his fee was not paid.

41,796. Why did you put it down in the election expenses?—I put it down and deducted it as paid from the various amounts I had given him.

41,797. But you knew it was not paid?—Yes, I knew it was not paid, and I wrote to Mr. Gower at the time that the canvassers were not paid.

41,798. There are various demands afterwards, and cash to them too. You knew that Buckland, though entered as having received part of the 305*l.*, that in reality he was not paid?—Yes, I knew that, having paid large sums to my sub-agents, I deducted their fee from the sums I paid them.

41,799. On the face of the accounts those sums were put down as having been received?—They were so.

41,800. Mr. Apted is put down as receiving 30*l.* in this month of October and 30*l.* too, making 60*l.*; it is the same I suppose as regards Apted about his fee in the election expenses received?—Yes.

41,801. And that reminds me as I pass of a question I wished to ask you about this matter. I see on October 26th Apted 30*l.*, ditto 30*l.*; can you explain this? You would expect 50*l.* was what you wanted to pay him for his own fee, and I find in a cheque which that represents, and which I have got here, you gave him one cheque for 60*l.*, and you wrote on the stump of it 30*l.* for himself and 30*l.* for canvassers; why did you not put 50*l.* for himself, do you recollect?—Oh, yes, I recollect it perfectly.

41,802. Mr. Apted told me you had drawn the cheque in his favour for 60*l.*; he said 50*l.* was due to him for his fee, but that instead of drawing the cheque for 50*l.* you drew a cheque for 60*l.*, and you put it on the stump 30*l.* for his fee and 30*l.* for canvassers?—Yes; and I did the same for the other canvassers as well, for I wished the money to go as far as it could.

41,803. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I perfectly understand what Mr. Smith means; he wanted the canvassers to have 30*l.*, and though Mr. Apted appropriated to himself 50*l.* and not 30*l.*, yet Mr. Smith only meant he should have 30*l.* and the canvassers 30*l.* too?—Yes, that is what I meant.

41,804. (The Chief Commissioner.) You mean Mr. Apted was to go away unpaid 20*l.*?—Yes.

41,805. Then I suppose Mr. Apted would in that way have a charge of 20*l.* against you at this moment?—Yes, sir, I suppose so.

41,806. Well, but he does not think so I can tell you, so you need not be under any alarm as to that, for he told me himself he took the 50*l.* He said, "I "took the 30*l.* and the 20*l.* out of the others to make "50*l.* for myself"?—I did not pay him the cheque in that way.

41,807. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was he authorized so to appropriate it?—No.

41,808. Is it intended to pay him the balance in future?—Yes, I hope so, what is fair and honourable.

41,809. (The Chief Commissioner.) But he paid himself, but I should like to know why you put this 30*l.* for himself and 30*l.* for canvassers?—Apted came to me and said the canvassers wanted money, and I divided the money as well as I could.

41,810. Mr. Apted through the canvassers' claims made a pounce for himself, and he would let them go on for a portion of theirs?—Nothing of that kind was said.

41,811. You did not wish him to appropriate it as he did?—No; but only according to the stump that is here.

41,812. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you explain that to Mr. Apted?—I told him at the time I gave him 30*l.* for the canvassing fees, and 30*l.* for himself. I did not say canvassing fees, but canvassers.

41,813. You are enough of a lawyer, Mr. Smith, to know it is only the man who pays who can appropriate and not the man who receives; did you explain to him 30*l.* was for the canvassers, and 30*l.* for himself?—That is the way in which he asked me for the money.

41,814. (The Chief Commissioner.) How was it that he asked you for the money?—He asked me for 30*l.* for himself and 30*l.* for the canvassers; he might have asked me for the 50*l.*, but I know I only paid him 30*l.*

41,815. Was Green the same?—Yes; he was not paid the 50*l.*

41,816. I think, but I am not sure, it was the same with Frederick Joyes, that his 50*l.* had not been paid?—Yes.

41,817. Then that would account, would it not, for finding Buckland down for 30*l.*, and Apted for 60*l.*, and Joyes for 40*l.*?—Yes.

41,818. Then I suppose Penfold was the same; I mean here in this further account, as I venture to call it. I see Penfold is put down for 30*l.* 10*s.*, would that be the same, Penfold's fee?—No, it would not, for his fee. I could never get a satisfactory account from Penfold, and I deducted the 25*l.* from his fee.

41,819. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Penfold said he never received a farthing for his exertions?—I never paid him further than the monies I paid to him, deducting the 25*l.* for the reason I stated.

TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY.

C. J. Smith.

21 Sept. 1866.

41,820. He said in his examination he never received a farthing for himself?—The others, you see, I paid afterwards; but Penfold I did not, because I could get no satisfactory account from him.

41,821. (The Chief Commissioner.) On the face of the accounts it appeared as if you had paid him the same as the others?—I did not give it him as his fee, it was for further claims made on him.

41,822. I wish to touch on that again. When Penfold made a further claim through Buckland did he send you vouchers?—I could get no vouchers.

41,823. Why did you pay the 30*l.* 10*s.*?—I thought I could get the vouchers afterwards, and that was the reason why I did not pay him the 25*l.*

41,824. (The Chief Commissioner.) You say, "I "could get no vouchers from him. I paid him by "Buckland 30*l.* 10*s.* in November, a further claim; "I expected it. I received no vouchers from him, "and have never received any." I read it to you because I do not wish to put down anything you do not entirely assent to?—Yes.

41,825. You see without explanation it would look very much like the other?—Yes, that is a copy of my private book, which I can understand myself, and nobody else, except so far as figures are concerned.

41,826. Now I come to this fact, the monies you paid between the month of April 1865 and January 1866—I do not care about this dinner at the "White Hart," I do not know about that; but between the April of 1865 and the January of 1866 I find by the accounts you have spent in the election 2,020*l.* I will strike off the 1*l.* 19*s.*?—There are some payments I have made independently, but say 2,000*l.*

41,827. I will say 2,000*l.* I do not think the payments stand exactly for that amount, but I will say 2,000*l.* From April 1865 up to December 1865, only in reference to the election expenditure, the amount of election expenses was 1,338*l.*, and there is the difference between that and 2,000*l.*?—Yes.

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) According to the calculation there is still owing to the sub-agents about a hundred pounds.

(The Chief Commissioner.) Yes; I see Mr. Apted says Mr. Smith gave him a cheque for 60*l.* There was to be 30*l.* for himself and 30*l.* for the canvassers; so that there is 20*l.* there. It is either real or imaginary.

41,828. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) It would be over 100*l.*?—Yes, sir; you see there was no settlement as regards the 50*l.*

41,829. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) This account will be plus those sums; you will have to add those to these sums?—Yes, if I paid him 50*l.*

41,830. (The Chief Commissioner.) I have particularly confined myself to the election expenses according to this account?—Yes.

41,831. So that the advance would be 644*l.* Did you become aware afterwards of any more money being due? I have been confining you purposely to the account?—Do you mean whether I am aware now that more money is due?

41,832. No; were you aware, over and above the 2,000*l.*, there were monies still due for the election?—I do not know that there are any more monies due now.

41,833. Then I will come to it by degrees; was the 2,000*l.* ever paid?—Every farthing of that has been paid.

41,834. Now, what I want to know is this, how much money have you received? I suppose you received your money to pay away from other persons; somebody or other paid you money to meet this expense?—No; every time I paid the money myself from my banker's account, and then I asked Mr. Gower for cheques at different times.

41,835. Those cheques would be in your favour; they would be his cheques?—Yes.

41,836. How much money have you received from Mr. Gower?—I think it is 1,900*l.*

41,837. I am speaking with reference to the election entirely. Pray always understand that, for I might leave it out. Have you received any more money than 1,900*l.* from Mr. Gower?—No; I think that is the amount of the cheque. I have received no more money than those cheques represent.

41,838. Never mind whether it correctly represents the amount you paid away or not. How much money have you received in any way from Mr. Gower?—Only 1,900*l.* according to the amount of the cheques.

41,839. I have no doubt you are accurate about it tallying with the cheque; do not suppose that I mean to say you have paid more than you got from Mr. Gower. How much money have you received from Mr. Gower without minding the cheques?—1,900*l.*

41,840. Have you received any more money from Mr. Gower?—No.

41,841. Not counting in before and after the election?—Not at all.

41,842. How much money, if any, is still due for the election?—Due from Mr. Gower?

41,843. How much money is due for the election?—I do not know of any monies due for the election.

41,844. You have received 1,900*l.*, and I make no doubt, though I have not asked you the question at all, that you have properly appropriated the 1,900*l.*?—I have.

41,845. I make no doubt about it, therefore, there is none of that left to pay anything. How much money is still due?—There would be 100*l.*

41,846. I do not mean between you and the difference of the fee; I have got rid of that altogether. Mr. Gower has paid 1,900*l.* worth of bills which you have submitted to him. How much does he owe for the election?—Nothing, that I am aware of.

41,847. I am going to take your answer?—Nothing, of course. I spent 2,000*l.*, but that is a private account.

41,848. That is a private account, you say, between yourself and Mr. Gower. I am coming back to that. I shall be very easily satisfied with your explanation of that. I want to know, beyond the 1,900*l.*, if there is any money due for the election?—No, none at all, excepting the election petition.

41,849. I have nothing to do with the petition?—Then there is none at all.

41,850. Are you aware of any claim, or have you been threatened with any claim? I mean, by threatened, told that they are not satisfied. I do not mean legal process?—I think there is one bill at the "White Hart" not paid of 8*l.* I have told you of that; there is nothing else.

41,851. Never mind that, it may be disputed?—Well, I did not pay it.

41,852. You are quite right, I have got it in the accounts. There is a letter sent in, there is a bill at the "White Hart," which is stated to be not paid?—Yes, that is the only sum I know of, that is the only claim.

41,853. You think that, leaving behind the 1,900*l.*, Mr. Gower is free to go where he lists in regard to claims?—Yes.

41,854. You are not aware of any person threatening a claim or putting forward a claim?—Not at all, I have had no application.

41,855. If 2,000*l.* was the amount of expenses incurred on the election, does Mr. Gower still owe 100*l.*?—Yes.

41,856. I do not mind about that; it is only to balance it; it is a very small and insignificant sum comparing it with such large ones. Now, Mr. Smith, your own fee is not included in the 1,900*l.*?—Yes.

41,857. Are you aware of any other fees left unpaid?—Nothing except those I have mentioned.

41,858. I have already satisfied you that if any one has a claim it is not the sub-agent Mr. Apted, but some canvassers who have been left in the lurch. I have been confining myself to the accounts. Previous to May 1865 had Mr. Gower, so far as you know, incurred any election debts by anticipation, as it were?—No, he had incurred no debts at all.

41,859. I mean with reference to the 1865 election, in prospect?—None whatever.

41,860. He had not set anybody to work before May?—No.

41,861. I understand you to say when the sub-agents brought in their accounts previously to the 12th of September that you took their word for the payments they had made in most instances?—Yes.

41,862. There were a few vouchers; you did receive a few vouchers from the sub-agents?—Yes.

41,863. Do you recollect in any instance their giving you vouchers, not at all for committee rooms or refreshments, but for money paid to voters?—Only for a few.

41,864. Are those the receipts which you sent in?—Yes, some went up to London, and I think some got lost; they were small accounts.

41,865. But usually you took their word when they told you, for instance, they had paid away 20*l.*?—I did.

41,866. Now then I am going to 1863; were you associated with anybody then as agent?—I was agent for Mr. Gower.

41,867. In which election have you been along with Mr. Morrison?—For Mr. Rawlinson.

41,868. In 1863 you were authorized agent for Mr. Gower in the same way?—I was.

41,869. You recollect, with regard to the 1865 election, I have been asking you how money was expended at that election. I want to know whether any other money was, to your knowledge, paid before the election of 1865 than what passed through your hands?—None to my knowledge. I am sure there was none for Mr. Gower.

41,870. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) We mean on his side; knowledge that came to you at that time or since?—No; Mr. Gower has paid no money since, or myself.

41,871. There may be friends?—Oh, yes; but I have no knowledge of it.

41,872. You have no knowledge of monies coming from any other source?—No.

41,873. (The Chief Commissioner.) In 1863 you had the same duties to do as this time?—Yes; more than I could perform, inasmuch as I could not attend to the accounts as I ought to have done. The whole management was left on my hands, and it was more than one man could do.

41,874. Was that election more expensive than the last one?—Yes.

41,875. Can you tell me how much the election cost altogether?—I rendered an account; about 2,500*l.* I think it was.

41,876. On your side?—Yes.

41,877. Are you pretty accurate about that?—I think so, but I do not remember in 1863 so well as 1865. It was 2,500*l.* odd.

41,878. At that election your bills for refreshments were a good deal more than this?—Very heavy indeed.

41,879. How long did the election last?—It began the end of December and it went on, I think, to the middle of February.

41,880. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) The 6th of February it was over?—Yes, and it began at the end of December; it was on six weeks.

41,881. (The Chief Commissioner.) Do you recollect a bill at one house for 100*l.* for refreshments?—No, I never knew such a bill.

41,882. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What was the "White Hart" bill?—Oh, nothing like that; the largest was, I think, at Redhill.

41,883. (The Chief Commissioner.) Was that election, so far as you were concerned, conducted much in the same way as the election of 1865, with reference to sub-agents?—There were more payments made; we took all the committee rooms; every committee room I could secure I took in 1863. It was quite a fight between us who could get the largest number.

41,884. Did sub-agents advance money then as they did this last time?—Yes, in the same sort of way.

41,885. The sub-agents paid money away and were paid by you much the same as in 1865?—We paid weekly in 1863, more systematically. We paid the men who were employed weekly.

41,886. Then after the election was over the sub-agents had not so many long running accounts to bring in to you?—Oh, yes, they had larger ones, I think.

41,887. I thought that if you had helped them to pay the men by the week their accounts would not have been so large. They were paid in the same sort of way?—Yes.

41,888. Can you tell me what was the difference then between the accounts sent in to the election auditor and the actual expense?—I think I sent in 1,900*l.* odd.

41,889. I think in 1863 they took away the election auditor?—Yes, he sent me back all the papers, and said his occupation was gone.

41,890. I do not want to go through the mode in which the 1,900*l.* was arrived at at all. Had you been in the election of 1859?—Yes.

41,891. The election between Mr. Monson and Mr. Wilkinson?—Yes.

41,892. You were an agent then?—Yes.

41,893. Who were you for?—I was agent for Mr. Monson.

41,894. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You and a gentleman were associated together?—Mr. Hart and myself were associated together.

41,895. (The Chief Commissioner.) Going back to the election of 1863; so far as you know, were all the expenses incurred in the election of 1863 paid before the election of 1865 came on?—Yes, except as regards myself.

41,896. I may take it that you believe they were all paid?—Yes.

41,897. I want to ask you the same question as regards this as I asked you before. Do you know of any monies being paid on that election except through your hands?—I believe no monies were paid except through my hands.

41,898. In the 1859 election was the same system pursued as we have been talking about?—I had nothing to do with the accounts. Mr. Hart was the election agent, and I had to do with the management of the election.

41,899. Were sub-agents employed?—Sub-agents were employed, but not so much as in 1858.

41,900. In 1859, when Mr. Wilkinson was put up, there were not so many?—There was not anything much done. There were some agents employed.

41,901. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And some canvassers?—Yes, a few; but we did not think there was any fight.

41,902. (The Chief Commissioner.) You had not much to do with money; did you yourself have any money to pay to voters?—No, I do not think I paid any money.

41,903. In 1858, at the second election, in the month of October; was that a severe election, only 15 majority?—That was a severe election.

41,904. What were you?—Agent for Mr. Monson.

41,905. Sole agent?—No, with Mr. Hart.

41,906. Had you anything to do with money matters?—No.

41,907. On that occasion did you pay any money away yourself?—Not at all.

41,908. It was much the same duty, I presume, as in 1859?—Yes.

41,909. Seeing the committees arranged?—Yes.

41,910. I do not think you are able to give me much information about money matters?—Nothing at all.

41,911. What monies Mr. Monson had to pay did he pay to you or Mr. Hart?—To Mr. Hart.

41,912. Now we will go back to the Doulton election in February 1858; what were you then?—I was engaged by Sir Henry Rawlinson in conjunction with Mr. Morrison.

TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY.

C. J. Smith.

21 Sept. 1866.

41,913. Did you manage money matters then?—Yes, I did.

41,914. Was that a severe contest?—Yes; Sir Henry Rawlinson got a very large majority, but there were so many candidates then. I think he polled double Mr. Doulton.

41,915. Had you anything to do with Mr. Doulton on that election?—No; he applied to me to be agent, and I said I was engaged for Sir Henry Rawlinson.

41,916. Did he come down some time before the election?—Yes, about the beginning; just after Mr. Hackblock's death.

41,917. What month was the election in?—February; and Mr. Hackblock died the beginning of January, because circulars with black-edged paper were sent round.

41,918. Do you know the amount sent in to the auditor for Sir Henry Rawlinson's election expenses on that election?—I cannot tell you from memory.

41,919. Do you know at all the monies which passed through your hands on that occasion. I am rather getting your assistance now?—I should think about 1,100*l.* I have given the accounts in. I am not certain.

41,920. You are not able to say what was the amount you sent in?—I cannot.

41,921. To whom did you send those in?—To the auditor.

41,922. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) The auditors were established by the Act of 1854?—Yes.

41,923. As it concerns Mr. Doulton, and you have not got the accounts here, we will not go into that?—I have sent you an account, and a newspaper in which you will see Mr Monson's, Mr. Doulton's, and Sir Henry Rawlinson's advertised expenses.

41,924. Did any money pass through your hands for the voters in the Doulton election?—I paid sub-agents in the same way, only to a very limited extent, as I have done since.

41,925. Did you pay them money to give to voters in the same way that you did in 1865?—I gave money to sub-agents to pay away.

41,926. Did you on that occasion pay any voters, not through sub-agents, but yourself?—No; some voters may have come to me, and I may have paid any demand like that, but I never went round.

41,927. I think the number of the constituency was about 505?—Yes.

41,928. On that very matter of paying individual voters I want to ask you a question. You appear to us in some instances in 1865 to have paid away money yourself to voters; small monies, sums of 2*l.* and 3*l.*; was that so?—Yes, they were sent by some sub-agent to my office, and on inquiry I paid them. I may say that every one that I paid I inquired of my sub-agent or inquired myself whether he had worked; the men declared of course that they had worked very hard, but they have come here and said they did nothing; they told me they had worked very hard for six weeks.

41,928*a*. Oh, I do not doubt that. You paid a man; say 2*l.*, who came to you; that went into no sub-agent's account at all?—No.

41,929. That would simply be a cheque?—It would go down there.

41,930. Then you see in fact it is very difficult to separate them; you did in fact pay voters in 1865?—In that way; the sub-agents not having done it the voters came to me, stating they had worked.

41,931. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And sometimes complain they had not been paid?—Yes.

41,932. (The Chief Commissioner.) Had you any reason to think that money which the sub-agents received to pay to voters never found its way to the voters?—I cannot say that I had.

41,933. You had not?—I had not; I could not trace it at all.

41,934. Did you know of any arrangement being made that every man on Mr. Gower's committee was to have 5*l.*?—No, I never heard of it, except during this Inquiry.

41,935. You were not aware of it?—No.

41,936. You never acted upon it?—Never.

41,937. I see these sums which you have paid to voters yourself for remuneration you have given in very few instances 5*l.*; they were smaller sums?—Yes.

41,938. And you say you know nothing about the 5*l.* arrangement; you know what I mean by that?—Nothing whatever.

41,939. I see among your cheques, if I am not mistaken, you have paid a cheque to Mr. Nichols, who was on the other side, for 16*l.* odd, if I recollect rightly?—I paid Mr. Nichols a cheque for 25*l.* before the election of 1865, and I paid a further account that Mr. Gower asked me. Mr. Nichols was paid his fee in 1863, and he sent a further account in to Mr. Gower, for which Mr. Gower sent me a cheque for 25*l.* to pay Mr. Nichols, and that cheque I have paid him.

41,940. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That would be Mr. Gower's cheque?—No, I think Mr. Gower sent me the cheque, and I paid him; I kept it some time, as he did not seem inclined to take it.

41,941. (The Chief Commissioner.) Do you know anything of a sum being due in 1863 to a man named William Clark whom you had employed?—Nothing whatever.

41,942. Do you recollect William Clark coming to you about it, about a sum of 10*l.*, which he said you owed him for the last election?—No, he came to me and asked to be employed, but not with reference to 10*l.*

41,943. Why did you not employ him?—Because I had enough canvassers; that was one reason.

41,944. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) There were other reasons?—Yes.

41,945. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you owe him on behalf of Mr. Gower, that you are aware of, 10*l.*?—Not anything.

49,946. Did you refer him to Mr. Nichols and say, "If you want to be paid the 10*l.* you had better get it "from Mr. Nichols"?—No, I never heard him ask for 10*l.*

41,947. I will tell you first his evidence, as I wish you to know it. He says on the election of 1865 there was yet unpaid to him a sum of 10*l.*, which he ought to have been paid from the Gower party (that is I suppose from you) and he went to you and told you about it, and you referred him to Mr. Nichols?—I never remember anything said about 10*l.*

41,948. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And at the same time it came out that he had retained in his possession 10*l.* which he had received?—I do not think he mentioned to me anything about 10*l.*

41,949. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Oh yes, he said he applied to you for 10*l.* as owing from 1863, and you said you could do nothing about it, and that he was to go to Mr. Nichols who had been acting for Mr. Gower in 1863, and he went to Mr. Nichols, and he paid him the 10*l.*; so far as you know, is it true?—No; there was a cheque for 25*l.* to Mr. Nichols.

41,950. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you know of a deputation of the sub-agents waiting upon Mr. Gower himself just a little before the polling day, and asking for increased powers, in order that they might employ more men?—Yes, there was some application like that some time before the polling day, an application was made by the sub-agents to myself, that I referred to Mr. Gower, and it came before the committee, and the result was they granted a larger amount of money.

41,951. More money?—Yes. The result was the next morning I gave 100*l.* amongst the whole of them to go on with; then they drew money out as fast as they could afterwards, and I had to be as hard as I could.

41,952. Could you tell me the date of that?—I think it was about the 25th of June.

41,953. Not nearer the election than that?—No.

41,954. They told you, of course, that all the voters would be purchased by the other side?—They would be bought on the other side if we did not give money.

41,955. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) It was, in fact, to counteract the supposed bribery on the part of Mr. Monson?—That was the effect of it.

41,956. (The Chief Commissioner.) "16*l.*, 14th "December 1865, Mr. Nichols," you see that here (handing document to witness)?—It had nothing to do with the election; it regarded the taxes.

41,957. If it had nothing to do with the election, that is quite enough for me. George Carter Morrison, who had been associated with you, had he anything to do with the election in 1865?—Nothing whatever; in May 1865 I issued some notices for a meeting and put his name down with mine, and so I went and telegraphed to the paper to stop it, because he would not take the part of agent for Mr. Gower.

41,958. He is a solicitor?—Yes, and private agent for Mr. Gower. I found that he would have nothing to do with it.

41,959. Have you anything to do with Mr. Gower's expenditure irrespective of the elections?—No.

41,960. You never pay monies for him?—No, not irrespective of the election.

41,961. During the election I see sums of money paid out by you to Mr. Morrison?—No, I paid no sums to Mr. Morrison with reference to the election.

41,962. I do not say in respect of the election?—In my business I should, I mean in my own private business; he is a solicitor of the town, and of course we have cheques from him to me, or from me to him. I paid nothing to him, and he paid nothing to me, in respect of the election.

41,963. You see there are two or three items in this banking book of monies paid by you to Mr. Morrison; are those items in any way connected with the election?—No, no way whatever.

41,964. You are quite sure?—Quite sure.

41,965. I only thought it was just as well to have it?—Yes, I wish that to be known.

41,966. You told me that Mr. Gower paid you the election expenses?—Yes, he gave me cheques; he paid me at different times, as I asked for it.

41,967. Was it always by cheques that he paid you?—Yes, I think so.

41,968. I suppose he never paid you in cash?—Never.

41,969. Do you know the bank Mr. Gower's cheques were drawn on?—Drummond's.

41,970. All drawn on the same bank?—Yes.

41,971. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What is your bank here?—The London and County Bank.

41,972. Did you hear Mr. Green examined?—No, I was not here the whole time.

41,973. Look at this, you see it is "Cheque for "Redhill and Reigate messengers, 52*l.* 10*s.*" (the document was handed to the witness). I called Mr. Green's attention to that a dozen times, and he insisted it was only 30*l.*?—I think Mr. Rees had some part of the 52*l.* 10*s.*

41,974. It was admitted they were together?—I think in my pass-book you will find that I drew a cheque for 100*l.* and 40*l.*

41,975. (The Chief Commissioner.) What is the date of that?—The 31st of January '63. Sometimes I overdraw a cheque, and put the balance, the cash, in my pocket.

41,976. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Could you also explain Mr. Green's discrepancy in this; he and Mr. Rees sent in an account to you for 168*l.*, and they had received from you 218*l.*?—No, I cannot at all. We had several accounts, and one account might be 168*l.*; however, I cannot explain it. I do not understand it. It appears to me that Mr. Green would not have all this; Mr. Apted might have had some for the Reigate messengers. I could not charge him with having the whole sum. Mr. Green did not do Reigate.

41,977. You can give no other account of it?—No, I cannot from this. I can only say that if I paid the money the counterfoil of my cheque book might explain it. I generally make some memorandum.

41,978. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I think we ought to know a little more with regard to the deputation; you said that you paid 100*l.* a day or two after the deputation?—Yes.

41,979. Was that distributed amongst the canvassers?—Amongst the sub-agents.

41,980. Was Mr. Gower present at the time?—Yes, Mr. Gower was present. The agents first came to me and said that money was being spent and persons employed on the other side.

41,981. Did they say how they were employed?—They said they were paid weekly; they did not say how they were employed and paid, and they could not go on; the expression used was a very strong one, "that I was starving the election." I objected to pay any money unless I had authority for it from Mr. Gower or the committee. We held a committee meeting, and I think Mr. North, the chairman, was present, and Mr. Gower was present. We agreed on what canvassers should be employed, and discretion must be used as far as possible not to employ more men than what was proper. Next morning I said, "At "all events they must have some money." I knew men had been employed and not paid, and therefore I paid money to my sub-agents.

41,982. Did you at all inquire what class of men were going to be employed?—No.

41,983. Were not the number of canvassers or paid workers who were on quite sufficient for the purpose of merely asking a man for his vote?—At that time?

41,984. Yes?—Yes, quite sufficient.

41,985. And therefore if any more were employed they would be supernumeraries?—More might be engaged for the purposes of the election, but not for asking for votes.

41,986. What do you mean by saying "for the "purposes of the election"?—For attending committee rooms.

41,987. As committee men?—No; it was necessary to have men to send out from the committee rooms. We were in constant communication with Mead-vale, Redhill, and Reigate.

41,988. I understand then, that after you became aware that Mr. Monson was employing men and paying men you began to deliver circulars?—Oh, no; we had delivered circulars before that.

41,989. But you delivered more circulars afterwards?—Yes.

41,990. So as to get more employment. More employment was made in that way, which, of course, for the purposes of the election was not required?—Perhaps not.

41,991. Now I am sure you will give me an honest answer. Was not the work made for the purpose of getting his vote?—Yes, no doubt it was.

41,992. Before the election many of the men were not paid, as you found out afterwards, and they came and troubled you very much, and then you referred them to the agents. Then when Apted came to you for money to be paid to Rose for these men you were pretty well aware at that time what the men were doing; they were engaged for the purpose of taking out the circulars?—I had no idea that there would be a claim for Mr. Rose and Ede's men for 40*l.*

41,993. No, but it was paid?—Yes.

41,994. When those applications were made to you for large amounts after the election, and after the returns had been sent in to the returning officer, you applied to Mr. Gower for 500*l.* Did you explain to Mr. Gower what that demand was for?—I told him I had demands for some sub-agents, for men who were not paid, and out of the 500*l.* I paid this 40*l.*

41,995. You are a professional man, and of course understand the law by Act of Parliament. I put it to you, and I feel bound to get your explanation of it. You were the expense agent, and you know the Bribery and Corruption Act of '54. I want to know what your construction of that Act is, whether you considered these to be legal expenses, employing men in that kind of way?—I considered that to employ a certain number of canvassers was a legal act.

41,996. Then supposing they are "put on," as the term is, merely as a colourable employment to get a vote?—That would not be a legal payment.

41,997. I think I ought to ask you this question further. Why did you not refuse to pay them?—Because in honour to Mr. Gower I thought I was bound to pay them, but I considered that there was no legal liability.

41,998. The question is whether you considered there was a legal payment. You were the expense agent?—Yes.

41,999. You knew that irrespective of that fact?—Yes.

42,000. I only ask you whether you consider that was a proper payment to pass through your hands as Mr. Gower's expense agent?—Perhaps I ought not to have done so.

42,001. Did you at any time express to Mr. Gower that view?—No.

42,002. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I am not at all referring to your duty, which I am satisfied was well discharged, but in '63 there was a petition?—Yes.

42,003. And that petition was compromised. It is the subject of our Inquiry, otherwise I would not go into it?—It was withdrawn, but I was not a party to the settlement of it.

42,004. You were not a party to that?—No; I was telegraphed down the petition was withdrawn. I was not a party to that settlement.

42,005. You were aware there was a petition charging bribery?—Yes, I had a brief for the defence. I went up on Monday morning, and I found there was no requirement; the withdrawing of the petition had been signed on the Saturday beforehand.

42,006. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You had to pay about 600*l.* after the election audit in '63, and I suppose you called Mr. Gower's attention to that fact?—Yes, he must have known it.

42,007. Was that paid before the petition was withdrawn?—Yes; at least I have made a mistake, for the petition was within fourteen days after the election, and I did not send in any accounts until two months after.

42,008. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) The petition was withdrawn before anything was paid?—Nothing was paid then; of course we were careful not to pay anything until we knew what the result was.

42,009. So soon as the attachment was withdrawn you paid away?—Yes, we paid away.

42,010. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Is there anything else you wish to add?—There was merely a statement of Allen Edwards which I wish to refer to.

42,011. I call your attention to it, because in the course of the Inquiry things may have come out which you would wish to give an explanation of?—I wish to say, with regard to Allen Edwards, that he denied at all that I made him an offer of 5*l.*, but I have heard since that he has made a statement that I offered him money.

(Mr. Commissioner Smith.) There was a statement put into his hand, which he had signed in the presence of Mr. Gilbert, in which he said you had paid him 5*l.*, but when he came into the box he contradicted it. I made a note of it at the time

(The Chief Commissioner.) He informed us that he made the statement as a frolic.

22 Sept. 1866.

Saturday, 22nd September 1866.

THOMAS NORTH sworn and examined.

42,012. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What are you?—Do you mean by position?

42,013. Yes?—A member of the Stock Exchange.

42,014. Are you a gentleman residing in this borough?—I have resided here 11 or 12 years.

42,015. Is it your own property that you reside upon?—No.

42,016. I suppose you reside in one of the larger class of houses?—Yes, you may call it one of the larger class of houses.

42,017. Did you take an active part in the last election of 1865?—I was Mr. Gower's chairman of the committee.

42,018. You were chairman to Mr. Gower's committee in 1865?—Yes.

42,019. And you of course as acting chairman took an active part in the arrangement?—Yes.

42,020. Do you recollect a deputation of the sub-agents waiting upon Mr. Smith?—Yes.

42,021. When Mr. Gower was present were you present at the same time?—Yes.

42,022. That deputation consisted, I believe, of Mr. Apted, Mr. Joyes, and Mr. Buckland?—I am not quite certain of Mr. Joyes; yes, Mr. Joyes was present.

42,023. And Mr. Buckland?—I do not know that Mr. Buckland was present.

42,024. I suppose Mr. Apted was the principal person of the deputation?—Yes, he was the principal person of the deputation.

42,025. And probably the spokesman?—Yes.

42,026. Did you hear all that took place between Mr. Apted, Mr. Joyes, and Mr. Smith?—I did.

42,027. Mr. Apted has told us that the deputation was to represent to Mr. Gower that the persons acting on the part of Mr. Monson were expending money for votes, and that they found their exertions were cramped?—That was in effect what was said; but there was a sort of round-robin signed by the sub-agents which was sent in the first instance, which was sent to me before we met them.

42,028. What was the nature of the round-robin?—Very much as Mr. Smith has stated to you; that money was being spent very largely on the other side, and that they must have a sum of 500*l.*, or else they could not carry the election; that was the substance of it.

42,029. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Were there the eight sub-agents?—Yes.

42,030. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was that addressed to you?—No, it was sent to Mr. Gower and Mr. Smith. I am not certain to whom it was directed, but Mr. Gower sent for me, and I saw him privately at the "White Hart," and he submitted it to me. I went with him to Redhill, and met him there with Mr. Smith and Mr. Webb; at all events, I met him in the presence of Mr. Henry Webb, the chairman of the Redhill district committee.

42,031. Then the first time you saw the round-robin was when Mr. Gower handed it to you?—Yes.

42,032. Do you know where that document is?—No.

42,033. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What is Mr. Webb's Christian name?—Henry Webb.

42,034. Where does he live?—At Redstone Manor; he was chairman of the Redhill district.

42,035. (The Chief Commissioner.) Can you tell us the substance of the round-robin?—I do not remember.

42,036. Perhaps Mr. Gower has the document still?—He may have it.

42,037. (Mr Commissioner Smith.) When Mr. Gower comes perhaps he may produce it. Was that before you saw the deputation?—I saw this document before I saw the deputation.

42,038. Were you personally aware from any source before you saw that document that the Monson party were distributing money amongst the voters?—No.

42,039. Was that the first time you became acquainted with the fact?—I should say so.

42,040. Did you and Mr. Gower discuss together the nature of that document?—Yes.

42,041. Tell me the nature of the conversation between you and Mr. Gower in reference to that document, before you saw the deputation?—Mr. Gower decided to reject the amount named in that document.

42,042. Now, after that conversation you met the deputation?—Yes.

42,043. Were you present at the deputation?—Yes.

42,044. Where?—At a room at the market hall, Redhill, which was used as our committee room.

42,045. Was Mr. Gower present?—Yes.

42,046. And yourself?—Yes, and Mr. North, Mr. Ivimy, and Mr. Smith. I think Mr. Ivimy was present; he was there in the evening.

42,047. Who was present of the deputation?—Mr. Apted was the spokesman, and I think Mr. Joyes, Mr. Mazden, and Mr. Penfold, and there may have been one or two more.

42,048. The others were represented?—Yes.

42,049. Was the question of money being spent by the Monson party then fully gone into?—I think not.

42,050. Was it discussed?—Yes; that the election could not be carried without that expenditure of money, that the money they claimed was necessary for the success of the election.

42,051. How much had they asked for?—500*l.*

42,052. Do you know on what day that was?—I should say somewhere about the 22nd, or 24th or 25th of June; it was something like the third week in June. I have a very bad recollection of dates. I should think it was between a fortnight and three weeks of the election.

42,053. The election was on the 12th?—Yes, the 12th or 13th.

42,054. And the nomination the previous day; that would make it somewhere about three weeks before the election?—Something like three weeks.

42,055. What was the answer given to the deputation?—If you could examine me upon one or two points before which led up to this, I think I could explain.

42,056. No, we will go shortly to the point?—Mr. Gower stated to the deputation what he had stated before, and said he would have nothing whatever to do with it. Mr. Apted made a speech to him, opening the business of the deputation, of a somewhat bumptious character.

42,057. I want to know what was the answer to the deputation?—Mr. Gower refused.

42,058. Do you mean to say that Mr. Gower positively refused?—Yes, positively refused. One of the objects of the deputation was to press upon Mr. Gower that he was not doing sufficient canvassing. He said that he would come down more often, and he would do as much canvassing as ever they pleased, but he would not have an undue expenditure of money.

42,059. You were in the Court yesterday and heard Mr. Smith's evidence?—Yes.

42,060. You heard Mr. Smith say yesterday that on the following day after the deputation they advanced 100*l.* to the agents?—Yes.

42,061. That was for the purpose of engaging men as canvassers?—Yes, engaging as canvassers; for the expenses which the sub-agents necessarily incurred.

42,062. Was it not a fact that the sub-agents required of Mr. Gower that they should be supplied with more canvassers?—No, I think not. I heard Mr. Smith say so yesterday, but I did not hear anything spoken about canvassers.

42,063. You say you are not certain, but are you prepared to contradict in positive terms the evidence of Mr. Smith?—No, I am not prepared to contradict it; my own impression is that nothing was said about canvassers.

42,064. This is a very important topic, and I do not want impressions, I want positive facts. Was it not decided at that interview that more money should be handed to the deputation?—It was not decided at that interview; it was not decided on the part of Mr. Gower, but I said to Mr. Smith afterwards, when Mr. Gower was not present, "What are you going to do "with these men, are you going to give them any "money?" And I said, "I think they ought to have "some money; they must have some money."

42,065. (The Chief Commissioner.) Was that after the meeting was over?—Yes, I spoke to Mr. Smith privately.

42,066. Do you mean that you spoke to him in committee or out of committee?—Privately.

42,067. Was Mr. Gower present?—No.

42,068. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) How long had Mr. Gower left the room before you said that to Mr. Smith?—I am not certain that he had left at all. I think I spoke to Mr. Smith in the passage; we had two rooms there, the deputation was left in one room, Mr. Gower, Mr. Webb, and Mr. Ivimy in the other room, and I think I spoke to Mr. Smith in the passage.

42,069. Was the sum of 100*l.* mentioned?—Mr. Smith said he would give them 100*l.* What I said was this, "They must have some money;" they had threatened to strike altogether if they could not engage men; at least, they said they must have some money. I said that they ought to have some, and I thought it was a very moderate sum.

42,070. Was not the threat to strike because they could not counteract the expenditure on the other side?—I am not clear on that point. I would not say that they threatened upon the ground of expenditure on the other side, but that they could not carry on what I then understood were the legitimate purposes of the election without some money.

42,071. Now, as chairman of the committee were you not aware of the fact that many of the voters were put on as canvassers?—I was aware of it; I was aware that canvassers were put on, and that canvassers were necessary.

42,072. And were to be paid?—And were to be paid.

42,073. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You mean necessary with regard to their votes?—Necessary to the legitimate carrying out of the election.

42,074. Necessary to the success of the election?—Necessary to the success, to carrying out the election in a legitimate manner.

42,075. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did the sub-agents return to the committee the names of the persons who were put on as canvassers from time to time?—No, that was entirely left in their disposition I am sorry to say.

42,076. Did you know of any more money being paid in the same way before the election?—If the Commissioners will allow me to explain without stopping me——

The Chief Commissioner informed the witness that he would have an opportunity of explaining afterwards, but that he must confine himself to answering questions till the conclusion of his evidence.

42,077. Give me a fact in reference to this present point?—As to the necessity there is here for having more canvassers?

42,078. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I want to know why you should have canvassers here?—A very large proportion of the respectable electors of this borough are persons, like myself, engaged in London. They are rarely down here, they have no local influence, and they are unknown to the people generally; therefore, except in the immediate neighbourhood, among the tradespeople who have recently come down here, they have very little influence. A candidate has very little unpaid support from persons who will give their time to canvassing; it is necessary therefore, and he is compelled, to hire canvassers.

42,079. Tell me this, whether you consider it necessary for the legitimate carrying on of the canvass that all the gardeners in the place should be engaged as canvassers?—Certainly not.

42,080. Did you know before the election that that was a fact in the election, that most of the gardeners had been put on as canvassers?—Certainly not.

42,081. You knew of it I suppose after the election?—No, I did not.

42,082. Did any monies pass through your hands?—Certainly not.

42,083. Not for payments?—Certainly not.

42,084. Not the signing of cheques on the part of Mr. Gower?—Certainly not.

42,085. Did those monies, do you know, all pass through the hands of Mr. Smith?—To my knowledge, undoubtedly.

42,086. (The Chief Commissioner.) You became aware by what you have called the "round-robin" that money was wanted; you then said that you became aware for the first time that the sub-agents thought more canvassers were required, and you in short knew what they wanted?—I knew that they wanted additional assistants.

42,087. That is what I mean?—Yes.

42,088. Then you met them at Redhill afterwards in the presence of the gentlemen you have mentioned?—Yes.

42,089. After the deputation had been received do you recollect Mr. Gower saying something to you which induced you to have a conversation in the passage with Mr. Smith?—Mr. Gower did not say anything to me at all, it was entirely my own doing.

42,090. Do you recollect having an observation or two with Mr. Gower before you had a conversation with Mr. Smith?—Certainly not.

42,091. Did you see Mr. Smith and Mr. Gower have a conversation together before you and Mr. Smith met in the passage?—I have no recollection of anything of the kind.

42,092. Then when you had that conversation with Mr. Smith in the passage had you received any suggestion or heard from anybody at all?—No.

42,093. No?—Certainly not.

42,094. Are you quite clear?—Perfectly clear. These financial matters were generally left with the agent. I asked Mr. Smith merely as a matter of curiosity what he was going to do.

42,095. I suppose you asked him, "What is the "best thing to do with this deputation?" I mean in that line?—Something like that.

42,096. I suppose I may take your answer, that before you asked him that question you had received no suggestion from any other person?—Certainly not.

42,097. Now I want to know this: did you and Mr. Smith come back into the room?—Which room do you mean? where the deputation was?

42,098. You left the deputation; I presume they had gone away?—I do not think they had, I think they were in the room.

42,099. You came back in the room and found Mr. Gower there?—I do not recollect.

42,100. I want to know this, if you please, as it is rather an important part of the scene. When you and Mr. Smith had a conversation, which you think was in the passage, I understood you to say Mr. Gower was still in the house?—Yes, I think he was. I think after that I went home.

42,101. Did you see Mr. Gower at all after you had had that conversation with Mr. Smith?—Not to my recollection, not to have any conversation bearing upon it all.

42,102. I will take your answer, "not to my recol-"lection;" do you think you had or not?—I think I had not.

42,103. When did you see him again?—I can hardly tell you, I was constantly seeing him.

42,104. Do you think you saw him the next day?—I might have, but very likely not, because he was down here very little until the beginning of July.

42,105. Will you say you saw him within two days?—I might have done so.

42,106. Do you remember saying to him something of this kind: "I think we did well with the deputa-"tion, that paying them 100*l.* was the best thing "that could be done"?—Certainly not.

42,107. Do not suppose I mean in those words at all?—No, nothing like it.

42,108. What did you say to him with respect to the 100*l.*?—I never had any conversation with him on the subject of that conversation in the passage.

42,109. On the subject of the 100*l.*?—I never had any conversation with him about it.

42,110. Do you state that with tolerable certainty?—Yes, certainly.

42,111. I will put it down thus: "I think I had "no conversation with Mr. Gower about the 100*l.*"? I said "I think I had not." I understand you to say that you believe you had not?—I know I had not.

42,112. Then I will take it so. When you had that conversation, do you recollect whether you saw Mr. Ivimy and Mr. Webb still there?—No, I do not remember. I might have had a conversation afterwards with them about it.

42,113. Tell me, if you please, how long this was before the meeting in the town hall here, and at Redhill too by the way, when Mr. Gower is supposed to have said that all persons who worked for him should be paid?—I am sure that the meeting in the town hall below when that supposed declaration took place was a few days before this.

42,114. Are you sure about that?—Yes, quite sure. It might be three or four days.

42,115. I should be much obliged to you if you would tell me as near as you can what was stated in the round robin, as you call it; if you cannot I am quite satisfied, but I should like to know what was said?—I really cannot tell you.

42,116. We know the purport of it?—I only know the purport of it.

42,117. The purport of it was, the sub-agents told Mr. Gower and you they were starving the election?—That was the purport of it.

42,118. I should very much like to know, if you could tell me, what was said?—I can really only recollect the purport of it.

42,119. You cannot recollect nearer than that?—I cannot.

TWENTY-EIGHTH DAY.

T. North.

22 Sept. 1866.

42,120. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I suppose from an expression which fell from you, that from the attitude of the sub-agents you judged it was necessary to do something to soothe them?—That was exactly what I meant.

42,121. That was necessary?—Yes, to do something to soothe them; it was not advisable to leave them.

42,122. To leave them in the frame of mind they were then in?—Yes.

42,123. I gave you a friendly hint not to go into the necessity of having those canvassers: you do not now say that was necessary?—No, I do not.

42,124. You do not now say it was necessary to have all the canvassers who have been called?—I should not call those persons canvassers. I am speaking of canvassers as men who canvassed some time.

42,125. Like the sub-agents?—Yes, and a person like William Featherstone, a man who is devoting his whole time; that person I call a canvasser, an assistant to the sub-agents.

42,126. You do not think it necessary?—No, certainly not; there might be seven or eight sub-agents and a dozen or a couple of dozen canvassers.

42,127. (The Chief Commissioner.) Where did the document go to?—I dare say it was torn up, I think it was.

42,128. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you see the sub-agents afterwards in a body?—No.

42,129. That was the last time they came?—Yes.

42,130. And their representative?—Yes.

42,131. Were you aware the deputation had gone up to London before this deputation to Redhill?—Not until yesterday; the deputation I think met before I was appointed chairman.

42,132. Just bring your memory to trace the little succession of incidents. Had not the committee met the deputation before Mr. Gower saw them?—No, there was no committee meeting that evening.

42,133. Just recollect?—No, there was no committee meeting. I met them first there. You see there is a sort of committee, and persons who call themselves committee men; a habit has been got into lately of putting everybody on the committee, but those men do not really act.

42,134. You were the first person who saw them?—Mr. Gower and myself.

42,135. When you saw Mr. Gower he held the document in his hand; how did he get that?—It was sent to him. How it was sent I do not know. He sent to me to show it to me.

42,136. It was sent to him?—I presume so.

42,137. Was that meeting called because of the document having been sent to him?—Mr. Gower merely asked persons more intimately connected with elections, myself and others to meet with him.

42,138. Was that in consequence of that document?—In consequence of that document.

42,139. Then you, as the chairman of this committee, after that conversation with Mr. Gower, spoke to Mr. Smith?—Yes. I should like to notice one or other points very important, to show——

42,140. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) As matters of fact or speeches?—As matters of fact. I wish that it should be known what took place between Mr. Gower and his more intimate committee at the time I was selected chairman.

42,141. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I think we ought to hear it?—The committee where I was elected chairman took place in the small room at the "White Hart," Mr. Smith, Mr. Clutton, Mr. Morrison, Mr. Gower, and Mr. Webb were present, and many other gentlemen, and the whole of the sub-agents. After I had taken the chair Mr. Gower addressed his friends present, and spoke in the first instance of the last election, and amongst various other things he expressed himself very strongly that nothing of that kind should occur again, he would have no undue expenditure at all. I know amongst those present there was a sort of feeling that the election could not be carried on——

42,142. Without some undue expenditure?—Without some undue expenditure the thing could not be done. Mr. Gower said, "I will tell you what, I "adhere to my feelings about it on that point. I "will tell you what I will do; if I am beaten in "endeavouring to carry on the election in the way "I propose, I will petition against the return, and I "will petition for the seat, as I will not have an "undue expenditure." We adjourned from there to the meeting where Mr. Gower made that declaration as you call it, which, if you wish to have any explanation of, I can give it you.

Mr. Commissioner O'Brien remarked that he had no doubt Mr. Gower would give an explanation himself.

The witness stated that he had only wished to explain to the Commissioners what he might call the programme with which Mr. Gower started on that election.

The witness then withdrew.

CHARLES JOSEPH SMITH recalled and examined.

C. J. Smith.

42,143. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Before I ask you any other questions I think it right to draw your attention to this fact, because you have not yet had an opportunity of answering it. It is a fact which is found by the committee of the House of Commons, that it has been proved that George Charles Beales received the bribe of 1*l.* from Charles Joseph Smith, the authorized agent of Mr. Gower. Before the committee you had no opportunity of being asked about it, but I think here you ought to have an opportunity of explaining?—I should be glad.

Mr. Commissioner O'Brien stated that he had no objection to hear Mr. Smith, but that they had not investigated that fact.

42,144. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) It is a fact, is it not, that you paid 1*l.* to Beales?—It is a fact I paid 1*l.* to Beales in December. He came to me and stated he had worked very hard for Mr. Gower, he was then in a bad state of health, and that his wife's sister was dead, or something of that kind, and he wanted to go to the funeral. I did inquire of Mr. Joyes whether he had worked, and he himself told me that he had worked very hard for Mr. Gower. I told him all the election expenses were paid, and I gave him 1*l.* I did not know the man when I saw him; this was in December. I gave it more out of charity than anything else.

42,145. Partly in charity, and partly in consequence of the work he had done?—Yes.

42,146. Was that carried to Mr. Gower's account?—Yes. I believe he spent the money in drink; he told me after he never went to the funeral.

42,147. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That was carried to Mr. Gower's expenses?—Yes.

42,148. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You told us yesterday you paid 100*l.* for expenses to the agents after the committee meeting when Mr. Gower and Mr. North were present?—Yes.

42,149. Was that paid by cheque?—Yes.

TWENTY-EIGHTH DAY.

C. J. Smith.

22 Sept. 1866.

42,150. In one or several cheques?—In several cheques.

42,151. Was that drawn on your private account, or on what account?—On my own account; I never had any other account. I drew all on my own account.

42,152. Before you paid the 100*l.* did you speak to Mr. Gower upon what sum should be advanced?—Not at all.

42,153. Not as to the amount?—No.

42,154. That was left to your discretion?—That was left to my discretion. I told Mr. North, I think, what they ought to have, but I do not think I saw Mr. Gower.

42,155. Before the deputation left, or during the meeting of the committee, we will call it a committee, I mean the meeting of yourself, Mr. Gower, Mr. North, Mr. Webb, and so on, was it decided that something should be advanced to the canvassers, whatever that sum might be?—It was not decided what the sum should be at all, that was left to me, and I went and spoke to Mr. North.

42,156. Was it decided in the committee that something should be advanced to the sub-agents?—It was not decided at all, it was left for me.

42,157. To deal with the sub-agents?—Yes; there was a conversation held before, and I was asked how many canvassers could legally be put on, and what I thought were legal payments; and I was to do what was requisite, but no amount was mentioned.

42,158. The amount was left to your own discretion in committee?—Yes.

42,159. Did you see the document Mr. North has alluded to?—I suppose I must have seen it, but I do not remember it at all, not the contents, except that it was a request for money. I am sure the object and the reason the document was presented was in consequence of the expenditure on the other side.

42,160. Can you show at all how long this discussion lasted upon the document, in respect to the deputation, for putting on more canvassers?—A very short time.

42,161. It was a short consultation?—Very short.

42,162. And was the tenor of the conversation a discussion as to how you could best act as against the money that was being spent by the Monson party?—That was the effect of the conversation.

42,163. That was the effect of the conversation; there is no doubt about that?—No doubt.

42,164. And in that conversation did Mr. Gower join?—Yes.

42,165. And the result of it was that you received general instructions to do the best you could?—Yes.

42,166. That you received from the beginning?—I had those instructions from the beginning.

42,167. I mean in counteraction to what was going on?—Yes, in counteraction to what was going on; I was to do everything I could to counteract the money that was being spent.

42,168. So the result was, that in order to counteract the money which was being spent, you spent money on your own side?—I spent money on my side.

42,169. (The Chief Commissioner.) I want to ask you a question about this. Can you tax your memory about this matter? You know at this committee meeting the committee were present?—Yes.

42,170. Can you tell me whether the discussion in committee took place after the deputation had withdrawn?—We went into another room.

42,171. The committee men?—A few of us went away from the general committee men and went into another room.

42,172. Was that yourself, Mr. Webb, Mr. Gower, Mr. North, and Mr. Ivimy?—I do not remember Mr. Ivimy, but Mr. Webb, Mr. Gower, Mr. North, and myself went into another room.

42,173. Instead of the deputation withdrawing, you withdrew from them into another room?—Yes.

42,174. Be so good as to tell me, as well as you can recollect, what was the substance of what passed in the room?—That passed in the room when we adjourned.

42,175. That passed in the room you withdrew to?—The discussion was how many canvassers we could legally employ, and how many persons could be employed for the purposes of the election, to counteract the money that was being spent on the other side, and Mr. Gower then stated that he would not expend any money improperly, and no result was come to further than it was left to my discretion; and then I saw Mr. North after.

42,176. Was it left to your discretion how much money you should advance them?—At this time.

42,177. I mean the time your discretion resulted in the advance of 100*l.*?—Yes.

42,178. Was that left to your discretion how much money you should advance to the sub-agents?—Yes, at that time.

42,179. I am confining myself exclusively to that time. Then it was agreed that you should advance some money if you thought fit?—Yes.

42,180. And we know what you did; you did the next day?—Yes.

42,181. Did you send it back by the committee?—No, next morning they came to my office, and I then gave them power.

42,182. When did Mr. Gower become aware of the way in which you exercised your discretion?—I do not know that he knew it at all; I never informed him at all of it.

42,183. I do not know whether you can tell me the contents of that document?—I cannot.

42,184. Do you know what became of it at all?—I do not.

42,185. My friend has asked you about Beales' evidence before. I suppose the amount paid to Beales was paid by you much as other small sums were paid to voters who you found, after the election was all over, still had claims?—Yes.

42,186. You told me yesterday that you paid away small sums to some voters who it appears had never been paid, and you were induced to hand them over small sums?—Yes, after inquiring of the agents whether they had done the work. I always made inquiries.

42,187. Did you make any inquiries about Beales?—I did.

42,188. And you found he had done work?—He professed to have done work.

42,189. Your payment to Beales was much like the payments to the other men. I will take one of the names and see; here, for a sample; there is the name of Gillett, perhaps you remember him?—No.

42,190. I take it that the payment to Beales was of the same character as the payments you made of small sums to men who had claims after the election was over?—Not altogether; because as regards Beales, I had finished up all my expenses, and I should not have paid any more if he had not come with the story he did.

42,191. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You mean to say he applied to you?—He applied to me to let him have something as he was in distress; the others did not say anything about that.

42,192. (The Chief Commissioner.) This is material to you in reference to your conduct as found by the House of Commons?—Yes; and I took my purse out and gave him a sovereign, which I used not to do in other cases; it was always a business account.

42,193. You see it was not only because he appealed to your feelings that you gave him the 1*l.*, because you did take the trouble and occasion of inquiring of Mr. Joyes whether he had worked?—Yes.

42,194. But to a certain extent you distinguished his from the others ?—I do, because of the statement he made about the funeral and all that.

42,195. "To a certain extent only I gave him the "1*l.*, because he appealed to my feelings, but not al- "together, because I had taken the trouble to apply to "Mr. Joyes to see whether he had done work"?—Yes.

42,196. It probably has occurred to your mind before now, that the House of Commons might have hit on a stronger case of bribery against you if they had taken any of the others ?—Yes, if that is bribery, certainly.

42,197. The House of Commons has found it so ?—Yes.

42,198. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) They had no explanation ?—No explanation. I had no opportunity of making a statement.

42,199. Do you recollect giving a small sum of money to a man name Hulder, who was clerk to the Mead-vale committee ?—No.

42,200. You did so, but I cannot tell under what circumstances ?—I do not know the name of Hulder.

42,201. Look at the cheque ?—It is Fielder, he was clerk to the Mead-vale committee.

42,202. On the 22nd of April you paid a cheque for 4*l.* for Gillett. I suppose he had something to do with the election ?—Yes.

42,203. Who is Gillett ?—It must have been one of the men at work.

42,204. Then I had better ask Mr. Apted about it, because Mr. Apted will remember whether he was a canvasser or not, or what he was. I see you paid Mr. Apted for J. B. Thatcher 5*l.* on the 10th of October. What is Thatcher ?—He kept a beer shop up the hill.

42,205. He was a voter I suppose ?—Yes.

42,206. What was his Christian name ?—J. B. Thatcher.

42,207. Do you know who Gillett is ?—No.

42,208. It is called R. Gillett ; it is the only one that is put down like that ?—It was paid on the election.

42,209. Who is the man ?—He is a voter, I think ; that was for some subscription.

42,210. It is not the same as David Gillett ?—Yes.

42,211. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He was the man who was suspected to be cruelly treated by his master, Mr. Simpson ?—He was going away, and Mr. Apted asked me to give a subscription for him. He asked me to subscribe as he was out of his place. I do not know who the others were.

42,212. Then that is David Gillett ?—Yes.

TWENTY-EIGHTH DAY.

C. J. Smith.

22 Sept. 1866.

42,213. How is it he only got 1*l.* 10*s.* ?—I left that with Apted ; you will see it was Gillett and others.

42,214. (The Chief Commissioner.) There is another man's name. On the 23rd of August you paid a man named Shilling ?—Shilling ?

42,215. Yes, like the coin ?—He is a non-voter.

42,216. You are sure of that ?—Yes, if the name is Shilling.

42,217. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Shilling, a messenger ?—Yes ; he is a non-voter.

42,218. You see you applied to Mr. Gower after the election for the money ; 500*l.*, I think ?—Yes.

42,219. Was that done by letter ?—No.

42,220. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) There was a man named Beales who was examined here. In his evidence before us he told us nothing about it, but it was brought out in cross-examination that he made that tale to you about his wife. Do you recollect what it was he did say ?—He said that his wife's sister was dead, and that his wife wanted to go to the funeral, and that he had no money ; at least, she had not money to buy any mourning, or to go with ; and he said more too, that he had been ill, and everything like that.

42,221. May I take it from that that you hesitated to give him the 1*l.* when he first applied ?—I did hesitate, because I had paid all my expenses, and it was in December.

42,222. There is only one question. I am rather doubtful whether I ought to ask you it, but I think I am bound to. Have you put down and charged to Mr. Gower a sum of 10*l.*, that you lent before the election to a certain man ?—I put down everything.

42,223. I will call your attention to a circumstance. I do not wish to mention names. Have you charged Mr. Gower a sum of 10*l.* that you had given as a loan to a man before the election commenced ?—If I can have the name I will immediately tell you.

42,224. You will see the name there ; do not mention it, and you will know why I do not wish it to go further when you see the name. I am sorry I am obliged to ask you this ?—(The witness looked at the name.) Oh yes, I put that down to Mr. Gower ; you will find it under the names ; the money I advanced him. Nothing was said about the election ; but I put it down to Mr. Gower. I have got the man's I. O. U.

42,225. You have got an I. O. U. for it ?—I have.

The witness withdrew.

JOB APTED recalled.

J. Apted.

42,226. (The Chief Commissioner.) With respect to Mr. Gillett, Mr. Apted, I put him down before you were asked as having been paid 3*l.*, and you struck off 30*s.* and made me put it at 30*s.* I did it at your desire. You will see on going down the list "David "Gillett, 3*l.*," and you made me strike off 1*l.* 10*s.* ?—No. If you look at my evidence, I think you will see that is entirely wrong.

42,227. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Very likely. I think you said you made a kind of subscription ?—Yes. I forget the amount ; but, I think it was between 3*l.* and 4*l.* Mr. Smith only gave 2*s.* 6*d.* out of that.

42,228. (The Chief Commissioner.) Will you say what the money was you received ?—Mr. Smith wrote out a cheque at first, I believe, for me to hand to Gillett ; and I then reminded him he had said he should not be paid, and he wrote, I think, "and "others" on the cheque, or something of that kind ; "Gillett and others," so that I should take the cheque ; and I believe it was paid for some account or other. I think it was paid to Hodge of Woodhatch.

42,229. Do you mean I must take on the 1*l.* 10*s.* ?—I have paid him nothing, only the subscription.

42,230. You certainly made me take out the 3*l.* and told me to put down 30*s.* ?—Then it was quite a mistake, for I never paid him a farthing ; that was Gibbs.

42,231. No ; I have him too ?—He had 3*l.*, and I told you he came and demanded payment twice, and there was only 30*s.* that Mr. Gower had paid, and the rest I lent out of my own pocket. The name was Gibbs, and not Gillett.

42,232. Oh, I see my mistake, and you are perfectly right ; tell me if you can the tenor of the paper which Mr. North calls a round-robin ?—The only reason why I said it was not a round-robin was, that there was nothing secret or dreadful about it, and I was not ashamed of it.

42,233. But I want you to be kind enough to tell

TWENTY-EIGHTH DAY.

J. Apted.

22 Sept. 1866.

us what was in it?—We made a statement to Mr. Gower, that, according to our estimate, the whole expense of the election would be 1,500*l.* Mr. Gower did not accede to that. We then thought that we could go on to the day of polling with 500*l.*; and that was the tenor I believe of the note, that we were to receive 500*l.*, and that we were merely to go with that.

42,234. Now I want to know this, it was a written sort of paper, whatever you choose to call it; an address?—It was written here in Reigate.

42,235. It was something like this, was it not, "That the sub-agents thought it right to inform Mr. "Gower"?—I forget whether it was to Mr. Gower or to Mr. North.

42,236. I do not mind which. Of course I am inventing this now, "But that unless money was "advanced"?—I had previously put the question to Mr. Gower, "If we go on without charging anything, "will you petition for the seat." He distinctly said he would not, and I said, "We will go on without any "money at all, we will expend nothing and charge "nothing, if you will petition for the seat, and give us "your word for it; then we will go and do the best "to carry you in;" but he would not give us that promise, he would not pledge himself.

42,237. Will you tell me as near as you can the words?—I think it was an application for 500*l.*

42,238. For what?—To go on till the polling day.

42,239. Was nothing more specified?—No; only to let us have it at our discretion; that is what we were in the habit of doing.

42,240. No doubt of that. Tell me then the words of the address?—I am sure we should not tell Mr. Gower how we should spend it.

42,241. You might tell him what you wanted it for?—To put on more canvassers and messengers.

42,242. Are you quite sure that was in it?—I think I could take upon myself to swear upon that.

42,243. That you wanted money to put on more canvassers and messengers?—I represented distinctly, before the writing was put down, we must get every voter to come and sign his name on the committee, and we must employ men to go and get those people.

42,244. I want to know what you mentioned to Mr. Gower?—That was the basis of the application, to get 500*l.* until the polling day.

42,245. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Just for my own information I wish to ask you this question; you know the borough very well?—Yes.

42,246. You said it could be carried for 1,500*l.*; that was the statement you made?—I believe it would have been.

42,247. I am satisfied you will give me an intelligent answer, but I think you will also give a candid answer to this inquiry. In your opinion what ought to be the legitimate expense of this borough. I should say myself 700*l.* or 800*l.*, but what should you say, would be the legitimate expense?—That is entirely dependent on whom you have to contend with; if the expense of both sides was purely legitimate.

42,248. I mean both sides determined to act properly?—Then I think 800*l.* would do if you had a fair opponent.

42,249. I mean paying men for their honest labour and work?—Yes, I think 800*l.* would do.

J. Fuller.

JOHN FULLER sworn and examined.

42,250. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—A farm labourer.

42,251. Had you a vote in 1865?—No.

42,252. You had no vote?—No.

42,253. Had you a vote in 1863?—No.

42,254. Have you ever had a vote here?—No, not before this election.

42,255. Then you had a vote the last election?—Yes.

42,256. What rent do you pay for your house?—6*l.* a year.

42,257. Who did you vote for?—Mr. Gower.

42,258. Were you on the committee?—No.

42,259. Who asked you to vote?—Mr. Durrant.

42,260. What did he tell you?—He told me I should be paid for my day.

42,261. Paid for what?—For the day.

42,262. And you did vote, and what were you paid?—10*s.*

42,263. No more?—No more.

42,264. Did he pay you?—Yes, he left the money at my house.

42,265. And then you got it when you came home?—Yes.

The witness withdrew.

J. Mitchell.

JAMES MITCHELL sworn and examined.

42,266. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are you?—A labourer.

42,267. An agricultural labourer?—Yes.

42,268. Have you a vote?—Yes.

42,269. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

42,270. What rent did you pay for the house at the last election?—5*l.* 4*s.*

42,271. You pay by the week; that is 2*s.* a week?—I pay by six months.

42,272. Who did you vote for?—Mr. Gower.

42,273. What did you get?—10*s.*

42,274. From whom?—Mr. Durrant.

42,275. How long have you had a vote?—Once before this.

42,276. You voted in 1863?—Yes.

42,277. Out of the same house?—Yes.

42,278. For whom did you vote in 1863?—Mr. Gower.

The witness withdrew.

J. Thatcher.

JOHN THATCHER sworn and examined.

42,279. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are you?—A labourer.

42,280. What rent do you pay for the house out of which you vote?—10*l.* 16*s.*

42,281. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Mr. Gower.

42,282. What did you receive?—I never received anything there; Mr. Mazden gave me 1*l.* six weeks before last Christmas.

42,283. Mr. Mazden, I suppose, put you on Mr. Gower's committee?—Yes.

42,284. Did he come to you or did you go to him?—He gave it me as I was going by.

42,285. Did he tell you for what?—No, he did not tell me for what then, he did afterwards.

42,286. What did he say afterwards?—He said if I drove up he could give me 1*l.* towards the election, or something like that.

42,287. Had you voted before?—Yes, for Mr. Wilkinson.

42,288. Who asked you to vote for Mr. Wilkinson in 1863?—Mr. Mazden.

42,289. What did he give you in 1863?—10*s.*

42,290. (The Chief Commissioner.) From whom did you receive it?—I do not know who gave it to me; I had it brought to my house; so I cannot say who left it.

42,291. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) They left it there?—Yes.

42,292. I suppose it was left with your wife?—Yes.

42,293. I dare say she told you it was brought by Mr. Mazden?—No, I think it was by Sendall from Penfold; I will not be sure who it was that did come.

42,294. But it was Mr. Mazden who put you on the committee, to vote for Mr. Wilkinson in 1863?—Yes.

42,295. Did you vote before 1863?—No.

42,296. You had no vote before?—No.

42,297. Are you sure you got no other monies than what you told us?—No, I was never offered any.

42,298. You were put down for 1*l.* Mr. Mazden put you down for 1*l.*?—Yes.

42,299. You got 10*s.* in 1863?—Yes.

The witness withdrew.

GEORGE HARMAN sworn and examined.

G. Harman.

42,300. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are you?—A bricklayer.

42,301. What rent do you pay for your house out of which you voted?—14*l.*

42,302. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Mr. Monson.

42,303. Were you on his committee?—No.

42,304. Who spoke to you about voting for Mr. Monson?—No one in particular.

42,305. Who did?—Several people spoke about the election, but of course I used my own discretion, and voted for whom I thought best.

42,306. Who canvassed you?—No one ever persuaded me at all.

42,307. Were you on Mr. Monson's committee?—No.

42,308. Did you do anything for him?—No.

42,309. With which of his agents were you more particularly engaged?—With none whatever; I was not with them at all.

42,310. Did any of his agents speak to you?—No. not particularly.

42,311. Tell me who did?—I do not know who did.

42,312. Did any of them?—No, not particularly.

42,313. Do not mind the particularly, did any of them?—No, I do not recollect them.

42,314. Did none of them speak to you about voting, remember there were a great many about?—Mr. Holdsworth spoke to me and asked me.

42,315. He is the gentleman of the "Red Cross"?—Yes.

42,316. Were you in his house at that time?—No.

42,317. Where did he meet you?—At Redhill.

42,318. He came to you at Redhill?—I came to him, I believe; I met him in the road.

42,319. Where had you come from?—Sydenham.

42,320. Were you at work at Sydenham?—Yes.

42,321. How long before the election was it you came to him?—About a week, perhaps.

42,322. You had been at work at Sydenham?—Yes.

42,323. And I suppose you heard at Sydenham that the canvass was going on?—Yes.

42,324. You came from Sydenham to Redhill; do you live there?—Yes.

42,325. Then you went to Mr. Holdsworth?—Yes.

42,326. Did he tell you that it would be better to vote for Mr. Monson?—No, he asked me who I was going to vote for, and I told him I had not made up my mind.

42,327. What did he say?—He said, "You had "better make your mind up;" that is all he told me.

42,328. What did you say?—I told him I should not yet.

42,329. When did you make up your mind to vote for Mr. Monson?—A few days before the polling day.

42,330. Did you remain in Redhill during the week, or did you go back to your work?—No; I came back to Redhill the night before the polling day.

42,331. You were put to some expense in coming and going?—Of course I was.

42,332. Who paid you the expenses?—Mr. Nichols, I believe that is the name.

42,333. How much did he allow you for the expenses?—He did not give me any money.

42,334. How then?—He gave me a cheque.

42,335. To what amount?—5*l.*

42,336. As soon as you voted, I suppose?—No, not for two months afterwards.

42,337. Did you apply to him?—Yes.

42,338. How came you to apply to Mr. Nichols?—I heard the other people were receiving their expenses, and I thought I might as well go and get mine.

42,339. You heard that other people were receiving money under the name of expenses?—Yes.

42,340. Did you not send him in a bill at all, or merely say, "Give me 5*l.*"?—No.

42,341. How did you fix the 5*l.*?—He gave me what he pleased.

42,342. You mentioned something, did you not?—I asked him for my expenses, and he gave me what he pleased.

42,343. Had you that before?—Yes.

42,344. For whom did you vote before?—For Mr. Wilkinson.

42,345. What did you get for your vote for Mr. Wilkinson?—1*l.* from Wesley.

42,346. You got more than 1*l.*, did you not?—No.

42,347. Was that all you received?—That was all I received.

42,348. I have seen your name down for more, I think?—Not much, I think.

42,349. Did you not receive anything from anybody else?—Not a farthing.

42,350. Did you get that before you polled or after?—Before I polled.

42,351. In 1863?—Yes.

42,352. The morning of the polling day I think?—No, previous to that.

42,353. Was it the nomination day?—No, a few nights before.

42,354. Did Wesley pay you alone, or were you with others?—There were more in the room at that time.

42,355. And more that he paid money to I believe?—I believe so.

42,356. What room was it?—Toplis's, I believe.

42,357. There were a good many there that night?—Yes.

42,358. Plenty of beer?—No, I did not see any refreshments.

42,359. There were above a dozen there?—Perhaps there might be.

42,360. You saw him pay others?—Yes, I saw him pay others, but I do not know the amount.

42,361. Had you voted before?—Yes.

42,362. In 1859 did you vote?—Yes, I believe I did.

42,363. I suppose you got nothing at that election?—No.

42,364. There was nothing going?—No.

42,365. Do you remember whether you voted in October 1858?—I am sure I forget.

42,366. Just recollect. I will tell you who the candidates were. There was Mr. Wilkinson and the present Lord Monson?—I voted for Mr. Wilkinson all along.

TWENTY-EIGHTH DAY.

G. Harman.

22 Sept. 1866.

42,367. What did you get in 1858 ?—Nothing at all.

42,368. Then the amount you got in 1863 was the first time you were paid any money ?—Yes, the first time from Mr. Wilkinson's party.

42,369. Did you vote at the Doulton election ?—Yes.

42,370. For whom ?—Mr. Doulton.

42,371. I suppose you had been employed on behalf of Mr. Doulton ; there were a good many employed ?—I do not know in particular.

42,372. You supported him, I mean ?—Yes, I voted for him.

42,373. You held up your hand for him and shouted for him, and all that kind of thing ; what did you receive ?—It is so long ago I forget all about it.

42,374. Tell me about ?—I have no recollection about it at all.

42,375. You will remember, I think ; there was much more money about, was there not ?—Perhaps there might be.

42,376. I think you received between 7*l.* and 10*l.* at that time if I recollect rightly ?—Me ?

42,377. Yes ?—No, I do not know it.

42,378. I want to get it from you ?—I do not know what I got.

42,379. I do not want to the farthing you received ?—I cannot tell you.

42,380. I do not want to the shillings even, but give me the pounds ?—I cannot tell you, but somewhere about 2*l.* or 3*l.*

42,381. More than that ?—I cannot say, there might have been more money, but I did not get hold of much of it.

42,382. Who paid you ?—I think Mr. Truman ; I am not certain, but I think he was the person.

42,383. (The Chief Commissioner.) I wish you would tell us, it would save you trouble ?—I cannot tell you.

42,384. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Shall we say 3*l.* ?—You may say that.

42,385. (The Chief Commissioner.) Was it more ?—It might be a trifle more, but I cannot say.

42,386. Do you think I might put it down 4*l.* ?—I cannot say.

42,387. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Where you paid before or after the polling ?—After the polling.

42,388. Not before ?—No.

42,389. Some of the men were paid before, that is the reason I asked it ; how soon after the polling ?—I think I was paid the polling night.

42,390. Where ?—At the "Royal Oak."

42,391. There were a good many paid there at the same time, I think ?—There were a good many down there. I did not see them paid.

42,392. Waiting like yourself. What room was Mr. Truman in when the people were about ; were you called in ?—It was on the first floor.

42,393. Was your name called out, or did you go in, or how ?—They kept pushing in, and I followed them.

42,394. A whole stream of people ?—One and t'other going in and out.

42,395. You, thinking there was some attraction where all were going, thought you would go with the stream. What took you to the "Royal Oak ;" you had some intimation of what was going on ?—No, I knew there was something to go for, or else I should not have gone.

42,396. Who told you it was at the "Royal Oak," do you recollect that ?—No one ever told me that I recollect.

42,397. Then you smelt it out ?—Yes, I smelt a rat.

The witness withdrew.

W. Terry.

WILLIAM TERRY sworn and examined.

42,398. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are you ?—A labourer in the Fuller's Earth Works.

42,399. What rent do you pay for the house out of which you voted ?—4*s.* 6*d.* per week.

42,400. You pay weekly ?—Yes.

42,401. For whom did you vote at the last election ?—Mr. Gower.

42,402. Which of the agents spoke to you about voting ?—Neither one ; Mr. Gower himself canvassed me.

42,403. But some of the agents afterwards spoke to you about it ?—Mr. Mazden did.

42,404. He told you, of course, you would be paid for your loss of time and work ?—Yes.

42,405. How much did he pay you ?—A sovereign.

42,406. After the election ?—After the election, but I cannot exactly say how long after ; two months I think.

42,407. Did he send to you, or did you go to him ?—It was at his house.

42,408. He is a brewer ?—A publican.

42,409. And you asked him about it ; you said, "What am I to have for what I did, or for my vote ?"—Yes, I did.

42,410. And he said, "I have a sovereign for you" ?—Yes.

42,411. Did he promise you anything more ?—No.

42,412. Or that anything more was coming to you ?—No, not exactly.

42,413. Was this your first time of voting ?—Yes.

42,414. You had not voted before ?—No.

The witness withdrew.

A. Rose.

ALEXANDER ROSE sworn and examined.

42,415. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are you ?—A shopkeeper in Nutley-lane.

42,416. What rent do you pay for your house ?—18*l.*

42,417. For whom did you vote at the last election ?—Mr. Gower.

42,418. And you took rather an active part, I think ?—Yes.

42,419. You were a sub-agent ?—Yes.

42,420. What money passed through your hands to be expended ?—30*l.*

42,421. And what was your own fee ?—Not anything.

42,422. From whom did you receive what you expended ?—Mr. Apted.

42,423. But all from Mr. Apted ?—Yes, the 30*l.* I received from Mr. Apted was for paying men for their work ; but I received something further.

42,424. Did you send Apted an account of how you paid it out ?—Not particularly ; oh no.

42,425. Do not say to me "oh no," because my impression would be that you would have done so ?—No, I have no recollection of sending a bill ; we might talk it over.

42,426. You are a shopkeeper ; that is not my question ; when I say an account, I mean an account in writing, as if you were giving an account of goods you purchased yourself. You did not send in an account ?—Not at the time I expended the money.

42,427. At any time ?—Yes, he has seen the account I sent to Mr. Smith.

42,428. Before you sent that to Mr. Smith did you send it to Apted ?—Yes, I showed it to Apted before I sent it to Mr. Smith, because I was asked for my account.

42,429. How did you dispose of the 30*l.* ?—Well, I paid it to men what engaged to work.

42,430. Who were they ?—I do not know ; I cannot tell you all.

42,431. Yes, you can ?—I cannot tell you all ; they are all in the list I gave in to Mr. Smith.

42,432. Tell me how many there were first of all?—Something like from 14 to 20, I should say.

42,433. Tell me what they were; were they all voters?—No, not all.

42,434. The greater part of them?—Yes.

42,435. Were there non-voters amongst them?—There was Phillips, he was a voter.

42,436. I want to know who were not voters?—I beg your pardon. Wells was not a voter; in fact, there were several who I could not really call to mind that I paid small sums, something like 5*s.* or 10*s.*, or like that sort of thing.

42,437. I want to know the names of those you paid 2*l.* and 2*l.* 10*s.* and 30*s.* to?—Well, Phillips was one.

42,438. What Phillips?—Holmesdale-road. I paid him 30*s.* He was a voter; and there was James Dormer, of Holmesdale-road. I paid him 30*s.*, and Miles I paid 2*l.* to, and Brooker, of Glover's-fields, I paid 30*s.*

42,439. (The Chief Commissioner.) You did not pay Brooker?—No. I made a mistake, not Brooker, Merle, of Glover's-fields, I paid 30*s.*; Pullen, of Glover's-fields, I paid 2*l.* too.

42,440. I do not think you did, begging your pardon?—Yes, I think you will find it in my list. Parfitt, I paid him 2*l.*

42,441. How much did you say you paid Pullen?—2*l.*

42,442. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Do you recollect any others?—There were others, but I really do not feel that I can recollect names.

42,443. That does not go far in disposing of the 30*l.*, and I dare say you can recollect others?—But then look you here, there was 7*l.* I paid to Ede, which he paid over; I thought you were speaking of what I paid myself.

42,444. What Ede?—James Ede. I have not mentioned his name at all.

42,445. Who was Ede to pay?—Steer; and I mentioned Brooker, but I believe James Ede paid Brooker instead of me, and Fuller he paid, and there was 1*l.* I gave him to pay Josiah Ede.

42,446. Anything else?—I cannot tell you any more.

42,447. (The Chief Commissioner.) I dare say you made a mistake of some of them?—I may have.

42,448. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Do you remember a name that has not been mentioned during these proceedings, the name of any voter?—That has not been called, you mean.

42,449. Yes?—No.

42,450. You see that is the great difficulty we have in getting out of the agents the names that have not been called; we do not want the names we know?—I do not know of any.

42,451. What did you receive yourself?—Nothing. I never received one farthing for my labour.

42,452. What did you receive at all?—I received 5*l.* from Mr. Buckland.

42,453. When?—It was some time after the polling day, but I could not tell you exactly when it would be; it would be two or three, or it might be five weeks.

42,454. That was for yourself?—No. When you say for myself, I took the money in this way.

42,455. You appropriated it to yourself, that is what I mean?—Yes. Well, I say I did, for myself, for money which I expended during my canvass. I did not take it.

42,456. You had monies in your possession, Mr. Rose, from time to time; then you would expend those in canvassing as well as paying away. You had no settling of your accounts at that time, I do not believe, when you received the 5*l.*?—I received it after the election.

42,457. You had had no settling of accounts with Apted at that time?—I think I had settled before I received mine.

42,458. I asked you that, and you said when Mr. Smith called upon you for your accounts, then you submitted them to Mr. Apted, and that was long after?—I was speaking of when we were called upon; when this Commission came on our accounts were called in.

42,459. You never submitted before that anything in writing of how you expended the 30*l.*?—Yes, in the first instance I gave an account of the money, and what work they had done.

42,460. Did you give an account of the money you had expended to Mr. Apted?—No, I did not give him an account in that way; I merely showed him my list, nothing further.

42,461. Will you tell me in what way you did not settle with Apted until you received the 5*l.* from Mr. Buckland?—I went into Mr. Buckland's office. I had business there, and Mr. Buckland said, "I have "got 5*l.* for you," and I said, "What is it for?" I said, "I suppose it is for my expense money," which I paid out of my own pocket; he said he did not know anything at all about it, but there it was.

42,462. He merely said he had 5*l.*, and handed you it?—Yes.

42,463. Had you voted before this election?—Yes.

42,464. In 1863?—Yes.

42,465. For whom?—Mr. Wilkinson.

42,466. And had you taken an active part in that election?—Not so much as I did in this.

42,467. What monies did you pay away in that election?—Not anything.

42,468. Did no money pass through your hands?—No, I paid no one.

42,469. Did any money pass through your hands?—I had a trifle for my own services.

42,470. What had you for yourself?—I think it was about 2*l.*, I will not say in fact, but I think I may say 2*l.*

42,471. Who paid you?—Mr. James.

42,472. After the election?—Yes.

42,473. After the polling?—Yes, it was somewhere within a week.

42,474. I think Mr. James paid his accounts very quickly?—Yes, it was somewhere within the week.

42,475. The polling day or the day after?—It was after the polling day.

42,476. Had you voted before 1863?—No.

42,477. Never voted before?—No, I had not.

42,478. You had no vote before?—I was not on the register. I have only been here five or six years.

42,479. You cannot give me any fresh name at all?—I think you have had every one up that I canvassed at all, to the best of my recollection.

42,480. One question I want to ask you, particularly about this; when were you put on to canvass by Job Apted?—On the first commencement.

42,481. How long before the polling?—Well, I do not know; but it was 9 or 10 weeks, I should think.

42,482. (The Chief Commissioner.) Just help me. I want to correct the account. You have put down William Turner in your account 1*l.* 10*s.*?—Yes.

42,483. I think then he says you paid him 2*l.* 10*s.*?—No, 1*l.* 10*s.* I forgot him; when you asked me I could not call him to my mind.

42,484. He says he received 50*s.*?—It is a mistake.

42,485. I have put you down 2*l.* 10*s.*?—It is a mistake; he did not receive it.

42,486. Do not say so if you are not quite sure; are you quite certain? I have got that he got 6*l.* 10*s.* from the other side. He voted against you?—No, I think it was a mistake.

42,487. He got 6*l.* 10*s.* from the other side?—I think not.

42,488. Do you recollect the man?—Yes, I recollect the man well, and I think the man I paid you will not find received a farthing on any side but my own.

42,489. He said he did; here he says he received 6*l.* 10*s.* from the other side?—I think that must be another Turner.

TWENTY-EIGHTH DAY.

A. Rose.

22 Sept. 1866.

42,490. No, here he puts "Rose" down?—That is Rose, of Mead-vale.

42,491. Ephraim Rose?—Yes, it is Ephraim Rose, not me; it is William Turner.

42,492. Very well; look at the last name. Tell me whether you are sure it is right. I think there is a mistake about it; tell me if it is what you have got in your list?—Yes, that is right.

42,493. Did you pay a man named Stone?—Yes, 2*l.*

42,494. And you paid a man named Alvin Street?—Yes.

42,495. You have not put him down?—Yes. I will tell you why I did not enter him there. I received a cheque from Mr. Smith for 5*l.*, and I believe I was asked to put it in my account. I said, "You had "better put it in your account," so that Mr. Smith has that in his account, the 5*l.* I gave Mr. Smith 4*l.* and 1*l.* was 1*l.* that Edward Ede had.

42,496. He had 2*l.*?—Yes, you will see in my account there I have only got 12*s.* 6*d.* down, because that went in other accounts.

42,497. You paid Ede 1*l.* 15*s.*?—1*l.* 15*s.* was what he had.

42,498. I am quite right in saying you paid Alvin Street 4*l.*?—Yes.

42,499. You paid Amos Elliott 1*l.* 10*s.*?—No.

42,500. Who did?—Mr. Apted stated he did.

42,501. You paid Charles Smith 30*s.*?—No, I do not recollect him.

42,502. I will take him out of your account then. You paid Luck?—Yes, I have paid Luck.

42,503. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You have given us no fresh names?—No, I do not know of any; I believe you have all I canvassed and all that voted. I do not know whether you have had a witness of the name of Denyer up.

42,504. Can you tell me any other voter?—No.

42,505. What is Denyer's Christian name?—I cannot tell you.

42,506. Is he a gardener?—Yes, for Mr. Simpson.

42,507. What did you pay Denyer?—I did not pay him anything. I canvassed him, and he entered the hall with me, and had his name placed on the committee. Some few days, or a week I may say, after he came to me again, and he told me he was very sorry, but he must withdraw his name from the committee, owing to Mr. Simpson, for he certainly must look out for himself if he voted for Mr. Gower, and in fact he said he should lose his service, "and with that "reason," he said, "I am bound to turn round and "vote for Mr. Monson."

42,508. Can you tell me where he is now?—Yes, in Holmesdale-road.

42,509. He still works for Mr. Simpson, does he?—Yes.

42,510. Did you tell him you would pay him for his services?—I told him if he did any work I would pay him for it.

42,511. The same as the others?—Yes, if he did any work I would pay him.

42,512. He is now gardener for Mr. Simpson, of Wray-park?—Yes.

42,513. Had he attended any meeting?—Yes, at the hall.

42,514. Meetings for Mr. Gower?—Yes, at the hall, and several different meetings in the room below.

42,515. You did not give him any money or offer him any?—No, he did not do any work.

C. Emery.

CHARLES EMERY sworn and examined.

42,516. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—A licensed victualler living at Horley.

42,417. What house do you keep?—The "Prince Albert."

42,518. I thought Mr. Featherstone kept the "Prince Albert"?—I have kept it this four and twenty years.

42,519. What rent do you pay for the "Prince Albert" a year?—20*l.* a year.

42,520. Whom did you vote for at the last election?—I have no vote. I do not live in the borough. I have no vote for Reigate.

42,521. Did you interest yourself about it?—I did a little.

42,522. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) On behalf of Mr. Gower?—On behalf of Mr. Monson.

42,523. (The Chief Commissioner.) And were you on the committee?—No, I was not, nor at any of their meetings. I do not think I was out of my own parish.

42,524. You received some money, didn't you, among other things, to pay away?—I did.

42,525. How much did you receive?—I received 15*l.*

42,526. To pay away?—To pay away.

42,527. And did you pay it away?—I did.

42,528. Who gave it to you?—William Langridge.

42,529. And you paid, among other people, a William Brown?—I did, 5*l.*

42,530. He was a voter?—He was a voter; yes, he is a voter.

42,531. And whom else did you pay?—William Nash.

42,532. Has he been here?—I do not know.

42,533. William Nash, of where?—Of Reigate, Earlswood rather, which is in Reigate.

42,534. And whom else did you pay?—River Cornish.

42,535. Where does he live?—He lives at Earlswood.

42,536. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What is he?—He is a brickmaker.

42,537. (The Chief Commissioner.) Is that in the "Foreign"?—I suppose it is; yes, it is.

42,538. 5*l.*?—Yes.

42,539. Did you pay anybody else?—No, that is the only money that I had. I paid away 15*l.*

42,540. That was all?—That was all.

42,541. Was there a room at your house engaged for committees?—No, no room, nor no committee, nor no promise of any money.

42,542. No promise of any money?—No, not a bit.

42,543. But you paid money to other people; what did you get for yourself?—Nothing.

42,544. You received nothing?—Nothing at all. I did it out of friendship.

42,545. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) William Nash, he voted for Monson?—He did.

42,546. All these people voted for Monson?—All three voted for Monson.

42,547. What I want to know is; in 1863, had you a vote then?—I had no vote. I never voted for Reigate.

42,548. And you never did?—No.

42,549. Did you take much part in the election between Mr. Gower and Mr. Wilkinson?—I did, on the part of Wilkinson.

42,550. Will you be kind enough, with the aid of your paper, or out of your own head, to tell me whom you paid during that election?—There was William Brown.

42,551. That same man?—Yes.

42,552. How much?—Well, that I cannot tell; it was paid them weekly.

42,553. But just give us a notion?—I cannot. The fact is when it went out of my hand I never took account of it.

42,554. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) About 30*s.* a week, was it?—Well, that was about it.

42,555. (The Chief Commissioner.) And about how many weeks?—That I cannot tell.

42,556. Well, who else?—Thomas Brown.

TWENTY-EIGHTH DAY.

C. Emery.

22 Sept. 1866.

42,557. Was that his brother?—His brother, yes.

42,558. How much did you pay him?—That I do not know.

42,559. The same?—The same.

42,560. And who else?—Thomas Steer; he is dead now.

42,561. And anybody else?—William Vigor, the blacksmith.

42,562. What did you pay him?—Somewhere about the same, I think.

42,563. Who else?—I believe that is all.

42,564. How much money did you receive to pay away?—They generally came to me and gave it to me weekly. I generally gave it over directly. I kept no account.

42,565. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Who gave it to you weekly? — Sometimes Mr. Langridge, and sometimes, I think, one of Mr. Monson's agents; but I cannot tell.

42,566. (The Chief Commissioner.) Perhaps Langridge could tell us how much he gave you in 1863?—He didn't give me it, it was an agent of Mr. Wilkinson.

42,567. Now, in the year 1859, do you recollect whether you paid money away then?—Whose election was that?

42,568. That was the election between Wilkinson and Lord Monson?—That is the election that I mean, that I am speaking of.

42,569. No, I think not. The election you are speaking of is between Wilkinson and Gower, isn't it?—No, Wilkinson and Monson.

42,570. What did you do at the election between?—I had nothing to do but with the two elections.

42,571. Which two? The two last?—Wilkinson and this last election, Monson and Gower.

42,572. But haven't you had something to do with two Gower elections, two elections when Mr. Gower has stood?—No.

42,573. Do you recollect when you assisted Mr. Wilkinson against Mr. Gower? Was it the general election or the election of 1858?—Well, that I cannot tell.

42,574. You recollect the last election?—I do. I have given you account of it.

42,575. One moment. Previous to the last election Mr. Gower had stood once before, you know; that was in 1863?—Well, I had nothing to do with that election.

42,576. Well, now then, there was another one in 1859, the next before that?—Well, I think I did take a little part in that.

42,577. Very well, the next before that again was the election in 1858, the end of the year, when Mr. Monson and Mr. Wilkinson stood?—That is the election, I think, that I was telling you about. I was only concerned in one election for Wilkinson; the other I do not consider any election at all.

42,578. You think it was Mr. Langridge who gave you the money very likely?—The last 15*l.*

42,579. Yes, but the other?—I received from two or three.

42,580. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Langridge was one?—Yes; and as for the sum I cannot tell you.

The witness withdrew.

WILLIAM LANGRIDGE sworn and examined.

W. Langridge.

42,581. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are you?—A licensed victualler.

42,582. What is the sign of your house?—The "South-eastern Hotel."

42,583. At Redhill, I think?—Redhill, yes.

42,584. What rent do you pay?—100*l.* a year.

42,585. You took, I believe, an active part on the part of Mr. Monson at the last election?—I did.

42,586. And paid away monies?—I did.

42,587. Now, tell me, how much money did you receive to pay away?—180*l.*

42,588. How much?—180*l.*

42,589. Will you show me that bit of paper?—Certainly. (The paper was passed to the learned Commissioner.)

42,590. When was this bit of paper made out; I think it was rather recent?—Oh, yes; I made it out from memory a day or two ago.

42,591. A day or two ago?—Yes.

42,592. Then it is not of much value?—Well, I know what is on it.

42,593. Oh, yes. If you made out the paper a day or two ago it is rather of little value. Now, tell me, you received 180*l.* First let me ask you, from whom did you receive it?—Received it from Mr. Nichols.

42,594. Eh?—From Mr. Nichols, James Nichols.

42,595. You received all that 180*l.* from Nichols?—I did.

42,596. Of course you can tell me the sums in which you received it?—Yes, I received it in two fifties and two forties in notes.

42,597. That is, in fifties on two occasions and forties on two occasions?—Yes. They were most 5*l.* notes.

42,598. Never mind the notes. Now, can you tell me the first time you received 50*l.* by notes?—Well, it would be when the election about began. I could not tell you the day. I have no dates.

42,599. Well, it is not the custom to receive 50*l.* every day; perhaps you can tell me about the first, the first fifty?—No, I cannot tell you the dates, all I can tell you is that I had the money.

42,600. No, no, I am not doubting you at all, but I like the dates?—I have not got the dates, only the day I received it; I might have recollected a day or two after. I never entered the dates. I never do.

42,601. Hadn't you any memorandum in which you would put down "Nichols, so much"; wouldn't you put down "N. 50*l.*"?—No, I should not.

42,602. But what would you do?—Would not you put it down on a slate or anything?—I should not put it down at all, because I was so thoroughly convinced what I received.

42,603. But you were not convinced then?—I am now.

42,604. Didn't you make any memorandum?—No.

42,605. Didn't you put it down at all?—No.

42,606. When did you receive the next 50*l.*?—I think the next was a forty, if I recollect rightly.

42,607. How soon after did you receive the next fifty?—A few days after.

42,608. Didn't you make any memorandum?—No.

42,609. You received a lot of notes amounting to 40*l.*?—Yes.

42,610. When was the next?—I think it was forty, forty or fifty, I do not recollect which.

42,611. Did you receive it all previous to the polling?—Previous to the election, to the polling.

42,612. And previous to the nomination?—Yes, previous to that.

42,613. You did not take any memorandum at all of those monies?—No.

42,614. Didn't Mr. Nichols require from you a receipt?—No, he did not.

42,615. I am only astonished at the mode of doing business, that is all?—We do a good deal of business together.

42,616. (The Chief Commissioner.) What?—We have done a good deal together in money matters.

42,617. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I rely upon it if you received money on your own account you would have kept an account; you might lose your memory of it. You gave, I suppose, after the election Mr. Nichols a written account of how you expended the money, of course?—I did not.

42,618. Then I am out again. I am very far astray. Didn't he ask for it?—No.

TWENTY-EIGHTH DAY.

W. Langridge.

22 Sept. 1866.

42,619. You gave him, of course, the names of the men written that you gave the money to, that is, a list?—Well, I fancy Nichols knew that through the men themselves.

42,620. I am asking you what you did yourself; never mind how Nichols knew. You sent him a list of the names and the monies, didn't you?—I have no doubt that I did.

42,621. Do you remember how soon after the election you sent that bit of writing?—I did not send him the writing, but there is no doubt that previous to the election I did tell him.

42,622. I am not asking you about telling?—Well, I did nothing in writing.

42,623. You do not like it? You can write and keep accounts?—Yes.

42,624. Keep your own accounts?—Yes.

42,625. And have your own books?—Yes.

42,626. And brewer's books? Well, it is strange you had nothing in writing between you and Mr. Nichols. You did not like writing?—Well, Mr. Nichols and myself have had many transactions without writing.

42,627. Had you agreed together that there was to be no writing?—Certainly not.

42,628. He never asked for any writing from you, did he, how you expended the 180*l.*?—He never did.

42,629. Well, now we are depending upon memory, how do you know it was not 280*l.*?—I am so certain of the sums that I received from him at the time.

42,630. Did you ever account to him at all?—Did I ever account to him at all?

42,631. Yes?—I never accounted to him until the Inquiry was going on. That I did not.

46,632. Tell me how soon before the Inquiry, or was it while the Inquiry was going on that you accounted to him?—Well, I told Nichols what money I had had.

42,633. That is what I thought. When was that?—Well, it might be a week or two ago.

42,634. I suppose Mr. Nichols sent for you?—No, he did not.

42,635. Then you visited him?—We are often in each other's company.

42,636. I know. Of course friends are. I suppose the accounting took place in the "Grapes"?—Well, I do not know whether it did.

42,637. I am out again then?—Let me see.

42,638. What is the name of your house?—The "South-eastern Hotel."

42,639. Well, that would be a long way off. Where did the accounting take place?—Well, I cannot tell you.

42,640. Oh dear me, your memory can recollect fifty and forty, fifty and forty; and can't you tell me within the last fortnight where you accounted to Nichols?—Let me see. I think it was in the square here.

42,641. What?—I think it was in the square.

42,642. In the market place?—Yes, where we first talked about it.

42,643. That is more strange still. Oh dear no, that could not be. You know friends do not account in such places for monies expended a year and a half ago?—It was only a question what money I received.

42,644. My question was, did you account to him of how you expended it?—Oh no, I beg your pardon; certainly not.

42,645. Never at all?—Oh yes; I did after the election, certainly. I misunderstood the question.

43,646. Tell me, when did you account to him for the monies expended?—Well, I do not know that he knew much about it till he knew about it a fortnight or three weeks ago.

42,647. That is what I say; that is the time—the time in the market place?—Oh, no, in the "Grapes."

42,648. Will you kindly go on?—I told him what money I received.

42,649. No, no; we will go to the accounting two or three weeks ago in the "Grapes." I thought it was in the "Grapes." You did not recollect?—I did not understand your question.

42,650. Did you go to Nichols, or Nichols send for you?—Nichols never sent for me.

42,651. Well, did you go there then?—Oh, yes, I frequently go there.

42,652. Never mind frequently. You went there?—Not on purpose for this.

42,653. Then, being there accidentally, you and he got talking?—Yes.

42,654. Whereabouts in the "Grapes"?—I believe it was in the smoking room; in the public room.

42,655. A public room would not be a convenient place to settle matters. Just recollect?—It is quite right what I say.

42,656. Who were there?—I do not expect there were any persons there but ourselves.

42,657. Why do you put the public room upon me then?—Because I believe it was there, in that public room.

42,658. Was it there this bill was made out?—No; I made that out myself. Mr. Nichols has never seen that bill.

42,659. Was it after the conversation with him you made out that bill?—Yes. I knew I should be called during the Inquiry.

42,660. Was it after the conversation with Mr. Nichols that you made out this bill?—Yes, certainly.

42,661. When you went home that night?—Oh dear no.

42,662. When did you make it out?—I do not think I made it out more than two or three weeks ago.

42,663. Had you any memorandums you could show Mr. Nichols of the monies you paid out when you talked to him in the smoking room? Had you any memorandums?—I had not.

42,664. No memorandums in writing at all?—Not any.

42,665. Did he take down from you anything in writing as you stated to him the men you paid?—No.

42,666. Then how did you calculate it up?—I said I had 180*l.* He trusted to me. It is all down on that paper where it went to.

42,667. But that paper was not in existence then?—No.

42,668. But I am bringing you before Mr. Nichols. Mr. Nichols gave you 180*l.*, and it was he that had a right to call upon you for the mode in which that 180*l.* was expended?—Yes.

42,669. Now, how did you give him that?—I gave him no writing whatever.

42,670. How did you explain to him that you had expended that money without any writing on his part, or any writing on your part?—We understood each other.

42,671. Then you did not give him any names at all?—I did not.

42,672. Not a single name?—Not a single name.

42,673. Nor an amount?—The amount, of course, was 180*l.*

42,674. No, no, but the amount you paid to the different individuals?—Yes, 180*l.*

42,675. You did not give him any particular amount that you paid to any particular individual? You did not say, "I paid 5*l.* to this man, and 3*l.* to "that man, and 2*l.* to the other"?—No.

42,676. Then your account was this; you said, "I "have expended 180*l.*"?—Yes.

42,677. Now, honestly, as a respectable man, with a house of a large rental, do you mean to tell us that you told Mr. Nichols that you had had 180*l.* from him, and you had expended 180*l.*, and he was satisfied?—Yes.

42,678. You knew it was not Mr. Nichols's money?—Yes.

42,679. And he was quite satisfied with that?—Yes.

42,680. Did Mr. Nichols tell you that you had received 180*l.*?—No, I told him.

42,681. Then I suppose he referred to his book and said, "Oh, you are right, Langridge, you have a very "good memory; here is 50*l.* down here, and 40*l.* "here, and 50*l.* here, and 40*l.* here"?—No, he did not.

42,682. Did not refer to anything?—No.

42,683. But he said, "Quite right, Langridge"?—Yes.

42,684. Very good. That is the mode in which you accounted together for the 180*l.*?—It was.

42,685. I am afraid you cannot give us a very reliable account then; how many men did you pay?—You must let me look at that paper, if you will.

42,866. Oh dear yes. You made that out of your head two or three days ago. Why won't your head do now?—Well, I think it would. Well, Shepherd I paid.

42,687. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you?—Yes.

42,688. What did you pay him?—Well, I think he stated in his evidence. I paid him 99*l.*, but I only made it 97*l.*

42,689. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I think he had 33*l.* three times?—Yes, that is what I think he said, but I only made it 97*l.*

42,690. He said he received it from you in the evidence?—I do not know whether he said it, but he did receive it of me at any rate.

42,691. Where did you get it?—Got it from Nichols; part of this money that I am speaking of.

42,692. Did you take it to him?—No, he came to me.

42,693. Where?—Came to the house for it.

42,694. What sums did you pay Shepherd?—Well, he had a weekly list made out.

42,695. What sums did you pay him?—Let me see. That must have been three weeks; 33*l.* each week.

42,696. If you paid him 99*l.* that is the way you paid him?—It must have been that.

42,697. (The Chief Commissioner.) Was that before the election?—Yes.

42,698. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That was all before the election?—Yes.

42,699. Very well, we will take that; Shepherd three thirty-three's?—That is what he says. I cannot make it so by 2*l.*

42,700. Never mind the 2*l.*; go on. Whom else did you pay?—Well, Ireland and Miller. They are both dead men. 15*l.* I took to them, but Mr. Emery explains that in his evidence.

42,701. But Mr. Emery did not pay these men?—Oh, no, certainly not.

(The Chief Commissioner.) How do you mean he accounts for it? I do not understand it.

42,702. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are the two dead men you paid?—Are you speaking of the railway men?

42,703. No, I am speaking of the two men?—Well, 15*l.* I paid to Emery. I paid three guineas for horse hire.

42,704. Who are the two dead men?—Those are the men I gave the money to to pay Emery. It came from me.

42,705. But Mr. Emery says he received it from you?

(Charles Emery.) No; I was not at home when it came.

(Witness.) It is the same 15*l.* I paid three guineas for horse hire.

42,706. To whom?—William Comber of Earlswood.

42,707. Yes; go on?—I paid 2*l.* for a watchman.

42,708. Yes; go on?—And I fancy it was 12*l.* for two men down at Godstone, but I am not certain of the amount. They were two voters.

42,709. (The Chief Commissioner.) What were their names?—Denman and Jeal.

42,710. Where do they live?—Well, I do not know where they live now. I think Denman has left the neighbourhood. Jeal might live over on what they call Wiggey. "Wiggey, Redhill," would find him.

42,711. You are not speaking of Deadman; you are speaking of Denman?—Yes, Denman. "Wig-"gey" will find Jeal.

42,712. Where does Denman live?—I do not know where he lives now. He was at Godstone.

42,713. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What is this next—Ward or Renward (referring to paper)?—Kenward. He was a canvasser.

42,714. 31*l.*?—Yes, that is right.

42,715. And Fuller?—10*l.* He was a canvasser. Richard Fuller; and Cook and Peters.

42,716. (The Chief Commissioner.) We have had Cook and Peters here, haven't we?—Neither of them. Cook was the driver of a Reading train at that time, and I paid him 5*l.* to canvass two men who were with him every day as guards of the train.

42,717. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What has become of Cook?—Well, Cook's home is at Reading, but he is up and down here.

42,718. He goes up and down in the train?—Yes.

42,719. As guard?—No; he is a driver.

42,720. (The Chief Commissioner.) Where is his home?—At Reading now. I can give it to you directly.

42,721. And haven't we had Peters?—No. "The "Locomotive Department, Reading," will find Cook.

42,722. And what will find Peters?—Well, Peters is an old gentleman where we have had money different elections. He is bedridden now. We went up there many times.

42,723. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He was a voter?—He was a voter.

42,724. (The Chief Commissioner.) What did you give Denman, do you recollect; five or six?—Well, I cannot say.

42,725. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Was not his ten or twelve; you cannot say?—Ten or twelve.

42,726. (The Chief Commissioner.) What is Cook's Christian name?—William. You have had all the men here.

42,727. All of them except those you have mentioned now recently. Denman, Jeal, and Cook, and Peters?—Peters is bedridden.

42,728. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I find that comes to nearly 180*l.*?—Yes; there is 2*l.* deficient.

42,729. Well, but what is this (looking at paper), "Hart's house bill"?—That is the expenses of the house.

42,730. For your own house, 53*l.* 4*s.* 7*d.*?—Yes.

42,731. That was for refreshments. How much did you receive for yourself?—Not anything.

42,732. But you received that?—I received that in the way of business.

42,733. That is what I mean. How much did you receive altogether?—About 45*l.* I should think, more or less, with a few shillings, more or less.

42,734. You were paid by Mr. Hart, were you?—Yes.

42,735. He paid you by cheque, I suppose?—He did.

42,736. Did you send in a bill?—Yes.

42,737. (The Chief Commissioner.) What is that other amount?—Horse hire.

42,738. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I apprehend you gave items?—I think you will find it in Mr. Hart's bill.

42,739. When did you receive that?—I received that in September last year.

TWENTY-EIGHTH DAY.

W. Langridge.

22 Sept. 1866.

42,740. Then out of the 180*l.* you had nothing for yourself?—Not any.

42,741. You had money transactions you told me, several money transactions, with Mr. Nichols?—Oh, yes, but I did not want to receive anything myself.

42,742. I dare say you did not want to receive, but did you do anything taken into account?—Not in the least.

42,743. Between you and Mr. Nichols?—No, not any.

42,744. Nothing whatever?—Nothing whatever.

42,745. Had your house been used at former elections?—No.

42,746. You voted at former elections, didn't you?—Yes.

42,747. I see Cook is down here. You say Cook voted for ——?—No, he is not a voter; I beg your pardon. He is a non-voter.

42,748. But you paid him 5*l.*?—I paid him 5*l.*

42,749. In order to bribe these two men?—In order to canvass them, or bribe them, whichever you like. They were two men who were with him every day, 12 or 14 hours.

42,750. Who were they?—William Hind and Thomas Whitmore.

42,751. (The Chief Commissioner.) Whitmore has been here?—Yes, I think so.

42,752. And Hind?—I do not know about Hind.

The Chief Commissioner read an extract from the evidence of Whitmore down to the words, "he took 2*l.* for himself."

(Witness.) I believe he did, and I was not very pleased with it.

42,753. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That was Mr. Monson's money?—Yes; but I had spoken to Cook two or three weeks before the election.

42,754. For whom did you vote in 1863?—Mr. Wilkinson.

42,755. Of course you were on the committee?—Well, I took an active part in it. I dare say I was on the committee.

42,756. Did you canvass many on that occasion?—They canvassed themselves then. I wish they had done so this time.

42,757. They canvassed themselves; that is what we have been saying. Every man was a canvasser. Did any money pass through your hands then?—Not to the railway men.

42,758. Oh! no, no; did money pass through your hands?—Well, I have heard so, but I forget it. It has been given in evidence here.

42,759. From whom have you heard it?—Well, I say it has been stated in evidence, and I read it in the newspapers that it was so.

42,760. But you forget it?—I do forget it. I would not say I did not have some. No doubt it was so. I believe Barker, in his evidence, said so; Barker of Redhill.

42,761. Don't you remember a milkman?—Oh, Vigor.

42,762. You know the man?—Yes; I call him old sky blue.

42,763. He lives up your yard?—Yes; he is a very respectable man.

42,764. I did not say anything against the man. You recollect a dealing with him in 1863?—No. I had not.

42,765. You had not?—I assure you it is correct; I had not.

42,766. Can you tell me any monies you paid away? Your memory does not seem good about 1863. Can you tell me any monies you paid in 1863?—Barker—Thomas Barker, in his evidence, said I received some money from Mr. James to give him, some five and twenty pounds or so. I do not recollect it. If he said so, very likely it is correct; but Mr. James must have given it to me without talking about what it was for.

42,767. You have no recollection of it?—No, I have not any recollection of it.

42,768. Was your house used on the part of Wilkinson?—It was not built then.

42,769. But you had another house then?—Oh, no, not where I lived then. It was a private house up a street.

42,770. You were then in a private way?—Well, it was not exactly private, but it was not used.

42,771. Were you a publican then?—No.

42,772. A licensed victualler?—No.

42,773. What line were you in?—I had a confectioner's shop; and there was a beer bar.

42,774. What money did you receive then for the active part you took in it?—I received 35*l.*

42,775. You told me very fairly that you took an active part on behalf of Mr. Wilkinson. You received that money from Mr. James?—Yes, previous to the election. Mr. James sent for me, and I said, "Well, I don't care much about doing anything;" and he said, "Mr. Norman Wilkinson will give you a "cheque;" but he didn't. Mr. James gave me 35*l.*, and I was quite satisfied.

42,776. Did you speak to Mr. Norman Wilkinson about it?—No.

42,777. Nor he to you?—Nor he to me.

42,778. Well, now, you can tell me whom you canvassed, whom you were to work for in that election?—I was more in the office with Mr. James than I was out canvassing, he being a stranger here.

42,779. (The Chief Commissioner.) You were in the office with Mr. James?—I was in the committee room along with him; in his private room.

42,780. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You were in the office with Mr. James? You were in his secrets a good deal, were you not?—Not in many monetary secrets. I used to go out. He was too good a general for me to be there when he was talking about money.

42,781. You used to go out?—Oh, yes, I used to retire.

42,782. At his suggestion?—Well, I understood it so. When anybody came in on any private business, I went away.

42,783. Don't you recollect anything about the gingerbread?—No, I don't think I do.

42,784. You were in the confectionery line?—I don't know anything about it.

42,785. I dare say that gingerbread was made in your house?—I don't know any more about making gingerbread than you do.

42,786. You had a confectionery shop?—I do not know anything about the gingerbread.

42,787. Was that your first election?—No.

42,788. You did not tell me the men you canvassed?—I do not think I canvassed any one particular that year.

42,789. Did you get any one to vote?—No, I do not think I did.

42,790. You must have got some one to vote for Wilkinson for the 35*l.*?—No doubt I did, but I assure you I did more with Mr. James, he being a stranger.

42,791. He was new to Reigate?—He was. I do not suppose he was ever in Reigate before till that election.

42,792. And you were his right-hand man?—Well, as far as knowing the situation of houses and voters.

42,793. Pointing out to him where he could get a voter. Were there many canvassers out in that year?—Well, I do not know. I am sure I could not tell you.

42,794. I think you said they canvassed each other that year?—That is the railway men I was speaking of.

42,795. Oh! the railway men canvassed each other that year?—Yes; they had no money that year.

42,796. (The Chief Commissioner.) What, in 1863? —1863.

42,797. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I did not understand the word "canvassing" meant without money?—It is the best canvassing.

42,798. Did you vote at the election in 1859?—1859? let me see.

42,799. That was the sham election?—Yes, I voted for Wilkinson.

42,800. You were not employed in that election?—No.

42,801. Were you in 1858?—Yes.

42,802. That was rather a sharp contest?—I took an active part it.

42,803. Did you take an active part in 1859?—I do not know; very little, I believe. That was a sham election.

42,804. (The Chief Commissioner.) Didn't you receive something for what you did?—There is no doubt that I received for what horse hire there was.

42,805. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you receive anything?—I did not for personal services.

42,806. The horse was not a voter; we will leave him out?—I received nothing for personal services.

42,807. You were employed in 1858 on the part of Mr. Wilkinson?—I took an active part in the election.

42,808. I mean that. And did you vote then out of the shop you had up here in the town; out of the house?—My vote, I think, was at Redhill at that time, 1858. Yes, it would be so, at Redhill.

42,809. And what did you receive?—Not anything.

42,810. Not for the active part you took?—No.

42,811. You were employed?—No; I took personal interest in Mr. Wilkinson being returned, and I had no money.

42,812. Did any money pass through your hands?—Yes, I believe that I paid for many of the committee rooms.

42,813. I do not mean that?—I had nothing else to do.

42,814. Was your house engaged at Redhill?—No, I lived in a private house at Redhill at the time.

42,815. Did you take part in the Doulton election?—I voted for Sir Henry Rawlinson.

42,816. Then you had nothing for that, had you?—Yes, I had.

42,817. Very well. You see I am very much out?—I had.

42,818. (The Chief Commissioner.) You voted for Rawlinson?—I did.

42,819. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What had you?—I had 25*l.*

42,820. Who paid you?—Well, I had no engagement. Mr. Morrison was the agent with Mr. Smith, and I canvassed a great deal with Sir Henry, knowing the parish perhaps as well as most men; and after the election was over Mr. Morrison said, "I think "you are entitled to five and twenty pounds, Lang-"ridge, and I will give it to you."

42,821. Was Mr. Morrison one of his conducting agents?—He was.

42,822. Along with Mr. Smith?—Along with Mr. Smith.

42,823. Who told you to canvass upon that occasion?—Which?

42,824. Upon the occasion of 1858. Who put you on canvassing?—Oh, I did not go on canvassing; I never thought of canvassing.

42,825. But you did go on canvassing?—Yes.

42,826. Who suggested it to you?—It is so long ago I do not recollect. I went with some of my own neighbours.

42,827. But you must have seen something of Sir Henry Rawlinson yourself, or some of his friends or agents?—I went into the committee room myself. There is no doubt about that.

42,828. That was for your own services, the five and twenty pounds. Did any money pass through your hands?—No.

42,829. Now, is there anything else you wish to tell us?—No, there is not anything else.

42,830. In reference to any one of the elections?—No, I cannot tell you anything more than you have asked me.

42,831. You knew no one in the transaction but Mr. Nichols. At the last election you knew no one but Mr. Nichols?—Mr. Hart and Mr. Nichols.

42,832. You mean Mr. Hart for the bills that you had sent in for the use of your house, refreshment, and things of that kind?—Yes.

42,833. And you received that after the election, I suppose?—I did; I received it in September last year.

42,834. Had you sent in that account before the September? You had sent it in before, I suppose. What time did you send it in?—I think about a fortnight before the election.

42,835. You saw the advertisement then?—Yes.

42,836. Was there anything deducted from your account that you sent in?—No.

42,837. You received the amount you sent in?—I did.

42,838. (The Chief Commissioner.) Some little time ago you said the first conversation you had with Nichols was in the market-place here, about the monies you received, in the square?—I think the first time we met, when this Inquiry was going on, was in the square, and we walked down to his house afterwards.

42,839. That was previous to your meeting him at the "Grapes," and you had a conversation with him about monies during the election, about monies that had been received?—Well, I think it was a day or two after the opening.

42,840. I was quoting you; I thought you told the Commissioner?—There is no doubt but what I did.

42,841. You found, did you not, in fact, at that time that Mr. Nichols knew quite as well as you did what money you had received?—Well, I cannot exactly say that, that he did.

42,842. Just try and recollect. Perhaps I can remind you of it. You found that Nichols knew the sum you had received to be 180*l.* quite as well as you did, didn't you?—I fancy he did not.

42,843. Well, but I mean he named the sum, didn't he?—No, oh no, certainly not.

42,844. But the first time you came to figures at all, and mentioned them, didn't you find that Nichols knew what money you had received quite as well as you did?—He did not.

42,845. Didn't he?—No.

42,846. Didn't he tell you what monies you had received?—No, I told him.

42,847. Yes, I dare say you found he was right; but didn't he tell you what monies you had received?—He did not.

42,848. Are you sure of that?—Quite certain of it.

42,849. Well, but didn't you find, when you went to the "Grapes," that he knew what monies you had received quite well?—He did not.

42,850. Not when you went to the "Grapes"?—No. Until I told him he did not know what monies I had received.

42,851. Then you told him, wherever it was, you did tell him, either in the square or in his own house?—Yes.

42,852. Perhaps you mean, then, it was necessary to give him some explanation. He was not quite correct, but he knew just about to a very little sum, didn't he?—I have no doubt but what he did.

TWENTY-EIGHTH DAY.

W. Langridge.

22 Sept. 1866.

42,853. But more than that. Didn't he mention it? I think you were rather surprised to find that he knew so well what you had received?—I think he said to me, "What money have you received, "William, do you know?" I said, "Yes, 180*l.* I "received." They were the words.

42,854. Yes; but did not you find from something that passed, didn't you find that he knew quite as well as you did?—I fancy he did not.

42,855. Then I am wrong?—Perhaps so.

42,856. When you went to the "Grapes" after that you were not surprised to find that he knew quite as well as you did about the sum of money that you had received?—Well, I thought he knew pretty well. I should think he would.

42,857. Before you told him, I mean?—Yes.

42,858. Didn't you ascertain that he knew pretty well before you told him? that he knew the sum?—No, I never spoke to a third person about it.

42,859. I do not mean that you had ascertained from some third person; but when you met Nichols himself, nobody being by, didn't you ascertain from Nichols, from what he said himself, that he was quite aware what money you had received?—Mr. Nichols did not know what money I had received, not the exact sum, until I told him.

42,860. I dare say he was wrong as to a pound or two; but did not you ascertain that Nichols knew as nearly as possible? Did not he tell you?—There is no doubt, I should think, that Nichols would know pretty well what monies I had received.

42,861. From having kept an account what monies he paid you?—I should suppose so.

42,862. I want you to call on your memory a little bit more as to that?—Yes.

42,863. Didn't you ascertain that he knew exactly it was 180*l.*? There is a difference (170*l.*), but didn't you ascertain from him that he knew pretty nearly before you mentioned it what sum you had received?—No, I did not.

42,864. Are you sure?—Quite certain.

42,865. Don't you recollect Nichols mentioning a sum to you? Don't you recollect Nichols saying to you, before you told him what you had received, "Why, William," (using your own phrase, if you will forgive me) "you have received about 170*l.*," or something like that?—No, I do not recollect that.

42,866. But something of that kind?—That might have taken place.

42,867. Showing that he knew before you told him?—Yes; all that is very likely.

42,868. Am I not correct in saying that Nichols told you what you had received before you told him?—Certainly not.

42,869. You say he may have said, "Why, William, "you have received about 170*l.*"?—He may have said that, but I do not know that he knew the exact sum.

42,870. But am I not correct in saying that Nichols mentioned a sum before you did?—No.

42,871. Now, don't you recollect his saying this, "Now, William, we must make out the account right; "you know you received about 170*l.*," mentioning "some sum, whatever the sum may be, in the first instance? Don't you recollect that?—No.

48,272. You only say he may have said so?—I say he might.

42,873. I thought perhaps I should have called something to your mind showing that Nichols was quite as well aware as you were of the amount, as he ought to have been, of course?—Yes.

42,874. And not only so, but that he was the first person to mention a sum, whether a right or wrong sum?—I mentioned the first sum.

42,875. Very well. You are quite sure of that?—I am certain of it.

42,876. Well, you know it is quite obvious that Nichols ought to be the first person to mention a sum, because you give credit to him for having made accounts, and you admit you had made none?—I had not made any. I trusted the men I paid the money to.

42,877. It would be natural enough that you had gone to Nichols for information, and then it would be that Nichols would be the first person to name the sum, wouldn't he?—Yes, but I was certain what monies I had received.

42,878. But hadn't he had a previous conversation with you in which he had reminded you that you had received about 180*l.*?—Not previous.

42,879. I mean previous?—No.

42,880. What I want to get you to recollect is, if you can remember it, that the first person that mentioned a particular sum was Nichols, and not you?—It was myself.

42,881. It was yourself? When you mentioned the sum of 180*l.*, was Nichols prepared at once to acquiesce that that was the right sum?—He was.

42,882. When you were talking to him in the market-place, in the square?—In the square, or in his own house.

42,883. Had he any documents before him?—He had not.

42,884. He had no papers? You know I do not care whether it is 180*l.* or 170*l.* Are you able to tell me what means he had, then, if documents were not before him, what means he had of acquiescing or agreeing in what you stated?—No, I have not any knowledge of that.

42,885. Did you go to him then and say, "Nichols, "our accounts must be made up, the Commissioners "are come down, and the sum I got from you is "180*l.*"?—Yes.

42,886. Well, did he say "Done" at once to that?—I fancy he said I had not had quite so much.

42,887. Perhaps the difference between 179 and 180?—It might be.

42,888. You cannot tell that? You could not specify?—No, I cannot.

42,889. Never mind that. Now, had Nichols written to you about that beforehand?—No.

42,890. No letter at all?—Not any.

42,891. Had you received a letter from him about this time?—No.

42,892. You are sure of that?—Quite certain of it.

42,893. Had you received a letter from him on other matters about this time?—I do not think I have received a letter from Nichols for a year and a half or two years.

42,894. Didn't it strike you as rather odd that Nichols who kept the account, as he did, should not tell you the sum you received before you told him? Doesn't it seem to you more natural that you should go to him and get the information you wanted?—I did not think so between ourselves. We have been in business transactions together many years.

42,895. But if there were other accounts between you, it would make it more difficult to separate them in his own mind, wouldn't it; these election accounts from all other accounts?—Well, he could trust to me and I could trust to him.

42,896. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Where did you receive these fifties and forties and forties and fifties?—Mr. Nichols brought them to me at Redhill.

42,897. He brought them to you?—He did.

42,898. And counted them out to you?—Yes.

42,899. Who was there besides you?—Only ourselves.

42,900. How often did he come; four times?—Four times.

42,901. Did any writing pass between you at all?—Not any.

42,902. Were you indebted to Nichols or Nichols to you, independent of this election? Do not tell me the amount?—I do not know whether there was anything. We have got a running account. Whichever it might be I do not know.

42,903. You have not settled it yet?—No, it is like all old neighbours.

42,904. When was your last settlement?—Well, I do not think we have settled for this five or six or seven years.

42,905. Then it is a puzzle. You do not know how you stand with your accounts?—No, I do not.

42,906. You could make that out, I have no doubt. You and Mr. Nichols do not depend upon your memory for that. You have that in documents?—I expect they are in some rough books at home, in different years.

42,907. And you gave him receipts for all the money you received on that account?—No doubt.

42,908. (The Chief Commissioner.) Now there is one other matter, perhaps not very material. What Barker said was, that in 1863, the day before the polling, Mr. James asked him to go and see some voters who were standing out, and he took their names on paper, and brought their names into the "Swan," and gave them to William Langridge to take into Mr. James, and Mr. James sent out the money; no doubt by you?—I do not remember, but no doubt it is correct.

(The Chief Commissioner, reading from his note of Shepherd's examination.) "The 5*l.* was for "expenses I had incurred. I had 33*l.* three times "over. The 5*l.* was paid in sovereigns, and the 99*l.* "all in a bag in gold."

42,909. Well now, did you pay him that?—I can make out from memory 97*l.*, but he says, 99*l.*

42,910. Never mind the 99 and 97. He says he received it in gold in a bag.

42,911. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) From Nichols?—Oh, no, he could not have received it from Nichols, because I received it from him, and I should have changed the notes, because he would be able to distribute the money better. I should not pay him in notes.

(The Chief Commissioner.) I will tell you what Shepherd said: "I received the money at Langridge's "to pay the voters; I received 99*l.* to pay them, at "three different times."—If I didn't pay him, it was paid at my house. The money I received from Nichols was what Shepherd received.

42,912. Well now, was it you who paid him, or was it Nichols that handed him the bag of sovereigns? Was Nichols present?—Oh, no.

42,913. Nichols was not present?—No. Either I gave it him or my wife gave it him. There is no doubt about that. I made the money up for him, if I did not give it him actually.

42,914. "From me, not from Nichols?"—Certainly not from Nichols.

42,915. He does not say exactly in words that he received it from Nichols.

42,916. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He does not say in words?—No no, he did not receive it from Nichols.

42,917. The arrangement was with Nichols? He had made an arrangement with Nichols?—Well, I do not know exactly that.

42,918. Did he make it with you?—Well, when the election first came on Shepherd was rather blamed about this thing. When the election first came on I went to Shepherd myself first, and I said, "Well, do you know which way the railway men "are going to vote?" He says, "No, I do not know; "I will ascertain as well as I am able." And in the course of a day or so I saw him, and he said, "Well, "I am afraid they are going to vote for money this "time. I said, "I am very sorry to hear it." Then another day or two transpired, I dare say, and he came to me, and I said, "I do not know anything about "money affairs; somebody else must see to this "thing."

42,919. You said to him?—Yes. And I believe one or two of the men went to see Nichols, and I believe one or two of them went over to the other party, Gower's party. However, it was agreed that these men should have this money, but I knew nothing about the money after that.

42,920. Well, the arrangement for money was not with you?—No, it was not.

42,921. (The Chief Commissioner.) I have only one question to ask you. Did you show that account to Nichols?—No, I did not.

The witness withdrew.

JOSEPH KENWARD sworn and examined.

J. Kenward.

42,922. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—A carpenter.

42,923. What do you pay rent for your house?—6*s.* a week.

42,924. And whom did you vote for at the last election?—Mr. Monson.

42,925. I think you were on his committee?—Yes.

42,926. Took an active part?—Yes.

42,927. You received money, did you not, to pay away?—Yes, I did.

42,928. In the course of the election?—Yes.

42,929. Whom did you receive it from?—Mr. Langridge's house; some from Mr. Langridge and some from Mrs. Langridge.

42,930. Are you able to tell me how much you received in all, to pay away?—Yes; 31*l.*

42,931. Can you tell me how you got rid of it?—Yes.

42,932. Well, have you got a note of it there?—No, I have got it all in my head.

42,933. Will you tell me?—Yes, I will, from the beginning to the end. Then you can put it down.

42,934. I have got it down. What makes you recollect it so well?—Oh, I recollect that little bit.

42,935. Now for it?—Mr. Pike, 30*s.* a week for two weeks, 3*l.*

42,936. Well?—The next?

42,937. Yes, go on?—Edmund Baily, 3*l.*, Mepham, Ladbrooke.

42,938. What is his Christian name?—I do not know.

42,939. What did you pay him?—3*l.*, two weeks' payment.

42,940. And who else?—Briggs the same, 3*l.*

42,941. That is right. Edward Manning?—Yes. I have not got to him yet.

42,942. I beg your pardon. I won't interrupt you.—Edward Feldwick, Ladbrooke, 3*l.* for two weeks. Briggs you have got. Now we come to Parsons; 3*l.* to Mr. Parsons. Mr. Davy, two weeks' employment. Robert Worsfold, two weeks' employment.

42,943. How much?—3*l.*, two weeks' employment.

42,944. Well?—James Stevens, 2*l.*

42,945. 2*l.* 10*s.*?—No, 2*l.* I never engaged to him at all; I had the money given to me to pay him.

42,946. Didn't he say——?—I do not know nothing what he said. I know what I did. I had nothing to do with him.

42,947. Then you had Thomas Denton?—Yes; I paid him 30*s.* for two weeks.

42,948. Then Richard Bennet.—30*s.*, yes.

42,949. And Edward Manning 30*s.*?—Yes.

42,950. Is that all?—Yes; I think you will find that quite right; 31*l.*

TWENTY-EIGHTH DAY.

J. Kenward.

22 Sept. 1866.

42,951. Did you pay anybody else?—No.

42,952. Did you receive any other monies besides that?—No, not for no one else.

49,953. That is what I mean?—No.

42,954. What did you receive for this?—I sent my account in to Mr. Hart. I never had any answer. I afterwards saw Mr. Nichols, and Mr. Nichols gave me 5*l.*

42,955. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What did you charge to Mr. Hart?—I sent in an account for "employment for six weeks at 30*s.* a week."

42,956. 9*l*?—Yes.

42,957. (The Chief Commissioner.) Mr. Hart sent no answer?—I never had any answer. I never sent again.

42,958. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He took no notice of it?—No; I never heard anything about it.

42,959. (The Chief Commissioner.) Was that all the money transactions you had of any kind?—Yes.

42,960. Entirely?—I believe so. That is all I have any recollection of.

42,961. Oh, you have a capitally good recollection of these particular sums?—Yes; I think you will find my account quite right.

42,962. I correct mine by it. Then your having such a good memory as to them leads me to think you would recollect if you received any more money?—No, I think not.

42,963. Why are you sure?—Well, I am so sure that I believe I did not, or else I must remember it if I did.

42,964. Who put you on the committee?—Mr. Monson. I had been with Mr. Monson in the November before the election came off. I told him I would work for him and do the best I could.

42,965. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) In November?—Yes; he was round at our place.

42,966. (The Chief Commissioner.) In the November before?—Yes.

42,967. That was before Mr. Wilkinson's death?—He came round and said Mr. Gower would never put up for Reigate any more, and would I promise him. Well, I said if Mr. Gower never came out any more I would, and I would do my best for him.

42,968. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Can you tell me the dates?—No, I do not know no dates.

42,969. It was in November or December?—Somewhere in November.

42,970. He then spoke to you about your becoming a canvasser for him?—No, he did not.

42,971. What did he say?—He asked me if I would promise my vote. I told him I could not do that for the present. Then he said, "Mr. Gower is "not coming out for Reigate any more;" and I said, "If he does not, of course I will do the best I can for "you."

42,972. (The Chief Commissioner.) That was in November, before the election?—Yes.

42,273. In 1863 you had gone for Mr. Gower?—Yes.

42,974. You had voted for him?—Yes.

42,975. Had you been at work for him?—Yes.

42,976. Did you pay away money then?—No.

42,977. Not any?—No.

42,978. Did you know of money being paid to particular persons?—No, only myself.

42,979. How much did you receive?—I received 30*s.* a week for three weeks, 4*l.* 10*s.*; and then 3*l.* at 7*s.* 6*d.* a day afterwards.

42,980. 7*l.* 10*s.*?—Yes.

42,981. Who paid you the 7*l.* 10*s.*?—I believe Mr. Green and Mr. Rees. The money was laid on the table for me; but it came from them weekly.

42,982. Well, that is all you have got to tell us particularly about 1863?—Yes.

42,983. We will go back again. Were you in the election of 1859?—No, no elections at all before.

42,984. Were you on the committee in 1863?—Yes.

The witness withdrew.

S. Glover.

Samuel Glover sworn and examined.

42,985. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are you?—An eating house keeper. I sell beer as well.

42,986. What rent do you pay?—25*l.*

42,987. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

42,988. For whom?—Mr. Gower.

42,989. Were you on his committee?—Yes.

42,990. And worked for him?—No, I did nothing.

42,991. Did any money pass through your hands.—No.

42,992. No money at all passed through your hands to pay away?—No.

42,993. How long had you been on the committee?—From the first.

42,994. Did you attend many of the committee meetings?—I attended one here and one at Redhill.

42,995. Did you receive nothing for—— ?—No, not anything.

42,996. I mean for attending, for loss of time?—No.

42,997. Nothing during the election?—No.

42,998. Nor after the election?—Only for refreshments.

42,999. Then your house was engaged for refreshments?—Yes.

43,000. Quite right. There were meetings held at your house?—No.

43,001. The house supplied refreshments?—They supplied the hall here principally.

43,002. What did you receive?—I received a pound or two before the election, Apted paid me, and 5*l.* after the election.

43,003. A pound or two?—More than that I should think. Perhaps it might be three or four pounds.

43,004. (The Chief Commissioner.) That was before the election?—Yes.

43,005. Well, 4*l.* before the election, and 5*l.* after?—Yes.

43,006. Did you receive it, did you say, from Apted?—Yes.

43,007. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) From Job Apted?—Yes.

43,008. (The Chief Commissioner.) Both sums?—Yes.

43,009. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Had you sent in any account?—I took in a little bill of 7*l.* 10*s.* after the election to Mr. Smith, and he asked me to go to Apted and get it signed, or to Buckland; and I went to Apted, and he said he would get the money from him; and he said he thought the sum was rather too much; and he said he could get 5*l* for me; and I told him it was correct as far as—it was correct—the account was correct, and I ought to have the money; and he said after the business was settled I should have the remainder, 2*l.* 10*s.*

43,010. (The Chief Commissioner.) And did you get it?—I never received the 2*l.* 10*s.* I think the other money was in gold. Mr. Apted said something about a cheque, but I am sure it was gold.

43,011. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You do not know how much, accurately, you received before the election?—No. I put it on a slate, and Mr. Apted generally paid me every week, perhaps a pound, or something like that.

43,012. That was the way you received it?—Yes; he said they wanted to pay as they went; but I suppose they got short of money a week or two before, and did not pay it.

43,013. I cannot make it out. If you supplied refreshments to the extent of 7*l.* 10*s.* I cannot for the life of me understand why you should be satisfied with 5*l.* ?—Well, I could not get the other, and I took that.

43,014. But who ordered it of you?—Mr. Apted generally ordered men to have refreshments.

43,015. Very well. Then he would be a good mark for 2*l.* 10*s.* ?—Oh, there is no question but what he will pay.

43,016. In the bill you sent in to Mr. Smith did you specify all that had been supplied, and deduct what you had received?—No. I put for refreshments during the three weeks, or whatever it was—fortnight or whatever it was—7*l.* 10*s.*

43,017. "For refreshments 7*l.* 10*s.* ?"—Yes.

43,018. In making out the bill you gave credit for what you had received before ?—Yes.

43,019. (The Chief Commissioner.) You had already received before the election 4*l.* ?—Well, I should think it was between 4*l.* and 5*l.*

43,020. Perhaps 5*l.* ?—No, I do not think it was as much as that.

43,021. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) It was made up of small items?—Yes.

43,022. I cannot make out why you were content with less than 7*l.* 10*s.* Why didn't you say, "I won't "be content with that 5*l.* ; I will have all the money. "Why it is enough for me to have given my vote" ?—I did not know I should not get it.

43,023. I should have said in your place, "It is "quite enough to give my vote to Mr. Gower, with-"out being cheated out of the 2*l.* 10*s.*" ?—I thought I should receive it, and there is no question but what I shall. I told them I should not take less than 7*l.* 10*s.*

43,024. I may be allowed to ask you, honestly and fairly does that sum represent to the full extent (I do not say to a farthing or a shilling) the goods you supplied ?—It does.

43,025. Should you have charged A., B., C., or D. the same amount?—Yes.

43,026. Any name in the alphabet you would have charged the same amount?—I should have charged the same to any one.

43,027. To any one ?—Oh yes, most decidedly.

43,028. There was nothing for your own services? No, I did nothing ; and I have never received anything else in my life.

43,029. In that account there was nothing taken into account for your own services?—No.

43,030. That is what I want to know ?—Oh dear no.

43,031. Did you give Apted bills? You had the items on the slate?—I had them on the slate.

43,032. And he came in?—He came in and paid me.

43,033. You voted before ?—Yes.

43,034. For whom ?—Mr. Wilkinson.

43,035. Were you on his committee?—Yes.

43,036. Had you received anything for that?—Not anything.

43,037. You had received nothing for yourself?—No, not any.

43,038. And had no monies to pay away ?—Yes.

43,039. You had monies to pay away ?—I received 10*l.* from Mr. William Holdsworth to pay Mr. Wheedon. He is dead.

43,040. (The Chief Commissioner.) What for ?—To vote.

43,041. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) For a vote? —Yes.

43,042. Did Wheedon vote ?—He did.

43,043. For Wilkinson ?—Yes. He asked me to hold his watch while he went and voted. I did so. When he came back I gave him the watch back again.

43,044. Was he afraid of the roughs?—I do not know whether he was. I did not ask.

43,045–6. Well, tell me, had you yourself received anything at that election ?—No.

43,047. How often had you voted?—Voted since Mr. Hackblock.

43,048. Had you given the 10*l.* ?—Yes.

43,049. To him ?—Yes.

43,050. And he gave you the watch ?—Yes.

43,051. What for ?—As security I suppose.

43,052. As a pledge that he would vote ?—Yes.

43,053. I thought he was afraid to keep his watch ? —He was a very shifty party.

43,054. He was a shifty party, and you secured the watch ?

43,055. (The Chief Commissioner.) You had had a little experience in canvassing ?—No.

43,056. Well, perhaps not in canvassing; in the management of things?—Well, I took the management of that.

43,057. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Very well; you had voted since Mr. Hackblock's time?—Yes.

43,058. How came you to go on the committee this time ?—Mr. Apted asked me if I should vote for Gower? I said I should. I always promise directly the candidates come out. Never give them any trouble at all.

The witness withdrew.

CHARLES KNIGHT sworn and examined.

C. Knight.

43,059. (The Chief Commissioner.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

43,060. Were you in 1865 ?—Yes.

43,061. What are you ?—Clerk to Messrs. Clutton.

43,062. Have you been for some time ?—Yes, for the last 20 years.

43,063. Whom did you vote for ?—Mr. Gower.

43,064. Were you on the committee ?—I think I was. I am not quite certain of that. I think my name was down.

43,065 What rent do you pay for your house ?—It is my own house.

43,066. Freehold ? What is the value of it ?—50*l.* a year, probably.

43,067. You are with Mr. Clutton now ?—Yes.

43,068. Do you know a man named James Mitchell?—Yes.

43,069. What is he now ?—A labourer to Mr. Clutton.

43,070. Do you know whom Mitchell voted for ?—I believe he voted for Mr. Gower.

43,071. Did you know of his receiving any money ? —I heard that he received 10*s.* on the last occasion.

43,072. Did you hear that from himself?—Yes.

43,073. He said here to-day that he received 10*s.* from Durrant ?—Well, that was it, I suppose.

43,074. Now, did you know whom he voted for in 1863 ?—He voted for Mr. Gower then, I think.

43,075. He did ; at least he said he did. Do you know of his receiving any money in 1863?—After the election of 1863 I was in the town and I met Mr. James Nichols, who came to me and said, "Why, "what have you been doing ; stopping the man's "wages? The bailiff at your place has been stopping "a man's wages on the day of polling." I said, "Of "course he would do so, unless he had express "directions. We don't pay the men when they don't "work." He said, "I wish you would take him "10*s.*;" and so I did.

43,076. You gave him the 10*s.* after he had voted in 1863. He gave us to understand that he got it rather from his master, Mr. Clutton?—Well, he seems to think so. He did not ask me from whom it came. I gave him the money.

43,077. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You gave it to him?—Yes. I did not tell him from whom it came. I told him it was because his wages had been stopped.

(The Chief Commissioner.) I will correct his evidence, by saying it came from Nichols by Mr. Knight; credit Nichols with it.

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) We are very much obliged to you; although I must confess it did not leave the slightest impression upon our minds against your master.

The witness withdrew.

TWENTY-NINTH DAY.

R. Worsfold.

24 Sept. 1866.

ROBERT WORSFOLD sworn and examined.

43,078. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—A labourer.

43,079. What do you pay rent?—5*s.* a week.

43,080. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Mr. Monson.

43,081. Were you on Mr. Monson's committee?—Yes.

43,082. Who put you on?—Mr. Hanbury.

43,083. Mr. Philip Hanbury?—Yes.

43,084. Do you stand in any relation to Mr. Hanbury?—No.

43,085. Are you in his service, or anything of that sort?—Yes, I am in his service.

43,086. That is what I call standing in a relation to him. Were you in his service?—Yes.

43,087. What sort of service?—Cowman.

43,088. Are you still in his service?—Yes.

43,089. Did Mr. Hanbury ask you how you were going to vote?—No; he asked me who I was going to vote for, and I told him I should vote for Mr. Monson.

43,090. Was that the way he voted?—Yes, sir.

43,091. Did anything else pass between you and Mr. Hanbury?—No, sir; he told me I might vote for whom I liked.

43,092. When he found you were going to vote for Mr. Monson did he say he would put you on the committee?—He asked me if I would go on.

43,093. And you said, "Yes," and he put you on?—Yes.

43,094. Was this your first vote?—No.

43,095. In 1865 did you receive for two weeks the sum of 30*s.* for each week?—Yes.

43,096. From whom?—Kenward.

43,097. How much before the election?—3*l.*

43,098. And how much after?—Not any, sir.

43,099. Did Mr. Hanbury recommend you to go on the committee?—No.

43,100. Did he mention Mr. Kenward's name to you?—No.

43,101. Not in any way?—No.

43,102. Did you mention Mr. Kenward's name to Mr. Hanbury?—No.

43,103. You are sure of that?—Yes.

43,104. Did you tell Mr. Hanbury before the election what money you had received from Mr. Kenward?—No.

43,105. Be very cautious how you answer that question. I have no doubt you want to tell the truth, but do it very carefully. Before the election did you tell Mr. Hanbury what you had received from Kenward?—No.

43,106. You are sure of that?—Yes.

43,107. Did you tell him afterwards?—Not till the other day.

43,108. Did you tell him within two or three months after the election?—No, sir.

43,109. Are you sure of that?—I am sure of it.

43,110. Do you know whether he was aware of your having received 3*l.* from Mr. Kenward?—No; he says he was not.

43,111. He says so now?—Yes.

43,112. But you are not aware whether he was aware of it at the time?—I was not.

43,113. You swear that?—Yes.

43,114. Did you do anything for the 3*l.* you got from Mr. Kenward?—Yes.

43,115. What?—I went out every night and tried to persuade all the voters I could for Mr. Monson.

43,116. Who did you try to persuade?—Any one I could light on; I asked them, but I can't say I secured any, there were so many canvassers and so many canvassed.

43,117. Did any one canvass you on Mr. Gower's side?—No.

43,118. You are sure of that?—Yes.

43,119. And you cannot say you secured the vote of any person?—No.

43,120. In 1863 who did you vote for?—For Mr. Gower.

43,121. Were you on his committee?—No, sir.

43,122. What did you receive for your vote then, if anything?—Nothing at all.

43,123. Was that your first election?—Yes.

43,124. You are quite sure in the election of 1863 nothing was paid you, either before or after the election?—I am quite sure.

The witness then withdrew.

J. Nichols.

JAMES NICHOLS sworn and examined.

43,125. (The Chief Commissioner.) Mr. Nichols, you keep the "Grapes" inn?—Yes, sir.

43,126. Besides that, I believe you hold some office in the county court?—Yes, sir.

43,127. What is it?—I am high bailiff.

43,128. And are you overseer of the parish?—I am asistant overseer.

43,129. Appointed by the magistrates?—Appointed by the guardians.

43,130. You are a parish officer?—Yes.

43,131. You are sanctioned also by the magistrates?—Yes.

43,132. For what?—For the old parish of Reigate.

43,133. Do you hold any other office?—I am clerk to the burial board.

43,134. Anything else?—And sheriff's officer.

43,135. Did you in the years '64 and '65, as overseer, make out the borough voting lists?—Yes.

43,136. Had you made them out previous to 1864?—Yes.

43,137. For how long?—As long ago as the year 1850.

43,138. Is it rent you pay for your house, the "Grapes"?—Yes.

43,139. And is it for that you vote?—No; it is for a house in the High-street.

43,140. What rent do you pay for the house on which you vote?—26*l.*

43,141. Are you in partnership with anybody in any other business?—Yes.

43,142. Is that in the business of tailoring?—Yes, sir.

43,143. Who is your partner? Is it published and known?—Yes.

43,144. Who is it?—Eliza Joyes.

43,145. What relation?—She is my sister.

43,146. Are you brother-in-law to Frederick Joyes?—No, sir, he is dead.

43,147. You voted for Mr. Monson at the last election?—Yes.

43,148. You were the principal agent under Mr. Hart?—Yes.

43,149. Who appointed you?—Mr. Monson.

43,150. Mr. Monson himself?—Yes.

43,151. Then Mr. Hart did not appoint you?—No, sir.

43,152. Were you appointed to act under Mr. Hart, or appointed to act independently?—I do not know.

43,153. Was the appointment made by Mr. Monson in conversation, or did he come to you and ask you to act, or did he write to you, or what?—I think I saw him.

43,154. I wish to know how you became appointed?—I had seen Mr. Monson several times on the question, or rather he had seen me, and I said I could not promise him until I knew Mr. Gower had decided on not coming forward.

43,155. At the end of these interviews were you at last appointed?—Yes.

43,156. Can you tell me when that was, about; I do not wish to know the exact date?—Conditionally in the September of '64.

43,157. Was that conditionally on Mr. Gower's coming forward?—Yes, sir.

43,158. And if Mr. Gower did come forward then you were to act as Mr. Monson's agent or his sub-agent?—No; it was on the condition that Mr. Gower did not come forward.

43,159. Had you been previously concerned for Mr. Gower in 1863?—Yes.

43,160. As what?—As sub-agent.

43,161. And you took a very active part?—Yes.

43,162. Now, being appointed in September conditionally on Mr. Gower's not coming forward, was it at that time arranged if he did come forward you were not to be agent?—Yes.

43,163. Then tell me shortly how it was that as he did come forward you were agent?—On the 29th of November of the same year he made a public statement, and consequent on that it was Mr. Monson agreed to commence canvassing that night; I think it was the 29th.

43,164. You had seen Mr. Monson several times, in fact, before that?—Yes, sir, twice at least.

43,165. Had it been here you had seen him or away from this place?—I saw him at Burton.

43,166. That is in Lincolnshire?—Yes.

43,167. Was any one present when you had an interview with him at Burton?—No.

43,168. Is it Burton-park?—Burton-hall.

43,169. And no person was with him?—Not when I was engaged with him.

43,170. Well, at any interview with him at Burton-hall?—Lord Monson was there.

43,171. An interview about the election?—Yes.

43,172. Any one else?—Captain Burton, I think.

43,173. Another brother?—Yes, sir.

43,174. Was any one present on your side?—Yes, Mr. Page.

43,175. Had he gone down with you?—Yes, sir.

43,176. The interview at which they were present was previous to the final arrangement on the 29th of November?—It was in September.

43,177. Had you any other interviews with him at Burton-hall that you recollect?—None, sir.

43,178. Now I still want to ask you, when you were appointed on the 29th of November, what was the nature of your position; did he explain to you you were appointed under Mr. Hart, or whether you were appointed on your own account?—It was well understood between us; I was to act with Mr. Hart as I had done many times before.

43,179. Was Mr. Hart present?—No, sir.

43,180. Was anything said about whether you would receive instructions from Mr. Hart, or was anything at all said. I rather wish to get at the terms?—I think it was understood between us I was to act by myself.

43,181. Was anything said about your drawing cheques and paying money away according to your own discretion?—Yes, sir; that was understood, if not said.

43,182. You could not understand well about money was; it said money would be paid on your account, which you would have to dispose of without reference to Mr. Hart?—Yes.

43,183. It was stated?—Yes.

43,184. May I say it was stated and arranged?—Yes.

43,185. I may take it, "It was agreed I should "pay money away independently of Mr. Hart"?—Yes.

43,186. I wish you to understand how I take your answer, and you say on the evening of the 29th of November you did set to work?—Yes.

43,187. Can you tell me when the first money was paid to you?—Some time in December.

43,188. Can you give me the date, do you know whether it was the 29th of December?—I do not know, but it was somewhere between Christmas day and New Year's day.

43,189. How was it paid to you?—I think by cheque.

43,190. To you or to your bankers?—It would pass through my bankers if it was a cheque.

43,191. Then I will take it if you agree, "In "December, perhaps the 29th, the first money was "paid into my bankers"?—I think so.

43,192. What bank was that, the London and County?—No, I think the English Joint Stock Bank.

43,193. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you pay it in yourself?—I dare say I paid it in myself, I cannot recollect.

43,194. What I want to know is how the first payment was made?—By letter.

43,195. Was it paid into your bank by yourself, or to your account?—By myself.

43,196. That is what I want to know, how you got it into the banker's hands; did you receive a cheque of a certain amount?—Yes.

43,197. By letter?—Yes.

43,198. (The Chief Commissioner.) You paid it into the bank?—I should think so.

43,199. How much did you receive to pay in?—200 guineas.

43,200. And who did you receive it from?—Mr. Monson.

43,201. Can you tell me whether, as a fact, you did pay this cheque of 200 guineas into your bankers?—I cannot without my book; that is not the book, I think.

43,202. I do not know; you shall, of course see it, and judge for yourself; this is the London and County Bank; you had at that time an account with the London and County Bank?—Yes.

43,203. You also had an account at that time with the South-eastern Banking Company?—Yes, sir.

43,204. Can you tell me how the cheque was drawn?—"Mr. James Nichols or order."

43,205. You received it from Mr. Monson, but whose cheque was it?—Mr. Monson's cheque.

TWENTY-NINTH DAY.

J. Nichols.

24 Sept. 1866.

43,206. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) His own cheque ?—Yes.

43,207. Drawn in your favour ?—Yes.

43,208. Are you sure of that ?—I will not be quite sure of that.

43,209. What was the form of the cheque ?—I am sure it was "Mr. James Nichols or order."

43,210. Might it not be "self or order" ?—I will not swear.

43,211. It is a mere matter of detail ?—Yes.

43,212. (The Chief Commissioner.) This is the London and County Bank, there is the date, please to look at it (handing bank book to witness) ?—It is not there.

43,213. It is not there ?—No.

43,214. There are payments to your credit there about that time ?—Yes, sir.

43,215. You see there are several about that time, but none that would exactly fit it, no one or two would exactly fit it ?—No, I am pretty certain it was in the other book.

43,216. I wish you to look at that and say any one or two sums together, or more than two together, represent the 210*l.* cheque ?—No, sir.

43,217. They do not represent the cheque of the 29th of December ?—No, I think not.

43,218. Tell me, Mr. Nichols, about that time, the 29th of December 1864, you had another account at what was called the South-eastern Banking Company ? I had.

43,219. I have not received as yet your pass book ?—I have not received it yet, but I have sent for it; it is at the London office.

24,220. In the meantime I will put these cheques into your hand, though I have not received your pass book, but which I should have been very glad to have received. What I wish you to look at (though I do not think you will be able to make much more of it than I am) — these are the cheques of the South Eastern Banking Company, and there are the dates, 30th of November, 17th December, 29th December, one I think of the 3rd of December, and then I come to January ?—Yes.

43,221. I may have overlooked it, but I do not find the sum of 210*l.* represented by any cheque of yours ?—No, that would not be so.

43,222. I suppose it would be paid by Mr. Monson to your account ?—In Mr. Monson's name.

43,223. You would find it in your pass book ?—Yes.

43,224. Hence the necessity of my having it ?—Yes; I have sent for it.

43,225. It is possible the cheque may have been drawn by you, and the amount paid in in some other shape, and therefore it was right to tell you I do not find it here ?—No, it is not there.

43,226. Will you tell me what you did with the cheque of 200 guineas, and then we shall be able to trace it ?—I think I paid it into the English Joint Stock.

43,227. Into your account there ?—Yes.

43,228. Into your account of the South-eastern Banking Company ?—Yes.

43,229. They had a bank here, had they not ?—Yes.

43,230. What has become of it ?—Blown up.

43,231. How shall I manage then about your pass book ?—I told you I had written and expect it by post to-day.

43,232. Are they documents in Chancery or something of that sort ?—They are being wound up.

43,233. I suppose you know where to apply for them ?—At 29, Clements'-lane, it is called the English Joint Stock Banking Company.

43,234. Are you able to tell me whether the English Joint Stock Company took up what money they had and what debts they had, did they take up the concern ?—No, they changed their name merely.

43,235. Can you tell me whether they were wound up or merely merged into the English Joint Stock Company ?—Just so.

43,236. Then this company have all the banking documents of the other firm ?—Yes.

43,237. When did you commence money payments in this way for Mr. Monson ?—That I cannot tell you.

43,238. When did you commence making payments ?—I cannot tell you.

43,239. I do not want the date of the first cheque you drew, but about the time you began to make payments. You received this cheque on the 29th of December, '64; now, supposing it was that date, did you begin to pay monies out at once ?—I think not for some two or three months.

43,240. I have taken it, "I think I did not begin to "make payments for some two or three months after;" are you sure it was something like this time ?—Yes, sir, quite.

43,241. When did you receive any other monies; what was the next, are you able to tell me ?—May the 29th.

43,242. Before I go to that question I wish to go back for one moment. You say the first cheque "or "order or bearer," but which you do not recollect ?—I do not, but most likely to order.

43,243. Now the 29th of May, how was that ?—I think they were notes, but the manager of the bank has told me he can tell me.

43,244. How did you receive it ?—By post.

43,245. Cannot you tell me in what shape it was received by you ?—If not by cheque, by bank notes.

43,246. Have you not got an account of what monies you received ?—Yes, sir, here (producing a paper).

43,247. I do not wish to take that out of your hand, it is an account from memory ?—No; I got it from Mr. Gilbert, the parliamentary agent, the witness you had here.

43,248. How did he get it ?—I do not know.

43,249. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Have you not any memorandums of your own ?—No, I do not know but from this the date at which I received it.

43,250. (The Chief Commissioner.) Have you any memorandums of your own from the commencement, the 29th of December and the 29th of May, which will tell what money you received ?—No, sir.

43,251. How much did you receive on the 29th of May ?—According to this, 150*l.*

43,252. Have you any memorandums of your own of money received ?—No, sir.

43,253. Are you able to tell me when the next payment was; a man of your business habits and knowledge of business would, I should have thought, have kept some memorandums ?—No, I am not able.

43,254. (Mr. Commissioner Smith, to witness.) I think you had better not look at that document at the present moment; it is not a document made contemporaneously, and is not made by yourself.—No, sir.

43,255. (The Chief Commissioner.) Can you tell me when the next payment was ?—No, but it was soon after that.

43,256. Can you tell me for what amount ?—50*l.*

43,257. When was the fourth payment made ?—Soon after.

43,258. You cannot give me the date ?—No.

43,259. Do you know the amount ?—500*l.*

43,260. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) How much ?—500*l.*

43,261. Do we understand you are giving this from your own recollection ?—Yes, that item I can.

43,262. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Independently of any information you received from Mr. Gilbert ?—Yes, that one only.

43,263. (The Chief Commissioner.) You say you received four payments, of which one was 500*l.* ?—Yes.

43,264. How do you know that; do you recollect it?—Yes, sir, that was a cheque.

43,265. Whose cheque was it?—Mr. Monson's.

43,266. Drawn by Mr. Monson?—Yes.

43,267. Are you quite sure of that?—Yes, sir.

43,268. And was it drawn on you; the money made payable to you?—I think not, not payable to me; it would be made payable to Mr. Humphrey.

43,269. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Who is Mr. Humphrey?—Mr. John Humphrey, the coroner for Middlesex.

43,270. How did it get into your hands?—I called on Mr. Humphrey for it.

43,271. Was it made payable to bearer or order?—I do not know, I went and got the money.

43,272. Do you know whether his name was endorsed on the back of it, or whether there was no endorsement?—I cannot remember that.

43,273. What did you do with the cheque in the first instance?—I went to the bank and got the money.

43,274. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) In London?—Yes.

43,275. (The Chief Commissioner.) What bank?—I cannot tell you the name of the bank, but I can tell you where it is, it is in Fleet-street.

43,276. That would be Hoare's?—Yes.

43,277. You took the cheque to Hoare's, and got it cashed?—Yes, I got it in bank notes.

43,278. And brought the money down here?—Yes, sir.

43,279. I do not wish to go into detail now, but you have told me it was Mr. Monson's cheque?—Yes.

43,280. And when you got the money in bank notes you brought that money down here?—Yes.

43,281. Did you begin at once to pay out of it, or did you first pay it into the bank?—I began to pay out of it.

43,282. Did you make any payments during the election otherwise than by a cheque?—Yes, nearly always.

43,283. What, in money?—Yes, in money.

43,284. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) And not by cheque?—I do not mean to say there were no cheques.

43,285. The Chief Commissioner.) "I began to "pay it away as it was required, in notes." Is that so?—Yes, I did not pay the notes into my bankers.

43,286. Then I understand you to say, "The money "I paid away during the election was in notes, not "cheques." I am not binding you to this, that there were no cheques at all?—Yes, and gold.

43,287. You may have paid away some in cheques?—I have no doubt I have paid away some in cheques.

43,288. Now are you able to tell me whether you had received some other sums before you received this sum of 500*l.*?—I told you that I had.

43,289. I think the better way will be for me to tell you what I think you did receive?—I told you 150*l.*, 50*l.*, and 500*l.*

43,290. And did you not receive on June the 22nd 200*l.*?—Yes, there or thereabouts.

43,291. And did you not also receive on July 4th 300*l.*; that was about a week before the 500*l.*?—Yes; I am telling you this only from having seen that account; I can recollect the amounts, but not the dates.

43,292. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You recollect the amounts?—Yes, I recollect the amounts, but not the dates.

43,293. (The Chief Commissioner.) After the 500*l.*, I think on the 17th July, you received a sum of 200*l.*?—Yes.

43,294. And I think on the 22nd of the same month of July you received 120*l.*?—Yes.

43,295. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Are you speaking from your memory as to the amounts?—And from being refreshed by that (pointing to a document).

43,296. (The Chief Commissioner.) Since your memory has been refreshed by that memorandum, your memory, along with the memorandum, makes you certain as to the amounts?—Yes.

43,297. Are you aware of the whole amount you received from December the 29th to July the 22nd?—By being refreshed, as I have said.

43,298. Is that amount 1,730*l.*?—That is the sum.

43,299. They do really amount to that?—Yes.

43,300. You quite understand I am not binding you to particular dates?—Yes.

43,301. Between the 29th of December and the 22nd of July 1865 the amount was 1,730*l.*?—Yes.

43,302. Were all those monies you received about the election?—The first 200 guineas was for my trouble in getting up the requisition.

43,303. Well, that was about the election?—Yes.

43,304. The requisition to him, Mr. Monson?—Yes, to him.

43,305. When had you got up the requisition, was it before the 29th of December?—The 29th of November, on the night Mr. Gower expressed his intention of not standing.

43,306. And you were appointed agent as you have mentioned?—Yes.

43,307. Then according to your account the 150*l.* you received on the 29th of May was the first money you received especially to pay out?—Yes, sir.

43,308. That was to pay out, was it not?—Yes.

43,309. Had you before used any of the 200 guineas, which was for yourself, to pay out monies?—Yes.

43,310. Do you recollect any person to whom you paid money out of the 200 guineas?—No, I do not.

43,311. You had been helped to get up the requisition by somebody else?—Yes.

43,312. By whom?—By Mr. Thomas Page.

43,313. Was any part of the 200 guineas for anybody else, or was it your own fee?—It was my own fee.

43,314. Can you tell me any person to whom you paid money as early as the 29th of December or the 1st of January?—I think Richard Steer.

43,315. How early?—I cannot bind myself to March, or April, or May.

43,316. You mean some time previous to May, when you received the 150*l.*?—Yes.

43,317. Do you recollect what sum you paid him?—I think 50*l.*

43,318. What money would that come out of then?—My own.

43,319. Then it was out of your own money?—Yes.

43,320. Can you tell me how you paid him, in what shape?—No.

43,321. Whether by cheque or in cash?—No, if it was by cheque my book would show.

43,322. That is the misfortune of not having the pass book here; do you know what it was for you paid Steer?—Yes, I paid it to Steer as his fee to assist me.

43,323. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Was Mr. Steer a voter?—Yes.

43,324. (The Chief Commissioner.) Where does he live?—In Linfield-street.

43,325. There is no name, but are these the stumps of the South-eastern Company's cheques?—Yes.

43,326. At this time you were receiving money and paying it away in May; do you know whether Mr. Hart had been appointed regular head agent then?—I think he had before.

43,327. Perhaps you do not know the date of his appointment?—No, I have forgotten it.

43,328. Then that will answer a previous question, I suppose, that these payments show you were acting independently of Mr. Hart?—Quite so.

43,329. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You did not consult him?—No.

43,330. (The Chief Commissioner.) Now I wish to give you an opportunity, if you please, of stating in what manner you paid out at this earlier time. The first disbursement was the 50*l.*?—No.

TWENTY-NINTH DAY.

J. Nichols.

24 Sept. 1866.

43,331. Quite right; but it comes to the same thing, for when you received the 150*l.* you would reimburse yourself with 50*l.* out of that amount?—Yes.

43,332. Can you tell me any one else to whom you had paid money?—Toplis.

43,333. This is before May the 29th, when you received 150*l.*?—I do not know whether it was before, but it must have been very nearly about that time.

43,334. Are you able to tell me, referring back to the matter about Steer, are you able to tell me, whatever the sum was, whether it was paid by cheque or by notes?—I can't.

43,335. Do you know how much you paid Toplis?—40*l.*

43,336. Was that done during the election?—Yes.

43,337. What was it for; you can tell me that?—There is the agreement (handing a paper writing to the Commissioner).

43,338. (The Chief Commissioner, reading.) "In "consideration of the payment to me of the sum of "40*l.* by Mr. James Nichols"——That is on the 27th of May, therefore it would be about that time?—Yes.

43,339. Are you able to remember any other sums? I am obliged to ask you this, for if it was paid in cash and not in cheques your pass book would not mention it?—No, sir.

43,340. And therefore I can get no information; not from yourself?—No.

43,341. Can you tell me any other sums you paid about May or early in June?—No; I began to disburse pretty freely then.

43,342. And your disbursements were made in cash?—In cash, except in some few instances.

43,343. But generally speaking in cash?—Yes.

43,344. Do you remember paying to any particular person about this time any large sum? Do you remember paying a large sum to any agent?—No, we should be getting on later if we paid large sums.

43,345. So I thought, and that made me ask you the question what payments would be required so early for, as the canvassers had not begun much?—Yes, some of the smaller canvassers would have begun.

43,346. Payments made by you?—Yes.

43,347. First of all I want you to look at this (handing witness a banking book), which seems to be your private account at the London and County Bank. I wish to exhaust this; looking at that, tell me whether you find any payments about May 1865 in reference to the election. I do not think you will, and if not we shall be confining it to the South-eastern Bank?—None, sir.

43,348. You do not find any?—No.

43,349. As far as it does, that appears to be entirely your private account?—Yes.

43,350. I see on the first of July you withdraw your account?—Yes.

43,351. And you did not renew it until the English Joint Stock had failed. You close your account the 20th of July 1865, and you do not reopen your account there until the May following in 1866?—Quite right.

43,352. That appears to be so?—It is right.

43,353. I wish to give you an opportunity of saying whether there are any payments in this book in reference to the election. I think there are not; it is the same question I asked you just now. Just look, you had better. Do you see, when you were appointed on the 29th of November, whether you drew any cheques in that book at that time?—No, sir.

43,354. Then you may keep the book, and I dare say I shall not want it any more, but if I should want it I will ask you for it; it is your own private account at the London and County Bank?—Yes.

43,355. Have you any list to which you can refer for your payments made from the beginning of June and the last payments ending with the election?—Yes (producing a paper writing).

43,356. What is that amount made from?—From memory.

43,357. Will you let me look at it?—Yes (handing paper to the Commissioner).

43,358. This is made recently?—Yes.

43,359. Do you believe that this correctly represents the payments you made?—Yes, pretty nearly so. I dare say there are a few money payments I made that are not down there at all.

43,360. From this you would appear to have received 1,730*l.*, which is the sum already proved to have been received by you, and then there is an account of disbursements to the extent of 1,640*l.*, within a little of a 100*l.* deficient?—There have been several sums mentioned in this Court during this Inquiry that are not down here.

43,361. There was 7*l.* 10*s.* and 15*l.*?—Yes.

43,362. Take that in your hand and, looking at the list, tell me whether you find the name of any person there whom we have not called as a witness. I dare say you know pretty well what has been going on, and I wish to find out whether there are any new names. I did not catch one as I went down it myself?—There is Steer.

43,363. I do not know what gave me the notion Steer was dead?—There is one Steer dead.

43,364. All the others, as far as I know, have been called. I think I know something or other of all of these men; do you not think I do?—Except that item there (pointing to an item in the list).

43,365. I noticed that myself, but all the others I rather think we know?—Yes.

43,366. Now I see one of the items (it had not escaped my notice) is a sum put down for "specials," 110*l.*?—Yes.

43,367. What is that?—We call them roughs.

43,368. That is a great deal more than was paid them?—No.

43,369. Who paid the roughs?—I paid Mr. Jarvis, clerk of the works at Waterlow, 35*l.*

43,370. I was going to exhaust this?—In my account the item for 110*l.* for specials consists of 35*l.*, two thirties, and 35*l.*

43,371. 35*l.* paid to who?—To Mr. Jarvis.

43,372. Who is Mr. Jarvis?—He is clerk to the works on Waterlow's estate.

43,373. Waterlow's estate is an estate being built on down here?—Yes.

43,374. What is his Christian name?—I do not know.

43,375. Is he there now?—That I do not know.

43,376. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Where is he living?—I cannot speak positively to it, but I believe in Hollin's-lane; he is sub-architect and clerk to the works.

43,377. Explain that item of 110*l.*; further, if you can, explain this item about Mr. Jarvis. How do you account for it?—There were other squads than mine.

43,378. Did you pay your sub-agents to pay them?—No, I paid them in my own house.

43,379. You did not pay them through one of their own men?—I recollect one man of the name of Collins to whom I paid a sum of 15*l.* for a squad.

43,380. To be divided among his men?—Yes.

43,381. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Or as you term it, what?—Squad.

43,382. (The Chief Commissioner.) Can you tell me any others?—No, I do not know that I can.

43,383. That is hardly half of it; were there more roughs, specials? I do not care on which side they were, but were there more on Mr. Gower's side?—I think there were more roughs on ours.

43,384. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Deadman paid roughs for you?—Yes.

43,385. (The Chief Commissioner.) Had Deadman and Steer paid any for you?—Yes, but I did not know that until Deadman gave his evidence.

43,386. This sum of 7*l.* 10*s.* you mean should be on this side, as the sum you paid out?—Yes.

43,387. What is this, T. Steer; that is another Steer?—It is Steer the builder.

43,388. Who is Steer the builder, to whom you paid 15*l.*?—He was a builder, living at the bottom of Earlswood-common.

43,389. Is he a builder?—He was a builder; he is dead.

43,390. What did you pay Steer 15*l.* for?—For canvassing; he had several men under him.

43,391. But none of the 15*l.* would go among those men; none of Steer's 15*l.* would go among those men?—No.

43,392. I should like to have the men's names that Steer canvassed?—I dare say he can tell you the names.

43,393. What is Mr. Steer's Christian name?—Richard.

43,394. He has not been called?—No.

43,395. Where does Mr. Richard Steer live?—At Redhill.

43,396. I see, Mr. Nichols, there are no small sums paid out, not to speak of; there is one, Upton 1*l.*?—There were several I paid, but I can't remember now.

43,397. There is Mr. Bolster 2*l.*, and Woodhouse 1*l.*; there are no other small sums?—No; there are a great many sums I paid, but I cannot recollect them.

43,398. I think the sum you paid Mr. Jarvis was not 35*l.* but 31*l.*?—Yes, but then after that he sent in a certain number of his men, and I paid them some money in cash.

43,399. Now, among these cheques I think you will find James Cooke for 2*l.* 15*s.*, which I do not find down here, which will rather go to assist you. Just look at the left hand corner of the book; you may look at anything you like, but in that corner there is Cooke 6*l.* 10*s.*; did you pay it?—Yes.

43,400. Then there is James Cooke 2*l.* 15*s.*?—Yes.

43,401. What, was that with reference to the election? I think I took these different items from the stumps of your cheques?—I cannot tell you.

43,402. That will go to account for some more payments still than those you have made on this list?—Yes.

43,403. Can you tell me whether each of these men was connected with the election?—Finch was.

43,404. Is he down in the list, I did not catch his name?—There is Harman also 5*l.*

43,405. Well, he is not here. What is the date of Finch's cheque?—The 15th of July.

43,406. Is that an election matter?—Yes.

43,407. I wish to get as many names as I can. Joseph Finch said, "After the election Mr. Nichols "paid me 10*l.*;" just scratch him out of my note. What is the next I have named?—Cooke.

43,408. Can you tell me what Cook that is?—Yes; I have no doubt it is the Cook you have had here.

43,409. What is the cheque for?—2*l.* 15*s.*

43,410. Here it is 6*l.* 10*s.*?—It is the same one.

43,411. Then you see he does not agree with you; have you made a mistake, or has he made a mistake?—I do not know.

43,412. Can you tell me what he is?—A bricklayer in Mead-vale.

43,413. Do you know his Christian name?—John Cook.

43,414. What is the payment you have there?—2*l.* 15*s.*

43,415. "John Cook. Mr. Nichols paid me after "the election 8*l.* 10*s.*" At that rate you have not put down near enough?—No.

43,416. Who is right, you or he?—Most likely he.

43,417. Will you be kind enough to take him out? (The witness scratched his name off the list.) What is the next name you have got down from the top?—Mr. Jordan.

43,418. Is that John Jordan?—Richard Jordan.

43,419. Is he down there for seven guineas?—Yes; but I think it has nothing to do with the election.

43,420. If you feel sure of that knock it out. When is that?—October; August you have put.

43,421. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) There is a cheque before and after; it may draw your recollection to the fact?—I do not think it is.

43,422. (The Chief Commissioner.) Take him out of my list, will you; do you know whether he is a voter?—Yes.

43,423. Where does he live?—High-street.

43,424. What is his Christian name?—"Richard "Jordan, High-street, seven guineas."

43,425. Tell me the next. I can read it for you. (The list was handed to the Commissioner.) Harrowell; that had nothing to do with the election?—Yes.

43,426. You are quite sure of that?—Yes; it is J. Harrowell.

43,427. Now at the same date you will find Harman 5*l.*?—What date is Harman?

43,428. The same date, 28th October?—He does not appear to be there at all. It is quite right; that was for a voter.

43,429. Harman was?—Yes.

43,430. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) 27th October, paid under the election?—Yes, at that date.

43,431. (The Chief Commissioner.) What is his name?—George.

43,432. Who is George Harman; where does he live?—At Redhill.

43,433. What is he; I want to know him?—A bricklayer.

Mr. Commissioner Smith stated that George Harman had said on Saturday he received a cheque for 5*l.* from Mr. Nichols.

43,434. (The Chief Commissioner.) Then you ought to have added Harman. Oh, you have begun the name of Harman here?—I did not know it until somebody told me he had given evidence.

43,435. Then you ought to have added Harman; anybody else?—Yes, Finch 10*l.*

43,436. I see on the 7th there is a man named David Pitt 12*l.*; that I struck out myself; I cannot recollect why; did you pay him for his vote?—No.

43,437. 37*l.* 10*s.* and 2*l.* make 39*l.* 10*s.*; just on 40*l.* ought to be added to your list of money paid away, which would make 1,647*l.* into 1,687*l.*; so that you in that way may be said to have accounted, instead of 1,647*l.*, for 1,687*l.*?—Yes.

43,438. Or 1,690*l.*?—Yes. Then there is my pocket money. I must have spent 1*l.* a day for six or eight or ten weeks.

43,439. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Are you enabled, Mr. Nichols, to give a more definite sum of payments to Langridge; you say from 180*l.* to 210*l.*?—I thought he had about 200*l.*

43,440. You put it from 180*l.* to 210*l.*, that is a wide margin; are you able to go closer than that?—No, I am not; from his evidence I cannot do it.

43,441. (The Chief Commissioner.) Then suppose you make it 1,885*l.* you have accounted for, and then there is money you say you have expended as pocket money. Don't say too much. I want everything to be accounted for; keep within the mark?—You see it would not be six weeks right off, because I was not engaged in all the six weeks perhaps on Mr. Monson's business; I mean he would not be charged with all the money I spent.

43,442. Can you give me an estimate; I suppose

TWENTY-NINTH DAY.

J. Nichols.

24 Sept. 1866.

you cannot very accurately do it; but can you give me a kind of estimate of what money you paid out in going about the election business?—I recollect only lately that I stood a dozen of champagne.

43,443. That would be to voters?—To get voters to sign the requisition.

43,444. That is very early; it would come in certainly?—Yes.

43,445. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did those persons afterwards vote for Mr. Monson who signed the requisition?—No.

43,446. (The Chief Commissioner.) You told me in the first instance 210*l.* was paid to you for getting up the requisition?—Yes.

43,447. The 210*l.*, I suppose, was to cover all expenses?—I suppose so.

43,448. Then we will only have money subsequent to that. I do not mean any monies out of pocket, but what probable expense would there be? Can you give us an estimate? It is fair if there was anything it should be deducted in making up your accounts as between you and Mr. Monson?—I think 1*l.* a day would be fair.

43,449. I do not know how many days it would be; at 30 or 40 I think 1*l.* a day would be rather high?—No.

43,450. You would not have much money out of pocket, it would only be this owing to losing amounts in not attending to customers?—Not so.

43,451. How would you make up 1*l.* a day?—If you were to go round and canvass with me you would soon see. I think I ought to be allowed it, it is very just, and I think I ought to be allowed 50*l.*

43,452. Really for expenses?—Yes; because I not only had to spend it myself, but I would very often give to one of my sub-canvassers a sovereign.

43,453. You know more than I do about it, what money you believe you paid out?—I do not know.

43,454. You do not; oh, I dare say you will tell me it, I only want an estimate?—You will recollect it was from the 29th of November till the end of July.

43,455. The thing is this; of course we shall have to consider by-and-by whether we shall think that right. I want you therefore not to make it as a mere shot, but if you really believe your expenses were about 50*l.*, paid from day to day for small sums, say so?—I am quite sure they were.

43,456. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I understand, Mr. Nichols, that includes the whole time?—Yes.

43,457. (The Chief Commissioner.) Well, your own fee you have not put in; that was paid you by Mr. Hart?—Yes.

43,458. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) How much?—100 guineas.

43,459. (The Chief Commissioner.) As far as you had opportunity, did you settle with each of the sub-agents what amounts you had paid to them at the time you made out this account?—No.

43,460. For example, Toplis 40*l.*, did you go and confer with Toplis what you paid him?—No; because I had an agreement with him. I did not believe he would keep his word.

43,461. Do not let us say that of anybody in his absence. I see here Francis 30*l.*; is that Henry Rose Francis?—Yes.

43,462. Did you go over with Francis at the time you made this account?—Yes; I asked how much he had.

43,463. And the same with all the other sub-agents?—Yes; I think some had more and some less.

43,464. Had you any means of knowing what they had received from you?—No.

43,465. None at all?—None at all.

43,466. In order to make up this account which is put in, you went to each of the sub-agents in it to ascertain how much they had had?—I saw them.

43,467. You had no means of knowing yourself, is that so?—Yes.

43,468. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Had you never taken any memorandum?—No.

43,469. Never taken any?—No.

43,470. (The Chief Commissioner.) Here is a man named Clark, I see him put down for 35*l.*; how did you ascertain you paid him 35*l.*?—Only from his evidence. I had not spoken to him. I recollect about the 10*l.* he had.

43,471. Do you mean you learnt from his evidence here?—Yes. I did not know exactly how much he had had.

43,472. Do you know nearly. If you recollect he said he had had 10*l.* which was owing him the previous election?—Yes; I recollect all that he said.

43,473. I think that he went to ask for it, and could not get it, and he came to you and told you the same story, and you handed over as it were the debt of Mr. Smith?—He said it was my debt when he came to me; he worked with me at the previous election.

43,474. And you gave him money, or a cheque for 10*l.*?—Yes; I said "I will pay you that, and have "done with it."

43,475. How did you pay him?—I do not know; most likely in two 5*l.* notes.

43,476. When have you any recollection of paying Clark any more than the 10*l.*?—I paid him some just before the polling day.

43,477. You do not know how much?—No.

43,478. Have you any recollection of making any payment to the man Mr. Clark?—He was always coming to me for more money.

43,479. If he had given no evidence at all here——?—I should have put him down for 20*l.*

43,480. But you do not recollect any money that you handed over to him except the 10*l.*?—No.

43,481. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I think he did not vote, did he?—No.

43,482. (The Chief Commissioner.) How was it that he did not vote?—I cannot tell you, unless he thought it was coming to a close contest.

43,483. Now I see there is a man named Woodman entered for 35*l.*?—Yes.

43,484. Do you know anything at all about that?—I think I paid him for his house 12*l.*, and then for some refreshments.

43,485. Do you know how you paid him?—No, I do not know; I think I handed him a 10*l.* note and two sovereigns at first.

43,486. That would be 12*l.* Do you recollect in what other way you paid him?—I do not.

43,487. Can you not give me any more information about Woodman. You remember you did pay him 12*l.* for his house?—Yes; and I paid him 5*l.* in my own house.

43,488. How do you mean?—At my own house.

43,489. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He says he gave you a receipt?—No.

43,490. (The Chief Commissioner.) He said he thought he did?—No, I never took receipts from any of them.

43,491. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Why did you not take receipts from any of them, had you any reason for it?—Yes.

43,492. What was it?—So that I should not have any to produce.

43,493. You are a man of business, you understand conducting your own affairs; you say you never took a receipt from any of them. Did not Francis give you a receipt; you paid Francis a large sum of money?—Yes, I took a receipt.

43,494. What has become of that?—Mr. Hart has got it, I think.

43,495. For what amount was the receipt?—5*l.*

43,496. You paid him 60*l.*?—Between 50*l.* and 60*l.*

43,497. (The Chief Commissioner.) Mr. Francis said he received 50*l.* in his evidence?—Yes; I think he had nearly 60*l.*

43,498. Do you account in any way why you gave a receipt for 5*l.* ?—Why I took a receipt ?

43,499. Yes, you are quite right ?—I had the money from Mr. Hart.

43,500. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You had the 5*l.* from Mr. Hart ?—Yes ; it was a long time after the election.

43,501. That is not brought into your account at all ?—No.

43,502. Do you know a man named John Peters ?—Yes.

43,503. Do you know how John Peters voted ?—No.

43,504. Did you canvass him ?—Yes.

43,505. He is a bricklayer, or something of that kind. I think you have canvassed the man. John Peters is the man I mean ?—I am quite sure.

43,506. Do you know anything about John Peters ?—No further than that he lives near here.

43,507. He is a bricklayer ?—A builder ; something of the kind. Yes, a bricklayer.

43,508. Do you know how he voted ?—I do not think he voted at all.

43,509. So he said. Do you recollect speaking to somebody about him just before the election, either on the nomination day, or the day before that ?—No, I do not think I did.

43,510. Do you recollect his being at your house ?—No.

43,511. The man himself, you know who I mean, you have got him in your mind's eye ?—Oh, very well indeed.

43,512. Do you remember his being in the house on the nomination day ?—I think very likely he was there.

43,513. You do not remember him at present. Did you hand him a letter ?—No.

43,514. Did he tell you that he had received a letter, either on the nomination day or the day before ?—No.

43,515. Did he not ?—No.

43,516. Were you aware that on the nomination day or the day before that he had received a letter ?—No.

43,517. About his vote ?—No.

43,518. You are sure of that ?—Quite sure.

43,519. Do you remember his coming to you and asking you about not voting ?—No, I do not remember it at all.

43,520. You knew that he was on Mr. Gower's committee, did you not ?—Yes.

43,521. It was rather an odd thing that he should be at your house, an opposition house ?—No.

43,522. Why ?—That is the house where they used to meet, both sides used to meet there.

43,523. At your house ?—Yes.

43,524. Both sides met there ?—Yes ; we used to have some good-humoured chaff there.

43,525. You knew that the man was on Mr. Gower's committee ?—I did not know that ; I canvassed him, and he told me he should vote for Mr. Gower, and I said no more to him.

43,526. Are you aware of his receiving a letter after that ?—No.

43,527. You are not ?—Not at all.

43,528. Did you hear that he received a letter about his vote ?—No, I do not recollect anything at all about it.

43,529. Do you recollect hearing that he received any notice to go to London ?—I have only heard it from what came out the other day in evidence.

43,530. You did not know it before ?—No.

43,531. Do you mean that he was known to you ?—Well known.

43,532. Were you aware at that time that he was going to London on the following day ?—Not at all.

43,533. Were you aware what time he came back from London ?—Not at all.

43,534. Do you know anything of the transaction about his receiving a letter telling him to go to London on particular business on the polling day ?—Not one word.

43,535. I suppose you sent the 5*l.* receipt to Mr. Hart to induce him to believe it was only 5*l.* you paid ?—Mr. Hart knew that Francis had been working.

43,536. I suppose you sent the receipt for 5*l.* to induce him to believe that was all you paid ?—No, I do not know how it was; I think Mr. Hart paid Francis for some work, I think he sent me a cheque to pay several small sums.

43,537. The receipt to Mr. Hart was to tell Mr. Hart "This is what I paid Francis" ?—Mr. Hart sent the money.

43,538. You say you disbursed the money rather freely, Mr. Nichols ; I want to call your attention to that, it struck me at the time. Do you recollect a man named Spence, who has been examined, a great friend of yours ?—I am a great friend of his.

43,539. I mean that ; I will call your attention to it ; his story was this, that being a very poor man, and coming up from Brighton upon an invitation of a letter of yours, he paid his own expenses and paid the expenses of another man with him besides himself and never asked you for a farthing ?—Yes.

43,540. How was that ?—I believe the man owing me so much was ashamed to ask me, or I should have given him 10*l.*

43,541. How much did he owe you ? It struck me as money was plentiful and the money was flying about and that the man should be so treated I did not believe him ; you know the man well ?—Yes.

43,542. Have you set it off in your account ?—No, I had no opportunity, he is so very poor.

43,543. Did you set it off as against the expense that he incurred ?—No.

43,544. Did you take off any of his account to you ?—No, I will tell you that perhaps it is all taken off; I shall never get a halfpenny of it.

43,545. What is the amount of it ?—What he owes me altogether ?

43,546. I do not want to go into private affairs ?—Well, about 30*l.*

43,547. Did you undertake any obligation for him ?—I did ; the first obligation I undertook for him was, I compounded with his creditors about 25 years ago ; I paid the money myself.

43,548. You undertook obligations for him ?—Yes.

43,549. And were at a loss in those ?—Yes ; then after that I became security for him for a small amount ; I did not benefit myself : besides I thought if he borrowed of somebody else he would endeavour to pay it.

43,550. You were owed 30*l.* ?—Yes.

43,551. Anything else ?—At my shop ——

43,552. Oh, never mind ; why did you not charge this as against Mr. Monson ?—I tell you if the man had come to me I should have given him 5*l.*

43,553. Why did you not charge it ?—I have not charged it, it is an omission of mine.

43,554. That is the explanation you give of the transaction with Spence ?—Yes, and I have to say for the man that I believe he told you every word the truth that he remembered.

43,555. Did he ask you at all for any money ?—No.

43,556. (The Chief Commissioner.) Harman and Finch are the only two names you have given us ; I want to get new names from you ; what is Finch's Christian name ?—Joe ; you have had him.

43,557. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Who is A. Joyes ?—My nephew, Alfred Joyes.

43,558. (The Chief Commissioner.) Then Harman is the only new name you give us ?—He was examined on Saturday.

43,559. Then you have not given us a single new name ?—I have given Mr. De Rutzen two or three names ; I do not know whether they have been called or not.

TWENTY-NINTH DAY.

J. Nichols.

24 Sept. 1866.

43,560. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Who is Alfred Joyes ?—My nephew.

43,561. We have not had him ?—No.

43,562. Is he a voter ?—Yes.

43,563. (The Chief Commissioner.) Where does he live ?—In Reigate.

43,564. Who is Charndon and Co. ?—Those are the names mentioned to Mr. De Rutzen; I do not know whether they have been called; it is not my wish to give them.

43,565. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You are bound to do it, you know that ?—Yes.

43,566. (The Chief Commissioner.) We called a man named Hoyle ?—Howell; no, I do not think you have.

43,567. Who is Howell ?—He lived in Warwicktown.

43,568. What is his Christian name ?—William.

43,569. What Rose is that to whom you paid 21*l.* ?—Ephraim Rose.

43,570. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You are quite certain it was 21*l.* ?—I am pretty certain.

43,571. Do you take that from your own recollection, or from information you received from Rose ?—From my own recollection.

43,572. Have you asked Rose what the amount was ?—No, I heard him give his statement here.

43,573. There is 12*l.* 10*s.* ?—That was for himself, the 12*l.* 10*s.*

43,574. I see here on the 4th of September there is an entry, "John Humphreys, 47*l.* 1*s.* 7*d.*," the name you have mentioned in connexion with the election as having received money ?—Yes, but that has nothing to do with the election; if you give me the cheque book I will tell you.

43,575. There was a person of the name of William Barnes, 40*l.* in '65; had that reference to the election ?—No.

43,576. John Reeves, another name we have heard of, 30*l.* was paid to him; was that in reference to the election ?—I do not know.

43,577. It would be somewhere in October '65 ?—I do not think so.

43,578. I see there is a cheque drawn in blank, did you draw any cheques in blank ?—I should very likely lend it to a customer; no, I never drew cheques in blank.

43,579. Not on account of the election ?—No.

43,580. That you are certain about ?—Well, I do not know.

43,581. I ask you that question for this reason, because I find on the 4th of March '65 there is a cheque drawn in blank, that is so on the counterfoil in favour of Thomas Page ?—I cannot tell you.

43,582. Have you any recollection with regard to that cheque ?—No; the pass book will show it.

43,583. Given to Thomas Page for his use; there is the counterfoil, see if that draws it to your recollection ?—"Given to Thomas Page for his use" blank.

43,584. Will you explain that ?—Yes.

43,585. Had that reference to the election ?—No, I gave him one of my cheques for him to get one himself; you see he put that on to let me know what had become of it.

43,586. Then there was nothing paid to Thomas Page on the 4th of March on account of the election ?—He wrote that cheque for himself.

43,587. We know as a fact that Mr. Thomas Page did take an active part in the election, and I thought it necessary to ask for an explanation ?—It is his handwriting.

43,588. You say that for pocket money you had expended 50*l.*; at times you would pay a sovereign or so to canvassers ?—Yes.

43,589. Can you name any canvasser to whom you have paid a sovereign in that way ?—Yes, I think I can; William Waters was one, I think.

43,590. Is he a voter ?—Yes.

43,591. I do not think we have had him here ?—No, I have given his name in.

43,592. That is one of the names you have given in ?—Yes.

43,593. Can you recollect any other canvasser to whom you paid a sovereign in that way, or money in that way ?—No, unless it was to some of his workmen in the shop; fellow workmen.

43,594. On what account or occasion would you pay the sovereign to any of the canvassers ?—When we have been out of a night, and I have been stopping with them, to amuse the company I would perhaps give one of them a sovereign.

43,595. To expend in the amusement of the company ?—Yes.

43,596. Is that what you mean by being put to the expense of a sovereign upon an average, when you were out amusing the voters at entertainments ?—I do not mean altogether that; for instance, if I was at Redhill or any other pleasant part of the parish, there might be three or four of us would have lunch.

43,597. Then you would pay ?—Yes.

43,598. If you were out of an evening, probably it would be attending one of the houses which were open for the entertainment of the voters ?—Yes.

43,599. And then you would pay ?—I would sometimes.

43,600. Would it be as towards those expenses the pocket money would go ?—Partly.

43,601. And your lunch and so on for which you would have to pay being out ?—Yes.

43,602. But mainly, I suppose, you would put the 50*l.* for the expenses incurred in treating the voters of an evening ?—Yes.

43,603. Now in reference to the payment of the roughs; I think you told us that you paid them yourself ?—Some of them.

43,604. Excepting upon the occasion when you had given a person of the name of Collins 15*l.* to pay his squad ?—The day after the election.

43,605. In what way were those men paid ?—Well, about 5*s.* a day.

43,606. When would they be paid ?—The most respectable would wait perhaps till after the election; others who were strangers would get their money of a morning.

43,607. Would they come to your house at the "Grapes" to be paid ?—I recollect they did once, about a hundred of them.

43,608. Did you pay them then, or were they paid ?—I paid them in squads to get rid of them; I picked out one as a foreman, I gave him something to take his lot away somewhere else.

43,609. That was done just in the same way that you paid Collins for his squad ?—No, I think Collins's were Dorking men, I do not know.

43,610. I understand you would get the man and divide them in squads, and appoint a captain; you would pay to the captain, and they would pay the under men ?—There was no captain.

43,611. Those were the strangers ?—Yes.

43,612. Then those who were known to you, would they be paid by the week, or by the day, or after the election ?—By the day; for about three days.

43,613. About every three days ?—No, about three days they were paid.

43,614. They were not employed only three days before the election ?—No, I employed them to swell the show of hands and shout.

43,615. Now we will just pass from that point for the moment, we may want to refer to it by-and-by; there are two Shepherds here ?—Yes, the same Shepherd you had here.

43,616. Then there are two names ?—Yes; I recollect from an accident the other day that I paid him 9*l.* for two of the railway men.

43,617. (The Chief Commissioner.) He says he received 5*l.* for himself, and the other 4*l.* 10*s.* was returned by Tilden Barham, and you said when he brought it back, "Oh, keep it for yourself." That only makes it 9*l.* 10*s.*, I have got that down 9*l.* 10*s.* ?—That was not for Tilden Barham.

43,618. He said so?—Yes.

43,619. He received altogether 19*l.*?—From me.

43,620. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) For himself?—No; 9*l.* was for two railway men for three weeks pay.

43,621. (The Chief Commissioner.) Who were they?—Burlton was one.

43,622. We have had him?—Yes, I think you have had all.

43,623. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Was the 10*l.* for himself?—Yes.

43,624. He only got 5*l.*; what I understand you to say is that he got 10*l.* for himself?—He went somewhere into Berkshire for a voter, he went down to canvass him, and then he went to fetch him up to vote.

43,625. Did you pay him the 10*l.* independently of anything for Tilden Barham?—I paid him 10*l.* altogether for himself and expenses.

43,626. (The Chief Commissioner.) Plus his expenses?—Including his expenses.

43,627. Now this man William Clark, do you recollect how you paid him?—10*l.* first, and then 5*l.* at a time.

43,628. You did not give him any cheque?—I do think I did.

43,629. Did he send any men to you?—No, he used to come to me and report who he heard were to be got.

43,630. Did he tell you how they were to be got?—Yes.

43,631. In what way?—By paying them.

43,632. At what period of time did you pay him those 5*l.*?—I should think all within three weeks.

43,633. Was there any agreement as to the rate at which he was to be paid?—He wanted 20*l.*

43,634. He wanted 20*l.*, yes?—And then I think the arrangement was so much per week.

43,635. How much a week?—I forget.

43,636. If he wanted only 20*l.*, how did he come to receive 35*l.*?—Because he had 10*l.*, I explained to you, for what he alleged I owed him for the election before.

43,637. On the part of Mr. Gower?—Yes, and I told Mr. Monson that.

43,638. And you told Mr. Monson?—Yes.

43,639. Did you receive from Mr. Monson any authority to pay him?—No; I told him that there were some engagements which I had not fulfilled at the last election, I should have to fulfil them if he had the men.

43,640. Did you mention to him that Clark was one of them?—No.

43,641. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) At the last election of '63 you had been acting for Mr. Gower?—Yes.

43,642. Those claims which were then being made upon you were in reference to the debts of Mr. Gower's election in '63?—Yes.

43,643. Mr. Monson was aware that you acted in '63 for Mr. Gower?—Yes.

43,644. And that those were such debts?—I did not mention any particular case.

43,645. But it was in reference to the election of '63?—Yes.

43,646. That you distinctly told Mr. Monson?—Yes.

43,647. (The Chief Commissioner.) You told him that there would be certain debts which you would have arising from other elections, and you could not have the men unless you paid them for previous occasions?—Quite so.

43,648. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I just want to follow this question: at the time that you told Mr. Monson that you had those liabilities you have stated, which you must pay to get them over to his side, had you then monies of Mr. Monson in your possession?—Yes.

43,649. For the purposes of the election?—Yes.

43,650. And after that did you receive further monies from Mr. Monson?—Yes.

43,651. For the purposes of the election?—Yes.

43,652. (The Chief Commissioner.) Just tell me this, if you please; you kept no account; after the election was over did you give Mr. Monson himself a detailed account of your expenditure?—No.

43,653. Have you ever done so?—No.

43,654. You have not accounted to him in any way whatever for the 1,730*l.* you have received?—No, he has never asked me.

43,655. Then there is just another matter about which I need not detain you long; in 1863 you were for Mr. Gower?—Yes.

43,656. Are you able to tell me how much was paid through your hands on that occasion, '63?—I am only enabled to tell by Mr. Smith having told me that he paid me so much money.

43,657. You can only tell from what Mr. Smith told you you received so much money from him; how much?—Over 100*l.*, I think 130*l.*

43,658. Do you know what your own remuneration was?—I got 75*l.* out of 100*l.*

43,659. You received 130*l.* How do you mean out of 100*l.*?—That was to pay away; it was expressly given to me by Mr. Smith to pay away.

43,660. Now, in addition to that, what did you receive for your own remuneration?—75*l.*, or guineas.

43,661. Do you know how much you did pay away; in fact, had you any account at all?—No; Mr. Smith has I think.

43,662. Who would he get it from?—From me at the time.

43,663. Do you think you gave him an account?—Yes.

43,664. Are you sure?—Yes.

43,665. You told him what it was for?—I told him by word of mouth or by paper.

43,666. Will you look at that list. (A document was handed to the witness.) You will see it headed '63, just look at that, I do not want to detain you long about this at present; do you think you paid more?—Yes.

43,667. There are some few sums to add?—Yes. There are some; particularly that I paid away for special constables, between 30*l.* and 40*l.*

43,668. Tell me shortly this, I want to corroborate these things, are you able to tell me whether in the election of 1859 you paid Palmer, Allen, and Tyrrell; do you remember anything about it?—Yes.

43,669. 1*l.*, 2*l.* 10*s.*, and one guinea?—I cannot tell the sums.

43,670. That is what they state?—Yes.

43,671. I must give you an opportunity of contradicting or confirming it. Palmer 1*l.*, John Allen 2*l.* 10*s.*, and Tyrrell one guinea?—Yes.

43,672. Who were you for in 1859?—Mr. Monson.

43,673. What was your fee?—I do not recollect.

43,674. About?—About 100*l.*, I should think.

43,675. Now I want to know how much you paid away in that election of 1859; how much did you receive to pay away in the first instance?—I do not know at all.

43,676. Was it a good large sum?—No.

43,677. Who did you receive the 100*l.* from, who paid you?—Mr. Hart.

43,678. That was your own fee?—Yes.

43,679. Can you tell me how much money you received to pay away?—Mr. Hart can tell you I think.

43,680. Can you tell me what your own fee was when you were engaged in 1858 at the second election, the election at the end of the year, in October?—That would be the first election of Mr. Monson?

43,681. Yes, quite right?—I cannot tell you.

43,582. Can you tell me anything about it; all I know at present is that you paid a man of the name of John Allen 2*l.*?—Yes, all those men; I would give the account to Mr. Hart.

43,683. You do not know what you paid?—I think it will show in the election accounts.

TWENTY-NINTH DAY.

J. Nichols.

24 Sept. 1866.

43,684. It would be in Mr. Hart's accounts?—Yes.

43,685. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) John Lane was one man in '58?—I cannot remember.

43,686. (The Chief Commissioner.) Now in the first election in 1858 were you for Mr. Doulton; that was in Mr. Doulton's election?—No.

43,687. Who were you for then?—Sir Henry Rawlinson.

43,688. Were you one of the agents?—Yes.

43,689. You were agent or sub-agent then I suppose. Who did you receive money from first?—I think we had an account at the bank, and I signed the cheques. Mr. Smith and Mr. Morrison were the joint agents, I was something under them; I do not know what I was.

43,690. Who paid you if you received anything?—Mr. Smith or Mr. Morrison.

43,691. What did you receive for yourself at that election?—Sixty guineas.

43,692. Did you receive money to pay away?—No doubt of it.

43,693. But you do not know how much?—No.

43,694. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) On behalf of Sir Henry Rawlinson?—Yes.

43,695. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Those large sums of money you received from Mr. Monson, 1,730*l.*?—Yes.

43,696. I want to know when you applied for those large sums of money did you state to Mr. Monson what you wanted the monies for?—No.

43,697. And I want to know how it was that Mr. Monson supplied you with those large sums of money, on what account?—On account of the election.

43,698. And how did you expend them?—In any way I thought proper.

43,699. Did you inform Mr. Monson that those monies were being expended for the purchase of votes?—No.

43,700. Or securing the votes?—No.

43,701. Or putting the men on for employment?—I never told him how I was spending the money at all.

43,702. Will you be good enough to tell me when it was you had that interview with Mr. Monson and informed him that there were claims against you due from the previous election and you must have money to secure those voters. I will draw your attention to Clark's case?—I did not tell him I wanted money from him to secure their votes, because I had got money.

43,703. You did tell Mr. Monson that you would require money, or that money would be required, to secure those men, you would have to pay their debts?—Yes.

43,704. I want to know how long before the election it was when you told Mr. Monson that fact?—I cannot tell you.

43,705. Will this call it to your recollection, the application of William Clark to you for the 10*l.*?—No, that does not. I recollect now, there were four men I think I canvassed.

43,706. Does "William Clark," who had claims upon you for the '63 election, call it to your recollection?—There were four men, and I asked them if they would assist me in the election.

43,707. Who?—William Waters was one.

43,708. Let me have the names?—I cannot give you the names. Waters, I think, will give you the names. Greenfield was I think another.

43,709. And another to make the fourth?—Candin. I will not be certain about Candin. They reminded me by saying that it would be all very well, but they had nothing for the last election; I gave them 1*l.* a piece.

43,710. That would be a very small draw upon the balance that you had in hand?—What balance?

43,711. Of Mr. Monson's monies?—Oh, I am telling you shortly; there were only those four or five names I was reminded of at the last election.

43,712. Then will that, in reference to those names, call your attention to the date when you had that conversation with Mr. Monson that you have been speaking of, with reference to discharging the debts of '63?—No, I cannot tell you. I should think it was one day at the "White Hart."

43,713. When you told Mr. Monson that you had to discharge those debts of '63 to secure the men, what did Mr. Monson say to you?—I do not know that he made any reply.

43,714. Did he dissent from your dealing with those votes and paying those debts of '63?—I do not recollect that he did.

43,715. You do not recollect that he did?—No.

43,716. Do you recollect whether he assented?—Well, if he did not tell me not to do it he assented.

43,717. Now I do not exactly understand yet the relations between you and Mr. Monson; why was it that Mr. Monson supplied to you those large sums of money and did not pay them to Mr. Hart?—I suppose he thought I should do it best.

43,718. You see you had voted for Mr. Gower in the previous election of 1863?—Yes.

43,719. When Mr. Wilkinson was a candidate?—Yes.

43,720. And now you were going against Mr. Gower?—Yes.

43,721. There must have been some conversation between you and Mr. Monson before those large sums of money were advanced to you, as to how they should be applied?—I do not think there was, but I expect he knew.

43,722. But surely it could not have been that you went to Mr. Monson and said, "Well, be good enough "to give me a cheque for 500*l.*" I think Mr. Monson would have said, "What are you going to do with "500*l.*"?

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Letters must have passed.

43,723. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Letters or conversation?—Conversation. I told him that I wanted more money, and I had it.

43,724. No, he would say, "That was a very large "sum of money I handed over to you, how have you "got rid of all that money," beforehand?—He never did.

43,725. Did Mr. Monson attend the committees?—Yes.

43,726. Did you attend the committees?—Yes.

43,727. When you were in committee was it not a subject-matter of talk and conversation as to how the election was being carried on, and what was being done?—It depended on what sort of a committee it was.

43,728. Were there two sorts of committees?—Three or four sorts.

43,729. Then may I take it, I may understand that there were some secret committees?—I had my room, and I only had those people in there whom I wanted.

43,730. Was Mr. Monson ever present when, I will use that term for the committee, the secret committee were discussing?—No.

43,731. You rather adopt that term of secret committee, you really understand what I mean by it?

43,732. You understand what is meant by secret committee?—I should not have the chairman of the committee in the room, nor the deputy chairman, nor the candidate.

43,733. Not when you were discussing these particular applications of money matters?—Certainly not.

43,734. Were you aware of any money being spent or offered on the other side before you began to pay any away?—I cannot say.

43,735. We had one witness before, named Henry Francis, who made a very great boast that he was dispensing the money to test the purity of the election; I only wish to ask you this, you supplied Henry Francis with that money?—Yes.

43,736. I only want to ask you, do you adopt that phrase of Francis's, that the money was expended to try the purity of the borough ?—Not at all.

43,737. Then, when you supplied that money to Henry Francis there was no doubt about it, it was for the purpose of bribing; the thing is patent ?—You would not believe me if I said it was not, would you ?

43,738. (The Chief Commissioner.) The money was to secure votes ?—Yes, of course; it is most undeniable.

43,739. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You had an interview with Mr. Monson in November, when you were made his agent; when you went to Burton Hall ?—That was in September.

43,740. When were you made his agent, that is what I want to know ?—Then.

43,741. Had you not any interview with him before you received the first cheque ? I think you had; you would be more likely to have ?—I do not recollect it.

43,742. You either had an interview with him or you wrote to him, one or the other ?—Yes, I had seen him no doubt.

43,743. Now, I will pass over the cheque for the requisition, and come to the cheque in May; you had seen him before you received that first cheque in May ?—Very often.

43,744. I will ask you, was it not arranged between you and him that you should have money unknown to anybody else; unknown to his agent, Mr. Hart, and unknown to anybody else but you and him ?—It was a tacit arrangement.

43,745. It was an arrangement ?—Yes, Mr. Monson understood it very well; there were no words to that effect.

43,746. At that time Mr. Monson had known that you had been engaged in the previous elections ?—Yes, I was with Lord Monson twice.

43,747. From time to time you received these cheques. How was it that the cheque for 500*l.* was made out in the name of Mr. Humphrey, and not you ?—I cannot tell you why.

43,748. I think I could suggest it, I think you can tell me, Mr. Nichols, I mean applying you reason, and judgment, and experience to it; was it not done as a blind ?—Yes, and a very bad one too.

43,749. It was intended, as it were, to prevent the knowledge of so much money passing from your bank; that was the object of it ?—No doubt.

43,750. You said it was a very bad blind, and I do not dispute it; therefore it was not your contrivance ?—No.

43,751. What I meant was that you are more experienced. Who advanced that; Mr. Monson himself, was it not ?—I do not know.

43,752. It came from Mr. Monson to you ?—When I got the cheque it was made payable to Mr. Humphrey.

43,753. So far as you knew, it was a draft of Mr. Monson's himself ?—Yes.

43,754. As between you and him ?—As between him and me.

43,755. At present it rests on the two actors; we have the two actors on the scene. It came from Mr. Monson, you told us that the cheque was made out on Mr. Monson ?—No.

43,756. He must have written to you ?—I had an intimation it was at Mr. Humphrey's office.

43,757. Then of course the cheque was made payable, I suppose, to Mr. Humphrey or order ?—I think so.

43,758. Then Mr. Humphrey's name would be on the back of it ?—I think so.

43,759. Then of course you presented it ? It would be difficult to trace you; do you recollect from whom you had the intimation to go to Mr. Humphrey's office; one would not like to go to a Coroner's office without some intimation ?—I think I had it from Mr. Monson.

43,760. And he told you that you would receive a cheque there ?—I am not certain.

43,761. A cheque or a communication ?—I was to go there; I perfectly understood what it was for.

43,762. What time was that; was it coming close upon the election ?—Yes, on Thursday or Friday, the week before.

43,763. You had told him then that the prospects were rather blank with money; something like that ?—Yes.

43,764. And I believe, I am only testing your recollection, I think you have a very good recollection indeed; I believe some of the cheques were also drawn by Mr. Monson, not in your favour, but "pay "self or bearer ?—Quite right.

43,765. That would be exactly for the same purpose to prevent the tracing of the cheques into your hands ?—Yes.

43,766. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you understand at the time that cheques were drawn in that way, so that they should not be so easily traced ?—I have told you all about it.

43,767. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Then I suppose they would not know where you bank, by your paying them into your banker's, because the proper course would be to go and present them at the bank on which they were drawn, where you were a stranger, and pay it into your own bank; that would be the course you would adopt ?—We did not pay it into the bank.

43,768. You would go to London, change the cheque and receive the money, and the bank down here would know nothing about it; you would pay the money as cash into your banker's, so that there would be no trace ?—Yes.

43,769. It is useless after that to ask you whether you kept Mr. Monson acquainted with that course of business between you ?—I told him how I was getting on.

43,770. You were not one of the petitioners against the bribery, were you ?—No.

The witness was informed that if he was required again he would be sent for.

The witness then withdrew.

JAMES NICHOLS's examination continued.

J. Nichols.

43,771. (The Chief Commissioner.) Mr. Nichols, after consideration it appears to us we have another question or two to ask you about your own account. You recollect that you stated that you had received the sum of 1,730*l.* ?—Yes.

43,772. Well, then, as to the way in which you have disposed of that 1,730*l.* I have got your own account before me; the first item in which is that you paid yourself (you have told us why) for the expenses of the requisition, 210*l.* ?—Yes.

43,773. Well, then, the next item is, Toplis 40*l.* Did you pay Toplis 40*l.* ?—Yes, by cheque.

43,774. By cheque ?—I think so.

43,775. The next is Langridge, put down from 180*l.* to 210*l.* ?—Yes.

43,776. According to Langridge's evidence; he says he talked the matter over with you, and that the sum was 180*l.* ?—Yes. When he first talked it over he said that he must have had 200*l.*, or a little over.

43,777. When he talked it over with you ?—Yes.

43,778. Very well ?—And afterwards he told me that he was quite sure the sum was 180*l.*

43,779. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You adopt

TWENTY-NINTH DAY.

J. Nichols.

that ?—I do not recollect it so well, though I do not think it was more.

43,780. (The Chief Commissioner.) You have put it down in your account at from 180*l.* to 210*l.*; therefore we must let it stand at the sum of 180*l.*, which he himself fixes ?—Well, he is a very good fellow. I do not think he would say wrong.

43,781. It is not of much importance, but the effect of that will be to leave 30*l.* more for you to account for. Then Francis you say you have paid 60*l.* ?—Yes.

43,782. Is that correct ?—Yes.

43,783. Did you pay Corderoy 80*l.* ?—Yes.

43,784. Did you pay James Apted 80*l.* ?—A little more or less.

43,785. More or less ?—Yes.

43,786. What do you mean by "more or less" ?—It might have been 5*l.* more or 5*l.* less.

43,787. You limit it in that way ?—Well, he does not know, and I do not know.

43,788. Then there is Ireland. Is Ireland dead ?—Yes.

43,789. Ireland, you say, you paid 45*l.* to ?—Yes.

43,790. You paid to Reed 50*l.* ?—Yes.

43,791. You paid to Holdsworth 60*l.* ?—Yes. I think I paid him rather more; I do not know.

43,792. But you have put him down here as receiving 60*l.* from you ?—Yes. I say I paid him rather more; when I reckon some champagne, and one or two things I paid for in the house.

43,793. Moody you say you paid 30*l.* to ?—Yes.

43,794. Wallis you paid 25*l.* to ?—Yes.

43,795. Jordan you say you paid 130*l.* to ?—Yes.

43,796. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Thomas Jordan ?—Yes. I think he said so here.

43,797. (The Chief Commissioner.) Rose, you say you paid 21*l.* to ?—Yes.

(Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Ephraim ?

43,798. (The Chief Commissioner.) Ephraim Rose, Grutchfield, you say you paid 15*l.* ?—Yes.

43,799. To Turner you say you paid 7*l.* 10*s.* ? To Bolster you paid 2*l.* He was an ordinary voter, wasn't he ?—He was a man that came up from Haslemere, I think.

43,800. To Golding 5*l.* ?—Yes.

43,801. To Westlake 4*l.* 10*s.* ?—Yes. He said in his evidence he had 4*l.* or 3*l.* 10*s.*

43,802. But you did pay him 4*l.* ?—Yes.

43,803. Barker you say you paid 10*l.* ?—Yes.

43,804. Then I see you have inserted an item for specials; will you explain, "Specials 110*l.*" ?—Yes.

43,805. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was that the exact sum ?—Well, it may have been two or three pounds more, or two or three pounds less.

43,806. (The Chief Commissioner.) Then you say you paid to Gilbert 5*l.* ?—Well, he said so here, or else I did not know it.

43,807. And to Fuller 5*l.* ?—Yes.

43,808. You say you paid to Ridge 50*l.* ?—Yes, 50*l.* or 55*l.* I will put it at 50*l.*

43,809. You say you paid to Clark 35*l.* ?—Yes.

43,810. And to Cotton 12*l.* ?—Yes.

43,811. And did you pay to Howell 15*l.* ?—I believe I did.

43,812. Have we had Howell ?—No, I do not think you have.

43,813. Then did you pay to J. Brown 10*l.* ? That is Joseph Brown, isn't it ?—No, James Brown.

43,814. Did you pay James Brown 10*l.* ?—Yes.

43,815. You say you paid to Woodhouse 3*l.* ?—I believe so.

43,816. And you paid to Kenward 5*l.* ?—That is all Kenward had for himself.

43,817. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) He had monies to distribute, didn't he ?—Yes; not from me.

43,818. Did James Brown have money to distribute from you ?—Well, he had 5*l.* for himself.

43,819. He was Carruthers' man ?—Yes. He was considered to have 5*l.* for himself.

43,820. He was not a voter ?—No.

43,821. He was distributing money to some of Carruthers' men ?—Yes, I think so.

43,822. Amongst the plasterers, I think ?—I do not know whether they were Carruthers' men, but he was to some men.

43,823. He was working for Carruthers ?—Yes.

43,824. And did he have more money than that to distribute ?—Not from me.

43,825. Do you know whom he got the money from ?—I do not know. I should think that it is likely he got money from Apted.

43,826. From James Apted ?—Yes.

43,827. James Apted got money from you ?—Yes.

43,828. (The Chief Commissioner.) You say you paid Woodman 35*l.* ?—Yes.

43,829. You say Cook 6*l.* 10*s.* ?—I think rather more.

43,830. He said so here. You say you paid Miller 25*l.* ?—Yes.

43,831. I do not think we have had that Miller who received the large amount ?—No, you have had John Miller, of Redhill.

43,832. What is Miller's Christian name ? Is he dead ?—I do not know. I never heard that he was dead.

43,833. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Perhaps you can tell us what his address was at the time of the election. Then we shall find out ?—At the market hall, Redhill.

43,834. You say you paid Peters 7*l.* ?—I rather think I paid him more; but he says he did not have any more.

43,835. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) We have no evidence of any money having passed through Miller's hand at all ?—He was sent by Langridge to me. It is a man I know very little about.

43,836. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Then would Langridge know what Miller did with the money ?—Yes, I have do doubt he would. Yes, yes.

43,837. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) The money he had you paid to Miller yourself ?—Yes.

43,838. Not any portion of it to Langridge ? Well, who sent Ireland to you ?—Ireland ? I think Langridge sent Ireland to me in the first place. He was engaged soon after Christmas in the year 1865.

43,839. (The Chief Commissioner.) You say you paid 7*l.* 10*s.* to some one ?—Yes.

43,840. And you say you paid Shepherd 19*l.* ?—Yes.

43,841. Ten and nine ?—Ten and nine.

43,842. And you say you paid Atkinson 8*l.* ?—Yes.

43,843. And you say you paid Carter and Co. 18*l* ?—Yes.

43,844. You say you paid Alfred Joyes 20*l.* ?—Yes.

43,845. And you say you paid Upton 1*l.*, and that you paid Steer 50*l.* ?—Yes.

43,846. Now, there is a very large item in the end. You charge in your acccount "for refreshments at the "'Grapes' 119*l.* 14*s.* 1*d.*" ?—Yes.

43,847. For how long a time was that ?—I think if you call the barman at the "Grapes" he will produce his book and show you.

43,848. His book will show me ?—At all events he will tell you. I do not know.

43,849. Are you able to tell us in his absence over what time that extends ?—From the 29th November.

43,850. When you began to be agent ?—From the 29th November up to very nearly or after the meeting of Parliament this year.

43,851. It would be from the 29th November ?—I think it is, but I won't be certain; but at all events the barman will be able to tell you. This I know nothing about.

43,852. I have read over each particular item in your account. Have you anything more to say about it?—I expect there are a good many more payments not put down, but I cannot recollect them.

43,853. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That would leave your own receipts from Mr. Monson about 480*l.* Two hundred guineas and a hundred guineas is three hundred, and 119 is 419*l.*, and 50 is 469*l.*

(Mr. Commissioner Smith.) How much?

43,854. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you know that man Miller?—No; I only knew him by watering the streets.

43,855. Oh, he was a mere man that watered the streets?—He was hall-keeper at the hall, and he was recommended to me by Mr. Langridge, and also by Mr. Richardson. I do not know that he was a voter.

43,856. What Richardson?—George Gibson Richardson.

43,857. In what way was he recommended to you; what for?—To be employed as a very industrious fellow.

43,858. (The Chief Commissioner.) Who recommended him to you?—Langridge and George Gibson Richardson.

43,859. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Mr. Richardson was taking an active part in the election?—Yes; he was deputy chairman of the Redhill district, or chairman. I forget which.

43,860. But what was he to do?—To canvass, or anything of that sort?

43,861. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Richardson introduced Miller to you?—No, he came to me with Mr. Richardson's name, and I saw Mr. Richardson afterwards, and he said, "Oh, yes." He said he was a very decent fellow.

43,862. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Then what was he to do?—Get votes.

43,863. Was he to work under Langridge?—He was to work under the Redhill committee.

43,864. Which committee?—The Redhill committee; that is that which was held at Langridge's house.

43,865, Quite so; but Langridge was taking an active part in the management of that, wasn't he?—Well, yes.

43,866. Because you supplied him with some money?—Yes.

43,867. Now, was this money for Miller himself to use, or to be handed over to Langridge to use?—No, not to be handed over to Langridge.

43,868. Now this man Miller was a mere man going about with a watering cart?—He was hall-keeper at the public hall, and he watered the street in the day time.

43,869. He was a person of very small means?—Yes.

43,870. A man who would be receiving his daily wages, and living almost from hand to mouth?—I do not know much about it beyond that Langridge knew him very well, and he was very well known at Redhill.

43,871. Did you give him the whole of the money in one sum, or in different sums?—No, I should think about 5*l.* at a time.

43,872. Did you give him any directions what he was to do with the money?—No; he would take his directions from the Redhill committee.

43,273. Did he account to you in any way for the expenditure of the money?—Not at all.

43,874. Then when he came and wanted 5*l.* you handed it to him without further inquiry?—He said that he wanted more money, and he had spent so much; and he had the money.

43,875. Without further inquiry you handed the money to him?—Yes, having first ascertained that he was a trustworthy man.

43,876. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Who introduced Mr. Ireland to you?—Oh, I had known Ireland in the election previously.

43,877. You gave him 45*l.* What voters did he get for that sum?—Well, I think a person of the name of Nash, and some other brickmakers at the bottom of the common.

43,878. What?—Some brickmakers on Earlswood-common.

43,879. What are their names?—I do not know their names.

43,880. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Nash?—Nash is one I know. There are some five or six.

43,881. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) How many did he get for that sum?—I do not think he brought up more than two.

43,882. That was rather dear?—Well, you see, the time I engaged with him was very early in the year, and then things all altered you know by the death of a certain gentleman.

43,883. 45*l.* is a great deal. I think you will find that he brought up more?—I do not know that he did.

43,884. Nash was one; who was the other?—I do not know at all.

43,885. Because of course you handed him the money, and you looked closely after how it was spent, the results, the fruit?—Yes, as closely as I could.

43,886. You looked after the results, the fruits?—Well, we found a very bad result.

43,887. So it seems. You can give no other information?—No.

43,888. As to what he did?—No. He lives two miles away from here.

43,889. I think you mentioned you were engaged for Mr. Gower in 1863?—Yes.

43,890. You had the money from Mr. Smith that you had then?—Yes.

43,891. Were you paid anything after the election was over, or did you send in any bill after the election was over?—Yes; I sent in a bill for a hundred guineas.

43,892. Was that your own fee?—Yes.

43,893. Or did it include what you had expended? No. I think Mr. Smith found us with the money that we expended.

43,894. You do not know how much?—No; a very little, though, I know.

43,895. That was a very close contest?—Yes.

43,896. Don't you recollect being supplied with money towards the end of the contest, rather freely, to bring in a dozen or so?—No.

43,897. Don't you recollect?—I never did. It was very close. We always thought the election was quite safe on our part.

43,898. The Wilkinson party were bidding very high?—I do not know. I cannot say what they did. I am answerable for what I did myself.

43,899. No, no; but did you find they were pushing you very closely?—Well, it was a very hot contest. I think it was conducted tolerably fair.

43,900. As things go?—Yes.

43,901. You don't recollect how much you got from Mr. Smith, except your own hundred guineas?—I only got seventy-five, I think.

43,902. How was that?—Well, I got fifty at the time, and twenty-five about a year and a half afterwards.

43,903. After the —— ?—After this contest commenced; this last contest.

43,904. Do you mean you got that twenty-five after the last contest commenced?—Yes; I took 10*s.* in the pound.

43,905. Now you mentioned (I only want to know) that you had some money in 1858, when Sir Henry Rawlinson was up?—Yes.

43,906. Who paid you that?—Mr. Smith, or Mr. Morrison.

43,907. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You say, with regard to that man Nash, that he was got very early in the election?—No, Ireland.

43,908. But will you be good enough to tell me, if your recollection takes you back so far, tell me when was the first money expended for votes in 1865? How long before the election?—I gave Ireland 10*l.* to assist us with the requisition.

43,909. With the requisition?—Yes.

43,910. That was a portion of the 200 guineas, I suppose?—Yes. We commenced, I should think, probably in February or March.

43,911. That was in refererence to the getting up a petition to ask Mr. Monson to stand?—Yes.

43,912. Very well; but after the petition and after that requisition. How soon after that requisition did Mr. Monson put out his address?—I cannot tell you.

43,913. You can tell me within weeks?—No, I cannot.

43,914. Was it six weeks, or two months after? You know that was a long time before the election?—Yes; there was a long discussion as to whether we should hold ourselves in readiness, or whether he should issue his address at once, and I think it was a long time afterwards before he issued his address.

43,915. Well, now, was it before or after the address that the first money was paid, you know, for a vote, for canvassing a vote?—Oh, before the address.

43,916. Oh, before the address? I do not mean in reference to the getting up of the requisition.—Oh, then I do not know.

43,917. Can you give any sort of guess how soon after that address to Mr. Monson it was that money was paid to any voter, or promised?—No, unless I could see the address. That would bear its own date, and then probably I might tell you.

43,918. I am afraid I have not got a paper which would give it you. The address was put out on the 21st April 1865?—Yes; then I should suppose we commenced to employ canvassers at once.

43,919. Then directly you began to employ canvassers would you have begun to employ money?—I should, certainly.

43,920. You would, certainly? Then money was given to the canvassers for the purpose of their use, to get votes, if they could, with the money?—Quite so.

43,921. Were you in the election of 1858?—Yes.

43,922. Well, you were asked about that election; but I do not know whether you were asked very fully about it. Did you take an active part in that election?—Very.

43,923. I will ask you, then, one general question. What was the general character of the conduct at that election in reference to money, and treating, and so on?—I think it was, comparatively speaking, pure on both sides; but at last we found that we lost just a few of our voters.

43,924. Which side were you?—Mr. Monson's.

43,925. You were for Mr. Monson. Sir Henry Rawlinson came in?—No; that was in the year 1857.

43,926. No, no, February 1858. February 1858 was the election with Mr. Doulton and Mr. Monson, and Mr. James and Mr. Walters?—Yes

43,927. There were a lot of candidates, I think, then?—Nine, I think.

43,928. Well, that is the election I mean. I want to put one general question to you. You took an active part, no doubt, in that election?—Very.

43,929. For Mr. Wilkinson or Sir Henry Rawlinson?—Sir Henry Rawlinson, against Mr. Wilkinson.

43,930. Will you be kind enough to give us your opinion of that?—Well, I think that Mr. Wilkinson, who went in for the ballot, lost it entirely by bribery on the part of Doulton and Walters. I was engaged for Sir Henry Rawlinson, and he was called the Conservative candidate. And Mr. Cross, Mr. Walters' agent, called on me, to ask me if I had any choice as to who won for the ballot. I told him that I would consider of it and let him know the next night. Then he said, "If you have a choice, will you give "me a list of the persons that you consider are "liberal voters?" I said I would. He called the next night, and I thought that Doulton would be a very much better man to fight than Mr. Wilkinson.

43,931. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) A less formidable man?—Quite so; and I gave Mr. Cross my opinion that we would rather that Mr. Walters or Mr. Doulton won the ballot. That was my own notion I gave him the names of those who I considered Liberal voters, and then he asked me—Mr. Cross asked me—if I would take charge of a purse, and go round and buy up the ballot tickets. I told him no; as agent for Sir Henry Rawlinson, I would not take any part in it. We cared very little who won the ballot, but we would rather not fight Mr. Wilkinson. He then asked me if I could recommend him two or three men that he might engage; and I told him I would rather not have anything to do with it. But the next night was the night before the night on which the tickets were put into the post-office. There were three tickets bearing each the names, separately rather, "Wilkinson," "Doulton," and "Walters," enclosed in an envelope, with a circular stating that the voter was to take them either to the Redhill schoolroom, or to the town hall, Reigate, and deposit them in the box—the ticket for whom he intended to vote. He brought me a list that night of persons to whom these tickets were sent, and asked me if I would assist in securing the return of Mr. Walters. I told him, as I had told him the night before, I could not; but I told him I should like to keep the list; and I looked over the list, and there being some, perhaps a dozen, of my own personal friends who were entrusted with the Liberal franchise at that time, I took care to ask them to give the box to Doulton, and the end of it was that Doulton won the election.

43,932. On the ballot?—On the ballot.

43,933. Then did you know of any money being spent at that election for votes?—I must not tell you that I know; I will tell you as near as I can. I felt—my own conviction was—that whoever won the ballot, there would be a precious row among themselves; that it did not matter to us which won; but on that night there were bills up all over the town, "Doulton has won the ballot;" "Doulton has won "the ballot." And then they went on hiring again those men with the boards, that you have heard so much about. That, I think, was the first time that money was spent in Reigate in a colourable manner, so far as my own conviction went. There were dozens of men walking about.

43,934. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Dozens of voters?—Voters, or voters' sons. They were carrying about boards every day for about six weeks.

43,935. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) They were, in fact, paid on a Friday night, just as if they were receiving their money from any factory?—Yes; and all the excitement before the election commenced lasted for some seven or eight weeks. But I may tell you that Mr. Murphy, the agent to Mr. Doulton, and Mr. Truman, his coadjutor, told me, the night they first came down (I happened to be in at the "Swan," where I usually then went to smoke my pipe), that they had come down to win the election; that they knew all about electioneering, and we knew nothing about it.

43,936. They came down as agents for Mr. Dulton?—Yes.

43,937. And subsequently did act as agents for Mr. Doulton?—Yes; there was Mr. Barton's the solicitor's head clerk.

43,938. Did they say how they were going to win the election?—Yes, they told me how they were going to win the election. They told me they had been going to petition against Lambeth, because they had hired half the public houses in Lambeth; but they knew very well now that you might hire as many public houses as you liked.

43,939. Yes?—And that is what they meant to do in Reigate.

43,940. (The Chief Commissioner.) That is, hiring public houses?—Yes.

43,941. And did they?

43,942. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you find that they did hire the houses?—Yes, there was, I should think they held, very near six meetings of a night in different parts of the borough.

43,943. Each meeting being held at a public house?—Yes, or beer shop. There was a libellous placard issued at that time. They charged me with having done that. If you have got one (I have not got mine here), that would show you what was thought then of Mr. Doulton.

43,944. I do not think we will go into the placard?—Having said that much, I will say that I had nothing to do with the placard.

43,945. Quite so. That you are at perfect liberty to say, but we will not go into the contents of it. Very well; it was pretty nearly the truth expressed in the placard?—So far as I have seen before and since.

43,946. What was the truth?—The truth was, they would go about making speeches, holding about six different meetings at different public houses, with the same audiences, chiefly men who were carrying boards during the day, and went out to enjoy themselves in the evening.

43,947. Then during the election, I suppose, the occupation of these public houses and beer shops was very rife for the purpose of drinking?—Yes. I cannot say then there was any money paid for votes, because he was in such a large minority it would not have suited him.

43,948. According to your knowledge was there any money paid for votes on the part of Sir Henry Rawlinson?—I should say not any.

43,949. Was his election so safe from the promises he had had, and on which he could rely, that he could safely go to the poll without attempting to bribe?—Well, I might say at that time he was perhaps a little more true; he would not like to do that which he has done since.

43,950. Just one general question, and then I have done. Having given that description of the election of 1858, from that time to this, more or less at each election, there has been a system of bribery and of treating, more or less?—Yes.

43,951. That is all I ask you?—Now I will just state one thing more from my own conviction.

43,951.* In 1859 there was a sham election; but we have evidence that there were three voters at least who were paid at that election. Therefore I use the term "less." I find I ought not to have limited myself to just three in 1859. There were several in 1859, but there being but few in 1859 in comparison with other elections, I use the term "more or less."

43,952. (The Chief Commissioner, to witness.) What were you going to say?—In justice to those persons who have never taken any money or bribe for their votes, I may say that the result of no election in Reigate has ever been altered by money.

43,953. That is not a fact, neither one fact, nor many facts rolled up into one fact.

(Mr. Commissioner Smith.) That is your inference.

43,954. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I think you may say with the money you spent?—Yes, and all the facts I have known.

43,955. (The Chief Commissioner.) One little bit more as to detail. Can you give me any information as to a man named William Spence. I cannot find out who paid him?—Nobody paid him.

(Mr. Commissioner Smith.) He was paid 17*s.* 6*d.* for coming up from Brighton.

(The Chief Commissioner.) Oh, yes; I know all about him. I have got his evidence.

43,956. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) One question. What did you return to Mr. Hart as your expenditure when he sent for the return?—None.

43,957. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Were you asked for it?—No.

43,958. Not asked for it?—No.

43,959. You were aware that all expenditure of expenses made at the election should properly be returned through the expense agent to the auditor in the first instance, and then at this last election to the mayor?—Oh, I am quite aware of that.

43,960. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I was going to ask you next, Mr. Hart not having asked you for it, didn't Mr. Hart know that you were working very much during the election, very hard during the election?—Yes.

43,961. He did?—Yes.

43,962. And knew that you had expended monies; perhaps he did not know the amount, but he knew, did he not?—Well, I had better leave that for you to infer.

43,963. I mean he was brought in contact with you very much?—No, he was not brought in contact with me very much.

43,964. I thought he was?—Not so much as might be supposed.

43,965. I really did not wish to suggest anything. I thought he, being the chief conducting agent, and you being——?—Well, I think I was the chief.

43,966. Well, I beg your pardon?—I mean to say,—I will qualify that by saying that I did nearly all the work.

43,967. That is what I want. And Mr. Hart must have been aware of that. Mr. Hart must have been aware of that, mustn't he; that you did the work?—I should think so.

43,968. Of course he must. Well now, what I want to know is, did not Mr. Hart know that you had been working on behalf of Mr. Gower, and also knew that you had been expending money?—He was rather green if he didn't.

43,969. Well, I see nothing green in Reigate except grass. Very well; and then he didn't request of you to send in your account?

43,970. Did he?—No.

43,971. Did you see him after the election, before the two months, before the return to the mayor?—I did not see him any oftener than I could help.

43,972. How was that? Why did you avoid him?—Well, I felt that we had lost the election clearly and cleanly, and that I had nothing to compliment him on, and I am sure he had not me.

43,973. Very well; you know you sent him in a receipt, one receipt for 5*l.*?—Yes, he had sent me in the money first.

43,974. Oh, that is the only money?—No, no, not the only money. There were some little accounts in one cheque, and he asked me whether I would pay them for him.

43,975. That money was nominally for Mr. Francis?—Yes.

43,976. What were the other sums for?—Little sums for carriages.

43,977. How did he become acquainted that you wanted these amounts?—Because he always knew that I would take any trouble off his hands if I could. Where they were large sums Mr. Hart liked to go and pay them himself. Where they were little sums I often went.

43,978. Did he send you any letter asking you to make these disbursements?—No, I think he called with them in his hand.

43,979. Now how long was that after the polling?—I do not know; I should think perhaps six weeks or two months.

43,980. Of course you saw him on the polling day?—Oh, yes.

43,981. And I dare say expressed to him your disappointment that there were not more coming up?—No, we knew that the night before.

TWENTY-NINTH DAY.

J. Nichols.

24 Sept. 1866.

43,982. You expressed that to him the night before?—Told him we should lose.

43,983. You told him the promises you had had had not been fulfilled, didn't you?—Yes.

43,984. And told him those who would not fulfil them were great rascals, or something of that kind, didn't you?—That I do not know.

43,985. Oh, yes, you did, indeed. You know as well as possible that you said there was no reliance to be placed upon these men although they had promised?—I had my opinion.

43,986. Didn't you say something of this kind, "There is not the slightest reliance to be placed upon "these men"?—I do not recollect.

43,987. You knew more than anybody else?—I knew as a matter of fact that we had lost.

43,988. That your money had not had the desired effect?—Certainly.

43,989. And you wanted to express that in the best terms to Mr. Hart. I don't mean to say that you told him you had expended so much money, but you intimated it?—I might have expressed myself in somewhat strongish terms. I do sometimes.

43,990. Well, you have not done so here to-day. You have given your evidence properly; but you did say to Mr. Hart that they could not be relied upon?—No.

43,991. I am not suggesting any one. Did you tell him of any particular man?—I do not know. I may have done, but I do not think I did; but you may call a man to my mind, and I will tell you.

43,992. Oh no, I am not suggesting anything, because I do not wish to suggest anything against anybody, but I am calling upon your recollection. Did you remember any particular payment that you had made which produced no result?—No, I do not think I did. I do not think I should tell Mr. Hart so much as that; my desire was that Mr. Hart should not know.

43,993. No, not in a certain sense?—If he likes to say otherwise I have nothing to do with that.

43,994. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) There is a question about a person voting of the name of Newman; I dare say you know what I am alluding to, about allowing some back rent to the amount of 11*l.*?—I never allowed the back rent.

43,995. John Newman, was it?—John Newman.

43,996. He says you allowed him 14*l.*?—You are mistaken.

43,997. He says, "I engaged with Nichols that I "was to receive 11*l.* in the election that was to take "place.

43,998. (The Chief Commissioner.) Newnham or Newman?—Newman.

43,999. He says you paid him 11 guineas?

44,000. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) "I owed him "for rent about 11 guineas. I left Mr. Nichols's "house on the 24th June last"?—I gave him credit for the 10 guineas; he owes me more than that a great deal.

44,001. (The Chief Commissioner.) Had you given him credit for the 10 guineas?—Yes.

44,002. In reference to his vote?—Yes.

44,003. That was put down in your account?—I think Mr. Hart paid that; that was for carriage hire.

44,004. I should like to know, because I will correct my account against you if that is so?—I do not know.

44,005. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Can you give a clear explanation in reference to that transaction with Newman?—He had kept a horse and fly and drove for us, and I gave him credit for 10 guineas.

44,006. I may take that down, that you paid him 10 guineas and that you charged that?—Quite so.

44,007. (Reading.) "And when I settle with him "I expect to take off the 10 guineas"?—Then there was a man, of the name of Nye, something was said about.

44,008. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He denied the receipt of money?—He did. I lent him 10*l.* before the election.

44,009. Yes, we got that out of him?—Oh, very well.

44,010. (The Chief Commissioner.) You have not put him down in your account?—No.

44,011. Was that a real or a colourable loan?—A real loan. I will tell you what inducement I had. He was a master baker, and asked me to collect some debts, and I found the debts really were not one of them worth trying for ——

44,012. I understand you lent him 10*l.*?—Yes.

44,013. And that 10*l.* you looked to him to pay?—I looked to him; but I am afraid ——

44,014. It is not down in your account here?—No.

44,015. I have not charged you as having advanced the 10*l.*?—No, I only mentioned it as it came out.

44,016. Quite right, but it does not appear by the evidence that you paid him 10*l.* for his vote for the election?—Not at all; it was nothing to do with the election.

44,017. It was merely your forbearance from pressing him, you know?—I will tell you what has happened to him since. He has been obliged to leave his house. My summoning him for that 10*l.* would involve my losing 3*l.* for expenses.

44,018. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Were not you acting for Mr. Hart for the county election?—Yes.

44,019. During that election were not you very often thrown into company with Mr. Hart as manager of the county election?—Yes.

44,020. That would be going on at the same time with the borough election?—Yes.

44,021. You told my friend, the serjeant, that you tried to avoid Mr. Hart as much as you could.

44,022. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He meant on that subject?—As soon as the borough election was over we began to talk upon the county, which just suited Mr. Hart, not the borough.

44,423. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) During the time of the county election you avoided speaking to Mr. Hart upon the subject of the borough election?—Yes, we were all, three or four, Conservative gentlemen, and we avoided the subject.

44,024. Although you were with him you avoided talking about it?—Yes, we were a Conservative committee, and could not talk about the borough election.

44,025. There was a man at the "Wheatsheaf"?—We had his house.

44,026. Did you pay him anything in 1863?—I did not pay him; he was paid.

44,027. Do you know how much?—A good lot, though.

44,028. In 1863?—Yes.

44,029. Can you tell me how much?—I dare say he was paid 150*l.*

The witness withdrew.

Mr. P. Hanbury

Mr. Philip Hanbury sworn and examined.

44,030. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Have you resided long in this borough?—12 years.

44,031. You are a banker in London, residing here?—Yes.

44,032. Have you taken an active part in the elections?—Well, as I have gone on I have taken a more active part, but I will explain by-and-by that I did not take so active a part in the last as I should have done, owing to certain circumstances. If you like me to tell you what they were, I will.

44,033. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Oh, no?—Only you asked me if I had taken an active part, and I wanted to give you some reason for it.

44,034. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Oh, no. In this last election of 1865 you were a chairman of Mr. Monson's committee and voted for him?—Yes.

44,035. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You were the chairman?—I was the chairman of the general committee, the chairman over all.

44,036. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Who was the deputy chairman?—Mr. George Gibson Richardson.

44,037. Did you canvass with Mr. Monson?—Not then, because he would not give me the opportunity. I only canvassed one day with him. I introduced him in December 1864. I saw some two or three hundred then; it was merely an introduction. He had been out of the neighbourhood many years, and I introduced him. When the time came on he never gave me the opportunity except once.

44,038. Then that introduction in December 1864 would be before the requisition went to him?—No, it was at that time going on, it began in September.

44,039. And had you signed the requisition?—I had.

44,040. Do you know whether there were many names to that requisition?—Yes, I think about 100.

44,041. You say that was the only time, when you introduced Mr. Monson to the borough, that you went and saw so many people?—I only went once, in Wray-park. I called upon all the London gentlemen; it was no good whatever. That was in 1865.

44,042. Were those visits made more particularly to those gentlemen residing in Wray-park?—I took that district.

44,043. In that district there would be the principal inhabitants of the borough?—The gentlemen who are in business in London.

44,044. Gentlemen of property?—Gentlemen of property, a great many of them.

44,045. Did you introduce Mr. Monson at all on that occasion to persons living in the borough?—I had introduced him previously. Mr. Phillips and I introduced him in 1864, but this in 1865 was a canvass. What I did in 1864 was merely to introduce him.

44,046. I was just then speaking of 1864?—In 1864 we introduced Mr. Monson.

44,047. Was that done by going round with him?—Yes, going round with him.

44,048. To as many voters as you could?—In our districts. Mr. Phillips took this part, and I went to Redhill. I went to nearly 200 people.

44,049. Was that 200 voters of all classes?—Of all classes.

44,050. Well, then, the requisition went, and eventually the address was put forward by Mr. Monson in April. Was the day that you canvassed with Mr. Monson before or after the address?—Long after the address. About May, I should say.

44,051. You say it was only upon one occasion that you went?—Only one day.

44,052. Why did not you go oftener?—Because he would not give me an opportunity. He always sent a telegram to say he could not come, or was engaged; he studiously avoided me.

44,053. I suppose Mr. Monson did canvass the borough himself in some way?—With Mr. Richardson. I heard he was every day with Mr. Richardson.

44,054. Then do I gather from your evidence that the chief part of your duty upon the election was to act as chairman of the committee?—Yes, it was my duty to have done so.

44,055. Did you attend the committee?—I did not attend so often as I would have done. If you will allow me an explanation, I will give it. I had reasons for it.

44,056. You may state why you did not attend the committee?—I will just tell you. We had a general meeting of the inhabitants and I was appointed chairman. In a very few days after there was another meeting, and I never knew of it except by chance. I found I had no power of control. Then we met at Langridge's. I saw Mr. Richardson in the chair and I was perfectly ignored, and, if I had followed my own dictates, I should have resigned; but, if I had done so, everybody would have said it was through me that Mr. Monson lost his election. It was a painful position and it made me go to none of the district meetings and to very few of the general meetings.

44,057. Then I may take it, that after that meeting you were merely nominally the chairman, but doing nothing whatever?—I may say that I did not submit to this tamely. I saw Mr. Monson, and told him I should resign. After that I wrote him one letter, which I have in my pocket and can read if you like; I told him he had gone the wrong way. He kept Mr. Nichols' company, and the sweeps in the town, and I was quite sure he was going wrong. I asked him as a favour to give me half an hour's conversation; that was on the 6th of June, and I never got five minutes with him.

44,058. I will ask you one general question. Were you aware at the time that money was being spent in the way in which it has been described?—I knew nothing of it, but suspected it most strongly. I have no instances, and know nothing of it. Not a shilling passed through my hands, but I did suspect it.

44,059. You did suspect it?—Strongly.

44,060. Was that one of the reasons why you wished to see Mr. Monson?—I did not express it so strongly as I might have done.

44,061. I was only going to ask you whether you intimated to Mr. Monson, in any way at all, the suspicion you had that money was being spent in that way?—No, I did not. I had no opportunity of seeing him. I wrote to him, and begged and prayed him to give me half an hour, and I never got it; I never was with him. Mr. Richardson was with him, and I had no opportunity. I wrote him a letter, because he told me he would not allow a shilling to be spent in that way.

44,062. How long before the election was it that he made that observation to you?—About June, I think. My letter was dated about the 26th June 1865. I could not get at him, and so I wrote to him.

44,063. Had you acted in any of the previous elections?—Well, sir, in 1863 I was deputy chairman; Mr. Phillips was the chairman, and I was deputy chairman, for Mr. Gower.

44,064. During the time of that election did you know of any monies being spent in the way in which it has been described and proved in evidence before us in this Inquiry?—I knew nothing of it.

44,065. Were you a constant attendant upon the committee?—I attended some of the meetings in the district of Redhill rather more than at the last election; I have told you I was not at the last. What gave me a strong idea that bribery had been going on was Mr. Gower compromising the petition. Why did not he proceed with it? That was in 1863.

44,066. Then it was not until after the election of 1863, and the withdrawal of Mr. Gower from the petition, that it was suggested to your mind?—It was natural. Why should not he else have gone on with it?

44,067. What part did Mr. Phillips take?—He was chairman. He took a very proper part, that is all I know. I have nothing to say of him more than that.

44,068. Were you in any previous election?—Yes, ever since Hackblock. I was one of the committee, but never attended. I came in by degrees. I was twice for Monson, I mean a committee man. I never used to attend committees hardly, but I used to ride about and get him a vote if I could.

44,069. Then, personally, had you anything to do with regard to money matters at any of the elections?—Not a shilling; none whatever passed through my hands.

44,070. (The Chief Commissioner.) In 1865 you introduced Mr. Monson?—1864.

44,071. In 1864 you, in conjunction with one or two more gentlemen, introduced Mr. Monson?—Yes.

44,072. Did you form a party among yourselves; I am not asking for any names?—Oh, I do not mind.

44,073. I do not want them?—Very well, then, I won't give you the names.

TWENTY-NINTH DAY.

Mr. P. Hanbury

24 Sept. 1866.

44,074. Did you form a party amongst yourselves to introduce Mr. Monson ?—A small party; very few.

44,075. How many of you got together to try and bring down Mr. Monson; I only want the number of persons, not the names ?—I will only say about three.

44,076. Then, at last, down he came ?—He came in November.

44,077. And was introduced ?—Yes.

44,078. Now, previous to his coming down had you, or, to your knowledge, had those gentlemen who were associated with you, the two others, agreed to advance any money to meet the expenses of the election ?—Not a shilling.

44,079. I won't ask you whether you did advance any ?—We did not agree to advance.

44,080. Did you put your names down, or agree to what is vulgarly termed "stand" anything towards the election ?—I did not a shilling, and I do not think the others did.

44,081. Are you aware, from what you saw yourself, that anybody else did ?—No, I have not the least knowledge that anybody else did.

44,082. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) There were no subscriptions ?—No subscriptions; not to my knowledge.

44,083. (The Chief Commissioner.) As the election went on, after Mr. Monson had come down himself, did you ascertain yourself, and those two other gentlemen who were associated with you, that Mr. Monson was not likely to have very abundant funds for election expenses ?—Not at all. I knew that he had friends.

44,084. I mean, did you yourself know it ?—I never went into the subject at all; not a bit.

44,085. That is what I wanted to know. Did you agree to subscribe anything after he came down towards his expenses ?—Not a shilling.

44,086. And did you at any time agree to subscribe anything towards Mr. Monson's election ?—Not a shilling.

44,087. I need not tell you that I ask you in such a way as ought to meet with a very candid answer ?—I am candid.

44,088. Quite so. I mean that I do not expect you will avail yourself of any word ?—Certainly not.

44,089. I take your answer as being the better for that. Now in the previous election of 1863 you had also joined in introducing Mr. Gower, had you not ?—Well, to a certain extent I had.

44,090. Was Mr. Gower's introduction to be traced back to the same three gentlemen who afterwards introduced Mr. Monson ?—Well, there was one gentleman; I won't mention names. One was a man of very great intelligence, and he certainly was engaged in 1863, but in 1865 he took no ostensible part.

44,091. In 1863, after Mr. Gower was brought down here, did you assist in introducing him to the electors ?—I did.

44,092. Much in the same way, I suppose ?—No, I did more for Mr. Monson than I did for Mr. Gower.

44,093. Before he decided on standing, did you agree to contribute something towards his election in 1863 ?—Not a shilling.

44,094. Did you after he commenced ?—Never; not a shilling.

44,095. Before or after ?—Neither before nor after.

44,096. I mean that in the fullest sense ?—Oh yes, in the fullest sense; never at any time in my life.

44,097. I am merely asking at present with reference to 1863 ?—I quite understand what you say; I never did.

44,098. And nothing which could be construed into that ?—Nothing which could be construed into that, to my knowledge.

44,099. Then I do not think I have anything more to ask you ?—I want to make one observation, if you will allow me; I think I ought to do it for my own sake as being chairman. I beg to assure you I had no knowledge of the scheme of nominating Mr. Richardson as a candidate. I never heard of it till I heard Mr. Francis propose him at the nomination.

44,100. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Of course you knew nothing of the reasons ?—Nothing whatever, and I never approved of it. I want to say one thing more, if you are not tired, for my own sake and the public good. I was asked to sign the petition to parliament to turn out Mr. Gower.

44,101. I was just going to ask you upon that subject ?—I had heard a great deal subsequent to our election that our hands were not clean. I said, "Gen-" tlemen, it is too long after, and our hands are very " dirty, I will never do it; I don't think it should be " done, on public grounds." I have just one thing more.

44,102. (The Chief Commissioner.) Don't be in a hurry ?—I sent to Mr. Hart a list of the voters, and I cast them up and found—it was only the day or two before the election—I found a majority of 58 for Mr. Monson. That 58 majority turned to 197 minority. Says I to myself, "There must be something wrong." They had either deceived me or deceived themselves. How could 58 majority all amongst us turn into 197 minority, if there were not some trickery ?

44,103. That was the night before the election ?—I think it might be two days. I won't pledge myself to whether it was one or two. I think Mr. Richardson has more knowledge about the working of the election than I had, and I think Mr. Phillips had more knowledge than I had of it in 1863; Mr. Richardson in 1865, and Mr. Phillips, my chairman (I have not a word to say against him) in 1863. Then I was talking about corruption; my head was cut open at Doulton's election, and Truman was there leading them on.

44,104. You saw Truman ?—I did not see him throw the stone, but I saw him leading them on. He was saying, "Come on, my lads!"

44,105. You never attended the district meetings in 1865 ?—I never attended the district meetings, I only went to the one at Langridge's; I have told you that I was ignored as chairman.

The witness withdrew.

W. Nash.

William Nash sworn and examined.

44,106. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are you ?—A labourer.

44,107. What rent do you pay for the house under which you vote ?—12*l.*

44,108. For whom did you vote at the last election ?—For Mr. Monson.

44,109. What did you get upon the election ?—5*l.*

44,110. From whom ?—From Emery.

44,111. When did he pay you ?—After the election.

44,112. How soon after you voted ?—On the night after; I voted in the day.

44,113. Who told you that you would be paid ? Who told you to go to Emery ?—Langridge; he canvassed me. He told me if I did all I could for Mr. Monson, and attended the nomination and election, I should be paid 5*l.* for my services.

44,114. Did he tell you you should be paid 5*l.* ?—If I did all I could; if I solicited all I could, and attended the nomination and election day, which I did.

44,115. And you were paid 5*l.* ?—Yes.

44,116. How soon before the polling day did he tell you that ?—Several weeks, I should think.

44,117. Did you ever vote before ?—No.

44,118. Was this your first time ?—Yes.

44,119. Did you see many at Langridge's that night ?—No, I did not see very many; Langridge came to me, in fact.

44,120. Do you know anybody else who received the same amount, or a similar amount, as you did at Langridge's ?—No, I did not know anything about it.

44,121. I mean who were working as you were.

You knew other men were working as you were?—I dare say there were some who worked with me.

44,122. Who were they?—Cornish; he was a man who was working the same way as me.

44,123. Any one else?—No, I don't know particularly of any one else.

44,124. But you know you were to work for five or six weeks?—I asked all I knew round about.

44,125. Will you favour me now with the name of one man you asked who voted?—William Brown.

44,126. Anybody else?—Benjamin Brown.

44,127. These two Browns! Everybody claims the Browns?—Everybody that I knew round about.

44,128. Give me anybody but a Brown. Give us another name?—I do not recollect who they all were that I spoke to on the subject now.

44,129. You cannot give me another name? I wish you would?—No, I do not recollect at present.

44,130. Now just think?—I do not recollect any more; not at present.

44,131. But we are not at all indebted to you for Brown; now let us be indebted to you for somebody?—Well, Cornish; everybody round about.

The witness withdrew.

ROBERT RIDGE sworn and examined.

R. Ridge.

44,132. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are you, Mr. Ridge?—A carpenter.

44,133. What rent do you pay for your house?—15*l.*

44,134. For whom did you vote at the last election?—For Mr. Monson.

44,135. Had you voted in 1863?—Yes.

44,136. For whom did you vote in 1863?—Mr. Gower.

44,137. We understand you received some money from Mr. Nichols?—Yes.

44,138. When did you receive the money?—Well, I cannot say when; I never kept any dates.

44,139. Perhaps you kept an account of the sums?—No, but I got the total.

44,140. You got the total in your head?—Yes.

44,141. You cannot give me the dates nor the different sums; what was the total?—50*l.*

44,142. How do you know you got that?—From memory; the different sums received from time to time.

44,143. In what sums did you receive it?—10*l.* sometimes, and sometimes 5*l.*, as the case may be.

44,144. Did you receive 10*l.* first?—I cannot say whether 10*l.* or 5*l.* first.

44,145. This is the difficulty I have to understand you. If you have no memory as to the amounts or the manner in which you received the money, how do you hit upon the total of 50*l.*?—By enumerating the amounts as they were received from time to time.

44,146. Tell me how you received them, and then I can understand the enumeration.

44,147. What was the first sum you receved?—I cannot say.

44,148. What was the last sum you received?—That I cannot tell.

44,149. You cannot tell either the first or the last, and yet you say the whole was 50*l.* You might as well say 70*l.*?—No, I cannot, because I did not receive it.

44,150. You might as well say 40*l.* or 30*l.*?—No.

44,151. Why should not you say 30*l.* if you don't know the sums or the way in which you raised them? Why not say 30*l.*? We will take it at that sum. 50*l.* is the half of 100*l.* I suppose that is the reason you take it at 50*l.*?—You may take it at what you like; I think I received 50*l.*

44,152. How did you expend it?—Well, sir, I kept it. I kept the whole of it.

44,153. How was it that you received it from time to time and not all at once?—I had it as it could be spared, I suppose; as I applied for it, I had it from Mr. Nichols.

44,154. What do you mean? I thought this money was given out to be expended?—No; my engagement with Mr. Nichols, when I engaged with him for the 1865 election was, I had worked for him for a good many elections, four or five elections, and never got anything like compensation for loss of time, and when I was applied to by Mr. Nichols for my assistance in 1865, I said I should have nothing further to do with him unless I was paid the amount I thought right.

44,155. All the back sums?—All the back sums.

44,156. Now we will understand it, because this is good. Let us go back a little. How much was owing to you on the 1863 election?—I should think my services were worth 10*l.*

44,157. And how much was owing to you on the 1859 election?—Well, there I worked very hard for about two months, I think; I should say 10*l.* to 15*l.*

44,158. We will say 10*l.* for that; that is 20*l.* How much was owing to you on the 1858 election?—The 1858 election I have just given you.

44,159. You charge nothing for 1859 then?—No.

44,160. You worked for Mr. Gower?—Yes, I did.

44,161. For whom did you work in 1858?—For Mr. Monson; no, I beg your pardon; for Rawlinson. I think it was 1858; I won't be positive as to dates.

44,162. In the early part of 1858 for whom did you vote? There were two elections that year?—I voted for Rawlinson; worked and voted for Sir Henry Rawlinson.

44,163. At both elections?—When he came forward.

44,164. How much did you put them at together?—I charged 10*l.* each.

44,165. Now we will have it. Sir Henry Rawlinson was only up at one of these elections; for whom did you work at the second? It was Wilkinson and Monson. For whom did you vote?—Monson.

44,166. Then when Mr. Nichols came to you you said, "You must pay me for what Mr. Gower owes me, "and what Lord Monson owes me, and what Sir "Henry Rawlinson owes me"?—I had a right to be paid.

44,167. Why did not he pay you the 30*l.* at once?—He did not.

44,168. What did you say to him?—I was glad to get it as I could.

44,169. You told him there was 30*l.* due to you?—I told him I wished to be paid.

44,170. You said there was 30*l.* due to you?—I did not say the exact amount.

44,171. But the next thing would be, after you said you wished to be paid for your former services, he would say "How much?"—I do not know that he did.

44,172. Do you mean to say that he came to you, and you told him you wanted to be paid for former elections, and he did not say "How much?" You are not speaking to lunatics, you know; we are speaking in a reasonable way. Did not he ask you how much?—Well, he might have done so.

44,173. But did not he, Mr. Ridge? Did not he say, "I want your services; you are a man I want; I "cannot do without you; what do you charge?"—He may have said ——

44,174. He did, in fact, did he not?—I dare say.

44,175. And you told him 30*l.*?—Very likely.

44,176. Tell us what occurred?—I will, as near as my memory will serve.

44,177. Did not you say that?—I say I may have said so. I don't recollect that I did.

44,178. How could he have known what you wanted unless you did?—He may have known that I ought to have been paid 10*l.* for each.

44,179. You think he would have known that of his own mind?—Yes, from what we had been talking previously.

44,180. Did you work under him all the time?—Yes.

44,181. Though you worked under him all the time

TWENTY-NINTH DAY.

R. Ridge.

24 Sept. 1866.

he never paid you anything till he got hold of Mr. Monson; that is it?—Yes.

44,182. (The Chief Commissioner.) You were always under Mr. Nichols?—Oh, yes.

44,183. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) When did you and Mr. Nichols settle this sum of 50*l.* together?—Some time in 1865. It was never settled at one time, and we never agreed at all.

44,184. When did you compare notes, if I may say so, having no notes to compare?—I have no notes.

44,185. I know you have not, but when did you talk to him? He said he had all the men up to him. Did not he talk to you?—No.

44,186. Do you mean to say that you and Mr. Nichols did not talk about the amount you received; I mean since the Inquiry began?—I do not know that we have..

44,187. I know that you have, according to Mr. Nichols' own account. Did not he call to your mind, or you call to his mind, the sum you received?—Something about 50*l.*

44,188. When did he do that?—I do not know.

44,189. Yes, you do, indeed. About a fortnight ago, was not it?—I cannot recollect. There was something said.

44,190. I know there was something said, but where was it said; let us get time and place. Where was it said? At the "Grapes"?—Yes.

44,191. In the back room, the little back room?—I don't know anything about the back room or front room, it was spoken of.

44,192. When?—I cannot tell when; about a fortnight or so, as you say.

44,193. Do not adopt my phrase, but it was about a fortnight ago?—Perhaps it was.

44,194. And then he made you put down on paper, did not he?—I never saw paper, nor pen and ink.

44,195. You told him, "Ah, you recollect you gave "me 50*l.*" It is a large figure?—I don't know about a large figure; no larger than others was paid in proportion.

44,196. Had you anything to drink on that occasion?—Not that I know of.

44,197. Now who else could know it?—Well, I can say positively that at that particular time we did not have anything to drink.

44,198. Very well, if you positively say it. I understood you to say you never received anything at a former election?—Not for myself.

44,199. That is what I mean. You never received anythng at a former election; not a farthing?—I think not.

44,200. In 1858 nor 1863 you never received anything?—I received money for the electors.

44,201. I am not speaking of that now, for yourself?—For myself.

44,202. You did not receive anything for yourself either in the election of October 1858, or in that of February 1858?—Not that I know of.

44,203. Now I will take you again to the interview at the "Grapes." Did Mr. Nichols ask you if you knew how much you had received—"Do you recollect how much I paid you?"—No, I do not think he put the question. That is what I thought I had received, from memory.

44,204. Oh, you told him?—Yes.

44,205. You came in to Mr. Nichols and said, "As "you are going to make up your accounts, I think "you paid me 50*l.* altogether." Is that what you said?—Yes.

44,206. How did you know he was going to make up his accounts?—I did not know that he was going to make up his accounts.

44,207. Do not adopt my words. Why did you know?—He had told me that I was going to receive a summons.

44,208. That is what I asked you. It is not a bit of use trying to evade the questions?—I do not want to evade them.

44,209. You told me that he did not ask you any such question?—Well, he told me about that.

44,210. You said, "Let it be 50*l.*," did not you?—I said what I thought I had had.

44,211. Oh, it was he that mentioned 50*l.* first?—No, I said 50*l.*; I thought I had had about 50*l.*

44,212. He did not say, "Not so much"?—He did not say, "Not so much."

44,213. He did not say, "That was about it"?—No, he made no remark. He asked me how much I should think I had had, and I said, "I think I had "50*l.* from my memory."

44,214. Did he say, "That tallies with mine"?—No, he did not say anything.

44,215. Did not he say "How much of that was for the back money," 30*l.* for the back money and 20*l.* for the present?—No, that was understood before I gave him my word that I would join in the 1865 election.

44,216. What do you mean by "joining"?—I mean assisting.

44,217. What did you mean? Did you vote?—Yes.

44,218. Tell me any other vote that you got?—The 50*l.* was not for my single vote; I had been in the habit of working about a great deal in Reigate.

44,219. Tell me one voter you got?—I cannot say I got any one, but I assisted in getting voters.

44,220. Tell me any one that you got?—In Nutley-lane I had been in the habit of working about with carpenters.

44,221. Name me a carpenter whose vote you got?—I cannot tell you any name.

44,222. Of course that is all you received for the election, for aiding Mr. Monson?—Yes.

44,223. Now just recollect. Did you receive any other monies at all?—From Mr. Monson?

44,224. Yes.—I had a cheque from Mr. Hart after the election.

44,225. That is what I asked you?—I am answering you.

44,226. When had you the cheque?—Some time after the election. I do not know the date.

44,227. After the election of 1865?—Yes.

44,228. But I thought you were paid by Mr. Nichols?—So I was, 50*l.*

44,229. But what was the cheque from Mr. Hart for?—I had some private business with Mr. Hart, and he told me he had a cheque for 10*l.* for me for the 1865 election.

44,230. Don't talk about private business. You had been paid 50*l.* by Mr. Nichols; three tens for gentlemen that you had previously had to do with, and 20*l.* on behalf of Mr. Monson. Now you tell me that Mr. Hart told you that he had a cheque for you for 10*l.*?—He paid me.

44,231. What for?—For my services.

44,232. Of course you told him you had received 50*l.*?—Oh, no, I did not say anything to him; not likely.

44,233. Not likely; I agree with you in that; but why did not you as an honest man? Why did you let poor Mr. Hart give you 10*l.* more?—I thought it was no more then I was entitled to, seeing how others were paid.

44,234. Now who were the others that were paid, because I like to know what is passing in your mind?—I suppose you have had it in evidence.

44,235. Tell me what occurred to your mind?—Only such men as Francis and those sort of men; I thought I was worth as much as them.

44,236. Why, Francis did not get 50*l.*, you know, or anything like it. This is 60*l.*; 30*l.* and 20*l.* is 50*l.*, and then 10*l.* more is 60*l.*, for your own vote, and, you say, for services. Just imagine?—Part of it was for previous elections.

44,237. You gave Mr. Hart a receipt, did not you?—I think I did.

44,238. I will read it for you. "Received, the 3rd "of October 1865, of Mr. Thomas Hart, agent for "the election expenses of the Honourable E. Monson "at the late Reigate election, for services rendered "in canvassing at the late Reigate election;" that includes all the services you have done, you know?—Yes.

44,239. Then in addition to that you keep back from him that you had received 50*l.* from Mr. Nichols?—Yes.

44,240. I must go a little farther I am afraid. You cannot tell me the last payment Mr. Nichols made you?—No, I cannot tell you that.

44,241. Neither the first nor the last, nor in what sums he paid you?—They varied. I never had more than 10*l.* at one time from him.

44,242. I do not say you had. Of course it was not paid in cheques; or was it paid, any of it, by cheques?—It may have been.

44,243. But was it?—I do not recollect whether any was paid in cheques, but I think it was all paid in notes and gold.

44,244. Had you to go to a bank to get a cheque changed?—I think not.

44,245. What business are you?—A carpenter.

44,246. Are you a master carpenter?—Yes.

44,247. Where do you carry on your business?—At Godstone.

44,248. Is that some distance?—Seven miles, I dare say.

44,249. And you have a house here?—No, I have not now.

44,250. You had at that time?—Yes.

44,251. Where did you carry on your business then?—I was foreman for Mr. Carruthers.

44,252. Did you pay any of the money you received to any of the men?—In 1863 I did.

44,253. I mean in 1865?—No.

44,254. You cannot tell me what monies Mr. Nichols paid you; or when, or how?—No.

44,255. Was anybody present at any time when he paid you any of the money?—Not that I know of. I think not, but I won't be certain about that.

44,256. Was any human being present at any time when you had portions of this money?—I think not.

44,257. Where did he pay you?—Sometimes at the "Grapes."

44,258. Used you to go to the "Grapes"?—Yes.

44,259. Where did he pay you the first money?—I believe at the "Grapes."

44,260. Don't you know?—No, I cannot tell.

44,261. Where did he pay you the last?—That I could not tell.

44,262. It has passed away entirely from your mind?—Yes.

44,263. You could not say?—I could not say; I never kept any account.

44,264. Did you tell any human being that you had been paid that?—Not at all, till I told you.

44,265. Except Mr. Nichols?—That is all.

44,266. Are you a married man?—Yes.

44,267. That includes your wife, does it, the expression, "any human being"? You never told her?—Perhaps not; I think not.

44,268. Will you give an answer whether you told your wife or not?—No.

44,269. Did you never tell her that you had 50*l.*?—No.

44,270. What did you do with the money?—I employed it in my business.

44,271. Do you mean to say you applied 50*l.* without anybody knowing it?—Yes.

44,272. Now in 1863 you were working with Mr. Nichols?—Yes.

44,273. For whom; for Mr. Gower?—For Mr. Gower.

44,274. How much did you receive from Mr. Nichols on that occasion to pay away?—5*l.*, I think.

44,275. Only 5*l.*?—No.

44,276. To pay away?—To pay away.

44,277. Who did you pay?—Who did I pay? I paid a man of the name of Maynard and another named Fuller.

44,278. You did pay them?—Yes.

44,279. Anything else?—No.

44,280. What else did you do on that election?—Nothing more.

44,281. And for that you charged 10*l.*?—But then I was working in the country at that time. I was working away from home, and I used to come sometimes of an evening and return back again in the night.

44,282. That made no difference, you know. You paid one man named Maynard, and another man named Fuller, and for that you charged 10*l.*?—Yes.

44,283. What Fuller was that?—Richard Fuller, I believe.

44,284. Who gave you the money?—Mr. Nichols.

44,285. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Is he still on the register?—I do not know.

44,286. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What is the other man, Maynard?—A bricklayer.

44,287. Did you receive anything for your services on that occasion?—I think not.

44,288. You can recollect?—I do not recollect.

44,289. But you voted for Mr. Gower then?—Yes.

44,290. You voted and worked; you must have received something?—I do not believe I received anything at that election.

44,291. You received something, you know?—I think not.

44,292. You said there was something left due to you; you must have received something?—No; I only had the 5*l.* that I paid away from Mr. Nichols.

44,293. Why did not you ask Mr. Nichols for something?—I did ask him.

44,294. For yourself?—Yes.

44,295. He gave you nothing?—No, he gave me nothing.

44,296. Now in 1858, when you worked for Lord Monson, what money had you had?—I do not recollect at all.

44,297. You told me you wanted 10*l.* for working for him; what did you pay away?—I do not know that I paid any away.

44,298. What did you do?—I worked about with the voters to see how many we could get. I was working with a good many at that time; my daily occupation was such that I was always mixed up with a good many voters.

44,299. You could not help it?—No.

44,300. And you wanted to be paid for what you could not help?—No.

44,301. Upon your own account you could not help working. You were a carpenter and a voter, and you were to be paid for that?—I used all the influence I could.

44,302. What did you get?—I did not get anything. I do not recollect that I got anything for either of those elections.

44,303. You do recollect?—No, I do not.

44,304. What were you to get?—There was no agreement made as to what I was to have.

44,305. But in 1865 you put that down at 10*l.*?—Well, that is what I thought it was worth.

44,306. Exactly. Now in the early part of 1858, when you worked for Sir Henry Rawlinson, did you get anything?—I think not. I do not believe I got anything for any election till 1865.

44,307. What did you do for Sir Henry Rawlinson?—I did as men generally do, go and see if they can secure any votes for the cause they take up.

44,308. You voted for him and canvassed those men you worked with?—Yes.

44,309. And you put that down at 10*l.*?—Yes.

44,310. Did you write to Sir Henry Rawlinson or any of his agents?—No.

44,311. You never made a claim?—No, only to Mr. Nichols.

44,312. Did you ever make a claim to Lord Monson's agent?—No, not to my recollection.

44,313. With regard to Mr. Hart, you say you had some private business with him, and then he told you that he had 10*l.* for you. How did he know that you were engaged? Was your name returned?—I suppose so.

44,314. You knew from Mr. Nichols that he returned your name to Mr. Hart as a man who had been working for him?—I might have known it.

44,315. Of course you did?—Yes.

44,316. Did Mr. Hart ask you how long you had been working?—No, Mr. Hart did not.

44,317. Mr. Hart took your own statement? How did he know that it was to be 10*l.*?—That is what was returned to him for me, I suppose.

44,318. And I suppose Mr. Nichols told you that he had returned you to Mr. Hart for 10*l.*?—Yes, he did.

44,319. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Just tell me, what were you in 1865, at the time of the election? Were you then foreman for Mr. Carruthers?—No, I had just left.

44,320. How long had you left Mr. Carruthers?—I think I left him in April, April or May.

44,321. Where were you then at the time of the election?—At Godstone.

44,322. Had you bought any business there, or gone into a business?—No, I had not bought any business; I had to make it myself.

44,323. Did you realize any capital before you went into that business?—I had a few pounds, not a great deal.

44,324. May I ask you to what extent you had raised your capital to go into business?—Well, I had a friend that assisted me.

44,325. That lent you money?—Yes.

44,326. Then had you opened an account at the banker's?—No.

44,347. Do you keep books of account for business purposes?—Yes.

44,328. I suppose in making a business at Godstone it was not very large at first?—No, nothing more than what I could do myself.

44,329. Was it anything more than what you would have earned as foreman at Mr. Carruthers?—No, I should think not much at the first beginning.

44,330. And up to the time of the election, I suppose, it had not very much increased?—No.

44,331. What were you receiving as wages at Mr. Carruthers'?—I should think upon an average about 45*s.* to 50*s.* a week.

44,332. You were at Godstone then at the time of the election?—Yes.

44,333. Did you come over to Reigate on purpose to receive this money from Mr. Nichols?—Yes.

44,334. You say that you received the money in sums up to 10*l.*, not beyond?—Not beyond, I do not think.

44,335. Now if you came over purposely to receive those monies from Mr. Nichols, you can surely recollect in what sums you received them?—No, I cannot.

44,336. Over what period of time was it these monies were being paid to you?—Well, I should think from before the election to some time after the election.

44,337. That is a very general answer, but it is not a definite answer?—Well, I should think about six months.

44,338. Over six months that you were receiving these monies?—I should think so; I cannot say as to the time. It might be three or four months.

44,339. Then you must have received some of these monies whilst you were foreman at Mr. Carruthers'?—Yes, I think I did one or two amounts. I think I may have; I won't be positive.

44,340. Now you can tell me, getting it into that very narrow compass, how much you received whilst you were at Mr. Carruthers' before you left. Did you receive any money before you left?—I think I must have done.

44,341. Would you be upon your oath that you did?—No, I could not say that I did; it was either just at the time I was leaving or after I left.

44,342. You were doing no other work when you were here except as under Mr. Carruthers, I suppose, and you were receiving then about 45*s.* a week?—It would average 45*s.* or 50*s.*

44,343. Then if you received more than that during the time you were at Mr. Carruthers, just before you left, you would surely recollect it if it did take place?—Well, perhaps I did not, I cannot say; it was just about the time I was leaving, or before.

44,344. You are coming here to account for a large sum of money; you must do it more distinctly. You must do it without the perhapses; you must do it with certainty?—I could not say whether it was before I left Mr. Carruthers or afterwards.

44,345. If a man is receiving 45*s.* a week, and, making no more than that, is just going to establish a business for himself, and receives 50*l.*, it is a large sum for him. If you want us to believe that you ever received it you must account for it more definitely. When was the first sum paid to you?—I could not say whether it was before I left or after the time, but it was about the time.

44,346. You had your own work to attend to at Godstone?—Yes.

44,347. Did you attend to your own work there, so as to make your connexion in business?—Yes.

44,348. As a carpenter?—Yes.

44,349. And you worked yourself?—Yes.

44,350. Did you get work?—Yes.

44,351. Constant work?—As much as I could do.

44,352. That would employ pretty well all your day; a good long day for work?—Yes, my days, some days. I did not work all the time, because I was going to and fro here.

44,353. To see what you could get from Mr. Nichols?—And to help on the election.

44,354. How far is Godstone from here? Seven miles you say?—About seven miles.

44,355. On the South-eastern railway?—Yes.

44,356. Having drawn that to your attention, that you came over here and left your work, you can tell me when you first began to leave your work at Godstone for the purpose?—About the time that the election first started here I first left my work to come to see after it.

44,357. Did you begin to make work as soon as you got to Godstone?—Yes.

44,358. Were you paid by the day or did you run up your bills by credit?—I run up my bills by credit for so long a time.

44,359. Then you wanted to have some money to start with?—Yes.

44,360. Would that throw out to your recollection when you first received monies?—As I say, it was about April or May, about the time that I left.

44,361. Now, can you recollect the first time that you received money?—No, I cannot; it was either about April or May.

44,362. Did Mr. Nichols ever pay you so large a sum as 10*l.* at one time?—Yes.

44,363. Was it paid in notes or a note?—Sometimes a note or gold.

44,364. Did he ever pay you in a note? Did he ever give you a 10*l.* or 5*l.* note?—He may have.

44,365. Did he?—I beg your pardon, I cannot say.

44,366. If you want me to believe you you must?—I cannot say whether he did or not. Sometimes I had it in gold, sometimes he would give me a note. I believe he gave me a note.

44,367. How often do you believe he gave you a note?—I could not say.

44,368. More than once?—He may have done.

44,369. He may, and he may not, have given you one single penny of that 50*l.*?—Oh, yes.

44,370. You can tell me if he did whether he paid you all in gold or some portion of it in notes?—I think he paid me some portion in notes.

44,371. You think he did?—Yes.

44,372. You believe he did?—I believe he did.

43,373. What did you do with the notes?—Change them for gold, I suppose.

44,374. Where?—That I do not know.

44,375. Tell me where you changed a single note for gold?—That I could not tell you.

44,376. I will take it as a fact that you received one pay note. Now you must tell me where you changed it?—That is more than I can do.

44,377. Did you receive a note?—I cannot tell whether I did or not, positively.

44,378. When you received a note did you never tell your wife?—No, I never made it my business to tell her. She never asked, and I never told her.

44,379. Does not your wife assist you in making up your books, writing out your bills?—No.

44,380. Did you enter the receipt of the 50*l.* into your business accounts?—No.

44,381. Did you take no account whatever of the entry into your books of the 50*l.*?—No.

44,382. Why not?—I don't know why not. I did not.

44,383. You know you keep up your books. Why did you not make the entry of 50*l.*?—Well, sir, I did not.

44,384. You made no entries in your books?—No.

The witness withdrew.

RIVERS CORNISH sworn and examined.

R. Cornish.

44,385. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—A brickmaker.

44,386. What do you pay for your house?—4*s.* 6*d.* a week.

44,387. Who did you vote for at the last election? Mr. Monson.

44,388. Were you on his committee?—No.

44,389. Did you receive anything before you voted?—No.

44,390. Nothing at all?—No.

44,391. Did you receive something after you voted?—Yes, I received 5*l.*

44,392. Who paid you?—Mr. Emery, at the "Prince Albert."

44,393. Do you mean that he paid you at the "Prince Albert"?—Yes, at it.

44,394. Was that your first election?—Yes.

44,395. Who else was at Emery's, do you recollect, at the "Prince Albert," when you were paid the 5*l.*?—I cannot tell. There were several at the same time, but I cannot say whether they were all upon the election suit or not.

44,396. No; but who was paid money when you were there?—Well, I was paid myself; I did not see any other money pass.

44,397. You recollect there was a man named Brown, was there not?—There was a man named Brown, a neighbour of mine, who voted for Mr. Monson; what he received I can't say.

44,398. Was he paid at the same time that you were?—I cannot say. I was there and I saw Mr. Brown there, but he was not there all the time I was.

44,399. Did you see him paid something?—No.

44,400. Who else was there?—A neighbour of mine, named Nash.

44,401. Did you see him?—I saw him, but nothing——

44,402. He has been here, you know, to-day?—Yes, I believe he has.

44,403. Did you see what he got?—I most forget whether Nash and me went in together; I believe we did, both went in at one time.

44,404. He received 5*l.* too; but did you see him paid the 5*l.*?—I cannot say. I do not recollect seeing him paid anything.

44,405. You do not recollect seeing him paid anything?—Not at the time that I was paid.

44,406. Who else was there; tell me if you please. There were Brown and Nash; which Brown was it who was in there?—William Brown.

44,407. What is he?—He terms himself a labouring man.

44,408. Has he been here?—I believe he has.

44,409. And who else was there?—I do not know of any one else, not just at that time. We were all neighbours.

44,410. Who came in afterwards?—I cannot mention any one else at present.

The witness withdrew.

Henry Francis intimated that he wished to make a statement.

HENRY FRANCIS.

H. Francis.

44,411. (The Chief Commissioner.) You have been sworn before. What statement do you want to make?—One thing as regards Mr. Nichols, as to what he stated this morning in his evidence; that was, that in my evidence I said I went to Mr. Nichols about four or five weeks before the election, I told him that there was money offered on the other side; Mr. Nichols this morning contradicted it, and said that I had not.

The Chief Commissioner informed the witness that the matter he had called their attention to was not at all material.

44,412. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Mr. Nichols confirms you as to what you had; you said 50*l.*, he thought it was 60*l.*?—There was that thing which I wanted to clear myself of. I told you in my evidence that I went to Mr. Nichols and told him there had been money offered on the other side, and Mr. Nichols told me if that was the case he would petition. I promised Mr. Monson my vote in favour of him, and I understood when Mr. Gower was coming out that Mr. Gower was going to conduct this contest in a pure and honourable manner. There is some mistake in my evidence as to purity, I went round to test the purity; there is some mistake, I may have made the mistake. The explanation is, that was to test the purity of the election; that was my meaning.

44,413. (The Chief Commissioner.) That is what you wanted to say to us?—Yes; because I did tell Mr. Nichols there had been money offered on the other side five weeks before, and I can prove it, I can bring witnesses.

44,414. There is no difficulty at all about that; not the least in the world, there is no difference there. Tell me, if you please, what money you received from Mr. Nichols?—50*l.*, I believe, is all I received from him.

44,415. I see in your evidence, in the first instance you say, "I had a good deal of money, I got it from "Mr. Nichols and spent it; I got 50*l.* from him"?—I said it might be a little more than 50*l.*

44,416. You did not say so in your evidence I am quite sure?—I believe Mr. Serjeant O'Brien read it over to me as such; I said I received 50*l.*, I believe.

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He said he received 50*l.*, but my recollection of it is, that he would not be sure.

(The Witness.) That is quite right; I said I was not sure it was 50*l.*, it might be a little more or less. In my own opinion I do not believe I had 50*l.* I cannot say that now, it was somewhere thereabouts, it might be a little more or less.

44,417. (The Chief Commissioner.) In your own opinion you think it was not 50*l.*?—I say I cannot say, not to a certainty.

44,418. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What you said, Mr. Francis, was this, "I may have expended 100*l.* "altogether, but all I got from Mr. Nichols was 50*l.*?"—I dare say it cost me 150*l.* in this election, you do not understand me. All the money I received from Mr. Nichols I believe was 50*l.* or a little over, but I tell you this election has cost me 200*l.* and more than that; not for paying any one in the election.

44,419. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Mr. Nichols put you down at 60*l.*?—It may be, perhaps.

44,420. (The Chief Commissioner.) Mr. Nichols has returned you at 60*l.* in his account?—Oh, I am satisfied, then he owes me 10*l.*

Adjourned till 11 o'clock the next morning.

THIRTIETH DAY.

W. Phillips.

25 Sept. 1866.

THIRTIETH DAY.

Tuesday, 25th September 1866.

WILLIAM PHILLIPS sworn and examined.

44,421. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—A shipowner.

44,422. Do you reside in your own house?—I do.

44,423. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Mr. Monson.

44,424. Were you on Mr. Monson's committee at the last election?—I was; my name was on it, but I did not act.

44,425. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) As deputy chairman?—No, I was not deputy chairman.

44,426. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you not act at all?—I acted so far as introducing Mr. Monson to the voters in the first instance, July previously.

44,427. After the candidates had started did you take any part in the election?—No.

44,428. At the end of the year 1864 was it that you assisted in introducing Mr. Monson to the electors?—Yes, I did.

44,429. Can you tell me what time it was in 1864?—I think in November.

44,430. I believe there was a small party consisting of you and some other gentlemen, who first of all joined in bringing forward Mr. Monson?—Yes.

44,431. How many did the party consist of, so far as you can recollect?—There were several; the principal were Mr. Hanbury and Mr. Walters.

44,432. And yourself?—Yes.

44,433. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Was he the gentleman who had stood before?—Stephen Walters.

44,434. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Just to clear up any difficulty in the name of Mr. Walters that Mr. Walters who stood in 1858 is now dead?—Yes.

44,435. I knew him very well; I believe it was Ralph Walters?—I do not know.

44,436. (The Chief Commissioner.) I believe it was you three gentlemen who invited Mr. Monson to come down?—I wrote Mr. Monson only, but in conjunction with them.

44,437. Then I may take it you three?—Yes. Mr. Monson was then in Italy; that was in July previous.

44,438. Was the first overture from you to him or him to you?—From me to him.

44,439. Did you know he was a man who was inclined to come forward at that time by any means at all?—I believe he was.

44,440. You believed then he was?—Yes.

44,441. Are you aware, from your own knowledge, whether this Mr. Monson had taken any part in previous elections for his brother?—I believe he had not, he was quite unknown to the world.

44,442. At last he came down?—I think it was later in the year when he came down.

44,443. Was there a meeting called after he came down here at which he was presented for the purpose of introducing him to Reigate?—Not at that time; I introduced him privately to some of the constituency.

44,444. Your own friends?—Yes, but I was very much out of health at that time; therefore I could not take any active steps.

44,445. Were you present at a meeting subsequently called of the electors, a large meeting I believe?—I believe not.

44,446. Do you know whether there was such a meeting?—I have heard of several meetings being held.

44,447. I mean before the election began?—Yes.

44,448. You were not present?—I think not; I will not say positively, but at that time I did not stir out of doors.

44,449. In introducing him to the notice of your own friends where did you introduce him, at your own house or where?—I drove round to many, and I introduced him to several at my own table.

44,450. Was that before or after he had decided that he would come forward; he had given out that he would come forward?—Before he had publicly given out that he would come forward; but I understood that he would come forward.

44,451. It was the end of November he publicly announced that he would come forward?—I believe it was.

44,452. The 29th, I think. Do you recollect his expressing any difficulty at any of his meetings on the scarcity of money?—I do not know what he said I never recollect his alluding to money, in any shape.

44,453. I mean in your house or out of the house?—I think not; I may say, certainly not.

44,454. Do you remember being present at a meeting (first I will confine the question to your own house), that a committee or a small number of gentlemen would aid him with funds?—Certainly not.

44,455. You do not remember that?—I do not; I am almost sure it did not take place; certainly not in my house or my presence.

44,456. I say in your own house. First of all, do you know of any meeting taking place anywhere at which a small number of gentlemen agreed to give him some assistance with funds?—Certainly not.

44,457. You do not know of that at all?—No, I never heard of it.

44,458. Are you aware of any subscription being made to assist him with funds at an early period of the election?—Certainly not.

44,459. Well, at any period during the late election. I will first confine myself to the time in the winter season, after he engaged himself to be a candidate, and before anything else?—Certainly not.

44,460. But later in the election, or at any time during the election, are you aware of any subscriptions or contribution made to him, or that was to be made, to assist him with funds?—No; assuredly not.

44,461. You understand the question?—From the beginning to the end I am not aware of anything of the kind.

44,462. You understand my questions, Mr. Phillips. I hope it is not necessary to confine them?—No; I should be most happy to say.

44,463. Did you yourself subscribe any funds towards assisting in the election?—Not a single penny.

44,464. You are sure of that?—Yes.

44,465. Did you put your name down to do so?—Certainly not.

44,466. So as to give him as much of your assistance as you could?—I did nothing that would give a colour to anything of the kind.

44,467. I am confining myself to money?—Just so.

44,468. Are you aware of any subscription or contribution being agreed upon at any time when you were prepared to assist him with money?—Certainly not.

44,469. These questions I ask you, Mr. Phillips, in the widest sense?—Yes, I perfectly understand, and I answer you most unreservedly. I am not aware of anything of the kind, or of it ever being mooted.

44,470. It is on that account I will not exhaust you by further questions?—In my presence it was never mooted; I am sure it was not.

44,471. Nor by your consent at all? Now, tell me, did you take any part during the last election in the expenditure of monies on Mr. Monson's account?—Certainly not.

44,472. Not in any way whatever?—Neither directly or indirectly.

44,473. Do you know anything about the expenditure of money on Mr. Monson's side beyond mere rumours?—No, I do not.

44,474. Do you know anything at all of your knowledge?—No.

44,475. Did you canvass in 1865 for him much?—I might have asked my friends, but I never canvassed; in fact, after the committee was formed I took no further interest in the matter.

44,476. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You did not go out canvassing?—No; I might have asked a friend or so to vote for Mr. Monson, but I took no further interest.

44,477. (The Chief Commissioner.) You voted for him?—Yes.

44,478. Had you anything to do with the election in any way in bringing forward Mr. Richardson, who was, at the last moment, the third candidate?—I never was more surprised than when that was done.

44,479. You had nothing to do with it?—Certainly not.

44,480. Whether in the conception or carrying out of the scheme?—I was utterly astonished when I saw his name.

44,481. Now, go back, if you please, to 1863; in 1863, I believe, you voted for Mr. Gower?—I did.

44,482. Were you on his committee?—I was the chairman of the committee.

44,483. I believe you had agreed to introduce him to Mr. Richardson much as you afterwards introduced Mr. Monson, somewhat in the same sort of way?—His name was mentioned to me by an old friend with whom he was staying; I had a dinner the following day and invited him to attend, which he did; that was his first introduction.

44,484. That would be much in the same way then?—Yes.

44,485. And as the election advanced in 1863 did you take an active part for Mr. Gower?—A very active part.

44,486. Did you canvass for him?—I did.

44,487. And attended his committees?—Certainly.

44,488. All the way through?—All the way through; not such as were held at a distance, but such as were at the "White Hart." We had several meetings; Mr. Hanbury was deputy chairman, and took Warwick-town and the Redhill part, and I took this portion.

44,489. On the occasion of the election in 1863 what do you know about the expenditure of money on Mr. Gower's behalf?—I saw nothing of it; I thought it was conducted on perfectly pure principles.

44,490. We do not know, so far as you are concerned, that it was not; you knew nothing about it?—No.

44,491. Were you aware at the time of the election that in the course of it money was being expended and going to voters?—I was not; had I been I should never have stopped in it.

44,492. On that occasion were you aware whether there was any contribution made among Mr. Gower's friends towards the expense of his election?—I am not.

44,493. Nor before it?—Not before or after.

44,494. Nor after?—Nor after.

44,495. I put my questions in very general terms, whether you were aware of any contribution or subscription?—I never heard of any.

44,496. Did you yourself before the election advance any money towards it?—I am sure I did not.

44,497. Certainly not?—Certainly not.

44,498. Nor before?—Certainly not.

44,499. Nor did you after the election?—No.

44,500. Did you advance any money to aid him in any way during the election?—Nothing directly or indirectly, in one shape or another.

44,501. Did you put down your name for any subscription, though it may not have been paid for some reason?—Certainly not.

44,502. Are you aware of your own knowledge of any money having been advanced towards the expenses of the election by any of your friends?—I am not.

44,503. Was any application made to you either directly or indirectly for money towards the election?—Not any.

44,504. By any person?—No, except common people coming to ask me for a glass of ale or 6*d.*; but not any on behalf of Mr. Gower.

44,505. I mean, directly or indirectly, in aid of Mr. Gower?—Certainly not.

44,506. In aid of Mr. Gower's pocket I mean?—No, I should have thought very badly of Mr. Gower.

44,507. Is there anything, Mr. Phillips, any evidence of importance (we only want different facts)—is there anything of importance which you wish to communicate with regard to the election of 1863?—No, I think not.

44,508. Is there any fact of importance which you would like to tell us with regard to the last election of 1865. I mean merely facts?—No, I think not.

44,509. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) In the course of your canvass was any application made to you at all on the part of any voter?—Not any.

44,510. On the part of any sub-agent?—Not any.

44,511. Then I may take it you were not aware at that time that money was being expended in the way it has been?—I was not aware of it, nor did I believe it till this Commission came forward.

44,512. Which of the sub-agents were you in the habit of seeing most of during the election of 1863?—Mr. Smith was the chief agent.

44,513. No, in 1865?—I did not see any. I had nothing to do with it. I withdrew entirely after the first meeting.

44,514. You knew it was in other hands?—I had nothing to do with it.

44,515. You saw the current was going in other directions?—No, I did not like the company.

44,516. You saw the current was in another direction?—I did.

44,517. From you and Mr. Hanbury?—Yes.

44,518. There was something mentioned about a voter at the back of the park?—What was mentioned? Perhaps that may bring it to my mind.

44,519. It was mentioned in the course of the inquiry here, though it made very little impression on our minds; but do you not recollect it, about giving something to a voter?—I am quite sure I never gave anything to have any influence upon him.

44,520. Are you prepared to say whether you brought to bear any corrupt or undue influence?—I am quite prepared to say so.

44,521. You did not?—Certainly not.

44,522. There was a poor voter at the back of the park; he says his wife had told him that Mr. Phillips had been very kind to him, and that he voted for Mr. Gower?—My wife is generally very kind to all the poor people.

44,523. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Mr. Norman Wilkinson was also kind to them?—I have heard of Mr. Wilkinson being very kind to the people; he was so, very kind.

44,524. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Now, which of the sub-agents were you most with in 1863?—After Mr. Smith, the chief agent, with Mr. Nichols.

44,525. He was very active?—Very active.

44,526. He was then acting under Mr. Smith?—Yes, he was so, I believe.

44,527. In 1863 he was assisting Mr. Smith?—Yes, Mr. Smith was then a head agent.

44,528. He was the man you were brought most in communication with?—He was.

44,529. Do you know anything of the petition being brought that year?—Not until after it was presented.

44,530. You knew then that it was presented?—I knew then that it was presented, of course.

THIRTIETH DAY.

W. Phillips.

25 Sept. 1866.

44,531. Are you aware at all of your own knowledge of the terms attending its being brought?—Nothing more than I learnt from Mr. Gower's letter to Mr. Smith.

44,532. You are chairman of the committee, and therefore would be likely to know?—I wrote to him to express my surprise he should inform me of such an arrangement. I wrote that to him as chairman or deputy chairman, and I believe Mr. Hanbury afterwards wrote to the public papers and disavowed anything of the kind.

44,533. You wrote to him expressing your surprise that he should compromise without consulting you?—I think I wrote to him.

44,534. What explanation did you receive from Mr. Gower or Mr. Wilkinson?—I received none from Mr. Wilkinson, and I do not think I received any from Mr. Gower. I think it passed unnoticed. Then Mr. Hanbury and myself took our own steps to set ourselves right with the constituency.

44,535. You cannot give us any information as to the terms leading to the withdrawal of the petition?—I cannot.

44,536. Of course you, not being aware of anything improper, naturally would be surprised?—I was perfectly astonished.

44,537. Had you received any explanation from Mr. Gower?—No.

44,538. Did you receive any explanation from Mr. Smith, the authorized agent?—Not any; I do not think I ever discussed the matter with Mr. Smith.

44,539. I thought from your writing to Mr. Gower that he might call upon you?—I was disgusted with it, and I found I could not keep my temper to speak about it.

44,540. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) My friend has asked you about the elections of 1865 and 1863; had you taken no part in any previous elections?—I had.

44,541. When did you first begin taking part in the elections?—On the last return of Mr. Somers Cox.

44,542. We do not intend going so far back as that, that was a pure election; the next election was Mr. Hackblock's?—That I took a part in; I undertook to propose Sir Henry Rawlinson at the eleventh hour.

44,543. So far as you are aware of, that election was a pure election?—I believe so; most undoubtedly I should say so.

44,544. That to a very considerable extent appears to have been the view of those we have had before us?—Yes, in fact there was no time for corruption; Sir Henry Rawlinson was proposed to the electors some few days only previous to the nomination.

44,545. Then the next election would be the 1858 election, would it not?—Yes.

44,546. The election when Sir Henry Rawlinson was opposed by Mr. Doulton and Mr. Monson?—Yes.

44,547. Did you take part on that occasion?—I did.

44,548. In whose interest?—Sir Henry Rawlinson's.

44,549. And were you a member of his committee?—I was.

44,550. Were you chairman or deputy chairman?—I was not chairman or deputy chairman; but I took a very active part on the committee.

44,551. So far as you know in reference to the election, was any money paid for any votes for Sir Henry Rawlinson?—I believe not.

44,552. Some of those witnesses who have been here and were present at the election have described it as the character of the election?—It was a noisy one.

44,553. Were you sufficiently about the borough to form an opinion of the character of the election?—I was a great deal about the borough.

44,554. They have stated the way in which it was conducted?—Yes. I think on the part of Sir Henry Rawlinson it was conducted most properly and purely. I do not think there is anything wrong.

44,555. I do not wish you to go into a long story about the election, it is a long time ago; but have you seen from time to time the evidence that has been given before us descriptive of the eleetion?—I have.

44,556. As given by the previous witnesses?—Yes.

44,557. I will simply ask you one general question; do you agree with them in the general nature of the description as to the bribing?—Assuming the general tone of the description I should say it was substantially correct; but it was a very riotous election. Our friend Mr. Hanbury had his head broken in going across the market place.

44,558. As he told us yesterday. Now the next election, October 1858, between Mr. Wilkinson and Monson; did you take part in that election?—I did.

44,559. For whom?—For Mr. Monson.

44,560. And were you a member on his committee?—I was.

44,561. Did you take an active part on the committee as occupying the chair or being deputy chairman?—No, I did not; I believe Mr. Searle, the present mayor, did.

44,562. Then the next election in 1859, did you take part in that?—Who were the candidates?

44,563. They would be Mr. Monson and Mr. Wilkinson?—I think the 1858 election must have been Sir Henry Rawlinson's election.

44,564. There were two elections in 1858, one when Sir Henry Rawlinson was returned, and the next when Sir Henry Rawlinson accepted office; then the following election was April 1859, upon Mr. Monson becoming Lord Monson, when Mr. Wilkinson was put up against him. If you recollect Mr. Wilkinson was put up, according to the evidence, without his knowledge and at the eleventh hour to oppose Mr. Monson?—If Mr. Monson became Lord Monson he could not have come.

44,565. But it was his brother?—No, his brother did not come.

44,566. There was an election in 1859?—Then that was Mr. Monson's first election.

44,567. He was returned in October 1858, and the numbers were 225 for Mr. Monson and 210 for Mr. Wilkinson.—Mr. Gower and him again.

44,568. Mr. Monson?—Yes.

44,569. Then followed the election of 1863. Now I will ask you the general question: do you know anything at all of the expenditure of monies from the election of 1858 up to the election of 1863? You have told us all about 1863?—I know nothing about the expenditure of money in any election whatever.

44,570. Or of the contribution of money or of money passing through your hands?—Certainly not.

The witness withdrew.

G. G. Richardson.

GEORGE GIBSON RICHARDSON sworn and examined.

44,571. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Do you live at Reigate?—I do.

44,572. Did you take an active part at the last election?—Yes.

44,573. On behalf of whom?—On behalf of Mr. Monson.

44,574. Were you the chairman of the committee or deputy chairman?—I was chairman of the committee that was formed for the eastern division of the borough for Redhill, and I believe I was considered deputy chairman of the general committee.

44,575. First as chairman of the Redhill district; where were their meetings held?—The meetings were held at several public houses for the whole of the district.

44,576. Langridge's was one?—Yes, and Topliss.

44,577. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I think I can save you trouble by giving the names of the houses. Was there the "Warwick Arms"?—No; there were four or five, but Langridge's and Topliss's were the principal. I think we only went once to Topliss's; Langridge's was the principal.

44,578. What is the sign of Topliss's house?—"The Tower." I think we were only there once.

44,579. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did any money at all pass through your hands on behalf of Mr. Monson?—None whatever, in any shape.

44,580. Were you aware of any contribution or subscription being made on his behalf?—I never even heard a rumour of it.

44,581. Though no money may have passed through your hands, were you aware that any money had been paid at Langridge's or anywhere, or by Langridge?—I never heard of any money being paid to any voters but once during the election; that I did not know, but I felt pretty sure that many who were actively canvassing for us were not giving up their time for nothing.

44,582. Who were those persons, do you recollect?—Mr. Nichols was our principal agent, and I presumed he was paid, of course; and a man named Kenward was very active for us, and a man named Peat, and a man named Thomas Jordan and Corderoy. I do not know, of course, about their being paid, but I knew they were active. There was also James Apted.

44,583. Did you know it from Mr. Monson himself?—No, I did not.

44,584. Then, as far as you are concerned, it is mere matter of inference?—Yes.

44,585. But you say on one occasion?—Yes, in one instance.

44,586. I want that instance?—That was the night before the day of polling, when Mr. Nichols told me he did not think the railway men would poll. I asked him why. I am speaking from memory, and of what took place in a moment of excitement; he said they would not vote unless they had 2*l.* a head.

44,587. Do you recollect whether it was 2*l.* more a head or 2*l.*?—No, 2*l.* a head.

44,588. Where was that communication made?—In the passage of the "White Hart" here in Reigate.

44,589. Was there any one in the committee room?—Nobody was there but Mr. Monson.

44,590. Mr. Monson was there?—Mr. Monson was in the house.

44,591. Did you communicate that to Mr. Monson?—No, I never said a word to him about it.

44,592. Did you tell Mr. Nichols at once not to do it?—No; Mr. Nichols said, "I will not give it them," and I said, "Of course not."

44,593. You did not approve of it, and Mr. Nichols said, "I will not give it them"?—I did not approve of it, and when he said that I replied, "Of course "not."

44,594. Did he come to ask your approbation or permission?—I will not say that; he was very much put out and annoyed.

44,595. You were not aware that at that time they had received 4*l.* 10*s.* a head?—No; he told me they had received 4*l.* 10*s.* a day after. I said, "Good God, "Nichols, you do not say that respectable men like "these first-rate artizans and mechanics will not go "to the poll without receiving money?" He said, "They won't, and what's more, they have had it."

44,596. What took place, anything further?—No. I said, "It is disgraceful to take money, but it is ten "times worse for a man who has got the money not "to keep to his bargain."

44,597. And then you understood, of course, they wanted 2*l.* a head more?—Yes; and I understood they were not going to have it. If I had known the other had been going to be paid I would have set my face against it.

44,598. Had you known at all that Mr. Nichols had received monies apart from Mr. Hart's hands?—No.

44,599. At this time?—No.

44,600. I am only speaking of your knowledge at the time?—No, I did not.

44,601. Had you any reason to know, from your own knowledge, not from inference, where Nichols had obtained this money which he had paid away?—I did not know he had paid any away till that moment.

44,602. Had you any means of knowledge of your own?—No, I never thought of it for a moment, and did not know anything about it. He said the men had had some money, and would not poll unless they had 2*l.* more.

44,603. And then you made use of your expression of surprise that respectable men, first-rate artizans, should want money to poll?—Yes.

44,604. And he said they had already had money?—Yes.

44,605. And you had no knowledge of the source from whence he got it?—No.

44,606. You had been a good deal round canvassing the ground where the railway men were?—Yes.

44,607. Whom you very properly call first-class artizans?—Yes.

44,608. Did you canvass them all yourself?—No, in company with Mr. Monson; canvassed as many as we could see. I could not get to them, they were always away with their engines, or not at home.

44,609. (The Chief Commissioner.) They said so; they found Mr. Monson had been there while they were away from home?—Yes; our only chance was to manage to meet them at public houses, we could not get to talk to them at home.

44,610. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you give any of them to understand, either directly or indirectly, that they would be paid for what they did, for loss of time?—The thing was not mentioned in my presence.

44,611. It was not mentioned by you?—Nor by anybody else.

44,612. Was it done by you or with your sanction?—No; we were never a party; it was only Mr. Monson and myself, only us two.

44,613. Are you prepared to give the same answer so as to extend to all you canvassed?—Yes, to every one.

44,614. For loss of time or service?—No, it was never mentioned, in any shape or way,

44,615. We understand it was determined among some persons on the morning of the nomination day you should be proposed as a candidate?—It was determined the evening before.

44,616. Amongst whom, and by whom?—Only by Mr. Monson and myself.

44,617. (The Chief Commissioner.) The evening before the election?—No, the evening before the nomination.

44,618. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Was Mr. Monson the first to suggest it to you, or to ask your permission?—No, I think he had sent up to London to ask advice there, and that was the advice, "that "under the circumstances you had better put up a "third party you can trust, and then we can work "the petition after."

44,619. Some communication had come down from a third party to Mr. Monson; did he communicate that to a third party or to you only?—No, to me only.

44,620. Did you see from whom the communication came?—No.

44,621. You did not know from Mr. Monson himself?—No, but I knew on whose advice he very frequently acted.

44,622. I have a right to ask you this, for it is in evidence that a certain party was cognizant of a certain arrangement; was it from Mr. Humphreys?—Well, I guess it was Mr. Humphrey. I do not say it was him; I know he was consulted very frequently.

44,623. We have it in evidence a 500*l.* cheque was drawn in favour of Mr. Humphrey and paid to Mr. Nichols?—I knew he was advising Mr. Monson.

44,624. And then it was arranged Mr. Richardson should be proposed, and in case of an adverse decision you would stand clear; of course you acceded to it?—Yes, in the presence of Mr. Nichols; no one else was there; we had no time to act in committee.

THIRTIETH DAY.

44,625. Had you mentioned it on the morning of the nomination day?—No, I never told anybody; I never opened my mouth about it.

44,626. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) There is only one question as to 1865 I wish to ask. Had Nichols sent a person named Miller to you by Langridge; he was a man with a water cart?—I think he has been examined.

44,627. Do you recollect the circumstance about Miller being recommended to you by Nichols to be employed?—I remember the man himself speaking to me, and saying he had got no money, and I said, "If "it is employment you want (or) any employment you "want, you had better go to Mr. Nichols."

44,628. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Had you heard from Mr. Monson himself he had been in communication with Mr. Humphrey in reference to the election?—In reference to the election certainly, but not to that particular point, but generally.

44,629. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) In reference to Miller, were you aware at all Mr. Nichols paid him so large a sum as 25*l.*?—No, I did not know it. I did not know he was a voter; I thought he was not.

44,630. You went merely to have yourself put in nomination?—Yes.

44,631. Did you canvass anybody?—For myself, did you mean?

44,632. Yes?—No.

44,633. Is there anything else in regard to the election of 1865, do you think, we ought to know?—Do you mean as to the point you have been asking me upon?

44,634. I have done with you in '65, but is there any particular fact?—You do not want opinions from me.

44,635. No, facts?—Well, as regards my own position, I should not have assented to it unless I had felt it was absolutely impossible Mr. Monson should be returned; but apart from that, I think it was a mistake, and that neither myself or Mr. Monson had any right to take such a step without the sanction of the committee, but we had no time to communicate.

44,636. (The Chief Commissioner.) You heard from Mr. Monson himself he had been in communication with him on the subject of the election?—Yes.

44,637. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you take an active part in the election of 1863?—No, I did not even vote. I was chairman of Mr. Monson's committee in '58 and '59, and vice-chairman of Mr. Mr. Hackblock's previously.

44,638. (The Chief Commissioner.) In the general election of 1858, Doulton's, and the subsequent one?—Yes.

44,639. Is there anything you have to name not already mentioned?—Nothing I think that you ought to know. I know it was a very hard fight. On the first election, when Mr. Monson came, it was merely an introducing one; we just picked up a few votes.

44,640. If you should think of or find anything important you will tell us?—Yes.

44,641. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You say you were not aware Miller was a voter?—I did not know his name; he was a man with red hair and a water cart

44,642. When you send him to Langridge's did you think he was a voter?—No.

44,643. Was he of that class you would not think would occupy a 10*l.* house?—Yes; I think he would occupy about that. You must know there is a want of a certain description of house; many cannot afford to live in 10*l.* houses, persons who have sometimes 14*s.* or 15*s.* a week, but they cannot get smaller ones, and they let them out in lodgings.

The witness withdrew.

ALFRED BARTLETT recalled and examined.

A. Bartlett.

44,644. (The Chief Commissioner.) You stated when you were called here before us that you voted in the election of 1865 for Mr. Gower, and you told us that you had received before the election 2*l.* from Mr. Henry Green?—That was wrong.

44,645. I am told you wish to correct that statement?—It was at the latter end of November or the beginning of December.

44,646. Then you received the 2*l.* some time after the election?—It was a long period before.

44,647. It would be after the election. The election was in July 1865?—Yes.

44,648. When did you receive the 2*l.* from Mr. Henry Green?—In the November or the December.

44,649. Afterwards?—Before the election.

44,650. Then, instead of receiving the 2*l.* before, you received it afterwards. Was it before the election?—Yes.

44,651. That was your original statement. You told us when you were here before that you received it before the election?—It was in November or December.

44,652. But just tell me in what way your evidence in the first instance was wrong. What you told me was that before the election came on you received 2*l.* from Mr. Green?—Yes.

44,653. Is that right?—Yes.

44,654. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Then tell us what you want to alter. I do not quite understand. Did you receive the 2*l.* with reference to the election of 1863 or the one in 1865?

44,655. (The Chief Commissioner.) You received it long before the election; that is what you stated before?—I received it from Mr. Green through illness.

44,656. Listen to me. Did you receive the 2*l.* from Mr. Green before the election?—I believe so, sir.

44,657. In November or December; the winter before the election?—I believe so.

44,658. Then it was more than six months before the election?—Yes.

44,659. Why did he pay you the 2*l.*? Answer this question?—I had a very heavy illness in the house at the time, and I believe he gave it to me in charity.

44,660. How did he come to give it to you; I do not understand?—He has been a great friend to me ever since I have been here, and it is not the first that he has given to.

44,661. I understand that; but did he come to call upon you, or did he come to give it to you?—It was given to my wife.

44,662. Was Mr. Wilkinson dead at that time?—I am sure I cannot say.

44,663. Did you see Mr. Green himself about the 2*l.*?—No, I did not.

44,664. Did you never see him about the 2*l.*?—No, I thanked him.

44,665. Then you did see him about it?—When I met him. I am living under him.

44,666. When was it you met him and thanked him?—It was some little time after.

44,667. About?—Well, I should say about three weeks or a month.

44,668. What did you say when you met him?—I told him I was extremely obliged to him for his kindness that he had done, and always has done, and it was a great benefit to me.

44,669. What did he say?—He says, "You are "quite welcome, Bartlett, and anything I can do to "assist you at any time, I will."

44,670. You are a plasterer; had you been working for him?—I have been working for him now, off and on, for this last 14 years.

44,671. Tell me candidly, was anything at all said about the election?—Not one word.

44,672. Then why did you come here?—All he asked me was, at the time he said, "Bartlett, do you "think of voting?"

44,673. When did he say that?—That was just before this last election. I said, "I intend to go for "Mr. Gower," and that is every word that passed between us.

44,674. Why did you in the first instance, when we called you some days ago, tell me that you received 2*l.* from Mr. Green after the election?—I say, sir, now, that I stated that wrong. I did'nt hardly know what I was saying; I was agitated at the time.

44,675. But it came out, you know; you brought it out as having reference to the election?—Yes.

44,676. Now, may it not have been that you received another sum of 2*l.* from Mr. Green?—No, sir. I have never received that sum from him before or since.

44,677. What sum?—2*l.*

44,678. But you told us that the 2*l.* was not the only kindness he conferred upon you?—It has been a few shillings before.

44,679. How was it he gave you the 2*l.* on this occasion, and not a few shillings only?—Because my son has had two paralytic strokes, and I have had to send him to the hospital every fortnight, and it has been a great expense to me.

44,680. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I want to draw your attention to this fact, Bartlett?—I am very sorry that I should have given it wrong, sir.

44,681. When you were examined do you recollect this, that you were asked, "What did you think it "was for?" in reference to the 2*l.*, and you said, "I "received 2*l.* from Mr. Green a month before the "election, and nothing after. He did not say what "it was for, and I was not aware it was for the vote "at the time." Then you were asked, "What did "you think it was for?" and you said, "I did not "know, sir; it was given to me, and I took it." Now, there, you see, you have given great particularity with regard to the receipt of that 2*l.* How came you to make that statement before us on the 15th September?—I cannot think why I should make it.

44,682. You not only state that you received 2*l.* before the election, but you give a most particular description about it?—I cannot tell you how I did so. I did not intend to.

44,683. Let me ask you, was that all pure invention?—It must have been invention; it come out. I am sure I can't think how I said it; it come out.

44,684. You cannot tell why, except that you did say it?—No.

44,685. I want you to explain the discrepancy between your two statements?—I cannot explain why I should say such a thing.

44,686. Then you went on to say, "This was my "first election; I was not canvassed by any one else?" —No, I was not, and there was no one said anything to me about it but Mr. Green, and that was all he asked me. He asked me which way I was going, and I said, "For Mr. Gower."

46,687. Then how came you now to recollect that that 2*l.* was given in November?—After I got home on Monday I sat down and considered with myself, and I have come now on my own account this morning.

44,688. Did you talk it over with your wife?—Yes, and my wife told me. She said, "You says wrong; "it was in November," and I have come now entirely of myself this morning to explain as well as I can. I thought it was no more than right that I should come.

44,689. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you receive the money as a loan in November?—No, I did not, for I never asked Mr. Green for it.

44,690. Did you expect to pay Mr. Green back again?—No, I did not expect to pay it back. He always has been very kind.

44,691. Did you work for him?—Well, I very often do little odd jobs, and don't charge him for them.

44,692. You charge him for your work?—No, not if it is a small one.

44,693. I mean, did you work the 2*l.* out?—I dare say it has been worked out.

44,694. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) But since that time you have always been paid by Mr. Green for the work you have done?—Yes, for any little work that I have done.

44,695. That is not working the 2*l.* out?—No, sir, that is not.

44,696. (The Chief Commissioner.) Now, Bartlett, be cautious, and don't answer in a hurry. Are you quite sure you are right about the time?—Yes.

44,697. Now, we have very good reason for doubting it. You should be told that Mr. Green has returned this 40*s.* as 40*s.* which he has paid away as electioneering money?—He has, sir!

44,698. There, then (handing a statement of account), you shall read it.

44,699. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) There is your name (pointing), "Bartlett, 40*s.*," almost the very last name on the list?—I was not aware of it; he never said anything about it.

44,700. (The Chief Commissioner.) You say it was before the election, was it?—Yes.

44,701. Then it was quite right as it stood before?—I cannot understand it.

44,702. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) If Mr. Green kept a regular account, and entered the names in the list according to their dates, it would come pretty nearly as you gave it to us at first?—It was received in November.

44,703. Mr. Green has charged Mr. Gower with the 2*l.* which he gave to you, and that he has been paid?—Has he, sir?

The witness withdrew.

RICHARD JORDAN sworn and examined.

R. Jordan.

44,704. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What is your business?—I am a butcher.

44,705. A journeyman or master butcher?—Master.

44,706. What rent do you pay for your house?—8*l.*

44,707. Do you have it on lease?—Well, the lease is just out now. That is what I paid this last year. The lease was made 14 years ago.

44,708. It was a lease with the usual covenants for repair, I suppose?—Yes.

44,709. That will probably make it worth more than 10*l.* a year. For whom did you vote at the last election?—For Mr. Gower.

44,710. Were you on his committee?—No.

44,711. Did you take any part in working for Mr. Gower?—Not at all.

44,712. Did you receive anything after the election or before?—Nothing whatever.

44,713. At any time?—Not at any time.

44,714. Not from anybody?—Not from any one.

44,715. You voted for Mr. Gower at the last election?—Yes.

44,716. Who did you vote for in 1863?—I had not any vote; this was my first election.

44,717. Have you at any time received any money for or on account of the election?—Not at any time.

44,718. From anybody?—Not from any one.

44,719. Is there any other Richard Jordan on the

THIRTIETH DAY.

R. Jordan.

25 Sept. 1866.

list besides yourself?—I cannot say; I do not know of any one.

44,720. (The Chief Commissioner.) Are you of High-street, Reigate?—Yes.

44,721. Did you, as a fact, ever receive the sum of 7*l.* 7*s.*?—No.

44,722. From Mr. Nichols,—Mr. James Nichols?—No.

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I have it here (referring to the list of payments), "Richard Jordan, "7*l.* 7*s.*"

44,723. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Mr. Nichols said so yesterday. That is the reason why you are called to-day, to give you an opportunity of explaining it. Mr. Nichols said he had paid to Richard Jordan, of High-street, Reigate, the sum of 7*l.* 7*s.*?—It is a mistake.

44,724. Had you ever received 7*l.* 7*s.* from Mr. Nichols?—I never received anything at all from any one.

44,725. (The Chief Commissioner.) Very likely you did not from any one. That is not the question. It is whether you received it from Mr. Nichols?—No, I did not.

44,726. You say that is not true?—That is not true.

44,727. That you never received 7*l.* 7*s.* on account of any election?—No.

44,728. From Mr. Nichols?—I never have.

44,729. Or from anybody else?—No.

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) There is a "Jordan, "Richard," I find, in Mead-vale; "house and "garden."

44,730. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) This is Richard Jordan, of High-street, Reigate. Do you know of any other Richard Jordan, of High-street, Reigate, besides yourself?—Not that I know of.

44,731. How long have you lived there?—Two years; just about two years.

44,732. If there were a Richard Jordan, of High-street, Reigate, besides yourself, you would probably know the fact?—Yes, I should think so.

44,733. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you vote at the last election?—Yes, I voted for Mr. Gower. I promised Mr. Gower, and as I intended to vote for him I would not promise anybody else.

44,734. Are you sure you voted in 1865?—Yes, I voted at the last election.

44,735. Did you vote in the Old borough?—I cannot say.

44,736. Where did you vote?—At Reigate; in the town.

44,737. Then you would be of the Old borough?

44,738. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You are not on the poll book. It is only Richard Jordan, of Mead-vale; that is all it is on the register?—I lived in Mead-vale.

44,739. Then you are the Richard Jordan of Mead-vale; "house and garden." Did you occupy a house and garden?—Yes, I lived there.

44,740. How long have you left that?—Two years.

44,741. Then the register had not been altered?—No.

44,742. Then you are the Richard Jordan of Mead-vale on the list, but in fact you lived in High-street, Reigate?—Yes.

44,743. The material fact is that you are the person who was in Mead-vale, but now of High-street, and you are the person to whom Mr. Nichols referred?—Yes; he made a mistake.

44,744. (The Chief Commissioner.) Now tell me, Jordan, will you, if you please, did you hear Mr. Nichols state to us that he had paid you seven guineas?—I did not hear him say so. I was in Court the last part of the time, but I did not hear that.

44,745. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I saw you in Court?—Yes, I was here only the last part of the time; about half an hour.

44,746. When were you aware that he did state it?—I was not told so till this morning. It was shown me in the paper, and I said it was quite wrong.

44,747. (The Chief Commissioner.) Just tell me what you were shown this morning?—A man showed me the name of Jordan in the paper, and said my name was mentioned.

44,748. As what?—As having had 7*l.* or seven guineas.

44,749. Seven guineas it was; very well?—I said it was quite wrong; it was quite a mistake, for I never received any money at all.

44,750. You said you had not received any money at all?—Yes.

44,751. Do you recollect before the election of 1865, the last election, having a conversation with Mr. Nichols about the election?—I had not any conversation at all, more than Mr. Nichols might have asked me if I would come his side.

44,752. That is a conversation with Mr. Nichols about the election. Let us go by steps. You did have a conversation with him about the election? What did he say to you?—He asked me if I would go their side and vote for Mr. Monson. I said no, I had promised Mr. Gower, and intended to vote for him, and he said, "Very well."

44,753. Did he ask you to go on Mr. Monson's committee?—No.

44,754. Not at all?—No.

44,755. Was that the only conversation you had with him about the election?—That is all.

44,756. Did he tell you that it would be worth your while to be on Mr. Monson's side?—No.

44,757. Nothing about it?—Nothing about it, because I let it be understood when I told him I was going to do that that I should do so, and he did not ask me any more.

44,758. Do you mean that you did not see him any more about the election?—Not to say anything about the election.

44,759. I mean about the election?—No.

44,760. Did anybody else on Mr. Monson's side have any talk with you about the election before it came on?—Not that I am aware of. Somebody might have said, "Who are you going to vote for?" or something of that sort, nothing more.

44,761. Don't you recollect before the election the sum of 7*l.* or seven guineas being mentioned by somebody?—No.

44,762. Did you never hear of it till you saw it in the paper this morning?—No.

44,753. Did you never hear of any sum being mentioned about you in reference to the election?—No.

44,764. Never in your life?—No.

44,765. Were you surprised at it?—Well, I was; because I knew nothing about it before.

44,766. As soon as you saw it did you go and tell Mr. Nichols that it was all a mistake, and that you never received a farthing?—No, I have not seen Mr. Nichols since, to speak to him.

Mr. Commissioner O'Brien requested the witness to remain in Court till Mr. Nichols should arrive, as the imputation was a very serious one.

WILLIAM HOWELL sworn and examined.

44,767. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What are you?—A wheelwright.

44,768. What do you occupy here in this town?—A house and garden.

44,769. At what rent?—It is my own.

44,770. One of the freeholds?—No, it is a leasehold.

44,771. What is it rated at?—8*l.* a year.

44,772. That would be very nearly about 11*l.*, you know. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Mr. Monson.

44,773. Did you receive any money for or on account of your voting at the last election?—No, I received money for my services.

44,774. What were your services?—I had several journeys; to Guildford once, and to Forest Hill twice; and from Reigate to Redhill.

44,775. What were the journeys from Reigate to Redhill for?—To see Mr. Nichols about voters.

44,776. Did you receive anything?—Yes.

44,777. How much?—I dare say I might have received 15*l.* for the whole together. I think somewhere thereabouts.

44,778. Why did you fix upon 15*l.*?—Because that is about the monies I had from Mr. Nichols.

44,779. Did you keep an account of the monies you had from Mr. Nichols?—I kept an account just at that time.

44,780. Where is it?—At home.

44,781. Eh?—I kept an account within myself; I did not put it down.

44,782. This moment you just said that account was at home?—I did not know that I put it down anywhere.

44,783. Then why did you say that you put it down and that the account was at home?—It was a mistake.

44,784. Who paid you?—Mr. Nichols.

44,785. On each occasion?—No.

44,786. Did you receive it all upon one occasion?—No, several times.

44,787. That is the reason why I asked you; did you on each occasion receive the money from Mr. Nichols?—I received three or four; I don't know how much during the election, and a small cheque after the election.

44,788. What was the amount of the cheque?—I cannot say exactly what it was; it was somewhere about 7*l.*; I believe it was, I won't be sure. I won't swear what it was exactly.

44,789. Upon what bank was it drawn?—I do not know.

44,790. What did you do with the cheque?—I changed it at James Barker's here in the town.

44,791. Was it a cheque upon one of the banks in this town?—I believe it was; I won't say.

44,792. How long after the election was that cheque given to you?—A fortnight, I dare say.

44,793. When did you part with it?—The same day as I had it.

44,794. Did you receive any of the other portion of the 15*l.* by cheque?—No.

44,795. Did you receive any of it in bank notes?—No.

44,796. All in cash?—In gold.

44,797. Then how much did you receive before the election?—I cannot say exactly what it was; about 8*l.* I suppose. I cannot say exactly what it was.

44,798. You say you received that cheque shortly after the election?—Yes, I think it was somewhere about 7*l.*, but I won't be sure; I could not swear just what it was.

44,799. Did you send in any account to Mr. Nichols?—No.

44,800. Did you give any receipt for the money?—No.

44,801. Where were you paid the money, at Mr. Nichols's?—In his house.

44,802. At the bar or in one of the rooms?—In one of the rooms.

44,803. Were you alone when you were paid?—Yes, Mr. Nichols and me.

44,804. Quite alone?—Yes.

44,805. Did you secure any voters for your canvass?—Well, I went and tried three or four.

44,806. Did any monies pass through your hands for the voters?—Not any.

44,807. Did you make any promises to the voters?—No.

44,808. What did you do with the voters? Did you refer them to Mr. Nichols, or anybody?—I went to see them, and asked them which way they were going.

44,809. You saw them and, what?—I saw them and treated them, and asked them which way they were going, and some said "Gower," and one or two said "Mr. Monson."

44,810. Was that your usual mode of canvassing? You asked a man for his vote, and you treated him?—When I went to Guildford I had a little refreshment myself, and the man who was with me would have something.

44,811. Who was that you canvassed at Guildford?—John Eldridge.

44,812. He was living out of the borough?—He was at work at Guildford.

44,813. Did his family still occupy a house in the borough?—Yes.

44,814. Did he come back to Reigate to vote?—No.

44,815. He did not vote at all?—No.

44,816. Was anything offered to him to induce him to come to Reigate to vote?—Not a halfpenny.

44,817. That is one place you went to; where else did you go?—I went to Forest Hill to see Thomas Barefoot.

44,818. Did he vote?—He voted for Gower.

44,819. Did you see him?—No, he was at Bristol.

44,820. You did not see him?—No.

44,821. Where else did you go?—I went to Barefoot's a second time.

44,822. Did you see him then?—No.

44,823. Did you ever see him?—No.

44,824. That was three journeys. Did you make any other journeys?—No; I went about to see if I could get a voter or two at Redhill.

44,825. You lived at Redhill?—I lived at Redhill.

44,826. That did not take much time?—I spent my whole time when I was at it.

44,827. Your time of an evening?—No, the whole of the day.

44,828. Did you vote in 1863?—Yes.

44,829. For whom?—Mr. Wilkinson.

44,830. Did you receive anything at that election?—No.

44,831. Nothing?—No

44,832. Had you received any monies at any of the elections before?—Never in my life.

44,833. This was the first?—The first.

44,834. Were you paid anything by anybody else?—No.

44,835. Did you send in an account at all?—No.

44,836. Not to anybody?—Never in my life, not for any electioneering.

44,837. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you do any more work this time than you had done the election before?—Yes; I never lost any time at the election before this.

44,838. And you did this time?—Yes.

The witness withdrew.

WILLIAM WALTERS sworn and examined.

W. Walters

44,839. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are you?—A joiner.

44,840. What rent do you pay for your house?—14*l.* 6*s.*

THIRTIETH DAY.

W. Walters.

25 Sept. 1866.

44,841. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Mr. Monson.

44,842. Did you receive any monies?—Yes.

44,843. How much?—Well, I received 1*l.* at the beginning of the election. That was an old claim for my services rendered at the 1863 election.

44,844. For whom did you vote in 1863?—Mr. Gower.

44,845. You voted for Mr. Monson the last election?—Yes.

44,846. And you received money from Mr. Monson for the services you had rendered Mr. Gower in 1863?—I don't know whether it was Mr. Monson's money or not.

44,847. From whom did you receive it?—From Mr. Nichols.

44,848. How much?—1*l.*

44,849. You had engaged to work for Mr. Monson then?—Not then; that was the first commencement of it.

44,850. Did not you know that Mr. Nichols was working for Mr. Monson then?—Well, I might have known Mr. Nichols was.

44,851. Did not you know that Mr. Nichols was working for Mr. Monson then?—I knew he was an agent for Mr. Monson.

44,852. You knew that he was when he paid you the 1*l.*, did not you? What is the use of trying to deny it?—I do not deny it.

44,853. Did not you know that he was?—That was nothing at all to do with it.

44,854. Did not you know he was working for Mr. Monson when he engaged you?—Well, I believe he was. This was a very early part of the business.

44,855. I know it was. What did you receive afterwards?—Well, I received 30*s.* before the election, and 2*l.* afterwards.

44,856. That was 4*l.* 10*s.* altogether?—Yes.

44,857. (The Chief Commissioner.) From whom?—From Mr. Nichols.

44,858. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What did you do for that?—Well, I did the best that lay in my power on behalf of Mr. Monson.

44,859. What did you do?—Well, I canvassed a good many.

44,860. Who did you get to vote?—No one; they wanted money, and I had no power.

44,861. Now, who wanted money; come?—I cannot say who they was.

44,862. You say, "They wanted money;" I ask you who wanted money?—I don't know any individual.

44,863. Who wanted money? You said they wanted money?—I cannot tell. Pretty nigh everybody that you spoke to about it wanted to know what you could do, and I told them I had no power whatever.

44,864. Everybody is nobody; cannot you give me a name?—I cannot; I cannot give you one.

44,865. I ask for a name?—I cannot give you one.

44,866. Then what is the use of talking about "everybody"?—That is the fact.

44,867. Cannot you give me a name, because I do not know any individual in particular?—I cannot; not to speak conscientiously.

44,868. You had voted in 1863?—No; I had no vote in 1863.

44,869. Then you got the 1*l.* for nothing?—I was engaged for Mr. Gower when he came on, canvassing.

44,870. What did you get in 1863?—Well, I got nothing but the 1*l.*, which I received afterwards.

The witness withdrew.

J. Nichols.

JAMES NICHOLS recalled and examined.

44,871. (Mr. Commissioner Smith). Yesterday in your evidence, Mr. Nichols, you gave the name of Richard Jordan, to whom you said you had paid 7*l.* 7*s.*?—No, I said nothing of the kind; I denied it. The Chief Commissioner gave me the name as one of the cheques I had drawn, and I said it had nothing at all to do with the election.

44,872. (The Chief Commissioner.) You are right.—I canvassed Richard Jordan, and he told me he had promised Mr. Gower; and after that I never spoke to him again.

(The Chief Commissioner.) I think you are right.

44,873. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You said, "I "gave Richard Jordan 7*l.* 7*s.*"?—No, I never said it. There was a cheque I was asked about that I had drawn about that time, and my answer was, that it had nothing to do with the election. It was an account for meat. I heard of this, and I was coming to the Court without being sent for, because I heard it was so stated in the newspaper.

44,874. Mr. Ridge was examined yesterday. Now, be cautious how you proceed. Mr. Ridge was examined yesterday, and he told us he received 50*l.* from you; have you any note, any memorandum of any kind, to show how you paid him that 50*l.*?—I think the cover of my cheque book will show; I do not know.

44,875. Is there anything you can refer to, to show that you paid him that 50*l.*, because I tell you at once, if it be true, it is a most disgraceful transaction?—Well, I can only say——

44,876. Now, I tell you that, and I ask you to be cautious how you answer. He also told us, that in the 50*l.* you, having received Mr. Monson's money, 10*l.* was paid for Sir Henry Rawlinson's election, 10*l.* for Lord Monson's election, and 10*l.* for Mr. Gower's election Is that true?—No. I certainly paid him——

44,877. Is that true?—No. It is quite true that he told me he had not been paid at previous elections.

44,878. Is it true that you paid him out of the 50*l.* 10*l.* for Sir Henry Rawlinson's election, 10*l.* for Lord Monson's election, and 10*l.* for Mr. Gower's election?—No.

44,879. Did you purport to pay him out of Mr. Monson's money in your hands any portion for that back debt?—I said that he had never been paid.

44,880. Did you purport out of the 50*l.* to pay him any portion of his back debt?—No, sir.

44,881. You heard a man here just now tell us the same disgraceful tale, that you paid him 1*l.* for what he did for Mr. Gower at the last election. Is that true?—That is true.

44,882. It is true? Let me understand it now. It is true that you, having Mr. Monson's money in your hands, paid out of it what you owed on behalf of Mr. Gower? Is that true?—Yes, sir. I think there were four of them.

44,883. I call it a thoroughly disgraceful thing. There was another man who gave his evidence, and who said that you paid him 35*l.*?—Clark.

44,884. Is it true that you paid him 10*l.* in that way?—Yes.

44,885. For a back debt of Mr. Gower's?—Yes.

44,886. You have no memorandum of any sum of money at all to Ridge?—No. I retained him because he was a most useful man.

44,887. And you gave him 50*l.*?—I think I gave three or four sums.

44,888. Then, all that about the payment of back debts is a fiction on the part of Ridge?—He must have misunderstood me; I have no doubt he said that he had never been paid for the other elections.

44,889. What had Mr. Monson to do with that?—I wanted to secure him.

44,890. You have no memorandum of any kind to show that you paid that sum of money?—If you have, it is most important for you to show any memorandum that you paid Ridge any portion of that 50*l.*?—I think it is very likely I paid him by cheque.

44,891. Can you show me any cheque?—I do not know at all, but this I know, I did do so.

44,892. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you know at the time that Ridge lived at Godstone, seven miles away?—Yes.

44,893. Perhaps you will explain to me what you mean by his being useful to you as a canvasser?—He was foreman for Mr. Carruthers for many years, and generally had the greatest control of the men. He had more influence with the men, and Mr. Carruthers had always very many jobs away from Reigate, building churches at Norwood and other places, and he was generally foreman at one of these jobs away from Reigate.

44,894. But you were using James Brown amongst the men?—No; I was not using him.

44,895. Did you pay James Brown anything?—Yes, I paid him something.

44,896. How much did you pay James Brown?—I think he had 10*l.* James Brown was not employed by me, but paid by me.

44,897. There is another question which I feel bound to ask you.

44,898. (The Chief Commissioner.) I think it right to call your attention for your own sake to a bit of evidence you gave yesterday, in reference to paying back debts, debts of the previous elections. You told us yesterday that you told Mr. Monson himself, that before you set to work you must have money to pay some outstanding debts of 1863?—I did not say quite that. I said——

44,899. You stated those words?—I qualified it by saying that I told Mr. Monson that sometimes I should have to do so.

44,900. That is exactly what I read; therefore I mention that, because it seems to me that if you had already told Mr. Monson it ought to be known, in fairness to you, that Mr. Monson knew it would be necessary in order to secure some men that you should pay back debts of 1863? That is all I have got to say.

44,901. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) And that you had Mr. Monson's authority to do so?—I told him that I was going to do so.

44,902. He did not tell you not to?—Quite so.

44,903. (The Chief Commissioner.) I showed you a cheque yesterday of Jordan's; there it is now, of 7*l.* 7*s.* at this moment I do not quite recollect what you told me?—I told you that that 7*l.* 7*s.* had nothing to do with the election.

44,904. Quite right, you did. I will tell you what is the proof of it, that I not only struck it out in pencil, but purposely avoided putting it down in my note here. Therefore, I think you have explained that.

44,905. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) We have the evidence here of Ridge, who states that he received three 10*l.* notes, and I repeat again that it was a most disgraceful transaction that any money should be paid for back debts?—Well, sir, I say again——

44,906. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you, for example, tell Mr. Monson that you paid,—because I will have it out,—that you had ever paid that man the 10*l.*? I mean Clark. Did you ever tell Mr. Monson, or up to this hour does Mr. Monson know, except by reading of it, that you gave Clark 10*l.* on behalf of Mr. Smith?—No, I never gave him any names at all.

44,907. Did you ever tell him that you paid that last man 1*l.*; the man who was not a voter?—No, I say I never gave him the names.

44,908. Did you tell Ridge to send in a bill to Mr. Hart for 10*l.*?—I know that he did so.

44,909. Did not you tell him to send in a bill after you had given him 50*l.*, to send in a bill to Mr. Hart?—I do not know that I told him; he did do so.

44,910. You knew he did so?—Yes.

44,911. You knew that Mr. Hart paid him 10*l.* in addition for services tendered at the election?—Yes.

44,912. Did you tell Mr. Hart that you paid him 50*l.*?—No.

44,913. Did not you mean Mr. Hart to understand that that was the payment for his services at the election?—Yes.

44,914. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Then did he do more work than was worth the 10*l.*?—Yes, I thought so.

44,915. Then why not return to Mr. Hart the full amount of his earnings?—Because I had authorized him to get a vote at a place near Godstone station, and the man wanted 20*l.* for his vote.

44,916. Who was that?—Wallis; John Belton Wallis.

44,917. And is he there now?—Yes.

44,918. Was that the reason why you paid so much more money to Mr. Ridge?—I should have paid him that extra.

44,919. Did you know before Mr. Ridge sent in the claim to Mr. Hart for 10*l.* that he was going to send it in?—Yes, I think I did. I am not quite certain; I think so.

44,920. Was it at your suggestion or under your authority that the account was sent in for 10*l.* to Mr. Hart?—No, I think not.

44,921. You knew of it?—I know of it.

44,922. Why did you want him to receive 10*l.* from Mr. Hart in addition to what he had received of yourself?—Because Mr. Hart knew that he had been at work. He had constantly driven from Godstone to Reigate, and attended meetings, and reported about the men, especially about this man named Wallis.

44,923. Then why could not you tell Mr. Hart that you had remunerated him for his services without charging Mr. Monson another 10*l.*?—I never told Mr. Hart that I paid any one.

44,924. I was just going to ask you about that account for refreshments. Mr. Hart advertised, did he not, for all claims to be sent in to him?—Yes.

44,925. And you saw that advertisement?—I knew that there was one. I do not know whether I saw it.

44,926. That those accounts were to be sent in during the course of the month?—Yes.

44,927. Or they would not be paid?—Yes.

44,928. Then why did not you send in the account for refreshments?—Because Mr. Hart would not have paid it. He would not pay a single account where there was any refreshment in it. I always knew that.

44,929. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you know that this man Clark, to whom you paid the back money, had received 10*l.* and kept it?—No.

44,930. From the Gowers?—No.

44,931. That he had received 10*l.* to give to the two Dales, and then put it in his pocket?—I only knew it from his evidence. He never had the money from me.

44,932. I did not ask whether he had the money from you. I asked you whether you did not know it?—I only knew it from his evidence.

44,933. (The Chief Commissioner.) I want to ask you one question. Besides all the money you received for expenses of all kinds during the election from Mr. Monson, which you tell us amounted in the whole to 1,730*l.*, you received also some monies from Mr. Hart?—Yes.

44,934. You did not tell us about that. I see you received a sum of 35*l.* from Mr. Hart "For payments made at the Reigate election for messengers and petty disbursements and damage and carriages;" a sum of 35*l.* for that?—Yes.

44,935. Then I suppose I may deduct that sum of 35*l.* from what you call, or at any rate from some portion of, your account; probably from the personal expenses during the election? You told us you thought you ought to be paid 1*l.* a day for expenses you had been at?—Yes.

44,936. I suppose that 35*l.* may go in part to cover that claim, may it not?—That is in Mr. Gower's election, 1863.

THIRTIETH DAY.

J. Nichols.

25 Sept. 1866.

44,937. I beg your pardon?—It was from Mr. Smith I received that.

44,938. I beg your pardon; it was my mistake?—That formed part of the money received from Mr. Smith.

44,939. Now, did you receive at the 1865 election any money in cheques from Mr. Hart in your own name?—Yes.

44,940. How much?—I do not know.

44,941. About?—He once or twice gave me some small sums to pay; some small bills to pay, and he would then very likely write a cheque in one sum to me. I do not know that it is so.

44,942. Can you tell me how much you received altogether from him? Did you receive 50*l.*?—Yes, I should think so; more. I was always paid by Mr. Hart's cheque.

44,943. In different payments or in one?—I think in different payments.

44,944. I mean quite irrespective of your fee, which I know all about?—Yes, quite.

44,945. The payments were by cheques; can you tell me how much more; have you any notion?—No. I have given him receipts for all the money I did receive.

44,946. You would have to give credit for those, of course, in this account?—I do not know that I should.

44,947. Well, I should have thought so. Explain to me how not, because it comes from one source; from one pocket?—I do not think I should give credit for it there.

44,948. In any account between you and Mr. Monson you would be obliged to debit in one sense; he would debit you with the receipt of 50*l.* as against his account?—No, he would have it in his own account that he published.

44,949. You performed certain services for Mr. Monson, and made certain payments for him, for which he paid you, and we know how much he paid you; there is the sum mentioned there?—Yes.

44,950. Besides that 1,730*l.* you received 50*l.* more. Then of course you should add them together, and it will make 1,780*l.*?—No, not so. That would be for other payments. I do not know that there is any payment included there that is in Mr. Hart's account.

44,951. Can you tell me that it is not so?—I cannot say that it is really not so.

44,252. You see it is most important, taking the sum you received from Mr. Hart at 50*l.*; we will take it that; it is very important to show that that sum had reference to matters not mentioned in this account?—Yes.

44,953. How can you show it?—By the accounts which I paid for Mr. Hart.

44,954. By looking at the accounts which you paid for Mr. Hart and which he has vouched for?—Yes.

44,955. Can you mention any single payment you made for which Mr. Hart paid you a portion of that 50*l.*, and which is not contained in this account?—There is John Newman, fly driver.

44,956. He, is here I think (referring to witness's account)?—No he is not.

44,957. Did you pay John Newman anything?—10 guineas, I think it was.

44,958. Can you tell me any others?—I do not know whether I paid Robins, a fly driver of Redhill, or not. I may have done so.

44,959. Can you mention anybody else? The reason for asking you is this, that on reference to Mr. Hart's account it may be that I shall not find that those payments were made to persons who were not already charged here, and you won't be here to assist me. I want to give you an opportunity now?—I paid Page; but then I think I only handed a cheque to him.

44,960. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Thomas Page?—Yes.

44,961. (The Chief Commissioner.) Never mind that?—I do not know there is anything else I can tell you.

43,962. Do you know how much Page's cheque was?—50 guineas.

44,963. That is nothing to do with your account?—I think I paid him that.

44,964. That would be another thing altogether. You see what I mean; the necessity of asking the question now. It is only fair to yourself?—John Nye was one. I recollect that.

44,965. Just one moment, I am anxious to get this correct if I can. The man you spoke of, is his name Newnham, the driver?—No, Newman.

44,966. John Newman says you paid him 10 guineas? Yes.

44,967. Where would that come from?—From Mr. Hart.

44,968. I want to know if you can exhaust the 50*l.*?—I can only give 5*l.*; John Nye.

44,969. John Nye I have taken. I don't think John Nye told us that you had paid him anything?—I think he said he borrowed 10*l.* of me.

44,970. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He was a professional, I think?—Yes.

44,971. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) He was charged to the election account?—Yes, 5*l.*

44,972. And what account was the other 5*l.* charged to?—I told you I shall expect to lose that now.

44,973. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Had you ever told him that you had charged it in the election accounts?—He gave me a receipt for 5*l.*

44,974. When?—After the election.

44,975. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) He gave you a receipt as having received 5*l.*?—Yes.

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He denied point blank that he ever received a farthing.

44,976. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) 10*l.* had been lent him before. A receipt was given for 5*l.*, which was to strike off 5*l.*, and you were to charge Mr. Monson with the other 5*l.*?—Quite so.

44,977. (The Chief Commissioner.) You see there are several small sums. You ought to have an opportunity of looking at this; and I gave it to you yesterday. I have an objection to doing so again. Do you know Richard Ellis?—I think I do.

44,978. Richard Ellis said that you paid him 2*l.*?—Yes, that is right.

44,979. Now Richard Ellis is not in that account?—No.

44,980. Where did you get the money to pay Richard Ellis?—From that sum there.

44,981. From where?—From that sum there. From my own pocket, rather, I should say. He called some time after the election, I recollect that now, and he told me he had been working.

44,982. But what I want to understand is, it does not figure in this account?—It ought to.

44,983. And if a great deal more ought to, you would get above 1,800*l.* odd?—I took that into consideration in the 50*l.*

44,984. What 50*l.*?—Pocket money that I had; that is a sum I have not put down anywhere. I did not know till now that I had paid it.

44,985. I do not know that I understand you. What do you mean by the 50*l.*? Do you mean the 50*l.* you took off yesterday as 1*l.* day?—Yes.

44,986. Just look down that account of the small sums; don't be in a hurry about it; you will see two or three small sums there, some of which do not occur in this account, except in the 50*l.* item which you suggested yesterday (passing the account to witness). Those are people who say, by their evidence, that they received those monies from you?—Yes. Stephens and Potter, I paid out of my pocket.

44,987. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) They are not in the book?—No.

A note was here handed up to the witness by a person in Court, which the learned Commissioner requested him to pass to them.

44,988. (The Chief Commissioner, referring to the paper.) Who is R. T. ? Did you pay him ?—I do not know who it is.

The person in the Court said he was Robert Tugwell, and he assisted Mr. Nichols.

44,989. (The Chief Commissioner.) I have put down the name of Tugwell on the left-hand side in the account ?—Yes.

44,990. For how much ?—3*l.* 10*s.*

44,991. You say here it is 4*l.* 2*s.* Do you recollect whether you paid him ?

(Mr. Commissioner Smith.) All these are facts that have been proved.

44,992. (The Chief Commissioner.) What did that 3*l.* 10*s.* come out of ?—I do not know.

44,993. Very well ; then you set those off as far as they go against the 1*l.* a day expenses, and so on ?—Yes.

44,994. Very well. By-and-by I will add them up and see how much they come to ; it may be that they will knock off the 50*l.* ?—Here is Thomas Elliott, 1*l.*

44,995. I can see equally well for myself, because I have only to look at your account and to look at that. I put it into your hand in order that you may have an opportunity of seeing where those small sums came from. I have nothing more to ask you.

The witness withdrew.

RICHARD STEER sworn and examined.

R. Steer.

44,996. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Are you a voter of the borough ?—Yes.

44,997. What are you, Mr. Steer ?—No trade or profession.

44,998. Do you live in your own house ?—I do.

44,999. What is your house rated at ?—Well, I think the whole of the rate is 37*l.*

45,000. Did you vote at the last election ?—I did.

45,001. For whom ?—For Mr. Monson.

45,002. Were you on his committee ?—Yes.

45,003. Did you take an active part in the election ?—Yes, pretty fair.

45,004. You were independent and had plenty of time upon your hands ?—Yes, quite so.

45,005. Did you devote your time to it ?—A great deal of it.

45,006. In what department of the election ?—Well, canvassing, and I assisted in getting up the requisition with Mr. Nichols.

45,007. Did you receive any monies ?—Yes.

45,008. How much ?—20*l.* and 15*l.* My fee was to have been 50*l.* I have not received that amount.

45,009. When did you receive the first monies ?—I can hardly tell you. I received both those sums before the 24th of June, I know.

45,010. From whom ?—From Nichols.

45,011. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You took part with Mr. Nichols in getting up the requisition ?—Yes, I did, and we went through nearly the whole of the canvass together.

45,012. I am dealing first with the requisition. Did you receive any monies from Mr. Nichols before the requisition went up ?—Oh dear no.

45,013. When did you first receive money from him ?—I should think it was either the latter end of May or very early in June.

45,014. After Mr. Monson's address came out ?—Yes, I should imagine so. I do not remember the date of the address at all.

45,015. Was any arrangement made between you and Mr. Nichols as to the precise sum you were to receive ?—Yes.

45,016. You say that was 50*l.* ?—Yes, for my services in canvassing, and so on.

45,017. Was 30*l.* the first sum you received ?—No, 20*l.*

45,018. Then, did you receive other payments, in instalments ?—No, 15*l.* afterwards.

45,019. Were those monies paid by cheque ?—One ; the 20*l.* was, I am certain ; but whether the 15*l.* was I am not quite certain. I should almost fancy both sums were paid in cheques.

45,020. Are you the only Richard Steer who was on the register, or the only person of that name ?—The only one.

45,021. You had no brother ?—No ; there are two other Steers, but not Richard Steers.

45,022. Then, before the 24th of June you had received that 35*l.* ?—Yes.

45,023. And you have received nothing since ?—Nothing since.

45,024. Have you applied to Mr. Nichols for the remainder ?—No, I have not applied.

45,025. If you were to receive 50*l.*, why have you not applied ?—Simply, because I know Mr. Nichols so well, and he will hand it to me as soon as he has it. I have no other reason for not applying for it.

45,026. Did any money pass through your hands to pay away to the voters ?—No, not a farthing.

45,027. Did you know of money being paid away to the voters ?—No ; of my own knowledge, not.

45,028. Did you ever at any time in your canvassing make overtures for payment of money ?—Decidedly not.

45,029. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I thought, Mr. Steer, you were a voter yourself ? — I am a voter.

45,030. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Payment of money in any possible shape or way ?—In no shape, or form, or manner in which possibly you could devise money. I have had nothing to do with it, nothing whatever ; it is a thing I would not meddle with.

45,031. Now, can you tell me how much time you devoted to canvassing ?—Well, I should think the greater part of almost every day.

45,032. Over what period of time ?—I should think from the first address of Mr. Monson.

45,033. That would be in April, I think ?—In April I think it was ; it was either March or April.

45,034. April 21st ?—That probably is the date.

45,035. Did you vote in 1863 ?—I did.

45,036. For whom ?—Mr. Wilkinson.

45,037. Were you on his committee ?—Yes.

45,038. Did you take an active part for him ?—Yes, pretty fair ; not so active as I did in this by a great deal.

45,039. Were you at that time retired and living quite independent ? — Oh, yes, I never was in business.

45,040. Were you living perfectly independent, as you were in 1865 ?—Yes.

45,041. Did any monies come into your hands upon that election ?—None whatever.

45,042. Either for canvassing, or —— ?—Oh ! I beg your pardon. Yes, my fee was 15 guineas for canvassing.

45,043. Who paid that ? — Mr. James ; the day after the election he sent for me.

45,044. Did you deliver a bill for it ?—Oh, no.

45,045. Or give a receipt ? — Oh, no ; nothing whatever.

45,046. Do you know, as a fact, whether Mr. James returned your name as one of the canvassers ?—I did not look after it ; I do not know at all.

45,047. Do you know whether your name is returned in Mr. Hart's list ?—I do not know ; I should almost fancy not. I was with Mr. Nichols ; I had nothing whatever to do with Mr. Hart.

45,048. (The Chief Commissioner.) May I take it that it was not in his list ; I do not know ; I have not even seen Mr. Hart's list. I do not know whether it is there or not.

45,049. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You cannot say one way or the other ?—No. I should almost fancy it was not there.

45,050. Did you give Mr. Nichols a receipt for that 35*l.* ?—No.

THIRTIETH DAY.

R. Steer.

25 Sept. 1866.

45,051. I am alluding to the payment in 1865?—Yes, in 1865.

45,052. No receipt?—No receipt at all.

45,053. (The Chief Commissioner.) I see you are not returned as a canvasser?—I should fancy not. My arrangement was with Mr. Nichols, when the requisition was being got up, or almost before it.

45,054. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was 15*l.* the only sum that came into your hands in 1863?—The only sum. At least, there was 1*l.* I do not know whether it was from Mr. Langridge or whether it was from Joyes. At Earlswood-common there was a meeting, and one of those two asked me to pay 1*l.* at some beer shop, which 1*l.* he gave to me, and I handed it over to the landlord.

45,455. That was in 1863?—Yes, that is all.

45,056. Had you acted in previous elections?—No.

45,057. Was 1863 your first?—My first.

45,058. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I understood you to say that you did not know of any money paid to a voter. You do not mean to exclude yourself?—No money paid to a voter?

45,059. That is what you said; you did not know of any money paid to a voter?—I do not understand you.

45,060. Very well. Then can you tell me, when was the arrangement with Nichols to pay you 50*l.*?—Very early, indeed. It was just after the meeting that Mr. Gower held in the town hall, when he stated that he would not come forward as a canddiate.

45,061. And when was that?—In 1864; I should think somewhere about November.

45,062. About November you were engaged?—Yes.

45,063. And you commenced work in April?—Well, I commenced, then, because I assisted Mr. Nichols with the requisition.

45,064. But that is nothing?—Well, it was not much.

45,065. How did you assist in the requisition?—I got signatures.

45,066. That is, signatures to a gentleman to come forward?—Yes, that is all; it amounted to very little.

45,067. You do not mean to say that that formed any part of the consideration for the 50*l.*?—It did a little; it took time, and "time is money."

45,068. You were inviting a candidate down here; you, an independent gentleman, by getting up a requisition. Do you mean to say you charged for that requisition?—The arrangement was with Mr. Nichols.

45,069. But do you mean to say that you charged for that requisition?—Charged for signing it?

45,070. Yes?—I should almost think not.

45,071. Whom did you invite to sign it?—Well, several; I can't remember the names.

45,072. You would invite them to sign it; you would say, "Mr. Monson is a very good man; he's "the man we ought to have"?—Yes.

45,073. You don't mean to say you charged for that, do you?—I didn't say that I charged for anything. The fee offered me by Mr. Nichols was 50*l.*

45,074. Don't talk of fees to me at all. What I want to know is, did that form any part of the consideration for the 50*l.*?—The whole transaction did from beginning to end.

45,075. Did your aiding Mr. Nichols in getting up this requisition form any part of the consideration for the 50*l.*; I don't care which way you answer it?—I really cannot exactly explain that to you. Mr. Nichols asked me to assist him; I did so.

45,076. Did that form any part of the consideration for the 50*l.*?—Well, I should say not, certainly not. But the whole matter was carried through by me.

45,077. Then that did not form any part of the consideration. We will go to the work you did, if any, when you commenced in April. What votes did you get for Mr. Monson besides your own?—I got three.

45,078. Which are they?—One, Gideon Smith.

45,079. (The Chief Commissioner.) He has not been here?—No, I believe not.

45,080. Where does he live?—He did live in Station-road; I don't know where he lives now.

45,081. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Go on, you were at work from April to July?—I was.

45,082. And you were to receive 50*l.* You tell me you got Gideon Smith; who else?—Would you oblige me with the Register. I have forgotten. (The Register was passed to the witness.)

45,083. (The Chief Commissioner.) Have you any of the names of the three persons in your mind, Mr. Steer, before you begin to look?—I can give you the names, but probably not now.

45,084. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) If you refer to the list presently, probably you will give us a written list?—There was very little chance of getting votes, except by bribing, with which I did not have anything to do.

45,085. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) We will take it that you got three men, and your own vote. Was there anything else you did?—I told you I gave nearly the whole of every day from April to July.

45,086. Doing what?—Canvassing and attending different meetings.

45,087. Did you do anything besides attend different meetings? Did you write out any reports?—Oh dear no.

45,088. Did you do anything else?—No.

45,089. You did nothing but attend meetings?—No.

45,090. We have been very severe, I hope justly severe, upon poor men who have been receiving their 30*s.* and 2*l.* 10*s.* for running up and down, when they were not able to give a satisfactory account of what they did. We will give you an opportunity of telling us what you did for the 50*l.*?—What I have told you.

45,091. Anything else?—No.

45,092. I don't wish to take you by surprise. We shall have to examine all this evidence by-and-by. Was there anything else, besides that you got three names, which you do not recollect?—I am not quite certain.

45,093. (The Chief Commissioner.) Your last answer is, "I cannot tell you anything else I did"?—Yes.

45,094. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Mr. Hart was not aware that you were a canvasser?—He must have been.

45,095. He did not return you as a canvasser?—I met him hundreds of times.

45,096. You never told Mr. Hart that you were engaged as canvasser?—I had nothing to do with Mr. Hart.

45,097. Mr. Hart was the conducting agent for Mr. Monson?—With whom I had nothing to do.

45,098. That you knew?—That I knew.

45,099. You never told him you were working for Mr. Monson?—I did not.

45,100. And never made any claim to Mr. Hart?—Oh dear no! The understanding was with Mr. Nichols entirely.

45,101. I know it was. And you never made any claim to Mr. Monson?—Certainly not.

45,102. (The Chief Commissioner.) Tell me this, Mr. Steer, how long did the business about the requisition go on?—Well, I should think some two or three weeks; the getting up, the drawing out, of the requisition, if it may so be termed. The signatures occupied a length of time.

45,103. That was by the persons who signed it?—Yes.

45,104. That would be the work of others?—Yes.

45,105. Now, I have a reason for asking this: how did the work of the requisition commence? Did you meet all of you together at some public house, at the "Grapes," or any other place you please, and say, "Let's get a candidate, let's get up "a requisition"?—No.

45,106. Do tell us then, very shortly?—I do not know the commencement of the requisition. I was asked by Mr. Page and Mr. Nichols, "Will you assist "us."

45,107. In getting up the requisition?—Yes, and I said, "I will."

45,108. I want to know very shortly what work you did in getting up the requisition?—The same work that Mr. Page and Mr. Nichols did.

45,109. That answer gives no information. You are an intelligent man, and you know that that answer is perfectly idle, because we have not examined Mr. Nichols and Mr. Page on that matter. Tell me what you did in getting up the petition?—I was present when the requisition was worded.

45,110. It was at a meeting, and it was agreed to draw up a form of requisition?—Yes; that I knew nothing of.

45,111. Was that done in one evening?—No, it passed over several evenings, or rather rather several days.

45,112. The form of the requisition was drawn up; well, what else?—Then, it was taken round for signatures, to various parties for signature.

45,113. It was not put at some house here then, and people told to come and sign it?—Oh dear no.

45,114. How long did it take to go round?—I cannot tell you now.

45,115. Did you go round with it?—No. I went with Mr. Page, but not taking the requisition myself.

45,116. What?—I went round with Mr. Page two or three times.

45,117. About what?—Signing the requisition.

45,118. Then you did take it round?—I did not take it round, because it was in Mr. Page's possession the whole time.

45,119. You mean that yours was not the hand that carried it?—No.

45,120. But while Page went round with it you went to attend upon him?—I was with Page, not to attend upon him exactly.

45,121. Understand me, to assist him; that is what I meant. Now, tell me if you please, how long did it take you to go round with the requisition,—how many days?—I cannot tell you at all.

45,122. About?—I can't tell you at all. I took no account of it.

45,123. Was the requisition taken round Redhill as well as Reigate?—Not so much to Redhill. It was taken once or twice to Redhill.

45,124. Who took it to Redhill?—I don't know.

45,125. I suppose you saw them start off?—I did not; nor did I see them return.

45,126. You didn't see them return?—No, I neither saw them start off nor return.

45,127. Do you not really know who took it?—I do not know.

45,128. Was it Page?—I don't know.

45,129. Was it Nichols?—I cannot tell you.

45,130. Do you believe it was not?—I do not believe or disbelieve, either one way or the other.

45,131. How many times did you and Page go round with it?—I think I went round two or three times with Page.

45,132. Over how long a time did the exertions extend about the requisition?—I don't know. I can't tell you.

45,133. About?—I can't tell you.

45,134. Did it last a fortnight?—Much longer than that.

45,135. Did it a month?—I should think much longer than that.

45,136. Did it two months?—I should say quite that.

45,137. You say the exertions about it lasted two months?—I should; about that I fancy.

45,138. It is rather an important matter, and I wish you would be so good as to tell me what your exertions consisted of, besides going round two or three times?—Yes.

45,139. I suppose the requisition was kept at Mr. Nichols' house?—Mr. Nichols' mostly.

45,140. Then the people you would meet in the town would be asked to come and sign the requisition?—I suppose that would be so.

45,141. Then they would come to the requisition, and not the requisition to them. Was that not so?—I should think not; I should think the signatures were not all obtained at Mr. Nichols'.

45,142. Not all; but after the two or three times that you had gone round with it most of the signatures to it, I suppose, were appended at Mr. Nichols' house, or the house where the petition was?—It is probable they might have been.

45,143. The importance of that is, that it would diminish your labours very much?—No doubt it would.

45,144. How many signatures were there put to the requisition?—I cannot tell you. I should think over 100. I cannot tell you how many. From the appearance of them I should say over 100.

45,145. Did you say the trouble of getting it up lasted a month or two months?—I should say over two months; fully two months, if not more.

45,146. Supposing it did, can you tell me anything else that you did about it?—Oh, no.

45,147. Then, I suppose, after the first week the requisition was quietly "householded" at the "Grapes" or some other house?—Very probably it was.

45,148. Then, I take it, you imagine it was. What other trouble would there be after that?—I do not know that there would be any trouble.

45,149. That is exactly what we are coming to. I suppose it was done in this way,—that you would meet a man in the street, and you would recognise him as a man that you thought would be on your side, and you would say, "Come here and sign the requisi-"tion, if you will be so kind?" Was it not done in some way of that kind?—Well, I should think it was very seldom done in that way.

45,150. But in that kind of way?—Well, something after that style, probably.

45,151. It is the way I should do it myself; that makes me think that is the way others would do it, perhaps even more skilfully. I mean that would be the only trouble that would be caused. They would come in and have a glass of beer at the bar, and if they were not very keen upon it the requisition would be suggested?—I would not do such a thing.

45,152. Tell me how you would do it?—I would not give any man drink to cause him to sign anything.

45,153. I did not mean that; I merely meant drink as an introduction to conversation?—Oh, it is a great introduction.

45,154. I did not mean anything of that kind; I meant what anybody might do with the greatest propriety. Was that the sort of thing that the work consisted in?—There were various modes of work.

45,155. You have told me no other, because I am at a perfect loss at this moment to know what they are?—To challenge what the work was; I at this moment could not tell what it was.

45,156. Was it anything like work?—Well, if you can term it work.

45,157. Was it anything like what you would call employment of time?—Certainly it was.

45,158. If it was employment of time you should be paid for it, if a man wanted to be paid?—So I expected when the fee was offered to me; I expected that I should have to do something for it.

45,159. Why, were you not paid for it?—I was paid.

45,160. Were you?—Certainly I was, 35*l.*

45,161. That is just it; you received 35*l.*, and you charged 5*l.* for over two months' work?—I didn't say 5*l.*

THIRTIETH DAY.

R. Steer.

25 Sept. 1866.

45,162. You have indeed said so?—I have never spoken of 5*l.*

45,163. I thought you told me that you had 35*l.*, and you appropriated out of that 5*l.* towards the trouble of getting up the requisition?—Excuse me, it is the first I have heard of it; I never suggested it.

45,164. I beg your pardon, you told my learned friend that you appropriated no part of the 35*l.* to the requisition?—The arrangement with Mr. Nichols was, that if I would assist him in carrying out the election, and this requisition, he would pay me 50*l.*

45,165. But you told the learned Commissioner here that you did not consider any portion of that 35*l.* paid in respect of the work you did for the requisition?

(Witness.) I understood Mr. Commissioner O'Brien that he did not consider the work done in the requisition of any account whatever.

(Mr. Serjeant O'Brien.) Oh, no.

(Witness.) That was my understanding of your remark. The whole affair was getting up the requisition, and carrying the election through.

45,166. (The Chief Commissioner.) Then why did you not charge a part of the 35*l.* with it?—Because I could not discriminate it.

45,167. Why did you not charge part of the 35*l.* towards the requisition?—Because the whole transaction goes together.

45,168. You told me in effect that it did not, because you said you did not charge any of the 35*l.* towards getting up the requisition?—Nor did I charge any part of the 35*l.*; it was one bulk, that was all.

45,169. Then, how much was the requisition worth?—I really can't tell you. I should think worth nothing as it has turned out.

45,170. I mean how much was the portion of labour about the requisition worth?—I did not divide the labour at all.

45,171. Can you do so now?—I cannot do so.

45,172. I will only ask you this: what were you paid the 35*l.* for?—For the general work of the election; assisting Mr. Nichols throughout.

45,173. Recently did you tell Nichols, or did Nichols tell you, how much money you had received from him?—Certainly not.

45,174. That is no answer. Did Nichols tell you recently, or did you tell Nichols, how much money you had received from him for the election?—No.

45,175. Perhaps I do not put the question clearly enough. Recently did you tell Nichols, how much money you had received from him for the election?—Certainly not.

45,176. Did Nichols tell you?—No.

45,177. Have you and Nichols not had any conversation within the last month as to how much money you received from him?—Certainly not.

45,178. Not at all?—Not at all.

45,179. You say you made an arrangement with Nichols?—I did.

45,180. Was it in writing?—No.

45,181. Verbally?—Verbally.

45,182. Was the sum at that time mentioned?—It was.

45,183. Do you know what you are put down in Nichols' account as having received from him?—I heard it yesterday.

45,184. For the first time?—Yes, for the first time. That list of Nichols' I never saw until it was produced yesterday.

45,185. I never asked you if you had seen the list. I ask you, did you know before yesterday for how much you had been put down in Nichols' account?—I should know I was put down for 50*l.*; that was the arrangement.

45,186. How should you know?—That was the arrangement.

45,187. But did you know before yesterday how much he did put you down for?—No, I should say, certainly not.

45,188. That is no answer. You can certainly recollect as far back as yesterday. Yesterday morning when you got up either you did, or you did not, know how much Nichols had put you down as having received?—I did not know what he had put me down for; it might have been 500*l.*, or it might have been twopence, for anything I knew.

45,189. You know he has put you down for 50*l.*?—I know he has put me down for 50*l.*

45,190. As having received 50*l.*?—I do not know how he has put that down.

45,191. You shall see it if you like. This is the account of monies paid, and here you are put down, "Steer, 50*l.*"?—I did not know how he had entered it. My arrangement with him was for 50*l.*

45,192. You see there is nothing else than that—"Steer 50*l.*" (showing the account to witness)?—I can see that.

45,193. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) He says, "I "paid 50*l.* or 60*l.* out of my own money." That is what he said?—Yes, he did say so.

45,194. Then it is not true that you received 50*l.*?—It is not true that I received 50*l.*; I have not received 50*l.*; 35*l.* I have received, the other I expect, of course.

45,195. (The Chief Commissioner.) But I am sorry upon another point I could not get more information from you. I mean about the requisition; answer me very candidly—would you take the trouble about the requisition alone, for a 10*l.* note?—I should not; unless it had been for going through the whole election I should have had nothing to do with the requisition.

45,196. Pray attend to my question, I purposely confined it. Would you take all the trouble over again which you did about the requisition, and the requisition only, for a 10*l.* note?—I would not undertake it again for 20*l.* nor for 50*l.*

45,197. That is because you are sick of it. I must put it in another way. Do you think that a man who wanted remuneration for time and trouble, which perhaps you do not, would be fairly paid by a 10*l.* note for what you did with reference to the requisition, and the requisition only?—I should say no, decidedly.

45,198. How much, then? Be so good as to tell me?—I should say 20*l.* would not be too much for the time.

45,199. Would you value it at 20*l.*?—I should do so, at something like that.

45,200. You value the services?—I do not value my services; that is not the question that was put to me.

45,201. No, no; I mean the services of a person who wanted to be remunerated would be worth 20*l.*?—I should think it would be.

45,202. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Just before we adjourn I have to ask you a couple of questions. You say you succeeded in getting only three votes?—Yes, that is all.

45,203. How soon after you began to canvass did you find the difficulty of getting promises without money?—Oh, within a day.

45,204. Within a day?—I should say the first. I found many said to us, "Well, how's things going on; "what's the figure?"

45,205. Can you recollect the name of the person?—It was so general I think I cannot.

45,206. Finding that in your way, did you report that to Mr. Nichols?—Every one knew it.

45,207. That may be; I want to know what you did?—I should almost fancy I did; I can't say now whether I did or didn't.

45,208. Would it not be a very natural thing for you to report to Mr. Nichols?—I have no doubt I did so, but I cannot charge my memory with having done so.

42,209. When you did so, did you receive any instructions from Mr. Nichols as to how you were to act?—I did not say that I did so.

45,210. Surely you reported to Mr. Nichols?—In all probability I did. If I did I have no recollection of anything that occurred.

45,211. No recollection whatever of reporting that to Mr. Nichols?—At the moment I have no recollection whatever of it. It is more than likely I should do such a thing; but to say what occurred at the time I cannot. There is no doubt I did tell him so.

45,212. Did you hear from these voters that money was passing or being promised?—I had heard that money had been promised.

45,213. By which side?—By the other side.

45,214. Did you never hear that money was being promised by the Monson side?—I never heard that it was promised; I knew that some parties were being paid, but how I do not know. It was a thing I never would have anything to do with.

45,215. Then you have no recollection of what took place between you and Nichols when you reported to him your want of success?—No recollection whatever.

45,216. Or the cause of your want of success?—He knew that as well as I did.

45,217. I want to know whether that was not a substantive matter of conversation between you and Nichols, the cause of your want of success?—I do not know that it was.

45,218. Were you not disappointed at getting so few promises?—Quite so.

45,219. Would not that be a reason why you should appeal to Mr. Nichols?—I say, in all probability I did so, but I cannot remember what I said at the time.

The witness withdrew.

CHARLES GREENFIELD sworn and examined.

C. Greenfield.

45,220. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What are you?—Carpenter and joiner.

45,221. What rent do you pay for your house?—14*l.* a year.

45,222. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Mr. Monson.

45,223. To whom did you promise to vote for Mr. Monson?—Nichols, I believe.

45,224. At the time you promised your vote was there any promise of payment of money?—No, I did not expect any.

45,225. Were you at work for Mr. Nichols?—Yes, he engaged me to do so.

45,226. To canvass?—Yes.

45,227. Did you canvass?—I did the best I could to do so. I did canvass.

45,228. Did you succeed in getting any promises?—I do not think I can say one. I did the best I could, but however I do not think I can say one.

45,229. I need hardly ask you one other question; did you have any control as to offering money?—No, not the least whatever.

45,230. Did you find in your canvass that not having the control of money was a hindrance to getting promises?—Well, I think if I had got a little money I might have got a few votes.

45,231. Did you find in effect that it was so?—I did.

45,232. From your conversation with various voters that it was so?—Yes, that it was so.

45,233. Did you receive anything for your service?—I received 4*l.* 10*s.* for my services during the time.

45,234. (The Chief Commissioner.) Who paid you the 4*l.* 10*s.*?—Nichols.

45,235. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you report to Mr. Nichols your ill success in getting votes?—Yes, I went to him nearly every night, and told him how I got on.

45,236. Or, rather, how you didn't get on?—Well, how I didn't get on. I didn't succeed much.

45,237. But did you tell him the reason why you didn't get on?—Well, I don't think I did; I don't think I said anything to him about it.

45,238. You did not suggest to him that money was wanting?—No, because I did not think he would have advanced me any if I had.

45,239. May I ask you a general question; did any money pass through your hands for distributing to the voters?—No more than the money I had for myself.

45,240. That was your fee for your services?—That was mine.

45,241. Were you canvassed at all by the Gower party?—Not the least whatever. I saw Mr. Gower several times, but he didn't canvass me at all.

45,242. Were you on the register in 1863?—No; at least, I didn't vote.

45,243. Did you take any part in the election of 1863?—I certainly felt interested in it, but I didn't do much in it.

45,244. Did you act in 1863?—Well, just for my own feelings, that's all.

45,245. But did any money pass through your hands in 1863 for distribution among voters?—Not the least whatever.

45,246. Or for obtaining votes?—Not the least whatever.

45,247. I suppose that was your first election?—This in 1865 was the first as a voter.

45,248. And previous to 1863 had you taken any part in the elections?—No.

The witness withdrew.

JAMES APTED recalled and examined.

J. Apted.

45,249. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You told us you had something to tell which it will be important for us to hear?—I said I had been engaged in every election from the first contest of Mr. Parrott and Mr. Cocks.

45,250. We will not go so far back as that?—And I was in Mr. Hackblock's election.

45,251. We will commence after Hackblock's, if you please?—In justice to Mr. Hackblock (it is imputed that he commenced bribery). Then I went to Mr. Doulton; in justice to Mr. Doulton (I lived with Mr. Doulton 10 days at the "White Hart"). I was with him every day and every day when his agents came to him, and I never heard him give any intimation of bribery.

45,252. Nobody imputes it. What we want to call your attention to is. You have been put down in Mr. Nichols' list as having received 80*l.*
No, I did not.

45,253. How much did you state you expended when you were examined before us?—I said 50*l.* or 60*l.* I could not say.

45,254. Quite so; you accounted for how you spent it, and that included your own fee, you recollect?—I think I told you I had no fee.

45,255. You did. Were you paid nothing for your services?—No. I think I said I was 100*l.* out of pocket; I believe I was.

45,256. (The Chief Commissioner.) First of all, you say, "I did not receive 80*l.* from Nichols"?—I beg your pardon; I didn't say I didn't receive 80*l.* from Nichols. I said I had 50*l.* or 60*l.*; I might have received more, I can't tell. I was at work three months.

45,257. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Then I misunderstood you. I understood you to say that only between 50*l.* and 60*l.* passed through your hands?—It might have been more. I see in Mr. Nichols' evidence

THIRTIETH DAY.

J. Apted.

25 Sept. 1866.

yesterday it was 80*l.* Mr. Nichols asked me if I knew, and I told him I did not know. I could not tell within 20*l.*

45,258. (The Chief Commissioner.) He asked you the other day?—A few days ago.

45,259. Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You told me, I examined you, that you received nothing whatever from him?—Nothing whatever for my services.

45,260. You said you asked 50*l.* from the other side?—I did.

45,261. And that you did that because you knew they would not give it you, you did not want to be on their side. Now what monies did you receive?—I didn't receive anything for my services.

45,262. What did you receive at all? — All I received I paid away.

45,263. You have given no accounts of any monies you paid?—A great many accounts I have given you, and you have had them brought before you by different witnesses.

45,264. Yes; but I am speaking of your evidence, not of other witnesses? — James Brown, for one instance, 17*l.* 10*s.*

45,265. Will you tell me first how much you received from Mr. Nichols, because it is a myth to me?—I told you before that I could not; it was during three or four months.

45,266. Will you tell me what you received from him?—I really could not tell you. If he said I had 100*l.* I must have left it, because I did not know; I assure you I did not know; I might have had 100*l.*, because I was continually canvassing all the day.

45,267. It is no use offering yourself to be re-examined if you cannot tell us how much you received from Mr. Nichols, or in what way you received it?—I told you how I received it. When I wanted 5*l.* or 10*l.* I went to him and asked for it, and I received it as I wanted to pay out. I attended three or four meetings in the evening. I was canvassing the whole day. I should think I spent 1*l.* a day.

45,268. If you can't tell us how much you received, can you tell us how much you paid away?—I paid away all I received.

45,269. That is no answer, Mr. Apted, when you don't tell us how much you received. How much did you pay away?—If I were to tell you any sum perhaps I should tell you a lie.

45,270. No, I know you would not tell me a lie?—I should, because I cannot tell you.

45,271. (The Chief Commissioner.) Elliott, Fullbrook, Gilbert, Truelove, that is all we have proved against you?—17*l.* 10*s.* to James Brown, 2*l.* 10*s.* to William Banks.

45,272. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Who was James Brown?—He was a plasterer.

45,273. I know everything about him; he was not a voter at all?—No; I employed him.

45,274. Did you give him the 17*l.* 10*s.* for himself?—I think I gave him from 20*l.* to 30*l.* altogether, for refreshments and one thing and another.

45,275. Then you did not give him 17*l.* 10*s.*?—That was in cash to pay different men; that I can recollect.

45,276. How much did you give James Brown, now?—I should think he received from me 25*l.* at least.

45,277. Will you tell me where Mr. Brown lives, because we will have him?—I don't know where he lives. I told you so before. You asked me that before.

45,278. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You might have heard since?—I have not.

45,279. You say he had 25*l.* now?—I should think he had that at least. He had to pay four men, and he had to pay for refreshments besides.

45,280. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I mean altogether, from your hands into his?—25*l.* at least, I should think.

45,281. Anything else, because that will not make up 80*l.*?—I should say I was canvassing for three months.

45,282. How much did you put down for yourself for your expenses?—I told you I did not put down anything for my expenses.

45,283. (The Chief Commissioner.) William Banks you mentioned?—Yes; 2*l.* 10*s.* Banks stated that to you when he was examined. He said he received 2*l.* 10*s.* from Mr. William Holdsworth, in the "Grapes," and 2*l.* 10*s.* from me, at Mr. Barker's, opposite the new town hall, when he went to poll.

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) We do not give you credit for that, Mr. Apted.

45,284. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Those monies were paid by Brown, not by you?—He said that I gave the money to Brown.

45,285. That is out of the 17*l.* 10*s.*?—No, it is not.

45,286. You have told us before that the monies you gave to Brown to pay away were 17*l.* 10*s.*, now you say it is 25*l.*?—Not that 2*l.* 10*s.*

45,287. Not having kept an account of any monies you expended, how are you able to specify that particular sum of 2*l.* 10*s.* as not having been entered?—Because Mr. Brown brought it to my memory; he said I gave him the money; he stated so in this box. Banks said I gave Brown the 2*l.* 10*s.* to give to him, and he received 2*l.* 10*s.* from Mr. Holdsworth, in the "Grapes;" mine was in the beer shop opposite.

45,288. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) All he said was that Brown handed it to him?—Yes; and that I gave it to Brown.

45,289. That is included in the 25*l.*?—No, it is not.

45,290. You cannot have credit for it in both ways; you cannot have credit for it in giving it to Brown and have credit for it afterwards in giving it to Banks. How much money passed from your hands to Brown?—Altogether I should say 25*l.*

45,291. Nothing else passed from your hands to Brown?—I cannot say exactly. I will give you as near as I can state.

45,292. Take the money that passed to Banks through Brown's hands, that is included?—It is not included in the 17*l.* 10*s.*

45,293. But it is included in the 25*l.*?—No.

45,294. Then you have not told me; I am afraid I must come to that conclusion. I asked you how much money passed from your hands into Brown's hands. Surely that is a very simple question?—You mean to put the 2*l.* 10*s.* in? Then that will make 27*l.* 10*s.*

45,295. I mean only to put in what money passed from your hands into his?—I don't consider that that passed into his hands at all, that 2*l.* 10*s.* that Banks received; it came from my hands.

45,296. Did you hand it to Brown?—Yes.

45,297. Then it passed into Brown's hands, didn't it?—If you put it so.

45,298. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was Banks present when that 2*l.* 10*s.* was handed to Brown?—Yes; he told you so.

45,299. No, he did not say so?—He did say so.

45,300. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Why did you not hand it to Banks himself, if Banks was present?—Because Brown had engaged him; I did not know what he had engaged him for.

45,301. How did you know how to pay Banks the 2*l.* 10*s.*?—Brown said he had got 2*l.* 10*s.* more to pay to Banks.

45,302. Why didn't you hand it over to Banks?—I didn't hand it over to Banks because I gave it to Brown.

45,303. How much did you give Brown altogether?—I told you, if you admit that 2*l.* 10*s.* that will make 27*l.* 10*s.*

45,304. (The Chief Commissioner.) I will tell you what Banks said, "Brown got the money from "Holdsworth to pay me the first 2*l.* 10*s.*; from "Apted to pay me the second 2*l.* 10*s.* He gave me "5*l.* altogether"?—That is correct.

45,305. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You make it now 27*l.* 10*s.*; you include that 2*l.* 10*s.* in it?—I do not include it, but you can include it.

45,306. Did you have anything else?—No, I could not say, it might be 30*l.* I paid him.

45,307. Anything else? Take what you like?—No. I say it is impossible for a person who is canvassing and attending meetings for three or four months to account for every shilling he has spent.

45,308. No; it is possible for a man who is anxious to act like a correct man, and who puts everything down?—I don't think you would do it if you were a canvasser.

45,309. Don't tell me what I would do; but that is what a correct man would do, put down everything, especially if he is dealing with another man's money?—Well, sir, if you are in Rome you must do as Rome does.

45,310. Then you did not put it down?—No, I did not.

45,311. Take it at 30*l.*; that leaves 50*l.* more to be accounted for?—(The witness was referring to some papers.)

45,312. Put those papers down?—Those papers are mine; I wish to look at them. There is my evidence here that I have given, and I wish to refer to it.

45,313. Have you not perused it?—Yes, a great many times, also Mr. Nichols's evidence, and a great many other persons.

45,314. Until you have perused it I will not go on with my examination, because I would rather you should not be distracted by looking at them; but if you have perused them sufficiently put them down, or I will not go on with my examination, and you will leave the Court.

45,315. 30*l.*, you think, you paid Mr. Brown. Tell me anything else you paid?—Why, you have got it there.

(The Chief Commissioner.) We have not any list, indeed.

45,316. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Tell me how much you paid now?—You read over the names of several persons.

(The Chief Commissioner.) The only persons who have said you paid them anything I have taken the trouble of giving you.

(Witness.) Have you got Goddard's, and Warren's, and Balchin's?

(The Chief Commissioner.) Certainly not. They were not paid by you, according to their story.

45,317. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Tell us how many you did pay?—There is Fullbrook, I had him at work for three or four weeks.

(The Chief Commissioner.) I have got him down.

45,318. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Any one else?—I do not, any other. I expended the other in meetings.

45,319. Very well, that is an answer?—I believe I spent during the canvass 1*l.* a day, attending different meetings, and for refreshments to different parties as they came along, canvassers, &c.

45,320. I want to know how you expended the 80*l.*; you account for about 40*l.*, taking 30*l.* to Brown, and you account for 10*l.* more, so that 40*l.* somehow or other went you don't know where. You think you spent the remainder in attending meetings?—And expenses.

45,321. I mean attending meetings?—Yes, I believe I did, and more.

45,322. What kind of expenses would they be?—Why, in travelling about canvassing.

45,323. That would not give me a notion of what the expenses would be at all?—Won't it, sir.

45,324. No?—If you were to go about canvassing I think you would find out.

45,325. Do not appeal to me. Would it be cab hire?—Some of it was.

45,326. That I can understand, cab hire?—Yes, several pounds I paid for cab hire.

45,327. To whom?—I paid Mr. Langridge some.

45,328. How much in cab hire?—I could not tell you, I did not keep any account.

45,329. Any one else?—I had his cab several times, Sellers.

45,330. Can you tell me how many voters, that is the important item, you got for Mr. Monson, with the expenditure of this 80*l.*?—No, I don't know; 30 or 40.

45,331. You are the best man, then; I dare say the money was spent if you got 30 or 40 voters?—I believe I did.

45,332. Who were they? Give me half a dozen?—Give me the register list. (The register was handed to witness.)

45,333. Give me the names of the 30 or 40?—I could not say distinctly.

45,334. I think you will be a little puzzled to give them. Now I will bargain with you, if you will give me the names of 10 voters I will let you off, the names of 10 voters that you got for Mr. Monson?—I will give you the names of 10 voters that had not a farthing for their vote.

45,335. That is very likely?—Well, that I canvassed.

45,336. No, that you got for him?—I say I canvassed for votes. I will give you the list to-morrow.

45,337. Of the men that you got, not that anybody else got?—Yes, not that anybody else got.

45,338. You never gave any account to Mr. Nichols of how you expended the money?—No, I didn't.

45,339. I mean when you and Nichols had a talk a few weeks ago?—I said a few days ago.

45,340. You had a talk, and he said he thought he had given you 80*l.*?—He said so; I could not say, it is such a long time ago. I know I spent a great deal of money. I never scored up any money at a public house; I always paid. If I had five or six in I always paid for it. I never had any public house scores.

45,341. How was it you did not put the figure so high when you were first examined?—I left it open.

45,342. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) No, you did not leave it open; you said a specific sum?—I said 50*l.* or 60*l.*, or more.

45,343. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What I understood by that was, "It may be over 50*l.*, but it "may be under 60*l.*"?—I said 50*l.* or 60*l.*, or more.

45,344. That would give us no notion?—If I had had any notion of this I would have kept an account.

45,345. Now, you said you had some information on some other subject to give us; I think you said you would "tip" us a bit, or something of that kind?—No, I commenced to say that I thought I could give you a straight "tip" where the bribery did commence. There are several versions about it.

45,346. What do you know about it?—I believe it was in 1858.

45,347. I do not want your belief, except you give us facts?—I can give you one or two facts.

45,348. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you take any part in the election of 1858?—In every one when there has been a contest.

45,349. Did you take any part in the election before 1858?—Yes; I say every one since Mr. Parrott came here.

45,350. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) January or February?—In 1858 there were two elections; the first was the contest with Mr. Doulton.

45,351. For whom did you appear?—For Mr. Wilkinson first.

45,352. Then, when he was balloted out, for whom did you act?—Mr. Doulton.

45,353. What did you receive for yourself at that election, for your own services?—I received 10*l.* from Mr. Cape.

45,354. Did you receive any money to pay away?—No.

THIRTIETH DAY.

J. Apted.

25 Sept. 1866.

45,355. I suppose you commenced supporting Mr. Doulton two or three days before the polling day?—Ten days. I think it was directly Mr. Wilkinson was balloted out. It was an agreement between all the Liberals that whatever person should win the ballot should be the only person we should support; I was the only person who stuck to the Liberals, because there was a good deal of spite and malice.

45,356. Leave out those ugly words. Now, in the latter part of the year?—I was with Doulton then.

45,357. But in the latter part of the year, there was another election in '58?—I went for Mr. Wilkinson.

45,358. Do you know any fact, do not tell me your belief; but do you know any fact connected with Mr. Doulton's election?—No, I was working for Mr. Doulton for 10 days, and I was with him when his agent had private interviews with him, and I never saw him give any direct evidence.

45,359. In the October of that year how much did you receive?—10*l.* from Mr. James. No, I think not from Mr. James that time. I do not recollect receiving any money, not in October '58. It was between Mr. Monson and Mr. Wilkinson and Edwin James, the celebrated solicitor, that put up that time.

45,360. You did not receive any money at that time?—I do not remember receiving any.

45,361. Do you know anything of the election?—Yes.

45,362. Do you know any fact?—Yes. Joyes stated here the other day that he gave me 5*l.* to give Bentley in the '63 election.

45,363. I have not come to that?—This is the fact, this is '63 I am going to allude to.

45,364. I am coming to that; I am in the October of '58 now, when Mr. Wilkinson and Mr. Monson were the candidates; have you any fact with reference to that election?—I believe that was the first election when there was any bribery and intimidation carried on.

45,365. I do not want your belief, that may be founded on facts or not?—I meant to give you a few facts.

45,366. Do give me them?—Yes, but when I commenced to give you them you stopped me.

45,367. I mean with reference to 1858?—Yes.

45,368. Give me a few facts?—I was going to tell you of one man of the name of Bentley who received money, only you won't allow me.

45,369. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Which election in '58?—Between Mr. Monson and Mr. Wilkinson.

45,370. It was in October?—Yes. Mr. Joyes says that he gave me 5*l.* to give a person of the name of Bentley in '63; he has not been in Reigate for six or eight years. In '58 he went into the "White Hart" and received money from the Gower side. I was coming across the square and I was dragged into the "Crown" by Joyes, and he paid him to vote for Mr. Wilkinson; he said he gave me the money.

45,371. Is it true he gave you the money?—He paid him himself.

45,372. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you see the money paid?—I think I did.

45,373. Do not think about it; it is a serious thing to speak of a person receiving or paying money without being certain about it?—I am certain.

45,374. How much?—Three or four pounds; I am certain the money was paid; I saw the money, but I am not certain whether it was three or four pounds.

45,375. Who did he vote for?—Mr. Wilkinson.

45,376. (The Chief Commissioner.) Mr. Joyes paid him, you think?—For Mr. Wilkinson; he received money at the "White Hart" for Mr. Monson, and then came over and voted for Mr. Wilkinson.

45,377. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What money did he receive for voting for Mr. Monson?—I do not know.

45,378. Where is Bentley now?—I do not know; he has not been in Reigate for eight years. I think Joyes said it was '63.

45,379. Is there any other fact?—The only other fact that I can tell you of was the great intimidation in that election; they went and fetched sick men out of their beds; they fetched those men out of their beds who were ill, and went along the streets flourishing their hats, the gentlemen did, the great guns I call them.

45,380. Give me a fact of bribery?—I do not know any case of bribery, but I heard Mr. Wilkinson talking about the bribery at the election, that he thought he could come to Reigate without carrying on any bribery at all, and he did not intend to do it, but when he found that the opposite side were carrying on the gross transactions they were they must do it.

45,381. That was said in the presence of Mr. Norman Wilkinson, was it?—No, to myself, in the "Swan," and I think Mr. Cape was there and Mr. Humphreys, the coroner for Middlesex.

45,382. Do you mean to say that Mr. Wilkinson in the presence of Mr. Cape said that? Was that the Mr. Wilkinson who is dead?—Yes.

45,383. He is dead; we do not want to hear that. Anything else?—I wish to state to you this; Benjamin Brown said I pulled out a roll of notes on Earlswood common on the morning of the election, and he says I offered them to a man; that is a lie, and I think I can prove it.

45,384. I think it is not very probable on the face of it?—On the day of the election, when the election was begun, I had not got any notes; that I can prove by two men who were in the shop. I went to fetch a man of the name of J. S., whom Brown had got in tow to take away from us.

45,385. Well, you deny that?—I do.

45,386. Anything else?—Joyes said he gave me 5*l.* to give to a man of the name of Jackson; I say that he did not, he gave me 4*l.*

45,387. That is the same thing. Anything more?—I never had any money in my hand to pay any voters to induce them to vote before this last election.

45,388. How much did you get in '63 for your exertions?—10*l.*

45,389. Then you were paid upon no other occasion except the last. Who paid you in '63?—Mr. James.

45,390. For Mr. Wilkinson?—Yes, and I likewise received 5*l.* from Mr. James for aiding the petition at that time.

45,391. (The Chief Commissioner.) That was in '63?—Yes.

45,392. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What did you get that time for aiding the petition?—I have not got anything at present.

45,393. What are you to get?—I believe I am to have 50*l.*

45,394. From whom?—I do not know from whom. Mr. Gilbert told me I ought to have it.

45,395. That you ought to have 50*l.*?—Yes.

45,396. I wish you may get it, that is all?—I wish I may.

45,397. You were one of the petitioners, I suppose?—Yes. I can tell you why I petitioned; you may say, perhaps, I had not room for it.

45,398. No, I do not?—I wish to say why I did.

45,399. You were applied to, I suppose; had you any arrangement with anybody to give you the 50*l.*?—No, not a word about it; not till latterly.

45,400. Then you say you had an arrangement with Mr. Gilbert?—No.

45,401. No?—No arrangement at all whatever.

45,402. What about the 50*l.* then?—He told me since that I was to have it, that my services were worth it.

45,403. (The Chief Commissioner.) Are you sure that he added, "You are to have it"?—Yes.

45,404. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) He is the best judge of that; I do not wish to say one word about that. He said after the petition was successful that your services were worth 50*l.*, and you were to have it?—Yes; that was after the petition was over.

45,405. The petition was subscriptionary?—I believe it was.

45,406. Do not understand me to say that you deserved that or not, for aught we know you did; there was a subscription then?—Yes, I believe there was; I only want to state a word or two about it.

45,407. Very well?—The reason I signed the petition was because men go to work for three or four weeks, receiving pay weekly, and then we are told they took 5*l.* from the other side; they received money after we paid that money, and I thought then it was time to put a stop to it, because I considered that we were robbed.

45,408. (The Chief Commissioner.) Tell me, after this last election was over in '65 did you receive any money from Mr. Hart?—No.

45,409. None at all?—No.

45,410. Did you send in any claim or bill, whichever you call it?—No.

45,411. Nothing at all?—No.

45,412. There was nothing passed between you and Mr. Hart after the election?—Not a word; Mr. Monson knows it.

45,413. He could not know that there was not?—He knew that there was not any debt; he knew very well that I had not anything for my services.

45,414. I am not speaking about you having anything for your services. I do not think you quite see the point of my question?—Yes, I do.

45,415. Very well; did you receive anything from Mr. Hart at all?—Not a farthing.

45,416. Either to pay any person, or to pay yourself?—Not a farthing.

45,417. I take your answer exactly as you give it, "Not a farthing from him in any shape or way"?—Not anything.

45,418. Can you tell me whether you were paid anything during the election at all by cheque?—No.

45,419. No money by cheque?—No.

45,420. Did you receive any money except from Mr. Nichols?—No.

45,421. Are you able to tell me what was the largest sum he paid you at any time?—I think it was 20*l.*

45,422. Did he pay you anything after the election was over?—Nothing after the election was over.

45,423. None after?—All before.

45,424. Can you tell me where it was that you received the 20*l.*?—In his house.

45,425. Did you assist in getting up the requisition?—No, Mr. Nichols asked me to.

45,426. And you did not do it?—I objected to it, because I told him Mr. Monson could not come forward.

45,427. You did not help him in doing so?—No, because Mr. Gower was pledged to Mr. Wilkinson, and the Reform Club was pledged to Mr. Wilkinson, I knew that.

45,428. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) There is one part of the evidence which perhaps escaped your notice: it is with reference to what took place at the "Castle" inn with Jordan?—With Jordan?

45,429. Yes?—I do not recollect having any conversation with him in the "Castle" inn.

45,430. Jordan; he voted for Mr. Gower, but before he voted for Mr. Gower, on the day of the nomination, were you at the "Castle" inn, when James Brown was there?—Yes, so he stated.

45,431. You recollect that circumstance?—Yes.

45,432. You have not been asked about it. I want to have your account of it, to see how far the story was true; do you recollect the circumstance of noticing that their clothes were torn; Jordan's and two or three other men?—I do not recollect that circumstance.

45,433. It was not the fact that their clothes were torn?—I do not recollect making that remark to them.

45,434. Did you pay them any money?—Yes, I did.

45,435. Was that in the stable?—No.

45,436. Where was it that you paid them money?—They received 30*s.* each.

45,437. How many did you pay 30*s.* each?—Three.

45,438. Who were they?—I paid it to Brown.

45,439. Who were they?—Jordan, Balchin, and Warren.

45,440. They received 30*s.* apiece?—Yes.

45,441. Is that money in the 25*l.* or 30*l.* which you account for?—No, Brown's money; that is nothing but Banks; those are included in the 17*l.* 10*s.*

45,442. Why do you then go back to the 17*l.* 10*s.* as the sum you gave to Brown?—It was for those three men and a person of the name of Trussler I handed him 17*l.* 10*s.*, and I paid Brown other monies besides, which I cannot recollect.

45,443. I only wanted to know whether you considered these men had 30*s.* apiece?—They did I believe, Brown had that money for them; the other they had in the stable.

45,444. You said the money was paid?—Yes, and I was to meet them the next morning at the "Barley Mow."

45,445. The "Barley Mow"?—Yes; and when I got to the "Barley Mow" they were then in a room locked up. I wanted to go inside to see them, and I was pushed back and told that I could not go in there. William Groom was at the door; he said, "You "must not go in there." I said that I wanted to go in and speak to the men, and he said, "You must "not." A signal was given, and one of them sung out, "If you go in there you will get your head broke," and I thought it was time to be off.

45,446. You do not mean to say that those men were to go to the "Barley Mow"?—No, they did not appoint to meet me at the "Barley Mow;" I went to their houses, and I found they were there at the "Barley Mow." It was appointed that I was to bring a trap down and fetch them from their houses. When I went down with the trap I found they had gone to the "Barley Mow."

45,447. (The Chief Commissioner.) Was it you who paid them in Mr. Holdsworth's stables, or was it Brown?—I was with him at the time.

45,448. It was not Brown who handed them the money?—I believe so; I could not swear.

45,449. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Do you remember a man named Goddard; he says that you paid him more money?—I think I was with Brown; it was two 5*l.* notes; it was to get change, and he went and got change, and brought the money to the stables.

The witness then withdrew.

THOMAS CORDEROY sworn and examined. T. Corderoy.

45,450. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—A painter.

45,451. What rent do you pay?—15*l.* a year.

45,452. And you voted last time for Mr. Monson?—Yes.

45,453. You took an active part in his election?—Yes.

45,454. You were on his committee?—No, I do not think I was; I do not think my name was on.

45,455. You canvassed a good deal I suppose?—Yes.

45,456. Was any money given to you to pay away?—Yes.

45,457. Who gave you money to pay away?—Mr. Nichols.

45,458. When did he begin to give you money to pay away; at what period of the election?—I should think about a few weeks, a little after Mr. Gower made his speech in the hall, when he said he would not contest the borough again.

45,459. When was that?—I could not tell you the time; if you could refer me to the time, I think I could tell you.

45,460. About how long before the election was it; was it in the spring?—No, in November.

THIRTIETH DAY.

T. Corderoy.

25 Sept 1866.

45,461. During the previous year?—Yes.

45,462. Did he give you money as soon as that?—Yes, I should say it was; I will not say to a week or two.

45,463. Oh no, you shall have a month; what was the money he gave to you?—2*l.*

45,464. Two sovereigns?—Yes.

45,465. When did he pay you next?—I cannot tell you.

45,466. But we have got an answer all right; I was in hopes we should go on?—If I could I would tell you, but I do not know.

45,467. If you could I am sure you would, I have no reason to think you would not; when did he give you the next?—I cannot tell.

45,468. About; I have not tied you to any particular time?—It was something like the Derby week.

45,469. It was a long skip over?—It was a long skip; I did not have any between, if it was two years.

45,470. You received something in Derby week?—Yes.

45,471. Were there any voters living at Epsom?—I do not know, I did not go there, I only mentioned that as the time I received money; that was why I mentioned the Derby week.

45,472. How much did you get in the Derby week; 5*l.*, 10*l.*, or 15*l.*; just tell us, we are going on very nicely so far; do not spoil it?—I will not spoil it.

45,473. Just tell us; we shall get it very nicely; what did he give you in the Derby week?—Perhaps 3*l.*

45,474. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I thought you said 15*l.*?—But he gave me some more the same week.

45,475. (The Chief Commissioner.) The next; how much in that week?—I might have had about 10*l.* altogether.

45,476. You did say 15*l.*, but you think 10*l.* is within the mark?—Yes, I will say 10*l.*

45,477. Derby week; I forget when that was exactly?—That was the time when we began to canvass; that was the time when we had the money.

45,478. Tell me, when was the next; we have now got two payments?—I think it went on then to about a month before the election.

45,479. What did he give you then?—Perhaps I had 30*l.* then.

45,480. I do not quite like the "perhaps," I would rather you would leave that out; but never mind?—Then I will say 30*l.*

45,481. I mean if you are sure of it?—Then I am not sure or else I should not have said perhaps.

45,482. I trust you?—It will be no good to say anything wrong.

45,483. I do not want you to say anything wrong, or that you are not sure about?—Then I will say 30*l.*

45,484. Now we have got that, when was the next?—It was all before the election; I never had any since.

45,485. We have got a good way to go yet?—No, you have not.

45,486. Go on?—Well, I should have 20*l.* more.

45,487. Soon after?—Yes.

45,488. Was there any more, do you think?—No, I do not think there was; there might have been; I might have asked him for 1*l.* or 2*l.* more.

45,489. Then you received nothing after the election?—Not a halfpenny.

46,490. So far as you can remember and believe, have you told me the money which you have received before the election?—Yes, it might be 1*l.* or 2*l.* more.

45,491. Oh, no doubt I have taken that down; I have not omitted it a bit. Well, now, you believe that to be about the mark?—Yes, I think so.

45,492. I do not want to fix you with 1*l.* or 2*l.*; you may have 5*l.* if you like?—Yes.

45,493. I mean there is no catch about it?—There is no catch about me.

45,494. You understand me; I do not want to tie you to a pound or two?—If you did it would not be fair.

45,495. No, I only mean you must be candid with me?—Yes.

45,496. Now, of the whole of these sums together, was any of it for yourself?—I had it.

45,497. Was it all for yourself, or monies to pay away?—For me to pay away.

45,498. It was not for yourself; it was not given you for the purpose of keeping yourself; it was given to pay for the voters?—Yes.

45,499. Then it was given to pay away?—Yes, that was it.

45,500. Did you receive nothing for yourself?—I did not use all the money, and that is the reason I received it.

45,501. I see, and about how much would that be for yourself?—I should think about 25*l.*

45,502. Can you tell me the names of those you paid money to?—I think I can pretty near.

45,503. Do you recollect paying Anscombe or Hanscombe?—Yes.

45,504. Only 10*s.*?—Yes, that is all.

45,505. Do you recollect paying Brodie 10 guineas, for two other persons as well as himself?—Yes.

45,506. Do you recollect paying a small sum to a man named Kemp, 10*s* ?—Yes.

45,507. And Henry Harvey, 5*l.*; and George Parsons, 1*l.*?—Yes.

45,508. I am telling you what they say; you did pay them? Did you pay George Brown 3*l.*?—Yes.

45,509. Can you tell me any other name?—Palmer, he said 4*l.* 5*s.* I am not certain whether it was 4*l.* 5*s.* or 4*l.* 3*s.* He said he was not canvassed by any of the Monson party, and he had promised me about a month before the election, if I would give him 5*l.*, he would vote for Mr. Monson. I said, "I have not "5*l.* now with me, Palmer." He said, "5*l.* to me will "be better than 10*l.* on the other side." He said, "I "am in difficulties." I said, "If you are in difficulties, it is another thing," and I put my hand in my pocket and gave him 4*l.* When I heard he was not going to vote for Mr. Monson I went to him, and asked him whether it was true he was going to vote for Mr. Gower. He said it was not so. I said, "If "it is true, return me the money;" he said it was not. I went to him again, and he said I should see him at the poll. I said, "Are you going to work for "Mr. Monson;" he said, "Yes," but I knew what it was; he had 4*l.*, whatever it was.

45,510. I will take it as 4*l.*?—I think it was a shilling or so more.

45,511. 4*l.* 10*s.* if you like?—No.

45,512. Well, 4*l.* odd; can you tell me of anybody else?—A man at Bickley.

45,513. Tell us his name?—Knight.

45,514. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Who is the other man at Bickley; there are two men there?—Turner and Knight.

45,515. Is one of them a butcher; is that Turner?—Yes, Knight is a cowman I think.

45,516. Knight has not been examined?—No.

45,517. Turner has?—Yes.

45,518. (The Chief Commissioner.) What is Knight's Christian name?—I think John Knight, but I will not be certain.

45,519. What is his address?—Wythey, Bickley Park.

45,520. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) When he was in the borough where did he live?—Lesbourne-lane.

45,521. Lesbourne-road?—Yes, that is it.

45,522. (The Chief Commissioner.) Tell me of anybody else?—A man of the name of Mayle. Frederick Mayle of Redhill.

45,523. Mayle; spell it?—M-a-y-l-e.

45,524. Did he vote for you?—Yes.

45,525. What did you give him?—5*l.*

45,526. Did he vote for you?—No.

45,527. Frederick Mayle; where does he live?—I do not know.

(A gentleman in Court.) Walter's-cottages.

45,528. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Have you got a list of the men you paid money to?—No.

45,529. (The Chief Commissioner.) Tell us another if you recollect one?—There is a man of the name of Wood; James Wood.

45,530. He has not put it down to you?—He has not.

45,531. James Wood has not said he got money from you?—I paid him.

45,532. On that occasion?—Yes.

45,533. What did you pay him?—2l.

45,534. James Wood of Station-road?—Yes.

45,535. What is he?—A painter.

45,536. Is there anybody else you can recollect?—Yes, I paid a man I think 10*s.*

45,537. Who was that?—He was not a voter.

45,538. Never mind that?—One or two other men I paid 10*s.*

45,539. I will bear in mind the money you paid out, and will count that in; was that all?—Yes.

45,540. You see according to your own account you have received 62*l.*, and you have paid away out of the 62*l.* 30*l.*, and it is not very far off; you say you kept 25*l.* for yourself; it is very near to it, with the 10*s.*; two 10*s.* I think you said?—I said it might be two 10*s.* I employed them and gave them half a sovereign after the election. That is the only payment.

45,541. I do not expect you to make out every shilling, it balances within 3*l.*

45,542. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) The Turner of Bickley was Henry Turner, not William?—No, not William.

45,543. Henry Turner has not been examined, I think?—No.

45,544. Do you know whether he received money?—No, I do not.

45,545. I have a sort of recollection that some one went over to canvass him on the part of Mr. Gower?—I know some one went to canvass him on the part of Mr. Monson; I do not know that they did on the part of Mr. Gower.

45,546. I think you are the person that was spoken of as to the canvassing of Knight?—No, I think the Gower party were there.

45,547. Do you know whether the Gower party paid him anything?—I do not.

45,548. You never heard that?—No.

45,549. (The Chief Commissioner.) That was the way you expended the money; so much money you received, and so much money you mentioned you have paid?—Yes, as you say, allowing a margin of 5l.

45,550. Oh, certainly, you shall have a proper margin. Now, in 1863, you had been taking a part too?—Yes.

45,551. You had been for Mr. Gower?—Yes.

45,552. I think you went canvassing with him a little?—Yes.

45,553. I suppose you were on his committee, but I do not know?—No, I think not; I do not think I was. I would not be positive.

45,554. I dare say you are quite right; tell us, in 1863 did money go through your hands?—Yes.

45,555. What money passed into your hands; not for yourself, you know?—No.

45,556. What money did you pay away in 1863, as far as you can recollect?—I should think about 15*l.* or 16*l.* I could soon give you the voters' names I paid money to, and it would soon tell itself.

45,557. I could help you a little part with that too?—Yes.

45,558. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Is that the only way you know how much money came into your hands, by going through the evidence; is that the only way you can recollect the amount of money that came into your hands?—Yes.

45,559. By reference to the evidence you know what money came into your hands, and see how it has been expended?—Oh, no.

45,560. In 1865 it is not, as you have given us other names than those who have been before us?—In 1863 I received very little money; it would not require much recollection at all.

45,561. (The Chief Commissioner.) I can help you. I only know of 9*l.* 10*s.* Thomas Apps 20*s.*; James Childs 2*l.* 10s.; Thomas and George Beales 3*l.*?—I did not pay them 3*l.*; only 2*l.* If I did not I may as well say the truth, I did not pay them.

45,562. Who else did you pay?—George Knight, a brother to John Knight.

45,563. How much?—2*l.* 10*s.* There was James Childs 2*l.* 10*s.*?

45,564. You are sure you paid him?—Yes.

45,565. Quite sure?—Yes.

45,566. I mean, it was not money which passed to him from somebody else than you?—No, I paid him myself. I went and paid it in person. I asked for it to pay them after the election in 1863. I did not pay any till after the election.

45,567. Can you tell me anybody else?—No, I cannot.

45,568. 13*l.* 10*s.*; that is getting on, you see. Do you think you paid any more?—No, I do not think I did.

45,569. You say you paid away 15*l.* or 16*l.*, or rather less?—It might be.

45,570. Can you account for more than 13*l.* 10*s.*; can you tell me what you received for yourself?—Well, Mr. Smith can tell you I think; he gave me after the election a cheque for either 23*l.* or 24*l.* I will not be certain, but Mr. Smith will know, because I signed it to him.

45,571. 23*l.* or 24*l.*?—I think it was.

45,572. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That was independent of course of the others?—Yes, that was for myself.

45,573. (The Chief Commissioner.) Now, you see, you recollect very clearly indeed, and tell me very fairly about these two elections; do you go back any further?—No.

45,574. I am sorry for it. I like to make the most of a precise man, and an accurate one; now, you were not here on the former elections?—Yes, I was here, but I had no vote.

45,575. You saw a good deal of them I suppose?—Yes.

45,576. Was there a good deal of treating both in 1865 and 1863?—Yes.

45,577. As much on one as the other?—Yes.

45,578. We have heard 1863 was the most?—I do not know.

45,579. Plenty in both?—Yes.

45,580. Having told me so accurately in 1863 what you spent, and what you got for yourself, and also having told me in 1865, are you aware what Mr. Nichols said yesterday, he paid you in 1863?—He said about 80*l.* Well, he might have done so.

45,581. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You are a very precise man?—I am not precise at all. I said when making up my account I was not certain of 5l.; if it came 5l. over or not.

45,582. (The Chief Commissioner.) You have accounted for 62*l.*, you shall have 5l. over or under, but 62*l.* is what you accounted for; and you are aware that Mr. Nichols returned you for 80*l.*; here is his evidence. I dare say you know what he said?—I heard what he said; at least, I did not hear what he said, but I heard of it.

45,583. Have you anything to say about that?—I have nothing to say; if he said I had 80*l.* I should say I have had it. I have no recollection what I took; it might be 25*l.* or 30*l.*, or 40*l.* If I wanted 40*l.* I could have had it.

45,584. I am going to give this as your answer if you assent to it, "Having given my account of 1865, I "am still not prepared to contradict Mr. Nichols." Do you mean to say that?—Yes, I do.

45,585. I have been complimenting you, if you will allow me to do so, on your evidence, your precise evidence. I thought you gave a very satisfactory account, but if you say that I am rather afraid I am

THIRTIETH DAY.

T. Corderoy.

25 Sept. 1866.

throwing away my compliments?—I have told you the truth.

45,586. Well, it comes to 62*l.*, that is the result of your truth, and I did not doubt your word when you gave it me?—I said then I was not certain within 5*l.*

45,587. You shall take 62*l.* and 5*l.*?—Well, but I might have said 40*l.*

45,588. Well, but 62*l.*; using your own phrase, you shall have a margin; we will call it 65*l.*; or more or less than that?—Yes.

45,589. You have been good enough to tell me particularly when you received particular sums?—I beg your pardon, I could not tell you when I received particular sums.

45,590. You told me you received first in one week, and then others; these subsequent sums were paid after that. I have taken it down, and I was rather pleased with your accuracy?—I have given it very straight.

45,591. But it must occur to you that does not exactly tally with the account?—Very likely not.

45,592. You have told us very clearly your account of disbursements and receipts, so very clearly resembling the one to the other, that it is another reason which makes one think you are most likely to be accurate?—No, I am not.

45,593. Do you think it possible that you might have received 80*l.* from Mr. Nichols?—Yes, I should think I did.

45,594. You have not said that yet; what you said was that "If Mr. Nichols said so I will not say that it is "untrue"?—I cannot say whether he could tell how much. I know I could not, and so I said, "I believe "I had it."

45,595. Did you ever tell Mr. Nichols what sum you had received from him?—No, because I could not; that is very straight.

45,596. Where did he get his 80*l.*?—Where did he get it from?

45,597. How did he arrive at the amount?—How did he arrive at it?

45,598. How did he arrive at the amount of 80*l.* with which he has debited you?—He asked me if I knew what money I had had during that election.

45,599. You gave him the same evidence you have given me?—I said, "I should think 70*l.* or 80*l.*"

45,600. You told him the same story and in the same pleasant way you have told us?—Yes.

45,601. Then that makes 62*l.*?—No, I did not give him the names of all those voters.

45,602. You summed it up?—I summed it up.

45,603. You must have told Mr. Nichols the substance of what you told me?—I did not.

45,604. Can you deny it?—I will deny it.

45,605. Now you are beyond me; I do not quite understand. Mr. Nichols asked you how much money he had paid; is that right?—Yes.

45,606. What did you say to him?—I said, "Some-"thing between 70*l.* and 80*l.*" I am sure I could not remember.

45,607. You did not take the trouble to go through in your own head the amount you have given us?—No, I did not then; I never did to him.

45,608. I mean to him?—Yes, I never did to him; I can answer for that.

45,609. Now tell me, if you please, after the election you received some money, I think, from Mr. Hart?—Not a farthing.

45,610. Then I must have made a mistake, I thought you had?—No, I never made any claim for money.

45,611. Did you not receive any money?—Not a bit.

45,612. I had forgotten the indorsement on some receipt, I thought it was yours?—No, it was not me.

45,613. I thought I had got you in this book, but I have no doubt you are right?—I wish you had.

45,614. It would do you no good?—It would, because I should have it.

45,615. You would have had it, but when it is gone it would do you no good?—If it is there it is false; I do not mind, you will not make me stare.

45,616. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Your name is Thomas?—Yes.

(The Chief Commissioner.) I would much rather not give it you; I would much rather not; but it is your handwriting, is it not, at the bottom (handing paper to witness)?

45,617. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Across the stamp?—This did not come from Mr. Hart.

45,618. (The Chief Commissioner.) I have not said a word that it did, only that is your handwriting?—That is mine.

45,619. I have not said a word about it yet?—Yes, you did; you asked me whether I had received any money from Mr. Hart.

45,620. Yes, and I have taken your answer?—Yes, but that was from Mr. Nichols. I never had any from Mr. Hart.

45,621. Excuse me, I have not come to this yet. Do you know Mr. Hart's handwriting (handing paper to witness)?—No, I do not.

45,622. (The Chief Commissioner.) "Received, "29th September 1865, of Thomas Hart"?—No, not a bit.

45,623. I will read it; "of Thomas Hart, agent "for the election expenses for the Honble. E. Monson "at the late Reigate election"—— ?—Yes.

45,624. You can go on?—12*l.*

45,625. 12*l.* for services in canvassing the borough?—Yes, I say I did not receive it.

The Chief Commissioner remarked that he was very sorry, and he did not like the look of it at all.

45,626. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That is your signature?—Yes.

45,627. (The Chief Commissioner.) It is a little bit serious now. Who did you receive this money from?—Mr. Nichols.

45,628. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You said that you had received no money after the election?—I was not aware that I had.

45,629. You said you had received all this money before the election; 10*l.* Derby week, and 20*l.* a few months after, and after that, "I am sure I received "nothing after"?—I might have made a mistake.

45,630. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Do you mean to say you signed that receipt—you can read and write—now be very cautious, for this may proceed further; I would have you be very cautious. I do not at all want to entrap you; be very cautious?—I am sorry I have no recollection of it.

45,631. Do you mean to say that you signed this receipt, written in this way, "Received, the 29th of "September, of Thos. Hart, agent for the election "expenses," when you did not receive any money?—Oh, I received it.

45,632. From whom?—From Mr. Nichols.

45,633. You say here you received it from Mr. Hart. Do not laugh! it is no laughing matter?—I beg your pardon; I said I did not receive any money from Mr. Hart.

45,634. Do not laugh; I tell you it is a very serious matter as regards yourself?—I do not laugh at you.

45,635. It is serious, as your character is concerned. That is your signature?—Yes, it is.

45,636. And do you mean to say that you put your signature to this document, "Received of Thomas "Hart, agent for the election expenses of the Honble. "C. T. Monson at the late Reigate election, the sum "of 12*l.*," when you received nothing?—I do not say I received nothing from Mr. Hart.

45,637. Did you receive anything from Mr. Hart?—No, I have no recollection of receiving a penny.

45,638. Where did you receive that?—In the "Grapes."

45,639. Who brought it to you?—Mr. Nichols.

45,640. Was it in the shape it is now when Mr. Nichols brought it to you at the "Grapes"?—I should think it was.

45,641. Did Mr. Nichols at that time hand you 12*l.* 10*s.*? I should advise you to be very cautious. At that time did Mr. Nichols hand you over 12*l.* 10*s.*?—I have not any recollection whether he did or not.

44,642. At that time did he hand you over 12*l.* 10*s.*?—Well, no, I think not.

45,643. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) He did not?—No.

45,644. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Why, if you had received 80*l.*, and calculated your own fee at 25*l.*, that is the money that remained in your hand, why did you put down 12*l.* 10*s.* for services?—Why did I put it down?

45,645. Yes, on the receipt. Why did you sign a receipt for 12*l.* 10*s.* when you had 25*l.* in your hands?—Mr. Nichols told me I was to have that; that was what was left, which I did not use; the money which was left.

45,646. Then you did not receive any money at all when you gave the receipt?—I do not understand you.

45,647. No money passed; you do perfectly understand?—I do not, or else I would answer.

45,648. Did any money pass from Mr. Nichols to you at all when you gave this receipt?—Did any money?

45,649. Yes?—Yes.

45,650. At that time?—Yes.

45,651. How much?—I do not know whether it was 10*l.* or 10*l.* 10*s.*; but I owed him something.

45,652. That was not money passing?—Then, 10*l.*

45,653. Do you mean to say, at the time you signed this receipt—you said no money had passed—do you mean when you handed that receipt you received any money from him?—From Mr. Nichols?

45,654. Yes?—Yes.

45,655. How much?—10*l.*

45,656. You adhere to that?—I cannot exactly understand you when you say I am laughing.

45,657. You are not laughing now; oh, no. Did you receive on the 29th of September 1865 10*l.* from Mr. Nichols?—Yes.

45,658. Received from him out from his hand, not off any account?—Yes.

45,659. But received from him?—Yes, received from him.

45,660. In what way, gold or notes?—In sovereigns.

45,661. Then you had received 80 sovereigns from him before?—I might have done.

45,662. You might have done?—I said I could not know.

45,663. That would make 90*l.*?—I said I could not answer as to the exact sum.

45,664. There was 25*l.*, according to your own calculation, remaining in your hands over and above what was paid out, and then you got 10*l.*; that is 35*l.* Why did you not say you got 10*l.* for your services?—I did not know I did.

45,665. Having received 25*l.* from Mr. Nichols remaining in your hands, and then 10*l.* over and above, you do not know why you gave a receipt for 12*l.*; is that what you mean?—Yes; and I am sure I did not know that I had received any money after the election.

45,666. You said so again and again?—If I had I should have said so at first.

45,667. How do you recollect now that you received 10*l.* at the "Grapes"?—When you showed me the cheque I did.

45,668. The cheque would not put you in mind of it, the receipt?—Yes, the receipt.

45,669. What I wanted to say is, when you received 10*l.* why was 12*l.* put on?—I do not know.

45,670. You do not know?—No.

45,671. Does Mr. Nichols owe you any money now?—No, I do not know that he does.

45,672. Does Mr. Nichols owe you any money now?—No, not that I know of; I have got no claim on Mr. Nichols, not that I am aware of.

45,673. I am not saying you have; but does he owe you any money?—No.

45,674. Is there any understanding between you and Mr. Nichols that he owes you any money now?—No, I think not.

45,675. Or that you owe him money?—No.

45,676. You say you received 10*l.* on the 29th in sovereigns, that is the only explanation you can give?—Yes.

45,677. (The Chief Commissioner.) In both these accounts of Mr. Hart himself—you can read it—here your name occurs in Mr. Hart's account (showing paper to witness), and here your name occurs again in Mr. Hart's account (holding up another paper), as canvasser, 12*l.*—Not by my sanction; I never knew it.

45,678. But he paid it afterwards?—Mr. Hart never paid it.

45,679. I showed you the receipt which you gave him; you may find it in Mr. Hart's own account, there it is, "Corderoy, 12*l.*"?—Yes, but Mr. Hart did not pay me, that is what I mean; Mr. Hart never paid me. I do not know that I ever had anything to do with Mr. Hart at all.

45,680. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You say that out of the 12*l.* there was 2*l.* owed to you by Mr. Nichols?—Owed to me, making up 12*l.*; I did not say he owed it me.

45,681. You said he owed you 2*l.*?—No.

45,682. I want to know what the 2*l.* was owing to you for; you say that you received 10*l.*, and you gave a receipt for 12*l.*; how did you end in giving a receipt for 12*l.* when you only got 10*l.*?—I do not know.

45,683. You said a little while ago that you intended to have from Mr. Nichols what money was owing to you, while you were standing in the box?—No.

45,684. Something very much like it?—No; I beg your pardon.

45,685. Or that you intended to be paid?—No.

The witness then withdrew.

William Holdsworth sworn and examined.

W. Holdsworth.

45,686. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I believe you keep one of the hotels in this town?—A public house.

45,687. The "Red Cross"?—Yes, the "Cross" or "Red Cross."

45,688. What rent do you vote for?—30*l.* a year.

45,689. And who did you vote for in 1865?—Mr. Richardson.

45,690. Were you on his committee?—I do not know. I was on Mr. Monson's committee, but I took a part in it.

45,691. An active part?—I did my best.

45,692. Were you engaged at all in canvassing?—Yes.

45,693. Who engaged you?—Mr. Nichols.

45,694. Did you work entirely under Mr. Nichols?—I did for six or seven weeks; seven weeks, I believe.

THIRTIETH DAY.

W. Holdsworth.

25 Sept. 1866.

45,695. Did you receive monies from Mr. Nichols?—Yes.

45,696. From time to time?—Yes.

45,697. Did you keep an account?—I kept it in a memorandum book first, but I have not get it by me now.

45,698. What has become of it?—I burnt it about a month ago. I took the leaf out.

45,699. Perhaps you will tell me why you did that?—It was an electioneering affair, and there were certain names in it which I did not wish anybody to see.

45,700. Were those the names of persons to whom you had paid money?—Yes.

45,701. For their votes?—For work done.

45,702. Really for their votes; at this period of the Inquiry you may use plain Saxon language?—I will leave it to you to find out and give a meaning.

45,703. It was in truth for their votes?—The same as the rest, for work done.

45,704. You well understood all the work was done colourably?—I suppose it was; I shall leave that in your hands.

45,705. I do not wish you to leave it in my hands; was it bonâ fide or merely colourable work?—Well, I will only say what you think.

45,706. I think it was colourable?—Well, I think it was, it does not signify which way it was.

45,707. As you took the trouble to put those names down in your book they will have impressed themselves on your recollection?—Yes, I have got them all in my head. James Brown, 2*l.* 10*s.*

45,708. He is not a voter?—No; but 2*l.* 10*s.* was given him for William Banks.

45,709. Where did you get the 2*l.* 10*s.* from?—I took it from my pocket.

45,710. Then you did not get it from James Apted?—No.

45,711. Then you gave him 2*l.* 10*s.* to give to William Banks?—Yes; he told you what he did I dare say.

45,712. (The Chief Commissioner.) He said he had received two sums of 2*l.* 10*s.*, one was paid by H. through Brown, and the other Apted.

45,713. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you know that Apted had paid him 2*l.* 10*s.* besides?—I think so.

45,714. That is one; will you give us another?—Ashdown, 5*l.*; Henry Gray, 5*l.*; Joseph Peat, 5*l.*; —— 10*s.*; Amos Elliott, 10*s.*; Fuller, 10*l.*; Henry Turner, from B., 1*l.* I gave him that to pay his expenses, he did not ask for it.

45,715. Any one else?—No; that is all the money I paid.

45,716. Do you recollect Balchin and Warren being at your house?—I never paid them a farthing.

45,717. Who did?—I do not know. I never did.

45,718. (The Chief Commissioner.) Do you know if they had been in your stables?—I do not.

45,719. They voted for Gower?—I believe they did.

45,720. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Were there any others that you paid?—No, sir.

45,721. From first to last how much did Mr. Nichols pay you?—60*l.*

45,722. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you receive it in one sum?—No; in 10*l.*, 8*l.*, 5*l.* I had 20*l.* at first, and I had 40*l.* afterwards at two or three different times.

45,723. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) How much before the election?—The whole of it was before the election.

45,724. Are those all the monies you expended?—Those are all; I had 20*l.* out of the 60*l.* for my services, that was the arrangement with Mr. Nichols beforehand, and there was 11*l.* 11*s.* left, and I spent the money in refreshments. I told him the amount of the money, I told him I had spent that in refreshments and more too.

45,725. Had you any claim for refreshments at your own house?—Yes.

45,726. How much?—About 22*l.*

45,727. Were you paid that simply?—Mr. Hart paid the amount, 37*l.* There was committee rooms, 10*l.* cleaning the house from bills and colouring it, 5*l.* and 22*l.* for refreshments.

45,728. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Mr. Hart paid you 37*l.*?—Yes.

45,729. (The Chief Commissioner.) That was after the election?—Yes.

45,730. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Where would the 37*l.* be expended?—In different houses where I was and places in going from home.

45,731. Did you attend any of the evening meetings?—Yes.

45,732. Besides those at your own house?—Yes.

45,733. Did you at any time pay money for those parties?—No, only for my own use and standing at the bar perhaps.

45,734. You did not pay the score of the night?—No, not a farthing.

45,735. Do you know on your side who was the paymaster of those meetings?—No.

45,736. You paid this 11*l.* 10*s.* in your own expenses?—Yes, and I have received 20*l.* for myself, and I have spent all that, the 20*l.* I was allowed.

45,737. Beyond the 11*l.* 10*s.*?—Yes.

45,738. Did you give Nichols receipts for any money you had?—I always told him every time, "This is for so and so," when I had it.

45,739. Is there anything else in regard to the election of 1865 you know of as matter of fact?—No; I cannot tell you anything more than I have told you.

45,740. Were you concerned in the election of '63?—Yes; very little.

45,741. (The Chief Commissioner.) Is it 37*l.* 10*s.* or 37*l.*?—37*l.*, that is right.

45,742. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I suppose you gave Mr. Hart a receipt for expenses in canvassing?—No, I never gave any receipt at all.

45,743. Look at that document (handing a paper writing to witness)?—It does not belong to me.

45,744. That belongs to Mr. Hart?—Yes, but it is "Henry;" my name is William.

45,745. It is "for committee room and cleaning "house, 37*l.*," that is yours?—Yes.

45,746. I see you put, "for committee room," and not refreshments?—There were some refreshments.

45,747. Did you explain this to Mr. Hart?—I told him there were some refreshments.

45,748. Which was the larger part of the claim, the hire of the room or refreshments?—I should think the refreshments.

45,749. Was there any arrangement the committee room should be paid for?—I should say 10*l.* or ten guineas, I forget the exact amount.

45,750. With whom was the arrangement made?—I really forget whether it Mr. Hart or Nichols; I think it was very likely Mr. Hart, but I will not be quite certain of it.

45,751. Who paid you the 37*l.*?—Mr. Hart.

45,752. Was it paid by cheque?—I think so, I am almost certain it was, I believe it was.

45,753. What part did you take in the election of '63?—I took but very little. I only took one portion of it. Glover told you the other day as to 10*l.*, getting it for a man named Weedon.

45,754. Did you get the 10*l.*?—Yes.

45,755. Who gave it you?—Mrs. Frederick Joyes; we could not find Fred, and being afraid of losing the man I called at Joyes' house; she said she had got 10*l.*, and gave it me.

45,756. (The Chief Commissioner.) It was used to get Weedon?—Yes. Glover gave it to Weedon.

45,757. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I rather think we had the man?—Yes.

45,758. And you canvassed?—Yes.

45,759. Was that all you had to do in 1863?—Yes.

45,760. And was that all the money that passed through your hands?—Yes, sir.

45,761. And I take '63 was very nearly your first election?—No.

45,762. (The Chief Commissioner.) Who did you vote for in 1863?—Mr. Wilkinson.

45,763. What did you receive in 1863?—I never received anything, except 10*l.* for Weedon, to pay to him. They had a committee room at my house; 10*l.* I had for it.

45,764. (Mr Commissioner Smith.) For how long was the committee room occupied?—For six or seven weeks.

45,765. When was the 10*l.* paid in 1863, how long before the election?—I really cannot tell you at all.

45,766. (The Chief Commissioner.) It was paid? Yes; it was when the election was on.

45,767. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) For the committee room, that was paid afterwards?—Yes.

45,768. (The Chief Commissioner.) When was the 10*l.* paid for the committee room?—I cannot say.

45,769. Was it paid?—Yes.

45,770. At the time of the election, or about?—Yes; I had it soon afterwards.

45,771. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Who paid it?—Frederick Joyes.

45,772. I think you said you voted for Mr. Richardson?—Yes.

45,773. You had promised Mr. Monson?—I do not know that I gave a decided promise.

45,774. You had been working for him?—I had.

45,775. And what monies you had expended were for him?—Yes.

45,776. How came you to vote for Mr. Richardson?—I suppose there was a certain move in it.

45,777. Were you asked?—No, I did it on my own responsibility.

45,778. It was arranged he wanted some votes?—Not exactly; there were 13 I think for him.

45,779. When was it you heard Richardson was up?—Nobody asked me to vote for him.

45,780. Were you in committee when it was arranged he should be put up?—No, sir.

45,781. Had you anything to do with the previous elections?—No; but they were nearly the same. I have told you about Wilkinson's.

45,782. Your house being used as a committee room?—That is all, nothing more.

45,783. Were you paid for the hire of the committee room a fair reasonable sum?—10 guineas was not too much at an election for seven or eight weeks here.

45,784. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You received 37*l.* of Mr. Hart?—Yes.

45,785. And you were paid 10 guineas for the committee room?—Yes.

45,786. And 27*l.* for refreshments?—No; there were bills sticking up over the house, and there was 5*l.* for taking them off and repairing.

45,787. Sticking bills does not destroy the house?—It destroys the colour.

45,788. Take off 5*l.* and we have 22*l.* for refreshments?—Yes.

45,789. And you had 11*l.* 10*s.* for refreshments?—That was for outdoor.

45,790. That was for your own treating?—Yes.

45,791. When did you arrange with Mr. Nichols to support Mr. Monson and get 20*l.* for it?—In the spring; in March or April; the latter end of March or the beginning of April.

45,792. When did you commence to work for him?—Not till six or seven weeks before the election.

45,793. When did you commence spending any of this 11*l.* 10*s.*?—It might be three months before the election commenced.

45,794. I am dealing with a man of substance and a respectable man, and I hope we shall have sensible answers. When did you commence expending any of the 11*l.* 10*s.*?—I cannot tell to a week or two; it might be three months before the election; perhaps not so long.

45,795. Did you get money from Nichols three months before the election?—No.

45,796. How long before?—Perhaps six or seven weeks before.

45,797. You could not commence paying any money for refreshments till then. Was it arranged between you and Nichols you were to treat yourself when you went out for Mr. Monson?—When you go and work hard you want something.

45,798. We have been strict upon poor gardeners and others; let us be just here?—Can you walk about all day and not have refreshments?

45,799. I took a note of it; "I received 60*l.* and "myself 31*l.* 10*s.*; expenses were 28*l.*"?—I had 20*l.* for myself, that was the arrangement between Nichols and me.

45,800. I suppose you neglected your own business very much?—I did indeed.

45,801. One or two other little questions. You fought a little shy as to Mr. Monson when you talked about not having promised him. Do you mean to say you did not intend to vote for him?—I dare say I should if Mr. Richardson had not started.

45,802. Did you intend to vote for Mr. Monson on the evening of the nomination day?—It was arranged the night before.

45,803. Before the arrangement did you mean to give your vote as you had given your influence?—Most likely.

45,804. Is it to be a matter of likelihood; do you mean to say you did not mean to give your vote as you did your influence and services the night before the nomination?—I have told you.

45,805. Did you mean to vote for Mr. Monson the night before the nomination?—I told you I should.

45,806. If you had told me I would not have asked you. Did you not intend to vote for him?—I should, if Mr. Richardson had not come forward.

45,807. Did you not intend to vote for him?—I told you so, probably.

45,808. Had you it in your mind to vote for him the night before?—The day before.

45,809. Was it not understood between you and Nichols that you were not only to work for Mr. Monson, but to vote for him?—I do not think Mr. Nichols spoke to me.

45,810. At the time of the arrangement was it not understood not only you were to work, but to vote for him?—Well, it was so in the first place.

45,811. You are very shy. Were you not one of the persons who proposed or seconded Mr. Richardson?—Yes.

45,812. Who asked you to second him?—I do not know that any one asked in particular.

45,813. Was he proposed by your friend Francis?—Yes.

45,814. And you seconded the proposition?—Yes.

45,815. How came you to fix upon 20*l.* as your figure?—There was no fixing at all, that was my price beforehand. I told Nichols I should have 20*l.*

45,816. Did the other party speak to you at all?—Which other party?

45,817. The Gower party?—We used to be together occasionally.

45,818. Did they wish to engage your services?—No.

45,819. How came you to put it at 20*l.*, why not 50*l.*?—I was satisfied at 20*l.*

45,820. Now, tell me candidly, did you not intend to include your vote in it?—There was no talking about it. I considered I should give it.

45,821. I think you told me you were engaged six or seven weeks?—I was engaged six or seven weeks in canvassing and going about.

45,822. Did you tell Mr. Nichols at the time?—Yes.

45,823. Did you tell Mr. Nichols, "I shall not "support Mr. Monson unless I have 20*l.*"?—He asked me if I would go and canvass, and do what I could.

45,824. For whom?—For Mr. Monson; and I said I would if I was paid properly for it. He said, "What "do you want?" and I said, "I want 20*l.*"

45,825. That would be about 3*l.* a week?—No, not so much. We were all seven weeks I'm sure.

45,826. It would be about 4*l.* 10*s.* a week with the

THIRTIETH DAY.

W. Holdsworth.

25 Sept. 1866.

11*l.* 10*s.* Now, apart from the money you paid, will you tell me any one man you secured in getting to vote for Mr. Monson ?—I think I have told you.

45,827. You told me who you paid, that is all ?—I really cannot say. I know I asked two or three hundred, three or four hundred.

45,828. But you cannot say any one you secured ?—I cannot say ; I mean independently of that.

45,829. (The Chief Commissioner.) Will you be good enough to attend to me, Mr. Holdsworth, particularly for a minute or two. You say you received after the election a bill of 37*l.*, for which I have shown you the receipt from Mr. Hart ?—Yes.

45,830. That was for your room. It is stated in the bill to be for committee room and cleaning rooms, something like that, 37*l.* ?—Yes.

45,831. Did you not receive something more from Mr. Hart ?—No, not a farthing.

45,832. Are you quite sure ?—I think I am almost sure ; I cannot speak positively.

45,833. I want you to be positive ?—I do not think I did.

45,834. I shall help you, perhaps ; I do not know whether I can or not ; did you receive 10*l.* in addition ?—I do not recollect anything of the kind.

45,835. If not from Mr. Hart himself, did you receive 10*l.* for yourself from Mr. Nichols, who paid you for Mr. Hart ?—I do not recollect anything about it.

45,836. Now look here ; opposite your name I have drawn a mark with a pen ; that is Mr. Hart's bill (showing document to the witness) ?—This here is all I received.

45,837. Look at the left and you will see a mark with a pen ?—" William Holdsworth."

45,838. Carry that out ?—" 47*l.*" All I had was 37*l.*

45,839. I only want to show you that ?—That is all.

45,840. Be so good as to look at that account in the same way and you will see another mark of mine. (The document was handed to the witness.) Down at the bottom, do you see, " William Holdsworth " ?—Yes ; all that I received.

45,841. Answer my question ?—I see " Holdsworth."

45,842. Carry that out ? — " 47*l.* ;" yes. All I received, I will take my oath, was 37*l.*

45,843. I do not say it was not ; how do you account for it ?—I had a cheque on the London and County Bank ; that would be on it.

45,844. I have shown you the mistake ?—Yes.

45,845. I have shown you your name down in two places ?—Yes, that is wrong.

45,846. I have shown you your name in two places for 47*l.* ?—37*l.* is the amount I received, and by a cheque.

45,847. I do not doubt that ?—I know what the 47*l.* is.

45,848. That is exactly what I want ?—Mr. Hart asked me to take a little off the account, and I did do it.

45,849. Did do what ?—I took 10*l.* off the account ; Mr. Hart is aware of that.

45,850. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) When did you send it in ?—I do not really know the date of it.

45,851. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you send in an account for 47*l.* in the first instance ?—Yes.

45,852. When Mr. Hart asked you to take off 10*l* did you agree at once to do so ?—I hesitated some little time.

45,853. And then you said that you would be satisfied with some little loss ; with 10*l.* less ?—I was not satisfied very well, because I thought I was entitled to it.

45,854. That was at the same interview ?—Yes.

45,855. Then before that 47*l.* was scratched out and a 3 written over it to make it 37*l.* ?—Yes.

45,856. If you look at that you will see, I think, a figure has been scratched out and a 3 put over it ? (The document was handed to the witness.)—Yes.

45,857. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you send in two accounts or one ?—No, I believe that is the account.

45,858. And the only one ?—I believe that is the same.

45,859. (The Chief Commissioner.) Tell me, if you please, a very short history of that ; how came Mr. Hart to question the 47*l.*, or to complain ?—He thought the refreshment seemed to be a great deal of money, and I told him we would not have any words about that. I would give him the lot if he liked.

45,860. It shows how particular you ought to be ; you have charged him for committee room and cleaning room, there is not one word about refreshments ?—I know there is not, but that is what there is, there is refreshment in that as well.

45,861. I want to know what Mr. Hart said about it, if you please, Mr. Holdsworth ?—I cannot tell you any more than what I have said just now.

45,862. Did he at once pay it ?—He said if I wished it he would pay the whole amount.

45,863. He said that ; did he say he would ?—Yes.

45,864. How had you made up the 47*l.* ?—It was the amount for refreshments ; he thought it seemed a great deal of money.

45,865. Can you account how the 7*l.* came into that. I am rather curious to know ?—7*l.* ?

45,866. Yes, 37*l.* ; why was it not 30*l.* or 40*l.* ?—Because I returned that in the amount which was had for refreshments. There was the committee room 10*l.*, and I got 5*l.* for cleaning and colouring the house, and taking the bills off ; the remainder was something about 28*l.* or 29*l.* for refreshments.

45,867. Did you ever send in a bill for 30*l.* to Mr. Hart ?—No.

45,868. Are you sure you did not send in a bill for 30*l.* ?—No, quite sure.

45,869. Did you not send in a bill for 30*l.* to Mr. Hart for committee room ?—No.

45,870. You are clear of that ?—I am quite sure of it.

45,871. Just look at that, " William Holdsworth 30*l.*"; you can tell me what it is. (The document was handed to the witness) ?—I do not know about it. never had the money.

45,872. That may have been, may it not, looking at this account ; that may have been part of the 37*l.* That made me ask what the 7*l.* was for. You see you are down in that ; it is not an account sent in. You are down there for 30*l.* ? — I never received that money at all. All I received from Mr. Hart was 37*l.*

45,873. Was your brother a canvasser ?—Well, he went out and canvassed along with me.

The witness withdrew.

T. Page.

THOMAS PAGE recalled and examined.

45,874. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are you ?—An auctioneer and surveyor.

45,875. (The Chief Commissioner.) And assistant overseer ?—No, the overseer.

45,876. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You are responsible for the way in which the lists are made out ? —Yes, I have just been attending to the jury list.

45,877. Never mind the jury list, you are responsible for the voters list ?—Yes.

45,878. And have been for some years ?—For three years.

45,879. You are responsible for them, you and your assistant ?—Yes.

45,880. For whom did you vote at the last election ? —For Mr. Monson.

45,881. Were you on his committee ?—No, I think my name did not appear on his committee.

45,882. You assisted him ?—Yes, I worked for him.

45,883. We understand you went with Mr. Nichols to Burton Hall to wait on Mr. Monson?—Yes.

45,884. Did you receive any money from Mr. Monson?—Yes.

45,885. I mean without passing through Mr. Hart's or Mr. Nichols' hands?—Yes, directly from Mr. Monson himself.

45,886. How much?—113*l.* 3*s.*, I think it was; 50*l.* and 63*l.* 3*s.*

45,887. Had you it by cheque?—Yes, both by cheque.

45,888. When had you the 50*l.* cheque?—I think it was about February 1865.

45;889. So early as that?—Yes.

45,890. What was that for?—It was entirely a professional matter between me and Mr. Monson, and it had nothing at all to do with the election.

45,891. I cannot accept that answer; you and Mr. Nichols had waited upon Mr. Monson in the September before?—Yes.

45,892. I cannot accept your former answer; were you aware at that time that a requisition was getting up for him?—I wrote it about the time; no, before.

45,893. That was long enough before?—It was the August previously; here is a copy of it.

45,894. Then I am afraid Mr. Steer was under a great mistake, he said he was composing it at Nichols'——

(Mr. Steer (interposing.) May I be excused, I said nothing about composing it. Here are the two short-hand writers present, or one of them, and if my evidence is referred to it will be found I said nothing about composing.

45,895. Now, Mr. Page, you say you wrote it?—I wrote it and showed it to Mr. Hanbury and Mr. Phillips, and it was afterwards written on vellum.

45,896. And you copied it?—I did.

45,897. And you put it in circulation?—I did.

45,898. When Mr. Gower decided he would not come forward again?—Yes.

45,899. Then you put it in circulation and got it signed?—Yes, by as many as we could.

45,900. We heard Mr. Nichols received 210*l.*?—I was not here, I have heard that statement.

45,901. 210*l.* for his work in getting that up?—I do not know what his work was.

45,902. Did he take any share in it?—I went down with him into Lincolnshire; the MS. was taken to Lincolnshire, I took it in my pocket.

45,903. What did Mr. Nichols do for the 210*l.*?—I cannot tell you, he was very energetic in assisting and furthering Mr. Monson's plans.

45,904. Can you tell me what Mr. Steer had to do with that?—He was earnest in getting voters, and also for their signatures.

45,905. Shall we say 50*l.* that you received was for your services on that occasion?—It was not.

45,906. Then am I to understand you received nothing for your services in getting that requisition up?—Oh, yes; but the 50*l.* you are speaking of had nothing to do with it whatever.

45,907. What did you get for the requisition?—63*l.* 3*s.* for the requisition and other matters; he reimbursed me in the September of last year.

45,908. How much of the 63*l.* 3*s.* do you think would be paid for the requisition?—I should think 35*l.* It was an arrangement I should be paid for the thing; I was to pay, and he would reimburse me: that was agreed upon. I went down into Lincolnshire to see him, and three or four times I made journeys to London; and my time of course is my money.

45,909. Of course you cannot afford to do that. And then you had several interviews with Mr. Monson in London?—Yes.

45,910. And for your expenses the 35*l.* would be a fair remuneration?—The whole of it was 63*l.* 3*s.*

45,911. You said the 35*l.* for yourself?—Yes, I should think about that, I never kept any particular account.

45,912. What would be the other?—I paid several subscriptions; one was the credit club at Redhill.

45,913. That had nothing at all to do with the election?—Nothing at all; he agreed to pay me, and here is his letter.

45,914. That would be money you paid for him?—He reimbursed me.

45,915. What is the date of it?—The 4th of September.

45,916. I do not want to look at it, but if it is any comfort to you I will do it?—I certainly should wish you to read it.

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) "According to pro-"mise, I enclose you a cheque for 63*l.* 3*s.*, and am "very much obliged," &c. (reading letter).

45,917. That seems to have nothing to do with election matters?—Nothing at all.

45,918. Did you canvass for him?—I worked as hard as I could, for which, as I told you, Mr. Hart paid me fifty guineas; in my former examination I said that.

45,919. That was your regular canvassing fee?—Yes.

45,920. Had you ever canvassed before?—Yes, and I did not get my canvassing fee. I got nothing. I worked first for Mr. Gower.

45,921. Had you made an arrangement?—Nay; the money would not run out.

45,922. Who did you arrange with?—Partly with Mr. Nichols.

45,923. This time you had an arrangement?—I had an arrangement with Mr. Hart, and gave a receipt for the money.

45,924. (The Chief Commissioner.) I was looking for it. I cannot find it?—I most undoubtedly gave it.

45,925. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You told us the 50*l.* had nothing to do with the election?—Nothing at all.

45,926. That it was only private matters. I understand that you pledge yourself, and as an honest man, to say that had nothing to do with the election?—It had nothing to do with it any more than two tradesmen's accounts in the way of their business.

45,927. (The Chief Commissioner.) I will just ask the date of it?—I believe it was in February 1865; I certainly gave a receipt.

45,928. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) It does not appear to have anything to do with the election?—Nothing at all.

45,929. The letter seems to confirm all your expenditure; I suppose it was a just account of what you had expended?—Yes, a very just one.

45,930. And he immediately replied, and sent you that?—Yes.

45,931. Did any monies pass through your hands for the purposes of the election?—None whatever.

45,932. You had no connexion with Mr. Nichols?—Nothing in the way of money; I never received a shilling or disbursed a shilling for him.

45,933. (The Chief Commissioner.) Not on the election?—No.

45,934. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You are a professional man. How long had you been canvassing. I understand you had a regular engagement to go canvassing from Mr. Hart from the 29th of November 1864?—Yes, and I did most earnestly.

45,935. You had not your arrangement, I think, so soon as that?—I can hardly tell you, but I think it was somewhere about January when we began to assemble ourselves and form a kind of nucleus of a committee.

45,936. You think it was as early as January?—I think it was.

45,937. It would be before February?—I think so.

45,938. And you worked from that time to the period of election?—It would be somewhere about that, or the first time Mr. Gower declared he would not come forward, that I commenced canvassing; it would probably be quite independently of the arrangement with Mr. Hart I canvassed.

45,939. When did you commence your regular canvass?—Six weeks before the election.

THIRTIETH DAY.

T. Page.

25 Sept. 1866.

45,940. Did you devote your whole time to it?—Nearly.

45,941. Did you canvass with Mr. Monson at all?—Yes, very often I went about with him; I rode about with him, and walked about with him.

45,942. I suppose Mr. Hart did not canvass much?—We divided our forces where we thought we could do most good.

45,943. Did you canvass with Mr. Richardson?—I did on one occasion I know.

45,944. Did you canvass with Mr. Nichols?—Yes.

45,945. Were you aware money was going?—Of course I was.

45,946. Through Nichols' hands?—I preferred it should go through Mr. Nichols' hands. I never saw it paid. I drew my own inference.

45,947. (The Chief Commissioner.) I wish to ask you one question or two. You interested yourself about this requisition; I suppose you did as much towards it as anybody else did?—I think I did, quite as much, but it is not for me to boast of my own ability.

45,948. I mean the trouble and pains you were at?—Yes.

45,949. Did you do as much?—I do not know how to measure my services.

45,950. Do you think you did more?—I should think so.

45,951. You drew it up, and when drawn up you went out and about to get signatures to it?—Yes.

45,952. Do you believe you did as much as anybody else?—Yes.

45,953. Do you think you did more?—Probably I might, but I do not know how to measure my services.

45,954. Do you think you did as much as Mr. Nichols?—I cannot say what he did. We worked separately; when he was at one place I was at another, we so divided our services.

45,955. If you went out together to work at the same time?—Canvassing together.

45,956. I am not speaking of canvassing entirely; but do you think you did about the election as much as Mr. Nichols did?—I dare say I did.

45,957. Do you think you did more?—I cannot tell you. I have no standard to measure my services with him.

45,958. Do you think you did as much?—I meant to be as earnest.

45,959. May I say, "I think I did as much about "the requisition as Nichols did"?—Yes, I think so.

45,960. For your services in canvassing were you paid a fee by Mr. Hart?—Yes.

45,961. Did Mr. Nichols help you in drawing the requisition up?—He was not present when it was drawn up, but I have no doubt it underwent his supervision.

45,962. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) The draft was your own composition?—Yes.

45,963. (The Chief Commissioner.) So far as that would go, you did more than Nichols, for you drew up the requisition and he did not?—His supervision might be of more value than my draft was.

45,964. He settled it?—Yes.

45,965. Were you employed as long about it as he?—We went to Burton Hall together.

45,966. There was this difference, the requisition was lying at his house for signatures?—It was lying all over the parish; there were three copies. I had one at my house, Mr. Nichols had one at his. It was lying in my house when I was there, and when I went out it was in my pocket.

45,967. (The Chief Commissioner.) We have been told by Mr. Steer at some time it was lying at Mr. Nichols' for signature?—One of the copies was.

45,968. Was one of them lying at your house when not in your pocket?—Yes.

45,969. Did any persons come and sign it?—Only two voters.

45,970. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And I think you went once or twice to London about the requisition?—Yes.

45,971. And was Mr. Nichols with you?—Yes.

45,972. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did Nichols also go alone?—I believe he did.

45,973. Something was said yesterday about a blank cheque. He said it was a cheque lent to you in blank for you to draw for your private account?—It was, I gave him a penny for the stamp.

The witness withdrew.

Adjourned until 11 o'clock the following day.

THIRTY-FIRST DAY.

Wednesday, 26th September 1866.

THIRTY-FIRST DAY.

J. Croucher.

26 Sept. 1866.

JOSEPH CROUCHER sworn and examined.

45,974. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you, Mr. Croucher?—A gardener.

45,975. Were you a voter at the last election in 1865?—Yes, sir.

45,976. What rent?—10*l.*

45,977. How do you pay your rent, by the year?—I paid it by the week.

45,978. How much did you pay a week?—4*s.* 6*d.*

45,979. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Mr. Gower.

45,980. Were you on his committee?—No.

45,981. Who canvassed you for him, and asked you to give your vote?—My brother wrote to me about it to know who I was going to vote for.

45,982. Was he a voter?—No.

45,983. Did you say you belonged to Mr. Gower's committee?—No, sir.

45,984. Were you living here at the time?—No, I was living at Kew.

45,985. How long had you been there?—About three months.

45,986. Three months before the 12th of July?—Yes. I left here about the 1st of May.

45,987. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You left here altogether?—Yes.

45,988. You had given up your house and all?—Yes.

45,989. (The Chief Commissioner.) You came here to vote from Kew?—Yes, I came down the morning of the election.

45,990. The morning of the nomination day or polling day?—The morning of the polling day.

45,991. Did you receive any money before the election?—No.

45,992. Did you receive any after?—No.

45,993. None at all?—No; I was paid my expenses.

45,994. I did not say for what, but did you receive any money? Who paid you your expenses?—My brother, Peter Croucher.

45,995. And he paid you how much?—30*s.*

45,996. When did you go back again?—The same day.

45,997. And who gave him the money?—I don't know.

45,998. I wish you would tell me, I suppose you know pretty nearly?—No, I saw him in the street.

45,999. Who was he working under, what agent?—I believe it was Durrant that gave the money; he was working for Mr. Gower.

46,000. Was that your first election?—Yes, sir.

46,001. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What did your expenses come to?—I think my expenses came to about 1*l.*

46,002. (The Chief Commissioner.) The fare, first of all?—That would be 7*s.* 6*d.*

46,003. Return ticket?—No; I did not take a return ticket. It is 9*d.* to the Waterloo station the single ticket, and 3*s.* here.

46,004. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You put it, I suppose, as having got 1*l.* for all your loss of time?—Well, I did nothing that day.

46,005. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What did you receive per day?—6*s.* wages.

46,006. Well, at most that is all you could have lost?—Yes.

The witness then withdrew.

JAMES WILLIAM SUMNER sworn and examined.

J. W. Sumner.

46,007. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What are you? I am in the Civil Service; clerk to the works, building a new county prison for Government at Woking.

46,008. You do not now reside at Reigate?—I do not.

46,009. How long have you left Reigate?—Three years, I think.

46,010. How long did you reside in Reigate?—Eight years.

46,011. During that time did you take any part in the elections?—I did in one or two.

46,012. Which was your first?—When Mr. Doulton, Mr. Wilkinson, and Mr. Walters were the candidates.

46,013. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you vote at that election?—I did.

46,014. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Who did you vote for?—I almost forget. I voted twice. It was in 1858.

46,015. February 1858?—Yes.

46,016. At that election there was a contest between the Liberal candidates, as to which should stand, and Mr. Doulton gained the ballot?—He did.

46,017. Did you take an active part in that election?—I did, somewhat unfortunately. I took the part of Mr. Walters at that time.

46,018. I will ask you generally without putting any specific question to you. You can tell us what you have to say in respect of that election?—I will as well as I can. Mr. Walters stopped at the "White Hart," and his agent Mr. Cross sent for me. I will speak as accurately as I can, but it is now some seven years since.

46,019. (The Chief Commissioner.) Mr. Cross was the agent for Mr. Walters?—Yes. Mr. Walters was chairman of the South-eastern Railway Company.

46,020. At that time?—Yes.

46,021. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) He was the agent of Mr. Walters?—Yes.

46,022. You went to the "White Hart" and saw Mr. Cross?—Yes.

46,023. What time was this, how long before the election?—I can hardly say.

46,024. What took place between you?—I should tell you a ballot was to take place between the three candidates, Mr. Wilkinson, Mr. Doulton, and Mr. Walters, as to which of the three should stand; and he asked me my opinion as to the policy of speaking to certain parties in order to induce them to vote for Mr. Walters; and I told him my opinion was it would be bad policy to do so.

46,025. (The Chief Commissioner.) You told him you considered it would be bad policy?—Yes; I said, "You may just as well give the town crier 5*s.*, for it "will be all over the town in an hour;" but he persisted in his determination.

46,026. The ballot went on?—Yes; he asked me if I could operate on certain parties.

46,027. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did he say in what way?—He authorized me to pay them.

46,028. (The Chief Commissioner.) Who authorized you?—Mr. Cross.

46,029. What were you to pay the money for?—To vote for Mr. Walters on the ballot.

46,030. Go on with your statement, and make it as concise as you can?—I went to one party in the High-street; a friend of mine.

46,031. Do you remember who it was?—I do.

46,032. What was his name?—I would rather not mention his name unless it is necessary.

(The Chief Commissioner.) We will hear what it was you said first.

(The Witness.) I spoke to him of the matter of the matter of business we had in hand, but he was very indignant, and I came out of the house and did not press it any more. That was all the operation I carried on in the election.

46,033. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Do you know anything more about the ballot?—I know other parties who were operated upon to the same effect, but what they did, of necessity I do not know.

46,034. After the ballot you voted for Mr. Wilkinson?—I voted twice for Mr. Wilkinson, but I forget who the candidates were.

46,035. Mr. Doulton was the only Liberal candidate put up?—Who were his opponents?

46,036. Mr Monson and Sir Henry Rawlinson.—I never voted for Mr. Monson or Sir Henry Rawlinson. I always voted for Mr. Wilkinson. I was the first man that voted for Mr. Wilkinson on his last election I believe.

46,037. Do you know anything more of the election of 1858?—I do not.

46,038. Do you know whether money was spent by either of the candidates for the election?—I know money was spent for the ballot.

46,039. (The Chief Commissioner.) How do you know that, Mr. Sumner?—Because I saw money pass.

46,040. For the ballot?—Yes.

46,041. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Can you give any instance of money passing?—I know money was given to parties to operate.

46,042. From whom did that money come?—Mr. Cross.

46,043. Do you know to whom it was paid?—He gave me some money.

46,044. Do you recollect anybody else he gave money to?—I think to a young man named Holdsworth, a son of a man who kept the "Bell." It is seven years ago, and I only speak from memory.

46,045. You say money came into your hands for that purpose?—Yes.

46,046. What became of it?—I went to the party, but he refused to co-operate, and I, without being egotistical, felt all along these matters were a disgrace.

46,047. What did you do with the money?—I handed part of it back to Mr. Cross.

46,048. What did you do with the rest?—I kept it.

46,049. How much did you receive?—5*l.*; a bag of silver.

46,050. How much did you hand back?—2*l.*

46,051. What became of the other 3*l.*?—I kept it.

THIRTY-FIRST DAY.

J. W. Sumner.

26 Sept. 1866.

46,052. Was it applied to the election purposes?—It was not; I went to this party and others, and they were very indignant.

46,053. You retained 3*l.*?—Yes.

46,054. You told me young Holdsworth received some money?—He was in the same room with me, with Mr. Cross.

46,055. But you retained 3*l.*?—Yes, because I felt indignant; and I felt ——

46,056. Well, never mind that; did you see money pass into Holdsworth's hands?—My memory tells me it did; I saw him have a bag of money like me.

46,057. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Why did you not return it all?—I cannot tell you that, except I felt the matter was illegal, and I imagined I might as well have some of it as anybody else.

46,058. But why did you not return it all?—I cannot tell you more.

46,059. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Who is Mr. Holdsworth?—He was the son of a man who kept the "Bell."

46,060. When you left the town what was his occupation, and where did he live?—He was a carpenter; I met him London some six or seven months ago.

46,061. You do not know whether he lived in the town at the time you left the town?—I do not think he did.

46,062. Do you know of money paid by Mr. Doulton for votes?—I never countenanced Mr. Doulton.

46,063. Are you ignorant of anything about Mr. Doulton as to money matters?—I am ignorant of them, except from hearsay.

46,064. And I suppose the same observation applies to Sir Henry Rawlinson?—I know nothing of it.

46,065. Were you in the subsequent election of October '58, when the Hon. Mr. Monson and Mr. Wilkinson were candidates?—Yes, I voted for Mr. Wilkinson at that time.

46,066. Have you anything to communicate to the Commissioners in respect to that election?—Nothing.

46,067. And shortly after that I suppose you left?—I left about 1863.

46,068. You were present at the election of '59, Mr. Monson and Mr. Wilkinson?—Yes, I voted three times for Mr. Wilkinson; I had something to do with the election in '63; I was here.

46,069. In '63 you voted for Mr. Wilkinson?—I did; I think I was the first or second man who voted.

46,070. That was Wilkinson against Gower?—Yes.

46,071. Were you on Mr. Wilkinson's committee?—I think so.

46,072. Did you take an active part for Mr. Wilkinson?—Somewhat I did, but not particularly.

46,073. Did you canvass?—I did.

46,074. Did any money pass through your hands?—After the election.

46,075. What was it?—A 5*l.* cheque from Mr. James.

46,076. What for?—For travelling expenses, and so on.

46,077. What travelling expenses?—I went to London and Brighton.

46,078. And Mr. James gave you a cheque at Mr. Langridge's at Redhill for 5*l.* Was that the only money you received?—Yes.

46,079. That was something over the actual expenses, I suppose?—Though no money passed betwixt me and the parties, still there is always a little besides that; a little brandy and water, or something like that; 5*l.* more than covered it, I dare say.

46,080. That would be when you were canvassing the voters?—Yes, I brought one down, and had his expenses to pay and so on; that I paid out of my own pocket; I had the 5*l.* some weeks after.

46,081. Who was that?—A man named Bentley; but I think I had the money from other persons as well.

46,082. Did he then come from Bickley?—He came from London.

46,083. Is that the man who came from Chelmsford in Essex?—I got him from London, somewhere in the New-road.

46,084. He was paid twice?—I believe he had money from both sides.

46,085. (The Chief Commissioner.) What is Bentley's Christian name?—I do not know. If I may be allowed to say, previous to the election of '63 I had a conversation with Mr. Nichols.

46,086. With Mr. James Nichols?—Yes, I had a conversation with him at the "Crown" here.

46,087. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) How long was that before the election?—When the canvassing began.

46,088. During the time that the canvassing was going on?—Yes.

46,089. Whilst Mr. Nichols was acting as agent for Mr. Gower?—I knew he was acting for Mr. Gower, and I was in a small degree, perhaps, acting for Mr. Wilkinson, and I met him against the "Crown;" I suggested to him the propriety, if it was possible, of saving the borough from a good deal of disgrace which had been made in it, and I said, "Let us see if nothing "can be done by both parties," and that the blood money, as I term it, should not pass at that election; term it blood money if you like, I believe it began at Mr. Hackblock's election.

46,090. Were you acting on the same side as Mr. Nichols?—No, opposing him.

46,091. Did Mr. Nichols know that you were opposing him?—Quite.

46,092. I do not expect you got much from Mr. Nichols?—I can tell you what he said, if it would be of any use; I thought it was disgraceful so many public houses should be open in the place, and he said at once that it was only on Mr. Wilkinson's side, and they were obliged to resort to that in self-defence.

46,093. (The Chief Commissioner.) That was true, was it?—Well, all the public houses were open.

46,094. Was that true which he said, that they were opened on Mr. Wilkinson's side?—It was true; whatever respect and regard I entertain for Mr. Wilkinson, and I entertained a great respect for him, I must say it is true that was so. I called it to Mr. James' attention, and he said it could not be helped.

46,095. What Mr. Nichols said on that occasion was quite true?—Yes.

46,096. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) He was fighting you with your own weapons?—Yes, and we were fighting them; I think we were both tarred with the same brush.

46,097. You told him you had an interview with Mr. Wilkinson, you told Mr. James so?—I did.

46,098. Then Mr. James said it could not be done without?—Yes.

46,099. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Were you filling your public office in 1858?—No.

The witness withdrew.

T. J. Wall.

Thomas John Wall sworn and examined.

46,100. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are you?—An accountant.

46,101. Are you an elector of the borough?—I am not.

46,102. Did you take any part in any of the recent elections of the borough?—I did in both the last elections, 1863 and 1865.

46,103. If you are not an elector, we will take them in the order in which they occurred. In 1863 with whom were you concerned?—I was concerned with Mr. Wilkinson.

46,104. And under whose orders were you acting?—Under Mr. James.

46,105. Had Mr. Wilkinson himself appointed you, or were you appointed by Mr. James?—I was appointed by Mr. James.

46,106. I suppose you were brought down from London by Mr. James to aid them in the business of the election?—Yes.

46,107. Is that so?—It is.

46,108. Will you tell me about how long you were engaged here, either here or in London, about the business of the election of 1863?—First of all I came down in December 1862, and then I came down again in January 1863.

46,109. And then, I suppose, remained till the election?—I then remained.

46,110. The election was, I believe, on the 6th of February 1863?—It was so.

46,111. Then you came down first in December, and returned, and then came down again in January, and remained?—Yes.

46,112. Had you any opportunity of seeing and observing how the business of the election was conducted on both sides?—I had.

46,113. Now, first with regard to Mr. James, what position did you fill under Mr. James; were you his clerk?—No, what I had to do was, I was sent to different parts of the borough to test the people as regarded Mr. Wilkinson.

46,114. Did you go round in different parts of the borough?—I did.

46,115. Did you go alone, or did anybody accompany you?—I went by myself.

46,116. Now, what district did you frequent most in those visits?—Redhill in the first instance.

46,117. Very well, I will take you to the Redhill district; can you tell me what you did in the Redhill district?—I went in the evening and the daytime round places, to get into conversation with the persons, the electors and non-electors, so as to report as to the proceedings with regard to Mr. Wilkinson.

46,118. We are not inquiring here about the non-electors, but the electors; now can you give me any information as to the electors in the Redhill district?—Yes, that they were remarkably favourable to Mr. Wilkinson, of which I made a report.

46,119. You reported that, I suppose, to Mr. James?—Certainly I did.

46,120. Had you any money entrusted to you at all?—No.

46,121. Do you know anything of the expenditure of monies under Mr. James' direction, or by any of the sub-agents in the election of 1863?—Only from what Mr. James told me himself.

46,122. That is quite evidence, you must tell us what Mr. James told you?—After I had returned, prior to my leaving in December, I felt the feeling so strong in Mr. Wilkinson's favour, that I told Mr. James at once that the election was a certainty, and I believed it would have been a certainty on the part of Mr. Wilkinson, because Mr. Norman Wilkinson carried an immense power in the Redhill district, and there were also for the Miss Wilkinsons in Reigate a very strong feeling.

46,123. Do not introduce more names than you can help?—Then I have to state that I felt perfectly certain that the election was a won election for Mr. Wilkinson. I then returned to London, and in January Mr. James sent to me to come down, and to bring a person with me, if I possibly could, who would be likely to have some influence in the way of speaking and conversing with the working classes.

46,124. Which you did?—Which I did do so.

46,125. Who did you bring down?—I brought down a person of the name of Osborne. When I came down Mr. James said that a change had come over the borough, and he wanted me to run about to see how the parties were acting.

46,126. Can you tell me the date of that, when the change had come over the borough?—That must have been before I came down.

46,127. When he told you is what I want?—That would be about the middle of January.

46,128. When you went up it was very favourable, and when you came down you found a change had come over the borough?—Yes; and then I went round with Mr. Osborne to various places in the borough, and I found that the persons wanted employment.

46,129. I suppose you mean voters?—Voters.

46,130. Confine your attention to voters, we do not want to go beyond the voters; the voters wanted employment?—Yes.

46,131. That is, they wanted to be nominally put down for work and to receive money?—Yes.

46,132. Did you find that rather extensive in the district?—I did.

46,133. What class of persons did they include?—I found it even among the respectable persons when I went about of an evening.

46,134. Well, everybody is respectable?—I mean the class above those persons who have to labour for their daily living.

46,135. You mean above that class?—Yes, above that class.

46,136. And including some shopkeepers?—Yes, because when I went to the "White Hart" and various other places I met with those persons; and I found it quite a different tone of conversation to what there was before.

46,137. They then discussed, I suppose, what they were to have?—It was then become a general conversation, I think, throughout the borough.

46,138. As to money?—Yes. I then attended the first meeting of Mr. Gower at Redhill, where I carried an amendment in opposition.

46,139. Never mind that, what I want to know now is about the expenditure of money. You have given us now a very graphic account of how money came to be a requisition; do you know anything about the expenditure?—I do not; on the day of the election Mr. Wilkinson was, about 12 o'clock, ahead, with a large percentage he had then over Mr. Gower. I saw Mr. James at about half-past 1 or 2 o'clock.

46,140. Do not tell us what Mr. James told you as affecting third parties, except it was affecting yourself or the others engaged; what he said affecting third parties we have no right to hear?—No. Mr. James then said, "The election is very strange, what you "tell me is correct with regard to the difference there "is;" he said, "There are persons now standing out, "and the election will be a question of money."

46,141. At 12 o'clock on the day of the election?—No, between 1 and 2.

46,142. He was ahead at 12?—Yes, and then Mr. Gower was going ahead.

46,143. Creeping up?—Yes, he told me that there were 20 persons——

46,144. (The Chief Commissioner.) He said the election would be carried by money?—Yes, he told me there were 20 voters who were bound together, and wanted a sum of money, which would be at least 20*l.* each, which he did not think it was proper to give to persons in their sphere of life.

46,145. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Now just attend to this question if you please, if you know; do you know, or had you the means of knowing, whether there were any persons (I am not asking for the names at all), but whether there were any persons banded together in that way except from what Mr. James stated?—Simply from what Mr. James said.

46,146. You knew nothing else?—I knew nothing else.

46,147. Was there anything else that you can tell us?—After the election and when the petition——

46,148. Oh, we have not got through the election yet; the election then went on, and ended in a small majority for Mr. Gower?—It did so.

46,149. Now tell me this, you attended closely I suppose upon Mr. James, or about Mr. James, during that part of it. I want to call your attention to a particular incident; do you know yourself of any expenditure of money on the part of Mr. James during that time?—No, I do not.

46,150. I dare say you have read it, we have had an incident described here, a very grave one, though it had a ludicrous interest, that of the gingerbread; that of Mr. Joyes being brought in and invited to

THIRTY-FIRST DAY.

T. J. Wall.

26 Sept. 1866.

search the room or the mantelpiece of the "Swan," and that he received a parcel of gingerbread which contained 100*l.*; do you know anything about it?—I do not.

46,151. He described that as taking place at that time; you did not know it yourself?—No.

46,152. Or did you know where the money came from?—No, I was sent off directly I could be to do the best I could.

46,153. I suppose the "Swan" was what we call the head-quarters of Mr. Wilkinson at that time, where the committee sat?—Yes.

46,154. Can you tell me who were standing upon the day of polling at the "Swan," I mean the committee there?—I cannot, I had naught to do with the committee, I had only to do with Mr. James.

46,155. Did you yourself know of this fact, we have had it in evidence, that there were voters being brought into the passage and paid there after the names were sent in to the committee?—I saw a number of persons there who I presumed to be voters, and I expect that was their errand.

46,156. You saw them?—In the passage of the "Swan."

46,157. On the morning of the election?—On the morning of the election.

46,158. Are you able to say from what you saw whether they had voted at that time or not?—I should think not.

46,159. You would be able to judge whether they were voters?—I should, beeause I have been engaged in elections some time.

46,160. They were in an attitude of expectancy; do you know anything else of the expenditure?—I do not.

46,161. As well as from that which Mr. James had told you about the change which had come over the mind of the electors as to their hopes, or whatever it was, had you any means of information; did you yourself observe it, or had you the means of observing it?—Yes.

46,162. Did that change include the whole district of the borough?—The whole of the borough.

46,163. The entire part?—Yes, at Merstham and every district I found that that was so, that that was the fact; the fact was, that the electors had been well tampered with.

46,164. You did go out when Mr. James told you to go?—Yes.

46,165. Where did you go to?—I went off with Osborne then to see if we could get any of the electors.

46,166. So as to bring them up, those that were out?—Any of the voters who were out.

46,167. Can you tell me any you pounced upon?—There were several. I had a small list then with their names, which I have not now.

46,168. Did you see voters who had not polled, but who had promised?—I saw very few then, because they were up somewhere with a guardian when I had to call on them.

46,169. They were strong?—Indeed they were.

46,170. You did not see any?—I saw two or three that were out.

46,171. Did you carry things with you, or did the other gentleman who went out after the shy voters?—No.

46,172. That is all very proper, but I have a right to ask you; you had no money?—No.

46,173. Or Osborne either, to your knowledge?—No.

46,174. Did you bring any voters back?—No, I did not bring any voters; the one or two whom we saw they promised they would be up and that they would vote.

46,175. They waited for something else?—Very likely, most likely; that was my impression.

46,176. Could you at all give us the names of those persons?—I could not, because I gave the list in directly I returned.

46,177. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You do not remember the names of any one?—No, I could not at the present moment.

46,178. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You would have the list given to you and you would return it back again, you would have the description given to you, and you would send it back again to report your fruitless mission?—I should do so.

46,179. Did that deepen the impression, as you said, that nothing but money would do?—Certainly.

46,180. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) In what district did you go to look for these voters?—I went off to the neighbourhood of Redhill; some of them were lounging at the railway.

46,181. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) The few you met with you were unsuccessful with; was the subject of money started, or did they evade giving you an answer?—They evaded.

46,182. Did they at all give you, by any hints or otherwise, to understand that they might come if they had money?—No; one or two did speak of others having money, and why should they lose their time.

46,183. That is exactly the hint I meant, that is as much as asking for money, speaking like that to a gentleman of your position; they said others had gone up for money, "and why should we not go up for "money ourselves?"—"Why should we not be paid "for loss of time" they said.

46,184. Did they mention what others had got?—I heard various rumours as I went about the borough; I heard of some tradesmen who had received 5*l.* and of the working classes who had been employed at 5*s.* a day.

46,185. You cannot give me the name of those persons?—I cannot at this time.

46,186. Was that the answer you received from those you happened to meet with?—It was.

46,187. Was there any exception to that answer on the day of the polling?—No.

46,188. Of those you happened to meet with?—No.

46,189. I understand you to say you know nothing of the expenditure of any money on the side of Mr. Wilkinson, or on the side of Mr. Gower, yourself?—No.

46,190. Now about the public houses; I will ask you one question; were the public houses open on both sides?—Yes, no doubt of it.

46,191. You were here in the borough and saw it?—Yes.

46,192. In all the districts?—In most of the districts.

46,193. In most of the districts where the voters were?—Yes, the populous districts.

46,194. Were you down at all in 1865?—Yes.

46,195. Were you at all concerned with either of the conducting agents in 1865?—I was sent from London by Mr. James to Mr. Nichols.

46,196. When did Mr. James die?—That would be about the period of the election.

46,197. But Mr. James sent you down?—Yes, in May 1865.

46,198. (The Chief Commissioner.) By whom were you sent?—Mr. James.

46,199. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And put in communication with Mr. Nichols?—With a communication to Mr. Nichols.

46,200. And by that communication you were put in communication with Mr. Nichols?—I was.

46,201. Did you remain long in the borough in 1865?—I did not, for I had to make my report to Mr. James as to how I found the borough.

46,202. He died in November last year?—It would be after November, the election; November, I think, would be the time of his death, after the registration; he attended the East Middlesex registration.

46,203. Then you made your report of the state of the borough to Mr. James?—I did.

46,204. How long did you remain in the borough, in Reigate, when you came down, about how long from the first night?—From the first night I remained down altogether two days.

46,205. Two days ?—Two days and two nights.

46,206. Did you go about the borough ?—Yes.

46,207. Did you go into the different districts of the borough ?—Yes.

46,208. Then you made your report ?—Yes.

46,209. Did you see voters ?—I went to the house the voters used.

46,210. What did you find then with regard to the voters ?—I found then what I reported, that Mr. Monson had not the slightest chance, and that the agents were perfectly reckless in their manner of doing work.

46,211. (The Chief Commissioner.) That is what you observed ?—Yes, and what I reported.

46,212. Never mind what you reported; what did you observe yourself, if you please ?—That the agents of Mr. Monson were remarkably reckless in their conduct and in their talking. I saw Corderoy and others about, and I could see that they had monies to spend, and it was perfectly reckless on the part of Mr. Monson; there were really no business habits among the persons who had Mr. Monson in hand.

46,213. They were reckless, in what way ?—In spending money.

46,214. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) A want of organisation ?—In spending money at public houses.

46,215. A want of organisation ?—Yes, they were all at sixes and sevens.

46,216. At the time you went money was being expended ?—Yes.

46,217. By those, as you say, who had Mr. Monson in their hands ?—Yes.

46,218. That was what you observed in May, early in May ?—Yes.

46,219. Can you tell me what time of the month you came down, because it will be important with reference to one or two transactions ?—In the early part it must have been.

46,220. Before the Derby week ? — Before the Derby week.

46,221. Did you return at all to the borough after that ?—I did not after, it was perfectly hopeless.

46,222. I want this cleared up; I understand you came down to make inquiries, upon Mr. James' instructions, as to what was Mr. Monson's chance ?—I did.

46,223. You had no communication yourself with Mr. Monson personally ?—No.

46,224. Had you any communication with Mr. James afterwards, with regard to the Reigate election ?—Only to see him and make my report with regard to the state of the borough.

46,225. You had no communication except sending your report to Mr. James ?—No.

46,226. Do you know yourself what interest Mr. James had, or what object he had, in sending you down ?—Yes; Mr. James was then engaged on the Wilkinson election; he had been engaged on the Reigate election formerly; he wanted to know the exact state of the borough, and wanted to know the feeling, and he sent me down.

46,227. He wanted to ascertain the feeling as regards Mr. Monson ?—Certainly.

46,228. Had you instructions to ascertain the feelings of the borough as regards Mr. Gower ?—No.

46,229. But did you, as a fact, know from your own observation, whether money was being expended at that time on behalf of Mr. Gower ?—I came to that conclusion.

46,230. From what you saw among the electors ?—From what I saw, certainly. They were acting in a very systematic manner, were the Gower party.

46,231. For example, had you an interview with Mr. Job Apted ?—No.

46,232. Did you see any of the heads of the Gower party ?—I met some of them when I was walking about.

46,233. You judged from what you saw that they were acting systematically and expending money ?—Yes.

46,234. Is there anything else, Mr. Wall ?—No, save this; when the petition was withdrawn from the House I was in the lobby of the House of Commons.

46,235. You mean in 1863 ?—Yes, I was there then.

46,236. That was a petition on the part of Mr. Wilkinson against Mr. Gower, charging bribery ?—Yes.

46,237. Did Mr. Wilkinson claim the seat in that petition ?—I did not see the petition.

46,238. From what you know did he claim the seat for himself ?—No doubt.

46,239. Now tell us what you were going to say ?—I was told then of the compromise. Mr. James told me of the compromise, that Mr. Gower was not again to present himself to Reigate.

46,240. Did he tell you why ? We want to know the reason of the compromise ?—That I had from Mr. Dann.

46,241. I will not hear any information except from Mr. James. Mr. James was the conducting agent for Mr. Wilkinson ?—Yes, he was.

46,242. Was he engaged in the petition ?—He was.

46,243. Now, tell me, not as to what Mr. Gower had done, but tell me the reasons he assigned for the compromise ?

The Commissioners consulted, and it was decided not to take an answer to the question.

46,244. I do not want to go into the terms of the compromise in any way. The gentleman who will give us the real explanation of it is not here. Is there anything else, Mr. Wall ?—No.

46,245. (The Chief Commissioner.) I want to ask you a question about 1865, Mr. Wall. You came down here, by Mr. James' desire, about the 8th or 9th of May to see the condition of the borough ?—Yes.

46,246. Can you tell me a little more closely what he sent you down for, if you can recollect; what directions he gave you. To see what was the state of the borough; in reference to what ?—To Mr. Monson.

46,247. Did he mention his name ?—He did so.

46,248. Was it to inquire into the state of the borough in case he might wish to send down any candidate, or was it to inquire as to the state of the borough in case he wanted to send down Mr. Monson in particular ?—Mr. Monson only.

46,249. His name was mentioned ?—Yes.

46,250. Do you know yourself what relation there was at that time between Mr. James and Mr. Monson ?—I do not.

46,251. Do you know whether there was any or not ?—I do not know whether there was any.

46,252. Do you know whether there was subsequently ?—No.

46,253. You do not know whether any relationship was entered upon afterwards ?—I do not. I had naught to do with the election after my return and making my report.

46,254. You had nothing to do with the Reigate election after the month of May ?—None.

46,255. Then you do not know of any relation existing between Mr. Monson and Mr. James after that ?—No, I do not.

46,256. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Although you do not know that Mr. Monson did, do you know who instructed Mr. James ? — That I cannot say, though I can give a shrewd guess.

46,257. Is that guess of yours founded upon facts known to yourself ?—Oh, yes.

46,258. Then, we must have it. Who instructed Mr. James ?—I should presume ——

46,259. I mean facts, arising from facts known to yourself ?

46,260. (The Chief Commissioner.) You had better give us the facts on which you found the presumption ?

THIRTY-FIRST DAY.

T. J. Wall.

26 Sept. 1866.

—Only from knowing that Mr. James was originally acting under the instructions of a person.

46,261. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) With reference to this election?—With reference to elections generally.

46,262. Was it with reference to this?—I do not know with regard to this one; I do not know whether he was or not.

46,263. Is that the only reason?—That is the only reason.

46,264. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was Mr. James a kind of London general agent for elections?—Yes.

46,265. On the side of the Liberal party?—On the side of the Liberal party. He had Middlesex, he had Westminster, he had Surrey.

46,266. (The Chief Commissioner.) You mean he took an active part in those elections? You do not know what his office was?—He was the agent for the Liberal party.

46,267. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You understand my term "general agent"?—Yes, he was the advertised agent.

46,268. For general information?—For the particular elections to which I alluded, such as Middlesex, Westminster, and others.

46,269. But you know this; there are some agents in London who act as a kind of general agent; for instance Mr. Roberts, who took a very wide extent of country?—Yes, I am aware that Mr. Roberts does.

46,270. Was Mr. James an agent of that class?—No. Mr. James at the last election had, I presume, three or four in which he was acting direct himself; and then he was acting with others.

46,271. What was it brought Mr. James' attention to the borough of Reigate in 1865? He had left it in 1863?—That I do not know.

46,272. That is the very general knowledge we want to get before you can tell us Mr. James' connexion with the borough?—He sent for me; I went and saw him. "Now" he said, "you must go down "this evening to Reigate; go and see how the land "stands."

46,273. Was that the first time you had an interview with Mr. James in reference to the election of 1865?—It was.

46,274. Had you been with Mr. James before at all?—Oh, yes.

46,275. On other matters?—Yes; I had been with him before that time. I had been engaged with him on the Westminster election.

46,276. I mean recently?—I was at that time.

46,277. Were you acting in his office?—No, not in his office; mine was always outdoor work.

46,278. For election purposes?—Yes.

46,279. Then does that fact bring to your knowledge that Mr. James had some specific instructions with regard to Reigate?—I can only presume so; I cannot say for certainty.

46,280. (The Chief Commissioner.) You think a man would not have sent you down to Reigate unless he had been instructed?—Certainly not.

46,281. We all presume that, and of course you cannot presume that more than others?—No.

46,282. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Have you any other grounds (don't tell me the name) for suggesting the name of the person who instructed Mr. James, other than what you have just told us?—None.

46,283. (The Chief Commissioner.) I want to ask you one question more. Go back in your mind to the election in 1863, when you went to the "Swan," and saw Mr. James, and he told you that 20 voters were banded together and would not vote unless they got such a sum of money as would amount to 20*l.* each. On that occasion did you hear anything about railway voters?—I did not.

46,284. Or anything in particular at any time about that?—No.

46,285. Do you know which way they voted, what are called the railway men?—I do not. I know they were remarkably favourable to Mr. Wilkinson.

46,286. And they did vote for Mr. Wilkinson?—They were remarkably favourable towards him.

46,287. Are you aware of any money going to them at that time?—I am not.

46,288. Had you any information at all as to who these 20 men were?—I had not.

46,289. Not as to their names. But you said Mr. James said it was not proper to give so much money to men in their condition in life. That was your answer. Did he specify anything more?—No.

46,290. He did not specify what their condition in life was?—No.

46,291. Do you remember his putting accurately that expression, "It is not right to give so much "money to men in their condition of life"?—Those were the words which he made use of.

46,292. Or at any rate the meaning?—Yes.

46,293. What did you understand from that?—That these men were waiting and getting their price up, so as to vote at the last moment and get the most they could.

46,294. Did you suppose that the price of 20*l.* a head, supposing it came to that, was too high for such men?—Yes.

46,295. Did you understand anything further than that?—No.

46,296. Well, there is another inference very obvious from it. You did not understand anything further than that?—No.

46,297. You knew nothing about money being paid away on that occasion?—I did not.

46,298. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You say your duty was to attend upon Mr. James in 1863?—I had not to attend upon him. What I had to do was to go about and see how the feeling was as to the candidates.

46,299. I mean on the day of polling?—On the day of polling? I had a roving commission on the day of polling.

46,300. Then you were about the borough, wherever you thought you could be of service?—Yes.

46,301. Then you were not much with Mr. James at the committee room?—No.

46,302. Did he occupy his time chiefly at the committee room, so far as you know?—I presume he did.

46,303. Were you from time to time visiting the committee room where Mr. James was?—Very seldom I did that.

46,304. Did you go to the committee room between 1 and 2, when you told Mr. James there were 20 voters holding out?—I did not tell him so; he told me so.

46,305. Where was he when he told you?—He told me at the committee room.

46,306. At the "Swan"?—At the "Swan."

46,307. Did you see Frederick Joyes on that day?—Yes.

46,308. Did you see him after Mr. James had told you there were these 20 men holding out?—No, I did not.

46,309. Did you mention to any of the supporters of Mr. Wilkinson the fact that there were 20 voters holding out?—Certainly not.

46,310. Not to any of them?—No.

46,311. Not to Mr. Joyes?—No. It would have been an injury.

46,312. And you had your information from Mr. James?—Yes. You see it was after 1 o'clock that the great mischief was done. There was great delay in regard to the issuing of the writ.

46,313. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) During your intercourse with Mr. James, and while you were upon the particular subject of your visit in 1865, was any name mentioned by Mr. James to you?—Only that of Mr. Monson.

46,314. No other name of an intermediate party?—None.

46,315. I mean while you were upon the very subject of the election?—None; no other name was mentioned to me.

46,316. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Now that you have had time to think, Mr. Wall, let me ask you a question before you leave the box. Do you now recollect any of the names of the persons, one of those 20 voters who was holding out?—I do not, because I was never told the names of them, or who they were.

46,317. I thought you said you had seen a list?—Oh, no.

46,318. Did Mr. James tell you how long he had received that information, that there were 20 voters hanging out?—He did not.

The witness withdrew.

George Hewitt sworn and examined.

G. Hewitt.

46,319. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you, Hewitt?—A whitesmith.

46,320. Do you live here?—No.

46,321. Where?—In London.

46,322. In 1865 were you a whitesmith here?—Yes.

46,323. What rent did you pay for your house?—7*s.* 6*d.* a week for house and shop.

46,324. Whom did you vote for?—Mr. Gower.

46,325. Were you on his committee?—Yes.

46,326. Who put you on?—I was put on at the first general meeting.

46,327. Who asked you to go for Mr. Gower in particular?—No one before Mr. Gower himself.

46,328. But after that; were you not acting under any of his sub-agents?—Yes, I was.

46,329. Who was it principally?—Mr. Penfold and Mazden.

46,330. Did you pay away any money during the election to anybody for them?—No.

46,331. What money did you receive yourself?—I received 2*l.* in November.

46,332. From whom?—Mr. Penfold.

46,333. Anything else did you receive?—No.

46,334. You received nothing before the election for yourself?—No.

46,335. And only that 2*l.* from Penfold afterwards?—Yes.

46,336. You are sure there was nothing else?—Quite sure.

46,337. Did you send in any bill for anything at all?—No.

46,338. Had you been concerned in the election of 1863?—Yes.

46,339. Whom did you vote for in 1863?—Mr. Wilkinson.

46,340. Were you on his committee?—Yes.

46,341. I suppose you were living here then?—Yes, at Mead-vale.

46,342. What money did you receive in 1863?—Altogether about 4*l.* 10*s.*

46,343. Who from?—Ephraim Rose.

46,344. Was that after or before the election?—I had 1*l.* before and the rest after, as near as I can recollect.

46,345. I dare say you are correct about the sum?—I am correct about the sum.

47,346. Had you been in any previous election to that?—No.

46,347. Had you done anything in 1865 besides having your name put on the committee?—I was engaged.

46,348. In doing what?—In canvassing and going round of an evening.

46,349. Did you succeed in getting any votes for Mr. Wilkinson?—I don't know. I suppose it was owing to some three or four of us that he got the majority of them in Mead-vale to side with us.

46,350. Are you able to tell me of any vote you got yourself, any man whose vote you secured for Mr. Wilkinson?—No, I am not at present, not to say I got it myself.

The witness withdrew.

James Parker sworn and examined.

J. Parker.

46,351. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you vote at the last election?—No, in 1863.

46,352. Have you left here then?—I have left Redhill.

46,353. Since 1863?—Since 1863.

46,354. And you did not vote in 1865?—No.

46,355. In 1863 what rent did you pay for your house?—18*l.* a year.

46,356. What were you?—Seedsman, greengrocer, and fruiterer.

46,357. For whom did you vote in 1863?—Mr. Gower.

46,358. Were you on his committee?—Yes.

46,359. You canvassed for him?—Yes.

46,360. In what way?—By speaking to different friends that I knew had a vote, and saying they should vote for Mr. Gower.

46,361. Just as you met them in the street, casually?—Yes.

46,362. You voted, and did you get paid?—I got paid afterwards.

46,363. Who paid you?—Mr. Apted.

46,364. Which Apted?—Job Apted.

46,365. How much were you paid?—I was paid 5*l.* for the whole time.

46,366. How much time did you give?—From the beginning of the election to the end.

46,367. You told me you did nothing but merely ask a few friends as you met them in the street?—Yes, in the evening. I was always about. I was about every day.

46,368. After your shop was closed?—Before my shop was closed. I went round in the morning, in the morning before dinner.

46,369. Then did you take your walk and meet your friends?—Yes, I used to walk then.

46,370. How much time did you occupy in walking about and meeting your friends?—I don't know, I am sure; perhaps two or three hours some days.

46,371. Did you call at anybody's house?—No, I never called at anybody's house except the fishmonger's house, shop close to me. That is Mr. Miles.

46,372. Was he on the committee too?—Yes.

46,373. It was not much use calling on Mr. Miles if he was on the committee?—That was before; he was not on the committee at first.

46,374. Then did you persuade him to go on the committee?—After I had talked to him a time or two his name was put on.

46,375. Then he was always next door to you?—No, about two minutes' walk.

46,376. But that did not interfere very much with your time?—No.

46,377. That was the only house you called at?—The only house I called at.

46,378. And the others were friends that you casually met in the street?—Yes.

46,379. Were you at the nomination?—Yes, I was.

46,380. Did you charge anything for coming to the nomination?—No.

46,381. That was a portion of your time?—That was a portion of my time.

46,382. I suppose that was taken into account in the 5*l.*?—Yes.

46,383. And the polling day?—That was all in the 5*l.*

46,384. How much of the 5*l.* did you put for the nomination and polling day?—I do not know. I never thought anything about that, because that was the agreement. I was to have 5*l.* to get all the voters I could for Mr. Gower.

THIRTY-FIRST DAY.

J. Parker.

26 Sept. 1866.

46,385. When was the agreement made?—That I cannot say. It was quite the early part, when there was a talk about the election.

46,386. Was the sum mentioned?—Yes, at the time.

46,387. 5*l.*?—Yes. I was to get all the voters I could.

46,388. Who was the agreement made with?—With Mr. Job Apted.

46,389. Did you take any part in previous elections?—No.

46,390. That was your only election?—That was the only election.

The witness withdrew.

F. Mayall.

FRANCIS MAYALL sworn and examined.

46,391. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are you, Mayall?—A mason.

46,392. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes, I did so.

46,393. What rent did you pay for your house out of which you voted?—Well, it has been 6*s.* 6*d.*, but I think the good lady lowered it a little.

46,394. For whom did you vote?—Mr. Monson this time.

46,395. Were you on Mr. Monson's committee?—Not much.

46,396. Were you on?—Not very much. I was on it perhaps a week or nine days. Something of that sort.

46,397. Who put you on it?—Mr. Corderoy.

46,398. He was, I think, in the building line?—Oh, we worked together before now.

46,399. Mr. Corderoy had some money going; what did he give you?—I voted free. I never received anything until after I came out.

46,400. That is the way to put it. What did you get after you came out?—Oh, "a fiver."

46,401. From whom?—I think it was from him. I was going to ask him to have a glass with me. He was missing; I could not see him when I looked round.

46,402. Who gave you the "fiver"?—Corderoy.

46,403. Where?—At the new public house near the station. I never could get hold of the right sign.

46,404. Well, we will take it, as you have described it, geographically, "the new public house near the "station." At Redhill?—At Redhill.

46,405. Now, you voted in 1863?—I voted once before that for Mr. Wilkinson.

46,406. Were you on his committee?—Yes.

46,407. What did you get for that?—I was on the committee three weeks, and I received the fee which was allowed by Mr. Wilkinson, the plumber; John Wilkinson, I believe. Nothing more.

46,408. What did you get?—Wilkinson came to me the other day and asked me what I did get. I said, "You ought to know;" and I told him I did not know whether it was 5*s.* a day or 5*s.* 6*d.*

46,409. You were paid every day for three weeks?—Three weeks. I attended of an evening and three or four times a day.

46,410. We will take it at 5*s.* 6*d.* Were Sundays included, do you know?—I do not think we did much business on Sundays; we were at work all the week.

46,411. But I mean in the pay; did they count six days or seven days?—Six days we always worked.

46,412. That would be 33*s.* a week, and for three weeks that would be 4*l.* 19*s.*; and you say you got 5*l.*?—Oh, yes, you are right.

46,413. Were you acting under Mr. Wilkinson? Did he put you on the committee?—Yes; I tried all I could to get voters, but I think they all run away from me.

46,414. I mean, was it Mr. Wilkinson who put you on the committee?—That is it.

46,415. He put you on the committee. You tried a number of men, and they all ran away from you?—That's it. I could not keep them together.

46,416. You had no money?—That's it, I had no money.

46,417. Were you paid weekly or after the election?—Every week, and two days after the election; I think it was on the Saturday evening after the election I was paid, which I did not expect anything for the last week, but Mr. Wilkinson said, "Oh, yes, "you'll be paid."

46,418. Do you recollect on what day of the week the polling took place?—I think it was the Thursday.

46,419. Had you voted before?—No, not in my time.

46,420. Were you at all canvassed on the part of Mr. Gower's side before Corderoy got hold of you?—Well, I was asked, but I did not attend.

46,421. Who asked you?—Mr. Featherstone asked me if I could come forward, and there was no answer given, and I did not attend above twice.

46,422. Were you offered anything?—No; they said there was none.

46,423. They said there was none, and that would not suit you?—We asked a little for our trouble, but we were not covetous, when we come to lose time running about, and one thing and another.

46,424. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Which Wilkinson was it?—John Wilkinson, the plumber.

46,425. John Wilkinson, Station-road?—Yes.

46,426. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Do you know whether Mr. Wilkinson the plumber had paid other men besides you?—I had seen him about, but I do not know whether he was paying them or not.

46,427. With whom did you see him?—We should not mention the name of the dead you know; no further I will not go.

46,428. Have you no other name to mention? Do you know of any person alive now that you saw him with?—No.

46,429. Do you know under whom Mr. Wilkinson the plumber was acting?—I do not know.

46,430. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You do not know who supplied him with the money?—No, I do not.

The witness withdrew.

J. Wood.

JAMES WOOD sworn and examined.

46,431. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Were you on the register at the last election?—Yes.

46,432. Did you vote?—Yes.

46,433. What were you?—A painter.

46,434. What rented house do you occupy?—22*l.* a year.

46,435. Are you a master painter?—No, a journeyman.

46,436. For whom did you vote?—For Mr. Mnoson.

46,437. Were you on his committee?—No.

46,438. Did you receive anything on account of the election?—Not a farthing.

46,439. Did any money pass through your hands?—No.

46,440. Did you take an active part in the election of 1865?—No.

46,441. Did you vote in 1863?—Yes.

46,442. For whom?—Mr. Wilkinson.

46,443. Did you take an active part in the election?—No.

46,444. Did any money pass through your hands or come into your hands?—No.

46,445. Not on account of the election at all?—No.

46,446. Do you know Corderoy?—I do.

46,447. Did you have any transaction with Corderoy with reference to the election?—Not that I am aware of; if I did I have forgotten it.

46,448. What is your address, Mr. Wood?—Stanley-cottage, Station-road, Redhill.

46,449. Is there any other James Wood there?—Not that I am aware of.

46,450. Did you have any conversation with Corderoy with reference to the election?—Yes, I think I did.

46,451. And with reference to your vote?—Yes, I did.

46,452. Was any promise made by Corderoy with reference to your vote?—There was.

46,453. In the shape of money?—There was a promise that I should receive something.

46,454. What was it?—He did not tell me what it was.

46,455. Have you received anything from him?—Not that I am aware of; if I have I have forgotten it. If I had received anything I don't think I should have forgotten it.

46,456. The promise was made before voting?—Before voting.

46,457. On what day was the promise made?—I cannot tell you; according to my memory I cannot recollect.

46,458. (The Chief Commissioner.) What were you to receive?—I really cannot recollect what it was.

46,459. What did he promise you?—He promised that I should receive something, but what it was I can't recollect.

46,460. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was he working with you then?—Yes.

46,461. (The Chief Commissioner.) You were to receive something, of what kind?—I am sure I can't tell you. He said he would "make it all right" with me, that's all.

46,462. For what?—Why, for my vote, I suppose he meant.

46,463. And you say you have no recollection of receiving anything from him?—I have not.

46,464. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Or any amount being mentioned?—No.

46,465. (The Chief Commissioner.) What did he give you?—Not anything at all.

46,466. You mean that? You did not state that positively?—He never gave me anything that I am aware of. I do not recollect anything in the shape of money, nothing of the kind.

46,467. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Or in money's worth?—No.

46,468. Could he have paid you any sum of money and you have forgotten it?—I think not.

46,469. Now, then, I will tell you; yesterday he said he had paid you a sum of money, 2*l.*?—Paid me?

46,470. Yes?—I must contradict it. I never received it.

46,471. (The Chief Commissioner.) But you have not said that to-day, Mr. Wood?—I never received the 2*l.* from Corderoy.

46,472. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) We took the address he gave, which turns out to be your address; "James Wood, Station-road." That is the only person of the name of James Wood on Station-road?—I believe it is.

46,473. Therefore he could not refer to anybody else but you, and you say that is not true?—I am certain of it, I never received it. If I recollected receiving it I would tell you in a minute, but I do not.

46,474. Can you say positively that you never received 2*l.*?—I can say that I never did receive the 2*l.*

46,475. That you can say positively?—Yes, I can.

46,476. (The Chief Commissioner.) Why are you more positive now than you were two minutes ago? Two minutes ago you could only say that you could not remember it. What makes you more positive now?—You said two sovereigns. I say I never did receive two sovereigns.

46,477. From whom did you receive the two sovereigns?—Not from any one.

46,478. You began by saying, "I have no recollection of receiving anything from him"?—No more I have.

46,479. Then I suppose you have no means of speaking more positively now than when you made that answer?—I know I did not receive anything from him.

46,480. But you did not know it a short time ago; you only said you had no recollection of it?—I could not recollect receiving any; if I had I should have named it.

46,481. I quite agree. Is it not possible it may have escaped your recollection although you received it?—It might be, but I think if I received it I should not have forgotten it.

46,482. Do you recollect receiving any money at all after the election from Mr. Corderoy on any other matter?—No.

46,483. Nor before the election?—No.

46,484. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Were you working as a fellow workman with Corderoy?—Yes.

46,485. Not under him, or he under you?—No.

46,486. Then you had no business transactions with Corderoy?—I was working with him for Mr. Killick.

46,487. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He has given your name as one of the men that he has paid 2*l.* to; now, I am afraid your memory sometimes is not good?—No, I think it is not. But I do not recollect his giving me two sovereigns. If he had I think I should have recollected it.

46,488. Your memory is not good, yet you think that if two sovereigns had been given to you you would recollect it?—I think I should, most likely.

46,489. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What are your wages a day?—4*s.* they have been.

46,490. Paid weekly?—I was, when I worked for Mr. Killick; I worked for him 13 years.

46,491. You see two sovereigns coming into your possession at one time would be a large sum at your rate of earnings?—I should like to have seen it.

46,492. And if you had received it would it have impressed itself upon your mind, when your earnings were 24*s.* a week?—I should have pressed it into my pocket if I had had the chance.

46,493. Never mind about that, I want to test your recollection, to see how far your memory will help you. It is very nearly double your week's earnings?—Yes.

46,494. Taking that fact, are you able to say, positively, one way or the other, whether you received that two sovereigns, or not?—I can say I never received it, not from my knowledge; I can't say further. If I had received it, and it had been in my mind, I would have named it in a moment.

THOMAS CORDEROY recalled and examined.

T. Corderoy.

46,495. (The Chief Commissioner.) You told me yesterday, among other persons, that you paid a man named James Wood of Station-road, a painter, a sum of 2*l.*?—Yes.

46,496. Is that Mr. Wood (pointing to witness)?—That is Mr. Wood.

46,497. Where was it you paid him?—1*l.* in Mr. Killick's shop, and 1*l.* in the "Grapes."

46,498. I think you told me that before?

(The witness Wood.) You paid me 1*l.* in Mr. Killick's shop! (laughing incredulously).

THIRTY-FIRST DAY.

T. Corderoy.

26 Sept. 1866.

46,499. (The Chief Commissioner.) I dare say, Mr. Wood, that will help you. You spoke to the best of your recollection?—Yes, I did so; but I never received it.

46,500. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Neither in Mr. Killick's shop nor at the "Grapes"?—No, nor at the "Grapes."

The witness Wood stood aside, and Corderoy took his place in the box.

46,501. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Corderoy, you recollect the circumstance of the receipt yesterday?—Well, I have spoken to Mr. Nichols about it.

46,502. You recollect it; I only call it to your attention now?—Yes.

46,503. Therefore be cautious. Who was present when you paid this man 1*l.* in Killick's shop?—I don't think any one.

46,504. No one was present?—No.

46,505. Who was present when you paid him at the "Grapes"?—No one. Directly after he had the money I know he went and paid a man half a sovereign out of it.

46,506. Did you make any memorandum of when you paid this man the sovereign?—No.

46,507. Did you make any memorandum of when you paid the second sovereign?—No; some one else knows that I did pay him.

46,508. Who?—Frederick Killick.

46,509. I asked you whether any one was present?—He was not present, but I mentioned it to him.

46,510. Don't tell me what you mentioned to Frederick Killick. I asked you, was any one present. When did you pay him the sovereign, in Mr. Killick's shop?—Four or five weeks, on the Saturday night, before the election. It was while I was working, before I left off work, for Mr. Killick to go on day work, canvassing.

46,511. Four or five weeks before the election?—Yes; I will tell you the bargain that was made.

46,512. Very well; what was the bargain?—The bargain was; when he was working in the shop, I said, "Well, Wood, what are you going to do about this "election?" He said, "I don't know." I said, "If "you will come on to work for us I'll give you 1*l.* a "week." He said, "Very well." As that might be on the Thursday, I received my money on the Saturday from Mr. Killick, and I gave Wood 1*l.* from the wages I received from Mr. Killick.

46,513. You paid him out of your own money?—Yes.

46,514. Out of your own wages?—Yes.

46,515. Then the agreement was that you were to pay him 1*l.* for four weeks up to the election?—It was not stated then when the election was to be.

46,516. No; but 1*l.* a week up to the election?—1*l.* until the election. Then the next Saturday night I paid him another 1*l.*

46,517. Was that out of your own monies?—No, that was some money that I had received from Nichols.

46,518. But you know you had received monies from Nichols long before?—That is right; but then I paid him as I was in the shop.

46,519. But you had monies of Mr. Nichols in your hand at that time?—I had; but then I had this very money that I had taken.

46,520. You had considerable sums of money of Mr. Nichols at that time?—Yes, but, as I stated, at that time I gave him this.

46,521. Where was Mr. Nichols' money?—It might be at home.

46,522. It might have been. Where was Mr. Nichols' money at that time? You know?—It might have been in my pocket; I might have had the money in my pocket.

46,523. Mr. Nichols' money might have been in your pocket, and yet you paid him out of your wages?—Just as I received it from the desk I gave it to him on that Saturday night.

46,524. And you paid him the second out of what? Out of the money I received from Mr. Nichols.

46,525. And nobody there at all?—No.

46,526. And you were to pay him 1*l.* a week?—Yes.

46,527. Why did you not continue to pay him 1*l.* a week?—He said, "The election is coming off in a "fortnight, and I ought to have 5*l.*" I said, "Look "here, a bargain's a bargain, you must substantiate "what you agreed to." He said, "Very well." I said, "You shall have the 1*l.* a week on the polling "morning."

46,528. No, no, there is another week before that? I never paid him more.

46,529. Why? A bargain is a bargain, and there were three weeks to be paid; why didn't you pay him the third week?—He never came to me for it.

46,530. Did he not come to the shop as before?—He was at work at that time.

46,531. And you continued to work with him?—No, I was not at work in the shop, I was at work canvassing.

46,532. Why didn't you pay him the third sovereign? Because he said he would not vote for Mr. Monson without he was to have 5*l.*; there was to be four weeks, and he was not agreeable to do that.

46,533. Is that it; that he went away from his bargain? Is that the reason?—Yes, that's the very reason.

46,534. Is that the reason you assigned to me first?—Yes, I said I agreed to give him 1*l.* a week. When he found out that the election was coming sooner than the five weeks would be, he objected.

46,535. He objected to what?—He objected to voting for Mr. Monson.

46,536. When?—I should think the week before the election.

46,537. Then why did you not pay him the third week?—Because he said he would not vote for Mr. Monson for the 4*l.*; he could get more the other side.

46,538. Did you go and pay him the third 1*l.*?—No, I did not.

46,539. Why didn't you?—I don't know why I didn't, I know I went over for him in the morning.

46,540. When did you go over for him? in the morning?—The polling morning.

46,541. Where did you meet him?—I didn't see him at all; he was not at home.

46,542. Did you go for him?—I went to the house, he was not at home. I asked Frederick Killick, "Go "and see if Wood is going to poll."

46,543. Did you see him?—No, I did not.

46,544. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you send Killick to him?—Yes.

46,545. Which Killick was that?—Frederick Killick.

46,546. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) When was that?—After I had been.

46,547. When was that?—On the polling morning; I went over there with my trap about 9 o'clock.

46,548. Then you sent Killick to him?—Yes.

46,549. I suppose you had told Killick at that time that you had given him the two sovereigns?—Yes, I did, and he knows it well when I paid him.

46,550. Do not tell me what he knows, because he was not there?—I told him of it.

46,551. Did you tell Killick that he had to get two sovereigns more?—Yes, I did; I said he would have to have 1*l.* a week.

46,552. Did you tell Killick that if he had 3*l.* more he would vote?—I do not know that I did.

46,553. According to your agreement with him, if he was to receive 3*l.* more he would vote?—Yes.

46,554. Did you tell Killick that?—I do not know that I did; I would not be answerable that I did.

46,555. Did you give Killick any money to give him?—No.

46,556. Why? You had money in your pocket that you had received from Mr. Nichols?—I did not give him any money.

46,557. Why didn't you?—I don't know why I didn't.

46,558. You had a considerable sum of money in your pocket; why didn't you?—I don't know why I didn't. I went over early in the morning, and if he had voted I should have paid him, according to the agreement, 1*l.* a week.

46,559. Who brought him to the poll?—I don't know. I told Killick the reason. I said, "I know "what he's waiting for; he's waiting back till 1 "o'clock for a lot." About that receipt of Mr. Hart's, I will explain it to you.

46,560. (The Chief Commissioner.) If you like to say anything about it you can?—I should. I went straight to Mr. Nichols' after that about this receipt of money to Mr. Hart.

46,561. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) After what? After my examination; because I could not make it out then. I did not know that I signed that receipt when I told you. Mr. Nichols asked me to sign that receipt, and of course I thought it was for Mr. Nichols; I never knew it was going to Mr. Hart. I never knew Mr. Hart had an account of mine. I said I received 10 sovereigns, and I do not know what the date of that cheque is now. That is the time I received the money. I never received a farthing when I signed that receipt.

Witness here handed in an account to the Commissioners.

46,562. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) This is a bill to you, from Joyes and Nichols, for work?—Not for work, it is for clothes.

46,563. You were indebted to Joyes and Nichols?—Yes, that was on the Saturday night; and when Nichols paid me the money I went up and paid it immediately I received it.

46,564. Was that transaction of giving the receipt to Nichols on the 30th of September?—That is.

46,565. I mean that one which was produced yesterday and signed by you as the receipt given to Mr. Hart?—I did not know that it was going to Mr. Hart.

46,566. Was it the same transaction, this bill being discharged and your giving that receipt to Mr. Hart?—No.

46,567. What has this bill got to do with that receipt?—Just to show you that when I signed that receipt I never received a sixpence or a shilling. I was asked to sign that receipt; I never so much as read it; I thought it was for Nichols to put in his accounts.

46,568. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) By whom were you asked to sign the receipt?—Nichols, I told you yesterday.

46,569. You were asked by Nichols to sign a receipt for 12*l.* from Mr. Hart?—I did; I never received the money.

46,570. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) How does that bill of 5*l.* 10*s.* call your recollection to the circumstance of giving that receipt for 12*l.* as from Mr. Hart; what connexion has that bill with it?—Not any. I distinctly said here I never received any money after the election, and I say so now; only the money I had to pay this bill with. When I signed that receipt I never had a sixpence.

46,571. But it is more than that bill?—10*l.*, I say, he gave me, and I said so yesterday. I think you said he was indebted to me 2*l.*; I said he was not.

46,572. That would make, not 10*l.*, but 15*l.* 10*s.* if you put that bill to it?—He gave me 10 sovereigns, and I went up and paid Joyes. I did not receive any money after the election. When I went home one Saturday night my wife said, "There's a bill from "Joyes and Nichols;" else I never received a farthing after the election.

46,573. You received the 10*l.* from Mr. Nichols at the "Grapes"?—That was it, and that bill was paid five minutes afterwards on the very Saturday night.

46,574. (The Chief Commissioner.) But at the time you signed that receipt you did receive some money?—No, not a halfpenny. I said so distinctly yesterday.

46,575. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Where did you get the money to pay the bill with?—Mr. Nichols gave me the money on Saturday night; but that was not the time I signed that receipt.

46,576. (The Chief Commissioner.) You did not receive any money, you say, from Mr. Hart?—No.

46,577. You signed this receipt, and it is dated the 29th of September?—Yes; I do not suppose I read it when I signed it.

46,578. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) The date is in different ink from the body of the receipt, and that appears to have been put on the day of the receipt?—That is the only bit of mine (pointing to the signature.)

46,579. No; at the top?—No, that is not mine.

46,580. That "29" is the same handwriting as the "12" at the bottom?—Yes, I should think it was; I never so much as read it, and I never knew it was going to Mr. Hart.

46,581. Do you mean to say you only received 10*l.* on that 12*l.* receipt?—That's all I received. I received 10*l.* when I had to go and settle this bill. I never received a halfpenny when I signed that.

46,582. But that bill is dated the day after?—Yes, I am sure I did not know the date of that.

46,583. How came you to sign the receipt the day before you received the 10*l.*?—I don't know. Nichols called me in there and asked me to sign this receipt, and I signed it. If it had been for 100*l.* I might have done the same. I never received a farthing.

46,584. Surely something more was said to you when you were asked to sign a receipt without any money?—No, there was not.

46,585. Is it usual for persons to sign receipts for money without receiving anything?—I do not know, but I foolishly did then.

46,586. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Don't say "foolishly"?—I speak the honest truth.

46,587. (The Chief Commissioner.) Attend to me. I hope you are speaking the truth. Can you tell me whether it was on the 29th of September or not, the date of that receipt, that Nichols called you into the house?—I know I went in, but the day of the month I cannot tell you.

46,588. Can you tell me whether it was in the month of September?—That I cannot tell you.

46,589. Was it more than two months?—Yes, it was.

46,590. We will take it so, that you were called by Nichols into his house?—Yes.

46,591. What did he call you for?—To sign that.

46,592. He placed the document before you?—Yes.

46,593. Can you tell me whether the whole of that was filled in at the time you signed it?—No, I could not. I don't think I read it at all. I have no recollection of reading it.

46,594. Now, Corderoy, you see the word "twelve"?—I see the "twelve."

46,595. That is not in the same handwriting as the rest of the receipt, neither, apparently, is the date; September, at the beginning?—No.

46,596. That is apparently not in the same handwriting. Are you able to tell me from your memory whether that word and those figures "29th" were in the receipt at the time you signed it; aye or no?—I am not able to say.

46,597. You cannot say?—No, I cannot.

46,598. Try and recollect this, because I want to get an answer to the question. Can you tell me when you signed the receipt what was done with it immediately afterwards?—I cannot.

46,599. Where were you when you signed it?—

THIRTY-FIRST DAY.

T. Corderoy.

26 Sept. 1866.

In the "Grapes;" it was put on the table in the commercial room, and I don't think I know the time of the day.

46,600. Never mind that?—But I know it was in the commercial room.

46,601. Who was by and asked you to sign it?—Mr. Nichols.

46,602. Did you then sign it?—I did.

46,603. I want you to answer me this. When you had signed it can you recollect what happened; what was the next thing; perhaps you cannot tell me?—I don't think I was in the house a moment.

46,604. Never mind the moment. If it be only half a moment, what was done directly after you had signed the document; what did you do with it?—I did not have it at all.

46,605. You put it out of your hand, I suppose?—Yes, it was put on the table and I signed it.

46,606. Do you recollect what you did next?—No, I don't.

46,607. Do you recollect what became of the document?—Mr. Nichols had it.

46,608. I want you to tell me what was written on it at the time?—I do not think he wrote anything, he did not while I was there.

46,609. You knew it was a receipt, because you signed it on a stamp; give me a reason why you signed it?—The reason why I signed it was, because I thought the account was from Mr. Nichols to go in to Mr. Hart. I did not know then what it was.

46,610. Then that, probably, was not your reason; now give me the reason why you did sign?—Why I did sign?

46,611. Yes?—Mr. Nichols asked me to sign it, and I signed it on behalf of him; not on behalf of Mr. Hart.

46,612. What do you mean by signing "on behalf" of him?—Because I had had the money before, and I thought I was going to send in the account as my claim.

46,613. You mean you had had the money before as one of the sums which you did not mention yesterday?—Yes.

46,614. That was three months before, but the money you received before was previous to the election?—Yes.

46,615. Now, you say that you thought Mr. Nichols was going to send this in to Mr. Hart in order to square some account between him and Mr. Hart?—Yes.

46,616. Don't be in a hurry, if you please; I want to go cautiously. I don't at all understand what your story is about paying a bill to Joyes and Nichols; when did you do that?—On the 30th; that is when I got the receipt.

46,617. That is, the next day?—But I did not know it was the next day till I saw that receipt.

46,618. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You told us you went direct from the "Grapes"?—Yes, that is right.

46,619. (The Chief Commissioner.) When you went and paid the bill, was it the same day that you received the money?—No, it was not. That was on the 29th and this is the 30th, the next day.

46,620. The next day you went to Joyes the tailor, and paid him a bill you owed him?—Yes, that bill amounted to 5*l.* 10*s.*

46,621. Where did you get the money to pay with?—From Mr. Nichols, the same time; five minutes before I paid it.

46,622. Did you receive any money from Mr. Nichols the day after you signed that receipt?—It must have been, because this was the 30th, and that was the 29th.

46,623. You told us before, and told us yesterday, that you had not received any money from Mr. Nichols then?—Yes, I had; but I did not know that I had till I found this bill.

46,624. The bill would not remind you?—Because I distinctly denied it.

46,625. How would the fact that you ascertained having paid Joyes the tailor a bill on the 30th September remind you that you received money from Mr. Nichols after the election?—How would it remind me?

46,626. Yes?—Because I got the money off from Mr. Nichols.

46,627. On the previous day?—The same evening.

46,628. The same evening that you paid the bill?—Yes, I did not have it five minutes.

46,629. Then the day after you signed the receipt you got the money from Mr. Nichols?—Yes.

46,630. Why did Mr. Nichols pay you 10*l.*?—I do not know.

46,631. A man does not pay money for nothing?—I often borrowed money from him, and I went to him very likely, and he gave me the 10*l.*

46,632. Was it a loan?—No, I did not take it as a loan.

46,633. Give me an answer? This was the 29th September, a long time after the election—Yes.

46,634. If it was a loan, let it be so. Why did Mr. Nichols give you 10*l.* on the 30th September?—When we settled up before the election I went and signed the receipt. I went to him, and said, "You "have a bill against me for clothes." He said, "Yes, we will strike it off." I said, "I had rather "have the money, and pay it myself."

46,635. You would rather have what money?—The money and pay the bill.

46,636. What money? He did not owe you any money?—No, the money that he gave me.

46,637. You won't march straight up to the point?—Yes, I will.

46,638. I dare say you will when you know it. What money was it? He did not owe you 10*l.*?—Not that I am aware of.

46,639. Then you said you would rather have the money?—That was when he was going to strike off this bill in my account; the money that I had had before the election.

46,640. But that account was completely closed?—Yes.

46,641. Then there was an end of it, and he owed you nothing at all, and had nothing to set off against it, neither had you anything to set off against the money he paid for you. Therefore it is still to my mind unexplained why Mr. Nichols gave you 10*l.* on the 30th September?—I don't know why he did. He might explain that perhaps better than I can; I only explain it in that simple way.

46,642. You are not simple, you are an intelligent man, and I want you tell me how that was. The election accounts between you and Mr. Nichols had on the 30th September been for a long time closed?—Yes.

46,643. And there was an end of them?—Yes.

46,644. Then it is to me incomprehensible why, on the 30th September, there being no election account between you at all, Mr. Nichols should hand you over 10*l.* I am not talking about this receipt at all; never mind that?—No. I know he did.

46,645. Why did he? On what account?—I do not know I am sure.

46,646. You know you volunteered us this explanation; we did not ask you for it?—No, I wished to give it.

46,647. But do you yourself think it is an explanation? That is a fair question?—Yes, I think so.

46,648. Tell me, how is it an explanation?—I do not know what you mean.

46,649. I want your construction upon it. I cannot understand why Mr. Nichols should advance you 10*l.* on the 30th September. It might be a loan of the 10*l.*, but that was an odd thing to do, because you were going to pay him and his partner a bill out of it; therefore that was an odd thing to do.

46,650. Well, we will ask Mr. Nichols about it?

—Perhaps he can explain it better than I can. There was another man in 1865. I forgot yesterday that I paid something to him.

46,651. Let us have it?—A man named Chapman.

46,652. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What is his address?—He is away from Reigate now.

46,653. (The Chief Commissioner.) Is he to be found?—Yes. I do not know his directions; I think it is somewhere at Chislehurst. I can find out. He was on the register for Mead-vale.

46,654. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Thomas Chapman?—No.

46,655. Benjamin Chapman?—Yes.

46,656. Of Mead-vale?—Yes.

46,657. (The Chief Commissioner.) How much?—5*l.*; and there were three I think in 1863.

46,658. In 1863. Who were they?—I think Woodman 2*l.*

46,659. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Which Woodman?—Woodman in Mead-vale, and there was Ards. I think Ards was 3*l.* 10*s.*; I won't be certain. And there was Creame I think 4*l.* 10*s.* That is all that I can recollect.

46,660. Those were in 1863?—Yes.

46,661. (The Chief Commissioner.) Are you quite sure you paid those yourself?—Yes, I never paid any money only what I paid myself.

46,662. That is what I mean. You paid them with your own hand?—Yes.

46,663. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Do you recollect how much of this receipt you wrote yourself?—Yes, I do.

46,664. How much?—That "T. Corderoy."

46,665. That was all?—Every bit.

46,666. Do you know Mr. Nichols' handwriting?—Only by his signature; the name "J. Nichols," in the way he writes it.

46,667. Look at that "29th September" 12*l.*, and "Received" across the stamp. Are not those in Mr. Nichols' handwriting?—I should rather think that was.

46,668. Is that writing in the body of the receipt in Mr. Nichols' handwriting? "Twelve"?—I do not know it.

46,669. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Look at it; it is as plain as print. Do you mean to say you signed that without reading it? It is as plain as print?—I do not know whether I read it or not; I did not take any notice of it.

46,670. To a man in your class and condition of life it is as plain as print, "Received of Mr. Hart the "29th September 1865,"—"Of Mr. Thomas Hart, "agent for the election expenses for the Honourable "Mr. Monson." Do you mean to say did not read it?—I did not.

46,671. I defy you to put your name to it without reading it. Was it folded down?—No. I might have read it, but not taken notice of it.

46,672. Is that the only scrap of paper in existence between you and Mr. Nichols?—Yes, that is the only scrap. I should not have known that I signed it if you had not shown it to me.

46,673. That is the only scrap of paper between him and you?—Yes.

46,674. And you received, how much? 80*l.* and 10*l.* is 90*l.*?—Yes, I did not know that I wrote the receipt till you showed it to me.

46,675. You denied it upon your oath?—Yes. I had not the least idea, because you mentioned Mr. Hart's name; that was the reason I was confused.

46,676. (The Chief Commissioner.) Look again at the receipt; can you tell me who wrote the word "Received"?—No, I cannot.

46,677. Did you write it?—No, I do not believe so; it is so different.

46,678. Are you able to say whether you wrote "Received" or not?—I cannot tell you.

46,679. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I asked you just now if it was in Mr. Nichols' handwriting?—I do not think it is in mine.

46,680. I did not ask you that. I asked you if it was in Mr. Nichols' handwriting?—I should think it was his handwriting.

46,681. Can you say whether the "twelve" in the body of the receipt is?—I cannot.

46,682. To the best of your knowledge is it in Mr. Nichols' handwriting?—I cannot say.

The witness withdrew.

JAMES WOOD recalled and examined.

J. Wood.

46,683. (The Chief Commissioner.) Have you heard Corderoy's evidence about paying you money?—Yes, I have.

46,684. And attended to it?—Of course I did.

46,685. I mean what he has just stated?—What he told you.

46,686. What he has just said about his having paid you?—Yes.

46,687. Now then, having heard it, what is your opinion about it. You know he stated the fact, and he stated something else along with it. He stated some accompanying fact about Killick, a man to whom he paid something, and so on; now, does that remind you of anything that took place?—Not the least sir, I do not recollect receiving any amount from Corderoy.

46,688. That is what you stated before?—Yes, I state that now.

46,689. Do you go beyond that? You say that you do not recollect it?—I do not; if I did I would say so.

46,690. I dare say you would, but then you are not prepared to go so far as to say that you did not receive it?—I do not recollect it.

46,691. You see there is a difference; very likely you are quite correct, but you do not say more than that you do not recollect receiving the money?—I do not.

46,692. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did Mr. Frederick Killick come to you on the morning of the polling day?—Frederick Kellick came to me.

46,693. What took place between you and Frederick Killick?—Killick promised me, very fairly, the quarter's rent, but I never received a fraction.

46,694. Are you his tenant?—No, he said he would pay that for me.

46,695. He said he would pay a quarter's rent for you?—Yes.

46,696. Did he mention to you the name of Corderoy?—Not that I am aware of.

46,697. Did Killick take you to the poll?—I do not know. I have no recollection; I know I polled for Monson.

46,698. You do not recollect whether Killick took you to the poll?—I do not believe he did. I do not recollect.

46,699. How soon after Killick promised you the quarter's rent did you poll?—I really cannot tell you that.

46,700. Do you recollect whether you went with anybody to the poll?—No, I do not.

46,701. What time did you poll?—I cannot tell you.

46,702. You do not know the time?—No.

46,703. Was it before dinner or after?—I really cannot tell you.

46,704. What became of you after polling?—I cannot tell you that.

46,705. You don't know that?—I went home, I suppose.

46,706. Did you go back to work?—I really cannot tell you.

46,707. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What rent do you pay?—22*l.*

46,708. Have you any recollection at all about it,

THIRTY-FIRST DAY.

J. Wood.

26 Sept. 1866.

whether you received the money or did not. Corderoy is very particular in stating that he paid you ?—I have no recollection of receiving a farthing from Corderoy.

46,709. You went further than that before ?—I say that I never received any from him ; not no money from Corderoy, not to my knowledge. I cannot say more.

46,710. That is denying it, you know ?—Well, I never had it.

46,711. You never had it; you pledge your oath to that ?—Not to my recollection, I never did.

The witness withdrew.

F. Killick.

FREDERICK KILLICK sworn and examined.

46,712. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What are you ?—A painter ; a foreman.

46,713. Were you foreman upon the premises where Wood and Corderoy were working at the time of the election ?—Yes.

46,714. Were you a voter ?—Yes.

46,715. What rent are you paying for your house ?—13*l.* I think you had my evidence.

46,716. Have you been examined before ?—Yes.

46,717. Oh, then I need not have sworn you again. Have you been in Court and heard the evidence during the time that Wood has been examined, and Corderoy ?—Yes.

46,718. I will just ask you, did you go to Wood on the polling day ?—I did, and I will tell you what it was in consequence of.

46,719. Stop a moment. Before you went had you seen Corderoy ?—Yes.

46,720. Had you received any instructions from Corderoy regarding Wood ?—No, none whatever, only that he said that Wood did not seem inclined to vote, and he was afraid the other party would get hold of him ; would I go over and see that he polled. I went in consequence of that.

46,721. Was anything said by Corderoy about the money being paid to him ?—I had heard before that Corderoy promised him 1*l.* a week to work till the election came off. I do not think Wood was at work for us at that time, because he had been ill and was away from the shop, and I do not think he was at work with us at the time of the election.

46,722. Was he at work with you some fortnight or three weeks before the election ?—Yes, he was.

46,723. Which was the last Saturday night before the election that he was at work ?—I cannot recollect. I can tell you by referring to the book. He told me himself that Corderoy had made an arrangement with him that he was to go to work and have 1*l.* a week till the election came off, and Wood likewise told me after that that he had been taken in by Corderoy, because the election was coming off sooner than he anticipated, and the consequence was that he would not receive so much as he expected.

46,724. When did you hear that from Wood ?—I cannot recollect the date.

46,725. Before the election ?—I cannot recollect whether it was before the election or after, I rather think it was before ; and another thing I can fix the payment from Corderoy by is, that Wood owed a man in the shop 10*s.*, and the man thought it was hopeless till he ascertained that he had had 2*l.*, and by that means he obtained the 10*s.* from him.

46,726. Who was that man ?—His name was Notley. He took the opportunity of getting the money owed to him by Wood from Wood at the time.

46,727. Do you know that Notley received the 10*s.* from Wood ?—I believe he did ; he told me so himself.

46,728. Was that during the time that Wood was working at your establishment ?—I do not know that he was working at that time, because I know he was ill about that time; in fact, he has worked very irregularly for us for some years.

46,729. Do you know whether he was to receive wages then ?—Well, he received wages when he worked.

46,730. Corderoy received wages ?—Up to a short time of the election ; he was then away for a few weeks.

46,731. Did you see Wood about your premises up to the last week or day that Corderoy was on the premises ?—I do not know, but sometimes he would call in on a Saturday night to see the men when he was not at work.

46,732. Saturday night was the usual time for his calling in ?—Sometimes he would call in to see the men.

46,733. You saw him upon the polling day ?—Yes.

46,734. When you called upon him did you offer to pay a quarter's rent for him ?—Never. Nothing was mentioned about a quarter's rent, or any money that I should give him ; nothing at all about it whatever. It is an utter falsehood. And another thing I heard was, that he said he would do some one in our shop a "dot."

46,735. A what ?—A "dot."

46,736. Never mind about that. Did you offer him anything ?—Nothing at all. I think we went and had something to drink at Langridge's, that is all.

46,737. When you saw him on the morning of the polling day, did he promise to vote ?—I did not doubt for a moment but what he would vote.

46,738. You did not go with him ?—I do not know whether we walked up to the house at Redhill or not.

46,739. (The Chief Commissioner.) You have been acquainted for some time with Wood ; you say he has not been regular at work ?—No, he has had a good deal of illness.

46,740. Do you know of what kind ?—He had gout, rheumatic gout, and fits besides.

46,741. Epileptic fits ?—Yes.

46,742. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Do you know whether that has had any effect upon his memory ?—Yes, I am sure it has, because one week he had to lose his time because he could not account for how he had been employed. He could not tell the next day what he had been employed at on the previous night.

46,743. Did you hear from Corderoy that he had advanced 2*l.* ?—I heard from Corderoy ; he told me the next morning.

46,744. Did you know it from Wood himself ?—Yes, I did.

46,745. What did Wood tell you ?—He told me that he had been taken in, or something to that effect, by Corderoy, as Corderoy had promised him 1*l.* a week till the election came off, and the election was coming off sooner than he expected.

46,746. That is not telling you that he had had 2*l.* advanced ?—He also told us that he had received 2*l.*

46,747. Why did you keep that fact till the last ? You came up here to give an explanation. If he told you that he had received 2*l.*, why did not you tell us that at first ?—I was not aware but what I had told you.

46,748. You certainly did not ?—If you had asked the question I should have told you.

46,749. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I asked you the question ?—Did you ?

46,750. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) When did he tell you he had the 2*l.* ?—I do not know whether it was before or after the election.

46,751. You gave us a reason ; because he paid a man to whom he owed 10*s.* ?—That was when he received one payment.

46,752. When did he tell you that he had had the money ?—I do not know exactly when he told me.

46,753. Was it after the election ?—He had received some money previously.

46,754. Was it after the election that he told you he had received the money ?—I do not know whether it was. It might have been ; I cannot fix the date.

46,755. It might be after the election that he told you?—Yes; it might be before.

46,756. (The Chief Commissioner.) What Wood stated about the agreement for the rent you say was "a lie." Probably, your own subsequent account of his memory being bad may justify you in withdrawing that remark, and applying a less strong one; it may not have been a lie; it might have been a mistake?—I don't know; I don't see how a man could make such a mistake as that.

(Mr. Commissioner Smith.) If he could not recollect what work he did the day before, on one occasion, he might very well have forgotten such a thing as this.

46,757. (The Chief Commissioner.) I am glad you gave your evidence.—I thought justice required it.

The witness withdrew.

JAMES NICHOLS recalled and examined.

J. Nichols.

46,758. (The Chief Commissioner.) You have been sworn, Mr. Nichols. Look at that document (handing a receipt to witness).—Yes.

46,759. Do you know that document?—I know it, sir, because——

46,760. First of all, do you recognise the document?—Yes.

46,761. Look at it again, and tell me how much of it is in your handwriting?—"29th" and "twelve."

46,762. Is there any more?—No.

46,763. Look at the word "Received?"—Yes, that is mine, and the figure "12."

46,764. Can you tell me anything about the history of that document?—I paid Corderoy 10*l.* He owed me two, that he had a week or two previously. He offered to pay me a bill that he owed at my shop, and I said, "I would rather that you would go and pay the "bill yourself."

46,765. I understand. You would much rather he should pay the bill himself. Well, that is very likely; but then that does not affect this document?—No.

46,766. Well, I want the history of this document. It is signed by Corderoy; he acknowledges his handwriting?—Yes.

46,767. How is that?—The document, so far as I see of it——

46,768. I wish you to keep it in your hand.—That is made by Mr. Hart's clerk.

46,769. So I thought it would turn out. That is made by one of Mr. Hart's clerks, and drawn partially in blank, because you filled in the "twelve"?—Yes, quite so.

46,770. Well, can you go on and tell me anything further of the history of that document?—No.

46,771. You cannot tell me anything about it?—Except that it was for what I considered was due to Corderoy.

46,772. Do you know anything about the history of how you got it completed. You know Mr. Hart's clerk, or whoever handed it to you, handed it drawn in blank, and it has been at some time or other filled up?—Yes.

46,773. It came into your possession evidently in blank, without dates or figures?—Yes, and it was filled up on the 29th September 1865.

46,774. By you?—Yes.

46,775. How was that?—I suppose——

46,776. Do you remember the fact, or do you now remember the document from reading it?—That is all.

46,777. Tax your memory, and see if you can recall the transaction?—No, I cannot.

46,778. You cannot recall it?—Unless—the only thing that I can explain about it would be that perhaps Mr. Hart might have called upon me and said, "You will say what Corderoy should have," and then I filled in the account. No doubt I had the cheque from Mr. Hart to pay it.

46,779. You have no doubt you had the cheque from Mr. Hart to pay this?—I have no doubt of it.

46,780. Do you state that as a fact which you remember, or as what you infer from the circumstances?—That is all.

46,781. Very well. Now then, we will take it that you did get the cheque from Mr. Hart yourself. What did you do with the cheque?—I should think it is most likely I kept the cheque myself.

46,782. Mr. Hart handed you this, or you got it somehow from him or his clerk, and you have no doubt, also, that he handed over to you a cheque to cover what you considered Corderoy's deserts?—Yes.

46,783. Who filled up the cheque?—I should think Mr. Hart, undoubtedly.

46,784. Mr. Hart would not hand you a blank cheque, you think?—No.

46,785. But Mr. Hart, you think, did not take the trouble to fill the receipt up, although he did fill up the cheque?—I am sure he did not, because it is in my handwriting.

46,786. You filled in "Twelve pounds," which represents, according to your statement, what you thought Corderoy deserved. Now go on, and tell us what became of the document?—It was signed by Corderoy, and I suppose given to Mr. Hart. I should not have known of it unless you had shown it to me.

46,787. You had forgotten it?—Yes.

46,788. It is quite possible that you had. I want to know if you can account for it by referring back to your general course of business with Mr. Hart?—No.

46,789. If you cannot remember the particular document itself, tell me, why should you get Corderoy to receipt it?—Because I paid him the money.

46,790. Well, that is a reason. That is what I wanted to know. Have you any recollection of paying him the money?—Yes, I have. I recollect now very well that he offered to pay me a bill that he owed at my tailor's shop, and I said I would rather him take the money and go and pay it, because then it would go through our books.

46,791. I understand that perfectly; that occurred to me before. What did you do? Have you any recollection?—That is all.

46,792. Did he pay the bill in to your shop?—I believe so; but our books will show.

46,793. Well, we will assume for the moment that he did. How much money did you hand over to him? I do not know whether it was 10*l.*, or 10*l.* 10*s.*

46,794. Why did not you hand him over 12*l.*?—Because he owed me 2*l.*

46,795. On another matter, not on the tailor's bill?—No; I will tell you what it was for. He would frequently, when he wanted two sovereigns or more, come to me, and at that particular period he owed me two sovereigns.

46,796. I understand; but nothing to do with tailoring?—No.

47,797. That is what I mean. We have seen the tailor's account; he has produced it from you, or at least from the firm, and it is 5*l.* 10*s.*?—I do not recollect.

46,798. You may take it from me. We have got it. Now, what became of the rest of the money? You see he did not want 10*l.* to pay 5*l.* 10*s.* with?—10*l.* was due to him.

46,799. For what?—According to what I supposed he ought to have had.

46,800. 12*l.* you supposed he ought to have had. Then you deducted 2*l.* because he owed you privately 2*l.*, and you handed over to him 10*l.*?—He offered me to pay the tailor's bill, and I said, "I would rather "you would go to the shop and pay it there, because "then it will go through our books."

THIRTY-FIRST DAY.

J. Nichols.

26 Sept. 1866.

46,801. I understand that perfectly; but I am going to ask you the same question over once more. Have you any recollection of this particular document itself?—No, not at all till I saw it.

46,802. Have you any recollection, now you see the document, where it was signed by Corderoy?—I should think most likely at my house, at the "Grapes."

46,803. But you have no recollection of the incident yourself?—No, I have not.

46,804. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Just bring your mind to bear upon it; it is important?—If I could have my cash-book——

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Oh, no; you don't want any cash-book.

The witness withdrew.

R. Fuller.

RICHARD FULLER sworn and examined.

46,805. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you Fuller?—A bricklayer.

46,806. What rent did you pay for your house at the last election?—10*l.* a year.

46,807. Who did you vote for?—Mr. Monson.

46,808. Were you on his committee?—Yes, I was.

46,809. Did you receive any money at all before the election came on?—Yes.

46,810. Before the election you received, how much?—I received 10*l.*

46,811. Who from?—Mr. Langridge, not all for myself.

46,812. What were you to do with the 10*l.*?—I never received it, not all at one time.

46,813. Were you to pay away some of it?—Yes, to men that I got.

46,814. Who were they?—Thomas Cook and William Stuchbury.

46,815. Were they voters?—Yes.

46,816. Did you pay them anything?—3*l.* each.

46,817. What did you do with the other 4*l.*?—I kept it for myself.

46,818. Who told you to keep it?—Why, I was having the same pay as the rest of them, and I had a pound for my own trouble.

46,819. You thought you ought to have the same pay as the others?—I had the same pay as the others and 1*l.* afterwards.

46,820. This was before the election. After the election how much did you get for your services?—None at all afterwards. All the money I had was before the election.

46,821. When did you receive the other 1*l.* that you talk about?—Oh no, I received 10*s.* of it after the election.

46,822. When did you receive the other 10*s.*?—That was a week before the election.

46,823. So that you got 5*l.* for yourself?—I got 4*l.*

46,824. You got 4*l.* out of the 10*l.*?—10*l.* was all the money I received altogether.

46,825. And out of that you paid away 6*l.*?—Yes, and I had 4*l.* for myself.

46,826. After that did you receive 2*l.* 10*s.*?—That is in with it.

46,827. Then how much did you receive altogether for yourself?—4*l.*

46,828. Was that all you received at all?—Yes.

46,829. All the money, either for yourself or anybody else?—Yes.

46,830. Was that your first election?—No.

46,831. In 1863 who did you vote for?—Mr. Gower.

46,832. Did you do any work for him?—No, I did not.

46,833. What money did you receive then?—I received 3*l.* 10*s.*

46,834. Who from?—I received 30*s.* off of Mr. Green, and 2*l.* off from Mr. Ridge.

46,835. Was that all you received in 1863 from anybody?—Yes.

46,836. Had you voted in the previous election?—No.

The witness withdrew.

G. Nichols.

GEORGE NICHOLS recalled and examined.

46,837. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You have been examined partly before?—Yes.

46,838. We could see you were not well?—I was not well.

46,839. I understood you to say, but perhaps wrongly, that you had received no monies respecting the election at all?—No, I had not.

46,840. You had not received any?—No, never.

46,841. Whatever transaction there was between yourself and your brother had no reference to the election?—None at all.

46,842. And you adhere to that now?—I do.

46,843. From your recollection?—Yes.

The witness withdrew.

J. Nichols.

JAMES NICHOLS recalled and examined.

46,844. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I see a book before you?—Yes.

46,845. Have you any entries there which will throw a light upon that payment to Corderoy of that 12*l.*, that transaction?—Only, sir, to corroborate what I am told Corderoy said. I was not here.

46,846. That is your business book of Joyes and Nichols?—Yes.

46,847. We are quite satisfied with regard to that, that he did pay on the 30th September 1865 5*l.* 10*s.* to Joyes and Nichols. There is no question about that. You say that you may have received a cheque from Mr. Hart for the purpose of paying Corderoy this 12*l.*?—Yes.

46,848. Can you tell me when you received that cheque?—I think, sir, from the payment there (referring to the account book), and the date there, that Mr. Hart gave me that receipt to be filled up by me, that I got Corderoy to receipt that before he had the money, and I have no doubt that he had the money the next day.

46,849. Did you receive from Mr. Hart the specific cheque for 12*l.* to pay Corderoy?—I should think so.

46,850. Did you receive any other cheques from Mr. Hart to pay monies after the election, excepting to Corderoy?—Yes.

46,851. To what amount?—I do not know. I do not know, I assure you.

46,852. Do you know how many you paid after the election under the authority of Mr. Hart?—I do not know, but I am quite sure that the dates would show. It was about the 29th of September. Mr. Hart's cheque book will show it all.

46,853. Now are you quite certain that you received a cheque from Mr. Hart for 12*l.* to pay Corderoy?—I am not quite certain, but I think so, certainly.

46,854. I think you told us you kept no private accounts of the proceedings of the election, but if there was a cheque would that have passed through your account?—Yes, undoubtedly.

46,855. It would be most important for us to have either your pass-book or the books at the bank, which will show your account as to the receipt of these cheques?—You are quite aware from what I have told you already that they had my pass-book, though they say they had not. There is the evidence of Mr. Tolhurst, who heard them say to me, "Your pass-"book is gone to London to the head office, and I "will endeavour to get it for you." Of course, independently of that, you can get a copy of their letter itself. They had my pass-book.

46,856. You probably endeavoured to get it. This was handed up to me (producing a letter)?—It is my letter, which I handed to Mr. De Rutzen the day before yesterday.

46,857. You cannot say what monies you received after the election from Mr. Hart?—I cannot. For instance, this is one which I had forgotten; therefore I will not bind myself to say whether I did or did not make any specific payment, because I might be asked the question and be confused by receipts or cheques.

46,858. Now, how came Corderoy to make a claim to Mr. Hart?—You see, sir, it is not a claim.

46,859. If you answer me in that way, then I must take it by stages?—I will tell you, sir.

46,860. Was any claim made upon Mr. Hart by Corderoy?—I think not. I think Mr. Hart made out that receipt, or rather his clerk by direction of Mr. Hart, in blank, sending it me to fill up the sum that I thought Corderoy was entitled to.

46,861. I want to know why Mr. Hart's clerk should make out that receipt?—I do not know.

46,862. Who informed him that Corderoy was entitled to 12*l.*?—Mr. Hart, I expect. I filled up the 12*l.*

46,863. Then were you supplied by Mr. Hart with a quantity of blank receipts?—No.

46,864. Then had you not told Mr. Hart's clerk before that Corderoy had a claim?—No.

46,865. Or told Mr. Hart?—Mr. Hart, very likely.

46,866. But had you?—I do not know. I will tell you Mr. Hart knew perfectly well that Corderoy was employed, and no doubt said to me, "How much "should Corderoy have?"

46,867. Corderoy was acting under you?—Yes.

46,868. Had you given to Mr. Hart a list of those persons who were acting under you?—No.

46,869. Then how was he acquainted with the fact that Corderoy was acting?—Because he saw him every day.

46,870. Doing what?—Furnishing information, morning, noon, and night almost.

46,871. To whom?—To Mr. Hart and myself.

46,872. Had you communicated with Mr. Hart before receiving this receipt?—Most likely.

46,873. The 29th September was very nearly the last payment that you made upon the election, was it not?—I do not remember, sir. I think not. I think some one said they had received money after that.

46,874. Assuming that this money was paid, that would be about the last time that you had paid monies on account of the election?—I think some one said that I paid them in October.

46,875. Can you not tell us how much money in all you received from Mr. Hart after the election to pay away in this manner?—No; I am quite sure that every shilling I received from Mr. Hart was by cheque, therefore Mr. Hart's account will tell what it was.

46,876. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) We want it from you?—I cannot tell you. I would, indeed, if I knew.

46,877. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Corderoy was acting more immediately under you?—Quite under me.

46,878. And you had supplied him with money?—Quite so.

46,879. We have it in evidence that you supplied him with money, at least to the extent of 80*l.*?—Yes.

46,880. And according to Corderoy's account he had expended about 35*l.* of that. Had Corderoy rendered any account to you before you paid him the 12*l.*?—No, he told me that he expended between 60*l.* and 70*l.*

46,881. Are you certain he told you that?—Yes.

46,882. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) When did he tell you that?—Soon after the election.

46,883. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Then I will put it in this way; a certain sum of money, say about 62*l.* or 60*l.*, Corderoy had received from you; then he accounted for so much money, and there was about 20*l.* for his own services. It comes, morally, to the same thing?—I say, sir, that he had 80*l.*

46,884. Well, 80*l.*; that would make him have more. That would make 20*l.* plus the 25*l.*?—No, it would not. He gave you the names of the persons to whom he paid 40*l.* or 50*l.* The man could not go about for eight weeks without spending money.

46,885. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I suppose he gave you an account in writing?—No, he never did. I never asked one of them for an account.

46,886. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) This was the question?—Make Corderoy answerable for that, not me. I am willing to give you every explanation I possibly can, sir. I will do it cheerfully and with good faith.

46,887. This is the object of the question. I want to know why it was that, having given Corderoy all these large sums of money, and according to his own account he had received something out of it for his own benefit, that claim is made for the 12*l.* as against Mr. Hart?—Well, I thought he was entitled to 12*l.* more, to make him receive the sum that I thought he was entitled to, and, besides that, I knew perfectly well that people would laugh at the accounts if they were published without Corderoy's name being put in.

46,888. Then it was done, in fact, to make up the accounts?—It was done first to satisfy the man for his work, and next to satisfy the public, or to attempt to.

46,889. Had he made a claim upon you for it?—He told me he should expect more.

46,890. When?—Directly after the election, and I told him he should have something more; and if he had never said so, I should certainly think of satisfying those men who work for me well. I always have done so before.

46,891. But, instead of getting the amount of money in a cheque from Mr. Hart, at that time you had a large sum of money in your own possession which had not been expended?—What time?

46,892. September 1865?—I do not think I had.

46,893. I mean to say, according to the way in which you have accounted for it here before us in evidence?—I do not know what balance I had.

46,894. You can only tell from your banker's book, because the accounts would not pass through your book?—I generally had a balance there.

46,895. No doubt you had a balance there in your banker's account, but in reference to the election transaction?—I do not think I had any money in hand at all in September; not a shilling.

46,896. I will draw your attention to this. Mr. Commissioner O'Brien said that would leave your account of receipts from Mr. Monson about 480*l.*?—That was not Mr. Monson's money; that was mine then.

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That did not include the 50*l.* received from Mr. Hart. He received 519*l.* for himself.

46,897. How much money do you say you had as a balance upon the accounts at that time?—None.

THIRTY-FIRST DAY.

J. Nichols.

26 Sept. 1866.

46,898. Do you mean to say there was none?—None.

46,899. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) According to my notion—I shall not go through the shorthand writer's notes now to find it out, but according to my notion of your evidence, there was a balance?—That is all I can say. I am willing to give you every information I possibly can, and I ask to be treated fairly, that is all.

46,900. Is that document produced the only document as between Corderoy and you in writing?—Yes; but that is not between me and him.

46,901. It is between you and him?—That is the only one.

46,902. (The Chief Commissioner.) That is the only document?—I believe so.

46,903. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And you give us the history of the document as this, that you applied to Mr. Hart for money to pay to those who had been working at the election?—No, Mr. Hart applied to me.

46,904. Did Mr. Hart know at the time he applied to you or did you tell him you had paid this man yourself?—No.

46,905. Then you knew when Mr. Hart applied to you that he was paying him in ignorance that you had paid him anything?—He might, and so far as I say I say so.

46,906. Have you any reason to believe Mr. Hart knew you had paid this man?—Except the ordinary sense a man would have in seeing an election continuing so long and never having paid any money before.

46,907. As between you and Mr. Hart, did anything take place before you received a cheque to pay the 12*l.* that would let Mr. Hart know you had paid this man anything?—I think not.

46,908. Then when you got this cheque it was a representation to Mr. Hart, "This man has worked to "the extent of 12*l.*"

(Mr. Commissioner Smith.) And 12*l.* only.

(The Witness.) So far as Mr. Hart was concerned, he did not know what Mr. Corderoy had been paid.

46,909. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I suppose you would have to sign the receipt before you obtained the money?—Before I had the money.

46,910. Now be cautious, Mr. Nichols; did you tell Corderoy you could not pay him this because you had to get the money from Mr. Hart?—No, sir.

46,911. Did you tell him you had got the money from Mr. Hart after he had signed the receipt?—Yes.

46,912. Attend,—did you tell Corderoy you had got this money from Mr. Hart for him after he signed the receipt?—No, it was before it.

46,913. Before he signed the receipt?—Yes, that the money would come from Mr. Hart.

46,914. That the money was coming to him from Mr. Hart?—I believe so.

46,915. Otherwise you would pay him yourself?—I cannot remember every word I said, but I believe I told him so.

46,916. If you did not tell him the money was coming from Mr. Hart, why did you not pay him yourself?—Because I knew it was coming from Mr. Hart.

46,917. You said so?—Take it as such; I will tell you everything honestly and fairly, as far as I can.

46,918. Do not be boasting about that?—I am not boasting.

46,919. Then you told him before you received this 12*l.*; well, I have got an answer.

(The Witness.) You say you've got an answer, and for once I will give you another.

46,920. Then do?—Then I will say I did not say I did.

46,921. Do you imagine that attitude will satisfy me; I am here to examine?—You ought to be a little fair with a man.

46,922. I wish to be as fair with you as with any human being, but after you had settled with Mr. Corderoy did you tell him you had yet to receive 12*l.* from Mr. Hart for him, and did you tell him he would have to sign the receipt before he had the money?—I do not know that I did say that. I believe the receipt was put into my hands to fill up for the sum which I thought Corderoy was entitled to.

46,923. Corderoy says he did not get the money the day he signed the receipt?—Quite right.

46,924. Then you would tell him you had to get the money from Mr. Hart or, if not, you would pay him the money?—Very likely, but you wished me to say what I do not remember.

46,925. I have called your attention to it?—Yes, you have done so over and over again, but I cannot recollect.

46,926. Was any means used to connect that receipt of Corderoy's as coming from Hart?—Not the slightest.

46,927. Do you know where he signed it?—No.

46,928. It is very strange that you have no more?—I have taken receipts, as I told you before, for all monies Mr. Hart has entrusted me with for these people; Mr. Hart has given me money to pay away, and I have given him vouchers for it.

46,929. But between you and other men; let me call your attention to the importance of having vouchers when you are dealing with another man's money; you put down Steer as 50*l.*?—Yes.

46,930. He only got 30*l.*?—Quite true what he states; he would have to pay me money; I do not wish to tell you all my private affairs between me and Mr. Steer; I would not mind telling you, but I do not want to tell them to all the people here.

46,931. He said you owed him 15*l.*?—And he spoke the truth on the election account.

46,932. Then you put down the 50*l.*, working it up; do you mean to say there were some transactions between you and Steer with which the election had nothing to do, in which the 15*l.* was not taken in?—Certainly.

46,933. Was that the case in this matter?—No.

46,934. Why did you not mention it before?—The Chief Commissioner asked me about a sum of seven guineas which had nothing to do with the election.

46,935. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) The amount you gave of 12*l.*, was it made out in Corderoy's name?—I do not remember.

46,936. Was it made out in Corderoy's name?—I do not remember.

44,937. You do not remember whether it was in yours or his?—No, I cannot say, for if I say one way or other a cheque may be produced against me the next minute. I know that when there have been several small payments Mr. Hart might draw a cheque for several small ones together, but in this case I should think it would be drawn to Corderoy.

46,938. And you changed it for yourself and paid him 10*l.*?—Yes.

46,939. Without getting any detailed account of the expenditure of the 80*l.* you gave him?—Yes.

46,940. Supposing he came and said, "I am not "sufficiently paid for my services," had you any thing to refer to that would enable you to say "I gave you "80*l.*"?—No.

46,941. Nothing at all of that kind?—No.

46,942. How do you know what he had received?—Only from memory.

46,943. You paid a great deal of money away, did you tell him, "Why, Corderoy, you have received 80*l.* already?"—Very likely.

46,944. Well, but did you?—I cannot tell you; I will tell you everything as nearly as I can.

46,945. You did not say, "Why, Mr. Corderoy, you "have received 80*l.* already?"—No.

46,946. Did you not say that before you drew on Mr. Hart for 12*l.*, you must know for yourself what you paid him?—No.

46,947. May I inquire how you came to fix on this particular sum of 12*l.* in your mind?—I thought he should have about 30*l.* for his services.

46,948. Through what process of mental calculation did you arrive at that result?—I cannot say.

46,949. You must remember you are dealing with another man's money, and you cannot tell by what process of mental calculation you arrived at that result?—No, sir.

46,950. You cannot give me the slightest notion?—No, except from memory; I knew very well the men he had operated upon.

46,951. You charged 200 guineas for getting up the requisition?—Yes.

46,952. How came you to fix upon that sum; did you tell Mr. Monson you would charge him 200 guineas for getting up the requisition?—No.

46,953. Did you ever tell Mr. Hart of it?—No.

46,954. How came you to fix upon 200 guineas?—I thought I was entitled to it.

46,955. How came you to fix upon it?—Suppose you said 190*l.*!

46,956. Suppose you said 300*l.* it would have about as much relation as the other?—I don't think so. You take my time from September to March, and further——

46,957. That is not the requisition; you are down as having received 509*l.*; you are a man of business, filling very important offices in this borough, dealing with rights and legal things; now, how did you fix that 200 guineas?—I cannot tell you.

The witness then withdrew.

WILLIAM BONNY sworn and examined.

W. Bonny.

46,958. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—A licensed victualler; I keep the "Crown" inn.

46,959. What rent do you pay?—45*l.*

46,960. And who did you vote for at the last election?—Mr. Gower.

46,961. Who asked you to vote for Mr. Gower?—Mr. Gower himself.

46,962. Was anybody with him?—No.

46,963. Were you not canvassed by any of the under agents?—No; I never was, it was of no use coming to canvass me.

46,964. Did you promise Mr. Gower at once?—Yes, he only called upon me once, about a fortnight before the election.

46,965. And did you tell him you would vote for him then?—Yes.

46,966. A fortnight before the election?—About ten days or a fortnight.

46,967. Were you canvassed on the other side?—I was, by Mr. Monson himself.

46,968. Was any one with him?—I think not.

46,969. Were you afterwards canvassed by somebody, some agent on his side?—No.

46,970. I mean, by canvass, were you not asked for your vote?—No.

46,971. Did not anybody ask you besides Mr. Monson himself to be on their side?—No.

46,972. Do you know a man of the name of Holden?—Yes.

46,973. Of course you do, he lives here; did he call on you?—Yes, he called on me, he wished me to let my house for Mr. Monson's party for a committee.

46,974. Did he make you any offer for it?—I do not know whether he did or not, but Mr. Nichols came afterwards and made an offer.

46,975. And had not Mr. Holden?—I do not know whether he had.

46,976. What was it wanted for?—For the election I suppose, but I did not ask any questions, for I had determined not to let it to him.

46,977. Was it for the election, or for one night?—For the election I should suppose it to be.

46,978. And you said you would rather not let him have the house?—No, I would not let him have the house.

46,979. And Mr. Nichols came afterwards?—Yes.

46,980. What did he want?—He offered me 25*l.* if I would let him have the house for committee rooms.

46,981. Your house is very well situated, close by the town hall?—Yes.

46,982. Was that 25*l.* for the election or for one night only?—For the election I should say.

46,983. You understood it so?—Yes, but we did not have a dozen words, for I said I would not let my house to him on any condition.

46,984. Did anybody else come to you on Mr. Monson's side?—No, sir, I think not; I am sure they did not.

46,985. You are sure they did not?—Not that I can recollect.

46,986. Do you recollect anybody calling upon you saying something to you about your vote?—No, sir.

46,987. Do you remember any price being mentioned for a man's vote?—No, sir.

46,988. Do you know a man of the name of John Reed, of Bell-street, shoemaker?—Yes.

46,989. Does the mention of his name recall to your mind any question about the value of a vote?—No.

46,990. Do you remember Reed asking you about your vote?—No, I have no recollection of his asking me anything about my vote.

46,991. I mean about your own vote?—No, I have no recollection about it.

46,992. Try?—No.

46,993. Did he ask what your price was?—No, and I should take it as an insult if a man were to ask me anything about the price of my vote.

46,994. I do not know whether you did not take it as an insult, but I ask you whether Reed came and asked you about the value of your vote?—No.

46,995. Do you believe he did?—No, I do not believe he did at all.

46,996. Do you remember anybody else coming and asking you about the price of your vote?—No.

46,997. Do you remember on any occasion saying you thought you should be wanted this time and you intended having a goodish price for your vote?—No, I do not recollect it.

46,998. Do you think you said it?—No.

46,999. Are you prepared to say you did not say it?—I do not recollect anything of the sort. I am almost persuaded I did not.

47,000. But you cannot say you are quite certain? I do not think I would have said it.

47,001. Do you remember saying, "I shall be "wanted this time, and I intend to have the price of "100*l.*"?—No, I am sure I did not say so, and if anybody has said that I did, I shall be glad if you will mention his name.

47,002. Do you remember the word "century" being used?—Yes, Mr. Nichols called at my house, and said to my wife he had heard I was a "century" man.

47,003. Do you remember that being put to you?—No, not by any person; in fact I will swear it was not, it never was.

THIRTY-FIRST DAY.

W. Bonny.

26 Sept. 1866.

47,004. Do you remember the term century being used?—No, but my wife told me Mr. Nichols called in once and asked her whether I was a century; I think it was during this inquiry; if you send for her, my wife will tell you.

47,005. Does not the fact of his talking of it bring it to your recollection; there was an obvious allusion to something supposed to have passed?—No, I do not recollect it.

47,006. You state you do not recollect it; do you say now it was not said?—Not to me.

47,007. Shall I take this down, that "no such term "was used to me"?—Not to me.

47,008. But it was an odd thing that Nichols should say anything about it afterwards, if it was not said?—I do not know I am sure.

47,009. You say no such term was used?—Yes.

47,010. Did you vote in 1863?—Yes, I voted then.

47,011. Who for?—Mr. Wilkinson.

47,012. Were you on his committee?—No, I was laid up the whole time with the gout; Mr. James took my house for a committee during the election, for which he paid me 10*l.*

47,013. Did you receive anything besides, before the election, from Mr. James?—No.

47,014. Nor after?—No, he paid me 10*l.* afterwards, but that was for the committee room.

47,015. In what way did he pay it you, was it by cheque?—I do not remember now whether it was by cheque or note, or how.

47,016. And that was all the money you received?—Yes, except the refreshments, and that I believe they paid for as they had it; I was laid up all that time; there was a meeting or two.

47,017. Did you send in any account for refreshments after that time?—There was a small affair.

47,018. What was that?—13*l.* or 14*l.*

47,019. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) After the election?—Yes.

47,020. I do not mean to bind you to any amount or date, but who paid that?—I rather think Langridge paid me, I will not be sure, he was the subagent for Mr. Wilkinson, I am almost sure it was him.

47,021. Where did Langridge live then?—I am not sure whether he lived in Reigate or Redhill.

47,022. There was a general election in 1859; did you vote then?—Yes; that was one election. I did not vote for the sham election.

47,023. I dare say that is the election you are talking of, in 1859?—I did not vote then.

47,024. At the end of 1858 do you recollect whether you voted, or was that at the next after Doulton's election?—Yes, I voted for Mr. Wilkinson.

47,025. I am not speaking of the Doulton election?—No, the one after.

47,026. What did you receive on that election?—On that election I think I was paid 20*l.* for my room upstairs.

47,027. The same house?—Yes. Mr. Cape had several clerks there.

47,028. Were you paid anything else?—No.

47,029. Not from any party?—No, only by Mr. Cape for the expense of his clerks stopping there some time.

47,030. For their board and lodging?—Yes.

47,031. The 20*l.*; what was that for?—For the committee rooms. They were to pay me 20*l.* for the whole of the election for my two rooms.

47,032. That was all you received then?—Yes.

47,033. Go back one step further, to the Doulton election?—Yes.

47,034. Whom did you vote for then?—Sir Henry Rawlinson; and I think I let a committee room to Mr. Morrison for him. I think it was for 10*l.*

47,035. What else did you receive, if anything; you think that was 10*l.*?—I think it was; if not, it was not so much.

47,036. Did you receive any other money at all at that election?—No, sir.

47,037. Is this all the money you have ever received at elections?—Yes.

47,038. Or in any connected with it?—Yes.

47,039. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you have any refreshment bill in 1865?—No, I had nothing to do with it in any way, no further than I went to record my vote for Mr. Gower.

47,040. In 1863 you received 20*l.* for your room as a committee room; was that a reasonable price for it?—I would not let my rooms upstairs for the money. I should be obliged to drive other trade away.

47,041. And when refreshments were supplied you say you were ill. Was it put down on the slate as settled?—Yes.

47,042. Was anything charged for what was not supplied?—No, sir.

47,043. Or beyond the usual price?—No, sir.

47,044. In October 1858 you were paid 20*l.* for your rooms?—Yes, I think it was 20*l.*

47,045. And then Mr. Cape and his clerks paid the money?—Yes, the first part of the time, and the latter Mr. James.

47,046. Had they at any time a notion you were going to vote?—No.

47,047. In '63 it was 13*l.* or 14*l.* for refreshments?—Yes.

47,048. Mr. James had your house then?—Yes.

47,049. Were those refreshments supplied to Mr. James?—No; when they had a committee they had refreshments. I supplied what they ordered and charged it.

The witness then withdrew.

G Holden.

GEORGE HOLDEN sworn and examined.

47,050. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are you, Mr. Holden?—A collector of rates.

47,051. A rate collector?—Yes.

47,052. (The Chief Commissioner.) I think you were called to produce the rate books and did so, but were not sworn?—No, I was not sworn.

47,053. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You produced the books without being sworn?—Yes.

47,054. Did you vote at the last election?—No, I thought it was not prudent for me to take any part in it, being a public officer; and also in 1863 I had a vote, but I took no part for the same reason, being a parish officer. In 1859 I voted for Mr. Wilkinson.

47,055. Were you a parish officer then?—No, I was not.

46,056. You took a part in that election?—Yes. Myself with some others thought we would try what could be done without canvassers or paid agents; that was the object. I think it is a misnomer to call it a sham election.

47,057. That was the time when Mr. Wilkinson was not here?—He was not here. I do not know whether he knew it, he did not operate.

47,058. Did you vote in the October of 1858?—Yes.

47,059. For whom?—For Mr. Wilkinson.

47,060. Had you been at all engaged as agent?—Yes, by Mr. Cape. I did a great deal of his writing.

47,061. That would be in your profession?—Yes.

47,062. You were paid for that?—Yes. I canvassed with Mr. Norman Wilkinson.

47,063. What were you paid upon that occasion?—I think I was engaged at the rate of 2*l.* a week. My nephew was engaged to do my writing while I was engaged; it was for ten weeks.

47,064. Did you receive the exact amount?—Yes.

47,065. Who paid you?—Mr. Cape, 20*l.*; I believe that was the sum.

47,066. Was that a fair and honest price for the work you did?—It was; I was working eighteen hours out of twenty-four.

47,067. Supposing you had been employed, not on an election matter, but to do the same amount of work, would you have charged at the same rate?—Decidedly.

47,068. Can you give us any information as to the election of 1858?—Yes, sir.

47,069. Anything that fell under your own observation?—Well, there was a great deal of talk about bribery and treating.

47,070. Did any money actually pass through your hands?—Not that election. I cannot remember whether it was in February or October that I had the employment of Mr. Wilkinson's clerk. I rather think it was the February election.

47,071. (The Chief Commissioner.) The February election was Doulton's?—Yes, sir.

47,072. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Who did you vote for?—For Mr. Wilkinson.

47,073. He was not up?—Yes, for nine or ten weeks.

47,074. For whom did you vote?—For Mr. Wilkinson.

47,075. He was not up then?—Yes, for nine or ten weeks.

47,076. I asked you, for whom did you vote?—For Mr. Monson, in opposition to Mr. Doulton, because I considered they had something to do with the tickets, the Rawlinson party.

47,077. Do you know anything of the balloting in 1858?—Yes; the arrangement between the candidates was that tickets were to be sent, three names, and that every elector who had promised his vote to Sir Henry Rawlinson or Mr. Monson were to abstain altogether from the ballot. I was acquainted with some of those names at the time, but I cannot call them to memory now. The ballot was held at my house, and many persons who had promised for Sir Henry Rawlinson, and others, came and balloted against the candidate who was against being outballoted.

47,078. Do you know of any money being used of your own knowledge?—Yes, there was money used at my gate, 5*s.* a vote. I was told of that, but I did not believe it, and I went out purposely in order to see, and I met a man who said he would go with me in company, intending to speak to Mr. Doulton about it. I believe, if my memory serves me right, I met Mr. Doulton at the "Warwick Arms," and spoke to him about it, saying the ballot would be stopped unless personal interference was abstained from; and he said he would go away.

47,079. How far was Mr. Doulton from your school room on that occasion?—About 100 yards. It was agreed the candidates were to abstain making their personal appearance in the street at the time of the ballot.

47,080. He was the only gentleman, the only candidate you saw there?—Yes; my wife saw him out of one of the windows.

47,081. And a messenger took you down to him?—Yes, he said he had been seen.

47,082. Do you know anything else as to the balloting?—Only that the tickets had been bought up, and parties were going round.

47,083. You did not know that, I suppose, of your own knowledge?—No, I did not.

47,084. Now tell me about the election of 1858, in which you paid some money?—It was in 1858.

47,085. In January or October; what money did you disburse?—I do not know the amount.

47,086. From whom did you receive it?—From Mr. Cape.

47,087. What amount?—It might be 40*l.*

47,088. To one man?—Oh, no; a good deal for bill sticking. It was for work done, rent of room, bill sticking. I should think there was as much bill sticking that election as the two others together; there were so many scurrilous letters.

47,089. How many voters did you employ?—I abstained purposely employing voters. I only employed voters if I could not get the others.

The witness then withdrew.

George Augustus Cape sworn and examined.

G. A. Cape.

47,090. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—An accountant.

47,091. Do you live in London?—Yes; No. 3, Adelaide-place, London Bridge.

47,092. Have you any connexion at all with Reigate?—I have no connexion whatever with Reigate. My introduction to Reigate was through Mr. William Arthur Wilkinson. I had known him many years, and he had been a very good friend to me, and I had his confidence.

47,093. The late Mr. Wilkinson?—The late Mr. William Arthur Wilkinson.

47,094. In 1865 were you in any way employed at the election?—I attended on the day of polling, at Mr. Smith's request, to take charge of the booth at the new town hall. I represented Mr. Gower. He wanted somebody who knew something about that sort of business.

47,095. To take charge of the booth, where?—At the new town hall, Reigate.

47,096. That was on the polling day?—Yes.

47,097. When did you come down here?—I came down here the night before, because I had to be in attendance at 8 o'clock in the morning.

47,098. Did you stay after the election?—I went down by the next train after the election was over.

47,099. And those duties you performed which they engaged you to perform?—I did.

47,100. Afterwards how were you paid for your services?—By a cheque, I think, from Mr. Smith.

47,101. Then in 1863, had you been here then?—In 1863 I did the same duty for Mr. Wilkinson.

47,102. How long had you been here?—I must have come down the night before. I do not know whether I slept at Mr. Norman Wilkinson's, but I came down the night before I attended. I attended there as a friend; I did not receive any pay at all.

47,103. That is all you know about 1863. You took no other part in the election?—No other part in the election whatever; I had nothing to do with it.

47,104. Now we go back to the general election in 1859. Did you have anything to do with that?—I had nothing to do with that in any way; it has escaped my recollection.

47,105. Then we go back to October 1858. Had you anything to do with that?—At that election I was Mr. Wilkinson's agent for election expenses. At that time it was necessary (I do not know whether it is now) to send in the account of an agent to the auditor.

47,106. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) That was under the Act of 1854?—Yes.

47,107. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you take part in that election before the polling?—Oh, yes, I think I was down here and up in town looking after the business of the election for 12 or 13 weeks. I am not sure, but it was for a very considerable time.

47,108. You were the head agent?—I was agent for election expenses at that time during the progress of the canvassing. I do not know how many weeks then, but for some time before Mr. Humphreys came down; he worked with me in the matter, not as agent for the election expenses, but he came to act on the election.

47,109. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He is the coroner?—Yes.

47,110. (The Chief Commissioner.) About how long was that?—I should say perhaps it was a month or six weeks. It is eight years ago; it is a considerable period.

THIRTY-FIRST DAY.

G. A. Cape.

26 Sept. 1866.

47,111. Do you know what he came down as?—No.

47,112. He came down to assist you. Do you know whether he was a sort of agent?—I do not think there was any formal agent.

47,113. You were paid?—Mr. Humphreys was a solicitor, and I was not a solicitor. I think perhaps during the course of the election it was thought there ought to be a solicitor in the matter.

47,114. You do not know whether he was a paid agent?—Oh, yes; a cheque either passed through my hands, or I returned it in the election account. He was a paid agent, precisely like myself.

47,115. I suppose Mr. Humphreys was not a voter for Reigate?—No.

47,116. Then if you were here 11 or 12 weeks before, you were here of course during the election?—Oh, yes; I stayed all through the election, and paid all the accounts before the election and everything after the election. I had the whole of the money through my hands.

47,117. You think the whole of the money that Mr. Wilkinson spent went through your hands?—I have not a doubt that all the money from Mr. William Arthur Wilkinson went through my hands.

47,118. Did you require money previous to the election during the canvassing?—I did, and I had cheques from him.

47,119. From whom?—From Mr. Wilkinson.

47,120. Whose cheques were they?—They were his own cheques; I will not say whether they were drawn in his own name or not, but I know they were his own cheques, and on Jones, Lloyd, & Co. I think some were on William Arthur and Norman Wilkinson & Co.; I am not sure about that.

47,121. Some of the cheques may have been drawn?—I do not think there were; I cannot recollect how the cheques were drawn.

47,122. Some of the cheques may have been drawn by the Company of William Arthur Wilkinson?—William Arthur Wilkinson.

47,123. What I want to know is, who drew the cheques?—William Arthur Wilkinson.

47,124. Are you able to say he did in all instances?—I have not a doubt.

47,125. Were they drawn on his bankers?—Yes, I think so.

47,126. Can you recollect what bank they were drawn on?—I cannot recollect.

47,127. You may recollect who his bankers were?—I know it was Jones, Lloyd, & Co.

47,128. Have you any recollection that any of the cheques were drawn on Jones, Lloyd, & Co.?—I have no doubt they were.

47,129. After the election how did you get money for paying the bills?—From Mr. Wilkinson.

47,130. And in what way?—By cheque.

47,131. Then I will call it his cheques too. I am anxious to know whether they were drawn by himself or drawn by him on behalf of the Company. I do not know whether he had power to draw cheques?—I cannot tell you, but I know they were his cheques.

47,132. What did you get money for previous to that election?—To pay the canvassers and clerks and a number of people. I think I must say that prior to that election it was lawful for the agent for the election expenses to pay the current expenses provided he made the return to the election auditor; afterwards, after the election, all the payments had to be sanctioned by the election auditor.

47,133. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Had to be sent to him, submitted to, and sanctioned by him?—Submitted to and sanctioned by him. I think I paid all that was necessary to be paid prior to the election myself. After the election I paid everything, every farthing that was paid, under the authority of the election auditor. I made the return to the election auditor, showing the amount that was paid prior to the election and the amount paid after the election. If the officer is here, or you have his papers relating to the election, it will show you the amounts paid and possibly shorten the Inquiry. I must speak from memory, because those documents in the mass were retained by him; but I have with me, and it may shorten it, the amounts paid after the election with his authority for paying them, and I will hand it in. (The witness handed the documents in.) The accounts were sent to me, and I examined them to see if they were correct, and then I sent them to Mr. Henneker, the election auditor, and he returned them to me for me to pay them.

47,134. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) These are the original documents?—The very papers, I should say.

47,135. (The Chief Commissioner.) Are these accounts contained in this document an account of expenses all incurred before the election?—All incurred before the election. There may be some few pounds after the election in respect of little expenses down here.

47,136. But all that are here are all expenses returned before the election?—Yes, before the election; but the accounts came in afterwards, the money was not paid before the election.

47,137. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Instead of the money being actually paid through the election auditor he ordered you to pay it?—Yes, he ordered me as election agent to pay it. I was going to say this: after I paid those various amounts I made up my account, and I had a receipt, I believe, for almost everything. I see by my diary that on the 24th of January 1859 I went over it to Mr. Wilkinson, and he expressed himself perfectly satisfied that the case was so, and I retained the vouchers; and I also retained detailed accounts at the election of 1863, when I was not acting for Mr. Wilkinson, but Mr. James was. I sent in the accounts and all those things which I thought would be useful to him, otherwise I should have those for you at this time. I should say also, that there should be another thing, that there should be another list there to make it complete. There should be a list of things that I refused to pay. Those were all admitted by me, and consequently I got them back again; but there were number of things sent in for refreshments and other things which I refused to pay, and consequently the list would go to Mr. Henneker as a list of things not admitted. There was a list of that sort.

47,138. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Which was not returned?—Which was not returned.

47,139. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Perhaps he might have paid?—No, those I admitted were paid.

47,140. Those you admitted he sent back to you again?—Yes.

47,141. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) He had no control over the accounts?—Yes; the only thing is, I sent in the accounts, and if there had been any refreshments he might have called my attention to it.

47,142. If you had not admitted any account he could not authorised it?—No.

47,143. (The Chief Commissioner.) I see the sum total is not carried out here?—There are the several amounts I think you will find.

47,144. You forwarded to the auditor, I presume, as much as you admitted?—As much as I admitted. I have one or two of the receipts now.

47,145. According to the account all the monies and expenses, so far as you know, expended previous to the election amount to about 903*l.*, if I have added them rightly?—Yes, there is my own account and Mr. Henneker's; there is very little difference in these accounts, because if they had admitted an account I tried to arrange it with the party; it would make it 900*l.*; the election cost 1,520*l.*

47,146. These are all the expenses that you know of before the election?—No, not all; I paid some during the election.

47,147. I understood you to say the 900*l.* was all before the election; the others were so small?—No.

47,148. Previous to the election I understood this represented all the amounts paid by you?—No, those are the expenses paid by me after the election for matters incurred previous to the election, and in addition to that there were sums I paid during the election.

47,149. What do you mean by "during the election"?—For the 10 or 12 weeks we were canvassing.

47,150. Before the polling day?—Before the nomination day, and I say that in the accounts returned to the election auditor the total is 1,520*l.*

47,151. I have not got all that yet; I will come to that in a moment. If I understand correctly, this account, or these accounts, were incurred previous to the election, all of them?—Yes.

47,152. You said there might be some one or two that were not, some little things?—Some little things.

47,153. Never mind that then, these accounts are entirely contracted previous to the election?—Yes.

47,154. And those you paid?—Under the authority of the auditor.

47,155. You paid them?—Yes, by cheque.

47,156. Were other expenses incurred subsequently to the election?—That is what I say.

47,157. A very trifling amount?—I was going to say on that that those debts were of very trifling amount; it would be simply the hotel bill; I came down here perhaps four or five times, it would not be more than 5*l.*

47,158. Were there any other expenses incurred after the election?—No.

47,159. Were there any other payments besides those made after the election?—No.

47,160. Then how do you make out the difference between 900*l.* odd and 1,500*l.* odd?—Because the 600*l.* was paid from the commencement of the canvass during the 13 weeks that the work was going on.

47,161. I do not think I quite understand you. I understood that all those expenses —— ?—That is what I returned to the election auditor.

47,162. I am quite aware of that; be so good as to attend to this; those accounts are all of them for expenses previous to the election?—Yes.

47,163. But not of all the expenses?—Not of all the expenses.

47,164. Did you pay these from your bankers. Did you pay these out of your own pocket in the first instance?—I will not be quite sure, but I think I opened a separate account at my bankers for this particular business.

47,165. Did you deposit a certain sum?—I deposited the money as Mr. Wilkinson paid it me.

47,166. He fed you from time to time?—He fed me from time to time. I will not say that it was so, but I dare say he gave me a cheque for 200*l.* or 300*l.* to begin with, and as I found that getting short I applied for more.

47,167. I understand you the expenses that that was to cover were 600*l.*?—Yes.

47,168. Why were they not entered in the election expenses?—They were; I am not making myself clear I am afraid.

47,169. Allow me; the expenses sent in to the election auditor amount, if I added them right, to 900*l.*?—That is not quite right; the expense is sent in to the auditor; the amounts which were paid prior to the nomination, and over which he had no control, are known nothing of till after the election, were 600*l.* Then after the election the agent was at liberty to pay those expenses, only he was bound to have them submitted to the election auditor; after the election I was not at liberty to pay anything until I had the auditor's sanction; if you had the account you would find there are two lines "before nomination" and "after nomi-" nation," and the amounts paid before nomination in one column and the amounts paid after the nomination in the other.

47,170. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And you paid about 600*l.*?—Yes, I paid about 600*l.*

47,171. (The Chief Commissioner.) I still do not understand why you did not return the larger sum to the election auditor; you were placed in possession of it?—I did return the larger sum.

47,172. What was that?—1,520*l.*

47,173. Where is the account of that?—The account is not here. I say that the details of the 1,520*l.* I cannot give you, but the election auditor can.

47,174. But he has not allowed it; you see some portion of the 1,520*l.* the election auditor paid himself?—I will try and make it clear if I can.

47,175. The whole election cost 1,520*l.*?—Yes.

47,176. Why did you not return the 1,520*l.* to the election auditor?—I did return it.

47,177. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) The account would be about 383*l.*?—Well, whatever it is, as agent for the election expenses I paid during the progress of the canvass prior to the nomination certain sums.

47,178. (The Chief Commissioner.) Which were?—Which were not those; which were for canvassers and bill sticking and current expenses. I paid them without reference to the election auditor at all.

47,179. How do you mean without reference to the election auditor?—I will come to that presently; after the election I paid those amounts under his authority. Then when everything was paid I sent to him an account, showing what I had spent previous to the nomination and those accounts which had been paid after the nomination under his authority. You see it is just this, the election auditor had nothing to do with the expenses prior to the nomination. The agent was at liberty to pay, but the only thing was that after the election he was bound to make a return of what he had paid and what was paid before.

47,180. Where is the account which you returned to the election auditor?—With the election auditor.

47,181. He retained this?—Yes.

47,182. Why did he retain that?—Because he wanted my authority to pay them.

47,183. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You were acting at this time as the agent of the auditor, and not of Mr. Wilkinson?—Yes.

47,184. (The Chief Commissioner.) These accounts made it 1,500*l.*?—The whole lot of it is 1,524*l.*

47,185. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You say you have not the vouchers because you sent them to Mr. James?—I have some of the vouchers, but at the time of the election I had all the vouchers for everything, and I went through them with Mr. Wilkinson, and he expressed his astonishment that I was able to get a voucher for everything. A lot of these papers went to Mr. James, as I thought they would be useful.

47,186. During the election, and previous to it, were you aware of any money being paid by any one, not yourself?—I am not aware of any money being paid except by me.

47,187. Mr. Humphreys acted concurrently with you?—With me.

47,188. And he attended you; you drew on your banker for money, which was provided by Mr. Wilkinson?—Yes.

47,189. Did Mr. Humphreys to your knowledge pay any money away?—To my knowledge he did not pay anything except his petty cash when he was travelling.

47,190. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Do not tell us what it was, but did the 1,500*l.* include the amounts?—Yes, they are at the bottom there, and that included the hotel bills of Mr. Humphreys and myself, and our clerks we had down from London (we did not employ Reigate electors for that), and also Mr. Wilkinson's friends; the only hotel bills that were paid for there at Laker's.

47,191. They included that?—Yes.

47,192. (The Chief Commissioner.) Do you remember now whether any cheques were drawn at all except on the account of William Arthur Wilkinson, perhaps you can recollect?—Oh, I cannot recollect; it is eight years since.

47,193. I am not expressing any surprise that you cannot, but I should have liked to have known?—I think if they had been in any other name it would have impressed itself on my memory, because I know Mr. Wilkinson's mode of business very well, and I was not aware of any departure.

THIRTY-FIRST DAY.

G. A. Cape.

26 Sept. 1866.

47,194. Are you aware of any monies at all being paid besides the 1,500*l.* odd on that election?—I am not aware of any.

47,195. Do you know, subsequently to that election, of any bills being sent in to a considerable amount?—No, certainly not; a small amount.

47,196. Very small amounts?—Small amounts; I consider them very small amounts.

47,197. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Not amounting to 200*l.*?—I do not think they did; I should not say that they amounted to anything like that.

47,198. (The Chief Commissioner.) You say you are not aware of any claims being sent in; have you yourself been asked to pay any sums over and above these?—Only small sums.

47,199. We will take the small sums at 50*l.*, or what?—After the election there were perhaps six or seven, or perhaps more, men went to Mr. Wilkinson, saying I had not performed fairly to them and I ought to have paid them, or something of that sort, and he inquired and sent on to me and asked about it, and he did not pay them, they had no claim.

47,200. Did you pay them?—No; they were not paid.

47,201. Those were small things?—Small things entirely.

47,202. I dare say 20*l.* would cover it?—I have no doubt.

47,203. Discharge that from your mind then altogether. Do you know of any other?—No.

47,204. I take your answer in the strictest sense. You are not aware of any other person besides yourself paying out substantial sums during the election?—Certainly not; if any other monies were paid I know nothing about it.

47,205. You do not know it then?—Certainly not; the money I received I had from Mr. William Arthur Wilkinson; I know of no more than that.

47,206. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You had no reason?—No; my instructions from Mr. Wilkinson were very definite indeed.

47,207. (The Chief Commissioner.) What were they?—I was not to allow any colourable employment or anything of that sort, and I was to use the strictest surveillance in the matter; and I tried to carry it out as well as I could.

47,208. Mr. William Arthur Wilkinson was in partnership with his brother, I assume?—I believe he was.

47,209. I thought you told me the partnership did consist of them?—The name of the firm was William Arthur and Norman Wilkinson, but who the parties were I cannot say.

47,210. Did you receive any instructions in 1858 from Mr. Norman Wilkinson?—Instructions in reference to payments?

47,211. Instructions in reference to payments or in reference to employment which would require payments?—Mr. Norman Wilkinson never instructed me in any case; what Mr. Norman Wilkinson used to do, whenever anything was suggested he would come to me and say such and such a thing was suggested, if anything was not well, and sometimes Mr. Norman and I had a difference; it led to differences.

47,212. Was Mr. Norman Wilkinson in the habit of giving you directions as to spending money?—No; but we were continually together.

47,213. No; but you understand my question I think. Did Mr. Norman Wilkinson himself furnish you, during the election or afterwards, with any money?—Certainly not.

47,2014. For it I mean?—Certainly not.

47,215. Now I must ask you this, have you any recollection of receiving any cheque signed by Mr. Norman Wilkinson?—I have no recollection of it at all.

47,216. I do not ask you whether you did or not?—No; I have no recollection. The only way would be in case I wanted a cheque, and Mr. Wilkinson was down here, I would ask Mr. Norman to get the cheque; if such a thing arose that would be so, but I have no recollection of it. If it did it would be at my bankers.

47,217. It would have been in that way?—I have no recollection at all of it.

47,218. May I say, "I have no recollection of any "cheque drawn by Mr. Norman Wilkinson, though I "may have had one or two"?—I do not think you may say that.

47,219. Then, "I have no recollection of receiving "a cheque from Mr. Norman Wilkinson"?—It would not be at all an objectionable thing; but I do not remember it. There have been so many elections since that it has entirely passed from my mind, and I have a difficulty in charging my memory.

47,220. Now you paid several of the voters at the election of 1858 money yourself, I believe?—I paid them no doubt. I think we paid every Saturday, if I recollect rightly.

47,221. I am asking you whether you did not on several occasions pay the voters sums of money?—I think most likely I did.

47,222. How was that?—On Saturday, whenever the pay time came.

47,223. What did you pay them for?—For their services in connexion with the election as canvassers, bill stickers, messengers, and others. I do not think I paid any messengers though, because those were left to Mr. Holden, and he gave vouchers.

47,224. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Bill stickers are an important item in the expenses I am afraid; placarding and that?—Oh, yes.

47,225. I think there was an immense deal of bill stieking on every occasion?—Yes, and a great deal for that election, because they were always writing addresses and everything of that sort and explanations, and you see the election was going on for 12 weeks before it came off.

47,226. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did any one assist you in paying money; mind, I do not mean that any one had any money to pay except from you?—There was a clerk at Laker's hotel, I have no doubt he paid accounts.

47,227. Your clerk?—Yes.

47,228. What is his name?—Thompson; and then Joyes had money to pay.

47,229. Which Joyes?—Frederick Joyes; and Holden.

47,230. Who else had money to pay?—Frederick Joyes and Holden; perhaps if I looked at the list it would tell (the witness looked at the list). I do not think Barker had; Apted had.

47,231. Which Apted?—Job.

47,232. Who else?—I think that is all.

47,233. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Three?—Yes.

47,234. (Mr. Commissioner OBrien.) Was that Thomas Barker you mentioned?—Yes; I do not think Barker had any.

47,235. You do not think he had?—I am quite sure.

47,236. (The Chief Commissioner.) Had these men, Joyes, Holden, and Apted, received money from you to pay away?—Yes.

47,237. I suppose you cannot tell me in what amounts at that time?—I cannot; but they were not in large amounts.

47,238. Did you hand over to Joyes 100*l.*?—Oh, certainly not.

47,239. About what?—About 15*l.* at the outside, and that would be when he brought in his list of people he had canvassed and those under his orders; small sums. I think 40*l.* once or twice would be the highest.

47,240. For Mr. Joyes?—I do not think Mr. Joyes had so much; I think Mr. Apted had.

47,241. How did Mr. Apted get the money?—From me; do you mean by cheque or what.

47,242. I did not mean that, but I will take it if you please?—I cannot tell you that.

47,243. Do you remember whether you gave him that by cheque or cash?—I cannot tell; I should think it would be in cash.

47,244. How did you know what Apted wanted it for?—Because I asked him.

47,245. He came to you and said, "I want money"?—Yes.

47,246. And you did ask him what he wanted it for?—What he wanted it for, and then he would give me a list so-and-so. In many cases I had told him to put on people for canvassers, and I knew that he would require the amount.

47,247. In many cases you told them I will say?—Yes, them.

47,248. "To put on people, and I knew they would "want money to pay them"?—That they would want money to pay them.

47,249. I am speaking only of voters, of course you understand me?—There were some voters, but there were a great many who were not voters.

47,250. Oh, I dare say?—I may state my instructions distinctly were that I was never to put on a voter because he was a voter, but if he was the best man for the work I was not to regard him because he was a voter.

47,251. Joyes was one, and Holden was another; was not Barker another?—I do not think he was; I hardly recollect the man.

47,252. He stated it; it is very difficult to put them all in the right place. Was James Apted another?—I do not think so; I am almost certain he was not.

47,253. I ask you, in 1859 you paid Barker 15*l.*?—14 guineas.

47,254. He says 15*l.*?—He is near right, I dare say he would not recollect exactly.

47,255. Then he did receive money?—Oh, certainly he received money; you were asking me whether he was an agent.

47,256. You are quite correct; you find then that Mazden was paid 10*l.*?—I dare say he was.

47,257. He had a house, had he not, for committee meetings?—Yes, Mazden's committee rooms; 7*l.* 10*s.* was his account.

47,258. 10*l.*?—He may have said so.

47,259. Now you will allow William Spence 13*l.*?—He was a man employed; I recollect he was canvasser down Mead-hole,—Mead-vale. Spence, for instance, was a man who was not too well paid.

47,260. I do not say he was; he was paid for canvassing?—Yes.

47,261. And no money passed through his hands?—No, the arrangement with all these men was that they were to give me the whole of their time.

47,262. You did not make the arrangement?—I did, and I think a man showed you a letter; I think a man of the name of Younger said he received a note from me in 1863.

47,263. No?—Well, I saw it in some of the papers I had.

47,264. I will tell you who you paid. You paid Mark Wicks 1*l.*?—I did not.

47,265. He was paid during the election. Thomas Titchener 25*l.*?—For his house.

47,266. These are voters; William Spence 13*l.*?—Yes.

47,267. There was a man whom I mentioned to you who was paid 7*l.*; he is down there?—7*l.* 3*s.*, I have no doubt that was.

47,268. You said "according to the amount" when I read out Spence's name for 13*l.* You told me that afterwards it was 7*l.*?—No, that was Mazden.

47,269. Mazden was paid 10*l.*?—Yes, for his house.

47,270. Only 7*l.* for his house according to that?—Then that was all that he had.

47,271. He says he got 10*l.*; how do you know that Apted, or Joyes, or Holden did not pay him 3*l.* and charge you for it?—That might be.

47,272. It is very likely, is it not?—I do not think so, because if he had an account that was going on till the end of the election, and he was not to be paid till afterwards, it would all go in one account, and then it would come into this account.

47,273. Might it not be that Apted mentioned the fact to you and said, "I want money to go on with, I "know that Mazden wants 3*l.*"?—I cannot say.

47,274. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What have you got him down for?—The amount that Apted paid would be 13*l.*, but all that would be shown by the account which is with the auditor.

47,275. Have you received any account from Mr. Apted of what money he did in fact pay?—I had the amount for one week; for instance, on the Saturday we will say we had the money to pay the canvassers, before they got any money for the next week I had the accounts and the receipts for the previous week; I would not say that that was an invariable and inflexible rule, but that was the rule.

47,276. That was the system. This was the sort of letter, "I hereby engage your services ——."

47,277. The Chief Commissioner.) Who is that letter from?—From me to George Robson and John Younger.

47,278. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That is a formal letter, a model letter?—Yes.

47,279. The Chief Commissioner.) Will you let me have that letter?—Yes, and there are the accounts. (The letter was handed in.) At the back of the notices in every house taken either as a posting house, or as a committee room, there was a notice that we would not be answerable for any refreshments supplied. At the commencement of the election we made an arrangement with all the men what we should pay them.

47,280. Whether voters or not?—Yes.

47,281. Do you know what the constituency amounted to?—It was between 500 and 600 at that time.

47,282. It was nearer five, was it not?—I fancy it was 540.

47,283. In '59 it was 540?—At the beginning of the year it was 505.

47,284. I understand from my friend that it would be the same then, it may be so; it was 505 in the first election, what we call Mr. Doulton's election?—It was 505.

47,285. We will take it at 505; it would continue to go on until October, it does not change until the 1st of November; 505 would be the amount of the constituency at that time, and at that time you said that the whole expense of Mr. Wilkinson's election was, what?—1,524*l.*

47,286. You were beaten at that election?—By 15 votes.

47,287. How many did you poll?—220, was it? Somewhere there or thereabouts. I do not think I can tell you exactly.

47,288. 15 was the majority?—Yes, I think it was; 210 and 225.

47,289. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) And 223?—It was 15 majority; I have that number very clearly impressed on my recollection; I had good reason to remember it.

47,290. (The Chief Commissioner.) 505 appears to have been the number of the electors?—That would be a very large number to vote considering that it was at the end of the register, and a number must have been dead; it was a very large number to vote.

47,291. Did you yourself, during that election, make any payment with your own hand to voters, because from their evidence I understand and infer that you did?—No, I do not think I did. I am almost certain I did not.

47,292. I think you did; from their evidence I judge so. I will tell you the men whom I think you paid money to if you like?—It is quite possible I did.

47,293. I want to know whether it passed out of your hands to the voters, that is what I am trying to find out; did you pay them yourself?—I should not hesitate to do so; if I had been in the committee room, and they came in, I might have paid them.

47,294. That increases the probability that you did so?—Yes; that was not the rule.

THIRTY-1ST DAY.

A. Cape.

3 Sept. 1866.

47,295. No, the rule was for Apted, Joyes, and Holden to pay them?—Well, those very men, Younger and Robson, or whatever their names are, I think that the probabilities are, that I or my clerk would pay them, because they were put on directly, not by any of the sub-agents.

47,296. John Younger states that he was paid 7*l.*, and received it from you?—Very likely; that was 7*s.* 6*d.* a day; there is his agreement.

47,297. "I paid some of the voters"?—I do not say I did; I think it is a very probable thing.

47,298. I am calling your attention to it; now John Peters?—45*s.* a week; he would have three weeks.

47,299. I do not care so much about the amount, I want to see whether I was correct that you paid them. Did you not pay Robert Legg 9*l.* 10*s.*?—I think so; I should think very likely by cheque; I see by the list here it was 18*l.* by cheque after the election.

47,300. Robert Legg says he received 9*l.* 10*s.*?—He received 18*l.*

47,301. He told us 9*l.* 10*s.* Did you not pay a man named Henry Sendall 2*l.*?—Laker's gardener; it is very possible I may have; he would be attached to Laker's hotel, and if he had done the work, either I or the clerk there would pay him.

47,302. In all probability you did, because he said so?—Very possibly.

47,303. I also think you paid Mark Wicks 1*l.*?—I do not recollect; I cannot say.

47,304. May I take it that "Some small sums in "money, not in cheques, some small sums in money I "paid to voters," may I take that?—You may take it, sir, that I paid the voters for canvassing or for certain business; I should have no objection to what you said, only it does not go out in that way; the answer gets down very differently.

47,305. You are quite right; "Some of the voters "I myself paid small sums for canvassing, I mean not "in cheques"?—Not in cheques.

47,306. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I think I understood that those were persons who you yourself had put on, and you knew they were doing the work?—Yes; for instance, that man Sendall was a man who worked like a nigger, that fellow was always at work, and he was attached to Mr. Laker's establishment and was about all times; if ever I wanted to send off, or if ever I wanted a thing done, he was always ready to go.

47,307. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you pay Thomas Titchener?—There it is in that list under the authority of the auditor.

47,308. Do you recollect John Peters; I mentioned him to you?—It is a long while ago.

47,309. I want to take one instance, may I say Sendall, you remember Mr. Laker's gardener?—Oh, yes; I am surprised to hear it was only 2*l.* What was the last name?

47,310. Sendall?—Before that.

47,311. Peters?—I do not recollect that.

47,312. After you had been some time employed Mr. Humphreys came down and joined you?—Yes.

47,313. Were you made aware by him or by Mr. Wilkinson what he came down for?—No, I was not.

47,314. By either of them?—I was not; merely to give me general assistance.

47,315. That is what he did come for; I mean, were you informed of that?—All that did pass between Mr. Wilkinson and myself on the matter as near as I can recollect is this, "Humphreys is coming down, "or is come down." I had known Mr. Humphreys before, something of him, and Mr. Wilkinson said, "Mind, Mr. Cape, I look to you with reference to the expenditure, I hold you answerable."

47,316. Do you pledge yourself what was said was to that effect?—To that effect. I will not be certain as to the words, but it made an impression on my mind that I recollect it.

47,317. "Mind, Cape, I hold you responsible"?—Yes, "I look to you as to the expenses," or words to that effect, "that you must keep the expenditure in "your hands."

47,318. "I look to you for the expenditure"?—Or words to that effect.

47,319. I will say so. When Mr. Humphreys presented himself did he give you to understand what he came down for?—No, the only thing that I understood from him was, that he had come down to assist me generally, and I was exceeding glad to get an assistant; the matter was then getting excessively pressing, I was eight years younger than I am now, and there were a number of men continually coming to me and telling me that I was starving the election, and that sort of thing, at least the word starving was not used, but they said I was mean, with very many adjectives. The thing was very pressing. I felt the responsibility on the one hand of having to account to Mr. Wilkinson, and on the other hand of losing the election.

47,320. Tell me any names of any persons coming to you to tell you that?—The canvassers, most of them, Joyes and Apted, and others; those representations I know were made to Mr. Norman Wilkinson and others.

47,321. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And brought to you?—And brought to me. And there was a great deal of misunderstanding about the matter; it was excessively trying.

47,322. (The Chief Commissioner.) Mr. Holden came and brought you those representations?—Mr. Holden I knew something of before.

47,323. Take it in this way, "Mr. Joyes and Mr. "Apted, and the sub-agents, came to me before Mr. "Humphreys came down to say that I was starving "the election, or to that effect"?—Yes, a deputation came down to that effect, and said I was so mean, and a very strong adjective.

47,324. Who headed it?—I know Mr. Joyes was in it, and Mr. Langridge I recollect. I was coming out of Mr. Laker's hotel, and met them on the steps.

47,325. Do you remember whether anybody besides Mr. Langridge and Mr. Joyes were in it?—I cannot charge my memory to say who was in it, but I recollect their coming up the steps.

47,326. Do you recollect about how soon before the polling day that was?—Oh, a considerable time before.

47,327. So that these things coming in you were very glad to get Mr. Humphreys?—I was very glad; there was this responsibility upon me, and I could see that Mr. Wilkinson's friends were thinking that all was not being done that ought to be done.

47,328. You mentioned that they went to Mr. Norman Wilkinson?—They told him, and made complaints to him. He did not tell me that in so many words, but I could see as he walked about what he fancied.

47,329. Did Mr. Norman Wilkinson come to you and say that he thought you were—?—No, he never used words of that sort.

47,330. Did he suggest anything?—No, he never suggested to me anything. I could see what his impression was, but he never said anything.

47,331. I do not know that there is anything more. That is all in the election of October '58?—Yes.

47,332. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You were in the February election?—Yes, I was.

47,333. (The Chief Commissioner.) Both in October '58 and February '58?—Yes.

47,334. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Were you conducting agent?—Yes, for the time it was on.

47,335. (The Chief Commissioner.) You were agent in February '58?—Yes.

47,336. For Mr. Wilkinson?—For Mr. Wilkinson.

47,337. Had you come down some time before the election?—I can tell you when.

47,338. Before we go to that election, you know representations had been made to you in the election that we have been talking about in October, 1858, about starving the election, or whatever it was; now, in consequence of those representations, did you, in fact, relax a little, and open your hand a little more than you had been doing?—I do not think I did. I went carefully into it, and I will not say that one or two more canvassers, or something of that sort, may have been put on, but not to any extent.

47,339. "I do not think I relaxed in consequence, "perhaps a very little;" shall I say so?—Yes, I should not be more stringent.

47,340. You were agent in February '58 for Mr. Wilkinson?—I was.

47,341. And were you down canvassing for him some time before the election came off?—I should think three or four weeks, four weeks. I looked at my diary yesterday, and I think I can give you the dates about that.

47,342. I will do this shorter; through whom was money paid away in that election?—By me only.

47,343. How did you get your money?—From Mr. Wilkinson in the same way.

47,344. Just let me see if my impression is correct. The money was paid by Mr. Wilkinson into your bankers, and you drew a cheque for it?—It was paid to me first, and then it went into the bank.

47,345. Into your bank?—Yes. In the election of October 1858 I opened a separate account, but I am not quite sure whether I did in February; it was a small matter.

47,346. This was a small matter of '58?—Oh yes.

47,347. How?—The expenses were only about between three and four hundred pounds. I think they were about 400*l.*

47,348. The total?—Yes, but every paper connected with that I sent to Mr. Wilkinson; you see we were not candidates; there was a question about whether we were or not. There were none sent to any auditor.

47,349. Not candidates?—Not within the meaning of the Act.

47,350. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You were not present at the election?—No, we retired some time before.

47,351. (The Chief Commissioner.) About how long before do you recollect?—I should think three weeks.

47,352. You did as much as that?—Yes, we went the wrong way.

47,533. Did you take your departure after Mr. Wilkinson retired?—Directly after Mr. Wilkinson retired I went away. I did not act in these matters; it was only for Mr. Wilkinson.

47,354. Then the 400*l.*, therefore, was all disbursed previous to the election; the expenses were incurred?—Yes, I have got the dates of that. I can give you the exact dates of the time we were down here. I know it was about four weeks—oh, I see I have not got them, but I think it was about from the 5th of January.

47,355. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) It was a much shorter time; it was represented as being about a fortnight or three weeks?—Yes, I do not recollect the time.

47,356-7. You were employed about four weeks for him; can you tell me the names of the persons whom you employed under you as sub-agents?—I cannot. Mr. Joyes was one.

47,858. Frederick?—Yes. Legg was another; Holden was another, because the ballot was held in his room.

47,359. In his school room?—Yes; I cannot recollect who the others were.

47,360. Do you think you had any fresh ones at the end of the year, in October?—Yes, that was so; you see there were a number let loose in October; they were not tied to Sir Henry Rawlinson, and therefore I have no doubt I secured some of those who were previously engaged. I may as well just mention one thing with reference to the expenses; in one particular they would be a deal heavier for the time, because I made the bargain with the sub-agents and others for the time, and they had a short time in that election, and therefore they had the best of it in that election; instead of its lasting ten weeks it only lasted three or four weeks.

47,361. Were the expenses in that election made in the same way as in the election of October?—Yes, very much.

47,362. That is, by putting on canvassers?—Yes.

47,363. And I suppose I may take it that many of the canvassers were voters?—Some.

47,364. Many I say?—I can go as far as some, but I cannot charge my memory with reference to whether there were many.

47,365. Who put them on; the sub-agents or you?—They were put on in that election by me, but entirely under the advice of the sub-agents, because I had never been in Reigate before.

47,366. Who paid them?—Oh! I paid them, I believe; at least, they were paid under my direction; I cannot now say as to that election.

47,367. I think I can assist you to a very small extent; I can, perhaps, remind you?—It would make no difference, I suppose, to them from whom they received the money.

47,368. James Apted at that time was paid by you, was he not?—I cannot say.

47,369. I think he was; 10*l.*?—Very likely.

47,370. He says so?—I will not say he was not.

47,371. Do you remember James Apted?—I recollect now he was paid at one election when he worked for us, and he may have received the money; I know the man by sight and I know he worked for us, and if I had only been engaged in one election I should have no hesitation in saying he was the man.

47,372. Yes, I reserved him for October. Were the canvassers paid by you or by the sub-agents, who got the money from you?—I fancy they were mostly paid by the sub-agents; I should say they were very much in the same way as the other election.

47,373. Now then, tell me this; do you not recollect whether you paid any of the canvassers who were voters in the election of February '58?—I cannot tell you.

47,374. I have endeavoured to call your attention to James Apted?—I think there was a man named Wilkinson, I do not remember what I paid him, but I remember his name in connexion with the election.

47,375. Who paid the sub-agents?—I did.

47,376. When; after the work was over?—I expect I paid them their own fees after the work was over.

47,377. Besides money which you gave them to pay away; you paid them their own fees?—Yes.

47,378. Did you pay them their own fees separately in the election of 1858 in October, the second election?—I expect I did, I think they were mostly amounts to be paid by cheques, and every Saturday I had to pay by cheque.

47,379. I do not know whether the name of Mark Wicks will recall your paying him?—No, I do not remember Mark Wicks; if there was anything to call it to my mind I might, if I saw his face I might remember.

47,380. And then you would not remember which election?—No.

47,381. By-the-by, with reference to the 400*l.*, you have included your own fee in that?—Yes.

47,382. The placarding?—Yes; I am assuming that we are upon the Doulton election. I said the expenses were 400*l.*, and my fee in that would be a large amount.

47,383. Your fee was included in the 400*l.*?—Yes; and placarding and issuing addresses, and everything; it is 400*l.* within a few pounds.

THIRTY-RST DAY.

. A. Cape.

Sept. 1866.

47,384. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) As to the placarding, the advertising, and all that, that was as expensive to you as if you had gone to poll?—Yes.

47,385. You had to lay out every farthing as if you were going to poll?—Yes; and all the agents we had to pay, and there were some expenses we had to pay over the ballot.

47,386. (The Chief Commissioner.) Do you know anything about the ballot?—Yes, a good deal.

47,387. Are you aware of its being an expensive proceeding?—When you say expensive, it was not an expensive proceeding.

47,388. Was it made so?—By some of the candidates.

47,389. Were you aware of it?—Oh, yes, because I was aware of this after we had sent out. Mr. Barton, Mr. Doulton's agent, Mr. Cross, Mr. Walters' agent, and myself, sat up all night while we put them in the envelopes, each of us.

47,390. Your own ticket?—To each man.

47,391. That would be a great expense?—And we did it jointly to see that there was one of each, and as fast as they were going out on the one hand, there were some who were buying up Mr. Wilkinson's tickets as soon as they could; I think they got 5*s.* for each.

47,392. Those tickets went to the fire?—Yes; at the ballot the tickets came down to two or three in the box; the whole thing had passed away; we saw that we had no chance in the election, so I thought it was better to lose on the ballot. Sir Henry Rawlinson was sure of being returned.

47,393. Did you do anything in buying up tickets?—Certainly not.

47,394. Did you yourself employ persons to buy up?—Certainly not.

47,395. Are you aware of anybody doing it?—It was not done; Mr. Wilkinson did not.

47,396. You did not?—And I am sure Mr. William Arthur Wilkinson did not.

47,397. That reminds of a question, a particular one; are you aware of Mr. Wilkinson paying any election money except through you?—Certainly not.

47,398. Do you believe he did?—I do not believe he paid any monies.

47,399. Do you believe he paid any monies except through you in the October election?—Certainly not; I believe he did not pay any money except through me, but the cheque for Mr. Humphreys, that was sent by him direct to Mr. Humphreys after the election; that I believe he did himself, and that was the only thing.

47,400. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Now, Mr. Cape, I am very glad at having this opportunity of seeing you. You conducted the election in '58; I ask you, in appointing sub-agents did you use your best discretion entirely irrespective of whether they had votes or not?—Oh, entirely.

47,401. I take it most implicitly?—You are very kind to say that, but I will tell you why; my clerks I brought down, I would not employ electors or people here at all; I brought them down.

47,402. And so far as your selection of canvassers and sub-agents went, was it directed entirely by your belief in their efficiency?—Yes, in their efficiency.

47,403. From their knowledge of the electors?—From their knowledge of the electors.

47,404. Was it in any way put forward as a consideration for their employment, either directly or indirectly, that they should give their votes?—It was never mentioned in any way whatever.

47,405. Either directly or indirectly?—Neither directly or indirectly; it was never made a matter of discussion.

47,406. Or consideration?—Or consideration.

47,407. And does that include all the sub-agents, as well as canvassers, that you employed yourself?—That I employed myself entirely, and in posting at the public houses as well; the arrangement made with the public houses was for the whole time, and I am quite sure we took the worth of that we paid them, for we had meetings every night.

47,408. In doing that did you understand that you were carrying out strictly and not only the letter?—Not only the letter, but the spirit of my client's instructions.

47,409. And of the Act?—Entirely. I had seen Mr. Wilkinson lose elections before, and I knew he could bear to do that, but I knew he could not bear to lose the petition.

47,410. Did any money pass through your hands during these elections without having received a regular receipt?—I received a voucher in every case, and where a man could not write, which was often, I had their marks.

47,411. And did you account to Mr. Wilkinson for every shilling of the money that passed through your hands?—For every shilling that passed through my hands, I went through the whole of them in his presence.

47,412. Not from memory?—No.

47,413. Do you recollect how soon before the polling day it was that these gentlemen came to you to say that there were not sufficient canvassers, or something of that kind; that you were starving the election?—I cannot recollect how long, I recollect the fact, because it made a very strong impression on my mind.

47,414. I want to know not whether you employed more canvassers or not, but did you increase the fee of any of the men you had canvassed before?—Certainly not; I thought that was the object of it, I had got the agreement for a time.

47,415. May I take it that you did not increase the fee of any men you had employed before as canvassers?—No, certainly I did not.

The witness then withdrew.

R. Knight.

RICHARD KNIGHT sworn and examined.

47,416. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—A cowman.

47,417. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

47,418. What rent do you pay, about; do you pay 10*l.*, or more than that?—More than that.

47,419. 15*l.*?—Yes, I think so; I have forgotten.

47,420. Who did you vote for, Mr. Gower or Mr. Monson?—Mr. Monson.

47,421. Were you on his committee, do you recollect?—No.

47,422. Who asked you to vote for Mr. Monson?—Thomas Corderoy.

47,423. Where were you living then?—At Bickley.

47,424. Who came to Bickley to fetch you?—Thomas Corderoy.

47,425. He came himself?—He sent for me.

47,426. Who did he send?—He came himself; he came to ask me to canvass for Mr. Monson.

47,427. And you said you would?—Yes.

47,428. When did you come here, how long before the election?—The same day; I came right down just in time.

47,429. The same day that he came for you?—No.

47,430. Did you come here on the day of election?—Yes, just in time to vote.

47,431. Did Corderoy pay you any money?—Yes; at least he gave me something to pay my expenses down.

47,432. That was before you came?—Yes.

47,433. And what did he give you after; 3*l.*?—3*l.*

47,434. How long were you here?—I was not here long; I went back again as soon as I had given my vote.

47,435. You came here and went home the same day?—Yes.

THIRTY-FIRST DAY.

R. Knight.

26 Sept. 1866.

47,436. Were you living at Bickley then ?—Yes.
47,437. How long had you been living there ?—A year and a half, I should think.
47,438. A year and a half ?—Yes.
47,439. Had you been in any other election ?—No.
47,440. That was your only election ?—That was my first election.
47,441. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) That was the only time you came over to Reigate when you came over to vote ?—Yes.
47,442. You came over before the election ?—No ; I did not come over.
47,443. I thought you said that you were to canvass? —No.
47,444. Corderoy asked you to come and canvass ? —No, I did not understand ; he asked me to give my vote ; that is what I meant to say.
47,445. (The Chief Commissioner.) Do you know Turner who was working there ?—A butcher ?
47,446. Yes ?—Yes.
47,447. You were at Bickley at the same time ?—Yes.
47,448. Is he here now ?—I have not seen him.
47,449. Where is he now ?—I have seen him there.
47,450. Did you see Corderoy with him ?—No.
47,451. Did Turner come over here ?—He was here the same time as I was.
47,452. Who did he vote for ?—For Mr. Leveson Gower.
47,453. He voted the other side ?—Yes, he did not vote when I did.
47,454. Did you come together ?—No, we went back together.
47,455. Did you hear how much money he had had ? —No, nor yet anything ; I never asked him any questions, nor he me.
47,456. Did you tell him how much money you had had ?—No, not a word ; there was not a word spoken.
47,457. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Turner lives there now, does he ?—Yes.
47,458. (The Chief Commissioner.) He is there now, is he ?—Yes, I believe so ; I saw him there about a week ago.

The witness withdrew.

Adjourned until half-past 11 o'clock the next morning.

THIRTY-SECOND DAY.

THIRTY-SECOND DAY.

Thursday, 27th September 1866.

G. Smith.

27 Sept. 1866.

GIDEON SMITH sworn and examined.

47,459. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you ? —A carman.
47,460. I believe you voted in 1865 for this borough ?—Yes.
47,461. What rent do you pay for your house ?—40*l.* a year.
47,462. For whom did you vote ?—Mr. Monson.
47,463. Were you on his committee ?—No.
47,464. Who asked you to vote for him ?—Mr. Monson.
47,465. And who afterwards ? I suppose you had some talk with some agents ?—No, sir.
47,466. Were you to have anything before you voted or after ?—No, sir.
47,467. There was no arrangement made ?—No, sir.
47,468. Before you voted did you receive anything ? No, not a farthing.
47,469. After you voted did you receive anything ? No, sir, not a farthing.
47,470. You are sure you did not ?—Yes.
47,471. Did you know Mr. Steer at that time ?—Yes.
47,472. Which ?—I believe it is the Steer in Station-road, Richard Steer.
47,473. Do you know any other Steer ?—No, I do not.
47,474. Well, Mr. Steer asked you to vote for Mr. Monson ?—No, he did not.
47,475. Did he not talk to you about your vote ?—He did not indeed, he met me one day and asked me if I was going the same way.
47,476. Had you promised your vote before he spoke to you ?—Yes, for months to Mr. Monson.
47,477. Before you spoke to Steer ?—Yes.
47,478. What more passed between you and Mr. Steer ?—Nothing more particularly.
47,479. Did he go to the poll with you or anything of that kind ?—No.
47,480. Did he agree he would go with you on the polling day ?—No.
47,481. Or meet you ?—No.
47,482. Do you remember seeing him on the polling day ?—No, I never troubled myself about the polling ; I told him I should vote for Mr. Monson, and there was an end of it.
47,483. Do you recollect seeing Mr. Steer on the polling day and talking to him about the election ?—No.
47,484. Were you doubting at all about whom you should vote for at any time ?—No, not at all.
47,485. Did Mr. Richard Steer secure your vote ? Nobody secured my vote at all, I promised my vote to Mr. Monson at the first onset.
47,486. I agree to that, but did Mr. Steer secure your vote, tell me, in any way ?—Oh no, Mr. Steer had nothing to do with the poll with me.
47,487. He need not have commanded you, but he might have influenced you by his talk, did he ?—No.
47,488. I will tell you why I asked you ; when Mr. Steer was here he was asked whether he had secured any votes for Mr. Monson, and he said three, and that one was Gideon Smith ; was that correct ?—No.
47,489. Did anything pass between you that might have led Mr. Steer to suppose he had secured your vote ?—All that passed was this : he met me in the Station-road by accident and asked me which way I was going, whether I would go his side ; I said, I was going to vote for Mr. Monson, and he said, "Yes."
47,490. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You had promised Mr. Monson before you met Steer, as you say, by accident ?—Yes, I had promised him six or seven weeks before.

The witness then withdrew.

E. Hooper.

EBENEZER HOOPER sworn and examined.

47,491. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What are you ? —I was a tanner in Reigate.
47,492. How long have you left the borough ?—Two years this week.
47,493. When was the first election in which you were in any way concerned ?—Mr. Hackblock's.
47,494. You are not now on the register ?—No.
47,495. And you have left the town for the last two

THIRTY-SECOND DAY.

E. Hooper.

27 Sept. 1866.

years ?—I voted at the last election, for my name was on the register.

47,496. Although you had left the town two years ?—Two years now, but at the time of the election I had left it but a few months.

47,497. What rent did you pay for your house ?—They are my own premises.

47,498. What were they rated at ?—80*l.* or 90*l.*

47,499. For whom did you vote at the last election ?—I voted for Mr. Gower.

47,500. Did you take an active part for Mr. Gower ?—No.

47,501. Not on his committee ?—No ; I live in Essex.

47,502. You came up from Essex to vote for Mr. Gower ?—Yes, at the last election.

47,503. Were you written to to come up ?—Yes, I received several letters, some from Mr. Gower and some from his committee, and some from Mr. Monson's party.

47,504. You were canvassed by both parties ?—Yes.

47,505. Did you come up free, or did you charge your expenses ?—I knew Mr. Gower, I had done business for him when I was here, and I voted for him. On the last occasion he wrote to me and asked me for my vote if I was satisfied with his conduct ; I wrote to say that he might have my vote, but I did not wish the trouble of coming unless it was necessary. He wrote to say he was obliged by the promise of my vote, and would be glad if I voted, for though he felt sure of being returned, yet he should like the majority to be as large as possible.

47,506. Was anything said about expenses ?—Not by Mr. Gower ; one of his committee wrote.

47,507. Which ?—Bichcliff, I think was his name, the one who wrote for Mr. Gower, and a Mr. Newcombe for Mr. Monson, and here is his letter (handing in a paper writing). In answer to Mr. Bichliff's letter I wrote to say I would come on payment of my expenses.

47,508. (The Chief Commissioner.) You were at Chelmsford at the time ?—Yes, I live there ; I voted for Mr. Gower in '63, and therefore I did the same this last time.

47,509. What did you receive for your expenses ?—The day before the election I received a post-office order for a sovereign, and I thought it rather shabby to pay me only that to come from Chelmsford.

47,510. Who sent the post-office order ?—It was written in a sort of school-boy hand, and was signed "Featherstone." Mr. Rees in his evidence stated he paid me 30*s.* ; that I know nothing about, I received no 30*s.* of Mr. Rees.

47,511. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Or from anybody ?—I received a sovereign.

47,512. Was that all you received ?—I came here on the strength of the sovereign sent for my expenses, but which were not my expenses, for I had to sleep here. If no more had been offered I should not have asked for any, but I met Mr. Bichcliff the next day, who spoke to me about my expenses. I said, "I have "received a sovereign, but that does not cover them." He asked what I would have ; I said my fare was 1*l.* 2*s.*, and that I had to sleep here that night, and I said I thought two guineas was not too much. He spoke about payment ; I said that I had had a sovereign yesterday, and he said he would give me 1*l.* 2*s.*, which he did, and which might just about cover, or a little more, the expense I had been put to ; it certainly did not pay for the loss of my two days' work.

47,513. We will not speak of your work, but did it pay your expenses ?—About that ; my fare was 1*l.* 2*s.*, and I had to sleep here.

47,514. When you voted you had entirely left the place here ?—Yes.

47,515. And were no longer a resident ?—No, and I took no interest in it, except having voted for Mr. Gower at the last election I thought I would this.

47,516. Perhaps you were not aware you had no right to vote ?—No, I was not aware of that, and being written to by both the candidates and my name remaining on the register, I thought I had a right, and that they would know.

47,517. When did you leave here ?—Michaelmas '64.

47,518. The two guineas was all you received ?—Yes.

47,519. You did not receive the 30*s.* from Mr. Rees ?—I received no 30*s.* from him.

47,520. In fact, the only money you received at Chelmsford was the 1*l.* ?—It was only 1*l.* I received while at Chelmsford, and it came in the shape of a post-office order the day before.

47,521. All the other money was paid by Mr. Bichcliff ?—Yes, which I thought was as little as could well be.

47,522. Did you vote in 1863 for Mr. Gower ?—Yes.

47,523. You were then resident in the borough ?—Yes, I resided here.

47,524. Did you take an active part for Mr Gower ?—No, I do not think I was canvassed ; I promised my vote to Mr. Gower, and he had it. I had two men in my employ here, and one, I believe, voted for Mr. Wilkinson. I never troubled myself even about them, except asking how they voted. I believe one voted for Mr. Wilkinson, and one did not vote at all. I voted as I liked, and they did as they pleased. I did not take any interest, except to ask them how they voted.

47,525. You received no money to pass through your hands ?—No.

47,526. And you received nothing for yourself ?—No, nothing.

47,527. We will pass on to '59. I suppose you will say the same as to that election ?—I voted for Mr. Monson in April '59 and in October '58.

47,528. And I suppose you will give the same evidence in regard to those elections as you have done in respect to 1863, that no money passed through your hands or into your hands ?—I never thought of such a thing.

47,529. The election before that was October 1858 ?—Yes.

47,530. Do you say the same as to that election ?—Yes, I voted for Mr. Monson then.

47,531. The election of February '58, did you take part in that ?—Very little ; I voted for Mr. Doulton, and I counted the tickets out of the ballot box. Mr. Alexander was to have done it, but a message coming he could not attend I took his place, and counted the tickets out of the ballot box.

47,532. Where did you count the tickets ?—At the school room, the entrance to the Warwick-road.

47,533. Do you know anothing about the conduct of it ?—Here is a copy of the ticket.

47,534. They are initialed ?—Yes, those were the three candidates ; Walters, Wilkinson, and Doulton.

47,535. And this, you say, was the result of the ballot ; Doulton, 110 ; Wilkinson, 93 ; and Ralph Walters, 23 ; there were 226 who balloted ?—Yes ; these cards were not used, they were cancelled on the previous day. They were bought up, and it being found they were tampered with, they were not used as proposed.

47,536. In what way were they tampered with ?—They had been bought up, principally by Mr. Walters, I believe.

47,537. Was that the reason these were used, because the others had been bought up ?—Yes.

47,538. Is this one of them ?—Yes.

47,539. You produce these tickets supplied to you for the purpose of the ballot ?—Yes ; here is one of the envelopes. They had two stamps on, and there was a circular inside stating that we were to destroy two of the cards and use the one of the candidate who was preferred, either Mr. Walters, Mr. Wilkinson, or Mr. Doulton ; two were to go in the fire. On the morning of the ballot day they gave us three papers with three names on, a name on each; we were to go to the fire-place and put two in, and put one in the ballot box.

47,540. That destroyed the manœuvre of the day before?—Yes.

47,541. Did you see anything of the conduct of that election?—Mr. Doulton came down a stranger introduced by Mr. Roupell, as I understood, and I supposed Sir Henry Rawlinson, from his having been opposed to Mr. Hackblock before. Mr. Hackblock was a friend of mine in London, and Sir Henry Rawlinson opposed him; therefore I was not prepared to support. The next election Mr. Doulton came down, and was introduced as a respectable Liberal gentleman. I did not take much interest in politics at that time. I do not know of any committee that Mr. Doulton had except himself, Mr. William Featherstone, and Mr. Murphy.

47,542. Was anything offered you at that election for your vote?—No.

47,543. I do not mean that you would take it, but was anything offered?—No.

47,544. Did any money pass into or out of your hands in reference to the election?—We were then building a chapel, and it was reported that Mr. Doulton gave 100*l.* towards it; that Mr. Doulton gave money to my friends and myself for building this chapel. I put a letter in the paper to say that it was no such thing.

47,545. No money passed into or out of your hands in reference to the election?—No, not in reference to the election.

47,546. (The Chief Commissioner.) It was George Bilcliff from whom you got the 1*l.* 2*s.*?—Yes.

47,547. Can you tell me who you got the 1*l.* from?—It came in a letter; the letter was signed P. Featherstone, and I went to the post office and got it.

47,548. Do you know now who sent it?—I think Mr. Rees the next morning said, "You received the post-office order;" and I said, "Yes."

47,549. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) The post-office order was 1*l*; what Mr. Rees referred to was 30*s.*?—I did not receive it. I thought as one guinea did not cover my fare I was entitled to two.

47,550. (The Chief Commissioner.) What is the fare from Chelmsford here?—11*s.*

47,551. What would the fare here and the fare back be?—22*s.* to and from.

47,552. What is the return fare?—I could not have a return ticket.

47,553. Could you not have a return from Chelmsford to London?—Yes, the same day; but they wished me to come the day previous.

47,554. How much did your fare here and back come to?—1*l.* 2*s.*; I did not come first class, but I was entitled to it.

47,555. What is the second class fare?—1*l.* 2*s.*

47,556. No, second class?—14*s.*; I think 4*s.* and 10*s.*

47,557. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) The terminus is not the same?—No.

The witness withdrew.

THOMAS FEATHERSTONE sworn and examined.

T. Featherstone.

47,558. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are you?—I am a publican.

47,559. What rent do you pay for the premises out of which you vote?—It is my own house.

47,560. But the rate or rent?—About 50*l.*

47,561. Did you take an active part in any of the elections?—Every election.

47,562. Now, we will take 1865; for whom did you vote in 1865?—I do not recollect the date.

47,563. For whom did you vote in 1865?—Mr. Gower.

47,564. Were you on his committee?—I was.

47,565. And you took an active part; now tell me, did any money pass through your hands?—10*l.*

47,566. From whom did you receive the 10*l.*?—I think it came from Mr. Smith, and Mr. Green brought it me, I think; but I am not sure that it came from Mr. Smith.

47,567. Mr. Green came to you with the message, he came from Mr. Smith?—I think it came from him, I am not sure, I cannot charge my memory, it is the first money transaction I had in any election.

47,568. That was a reason you would recollect it?—I could not say; I am not positive.

47,569. Had you seen Mr. Smith afterwards to recall it to his attention?—No.

47,570. What were you to do with the 10*l.*; what did they bring it you for?—I had engaged a great number of them I call a body guard.

47,571. I am sorry to hear that; I suppose that work was necessary; but how did you have a body guard?—I had it on the same principle as we now have the volunteers.

47,572. Do not degrade an honourable body?—You will allow me to speak in my own defence.

47,573. Answer my question.

(Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You must answer.

47,574. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did I ask you anything about the volunteers, or anything of the kind; what was the 10*l.* given for?—Nothing, except I was to expend the money.

47,575. Then nothing was mentioned respecting the 10*l.*, excepting that it came from Mr. Green, who stated that it came from Mr. Smith; is that all?—That is it.

47,576. Had you it suggested to you by any one before that you were to receive 10*l.*?—Not any one; I did not expect 10*l.*

47,577. Not any one; you did not expect it?—No.

47,578. It came in your possession from Mr. Smith?—Yes.

47,579. It came late for the election, and on that it came upon you by surprise?—I am not sure, but I think it was a week before perhaps.

47,580. Did any one tell you after you had received it in that surprising manner what you were to do with it?—Not any one.

47,581. Then you used it at your discretion?—At my discretion.

47,582. Then you might have paid it away to a voter if you liked?—Yes, I might have done so.

47,583. Tell me what you did with it?—I employed about 26 of the body guard.

47,584. Do you mean for your own protection?—At the election previous I was nearly killed, and therefore I had good reason for it.

47,585. Was it what you say, a body guard (we are disposed to associate with great people), or was it for your own protection?—Not merely for my own protection, but it was for the protection of other people.

47,586. For the protection of others also?—More for my own protection.

47,587. Then you employed 26 men; what were you doing that you required a body guard?—I was canvassing.

47,588. Did these men or any part of them go round with you?—They did not.

47,589. They were not useful, then?—Oh yes, they were; I will tell you where they were useful.

47,590. What, on the day?—On the day of nomination and the day of election.

47,591. They voted?—There were not any voters among them.

47,592. The day of nomination and the day of polling what did they do?—They were at my beck and call. I had them stationed at different places, where I could get them if necessary for protection. I told them where to be.

47,593. You placed the men in different positions, so that you had them under your call and command?—Yes.

47,594. Had you employed them for any purpose up to the day of nomination and the day of polling?—No, only except one man.

47,595. You had not used them?—Except one man, who was my own workman and a labourer, I think he was; I am not quite sure, I could not charge my memory.

47,596. What was his name?—Sulford.

47,597. He had gone round with you?—No.

47,598. What had he done?—He was one of the body guard.

47,599. What had he done for you; was it your own private business: what I mean is, did you use him for the election business; we will put your own business aside; did you use him for election purposes up to the day of nomination and of polling?—Not previous to the nomination and polling; they were afterwards engaged for those two days.

47,600. Did you give any account, did you ever speak to Mr. Smith afterwards?—Never.

47,601. As to what became of the 10*l.*?—No, never.

47,602. Did you not give any account to the gentleman who surprised you with it, I forget his name?—Mr. Green. I think I told him I had not enough to pay the whole, and he paid the rest of them. I paid the men as far as my money went, and I think he paid the rest of them.

47,603. I cannot understand that without any communication with anybody you took it into your head to employ these men?—At the election before I was mudded and dusted and knocked down. I said I had gone for nothing for every election before this time, and I would not be laughed at. I would have a body guard; surely my services are worth 10*l.*, what I had done for the last seven years. That was my reason, and if I had not got a guard I would not have taken any part in the election.

47,604. You would not?—I should have paid them myself.

47,605. You said you would not have taken any part without a body guard?—I should have paid them myself.

47,606. You think Mr. Green paid the remainder?—I think so; I am not positive. I paid so far as the money would go.

47,607. Had you agreed with each of the men, or had you agreed with the head man or captain?—There was no captain at all; they had 5*s.* a day for two days.

47,608. You had 26 of them?—I think so, but I cannot say. I am not sure to within three.

47,609. Did they come to you, or did you go to them?—I believe I engaged them one or two, or three or four, at a time.

47,610. Did you vote in 1863?—I have voted in every election since 1859.

47,611. For whom did you vote in 1863?—Mr. Gower.

47,612. Did any money pass through your hands?—Not any.

47,613. I do not mean for yourself?—Not any money at all.

47,614. I mean to pay away?—I would not touch any money.

47,615. I do not mean for yourself?—Not for myself or for any other purpose.

47,616. Or at any previous election?—Not any.

47,617. We had a William Featherstone?—My nephew. The elections I think have cost me hundreds of pounds out of my pocket altogether.

47,618. Had he been engaged?—I think he was engaged by Mr. Green.

47,619. (The Chief Commissioner.) Would you tell me, did you mention beforehand to Mr. Smith what you wanted 10*l.* for?—I never asked him for any money, and I did not expect any, but when it came to me it was by surprise.

47,620. I suppose there is no doubt it was from Mr. Smith?—I really cannot tell you. Mr. Green brought me the money, but I could not say whether it was by cheque or not.

47,621. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Was it by cheque or in notes?—I do not know that. I asked Mr. Green the other day, and he thought it was by cheque; but I do not know, for I had forgotten the matter. I cannot tell you whether it was by cheque or in gold.

47,622. Was it before the election you received the money?—I should think the week before the election; about that time.

47,623. You do not think it was after the election?—Oh, certainly not, because I employed these men on the same day.

47,624. And all the money you spent on those people?—I think I did.

47,625. Were any of the body guard voters; we will adopt your term if you like?—Not any, to my knowledge; they were labouring men. I told my son to get no voters, I would have independent men.

47,626. Was Sutler a voter?—I do not know the name.

47,627. You said there was a man of the name of Sutler?—Sulford. There was Lang and Charwood; Lang is dead now.

47,628. You paid them all the money you had for them, but that was not enough?—No, I think not; I think there were half a dozen or more to pay.

47,629. Did you pay away a little of your money to every one, or did you pay as far as it would go among some of them?—I paid every man.

47,630. Every man something?—I think there were about five. I did not, but they all had their money in full.

47,631. Not in full, because you had not enough?—Those I did pay. I think out of the 10*l.* there was 10*s.* I paid Potter for going to London.

47,632. I do not mind that. Supposing you had twenty-five or twenty men, did you pay fifteen of them in full and leave the other five unpaid altogether, or did you pay a proportion amongst them?—No, I paid them in full.

47,633. You paid all you did pay in full?—Yes.

47,634. And the others were paid by Mr. Green?—I think so; I could not say, but I think they were paid. There were no voters, and they were all sober steady men, because I can tell by myself I would have nobody but sober men.

47,635. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What money you received you distributed among the men?—I do not know how much there was. There was a statement made I wish to call your attention to: a man named Andrews said that I called to Hewson out of a public house window.

47,636. Did he say so before us?—I saw it in the papers.

47,637. That was the man I was looking for in my book?—I was going to mention it.

47,638. I was going to call your attention to it. I was looking to my notes for that purpose, for the purpose of reminding you of it?—There is another man of the name of Jupp you will find mentioned my name, he said I offered him a dry fiver rather than have all the lush.

47,639. (The Chief Commissioner.) Is that correct?—I never said so in my life.

47,640. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I rather think the material part of the evidence was this, not in reference to the fact of your asking him to come into the house, but whether Hewson did not say at the time he was asked whether he had voted, whether he did not say he had got nothing to vote for?—No, not to me.

47,641. Did you hear him say that?—No. The papers stated that I looked from the window from the "Warwick Arms," but I was not in the window or the house, for I was away, and therefore what he said is untrue.

47,642. It was merely in reference to this, that he had not voted. It was suggested that he had been hanging out for the purpose of being paid for his vote; that was the point in the evidence; it was suggested that you had spoken out of the window and asked him whether he had voted, and Hewson then said, "I have not got anything to vote for yet."—I was not in the house; it is a perfect untruth.

47,643. Then that story falls to the ground?—And as to Jupp, I never mentioned the election to him.

The witness withdrew.

HENRY BOULT sworn and examined.

H. Boult.

47,644. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—Well, you may call me a gentleman.

47,645. Are you a freeholder?—Yes.

47,646. What is the freehold for which you vote worth by the year?—I am rated at 40 guineas.

47,647. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Mr. Monson.

47,648. At that time were you living in your own freehold house?—Yes.

47,649. A private house?—Yes.

47,650. Were you on Mr. Monson's committee?—I was put on.

47,651. When you were on the committee did you take an active part in doing what you could for Mr. Monson?—No, I only attended two committees.

47,652. Did you busy yourself during the election on the polling day and nomination day?—No.

47,653. Was any arrangement made with you before you went on the committee?—Oh no, not a word.

47,654. Not by anybody?—Not by anybody.

47,655. Did you assist in getting voters to vote?—I cannot say that I canvassed anybody at all.

47,656. I mean, did you try to get them?—No, I did not.

47,657. Did any money pass through your hands to give to any of the voters?—No.

47,658. To pay them for their services?—No, not a shilling.

47,659. No money passed through your hands?—No.

47,660. You understand me?—Oh, perfectly! I never had a shilling.

47,661. I mean, had you a shilling to pay away?—No, never.

47,662. I am not speaking of yourself?—No; I never paid any one a shilling.

47,663. You never had any money to do it?—No, never.

47,664. Then no money passed into your hands, I suppose?—No, never.

47,665. Had you voted in 1863?—Yes.

47,666. Were you living in a private house then?—I was living in the same house.

47,667. Who did you vote for?—Mr. Wilkinson.

47,668. Was anybody at that election staying with you, any of the agents?—No.

47,669. Did you take an active part in that election?—I took a more active part in that election than I did in the last.

47,670. Did you pay away monies then?—No.

47,671. None at all?—Never.

47,672. Did you never pay monies at all to anybody at any election?—Never.

47,673. You understand what I mean?—Oh, I perfectly understand. I never did.

47,674. You never paid money for other people?—No, never.

47,675. Or at any other election?—Never.

47,676. Then I will ask you the same question that I did before. Did any money at all get into your hands in that election of '63?—Never.

47,677. You understand my question?—Oh, quite. I perfectly understand you. I answer that I never had any.

47,678. Not at any election?—Never at any election.

47,679. In that election of 1863 did you happen to see money paid?—No, not at any election.

47,680. I do not mean by you?—No, not by any one.

47,681. You saw no money paid?—Not a shilling.

47,682. Did you hear any offer made of money?—I never heard any offer made of money. I never heard any offer, except in the case of Topliss. I heard that he was to have 40*l.* for his house, but that was only hearsay.

47,683. Not from himself?—No.

The witness withdrew.

AMBROSE BRAY sworn and examined.

A. Bray.

47,684. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Do you carry on any business?—I am a hairdresser.

47,685. What rent do you pay for your house?—Now I pay 20*l.*, and at that time I paid 16*l.*

47,686. I mean at the time of the election?—16*l.*

47,687. For whom did you vote?—At the last election I took no part whatever.

47,688. Did you vote at all at the last election?—Not at all.

47,689. Were you canvassed?—I was canvassed by Mr. Wilkinson, and I told him certainly I would not vote, and I was canvassed by persons on the part of Mr. Gower, and I told them the same.

47,690. You would not vote?—I made up my mind I would not.

47,691. Is it impertinent to inquire why?—Certainly not; they were both personally known to me, and my connexion in business lay on both sides; therefore, having no particular political principles, I was determined not to vote.

47,692. Did you vote in '63?—For Mr. Wilkinson.

47,693. Were you on his committee?—I was not.

47,694. Did you exert yourself for him?—No, not at all.

47,695. You did nothing?—Nothing whatever.

47,696. Did any money pass through your hands?—Nothing of the kind.

47,697. In any way?—In no shape or form.

47,698. Did you pay away?—Nothing whatever. I saw no monies in any way.

47,699. I do not say for yourself; I mean to pay away?—No, not any.

47,700. Were you at all in communication with any agent?—The only person I saw was Mr. Norman Wilkinson in the early part of the election, and then I stated the same objection to him, but I promised him I would vote if my vote was of any service; it was so, and therefore I did vote.

47,701. Had you voted in '59?—I cannot call it to my remembrance; I have tried to do so, and I cannot, my memory is so bad.

47,702. Do you recollect whether you voted in '58?—I voted for Mr. Monson at one election.

47,703. Did any monies pass through your hand?—Not a farthing.

47,704. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did any monies ever pass through your hands for voting?—Never.

The witness withdrew.

THIRTY-SECOND DAY.

J. Payne.

27 Sept. 1866.

JOHN PAYNE sworn and examined.

47,705. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You are a voter for this borough ?—Yes.

47,706. May I ask what your rent is ?—35*l.* I have a lease.

47,707. Who did you vote for at the last election ?—Mr. Monson.

47,708. Did you take an active part for him ?—I should say that I was on the committee with a reservation; but the committee, like everything else in the last one or two elections, has been a mere pretence and a sham. Nothing has come before the committee, nothing of importance; it passed away into the hands of those I should consider totally impossible to do anything. I don't know what, I am sure, and any gentleman on the committee must feel that.

47,709. Was there anything in reference to the election of 1865 which you think you should inform the committee of ?—I really personally know nothing; the air was full of all sorts of reports on each side, the most wild, as well as, unfortunately, the most true things.

47,710. We won't go into the reports, because we have had a great many facts ?—I know nothing.

47,711. Had you taken part in any previous elections ?—I took no active part at any of the elections. I voted at all the elections since 1857. I took a very active part to further the election of Mr. Hackblock.

47,712. Have you anything to inform the Commissioners of with reference to those elections ?—Well, really I am afraid that anything I could say would be mere matter of personal regret or sorrow.

47,713. With reference to facts ?—I do not think I know anything that would bear on this Inquiry at all.

47,714. You know nothing in reference to Hackblock's election ?—Oh, yes, I think I know everything in reference to Hackblock's election. Mr. John Hackblock is the brother of Mr. William Hackblock. There was a statement made here some short time ago that that election cost 2,000*l.* I am sure it was not true. The election was conducted——

47,715. Have you any account here ?—Yes, this is the copy of the account (handing same) presented by Mr. Smith to Mr. Hackblock, and that I am prepared to say, on Mr. Hackblock's own word and that of his brother now living, is a correct account.

47,716. Where does this come from ?—It comes from Mr. John Hackblock, he lent it to me.

47,717. When ?—The day after Mr. Burt gave his evidence here.

47,718. I think, if Mr. Hackblock himself wishes to put it in evidence, we can receive it from him ?—This is why I have it. Mr. Hackblock, I should say, called upon me and asked me if I would take it. He said he had not been consulted himself. I said, as a neighbour and friend of Mr. Hackblock I should be bound to contradict the statement made by Mr. Burt, believing it to be erroneous.

47,719. Then I can only take it that, so far as you know, you believe the statement of Mr. Burt to be erroneous ?—In the relation of 500*l.* to 2,000*l.* That was a long election, and there was a great deal of printing.

47,720. Now, as to the election of 1858, did you take an active part in that ?—No, I did not. I voted for Monson, I think, in 1858, after Wilkinson had retired. I should have voted for Wilkinson if he had stood.

47,721. Have you anything of importance which you can inform the Commissioners of in reference to the election of 1858 ?—I am sure nothing that you do not know already in direct evidence.

47,722. Then let me ask you, you know the description we have had from time to time of the election of 1858, do you agree in general terms with that description ?—Most decidedly. Some allowance must be made for the side on which the evidence is given; it is coloured for the party; one would say more of one, and the other the other.

47,723. Substantially, whether it comes from one side or the other ?—Yes, substantially I believe it is true.

47,724. As a general proposition, do you agree with those descriptions ?—Most entirely.

47,725. With regard to the other elections, 1859 and October 1858, probably the same ?—I think I supported Mr. Wilkinson in each case. I took very little part.

47,726. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Do I understand your description to apply to both 1863 and 1859 ?—In 1863 I voted for Wilkinson, but I was not on the committee. I was extremely engaged, and so at the last election. I should think, Mr. Commissioner, that anything more to answer the purpose of a sham or blind, or anything that can be said bad for it, would not be enough to apply to the committee as constituted last time.

47,727. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Then I understand from that you mean to infer that no real business of the election came before the committee ?—Not in the slightest degree.

47,728. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) The bandage was kept tight about their eyes ?—I can assure you that a week before the election there was some point, the committee was called together, and it was a meeting of gentlemen one might be proud to act with; it was about a week or a fortnight before the election, and some proposition was made about some compromise or some left-handed thing that we could not as gentlemen admit for a moment. It did not come through our regular recognized agent, Mr. Hart, for whom we had every respect, and we would not admit it as a committee.

47,729. From whom did it come ?—I think it came from the hand of Mr. Nichols. Mr. Nichols made the proposition. I know my impression was that it was an insult to the committee that any communication should be received except through the recognized agent.

47,730. And it was not entertained ?—It was not entertained.

47,731. Was that the last time you attended ?—Well, I think the general committee met three or four times, but it was in each case a blind. I do not know whether every gentleman felt as I did; that, in fact, we were being played upon.

47,732. (The Chief Commissioner.) You say you have taken part in all the elections, were you personally aware of any sum of money passing through any voter's——?—Not in the slightest degree, never saw or heard any money mentioned whatever, and I say most sincerely——

47,733. I do not mean from yourself ?—But I can tell you, Mr. Commissioner, and I am sure you will believe me, that I never heard a single individual man, I never heard the name of any single individual man who was to receive anything on either side. I heard loose reports.

The witness withdrew.

H. Webb.

HENRY WEBB sworn and examined.

47,734. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Were you chairman of the Redhill committee ?—I was.

47,735. On whose behalf ?—Mr. Gower's, at the last election.

47,736. And voted for Mr. Gower ?—I did.

47,737. Are you a retired gentleman, or do you carry on business ?—I carry on my profession in London still.

47,738. What profession ?—Solicitor.

47,739. Did you take an active part in that election ?—I took the part of friend upon the last occasion.

47,740. I mean, of course, you did not take a professional part ?—No.

47,741. But you were acting under or with Mr. North, he was general chairman ?—Yes.

47,742. Did any money at all pass through your hands?—Not a sixpence.

47,743. And do you know anything of what was going on at Redhill, of what we have heard since?—I was present at the meeting of the sub-agents.

47,744. You were present, I recollect, when the sub-agents came up to Mr. North and Mr. Smith as presenting a kind of requisition. Give me an account of it in your own terms?—I was in the committee room of the general committee, and I was requested to walk into the other room to hear what was going on. I had not seen the requisition before and knew nothing about it till I went into the room, and then Mr. Gower asked what it was they wished. It was then said, according to my recollection, they required 500*l.* down, and 1,500*l.* more to make the election secure.

47,745. Before you go farther, it would be very important if you could fix the date. Perhaps you cannot. Taking the polling day as the terminus, will you fix it as near as you can?—It was not near the polling day.

47,746. But, taking that as a point to enable you to determine it relatively, how long before was it?—I should think it was quite three weeks before.

47,747. (The Chief Commissioner.) This they said to Mr. Gower?—This they said to Mr. Gower.

47,748. (Mr Commissioner O'Brien.) You, and Mr. Gower, and Mr. North were there, and Mr. Smith?—Mr. Smith was there too.

47,749. And I believe you were the only persons except the deputation?—The sub-agents; I do not think anybody else was there.

47,750. Will you tell me what answer was given to that?—Mr. Gower said it was preposterous; he said he should do nothing of the sort. He said he had pledged himself for a pure election and he would not give those men any money; that he did not know how they would use it, and he would have no control over the expenditure of it.

47,751. Now, one question with regard to yourself; had you at that time any knowledge that monies had been advanced to these men before?—No, sir, none whatever.

47,752. One other question, before you give the full detail, because we heard of this. What was the attitude of the men, did they appear friendly, or what?—Oh, yes, they appeared to be friendly; at the same time they seemed to have a great desire to get hold of money. They manifested a desire to squeeze as much as possible.

47,753. Give us as true an account as you can of what occurred?—Mr. Gower said that, and he said he should do nothing of the sort.

47,754. Then did the deputation withdraw?—I withdrew.

47,755. You did not know afterwards what occurred between them?—No; I think Mr. North spoke to Mr. Smith outside in the passage, and said they must have something to go on with, it must be left to his discretion.

47,756. Did you hear that yourself?—I think I did. It was only in such a way as this, "Well, Mr. Smith, "you must advance the necessary expenses, and the "necessary expenses only."

47,757. Who said that to Mr. Smith?—Mr. North.

47,758. In the passage?—I think it was in the passage outside.

47,759. Does your recollection serve you to enable you say where Mr. Gower then was?—No; I think we all went almost immediately back into the general committee room. I think it was upon that occasion that Mr. Gower cautioned Mr. Smith that he was determined to have no unnecessary expenditure, and he then asked him how many agents and canvassers would be necessary.

47,760. He asked Mr. Smith?—Yes; and he then told him that he would not have one more that what would be justified.

47,761. Did he tell him how many?—Yes; I think Mr. Smith said he thought about 60.

47,762. 60 canvassers?—60 canvassers and agents.

47,763. Was it at all discussed between them at that time whether the agents and canvassers should be voters, or was anything said about it?—Nothing whatever was said about it.

47,764. Was anything said about their not being voters?—No, Mr. Gower demurred to the number, and said he thought it was a very unnecessary number. He said he thought that one half would be quite sufficient. He said "Don't employ one more than you "can justify before a committee of the House of "Commons."

47,765. Is that the substance of what you recollect?—That is the substance of what took place on that occasion.

47,766. Had you any interviews afterwards?—No, not upon that subject.

47,767. With any of these sub-agents?—We all used to meet twice a week in committee to go through the register.

47,768. Mr. Green was a very active man?—Yes, Mr. Green was the principal, and another man named Rees.

47,769. He had a good deal of money to disburse in his hands. Did you know anything about the money he disbursed?—Nothing whatever. I was asked to take the chair, because they said it would assist Mr. Gower. I consented to do so, and I used to attend about twice a week.

47,770. One word more, before I take you farther into the subject, Mr. Webb. I understand you to say, I only want to have it clear on the notes, that you knew nothing whatever of the undue or corrupt expenditure while you were acting as chairman in 1865?—Certainly not, sir. I may say this that I was not aware that the committee ever met, or that the sub-committees ever met, in any public house; it was the particular wish of Mr. Gower that they should not do so.

47,771. I do not mean alone in public houses, but any money passing to voters under the colour and pretence of employment?—I can assure you I would not have sat on the committee if I had known that any one of these committee men expected anything for their attendance.

47,772. Did you know; had you any means of knowledge, or did you know, in fact, that money was passing from the sub-agents to the voters under the pretence of colourable employment?—I did not.

47,773. I take your answer in the fullest and most absolute sense?—The most absolute sense.

47,774. I want you to call upon your memory as accurately as you can in one point with regard to the deputation. Can you tell me whether you had left the room before Mr. Gower? Had you left the room where the deputation was before Mr. Gower?—No, I think we left very much about the same time. I just went in there to hear. Mr. North wished me to hear what was passing. I think it was about three weeks before the election; it might be a little more.

47,775. I am not at all surprised that your memory does not carry you back so particularly as that. Now we will go to 1863. Did you take an active part in 1863?—No, I only voted.

47,776. Voted for whom?—I voted for Mr. Gower on that occasion.

47,777. We understand that there was a petition on that occasion?—Yes, there was.

47,778. Do you know yourself anything in reference to that petition?—Nothing whatever.

47,779. Or the circumstances under which it was withdrawn?—Nothing whatever.

47,780. Of your own knowledge?—No, of course, I only know that there was a letter written.

47,781. A what?—A letter passed, which was made very public.

47,782. Oh, of course, that was public. But from any knowledge that you yourself had from Mr. Gower or his agents, or Mr. Wilkinson, or Mr. Wilkinson's

THIRTY-SECOND DAY.

H. Webb.

27 Sept. 1866.

authorized agents ?—No, I had nothing whatever to do with it.

47,783. You had no knowledge ?—No.

47,784. One other question. Did you find in consequence of the misunderstanding, or whatever it was, the feeling that arose in consequence of that petition, a lack of support among the gentry for Mr. Gower ?—Very great.

47,785. So that he has been thrown more upon that class of voters that we have heard speak of ?—Yes, and that was my reason for doing what I could.

47,786. He was thrown upon that class of voters ?—Oh, he was, no doubt.

47,787. (The Chief Commissioner.) You told the Commissioner just now that you did not know of any of the voters being employed in any colourable service during the election of 1865. I suppose you heard that that sort of thing was going on, although you knew of no instances of it ?—Just so, sir. When the question was asked about the canvassers I presumed that they would be all paid for what they really did.

47,788. That was in committee. What do you mean when the question was asked about the canvassers ? By the deputation ?—No, when Mr. Gower put the question to Mr. Smith, how many he ought to have.

47,789. That was on the same occasion as the deputation ?—I think it was the same.

47,790. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) It might arise out of it you know ?—I think it was the same.

47,791. (The Chief Commissioner.) At that time of the deputation, taking it about three weeks before the election, I suppose,—I am only repeating my question,—I suppose you had heard by common report that a good many voters were employed in colourable service ?—No, I was not aware of any.

47,792. I do not mean any particular instance, but you say that you concluded the canvassers would be paid. Did you not also conclude that of those canvassers many were voters ?—I assumed that it would be so.

47,793. Why did you assume that, Mr. Webb ?—Because they would be employed; they would be as messengers as well.

47,794. Then you had no reason for thinking from what you heard that their employment was a sham ?—No, I did not suppose that, because I believe Mr. Gower was anxious that it should not prevail.

47,795. I quite understand that, but although Mr. Gower might know nothing of it, and not like it, were not you led to suppose that those voters who were employed as canvassers would not do work which would fairly earn the money they were being paid ?—No.

47,796. You were not ?—No.

47,797. Then could not you judge of it from this fact, when you heard Mr. Smith state that he should require 60. Did not you infer that all the 60 could not be at bonâ fide work ?—Well, at once Mr. Gower put a stop to that by saying he thought that was a great many too many, and he did not think it could be justified; therefore they were at once to put a stop to that. But I am also aware that a great many men are required during the time of an election, and beforehand, canvassers and so on, delivering notes, delivering letters, and that they must have a relay of men, because, if they sent one man in one direction, they must have another in another. I was constantly receiving letters from Mr. Smith, sometimes twice a day.

47,798. Very well. I won't ask you any more ?—I may say I was present also at the "White Hart" on one occasion in Mr. Smith's room when Mr. Gower repeated; Mr. Clutton was there, myself, and Mr. North, and several other gentlemen.

47,799. Can you at all tell me when that was ?—That was very early; I think it was nearly one of the first meetings.

47,800. Well ?—And he then said that the election should be carried on with purity, and that he would petition against the seat if there was anything on the other side.

47,801. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That was at an early period ?—Very early.

47,802. (The Chief Commissioner.) Can you tell me this; referring to the time the deputation came, you know; can you remember when the deputation said they wanted money, and you told us what, that there was any alternative line of conduct stated by them ?—No, they never went so far as that.

47,803. I don't mean to say that they said they would not work if they were not paid, but another alternative. Do you remember their saying that there were two modes of carrying an election, or anything of that sort ?—No.

47,804. You have no recollection ?—No.

47,805. Who was the spokesman, do you remember of the deputation ?—Job Apted.

47,806. Do you remember his making any proposal to Mr. Gower about there being two ways of conducting the election ?—No, I have no recollection.

47,807. Do you remember something of this kind. "If, sir, you will abstain altogether, agree to have "no money spent, and no public houses open, then" —something about a petition ?—No.

47,808. Do you recollect this; I have stated some of it; do you remember their saying, or either one of them, "If, sir, you will advance no money at all, and "have no public houses, we will work for you in the "best way in our power, provided you will pledge "yourself to petition against the return of the other "side, against the return of your opponent" ?—I think I may say——

47,809. "And also for the seat" ?—I think I may say that nothing of that sort ever came from the agents; at least not in my presence.

47,810. If you don't remember it as having been said on that occasion, do you remember it on any other occasion ?—I remember Mr. Gower saying that he would do so before the committee.

47,811. Do you remember anything of that kind coming from the agents ?—No, never.

47,812. From Job Apted ?—No, never.

47,813. Or anybody else ?—No, never.

47,814. Would you remember it, you think, if it had happened ?—I think that would have been so strong a fact that I should not have forgotten it, and another reason, sir, why I should not have forgotten it.

47,815. Was there anything of the sort referred to in your hearing by Mr. Gower ? At any time during the election did you hear Mr. Gower say anything which seemed to denote that such a proposition had been made to him ?—Upon the occasion which I referred to; the meeting at the "White Hart."

47,816. That was earlier ?—At Mr. Smith's private room. He then said he would do so. He would petition against the member if he was returned by undue influence, and that he would pray the seat. He himself would petition for the seat.

47,817. But you did not hear anything said about that on the occasion of the deputation at Redhill ?—No.

47,818. And you think you could not have forgotten it ?—I could not have forgotten that, sir.

47,819. You went into the room and found the deputation there ?—Yes.

47,820. Who did you find in the room besides the deputation ?—Mr. North was there, Mr. Gower, and Mr. Smith.

47,821. They were already there when you got in ?—They were already there.

47,822. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was Mr. Ivimy there ?—I do not think he was, I am not sure.

47,823. (The Chief Commissioner.) Then you told us what you heard while you were there. I want to know if you can recollect how the meeting terminated. Who went out of the room first ? Could you give me any notion ?—I think they all went out pretty much at once.

47,824. Who went out first ? Did the deputation withdraw, or did the committee members withdraw by going to their committee room?—I cannot remember.

47,825. Can you tell me whether you left the room, leaving the deputation there?—I think we all went out pretty much together.

47,826. The deputation and all?—I think so. I think Mr. Smith went out first.

47,827. You cannot remember, when you went out, who you left in the room?—No, I cannot.

47,828. After that when did you see Mr. Gower? It is a little important, but, of course, if you cannot remember it, I won't press you any more about it?—Upon the next occasion of seeing him——

47,829. You were with the deputation in the room with him. Very well, did you lose sight of him when he withdrew? Did you lose sight of Mr. Gower?—No.

47,830. How was that?—I think we went. Some of us left the room, and we might have stood for a short time in the passage, in the open part, and then I think we went in to the committee.

47,831. With Mr. Gower too?—Because Mr. Gower always had a few words to say to the general committee.

47,832. Did you leave Mr. Gower, do you believe, with the deputation when you went out in the passage just for a short time?—For any private conversation?

47,833. Oh no. Did it so happen that you left Mr. Gower in the room with the deputation when you withdrew into the passage on your way to the committee room?—I cannot remember it particularly, my impression is that we all went pretty much; they had had their answer, and then we went out together.

47,834. Are you prepared to say that Mr. Gower was not left with the deputation; I mean, a very short time?—I do not think he was.

47,835. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You were chairman of the general meeting?—I was chairman of the district.

47,836. The meeting of that night?—Oh, yes.

47,837. (The Chief Commissioner.) I do not know whether on that account you would be the first person retiring to go into the committee room to take the chair, to re-open the committee?—I am not sure about that.

47,838. Do you recollect, perhaps that will recall it to you; do you remember when you went back into the general committee room walking up, and taking the chair. I suppose the chair is really a fixed seat at one end; I mean the chairman's seat?—I think it was at one end of the table.

47,839. He would keep his own place, I mean?—Yes.

47,840. Would that remind you of it?—No.

47,841. Do you recollect whether when you went back into the committee room you were the first person, as it were, to open the meeting? You don't recollect that?—No. The object of our committee meetings was night by night to go through the register and ascertain what more of the voters there were that had not promised, and therefore they could do that without me.

47,842. But I want to know where Mr. Gower was in the meantime. You see my object. As I understand you, Mr. Smith and Mr. North came out immediately after the deputation into the passage. You also told us what you believe passed between them. I suppose you did not hear that?—No.

47,843. You probably got that from one of them afterwards?—I dare say that was the tenor of it.

47,844. You did not hear it?—No.

47,845. We will suppose that was the tenor of their conversation. Was that immediately after they came out from the deputation? Was it on their way, in fact, to the committee room?—Yes, that would be so.

47,846. Now, then, Mr. Gower was not present when they two were talking together in the passage?—I do not know.

47,847. I mean, he was not present with them?—I do not know; I think not.

47,848. You think not. Then where would he have been?—I think Mr. North came out and gave a sort of advice, you know, to Mr. Smith.

47,849. Then while that was going on Mr. Gower was not with those two?—No.

47,850. Then where could he have been, do you think? I want to remind you of this. The deputation would probably stay in the room; the deputation room. You had come out of it, Mr. Smith and Mr. North were having a private conversation about money, which even you did not overhear. Where was Mr. Gower? Where must he have been at that time?—I think he came out, as far as I can now remember, out of the deputation room, as we may term it, and walked about the passage in that way before he got into the other room.

47,851. That is what I wanted to know?—I was not aware of there being any communication held between him and the deputation, or any part of it.

47,852. I am only speaking about whether there was an opportunity for it, if such a communication was contemplated?—I cannot recollect.

47,853. I am not the least surprised at your not recollecting. I am asking the question in order to refresh your memory about it?—I beg to say why I should have remembered anything about the public houses would have been this: upon one occasion I met Mr. Gower in the train, and came over with him to Reigate, and I then said that I hoped we should have no recurrence of what took place on the former occasion.

47,854. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Referring to 1863?—Referring to 1863, when so many public houses were open. I said, "I happen to know the "great amount of evil that was brought upon the "place; the great amount of drunkenness."

47,855. (The Chief Commissioner.) I dare say there was a great amount?—And that I was quite certain, if he knew as much as I did, he would be one of the first to prevent it. He never said a word to me, but he did what I thought a great deal better, came over to the general committee here, and told them that he would not open a public house, nor hire a room in a public house, nor have a committee meeting in a public house, nor even address one, and, as far as he could, he would prevent anything of the sort occurring.

47,856. That was in the early part of the election?—Yes, it was one evening. It was an early meeting; it took place in the room below. I believed that to be thoroughly sincere. I was also present at a meeting that took place at Earlswood, at which we have been told there was a great deal of drinking afterwards.

47,857. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You are said to have adjourned. It would not be likely to have been in your presence?—We all left. The very booths were erected there in order to draw the people away from the public houses, not to entice them to drink.

47,858. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Do you recollect being present at any time when Mr. Gower was saying he would have no undue expenditure, and the reply was made to him by some of the persons in the room, "It cannot be done without," that is, "the "election could not be carried on without." Were you present then?—I do not remember it.

47,859. Where did you principally attend the committee meetings? At Redhill?—At Redhill.

47,860. Did you attend any of the meetings in the hall below?—Twice, I think, if not three times.

47,861. What was your last time of attending the meeting in the hall below? How long before the election?—That I cannot tell.

47,862. Was it a fortnight?—I cannot remember.

47,863. I will draw your attention to this. I do not know whether you will be able to give any explanation about it, but perhaps this may call it to your recollection. Do you recollect Mr. Gower alluding in his speech at one of his committee meetings down

THIRTY-SECOND DAY.

H. Webb.

27 Sept. 1866.

below to those who worked for him, stating that they should be well paid, paid well?—That was at the same meeting after he denounced the drinking at the public houses. He then said, "Gentlemen, I do not want you "to work for me without being paid. All those who "really do work I shall pay and pay well." That was with reference to those men who were employed to work bonâ fide.

47,864. Was that before or after the deputation?—I should think it was before.

47,865. Did you hear that speech repeated after the deputation, or in words to the same effect?—No; I may mention this, that I was asked once or twice, I do not know by whom, what the men should be paid; those men that were engaged upon the business of the election.

47,866. (The Chief Commissioner.) Who by?—I think Dolman was one of the persons who asked me. I am not quite sure whether Mr. Smith asked me or not. I said "I should pay them rather more than what "they would earn at their daily work; that is to say, "if a man is earning 5*s*., give him 6*s*."

47,867. Did you mention those sums?—Yes. Then I said, "For that 6*s*. he must do a good day's work;" and if men are employed in the evening after they have left off work, if you really employ them, and take away their time at which they could earn money by "overwork" and other things, pay them for that, and I should think about a shilling an evening would do; but then for that shilling they must give two or three hours. I never had the slightest idea that they would be paid for attending the committee meetings, sitting round the hall and doing nothing, because we would much rather have been without them; it was exceedingly hot weather.

47,868. You thought they ought not to be paid for attending the public houses?—I did not know there was a beer shop open; I never saw it.

47,869. Now I will take you back again for a moment. Did you at any time hear Mr. Gower say this, "I will tell you what I will do. If I am beaten in "endeavouring to carry on the election in the way I "propose, I will petition against the return and for "the seat." Were you ever present when he said that?—He said that in the committee room at the "White Hart" to Mr. Smith. Those are the words that I mentioned.

47,870. And "I will not have any undue expenditure"?—He was most anxious to hold down the expenditure.

47,871. Was it after that that you adjourned into the hall below?—I think it was.

47,872. And then a speech was made by Mr. Gower, that all those who worked for him should be paid and paid well?—Just so; those that did work, not under any colourable pretence.

47,873. Now was that a large meeting of the committee when that speech was made?—A very large meeting indeed.

47,874. You know the advertised committee of Mr. Gower was very extensive; it was a long list?—Yes, it was said that he could not get a committee at all; he had been twitted with that, that nobody would go on his committee at all, and then the list was published.

47,875. When you saw that very long list repeatedly published, did you take the trouble to look or to inquire into the class of persons who were on the committee?—Oh, I pretty well knew that; I pretty well knew the class. I knew most of the men's names. As, for instance, one man when I asked him for his vote said, "Yes, sir, I will promise to vote for Mr. "Gower, but you must put me on the committee."

47,876. Who was that? Do you recollect his name?—A labourer; he sometimes works in the pit. I will try and remember the name; he married a widow with two or three children.

47,877. You cannot recollect the name?—No; others of course were ambitious to get on the committee.

47,878. That person was a labouring man?—Yes; there were bricklayers and others who were put on the committee on both sides. It has been the system here to get as many names as possible, and for a very obvious reason, that after a man sees his name on a committee he cannot very well go and vote for anybody else. It is a mode of fixing them. That is the object, I believe.

47,879. Perhaps you will be able to let me know the name presently?—I will try to recollect it.

47,880. It may probably in the course of the afternoon come to your mind?—Yes.

The witness withdrew.

J. Wilkinson.

JOHN WILKINSON sworn and examined.

47,881. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—A plumber.

47,882. Where at?—The Station-road, Redhill.

47,883. What rent are you paying for your house?—35*l*.

47,884. Do you let out any of it?—No.

47,885. Who did you vote for at the last election?—Mr. Gower.

47,886. Were you on Mr. Gower's committee?—No.

47,887. Did you canvass for him?—No.

47,888. Did you do what you could, I mean to get voters for him?—No, I have not done anything for him.

47,889. Some money passed through your hands, did not it?—No.

47,890. I thought it did?—No.

47,891. Are you sure?—Yes.

47,892. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Somebody mentioned your name, Mr. Wilkinson?—Yes.

47,893. Who was it, do you recollect?—Mr. Barker, I believe; but that was on the election of 1863.

47,894. I rather think that this election your name was mentioned.

47,895. (The Chief Commissioner.) You are right. It was in 1863. Did no money pass through your hands in 1865?—No.

47,896. Did you receive any money yourself before the election?—No.

47,897. Nor after?—Nor after.

47,898. Did no money come to you at all in 1865?—No.

47,899. Do you mean that you gave an independent vote?—I gave my vote to Mr. Gower as an independent one.

47,900. You quite understand me, you had neither money nor money's worth?—I quite understand you; I had neither money nor money's worth.

47,901. In 1863 did you take a more active part?—Yes.

47,902. Money did pass through your hands then?—Yes.

47,903. Were you on the committee?—Yes, I was on a committee.

47,904. How much money did you receive; I do not mean for yourself?—Altogether 23*l*., as near as I can say; there might be a few shillings more; there might be 5*s*., or something of the kind.

47,905. Who did you vote for in 1863?—Mr. Wilkinson.

47,906. Who did you receive the 23*l*. from?—Mr. James.

47,907. Was that paid to you before the election?—I think I received something like 5*l*. before the election.

47,908. The rest after?—The rest after.

47,909. What did he give you the 23*l*. for?—I worked through the election, canvassing and doing the best I could for Mr. Wilkinson.

47,910. Did he give it to you all for yourself?—No.

47,911. Some of it was for yourself?—Yes.

47,912. How much?—I think I was working seven weeks altogether. I paid Mayall 4*l*. 10*s*.

47,913. Before the election?—Yes, before the election.

47,914. Did you pay anybody else?—I paid John Shepherd, a plumber, 3*l.*, and I think I paid Mr. John Harman 15*s.*

47,915. Was he a voter?—Yes.

47,916. That is 8*l.* 5*s.* you paid away?—Yes.

47,917. Then did you keep the difference?—Yes; but then during the election I spent a part of the other money for expenses.

47,918. Your own expenses?—Yes, my own expenses.

47,919. I will say, "The residue I spent in expenses "and kept for myself?"—Yes.

47,920. Did you give an account to Mr. James of the money you paid away?—I told him that I had paid Mayall 4*l.* 10*s.*

47,921. When did you tell him that?—I told him after the election.

47,922. Did you tell him you had paid any other monies?—I told him I had paid Shepherd and Harman; I believe I told him.

47,923. At that time, when you told him so, had you received the money from him?—No, only the 5*l.*

47,924. Why did he hand you over 5*l.* before the election?—I asked him for it; I told him I wanted some money.

47,925. And he advanced it like?—Yes.

47,926. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And out of that 5*l.* you paid 4*l.* 10*s.* to Harman?—No, to Mayall.

47,927. To Mayall, I mean?—Yes.

47,928. Had Shepherd at that time a shop in Redhill?—No, he was a journeyman mechanic.

47,929. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you give a receipt to Mr. James?—I am not quite sure whether I did or not.

47,930. Do you remember whether he paid you a cheque or money?—Money.

47,931. Are you sure you did not give an account of the persons to whom you paid money?—Yes.

47,932. How did he come to fix upon 23*l.*? Had you been at work in any former election?—Never.

47,933. At the election we are talking of, 1863, did Mayall come to you, or did you go to him?—He come to me.

47,934. What made you pay him?—We were talking together, and I asked him to go for Mr. Wilkinson, and he said he would. He said, "I want to come on "the committee; I am very bad off," or something of that kind, and I told him I would give him 30*s.* a week. At that time there was not much work doing about, and I was a journeyman at that time myself. I gave him 30*s.* a week for three weeks.

47,935. What for?—For doing the best he could for Mr. Wilkinson.

47,936. Did you suggest any work at all?—I told him I should like him to do the best he could for Mr. Wilkinson.

47,937. But did you tell him any particular line of employment that he should take?—No.

47,938. Did you pay him by the week, or all at once?—By the week.

47,939. As soon as you had agreed to pay Mayall, did you go and tell Mr. James the agreement you had made?—No, I did not.

47,940. Why did Mr. James give you credit for having paid it to him?—Mr. James told me I was to do the best I could for the election.

47,941. Then when you came at the end to be paid, Mr. James took your word for it?—Yes.

47,942. He had no other proof that you had paid Mayall anything?—Not at all.

47,943. Do you remember whether Mayall's name was mentioned to him as a person to whom you paid money?—I cannot tell.

47,944. Why did you pay John Shepherd?—In the same way.

47,945. You knew, I suppose, that they did not do any work?—I thought they would have done the best they could for Mr. Wilkinson. They were to canvass for him; I do not know whether they canvassed anybody or not.

47,946. Did you hear at that time that a great many persons were being paid?—I never saw only one sum pass.

47,947. What money was that?—I saw Barker pay Thomas Dale; I was in the room at the time.

47,948. That was before you paid Mayall?—I cannot say. It might be two nights before the election.

47,949. How long before the election did you pay Mayall?—Three weeks before the election.

47,950. Then, you see, that was before you saw Barker pay it. Did you know at that time that the men were being paid; that they were receiving money?—I never saw any pass.

47,951. But you had a strong belief about it?—Yes, I heard there was money passing.

47,952. You would hardly have commenced that line yourself unless you knew there was some authority for it, unless you thought that others were doing the same?—Of course not.

47,953. Well, I say the fact that you paid money yourself leads one to the conclusion that you knew money was being paid. Was that the fact?

47,954. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you try at that election to get any more than your own class of voters?—I did not choose to pay any but to those, and I tried the best I could for Mr. Wilkinson.

47,955. Did you try any more?—No, I never offered any others.

The witness withdrew.

HENRY WEBB recalled and examined.

H. Webb.

47,956. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I think the name of the man you placed upon the committee was Robert Dealing?—Robert Dealing was the name.

47,957. A labourer, who voted for Mr. Gower?—Yes.

47,958. Then, according to his evidence, he received 1*l.* from Emery before the election, and 1*l.* after?—I was not aware of it.

47,959. That labourer whom you put on the committee received 2*l.* for his work. That rather shows the danger of putting those men on the committee.

The witness withdrew.

ALFRED JOYES sworn and examined.

A. Joyes.

47,960. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—A tailor.

47,961. Were you a voter at the election of 1865?—I was.

47,962. Do you pay rent for a house?—I do.

47,963. How much?—We have a lease of two houses in the High-street, 26*l.*

47,964. Whom did you vote for last time?—Mr. Monson.

47,965. Were you on his committee?—No.

47,966. What relation are you to Mr. Frederick Joyes?—He is my uncle, my father's brother.

47,967. Is your father alive?—My father is dead.

47,968. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You conduct the business for your mother?—I conduct the business for my mother and my uncle, Mr. James Nichols.

47,969. (The Chief Commissioner.) Mr. James Nichols is your uncle too?—He is; he is my mother's brother.

THIRTY-SECOND DAY.

A. Joyes.

27 Sept. 1866.

47,970. Were you put on Mr. Monson's committee?—I was not.

47,971. You did a good deal in the election, didn't you?—I did.

47,972. Whom did you work under?—Under Mr. Nichols, and also Mr. Hart.

47,973. Did you receive money to pay away?—Yes, to pay away for my expenses.

47,974. No, not for your expenses, but to pay away to other persons?—Yes, I paid money.

47,975. Altogether how much money did you receive?—I received altogether 20*l.* from Mr. Nichols and 4*l.* 19*s.* from Mr. Hart.

47,976. Was that all paid away?—No.

47,977. How was Mr. Hart's paid?—By cheque.

47,978. How was Mr. Nichols' paid?—In money. I had 10*l.* before the election and 10*l.* after the election. Before the election I had 5*l.*, the week after the Derby.

47,979. Ten pounds?—First, I had 5*l.* the week after the Derby; and the election week, I think it was the day before the nomination, I had another 5*l.*

47,980. That made 10*l.*?—That made 10*l.*; then I had 10*l.* from him, I think it was the 30th September 1865; I think it was that day.

47,981. Was that all the money you received?—That was all the money I received.

47,982. For any purpose?—For any purpose.

47,983. How much of that did you pay away?—I did not pay any to a voter at all, not a farthing, to the best of my recollection.

47,984. Did you pay any money away at all?—I did. I paid four men that had been working; they were tailors, they had been working for us; they were not working for us at that time. I paid them.

47,985. To do what?—There were some of the opposite side pulling down our bills, and I paid 30*s.* each, four of them, for the election week.

47,986. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Are they with you now?—One of them, only one; Joseph McGowan his name is.

47,987. You employed them to prevent the bills being pulled down?—Yes, and other things. The other side came listening to see whether they could get any information of us; some of the other side did, at the "Grapes" and other places, eaves-droppers.

47,988. You do not mean your men were sent as eaves-droppers?—No; to prevent the others prying.

47,989. Did you pay away any more money than that?—Yes, I paid five men for the nomination and polling day 5*s.* each day, 10*s.* the two days, 50*s.* more.

47,990. What were they to do?—They were to swell the show of hands.

47,991. They were not to vote?—No, not to vote. Then I paid a guinea for the hire of a horse for the polling day, riding as messenger from Redhill to Reigate.

47,992. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) A guinea for a horse and man?—No, I rode myself.

47,993. (The Chief Commissioner.) I want to ask you about that. Did you pay for that yourself, or did you order it and somebody else pay for it?—I paid for it.

47,994. Yourself?—Yes, out of this 24*l.* 19*s.*

47,995. I do not mean whether it was accounted for out of that 24*l.* 19*s.*, but did you pay for it yourself?—Yes, I paid for it.

47,996. Anything else?—I paid a lot away in expenses. After the committee meeting at the "White Hart" they drew up posters and circulars and such things that I took to Dorking one evening by the last train, and stayed at Dorking all night. There was my expenses for doing so.

47,997. Was that all included in the 24*l.*?—That was all included in the 24*l.*

47,998. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Can you say how much it was?—I cannot tell you how much.

47,999. Or about?—I cannot even tell you about.

48,000. (The Chief Commissioner.) Then you paid away 8*l.* 10*s.* expenses?—Yes, I paid expenses.

48,001. How much do you consider you were paid yourself?—10*l.*, about.

48,002. The last money you got from Nichols was after the election?—After the election.

48,003. When did you go to get money from Hart?—I sent in a bill to Hart soon after the election.

48,004. Why did you send in a bill to him?—Because Mr. Nichols told me that I was to.

48,005. For how much did you send in your bill?—4*l.* 19*s.*, to the best of my knowledge.

48,006. The same that you were paid?—Yes, the same that I was paid; I forget the items now.

48,007. Is there any other reason? My question was, "Why did you send in a bill to Mr. Hart?" Your answer was, I think, "Because Mr. Nichols "told me."—Yes, and I had done some work at Mr. Hart's request. I went down to Dorking once for him; and he appointed me as messenger from Reigate to Redhill, and I charged for that.

48,008. You did some work for him?—Yes, at his request.

48,009. You went down to Dorking at his request?—Yes, and he appointed me as messenger for the polling day.

48,010. That was when the riding was going on?—That was when the riding was going on.

48,011. That makes me ask you whether you are quite sure it was not he that paid for the horse?—No, I charged for the horse; and he paid me a guinea for myself and a guinea for the horse, if I remember rightly.

48,012. That would not make up the 4*l.* 19*s.*?—No. I dare say you have the items, and can see. I forget.

48,013. How did you receive the money from Hart?—By cheque, I believe.

48,014. No, I want to know?—Well, I feel certain that I had it by cheque, because he has paid me before by cheque at a previous election for services.

48,015. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Could you fix the date?—I could not.

48,016. (The Chief Commissioner.) Who gave it to you?—That I do not remember. I do not remember the incident of taking the money or receiving the money, but I know that I had it.

48,017. How do you know you had it any better than the other?—I remember that I had the money.

48,018. But why do you remember that better than the receiving of it? It is not long ago, I should have thought you would remember having it because you remember receiving it, not the other way?—I remember receiving it, but I do not remember the day, nor I can't be sure how I received it; but I think I received it.

48,019. You say you remember receiving it. That is just what I want to know. Do you recollect receiving it?—I do not recollect distinctly the day that I received it.

48,020. I don't mind a bit about the date?—Nor where I received it. I think Mr. Hart's clerk gave it to me at his office, I think so.

48,021. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) At Mr. Hart's office?—Yes, at Mr. Hart's office; I am often there.

48,022. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you go there for it?—No; I am often there. I am one of the bailiffs of the county court, and my business calls me there. He is registrar.

48,023. Have you any notion when you received the money; never mind whether it was by cheque or money?—I cannot tell you the date.

48,024. You have no notion how soon after the election?—I should think as soon as the accounts were audited. I do not remember how long it was.

48,025. Do you remember what month it was in at all?—I cannot. I should think it was September.

48,026. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I think you mentioned September?—That was the last payment of Mr. Nichols, the 10*l.* from Mr. Nichols. That was the 30th of September, on a Saturday.

48,027. (The Chief Commissioner.) Do you recollect the date of that day in September when you received the last payment from Nichols ?—I say, if I remember rightly, it was the 30th of September, on the Saturday.

48,028. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I may tell you for your information it would be a Saturday ?—Yes, I think it was.

48,029. (The Chief Commissioner.) Where were you when you signed the receipt for Mr. Hart's money ?—I think it was at the office when I received the money.

48,030. Are you sure ?—I am not sure.

48,031. Who wrote the receipt ?—It was written ready for me, if I remember rightly. I think it was in Mr. Small's writing; that is Mr. Hart's clerk. I could tell you if you showed me the receipt.

48,032. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You gave a receipt ?—Yes, I gave a receipt.

48,033–4. Can't you recollect how Mr. Hart's money was paid ?—I cannot.

48,035. In what coin ?—I believe it was a cheque.

48,036. Perhaps you will recollect. Would you remember where you changed it ?—Yes, I think, if I remember rightly, he gave me a cheque, and I changed it at the London and County Bank, but I cannot be certain.

48,037. Have you brothers ?—I have.

48,038. Is Henry Joyes your brother ?—He is.

48,039. Is James Joyes your brother ?—He is.

48,040. That is the bill, no doubt (handing the same to witness) ?—That's the bill, I dare say. I think from the look of that it is not in Mr. Small's writing; if you will show it to me I will tell you whose writing it is. (Witness looked at the document.) This is my brother Henry Joyes' writing. It is my receipt.

48,041. Is that your brother Henry Joyes' writing (passing another document to witness) ?—That's his writing.

48,042. Is either of your brothers a voter ?—They are not.

48,043. Is that his writing (passing another document) ?—Yes, that's his writing.

48,044. Did you see him make that out ?—I cannot remember now.

48,045. I mean, if you had been up at Mr. Hart's office, and received the money, one would expect rather that Mr. Small would make out the account ?—I think we sent in our claims, and then they went before the auditor and were audited. Then we were paid afterwards; I think so. I think there was a cheque left with my bill that was sent in.

48,046. You did not see your brothers receive the money ?—No, I didn't.

48,047. Have you taken any part in a previous election ?—I have. I was not a voter before.

48,048. In 1863 you were not a voter ?—I was not a voter in 1863.

48,049. Did you receive any money to pay away at that election ?—I did not.

48,050. You received no money ?—I received money for my services.

48,051. But not to pay away ?—Not to pay away.

48,052. Whom did you receive for yourself any money from ?—In 1863 I think I received money from Mr. Nichols, he having received it from Mr. Smith. He was agent for Mr. Gower.

48,053. How much ?—I forget.

48,054. About ?—I think it was 6*l.* odd.

48,055. Are you quite sure whom you received it from ?—Yes, I think I am; I can't say for certain.

48,056. I should like to know. Then you cannot say for certain whom you received the money from ?—No, I cannot.

48,057. Do you know whether it was cheque or cash ?—I think it was cash in the last election. The election before I received a cheque, I think, from Mr. Hart.

48,058. You think in 1863 it was, which ?—It was cash from Mr. Nichols. I think he drew a cheque for three or four amounts. Mr. Smith gave him a cheque for three or four small amounts; he got it cashed, and paid me in cash.

48,059. How do you know he had received a cheque for the amount ?—Because he told me so. I asked him if he had received the money from Mr. Smith, and he said, "Oh, yes, I have had it some "little time; here's your money;" and he drew a cheque.

48,060. In the previous election, 1859, had you done anything ?—Yes, in each election. I think Mr. Hackblock's.

48,061. Did you pay any money away in either of those elections ?—In neither of them.

48,062. I dare say you also had something for your services ?—I had something for my services.

48,063. But you did not pay any away ?—I did not.

48,064. You are quite sure ?—I am quite sure.

48,065. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You say the last 10*l.* you received was on the 30th of September ?—I think it was; I will not say for certain.

48,066. Had you received from Mr. Hart at that time the 4*l.* 19*s.* ?—No, I think not. You can tell by my receipt, but I don't think I had.

48,067. Did you tell Mr. Hart that you had been receiving money from Mr. Nichols ?—I did not see Mr. Hart on the subject at all.

48,068. You saw his clerk ?—I saw his clerk.

48,069. Did you even tell Mr. Small, his clerk, that you had received any money, the sum of 20*l.*, from Mr. Nichols ?—I did not.

48,070. Then you never have told Mr. Hart ?—I have not told him.

48,071. So far as you know Mr. Hart believed that that was all the money you received ?—As far as I know.

48,072. That included your journey to Dorking and your engagement as messenger on the day of polling. What else did you do; tell me ?—I canvassed. I went about with Mr. Corderoy. I drove him about to several places, and others,—Mr. James Apted and Mr. Brown.

48,073. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) James Brown ?—James Brown, I think his name is.

48,074. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You are a tradesman, and conduct your mother's business ?—Yes.

48,075. Are you at all engaged in the books ?—No.

48,076. You have the books ?—My mother has; I have nothing at all to do with them.

48,077. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you go much about with Mr. James Brown ?—Not with James Brown; I did more with Corderoy, a good deal.

48,078. Have you heard of James Brown lately ?—Yes; not just lately. Being bailiff of the county court I often hear of him.

48,079. Did you ever find him ? As bailiff I suppose you were after him ?—I was after his goods; I could not find them.

48,080. Did you ever find him ?—I could not find his goods; I have seen him lots of times.

48,081. When did you see him last ?—I think about a month ago; I was going to Redhill by the 8.7 train one evening, and he got into the same carriage. He was going up the line; and I asked how he was.

48,082. Did you ask him where he was living ?—He said in London. I didn't ask him where he was living. He told me he was going to London, he was living there.

48,083. I suppose you would be the last person he would tell ?—Very likely. I think so.

The witness withdrew.

THIRTY SECOND DAY.

H. Turner.

7 Sept. 1866.

HENRY TURNER sworn and examined.

48,084. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Are you a voter of this borough now?—No, I believe not.

48,085. Were you a voter at the last election?—Yes.

48,086. For whom did you vote?—For Mr. Monson.

48,087. Were you living here at the last election?—No.

48,088. Where were you living?—At a place called Widmore, near Bromley.

48,089. The election was in July. How long had you left this place before July?—On the 28th of December I think it was.

48,090. The previous December?—Yes.

48,091. So you had not been here that year at all? No.

48,092. Who canvassed you, Mr. Turner?—William Holdsworth.

48,093. At the time Mr. Holdsworth brought you up what were you to get for your expenses in coming up?—I told him I should expect my expenses paid, and he gave me 10*l.*

48,094. When did he give you the 10*l.*?—He gave me 5*l.* on the election day, and 5*l.* when he came up to pay my expenses down.

48,095. He came to Bromley, and then he gave you 5*l.*?—Yes.

48,096. What are you, you didn't tell me what you are?—A butcher.

48,097. You had left your house in the previous year, Mr. Holdsworth came down and gave you 5*l.* to vote for Monson, and 5*l.* after you came up?—Yes.

48,098. Did he pay you in his house?—Yes.

48,099. (The Chief Commissioner.) What did you pay for your house when you were here?—I think it was 21*l.*; I almost forget, I think it was 21*l* or 22*l.* a year.

48,100. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You must have known that you had not a vote?—I did not know but what I had a vote.

48,101. Had you voted before?—Yes.

48,102. When?—I am not certain the day of the month.

48,103. I mean in 1863?—Yes.

48,104. For whom?—For Mr. Gower.

48,105. Were you living here then?—Yes.

48,106. What did you receive for that?—Nothing at all; I never had anything for voting before.

48,107. Were you on his committee?—No.

48,108. Who canvassed you in 1863?—That I can't tell you now. I voted of my own accord.

48,109. Had you nothing for your loss of time or anything of that sort?—No, I never had a farthing before.

48,110. I want to know what it cost you, the fare from Bromley to this place?—I hardly know; you go three lines to get there. 9*d.* to Penge; from Penge here I forget what it was I paid. 1*s.* and 9*d.* I think; and 4*d.* from Redhill here.

48,111. We will say 5*s.* here and 5*s.* back again; that is 10*s.* That is rather a smart price,—don't you think it was, Mr. Turner,—10*l.*?—I didn't ask for it.

48,112. I believe you refused to come up unless you got some money when he came down?—Well, I said I would have my expenses paid if I came up, or else I could not come at all.

48,113. Was anything mentioned about 5*l.* then?—Yes, he said he would give me 5*l.*

48,114. And he said he would give you 5*l.* when you were up?—Yes.

48,115. (The Chief Commissioner.) He said he would?—Yes.

48,116. Then the 10*l.* was agreed on before you came?—Yes.

48,117. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) 5*l.* down, and 5*l.* when you voted?—Yes.

48,118. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You went up to his house after you voted, I suppose?—Yes.

48,119. How long before the election did Mr. Holdsworth come for you?—That I cannot say.

48,120. About a week or a fortnight?—Something like that. I promised him before I left Reigate.

The witness withdrew.

N. Wilkinson.

NORMAN WILKINSON sworn and examined.

48,121. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You were the brother of the late candidate, Mr. Wilkinson?—I was.

48,122. Have you resided in this borough for a long period of time?—Not within the borough; just without, for forty years or more.

48,123. I presume you are well acquainted with the borough?—Only when the elections commenced; I was not much acquainted with it before.

48,124. How far back do you date your earliest recollection with regard to elections?—1858, I think.

48,125. Was that when your brother first came forward as a candidate?—It was.

48,126. Can you tell me who was in the field first as a candidate at that 1858 election? Was it your brother or Sir Henry Rawlinson?—We came out against Rawlinson.

48,127. Sir Henry Rawlinson in 1857 had opposed Mr. Hackblock?—Yes.

48,128. Then, upon the death of Mr. Hackblock came this election of 1858?—Yes, then my brother came forward.

48,129. And Sir Henry Rawlinson?—I think he was in the field first.

48,130. Then your brother?—There was some doubt whether he would come forward.

48,131. Soon after your brother was in the field Mr. Doulton came; I do not mean within a day or so?—I cannot recollect.

48,132. It was after?—It was after.

48,133. There were three or four other candidates?—Yes; Walters, Monson.

48,134. Was Mr. Monson in the field before Mr Doulton came?—Yes, I think he was.

48,135. You recollect perfectly the circumstance of Mr. Doulton coming?—Quite well.

48,136. I think your brother had been candidate for Lambeth before?—Yes, and member for five years.

48,137. Then, just merely as an introduction to this history, had he lost an election at Lambeth?—If I may tell you without occupying your time too much I should like.

48,138. I don't want it, but merely for one simple fact?—He had lost the election before he came here.

48,139. Who was it opposed him?—Roupell.

48,140. How long before that election of February 1858 had your brother been beaten by Mr. Roupell? Was it at the general election of 1857?—I should say so; it was a general election.

48,141. Mr. Roupell I think, came in by a very large majority?—The largest majority that any man ever had over another at a Lambeth election.

48,142. 1,100 votes, or something of that kind?—Yes, I think it was. May I allude to that petition?

48,143. If you will be good enough to tell us very shortly, if you please, I have no objection to your telling us?—After that election my brother, having been beaten by so large a majority, and having seen an undue expenditure on the part of Mr. Roupell, brought a petition against him for undue expenditure.

48,144. No, I merely want it for this introduction,

Mr. Wilkinson: that your brother had been beaten by Mr. Roupell; that upon the election of 1858, when your brother came down here, Mr. Doulton opposed him?—Yes.

48,145. You recollect Mr. Doulton coming down; did Mr. Roupell come down with him?—I did not see him. He did come. He made a speech here; it has been in evidence before you. I did not see him.

48,146. Now, do you know whether the agents who had acted for Mr. Roupell in Lambeth came with Mr. Doulton here to conduct the election?—Certainly they did.

48,147. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Or any of them?—They did, the two most active, Truman and Murphy, and Barton, a solicitor.

48,148. (Mr. Commissioner Smith). Do you know whether they remained in Reigate for the purpose of conducting the election for Mr. Doulton?—They did.

48,149. Is Mr. Barton alive now?—I meet him continually at the committee of the Epileptic Hospital.

48,150. Then you believe him to be alive now?—Yes.

48,151. Do you know his address? Is he a London solicitor?—I think "Barton, Lambeth," will find him.

48,152. Now, Mr. Wilkinson, without putting any specific questions to you, I think I had better ask you to give me your account of that election of 1858?—I walked the borough for 13 weeks, but I never saw or knew anything of my own knowledge as to the expenditure of the money. Everything was studiously kept from me, as it was from my brother.

48,153. That is in reference to any undue expenditure with reference to your brother's election?—Even in reference to any employment of men for services. If anything were to be arranged the sub-agent or canvasser who was with me walked aside with the person to whom he was speaking. I never did anything but solicit votes on political grounds, on the merits of the candidates.

48,154. Then of your own knowledge you have no knowledge whatever of any expenditure in the election of 1858?—Not in the least, not the expenditure.

48,155. Mr. Cape was the agent?—Mr. Cape was the agent.

48,156. Was Mr. Cape agent in February 1858 as well as in October 1858?—Yes.

48,157. Can you give us any information in reference to the general conduct of that election from what you noticed yourself?—I thought it was conducted on very dear principles as far as the expenditure was concerned, and on very unfair principles as far as undue influence and intimidation was concerned, for the intimidation met me at every step among the shopkeepers.

48,158. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) In the October election of 1858?—Yes, October 1858.

48,159. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I was speaking of the election of February 1858. I was asking if you could give me of your own knowledge any account of the general bearing and character of that election?—We retired when Doulton came forward. After the ballot I went to town, and I did not take any more interest in the election.

48,160. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You gave it up altogether?—I gave it up after the ballot.

48,161. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did it come under your notice, the keeping open of public houses, in the February election of 1858 by any of the parties?—It appeared to me that Doulton was more lavish in his expenditure than any other candidate, a great deal more, particularly with regard to public houses.

48,162. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) From your own observation?—From my own observation.

48,163. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was Mr. Roupell much here?—I think not.

48,164. Now is that all you can say, I mean of your own knowledge, with reference to the February election of 1858? I suppose that after your brother retired upon the ballot you took no further interest in the election?—No further interest. The ballot was the chief feature to me.

48,165. Now, with regard to the October election of 1858, the candidates were Mr. Monson and Mr. Wilkinson?—Yes.

48,166. Mr. Monson was elected by a majority of 15?—Yes.

48,167. That was a very close election?—A very close election.

48,168. Were you in the town at that time and taking an interest in the election?—Yes.

48,169. You canvassed for your brother?—Yes.

48,170. I will ask you a general question also with regard to that election. Will you be kind enough to tell us what you have to inform the Commissioners of with respect to that election?—I believed at the time it was conducted on very pure principles, as far as expenditure was concerned on our part; but I had at the time greatly to complain of that which I could not have approved at the time,—that was the intimidation under which the shopkeepers were suffering from the electors.

48,171. (The Chief Commissioner.) That is, they said they were?—That is what they said themselves to me.

48,172. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You did not know it of your own knowledge, of course; only what they told you?—I did not see the intimidation practised, but they refused their votes on that account to me, and undue influence.

48,173. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) It is a long time to carry your recollection back to, Mr. Wilkinson, but under those circumstances I think I ought to ask you if you can name any persons who so expressed themselves to you?—I can remember the shops, but I cannot remember the persons. The women in the shops generally complained that their husbands dare not vote. I remember the shops, and could take you to them, but I cannot remember the names, it is so long ago. It was very general.

48,174. I am afraid, if we were to have a view, we should not have the same persons tenanted in the houses?—Possibly. It was the great feature of the election.

48,175. Then you can merely speak from what you heard from those persons, and as a matter of general report?—Exactly. The undue influence I saw.

48,176. I suppose that is all you have to say with respect to that election of October?

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He says the undue influence he saw.

48,177. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You mean to say, the effect of that which was represented as undue influence?—Well, my brother in his speech after the election complained of the undue influence which he himself saw exercised by one of the wealthy electors, who brought his gardener down to the poll with his hand upon his shoulder all the way up to the polling booth. That's what my brother complained of. It had as much influence upon the election to me as money did. It bothered me more than anything in my canvassing.

48,178. I am afraid if you cannot give us specific evidence we cannot go so much into general evidence. Now, then, with reference to the election of 1859, that was when your brother was put up as candidate without his consent?—Without his consent or knowledge.

48,179. I presume you know nothing of that?—I know everything of that.

48,180. That it was without his consent?—It was without his consent. I did it myself.

48,181. Oh, just so. Then, perhaps, you can speak of that election of 1859?—I did not come or mix myself up with it in any way; but some few of the electors came to me. I cannot remember the words

ept. 1866.

they used, but the effect of what they said was that they thought it a great pity that those who were so zealous to return my brother should not have an opportunity of recording their votes. I said, "If "there is any necessary expense to enable them to do "so, any lawful expense, which I can afford, I will do "it." And I gave them then and there a certain sum of money, which they said they were quite sure was sufficient. I cannot remember the exact sum, it is so long ago. I took no record of it. Then they went afterwards to this hall and proposed my brother, and I believe they have given in evidence that 161 voted without any bribe or consideration whatever. I was very gratified to see it.

48,182. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) To whom did you give the money?—To those three men, but I cannot recollect who they were, whether there were three or four men. They came up to me at my house, and put it to me in this way. "I said, "I am sure "my brother would not like to do it himself, but as "long as he is living he shall stand for Reigate, if I "can manage it, every time there's an election."

48,183. Your blood was up?—My blood was always up in his cause.

48,184. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I suppose that which transpired in the election of 1859 was another inducement for you to put your brother up for Reigate?—Afterwards, in 1863, you know.

48,185. Yes, in 1863?—Certainly it was.

48,186. You don't recollect what the expense of that election was?—No; but it was very moderate; nothing more than the polling expenses, and one or two conveyances.

48,187. It would be something under 100*l.*?—Something about that; very moderate: out of my own purse, and I should not have been able to afford much. However, I did not do much; I never came down or mixed myself up with it in any way.

48,188. Now, with reference to 1863?—In reference to 1863 I am sure you will excuse the natural anxiety that I have, after the evidence that you have had before you, to relieve my brother's memory as much as I can from the reproach of his having in any way sanctioned any undue influence or improper expenditure. It is a very unhappy circumstance that I cannot produce the accounts, and that both he and his chief agent should be dead; and I hope the evidence that has been taken will be taken cum grano salis, with a certain consideration, in consequence of our family not being able in any way to rebut it. I am sure it will by the public.

48,189. Then further than that, Mr. Wilkinson, I presume you have nothing more to say with reference to 1863?—No, except that it was a very hot contest; hot in every respect besides money respects. Many of those men who it has been proved before this Court took 4*l.* 10*s.* for their vote wept bitterly after the election, such was their strong feeling about the election, so strong was the contest.

48,190. Mr. Wilkinson, there has been a fact spoken of in evidence here, which is about the only fact that I shall draw your attention to; but inasmuch as it is a serious one I will ask you if you can possibly throw any light upon it. I allude to that circumstance which was spoken of by Mr. Joyes, in reference to Mr. James going to him and asking him if he would like to have some gingerbread, and if so there would be some on the mantelpiece, and that he found it was 100 sovereigns, which he took and then distributed. Can you throw any possible light upon where that money was found, or where it came from?—Not in the least. It was very distressing to me to read it. I cannot give you the slightest information, because I never knew anything at all about the expenditure of a farthing. I never heard any opinion from Mr. James, except after the election he said to me, "Mr. "Wilkinson, these men are a hungry lot." That is all I ever heard from him.

48,191. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That was after the election?—That was after the election.

48,192. Was that before the petition?—I dare say it was.

48,193. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You know I take your answer in the fullest sense in which you have expressed it?—Quite so.

48,194. That you have not the remotest notion where that money came from that supplied the 100 sovereigns?—Not the least. My brother would be distressed beyond measure; he was so strenuously against undue expenditure.

48,195. In 1865, did you take any interest in that election?—Not the slightest.

48,196. And, not taking any interest, you know nothing about it?—I know nothing at all about it.

48,197. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I have a question which I wish to ask you, Mr. Wilkinson: do you know at all, did Mr. James furnish an account to your brother after the election of the expenditure?—I only suppose he did; I do not know it of my own knowledge. I suppose he did from my brother's character.

48,198. You do not know at all what has become of that account?—No, I believe all his papers have been burnt.

48,199. I am speaking of 1863; you do not know what has become of them, whether they would be in the possession of his executors?—I do not know at all.

48,200. Did you make any search among his papers or anything of that kind for an account of that expenditure?—I was not his executor, nor did I ever see any of his papers.

48,201. Since this Inquiry came on you did not, perhaps, see the necessity of making any inquiry about them?—No, I have not made any inquiry.

48,202. Do you think they would be accessible if such a document was in existence?—I do not think they are; but I do not know.

48,203. Do you think we could get them? I am sure you would aid us?—I am sure I should; but I think I have heard that all his papers had been burnt, all his election papers.

48,204. It is not at all unlikely. You see they would not be burnt for some time, because the petition was in 1864, the petition claiming the seat for your brother. Have you seen Mr. James after the death of your brother? Your brother died first, I think?—My brother died first.

48,205. Did you see Mr. James after the death of your brother, in reference to anything?—Not in reference to the election.

48,206. You had no communication with him in reference to election matters?—Not in the least.

48,207. Of course, you might be brought in contact with him, as other gentlemen might be, on other matters?—No, I was not.

48,208. Do you know at all where Mr. James's papers are that would give us any light on that election?—Not in the least. I do not know where his widow lives.

48,209. You know we had Mr. Cape down here. I wish we could have somebody that could throw some light on the election of 1863?—I wish we had.

48,210. You have not?—No, I have not.

48,211. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) How soon after 1863 did your brother die?—My brother died the Good Friday before last.

48,212. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) We have heard that the widow of the late Mr. James is in Jersey. Do you know anything of her at all?—No, I do not know anything of her.

48,213. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) There is one point I forgot, Mr. Wilkinson. In your brother's course of business, in what way would he draw cheques?—He would draw cheques upon the firm, and they would be carried to his private account. I myself have got a private account, and so has my nephew. But he himself drew on the firm, and the cheques were carried to his private account.

48,214. Was that his usual course of business?—His constant and usual course.

48,215. Then if any cheques have been drawn for or on account of the election they would pass through the firm's account into his private account?—Yes.

48,216. And so, then, he could draw them again?—Yes.

48,217. And the head clerk would charge his private account to the firm?—The head clerk would charge his private account to the firm; I do not know that the head clerk knew that; when he drew his cheque for himself it was for election expenses. He would say, "I have drawn a cheque for Smith or "Jones;" he would not tell the head clerk what they were for.

48,218. Would those cheques pass under your notice?—Not under my notice.

48,219. You say your brother would draw on the firm?—Yes.

48,220. And you are a member of the firm?—Yes.

48,221. Then, as a matter of course, in the investigation of the accounts, you would become acquainted with the amount of money your brother drew from the firm?—No, I never saw the books. The clerks would, I have only my own department; but I drew all the cheques for the 1863 expenditure, almost all of them.

48,222. All the cheques for 1863?—Yes, my brother left me to do that. He said, "Give Mr. James what "he wants;" and when he wanted anything I drew on the firm, and advised my brother of it.

48,223. I ask the question for this purpose; and you will appreciate the object at once. You knew perfectly well the expenses which would be returned to the election auditor?—No, I don't think I ever did. I think I know what each election has cost him, because I have heard it by word of mouth.

48,224. Then, probably, you could not give me this information: the amount of money which was drawn out of the firm in comparison with the expenses of the election?—Oh, no.

48,225. You understand me?—I could not, so as to arrive at the expenses of the election; but I can tell you the expenses of the election.

48,226. My object is this, Mr. Wilkinson (you will probably appreciate it); to ascertain whether your brother drew out of the firm by cheque upon his private account, at the time of the election, more monies than were returned as the expenses to the election auditor. You cannot tell me that?—No.

48,227. You appreciate the object of the question; but you cannot throw any light upon that yourself?—But I may say that the tariff in the borough had so risen between 1858 and 1863 that, although the time was shorter, the expense of the election was double; the tariff of employment I mean.

48,228. There was a great increase of electors from one period to the other?—There was.

48,229. They had increased from 1858 to 1863 or 1865 something like three or four fold, had they not?—I do not know.

48,230. (The Chief Commissioner.) Mr. Wilkinson, will you be good enough to tell me this: I understand you to say that in 1863 you drew all the election cheques for your brother?—Nearly all. When the election was over he drew the remainder. Mr. James went to town, and then he saw my brother, and my brother drew the cheques that remained to be drawn. But while my brother was in town, for convenience' sake, I living here, I drew them.

48,231. Can you tell me which drew the biggest amount, you or your brother?—No, I have no idea. I think I did.

48,232. That is to say, the payments during the election were higher than the payments made afterwards?—Oh, yes, I should think so.

48,233. Can you tell me what the election of 1863 cost your brother altogether?—3,500*l.* about.

48,234. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Over 3,000*l.*?—A little over 3,000*l.*

48,235. You say over 3,000*l.*?—Well, I think so. I only know that from hearing it from the family; I do not know it from seeing books.

48,236. (The Chief Commissioner.) You know a portion of the expenses; some of the items which go to make it up?—I do not remember the items that I drew the cheques on. I know I drew considerable cheques. I know it is virtually true, because I heard it from his son, and I know the other election only cost 1,500*l.*

48,237. 1,500*l.* in October 1858?—Yes.

48,238. Then the increase was very much indeed?—Yes, it distressed my brother very much; not for the sake of the money.

48,239. Did he give you full authority to use your own discretion in the number of cheques you drew in 1863?—No, he did not tell me to use any discretion.

48,240. But you did in fact draw cheques?—Yes; but I didn't use any discretion, I was to give Mr. James what he wanted. He trusted entirely to him as his agent.

48,241. Were your instructions from your brother to give Mr. James what money he required?—Exactly.

48,242. Did you do so?—I did do so.

48,243. Without examination?—Or demur.

48,244. That is what I meant, without examination or demur; I ought to have said so. Did he at any time give you an account of what he wanted the money for?—Never.

48,245. Did you know what he did with the money?—Never.

48,246. Were you in the habit of seeing him hand over money at that time when he had received it to other people?—He never did any business before me.

48,247. You did not see him hand over money?—Never.

48,248. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) When you say you used no discretion, I suppose you mean us to understand that you were not empowered to use any discretion?—I was not empowered to use any.

48,249. And that when Mr. James came to you and asked for money, you had the general authority to give him what he wanted, and you did give him what he wanted?—And I did give it him.

48,250. (The Chief Commissioner.) Can you tell me what the course of business was between you and Mr. James? Did he come daily or weekly for a cheque?—He sat at Blackiston's hotel, and I was there morning and night before I went out canvassing. Then he would say to me, "If you please, I want a "cheque for such an amount," and I gave it him before starting in the morning.

48,251. And, generally speaking, about what amounts were the cheques you drew?—I cannot remember.

48,252. Of course you cannot remember, so as to be accurate, but can you give us any idea?—You know he had a banking account of his own, and I gave him a cheque for 100*l.*, 200*l.*, or 300*l.*; he paid that into his banking account and wrote cheques himself.

48,253. Do you mean to say your money was only to reimburse Mr. James, his outgoings?—To pay into his account, and he drew cheques for smaller sums upon that.

48,254. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You do not know whether it was to reimburse himself, or that he was subsequently to draw upon your money?—I knew morally that he was to draw upon that money.

48,255. You do not know that it was to reimburse himself for advances that he had made?—I know nothing about that.

48,256. (The Chief Commissioner.) From your last answer I do not understand what monies Mr. James was provided with. He wanted money; if he wanted 5*l.* was he in the habit of drawing on his own banker?—Yes.

THIRTY-SECOND DAY.

N. Wilkinson,

27 Sept. 1866

48,257. And so on. If in the course of the day he wanted two or three more, he drew on his own banker? —Certainly.

48,258. And were the cheques you gave him in the morning cheques in his favour, to replace those payments which he had made ?—They might be to forestall other payments.

48,259. If they were to form a balance to draw upon, they would not be to replace previous payments? —No ; they might be in some degree for both.

48,260. Exactly, they might be in some degree for both. Are you able to tell me the amount of all the cheques you drew ?—No.

48,261. Near it?—No; every day when I wrote a cheque I advised my brother of it.

48,262. Did you draw on the firm ?—On the firm; on Jones Lloyd.

48,263. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That was a matter of book-keeping, your informing your brother of it ?—I did it as a matter of business. If I wrote a cheque to go to his private account, I would advise him of it, and he would tell the head clerk.

48,264. (The Chief Commissioner.) Then your brother would give notice to the head clerk, not only when he was going to draw a cheque for his private use, but if he had already drawn one, that he had drawn one ?—Yes.

48,265. Either one or the other?—Yes ; but never for an amount that would affect our balance at the bankers. That was 5,000*l.*, which we kept at Jones Lloyd's.

48,266. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I suppose the course would simply be this : you would advise your brother of the cheque you drew in favour of Mr. James ; your brother would then advise your head clerk that such a cheque had been drawn, and to put it to his private account ; then that would go in the ordinary way of business, as if he drew the cheque himself ?— Exactly.

48,267. (The Chief Commissioner.) Will you tell me, if you can recollect, what was the ordinary amount of the cheques you drew ?—I cannot recollect that.

48,268. Could you say what was the average ?— I should think the average was 150*l.* or 200*l.* He never worried me for small sums.

48,269. That is what I wanted to know ?—He only asked me occasionally for a cheque.

48,270. Probably not much under 100*l.* ?—I think sometimes they were under 100*l.*, but I do not recollect.

48,271. Do you remember the last occasion on which you drew any cheque ?—No.

48,272. During the election I mean ?—No, I do not.

48,273. Did you draw any after the election ?— I think not, for then my brother had it in his own hands.

48,274. You are not able to tell me then when the last cheque was drawn ?—Not by me.

48,275. Can I find out by any means, by reference to your own books, when you drew the last cheque ? —No, because we never know which signed the cheque ; not by entry in the books. You might by finding vouchers, but they would most likely be burnt.

48,276. It occurred to me whether it would be found by the stump of a cheque ?—No, they are burnt.

48,277. I suppose Jones Lloyd's accounts might be easily referred to ?—No, because they are wound up.

48,278. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Is your head clerk in existence ?—No.

48,279. Is he dead ?—I do not know which was the head clerk then ; we have two or three head clerks. I do not know which attended to it.

48,280. But by reference to the books of your firm, Mr. Wilkinson, would that disclose it ?—I should think the books of the firm are burnt. We burn them every now and then at the Stock Exchange, they are so numerous. I do not know that they are. They are burnt at the discretion of the clerks up to a certain time, they are so very voluminous.

48,281. Would the private banking account of the firm become destroyed as well ?—Yes. Jones Lloyd's books, while he was alive, would have shown it.

48,282. Those would have been the only books to show ?—Distinctly ; that account, certainly.

48,283. That reminds me of a preliminary question I did not ask you. In what business were you ?— Dealers in the Stock Exchange.

48,284. Is that the custom among the gentlemen of the Stock Exchange after a certain number of years ? —The dealers, not the brokers. The brokers have transactions with the public which they may be asked for afterwards. But ours are only amongst our own body, and within a certain number of years we burn our books and papers.

48,285. Because upon the settling day, I presume, the accounts are closed as between yourselves ?—For ever.

48,286. Then after a series of years they become lumber ?—Practically ; we never have any need to refer to them.

48,287. Then what may be the private transactions between the partnership firm, those go into the private books ?—Which private books of the different members of the firm are kept by them at their own houses.

48,288. Each member remains ignorant afterwards of what the other member has done ?—Yes, we never know each other's private expenditure.

48,289. It is important that that should be explained. Then can you suggest any other mode by which we could arrive at the fact of what was the amount of the various cheques, the way in which they were drawn, in reference to the election of 1863 ?— No, I cannot ; they would not affect the manner in which the money was spent at all, only affect my brother's conduct as to the way in which he trusted his agent.

48,290. Quite so ?—And that was deputed to me for a certain time.

48,291. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) It was a close contest ?—Very close.

48,292. Were you disappointed at those who voted not having answered their promises ?—Never ; they hung to us to a man.

48,293. In 1863 ?—In both elections.

48,294. I think it is right we should ask, because we did not examine very strictly the railway men who voted for your brother in 1863, and they all said they got nothing whatever. Now, can you say from your own knowledge whether any influence, undue influence, improper influence, was exercised over the railway men who hung together and voted for your brother ? —No improper influence whatever.

48,295. To your knowledge ?—Certainly not to my knowledge.

48,296. Were any members of your firm in the direction to exercise a kind of indirect influence over them ?—Not at all.

48,297. You know what I mean ; in the direction of the railway ?—Not at all.

48,298. I mean from the respect which they would have for him ?—Not at all.

The witness withdrew.

S. Relf.

SAMUEL RELF sworn and examined.

48,299. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Are you a voter of the borough ?—Yes.

48,300. What are you in business ?—Something between a gentleman and a tradesman, neither one nor the other quite.

48,301. You were formerly the landlord of the "White Hart" hotel ?—Yes.

48,302. Were you the landlord of the "White Hart," in 1863 ?—No ; I left in 1861.

48,303. Did you take part in any of the recent elections ?—Yes.

48,304. In 1865 ?—Yes.

48,305. For whom did you vote ?—I voted for Mr. Gower.

48,306. Were you on his election committee ?—Yes.

48,307. First I will ask you whether any money passed through your hands ?—Not any.

48,308. Were you aware of any money being expended ?—Not till I heard what I have heard ; I knew men were employed, but not an hundredth part of the extent they appear to have been.

48,309. In 1863 for whom did you vote ?—I voted for Mr. Gower.

48,310. Were you on the committee ?—Yes.

48,311. Did any money come to your hands on that occasion to pay away ?—No, not a farthing.

48,312. Did any money pass from your hands ?—No.

48,313. You must not be offended at these questions, they are merely formal with you, I am sure ; no money did pass from your hands ?—No ; I shall not be offended at anything you ask ; if there had been any money I would have left it.

48,314. Did you take an active part in the election of 1863 ?—Not very, I canvassed a few.

48,315. Were you acting with Mr. Gower's agents in any one matter particularly here ?—No.

48,316. Were you not acting with Mr. Page in 1863 ?—I did not act with him, I only canvassed a few.

48,317. Did you act more with him than any other ?—No, he was a paid canvasser, I think, in '63.

48,318. With Mr. Nichols ?—I expect he was.

48,319. Are you aware of any monies that passed from his hands ?—No, not at all.

48,320. Either from his hands or others ?—No, except that what money they had was from Mr. Smith.

48,321. But personally you knew nothing ?—No.

48,322. I am taking your answer in the matter shortly ?—I never knew of any money passing into his hands from me.

48,323. No money was given to you for that purpose ?—No, not a farthing.

48,324. (The Chief Commissioner.) I wish to ask you a question ; in 1863 you were very much interested in the election ?—Yes, for Mr. Gower.

48,325. On that occasion do you know on whose side Mr. Humphreys was interested ?—No, I did not know the name.

48,326. A gentleman from London ?—I did not know the name.

48,327. Did you know anything of him before 1865 ?—I did not know the name.

48,328. In 1863 do you recollect, just before the election time, having a meeting with Mr. Page about the election matters ; is there anything that brings a particular day to your memory ?—No.

48,329. Do you remember a meeting at which Mr. Nichols, Mr. Page, and you were present ?—I do not remember any particular meeting.

48,330. Do you recollect just before the election came on his coming to you about money ?—No. Do you mean in 1863 ?

48,331. Yes, in 1863 ?—I have no recollection.

48,332. At your private house, do you remember his meeting you at your private house in 1863 ?—No.

48,333. Turn it over in your mind and see whether you do recollect ?—No.

48,334. There was some more money wanted ; did they come to you about that ?—No, they never came to me about money, and it was not at all likely ; I do not remember any money matters being mentioned to me from anybody or in any shape ; I do not think it at all probable they would do ; I do not think it at all likely.

48,335. Do you remember a particular sum was paid to you of 165*l.* ?—No.

48,336. You do not recollect anything about that in 1863 ?—No, sir.

48,337. Do you recollect a meeting in 1865, just before the election, at your house ?—No.

48,338. In 1865, the last election ?—No, they might meet at my house.

48,339. Do you recollect you, Mr. Page, and Mr. Nichols meeting in the morning just before the election ?—I have no recollection of it.

48,340. Do you recollect at your house seeing a particular sum of money pass from one hand to another ?—No.

48,341. Do you think they may have been at your house that morning ?—I think not. I am satisfied no money passed at my house, whether as between Mr. Page or anybody else ; I am positive about that.

48,342. Does anything I have said or mentioned to you now remind you of the name of Mr. Humphreys ?—No, excepting I heard he was down on that day.

48,343. When ?—Why when the petition was got up against Mr. Gower, I had not heard his name before then.

48,344. You had not heard his name in the election of 1865 ?—No.

48,345. I do not know whether having talked about the meeting will bring Mr. Humphreys to your mind ?—No, I think not.

The witness withdrew.

JOHN NEWHAM sworn and examined. J. Newham.

48,346. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you ?—A brewer.

48,347. Did you vote at the last election ?—Yes.

48,348. What rent do you pay for your house ?—It was my own house at that time.

48,349. What was it worth at that time ?—50*l.* a year.

48,350. Who did you vote for at the last election ?—Mr. Gower.

48,351. Were you on Mr. Gower's committee ?—No, sir.

48,352. Who was it you promised ?—I did not promise any one.

48,353. Who canvassed you and asked you to vote ?—I forget who asked me or canvassed me.

48,354. Did you go by yourself up to the poll, or was a carriage sent for you ?—I went by myself.

48,355. Were you of some service in canvassing for Mr. Gower ?—Not any.

48,356. Was any money paid to you to give to any person ?—Not any.

48,357. Did you receive any money before the election ?—No, not any.

48,358. Did you receive any afterwards ?—None.

48,359. Not any ?—No.

48,360. Of the election of '65 you are speaking of ?—Yes.

48,361. In 1863 who did you vote for ?—I voted for Mr. Gower.

48,362. Did you pay any money then ?—No.

48,363. Did you receive any money yourself then ?—For a committee room ; I was at the "White Hart," and they used my room for a committee room.

48,364. At Redhill ?—Yes.

48,365. Did they constantly use it as a committee room ?—They had it the whole time.

48,366. And they paid you for your room ?—Yes.

48,367. How much ?—I forget now ; 30*l.* or 40*l.* I really forget what it was.

48,368. Anything else that you received ?—Only for refreshments that were had.

48,369. How much altogether ?—I forget what it was.

48,370. How much altogether ?—I forget ; I have no account of it.

THIRTY-SECOND DAY.

J. Newham.

27 Sept. 1866.

48,371. Who did you receive the money from?—It was paid by Mr. Smith principally.

48,372. Any sum by any one else?—I received one sum from Mr. Green.

48,373. How much?—That I cannot tell now.

48,374. About?—It was under 20*l.*

48,375. Anybody else?—I do not recollect anybody else.

48,376. About how much do you think you did receive altogether in 1863?—About 200*l.*

48,377. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You say "about 200*l.*"?—I really cannot recollect.

48,378. (The Chief Commissioner.) What was it for? What did you really consider you were paid for?—For the committee room and refreshments, one thing and another.

48,379. For how long a time did you consider that went over?—Six or seven weeks.

48,380. How were you paid, by cheque?—I cannot tell you.

48,381. That is your hand; it is your bill?—Yes.

48,382. You are pretty right about the amount; it is 194*l.*?—Yes.

48,383. Did you receive all that from Mr. Smith?—Not all at one time.

48,384. Did he pay it you all at one time?—There were two or three payments.

48,385. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Was your bill taxed at all?—I think it was taxed.

48,386. (The Chief Commissioner.) Were all those items paid by Mr. Smith? Look at the bottom; you see he pays the balance; he pays you 109*l.*; he pays what the balance is amounting to, 194*l.*?—Yes.

48,387. I suppose all that amount was paid you by Mr. Smith?—Yes, that was paid.

48,388. What I understand is, these items, amounting to 109*l.*, are not taken into account with the sum of 84*l.* at all?—Yes.

48,389. I see the 194*l.* 10*s.* 8*d.* appears to have been paid you. I see that at the bottom?—Yes, that was when it was settled.

48,390. And you received the money?—Yes.

48,391. A portion of the money was paid by Mr. Smith?—There was a sum paid by Mr. Green.

48,392. It would not be here?—It was deducted from these.

48,393. It does not look like it on the face of it; how was it paid, I suppose by cheque?—I really forget that now.

48,394. He gives you payment, see above, and there is no sign of any being deducted?—That is included, the amount I received from Mr. Green.

48,395. I beg your pardon. If you received 20*l.* off this account it would have to have been deducted, and there is no sign of any deduction. When was it Green paid you?—Some time ago.

48,396. What did Mr. Green give you money for?—It might be for some of those items.

48,397. For similar items, but not those?—The amount I received from Green was deducted from that.

48,398. And this is the residue, I suppose; and the balance was paid by Mr. Smith. I suppose you sent in an account to Mr. Smith, having deducted what you had received from Mr. Green?—I did not send in separate accounts.

48,399. Tell me why Green paid you 20*l.*?—Because I wished some paid.

48,400. For refreshments and so on?—Yes.

48,401. And you gave credit for that?—I gave no credit for it.

48,402. But you said, "Well, I have been paid "20*l.* off my bill." You said something like that?—Yes.

48,403. And "I shall want 20*l.* less"?—Yes, 20*l.* less of the amount.

48,404. No, not 20*l.* less of the amount?—Yes.

48,405. Will you tell me why Green paid you anything?—Because I wanted the money.

48,406. What really was there passed between you and Mr. Green?—That really was all. I went to Green, and said there were heavy expenses, and I wanted the money.

48,407. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you give any receipt?—No.

48,408. Did you give him any bill?—No.

48,409. He put his hand in his pocket and gave you 20*l.*?—He laid it on the table.

48,410. (The Chief Commissioner.) Can you tell me what it was?—It was 11*l.* or 15*l.*; it was one of those amounts; I really cannot tell you.

48,411. Can you tell me what it was he said?—It was somewhere within six weeks of the election; I cannot tell you more than that.

48,412. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was the bill paid to you by Mr. Smith by cheque?—I really cannot tell you.

48,413. He would not surely pay you 194*l.* in cash?—I suppose it was by cheque.

48,414. Did he pay you the whole of the 194*l.*?—Yes, with the exception of what I had had.

48,415. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You were at the election of 1863?—Yes.

48,416. What did you pay a year rent for your house?—It was my own house.

48,417. What was the value?—60*l.* a year.

48,418. It was opened in January, and lasted till the 6th of February; that would be at the rate of 540*l.* a year. I am giving you a fair margin, 500 guineas. And you live in it still?—Yes.

48,419. And your family?—No; they had the rooms.

48,420. How many rooms?—Two, occasionally.

48,421. How many rooms are there in the house?—A dozen.

48,422. That would be 3,000*l.* a year, letting your rooms at that rate; that is the use of figures. Of course that did not include your vote?—No; my vote had nothing to do with it.

48,423. (The Chief Commissioner.) That is your writing too (showing witness a paper writing)?—Yes.

48,424. Is that a bill sent in to you by Wallis?—Yes.

48,425. For damage done to your house during the election?—Yes.

48,426. That is over and above?—That is included in that sum.

48,427. It is not?—It ought to be.

48,428. Here is a bill sent in, of March 1863, for damage done to your furniture, &c., during the election (reading items), amounting to 37*l.* Show me where that amount is. Look at it?—I do not see it.

48,429. Tell me whether you see the 37*l.* included in Mr. Smith's bill?—No, it is not.

48,430. Did you receive bills to the amount of 244*l.* There is Green, 133*l.*; ditto, 111*l.*: 244*l.* (reading items). Have you any explanation to give of these; if so, let us have it, for I cannot explain it?—I had not all that money.

48,431. This 37*l.* is regularly receipted?—Yes.

48,432. You did not take a receipt from Green?—I think not.

48,433. There is 103*l.* or 104*l.*?—Well, I cannot say any more about it.

48,434. I see not only is 37*l.* for damage done, but you're rather hit at the damage in your bill to Mr. Smith, damage 14*l.*?—There was damage——

48,435. Were you engaged in an election before that?—No; that was the first election.

48,436. You had not sent in a bill before that time?—No, that was the first time; I had never voted before.

48,437. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Had you given up the "Wheatsheaf" before 1865?—Yes.

48,438. Where were you living?—At Horley, four or five miles out of the borough.

THIRTY-SECOND DAY.

J. Noonham.

27 Sept. 1866.

48,439. (The Chief Commissioner.) When had you gone to Horley?—The Michaelmas previous.

48,440. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) The Michaelmas of 1864?—Yes.

48,441. And given up all connexion with the borough?—No, not all connexion with it.

48,442. What other connexion had you with it?—I had other houses.

48,443. (The Chief Commissioner.) Were you occupying?—No.

48,444. Who canvassed you for your vote in 1865?—I forget who came round.

48,445. Who came round? I am now much more curious than I was before to know. I hope my telling you so will not prevent you informing me who canvassed you in '65?—I cannot recollect.

48,446. Did Mr. Gower ask you for your vote?—No.

48,447. Did Mr. Green?—I really forget.

48,448. Did Mr. Green ask you for your vote; he is a Redhill man; about '63 I mean?—He might.

48,449. Did he come to Horley on purpose?—I do not remember. I saw him at Redhill from time to time.

48,450. Did he ask you there?—He might.

48,451. Do you not think he did?—I do not know; I forget.

48,452. You forget, do you?—Yes.

48,453. I wish you would recollect?—I cannot recollect.

48,454. I should like to know who did. Perhaps you will not gratify me?—I cannot remember. I had made up my mind to vote for Mr. Gower.

48,455. When did you make up your mind to vote for Mr. Gower?—I had done before.

48,456. Was it directly you heard he was coming out?—Yes, most likely it was.

48,457. Did it occur to you that you had not a vote?—I thought I had a vote.

48,458. Who told you so, who made you think you had a vote?—I cannot tell you, I do not know who, I thought I had.

48,459. Your house was gone in which you were living and there was an end of your vote; who told you that you had a vote after all?—I do not know that any one did.

48,460. I must give it up; I am sorry you will not tell me?—I would if I could, but I do not know.

48,461. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Naturally you would think when you leave a house which gave you a right of voting by its occupation, you would think your right was gone?—I was not aware of that.

48,462. You had no qualification whatever; you did not expect it would be fixed upon you for ever?—Not after a certain time.

48,463. I should have imagined you would naturally have thought, when you had gone to Horley to reside in the Michaelmas of 1865, that you had lost your right to vote for the borough of Reigate in the election of 1865?—I did not know anything at all about it.

48,464. Or who canvassed you?—No.

48,465. Or what money passed?—I did not get any.

48,466. Who came for you when you voted?—I drove over in my own horse and cart.

48,467. Who reminded you of the time of voting, or what you were to do?—Nobody; I wanted no reminding, nothing of the sort; I went in and voted, as I had promised for Mr. Gower.

48,468. Surely somebody met you. They would say, "Here is the landlord of the 'Wheatsheaf'"?—I went in and gave my vote; I did not want any reminding or fetching.

48,469. Who was there to welcome you at the poll?—Nobody.

48,470. When you say you do not recollect the impression will come on my mind you do not want to give us a clue; who did you see and talk to after you came? You received a large sum of money for voting before, there is no delicacy about it; which of Mr. Gower's friends thanked you?—I cannot tell you; I went there in the morning and then went back again.

48,471. Which of Mr. Gower's friends did you speak to?—I do not know, I did not take particular notice.

The witness then withdrew.

T. Hentley.

Thomas Hentley sworn and examined.

48,472. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are you?—A grocer and a furniture dealer.

48,473. What rent do you pay for your house?—20*l.*

48,474. Do you live in Reigate?—Yes.

48,475. For whom did you vote at the last election?—Mr. Gower.

48,476. Were you on his committee?—Yes.

48,477. Did you take an active part in the election?—Yes.

48,478. Did money pass through your hands?—No.

48,479. Not any money?—No.

48,480. Did you receive any money to expend on behalf of the election?—No; but I received three guineas for myself for work.

48,481. Who paid you?—Mr. Smith himself.

48,482. Did you send in a bill?—No.

48,483. You did not?—No.

48,484. Did you apply to him for that sum?—No. I did work for him; I went out canvassing, and attended the committee room down below here; writing circulars and making out district accounts.

48,485. When were you paid the three guineas?—I was paid somewhere in June, before the election.

48,486. Were you paid in one sum, or more?—In one sum.

48,487. You never applied to Mr. Smith, or sent him in any bill?—No.

48,488. It was the latter part of June?—Somewhere about the 14th.

48,489. If you did not send in any bill how do you know?—I know it was somewhere about the 14th.

48,490. And you gave Mr. Smith no account of it?—No.

48,491. Where were you when he paid you?—At his office.

48,492. You went to his office?—Yes, I took the district list which I had been working out there.

48,493. You wrote them there?—Yes, from the register.

48,494. Districts including what?—I will show you; it is similar to that in 1862 or 1863; it is not the one, but it is similar to that; I wrote it out before it was printed.

48,495. You had arranged beforehand that you were to have three guineas?—Yes.

48,496. Why was it not four guineas or five guineas that you were paid?—They gave me three guineas.

48,497. Well, I do not exactly understand how you came to have that sum?—That was all I received.

48,498. Three guineas?—Yes, that was all I received.

48,499. Did you apply for any more?—I applied to Apted.

48,500. To which Apted?—To Job Apted.

48,501. When did you apply to Job Apted?—Some time after the election.

48,502. How soon after?—About a month or two.

48,503. What did you apply to him for?—He came to me at the first crisis.

48,504. I thought you said it was Mr. Smith?—No.

48,505. I certainly understood you said it was Mr. Smith?—You misunderstood me, or I misunderstood you.

48,506. Well, what did he say?—He asked me to come and to write.

48,507. Did he mention any sum by which you

THIRTY-SECOND DAY.

T. Hentley.

27 Sept. 1866.

were to be remunerated?—No, he did not mention any sum; but he asked me if I should be satisfied if I had the same as he had.

48,508. Do you know what he had?—No.

48,509. Well, I do not think you soared quite so high as that; Mr. Apted had 50*l.*; you would not expect 50*l.*, would you?—No.

48,510. Did you tell Mr. Job Apted that you would expect as much as he had?—No, I did not; he told me that ——

48,511. He told you that you should have as much as he did?—He asked me if I should be satisfied with as much as he had.

48,512. And you said, of course you would?—I left it to him.

48,513. Did you ask him at any time what he had?—No.

48,514. Did you send him in any bill?—No.

48,515. You merely said, I suppose, "What is "coming to me"?—He said there would not be any more till after the petition.

48,516. Well, but you must have asked him for something?—He said there would not be any more till after the petition.

48,517. You sent in an account?—No, I did not.

48,518. How much did you put your work at in your own mind?—I had no notion at all.

48,519. Was it 10*l.* or 20*l.*?—I had no notion.

48,520. A shilling would not have satisfied you; you must have had some notion as to what you thought you were fairly entitled to?—I had not given it a thought.

48,521. You say you had not given it a thought?—No, and if I did not get anything it would have been the same.

48,522. What else did you do except getting out this district list?—I attended the committee rooms and writing out circulars and canvassing, and so on; I canvassed a good many.

48,523. Did you go out in the day to canvass?—Sometimes I went out in the day.

48,524. Expressly for the purpose of canvassing?—Yes.

48,525. How many days?—I should think three weeks, off and on.

48,526. You do not mean to say you were out from your business three weeks canvassing?—I should think I was, off and on.

48,527. How many days; now be cautious as to this?—Well, I cannot say exactly.

48,528. How many hours were you out at a time?—Perhaps I might have been half a day, at least part of the day.

48,529. With whom were you canvassing?—I was canvassing by myself.

48,530. Had you a canvassing book?—No.

48,531. Who did you canvass?—A great many.

48,532. Can you tell me the name of one single man you got?—No; it was a difficult thing to get them.

The witness withdrew.

J. Bailey.

JOHN BAILEY sworn and examined.

48,533. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—I am out of business at present.

48,534. What were you?—A draper.

48,535. Were you a draper at that time, at the last election?—Yes.

48,536. You were a draper then?—Yes.

48,537. But you are not now?—No, I am not now.

48,538. Were you a voter then?—Yes.

48,539. Have you a vote now?—I do not know.

48,540. What rent do you pay?—20*l.*

48,541. Who did you vote for?—Mr. Gower.

48,542. Did you take an active part?—Yes.

48,543. Did you pay any money away to voters?—No.

48,544. Was any money given to you to pay away?—No.

48,545. Did you receive any money after the election?—Yes.

48,546. After the election who paid you money?—Mr. Smith.

48,547. How much?—4*l.* or 4*l.* 10*s.*

48,548. Did you send in your account to him?—Yes.

48,549. A written one?—Yes.

48,550. And did you give him a receipt for the money?—I did.

48,551. Did you receive any money other than that you sent in your account for?—No.

48,552. Not at all?—No.

48,553. Had you been a voter before 1863?—No.

48,554. Not before that time?—No.

48,555. Were you living in your house here when you voted in 1865?—Yes, in the same house that I am living in now.

48,556. And did you send in your account and ask Mr. Smith to pay it in the first instance, or did he come to you?—I went to him.

48,557. Did he know you?—Yes.

48,558. He had known you before?—Yes.

48,559. What had you done for Mr. Gower?—I canvassed amongst my neighbours or persons that I knew.

48,560. And what else?—There was nothing else that I did.

48,561. Do you recollect whether when he paid you the 4*l.* 10*s.*, or promised you the 4*l.* 10*s.*, it was given you for your vote?— No, I never expected that, I am sure.

48,562. What do you think it was given you for then?—For canvassing my neighbours.

48,563. Had you succeeded in getting one vote?—I cannot say that any one exactly promised me, but I asked when I could.

48,564. I dare say you did; may I ask you, if you did not get the money for your vote, what you consider you did get it for?—For canvassing.

48,565. Do you mean to say that you did 4*l.* 10*s.* worth of work in canvassing; do you consider you did work to that amount?—Yes, I should think I did.

48,566. You think that your time and labour would come to that sum?—Yes, I should think that it would come to 4*l.* 10*s.*; I think I did five weeks' work.

48,567. Do you not think, I am not speaking of the time you were employed about the work, but I ask you whether you do not think that some portion of the money was meant for your vote?—No, I do not think it was.

48,568. And you really do think that you received the 4*l.* 10*s.* simply for the work you did, and not for your vote?—I think it was for the work I did.

48,569. Now be candid; do you not think that a portion of the money was given in order to secure your vote?—Well, perhaps I should think it would be.

48,570. In 1865 you had this job of canvassing; now, supposing you got a job and were to be paid by the hour, what would you value your services at?—I cannot say.

48,571. Would you value them at 4*l.* 10*s.*?—For the whole time. For this matter of 1865 I consider I was fairly paid.

48,572. You mean you were fairly paid in reference to the other canvassers?—I was satisfied.

48,573. Do you mean you were fairly paid with reference to what other persons got?—I do not; I stated I was not aware what others got.

48,574. I really do not know whether you were or not, but for the work you did you think you were fairly paid?—Yes.

48,575. You say you were not expecting anything?—No.

48,576. How came you to send in an account?—I went and saw Mr. Durrant.

48,577. Did he suggest the propriety of sending in

THIRTY-SECOND DAY.

J. Bailey.

27 Sept. 1866.

an account ?—He said I had better send in an account to Mr. Smith.

48,578. Was that the first time it was suggested to your mind you might expect anything ?—That was the first time.

48,579. How long before the election was that ?—It might be a month or five weeks.

48,580. How came Mr. Durrant to know you had been doing anything ?—He saw what I was doing, or, at least, we were living close together, and we frequently used to talk the matter over together.

48,581. Were you neighbours ?—We were living within a few minutes' walk of each other.

48,582. Did you canvass Mr. Durrant at all ?—No.

48,583. Did you canvass Mr. Durrant ?—No.

48,584. Will you put Mr. Durrant down as one of the neighbours you canvassed for the 4*l.* 10*s.* ?—I cannot say he was.

48,585. He was a neighbour ?—Yes.

48,586. Did you ask him which way he was going to vote ?—I knew.

48,587. Did you know before you met him ?—Yes.

48,588. How many neighbours did you ask ?—Twelve or fourteen, but I cannot call them to mind.

48,589. You do not know beyond the neighbours ?—No.

48,590. I suppose Mr. Durrant had canvassed them all ?—That I do not know.

48,591. He was very active in canvassing ?—Yes, he was.

48,592. Did you see him about canvassing ?—I did not see him about canvassing ; I saw him talking to some of them at times.

48,593. Did you see him talking to the 12 or 14 you canvassed ?—I do not remember whether I did or not.

48,594. And that is really all that you did ?—Yes.

48,595. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Have you got any such lucky jobs since that time ?—No.

48,596. Or in the first course of your time ?—No ; I do not recollect.

48,597. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You never voted at any other election ?—No, I voted for the county and for the election, but not for ——

48,598. Did you vote at the municipal election ?—Yes.

48,599. Did you get paid for your time there ?—No.

The witness withdrew.

Adjourned until 11 o'clock the next day.

THIRTY-THIRD DAY.

THIRTY-THIRD DAY

Friday, 28th September 1866.

J. Coomber.

28 Sept. 1866.

John Coomber sworn and examined.

48,600. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you ?—A working man.

48,601. What rent did you pay last election for your house ?—4*s.* a week.

48,602. Who did you vote for ?—Mr. Monson the last time.

48,603. In 1865 ?—Yes.

48,604. You are one of four brothers ?—No, my name is not Comber, it is Coomber.

48,605. Were you on Mr. Monson's committee ?—Yes.

48,606. Who put you on ?—I do not know who put me on hardly, I was in the committee room.

48,607. Did you work at all for Mr. Monson ?—Yes, all the time.

48,608. What were you doing ?—I was to go and get what information I could, and to bring it to Mr. Nichols in the first place.

48,609. You worked under Mr. Nichols ?—Yes.

48,610. What were you at that time ?—A labourer.

48,611. Where were you at work ?—At Mr. Waterlow's.

48,612. On his land ; the estate ?—Yes.

48,613. Then you went on with your work at that time ?—No, not at that time ; I lost a good many days.

48,614. Did you lose nomination day ?—And polling day too ; I was not worked by the day, I was worked by the time.

48,615. That is, by the job ?—You see that I lost all that.

48,616. Then you worked as you liked ?—Yes.

48,617. What were you paid before the election ?—We were earning about 4*s.* a day.

48,618. Whom were you paid by, Mr. Nichols or anybody, on account of the election ?—What I received for the election ?

48,619. Yes ?—6*l.* 10*s.*

48,620. Was that all before the election ?—It was.

48,621. Was it all before the election ?—And during the election time it was.

48,622. Before polling day ?—No.

48,623. That is the sum you received altogether ?—Yes.

48,624. You did not receive any more at all ?—No.

48,625. It was Mr. Nichols who paid you ?—Yes.

48,626. How did he pay you ?—The first time he gave me 20*s.*, and I went again and told him I wanted more, and he gave me 20*s.* more.

48,627. And so on ?—Yes ; the next time he gave me two sovereigns.

48,628. That is 4*l.* ; when did he give you the 50*s.* ?—After the election.

48,629. Have you voted before ?—I voted for Mr. Wilkinson.

48,630. That was in 1863 ?—Yes.

48,631. Who did you vote for in 1863 ?—Mr. Wilkinson.

48,632. Were you working very hard at the election ?—Yes, I was ; I went about as usual.

48,633. Much the same as you did at this last time ?—Yes.

48,634. Who were you working under then ?—Our head agent was Mr. Rose of Mead-vale.

48,635. Ephraim Rose ?—Yes.

48,636. Did he tell you beforehand how much you were to be paid ?—No.

48,637. Did you receive any money that time before the polling day ?—No.

48,638. After the polling day how much did you receive altogether ?—30*s.*

48,639. Altogether ?—Altogether.

48,640. From Mr. Ephraim Rose ?—Yes.

48,641. You did not receive anything more ?—No.

48,642. Had you voted before that ?—I never voted before that, I have not been in Reigate.

48,643. But you did not want any more money for any other purpose ?—No.

48,644. You lived in your own cottage, I suppose, not a public house ?—Yes.

48,645. You had nothing to do with any public house ?—No.

48,646. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I suppose

THIRTY-IRD DAY.

. Coomber.

Sept. 1866.

you did as much in 1863 as in 1865 ?—I did my best.

48,647. About the same thing ?—Yes.

48,648. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) How long after the election did Mr. Nichols pay you 30*s.* ?—After my doing the work would be about it.

48,649. Where did he pay you ?—At his house, at the "Grapes."

48,650. And you gave him a receipt ?—No, I did not. I do not think I signed any paper, I do not remember that I did.

The witness withdrew.

. Dickinson.

WILLIAM DICKINSON sworn and examined.

48,651. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What are you ?—A tobacconist.

48,652. Do you keep a shop in this town ?—Yes, a private shop, not a public shop ; my business is out of doors, because I am a wholesale tobacconist.

48,653. A tobacconist in a large way ?—Not a large way.

48,654. But you would call it a wholesale tobacconist ?—Yes.

48,655. Where do you live ?—High-street.

48,656. What rent do you pay for your house ?—10*l.*

48,657. For whom did you vote at the last election ?—Mr. Monson.

48,658. Were you on his committee ?—No.

48,659. Then you simply voted for him ?—Yes.

48,660. Did you get anything for your vote ?—Not for my vote.

48,661. What did you get paid ?—For my services.

48,662. What services ?—For work at the time.

48,663. You told me just now you did nothing ?—I said I was not paid for my vote ; I received it for my services.

48,664. How much ?—3*l.* 10*s.*

48,665. From whom ?—Mr. Hart.

48,666. You gave him a receipt for it ?—Yes.

48,667. Was it 3*l.* or 3*l.* 10*s.* ?—3*l.* 10*s.* I think. I thought it was very inadequate at the time.

48,668. Who engaged you ?—Mr. Hart.

48,669. I asked you whether you did anything other than vote ?—I understood you said that I got paid for my vote, and I said no.

48,670. The next question was, "Did you do any-"thing else but vote," and you said "No" ?—I said, "Yes, I did." I was in the committee room doing anything that could be done for five weeks.

48,671. You were not on the committee ?—No.

48,672. But you attended the committee room ?—Yes.

48,673. What did you do in the committee room ?—I was as a kind of messenger, directing envelopes and taking them out to gentlemen's houses ; in fact, I was as a messenger for the committee room for five weeks.

48,674. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) How many days in the week ?—Every day backwards and forwards, doing the best I could.

48,675. That would be 2*s.* a day ; do you mean that you, a wholesale tobacconist, only got that ?—Yes, that is about as near as I can tell you.

48,676. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You were attending the committee for 30 days ?—Every day, backwards and forwards.

48,677. When were you engaged by Mr. Hart ?—Some time before the election Mr. Hart sent me some bills to post, and I posted the bills for him. I have worked for Mr. Hart now for 12 or 14 years ; he sent me some bills.

48,678. You were engaged by Mr. Hart before the election, you say ?—Yes ; the first engagement was, that Mr. Hart sent me some bills to post, announcing Mr. Monson was coming forward as a candidate. I posted his bills, and from that day I considered I was engaged.

48,679. Did you act as a bill sticker ?—I posted some bills ; I acted as a messenger or anything.

48,680. I do not understand by that that there was any distinct engagement by Mr. Hart ?—I considered that was the engagement.

48,681. Sticking the bills ?—Yes. I said to Mr. Hart, "I presume I shall go on now ;" he said, "Yes ;" which I did. I was in the committee room continually, directing envelopes and also distributing them.

48,682. Then the engagement was that you were to do the best you could ?—Yes.

48,683. Were there any terms mentioned ?—No terms were mentioned ; I sent my bill in to Mr. Hart, and allowed him to fill it up.

48,684. Now, at any time whilst you were attending on the committee, were terms mentioned as to the amount which you would be paid ?—None at all.

48,685. Then I may take it as a fact that there was no arrangement ?—An arrangement was first of all commenced with these bills, and I went on attending the committee room. I considered I was engaged by Mr. Hart to act as messenger to the room.

48,686. I want to see in what way you were engaged ?—By receiving bills from Mr. Hart in the first instance.

48,687. Other persons might receive bills ?—They might.

48,688. You had some bills to post ?—There might be a dozen, or 14, or 20 ; it was merely announcing Mr. Monson was coming forward.

48,689. You could post those bills in a very short time ?—It might take me a couple of hours, not more.

48,690. Did you put them on the walls ?—On the walls over Redhill and Reigate.

48,691. I suppose you had got a cart and used to go round with it ?—No.

46,692. How did you deliver your wholesale goods ?—By carrying them in a carpet bag.

48,693. You would walk round and carry your goods to the various houses ; I suppose you supplied public houses and taverns with tobacco for smoking. Upon one of those rounds you posted these bills ?—Oh, no, I went expressly.

48,694. That took you a couple of hours ?—I dare say it might ; and perhaps three.

48,695. How soon did you commence attending the committee rooms ?—I mean running in and out.

48,696. Just when it suited you ?—I made a point of going into them twice early in the morning, between 10 and 11 o'clock.

48,697. You say you were engaged, but you have not mentioned when you were engaged specifically ?—I cannot exactly say, it was a few days after.

48,698. Was it at any time that Mr. Hart said to you that you were to attend the committee as messenger ?—Yes, certainly.

48,699. When was that, because you have not told us ?—I cannot say within a few days ; it was soon after I had those notices ; it might have been perhaps a week.

48,700. I am asking you whether, because you received those bills beforehand, you considered yourself engaged by Mr. Hart ?—Then I attended every day ; I went there four or five days after.

48,701. You did not tell Mr. Hart you expected to be paid ?—I asked Mr. Hart whether I was on that side ; he said yes, he had engaged me.

48,702. When ?—About three or four days after.

48,703. That is the first time you have mentioned it ?—I thought you understood that it was the commencement of my engagement.

48,704. No, all that you have said about the engagement was, that you mentioned a dozen bills to post ; from that you said you were engaged ?—Yes.

48,705. You have not mentioned any actual time?—A few days after.

48,706. Nothing was said specifically between you and Mr. Hart, that you were to attend the committee room and to be paid for it?—I understood that the work I was on in the committee room would be paid for; I was backwards and forwards the whole of the time, and saw Mr. Hart.

48,707. You might have volunteered; that is what I mean?—I did not volunteer.

48,708. I know you were paid, but up to the time of your being paid you were a mere volunteer?—No, I think not.

48,709. It might be supposed so by the members of the committee?—I was backwards and forwards every day.

48,710. A great many others were backwards and forwards; I want to know whether there was a specific arrangement between you and Mr. Hart?—There was; I understood it as such.

48,711. You simply understood it; I want to know whether anything specifically was said?—I cannot say.

48,712. Upon your posting the bills announcing Mr. Monson was going to stand you understood your arrangement began?—Yes.

48,713. And nothing more?—Nothing more.

48,714. I will ask it in that way?—Yes; of course I considered I was engaged.

48,715. I distinctly understand that you only understood that you were engaged from your receiving from Mr. Hart 12 or 14 bills to post?—Yes.

48,716. When were you paid?—About five or six weeks after the election.

48,717. Did you send in a bill?—Yes.

48,718. In what way did you shape your bill?—"On Mr. Monson's committee, and to Mr. Dickinson, "five weeks' services," and I left it blank for them to fill it up.

48,719. When were you paid?—About five or six weeks after the election.

48,720. (The Chief Commissioner.) Mr. Hart paid you?—Yes.

48,721. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You sent it in in blank; then it was left blank, and I have a copy of it; how much were you paid?—3*l.* 10*s.*

48,722. (The Chief Commissioner.) I think there is some mistake about it, it is not very material, but are you sure you were paid 3*l.* 10*s.*?—I do not know whether it was 3*l.* 15*s.* or not.

48,723. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) There is a receipt of yours (handing a receipt to witness)?—That is right.

48,724. Then I suppose you will alter the amount from 3*l.* 10*s.* to 3*l.*?—Yes, that is right; I told you at the time I was not certain; I said I received 3*l.* 10*s.* I thought, and I was very much surprised.

48,725. (The Chief Commissioner.) I want you to tell me when you were paid by Mr. Hart?—I really cannot tell you within a week.

48,726. Tell me within a fortnight?—I know it was some time after, and I should say rather over six weeks.

48,727. Can you tell me what month it was you were paid in?—I cannot now.

48,728. How long was it after you had sent in your account?—I should think three or four weeks.

48,729. You sent in your account to Mr. Hart?—Yes.

48,730. When did you send in your account?—Some time after the election.

48,731. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) About a week from the election you said?—Yes, I think that was so.

48,732. (The Chief Commissioner.) Now what I want to know is, in what month Mr. Hart paid you?—I think it gives the date; there is the date.

48,733. The election was in July; I want to know what month you were paid?—I think it was in the month of September.

48,734. Can you tell me what part of September you were paid?—No, I cannot, or else I would with pleasure. I cannot recollect it; I know it was some long time after.

48,735. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Were you in any other election?—I was in Mr. Gower's election.

48,736. In 1863?—Yes.

48,737. I will ask you one short question; did you receive anything for the election of 1863?—5*l.*

48,738. From whom?—Mr. Smith.

48,739. What for?—I was engaged by Mr. Smith as a messenger.

48,740. (The Chief Commissioner.) Who did you vote for?—Mr. Gower.

48,741. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) When were you engaged by Mr. Smith as a messenger?—Some time before the election.

48,742. Was it a specific engagement by Mr. Smith, for the election as messenger?—Yes.

48,743. What time did you go to him?—Two or three hours a day.

48,744. For what length of time?—Five or six weeks.

48,745. What was your occupation?—Partly canvassing; the other time I devoted to the committee room.

48,746. Where did you canvass?—At Redhill. I had a few friends, and I tried to do what I could.

48,747. I suppose in 1863, as in 1865, your occupation in business was to travel about and deliver your goods?—Certainly.

48,748. Was it at the places where you delivered your goods you canvassed?—Not particularly.

48,749. Did you canvass elsewhere?—Any person I knew of, who I thought was likely to come on the same side, I tried to persuade.

48,750. How many did you try to persuade, do you know?—Well, one and all, that I thought I could successfully.

48,751. You do not mean by that the whole of the borough?—I do not mean that I succeeded in canvassing a single one.

48,752. By canvassing you mean getting a vote?—Yes.

48,753. I mean by canvassing trying to get a vote?—I was also employed in delivering circulars, taking Mr. Gower's circulars; I used to deliver his the same as I did for Mr. Monson last time.

48,754. How long were you engaged in that way for Mr. Gower?—Five or six weeks.

48,755. Had you promised your vote to Mr. Gower or to somebody for Mr. Gower?—Mr. Smith canvassed me and Mr. Gower, and I promised my vote.

48,756. How soon after you promised your vote were you put on?—Previously.

48,757. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Do you mean you had been put on before you promised your vote?—Precisely, and the same for Mr. Monson at the last election.

48,758. You were put on before you promised?—Yes.

48,759. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) That is with regard to 1865, when you received the bills by post before you promised Mr. Monson?—Precisely; it was the night previous to the last election that I met Mr. Hart coming from the committee room, and I pointed out a heap of stones beside the hall, and I said, "Mr. Hart, do you not think those stones ought not "to be removed," because that was the night before the nomination.

48,760. That was the night before the polling?—The night before the nomination. I called his attention to that, and he said, "Yes, by all means get the "stones taken away;" and I engaged two men to take them away.

48,761. Did you pay the men?—I did.

THIRTY-THIRD DAY.

W. Dickinson.

28 Sept. 1866.

48,762. What did you pay the men ?—3*s.* and some beer; they would not do anything without beer.

48,763. I suppose you were repaid the money?—No.

48,764. That was part of the 3*l.* ?—Yes.

48,765. That might happen to any person ?—No, I would not have asked anybody else.

48,766. Anybody else might have drawn Mr. Hart's attention to it, knowing that he was the responsible agent ?—They did not.

48,767. Do you consider the suggestion to Mr. Hart that those stones were dangerous was part of your work ?—He said, "That is a very good idea of yours; "let them be removed."

48,768. And that it ought to be well paid for ?—No.

48,769. No doubt it was a very proper and charitable suggestion, because those stones might have been used in a very improper way ?—That is what I thought.

48,770. You would not have suggested that to Mr. Hart if you had not been engaged ?—I cannot tell.

48,771. I am sorry to hear you say so ?—I could not.

48,772. You could not suggest to Mr. Hart that those stones were dangerous ?—I should not have mentioned it to anybody else but Mr. Hart on Mr. Monson's side.

48,773. You were going to vote for Mr. Monson? —Precisely; I was, and that was the reason I wanted the stones removed; and for Mr. Gower too. I think you misunderstood me.

48,774. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You mean you would not have presumed to do it for yourself?—That is what I mean. I certainly should have liked the stones removed by anybody else.

48,775. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I thought you had put that forward as a reason why you were engaged by Mr. Hart, because you told Mr. Hart those stones were dangerous?—On the other hand, why I mentioned it to Mr. Hart was that he was one of the magistrates, and if I had taken those stones away I might have been in the wrong; but if I mentioned it to Mr. Hart I knew I had his support, and therefore I had them removed from the hall to the back of my house.

48,776. I did you wrong; but I understood you that you would not have done that; but you mean you would have done that whether employed as messenger or not ?—Certainly I should.

48,777. I thought I might have misunderstood the tenor of your answer?—I believe you did.

48,778. I certainly did. I am very glad I now understand you ?—My reason was that Mr. Hart was a magistrate, and I thought that he was the proper person to get them removed.

48,779. Had you voted at any election before 1863? —Yes, for Mr. Doulton.

48,780. In February 1858?—Yes.

48,781. At that election did you receive anything? —Yes.

48,782. How much ?—I sent in a bill to Mr. Truman, who was the financier.

48,783. What was the amount of your bill ?—I left it to him to fill up, and I receipted it.

48,784. Just let me ask you another question; was any specific agreement made between you and Mr. Smith as to what you were to receive in 1863 ?—No.

48,785. And you sent in a blank bill?—Yes.

48,786. Now, in 1858 you sent in a blank bill also? —To Mr. Truman.

48,787. Was that bill filled up?—No, in blank.

48,788. You receipted it in blank ?—Yes, and he said, "You have got a great deal of confidence in me."

48,789. Did he reward that confidence ?—Yes.

48,790. With how much ?—7*l.* or 8*l.*

48,791. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He put that figure 7*l.* or 8*l.* in?—Yes.

48,792. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What had you done for the 7*l.* or 8*l.*?—I had worked very hard night and day.

48,793. I suppose you took a great deal of interest in the cause ?—I did, and I wish Mr. Doulton had been returned; we should not have had any bother now.

48,794. I suppose there were many others who took an interest in the cause ?—Yes.

48,795. You were paid for taking an interest in the cause ?—I was so.

48,796. Had you been engaged for any services in 1858 ?—I heard Mr. Doulton once or twice in this room, and I fancied him very much, and I thought it better to vote for him.

48,797. Having voted, you expected to be paid ?—No.

48,798. But for the zealousness in the cause you expected something ?—Yes, I did.

48,799. You sent in a bill in blank ?—Yes.

48,800. Then you received 7*l.* or 8*l.* ?—Yes.

48,801. In 1863 and 1865 you sent in, just in the same way, a blank bill ?—Yes.

48,802. I suppose in 1863 and 1865 you were equally zealous in the cause ?—No, I think not.

48,803. You were more zealous in 1858 ?—A great deal more.

48,804. You were younger then ?—Yes.

48,805. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Had you arranged with Mr. Truman before that you were to be paid for any services rendered ?—No.

48,806. Had you arranged with any one ?—No.

48,807. Beforehand, that you were to be paid ?— My arrangement with Mr. Truman was; he said, "If "anything is required, I am the financier, and you "must look to me for it."

48,808. That is something like it. He said, "For "the purposes of the election I am the financier" ?— Yes.

48,809. That was inviting you to send in a bill?— Precisely so.

48,810. Tell me, was that after the election was over or before the polling ?—Long before.

48,811. Long before the polling ?—Yes.

48,812. He put you on to work; he did not give you any specific work to do ?—No.

The witness withdrew.

H. Green.

HENRY GREEN recalled and examined.

48,813. (The Chief Commissioner.) You have been sworn. I want to ask you one question. Do you remember in the election of 1863 a man named John Newnham ?—Yes.

48,814. Do you remember, after the election, I think, but I am not quite certain, paying him some money? —I do.

48,815. Was it after or before? — After the election.

48,816. Can you tell me how much it was ?—19*l.*, 19 sovereigns.

The witness withdrew.

H. Westley.

HENRY WESTLEY sworn and examined.

48,817. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you? —A builder.

48,818. What rent were you paying for your house at the last election ?—It is my own.

48,819. A freehold?—No, a leasehold, under Lord Monson.

48,820. What is the value of it ?—I think it is rated at 42*l.*; I do not know whether it is 38*l.* or 42*l.*

48,821. Who did you vote for at the last election in 1865 ?—Mr. Gower.

48,822. Were you on Mr. Gower's committee ?—I never knew whether I was or not.

48,823. Which of the sub-agents was it whom you principally worked under ?—I did not work at all.

48,824. What did you receive before the election came on ?—Nothing.

48,825. After the election what did you receive ?—Nothing.

48,826. Did you not receive anything for the election ?—Not at any time in my life.

48,827. Did you keep a public house at that time ?—No.

48,828. Was any room in your house taken as a committee room ?—No.

48,829. Or taken for any purpose during the election ?—No.

48,830. Did any money pass through your hands to give to any other person ?—Never ; not a halfpenny.

48,831. Did any money at all come to your hands ?—No.

48,832. I mean not to put in your own pocket, but for any purpose ?—Not for any purpose ; nobody dare attempt to put money in my hands.

48,833. You must forgive me asking the question ; did you receive money for the hire of a room or for the hiring of anything ?—No, nothing.

48,834. In 1863 you took a more active part ?—In Redhill.

48,835. Money in 1863 did pass through your hands ?—No, it did not.

48,836. I thought it did ?—No, it did not.

48,837. Then I am wrong perhaps, and you are right. I thought you paid money in 1863 ?—I might have done ; but it did not pass through my hands in any one election, from me, to give away. I should not have had it.

48,838. Who did you vote for ?—Mr. Wilkinson, as I had always done before, and should now if he lived.

48,839. Did you canvass for him ?—Oh, yes, I canvassed. I should naturally ask others to vote the same way as myself.

48,840. Did you succeed in getting voters for him ?—I dare say I did a great many.

48,841. Can you tell me the name of any person ?—I would not attempt to do it ; I went from one parish to another.

48,842. You would not attempt to do what ?—To tell you the names, because I took the register in my hand and went about.

48,843. Perhaps I can tell you ?—You cannot.

48,844. We will see ; did you not canvass a man in 1863 of the name of Coomber ?—No ; I think perhaps you have got another man on the register for that.

48,845. I wish you would assist me at once ; that may be so. Is your name Henry Westley ?—It is Henry Westley.

48,846. The men I have got as men you paid in 1863 are John Coomber, Edward Langton, George Harman, and John Peters ?—I am the Henry Westley that Langton said I paid money to.

48,847. Did you pay John Coomber ?—No, I did not pay him a penny.

48,848. I will say you deny that ?—I deny it.

48,849. Do you know the man ?—Very well.

48,850. Can you account for his saying that ?—I have not the least idea why the man should say so ; I should not have done it.

48,851. Do you know Edward Langton ?—Yes.

48,852. Did you pay him 7*l.* ?—Never.

48,853. You deny it ?—He denied it himself, and his brother too.

48,854. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I will just tell you what his brother said, "In 1863 I voted for Mr. "Monson. I had 7*l.*" Then he said he could earn quite as much as that at his own work, if he was put on a job. "Henry Westley came to me for my vote. "I would not vote until he handed the money over to "some one I could trust. I named Barker, and it was "handed to me ;" and Barker told you in his evidence that Mr. James gave him the money, and not Westley ?—I deny it totally.

48,855. Deny what ?—Either seeing Langton or offering him money, or having anything to do with him ; if you look at Mr. Barker's evidence, he says he received it from Mr. James.

48,856. (The Chief Commissioner.) That is the explanation, it is suggested to give you an opportunity to explain these matters ; you ought not to grumble at that. Will you give me some explanation with regard to Coomber, as to who did pay him the 1*l.* ?—I do not know. I have got an uncle of the name of Westley ; he has been drunk and running about the election, and his name has been mentioned in this Court.

48,857. Did you pay John Harnan 3*l.* ?—I have no recollection, but I might have. I recollect being in Topliss's one night, amongst two or three of my own men, and there was one wanted 5*s.*, and another one had 1*l.* from me. It might have been had, but certainly I never had anything of it. I never received a shilling for the election.

48,858. Did you pay Joseph Peters 1*l.* ?—No.

48,859. Do you know the man ?—I used to know him.

48,860. May you have forgotten it ?—No.

48,861. It seems that he got 1*l.*, and I want to find out who he got it from ?—It was not from me.

48,862. Did he not ask you ?—No, I only recollect once being asked out of the committee room.

48,863. Who asked you ?—My own uncle called me out. I had 40 or 50 men at that time, and if they wanted any money my men would come there, when they knew I was in the committee room, and I might give them half a crown or two, and therefore Harman might have got the 1*l.* ; but I know Peters.

48,864. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Men came who were working for you in your private business ?—Yes.

48,865. (The Chief Commissioner.) He says in 1863 he received 1*l.* for Mr. Wilkinson from Westley, and before he had voted for Mr. Wilkinson he received 2*l.* He said it with no hesitation ?—I think my uncle was chairman of the committee.

48,866. May you not have forgotten it ?—No ; there were two Westleys then.

48,867. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What was your uncle's Christian name ?—William.

48,868. (The Chief Commissioner.) I think I shall take it that you don't recollect it, I will not take it as a positive denial ?—Well, it is almost a positive denial.

48,869. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Are you prepared to go so far as to say you did not ?—I think I will say I did not pay it to Peters.

48,870. (The Chief Commissioner.) Where did you get the money from that you paid away ?—Out of my own hands, I never got any other.

48,871. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And never claimed it ?—No, I never had any money, I had something else, but I never had any money.

48,872. Did you receive any money at all ?—Not a farthing.

48,873. (The Chief Commissioner.) What did you get instead of money ?—I got a letter of thanks for being an honest man.

48,874. I mean money's worth ?—Oh yes, I did, I got this portrait (holding up a portrait to the Commissioners).

48,875. That is, I suppose, a likeness of the candidate ?—No, of myself ; that was after the election.

48,876. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I understand, Mr. Westley, that you never received a farthing in reference to any election ?—In my life I never did, and I never paid any away, except when I had been amongst my own men at night I have spent a shilling. I worked as hard as any one worked, and I think I did more, but I have not taken, from beginning to end, anything.

The Chief Commissioner remarked that he was very sure the witness must be glad of having the opportunity of stating that.

The witness withdrew.

THIRTY-THIRD DAY.

F. Doulton, Esq., M.P.

28 Sept. 1866.

FREDERICK DOULTON, Esq., M.P., sworn and examined.

48,877. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I believe you are at present member for Lambeth?—I am.

48,878. I will take you at once to this; do you recollect being a candidate for this borough in 1858?—I do.

48,879. Might I inquire whether you had a requisition from any persons in the borough, that brought you down here?—Not a requisition in writing, I received a request from many who were here.

48,880. From many of the respectable voters of the borough?—Yes.

48,881. Were you at all connected in business or family with the borough of Reigate at that time?—I was not.

48,882. Can you tell me whether you can recollect when it was the first time made known to the electors, either by placards or advertisement, that you intended to become a candidate at the election?—The beginning of January 1858.

48,883. And when did the polling at the election take place?—On the 6th of February. I am not certain as to January being the time when I came down; possibly it was December. My first meeting was in January.

48,884. We will take it the latter end of 1857 or the beginning of 1858; how did the election arise?—From the death of Mr. Hackblock.

48,885. (The Chief Commissioner.) The sixth of February was the polling?—Yes.

48,886. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Who at that time acted as your conducting agent?—Mr. Barton was really an agent appointed.

48,887. Who acted at that election; I do not mean at first, but who acted at the election as conducting agent?—I think Mr. Truman signed the accounts that were sent in as the electioneering agent; I think he did.

48,888. It was necessary to have a person appointed as agent, and you think, on the accounts being sent in, that Mr. Truman was the election agent. Mr. Barton was your private solicitor, and you called him in, I suppose, to aid in the conduct of the election, and to advise you?—Yes.

48,889. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) May I take it, Mr. Doulton, that Mr. Truman was your expense agent; you understand the term under the Act of 1854?—Yes; it was necessary to send in an account signed by some one, and I suppose, that becoming necessary, his name was put down as the agent.

48,890. You understand what we mean by the expense agent?—Yes.

48,891. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Can you tell me, how soon after your first meeting did Mr. Truman come down to the borough?—I cannot tell you.

48,892. About?—I cannot tell you, it is now nearly 10 years ago.

48,893. We will not bind you to any particular time?—I shall be glad to give any information I can, but I cannot recollect whether he came down at first, or whether he came down weeks after. My own impression is, that some two or three days after it commenced he came down.

48,894. About the middle of January?—Yes.

48,895. Had you known Mr. Truman before?—I had known him as having taken an active interest in two or three elections.

48,896. You knew him as a person who had been engaged in managing electioneering business and the ordinary business of elections?—Engaged at elections.

48,897. Engaged as you engaged him, in that capacity?—Yes.

48,898. Had you any other person to manage the expense department and money department of the election except Mr. Truman?—I managed it myself; I did not allow even Mr. Truman to engage any one, or to pay any one, without first sending those payments to me.

48,899. Now that brings me to another question. How did you pay; did you pay by cheque in favour of Mr. Truman, or did you pay them by cheque drawn in favour of the man himself?—When I came down to Reigate I placed 1,000*l.* in the bank here, and as I could not myself expect to draw every small cheque, I authorized Mr. Barton and Mr. Truman to sign them. Mr. Truman could not sign anything before he sent to Mr. Barton, and the accounts were brought to me, and then Mr. Barton signed it.

48,900. You placed the 1,000*l.* drawn upon by a cheque signed by Mr. Truman and Mr. Barton?—Yes.

48,901. That was when you first came down?—Yes.

48,902. Can you give us about the date of that?—It was the beginning of January, a few days before I had my first meeting.

48,903. (The Chief Commissioner.) You say joint cheque, not signed by one or the other?—Yes.

48,904. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Signed by both; you did not sign them?—I did not.

48,905. Might I inquire, Mr. Doulton, because it will save us the necessity of applying to you again, what bank you paid that into?—Really I cannot recollect, it was very close here in Reigate; I know, because I took it myself.

48,906. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Excuse me, Mr. Doulton, for one moment, I think there is a little misunderstanding with regard to the drawing of cheques. Mr. Barton had the authority to draw cheques without your putting your name yourself to the cheques?—I never put my name to the small cheques. At the end of the week the accounts were sent to me to approve them, and then Mr. Barton signed the cheque.

48,907. Did Mr. Truman sign the cheque as well as Mr. Barton?—Yes.

48,908. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You gave directions to your bankers not to honour any cheque except it had the name of Mr. Truman and Mr. Barton to it?—Yes.

48,909. You cannot tell us what bank it was?—You can ascertain, it is close by; there were only one or two bankers here.

48,910. Was it the London and County?—I do not think it was; I think it was a provincial bank. Yes, now I am reminded, it was the London and County.

48,911. Mr. Marsh was the manager?—I do not know the manager.

48,912. That was when you came down as a matter course, in the early part of January. Can you tell me when the next payment for the purposes of the election was deposited into the bank?—There was no other payment to the bank; the balance was drawn out. I think not, but I am not quite sure upon that point; but so far as I can recollect there was a balance of 40*l.* or 50*l.* drawn out of the bank.

48,913. A balance might be drawn out, Mr. Doulton, soon after the election was over, and yet more have been put in; of course your attention has been drawn to this point?—I am not sure about it, I know that the published accounts came to between 900*l.* and 1,000*l.*; after that time some other accounts were paid, whether they were paid by money being paid into this bank, or were paid separately, I cannot tell.

48,914. I want to know whether you paid for the purposes of the election any other sums of money into the bank?—I say I cannot recollect whether the sums paid afterwards were paid through the bank, or whether they were paid separately.

48,915. Can you tell me whether the subsequent payments made were paid before the balance of 40*l.*, or whatever it may be, was drawn out from the bank?—I really cannot tell.

48,916. Now, Mr. Truman being here, did you yourself remain on the spot during the period of the canvass or at Redhill?—I do not think I was out of Reigate or Redhill from that time till the commencement of the polling; I was here every day.

48,917. Will you tell me, if you can, at what period of the contest between January and the 6th of February was the balloting out, which left you as the sole antagonist to Sir Henry Rawlinson?—I cannot tell you, I can only form an opinion that it was about 10 days or so before the election.

48,918. Taking the polling day as a terminus, you think it was about 10 days before the polling day when the balloting took place, which left you as sole competitor and antagonist to Sir Henry Rawlinson?—Not sole competitor, because Mr. Monson still remained.

48,919. Oh, did he remain?—Yes.

48,920. You say all the bills for which the cheques were to be drawn were submitted to you before they were paid?—And I generally was present when they were paid also.

48,921. If you approved of them your presence would be a matter of indifference. Have you any means of estimating how much of the 1,000*l.* had been paid away up to the time of the ballot?—No, I cannot; I can only tell you the amount that was paid up to the day of nomination, and that was nearly 500*l.*

48,922. Do you speak from memory?—I speak from memory.

48,923. Have you any document or any means of informing us?—It was not a sufficiently interesting election for me to keep documents for 10 years.

48,924. I do not put the question to you as a matter of complaint in any way whatever; do not misunderstand me: what I mean is, have you nothing to refresh your memory, or to enable us to arrive at the truth; have you any memorandum, any book, or any accounts?—No, nothing that would show that up to the time of the balloting.

48,925. Nor up to the period of the nomination, except your memory?—I have some few things here, which you may call a memorandum book, and the sum what I actually paid before the nomination was about 500*l.* I have some figures here.

48,926. Figures made at that time or after that time?—Yes, made at the time. I searched over my papers, and I only found two or three accounts in my memorandum book, and that was the amount, 470*l.*

48,927. Have you the memorandum book?—No. I have not got it here. I think Mr. Barton has got it.

48,928. Any private matters in it would be safe with us if you had it here?—Mr. Barton, I think, has the exact amount that was paid up to the nomination.

48,929. You think from the memoranda, which you have not with you, that it was 470*l.*; was that principally spent or expended in paying canvassers weekly, and paying for posting bills and placarding, and other things of that kind?—That is how it was expended.

48,930. Had you paid at that time anything, for example, for advertisements in the papers?—Yes, naturally.

48,931. And the first portion of the expenditure?—Yes.

48,932. Can you tell me at all how many men were engaged in your behalf up to the day of polling?—I cannot tell you. I have my own opinion about it, but I should be sorry to give it in case I am wrong.

48,933. There has been evidence to which I wish to call your attention, because I desire to give you the fullest opportunity of explaining it. There has been evidence before the Commissioners that a very large proportion of the voters had been employed in various capacities, and some in degrading capacities, such as putting boards around a voter, sending him out between two boards; that has been stated in evidence, are you aware of it?—Of what.

48,934. That such was the case?—That persons were employed?

48,935. Yes, that voters were employed?—I would desire now, as you are approaching that point, to adopt a course which I see you have allowed with several other witnesses, and to make a general statement as to the evidence which has already been given.

(The Chief Commissioner.) I think you had better first let this gentleman ask questions and confine yourself to answering them.

48,936. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) No doubt, Mr. Doulton, you from time to time have read the reports in the public papers of the evidence before the Commissioners?—Yes.

The Commissioners consulted together.

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Confine yourself to the facts as much as you reasonably can; the Commissioners think that is a reasonable request.

(The Witness.) It is just a few remarks which I wish to make touching the evidence which has been given on the election of 1858.

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) But confine yourself to facts as much as you can.

(The Witness.) I must state my opinions, and I must also place before the Commissioners, if I may be allowed to do so, reasons which would tend to show that some of the evidence given has not been strictly correct. If I understand the nature of the evidence which has been given there has been no distinct charge of bribery, I mean of immediate direct bribery, payment of money for votes.

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I will call your atention to this, that there is evidence by a gentleman here, who seems a very intelligent man indeed (Mr. Job Apted) who said you came to him.

48,937. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Has your attention been drawn to that evidence?—Yes; the evidence appears to me to be: firstly, that there was at that election great corruption by profuse expenditure of money—by treating; and, secondly, by colourable employment of persons who were voters. Those were the two main points on which evidence has been given. Now, I admit at once that the election was a very noisy one, a very exciting one, and a very riotous one, but I deny—and will endeavour to show to the Commissioners and give reasons for my opinion—that that was owing to corruption either by treating or bribery on my part, and, I will add, on the part of either of the other candidates; for I do not think that at that time on the part of Mr. Wilkinson or of Mr. Monson bribery was practised to any extent—if at all. The excitement appeared to me to be consequent upon the fact, that up to that time the borough had been practically a close borough. There had not been any such thing in Reigate as a really contested election, and the mayor of this borough (Mr. Searle) very aptly described the state of things which had existed previously when he said that all the elections had been arranged,—a very significant term, which the Commissioners will understand. When I agreed to come down it was deemed a piece of great impertinence for any one to come down to disturb the happy state of things which had existed, and no doubt there was considerable excitement on my coming here. But the real reason of that excitement and riotous conduct in my opinion was the gross intimidation which was practised by persons living in this town and in the immediate neighbourhood over the smaller shopkeepers and voters. That fact became known, and the excitement increased. What Mr. Wilkinson said yesterday in his evidence respecting the election of '63 I repeat. I cannot use better words than that the intimidation came not from the candidates, but from the persons of some position around the borough, who exercised and used undue influence over the voters; that is quite correct, and that to my mind was the reason of the excitement that prevailed. As the election went on the excitement increased, and it was a very long election, lasting five or six weeks. I believe no payment had been made when I saw this intimidation. I may here state that I had a list. I exceedingly regret that I cannot produce it—of 70 persons at that time who told me myself personally that they could not vote as they wished on account of the intimidation exercised. When I found that was the case I took every precaution to avoid it, and I sent a notice, which was hung up in every committee room, stating that I would not be responsible for one penny that was not ordered by myself or my agents by a written order, and I appended with that notice an extract from the Bribery Act, showing the penalties which would be inflicted if that was departed from; and I am here to state on my oath that that was strictly adhered to. It is very true that accounts were presented after the election which were for very large amounts, and in those accounts large amounts were said to have been expended in public houses for treating and so on.

48,938. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And for employment?—And for employment. Not one of those accounts was paid. Applications were made repeatedly to me for payment, and I refused to pay them, and to this day I have never paid them.

48,939. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Without wishing to interrupt you, could you say to what amount, so far as your memory serves you?—I cannot recollect at all; there were a number of accounts sent in by persons who were employed by me.

48,940. Might it be to the amount of 500*l.* or 600*l.*?—I have an impression that there were accounts presented to me afterwards to the extent of 300*l.* or 400*l.*, which were never paid; they were disallowed.

48,941. As we are upon it I will ask you this question; were you ever sued upon them?—No; my answer always was the notice which I had hung up in every committee room, and of which every person employed was cognizant. This brings me to the evidence of one person—and very important evidence so far as myself is concerned—and that is the evidence of Mr. Barker. Mr. Barker stated in his evidence that he received 23*l.*

48,942. Not from you personally?—No, not from me, but my agent. Nine years have passed, but I have no doubt in my own mind that that statement is correct. I have no doubt he did receive it. It was necessary that I should employ one or two persons, some what above the general canvassers, like Mr. Barker was, for this reason,—I could not obtain here the services of any local solicitor, they being engaged already; so I had to engage one or two other persons.

48,943. I wish fully to exhaust this part of the subject. Did you apply to all the solicitors in Reigate?—I believe my agents did; I know I applied to two or three.

48,944. You do not know that you exhausted the whole of them?—I believe we did; at any rate we canvassed the whole so far as those men were concerned who were said to be good men, who had taken part in elections previously. I think, therefore, that it is very likely he did receive a sum like 23*l.*; but Mr. Barker did not tell you he was one of those who after the election sent me in an account for expenses which he said he had incurred in reference to the election.

48,945. Will you say what was the amount?—I cannot. I have asked some of my agents, and they believe the amount was 12*l.* or 13*l.*

48,946. If I put you out in your statement. —— I would rather you should go on?—No; if any point arises I shall be glad if you remind me of it. I think it was something like 10*l.* or 12*l.* I did not pay it. He applied repeatedly to my agents; they refused. He applied to me personally, and I refused; and then I am prepared to prove it by distinct evidence before this Commission, Mr. Barker over and over again said that he would take care ever afterwards to annoy as much as he could.

48,947. No, no, never mind that.—But that is a very important point, because I think it is the secret of a great deal of the evidence given here,—the manner in which I treated those who made claims upon me.

48,948. He said nothing here of that kind?—No, of course not; but I am prepared to place one or two witnesses in the box. I have not heard of him lately, but I think I am right in saying that up to within this last three or four years I have had an application of that kind. In engaging Mr. Barker I engaged him myself, and I looked upon his payment as for services actually rendered. It seems that he thinks he was bribed. I read the evidence of Mr. Barker, and it appeared to me that, if he did not intend to convey that impression, at any rate that impression was conveyed to the Commissioners—that he was really paid the 23*l.* in connexion with a bribe, and not for actual honest services which he rendered to me. I can only say that if Mr. Barker looked upon that as for a bribe, and not for services rendered, I was grossly deceived, and the sooner he returns the 23*l.* the better, and so takes his name out of the list of those who received bribes.

48,949. That is a matter for us to consider and to judge.—Yes. I wish to state that he was employed as a superior canvasser or sort of sub-agent, and very likely he received the 23*l.*, but that was for services actually rendered by him, so far as myself was concerned.

48,950. That was what you believed at the time?—Yes. Now the most important statement which has been made, so far as I am individually concrned, was the statement made by the person to whom you referred (Mr. Job. Apted) who stated that I told him it was my intention to buy the borough, that he took the chair for me at my first meeting, and that when he had that communication from me he retired from my service—from supporting me. Now, in every possible particular I deny that in toto. Mr. Apted did not take the chair at my first meeting, and no such statement was made by me, nor any statement that would bear such construction.

48,951. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Do you recollect who took the chair?—I think it was taken by a solicitor. I distinctly deny that statement in every particular. He was the last person.

48,952. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Leave out names; you mean that I should take that general denial?—No, I must just state that Mr. Apted was about the last person.

48,953. No, no?—Excuse me, whilst I show to you the position which Mr. Apted occupied at that time.

48,954. I will examine you on that part of the subject, because it is a conflict of testimony, and it must come only in answer to questions, if you please?—There are some things I wish to show to the Commission; in the statement he made there is direct contradictory evidence. Mr. Apted was known at that time as the gossip of the borough, and if I had contemplated such a thing as that I might as well have told the town crier at once as made such a statement; and I made no such communication to him. He did not take the chair at my first meeting. He always appeared to me to be one of those persons who are quite the pests of an election; they wait and hesitate before they decide. Mr. Apted took the chair at a meeting for me when he was asked to take it as a joke; he took the chair when he was Sir Henry Rawlinson's supporter at one of my meetings, thus conveying to my mind, as he did to everybody else's, that even at that time he was still waiting to be engaged in some capacity if I would engage him, and that he would have been engaged is perfectly clear from the evidence he gave as to the receipt of 50*l.* No word passed from me to convey to him any such impression as he has stated. No man of any judgment at all in election matters would make such a statement public, even if he contemplated such a thing; but I did not contemplate it, and I did not make that statement. Undoubtedly a great many persons were employed; some of them were voters and some were not. In the employment of those persons no question was ever raised or asked as to how they were going to vote; on the contrary, it was a fact well remarked upon at the time, that many of those who were employed by me in various capacities did not vote at all, and some of them even voted for my opponent.

48,955. Can you give us the names of those who were employed by you and did not vote?—I think Mr. Barton can; there were certain men who were employed by me and did not vote. I have been looking at the register, but I cannot recall to my mind who these persons were. I know that fact was remarked upon at the time, that many of those I employed did not vote at all. You asked me just now how many persons were employed. I may as well say that, according to the best of my judgment, I think the persons actually employed, voters and non-voters, were from 30 to 40; I think that was something like the number, not more. This is really like two boroughs, and I think there were some additional canvassers required. Redhill is a distinct place from Reigate, and there was a necessity for persons being employed; as regards the boards, I adopted a course which was rendered necessary, and caused the employment of extra persons, by finding that as fast as the bills and placards were posted they were covered by opponents' bills.

48,956. We have heard that there was a war of placards; that was so?—Yes. I adopted this course; I employed a certain number of board men to carry the boards to convey to the electors what I wanted to convey to them by that means rather than by sticking bills. I think there were some voters employed in that way. I am not here for a moment to justify the employment of persons in any capacity who are voters. None of those persons employed and paid by me in any capacity were employed in a colourable manner, nor was the question with regard to any one of them raised as to how they would vote. When Sir Henry Rawlinson, seven or eight months afterwards, resigned, I then received several requisitions to come forward at Reigate again. I sent some one down to Reigate to ascertain what the state of feeling was. I found there was quite as likely to be the same intimidation exercised as previously, and I declined to come down. Those were the general statements which I had to make, and I shall now be very glad to answer any questions which may be put to me.

48,957. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I mentioned to you in the early part of the few questions I put to you, that some voters who were examined here before us stated that they were employed, and I used my own epithet, and said in a degrading capacity; but I will withdraw that; I will say in a very unbecoming capacity, as it appeared to me, that of carrying boards about; and one man stated that his shoulder pained him still. At that time were you aware, Mr. Doulton, that the electors whom you were canvassing for their votes were employed in carrying those placards about at 3*s.* 6*d.* or 4*s.* a day?—The question as to whether they were voters never arose.

48,958. Were you aware of your own knowledge, or by your agents, that men whom you were canvassing for their votes as electors were engaged in carrying round placards, one board at the back and one in front?—I am not aware whether they were voters or not.

48,959. Were you aware that they were engaged in that capacity?—I am not aware that they were.

48,960. Were you aware that voters were engaged in that capacity?—I am not aware of it at all.

48,961. I wish to make myself distinctly understood to you, and I wish to point the question as sharply as I can. Were you aware of that fact at the time, that men who were carrying those boards about, one placard in front and one behind, were voters?—I can only state, in answer to that question, that persons were employed for various services indiscriminately, whether they were voters or not, and they were placed in that position which they were best fitted to fill. Whether those were voters or not never came to my knowledge.

48,962. Then may I take it that you were not aware of it?—Certainly; it may have been so, but I never knew it; the fact was never brought to my knowledge at all.

48,963. There is no doubt but that persons were engaged, and those persons voters?—That fact was not brought to my knowledge.

48,964. If that fact were brought to your knowledge you would not countenance such employment by voters?—I never canvassed any one in that position.

48,965. If that fact were brought to your knowledge would you countenance that employment?—That is a matter of opinion. I thought I was not allowed to give that.

48,966. There was one incident which has been rather a prominent topic here before us. You recollect the occasion of the ballot?—I do.

48,967. Who was acting for you and protecting your interests with regard to the ballot?—I think Mr. Hooper took charge of that department.

48,968. Were there three or four candidates? There was Sir Henry Rawlinson, Mr. Wilkinson, yourself, and who else?

48,969. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was Mr. James in the field?—No, the persons who submitted themselves to the ballot were Mr. Wilkinson, myself, and Mr. Walters. Mr. Monson declined.

48,970. Did Mr. Monson at any period of the negotiations at all come into that arrangement?—I do not think he did.

48,971. What is Mr. Hooper, who managed the ballot department?—He is a voter; a very respectable tradesman.

48,972. I do not think we have had him here?—Yes, he was examined yesterday.

48,973. Oh, I beg your pardon. Do you recollect where the place of balloting was?—I believe it was at a school at Redhill. I think so.

48,974. Now it is right I should call your attention particularly to it, because it presses upon my mind. I will speak for myself. Mr. Holden said that at the ballot money was being paid for the tickets, and he added that, whilst the ballot was in the process of going on, his attention was called to the fact of one of the candidates whose agents were buying tickets, or being employed in that kind of way, and he went out and saw you about a hundred yards from the place where the ballot was being held; do you recollect that circumstance?—No, I do not. I had nothing whatever to do with the ballot, no more than being one of the candidates.

48,975. Are you prepared to deny it? You recollect Mr. Holden's statement, which was very specific?—I am prepared to deny that I was connected at all with the ballot.

48,976. His attention was called to the fact, that one of the candidates was within 100 yards of the room where the balloting took took place, and that he went out and saw you there?—I distinctly deny that I tampered with the ballot in any way.

48,977. You do not deny your presence there?—I do deny it.

48,978. Do you deny the fact of your being there?—I cannot bring to my mind at all the occasion.

48,979. Your memory does not serve you as to that important fact?—My memory does serve me.

48,980. Were you there or not?—It serves me to deny the inference drawn from it.

48,981. He says it was the occasion on which the process of balloting was taking place; it was on the balloting?—What is it you wish to know.

48,982. Were you within 100 yards of the place, standing outside in the street?—Certainly not. I did not go into the balloting rooms at all.

48,983. Were you aware before this Inquiry that the tickets after they had been sent out in the way described, the representative of each candidate being present, and seeing that the three names were put in the envelopes, were you aware that men were sent out to buy them up?—It was notorious that Mr. Walters did traffic with those tickets.

THIRTY-THIRD DAY.

F. Doulton, Esq., M.P.

28 Sept. 1866.

48,984. You were aware of that?—Yes, and I never heard up till now the slightest suspicion thrown on any other candidate.

48,985. Did you know this, that with your sanction, either directly or indirectly, any money was applied on your behalf for the purpose of buying any of those tickets?—Certainly not. I never heard such a suspicion raised.

48,986. Do not consider from the way I put the question that that inference is in my mind at all. I am obliged to put the question to give you a full opportunity of answering. Do you recollect what majority you had upon the ballot?—I forget now.

48,987. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I think I can tell you; according to the card produced by that gentleman the numbers were 225. How many voted for you at the election?—120 I think.

48,988. I think about half of those who supported you upon the ballot supported you finally at the poll. Were those tickets sent throughout the borough, or were they confined to those who had agreed to this?—I believe they were distributed to all who were supposed to be Liberals.

48,989. Many of those tickets might have got into the hands of those who intended to support Sir Henry Rawlinson?—Yes.

48,990. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Can you tell me how many voters there were at Redhill?—It has increased since then. I think there were altogether 500 voters.

48,991. But Redhill has much increased since then? Oh, yes.

48,992. Can you tell me at all what rate of pay the men were paid; the man who was carrying the board told us 7*s.* 6*d.* a day?—I do not think any of them were paid like that for being mere messengers or board men. I think it was 3*s.* 6*d.*

48,993. Did you fix the tariff, or did Mr. Truman?—I dare say Mr. Barton fixed it.

48,994. Now I must call your attention particularly to the interview with Mr. Apted, I think it was at your committee meeting. Do you recollect his attending a committee meeting of yours?—No.

48,995. He did attend?—A committee meeting?

48,996. Yes?—No, I do not think he did.

48,997. Do you recollect having an interview with him, whether at a committee meeting or not, and your soliciting him, or speaking to him, about his becoming an agent for the purposes of the election on your side?—Oh, no. I may have gone canvassing him.

48,998. You gave us a very good reason why you were driven, if I may so without any disrespect to Mr. Barker, to a man like Mr. Barker, because of your inability to obtain assistance from the respectable solicitors of the town. I ask you, is there any improbability in saying you applied to Mr. Apted?—I did not. He was supposed to have a great deal of interest, and I canvassed him more than once.

48,999. It would not be on the ground of want of intelligence, or anything of that kind?—No.

49,000. There is a conflict of testimony, and I wish you to tell me particularly whether you recollect having an interview with him upon the subject of how the election was to be won?—Certainly not. It is a fiction from beginning to end.

49,001. Both of you may be under a mistake of memory?—No, there is no mistake here.

49,002. Do you recollect on the occasion of canvassing his vote wishing to engage him in your behalf as a canvasser or sub-agent?—I recollect going to him when I wanted to ask him for his vote and support.

49,003. As a canvasser?—I never made any engagements at all, and he is quite correct in his evidence that I did not offer him any.

49,004. I suppose you made inquiries, you being comparatively a stranger here, as to the men who would be most likely to promote your interests amongst the great body of the electors?—Of course I did.

49,005. Was not Mr. Apted pointed out to you as a man who would be efficient?—Certainly.

49,006. Did you not then go to him?—I went to him several times.

49,007. But for the purpose of aiding you otherwise than by his vote?—Of aiding me of course.

49,008. As a canvasser?—I never made him any offer of the kind.

49,009. But did you go to him for the purpose of making it, of endeavouring to engage his assistance like Mr. Barker and others; there were a very large number employed, did you go to him?—Not with the slightest intention of engaging him.

49,010. Was anything said between you as to his engagement in your behalf?—Nothing at all.

49,011. Did not he offer himself to you, and say he would assist you?—No, I only met with indecision.

49,012. Do you mean indecision as to his vote?—Indecision as to who he would vote for, and who he would support.

49,013. I have a few more questions to ask you. I understand you to deny in the most implicit terms any conversation of the kind on any occasion with Apted?—I do, other than the ordinary conversation arising from canvassing.

49,014. From canvassing a voter who is understood to be an influential voter?—Yes.

49,015. Can you tell me, besides Mr. Barker who were the sub-agents. Can you tell me the names of the sub-agents?—We did not call him a sub-agent; we always looked upon him as different.

49,016. Can you tell me the names of the others in that class. I ask you most confidently, because the bills were sent to you before they were paid?—Yes, but this is nine years ago. I cannot recollect the names. I do not think there were many. There were three or four who were employed, who received somewhat more than ordinary canvassers.

49,017. The canvassers were all sent to you, and the names of the persons employed?—It was not so if they wanted a messenger, but any person who was employed in a confidential employment was not employed without my consent. I took the entire control of the election.

49,018. Persons employed at the rate of 10*s.*, or 7*s.* or 8*s.* a day, and persons of that class would be sent to you?—No one was employed at 10*s.* or above without being sent to me.

49,019. We find in the evidence some of the voters said they were paid that; can you say what names were sent to you?—I have no list.

49,020. You would see the names of the voters?—They brought to me names of persons whom they wanted, and they asked me whether they should be employed.

49,021. I think that you would see that these men were voters whose names they brought to you?—Very likely.

49,022. May I take it that you know amongst those employed there were some voters?—Undoubtedly.

49,023. And I think you will find without tiring yourself that the majority of them were voters. I will not go further?—I cannot say, but I do not think the majority were voters, and I am certain a majority did not vote for me.

49,024. I mean a majority of those who were employed over 4*s.* a day, I do not care about the small fry; the majority of those were voters?—It is impossible for me to say.

49,025. You cannot say one way or the other?—I cannot.

49,026. Now there is one thing I wish to ask you, do not answer it unless you can put your hand upon the fact. Do you know of any instance yourself (for Mr. Wilkinson did not give us any) of intimidation being exercised during your canvass; I do not mean from what you heard?—I assert emphatically that there were nearly 70 who did not vote because of that.

49,027. I want to know whether your memory will enable you now to place any act before us as to any act of intimidation?—Not any instance.

49,028. Any act?—There were many shopkeepers, in Reigate especially.

49,029. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Your experience in elections must be this, that there is hardly any election where that is not said, and often without the slightest foundation?—Mr. Wilkinson, living in the neighbourhood, is better able to answer than myself.

49,030. It very often is a mere reason for not giving a vote?—I am perfectly well aware of that in many cases.

49,031. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Were any monies expended for the purposes of the election, either before or after the polling, except by cheque, by Mr. Truman and Mr. Barton?—I cannot say.

49,032. There may have been monies expended then?—I cannot say whether they paid in cheques or in money.

49,033. No; but I want to know, were any monies paid for the purpose, or what you would consider for the purpose, of the election, except money that passed through the hands of Mr. Barton and Mr. Truman?—Not any money that I know of; I did not pay any money myself, everything passed through their hands.

49,034. Of the monies that were paid after the election; did those monies pass through their hands?—Yes, certainly. I always referred everybody who applied to them.

49,035. Were any monies paid except those that were returned by the election auditor; are you aware of that?—Yes.

49,036. There were monies paid?—Certainly.

49,037. Can you give me the figures?—No.

49,038. As near as you can?—I believe the monies returned in the election audit came to 937*l.* 13*s.*: before the nomination 425*l.*; after that 519*l.* As far as I can make out from my own accounts, it must have been something like 250*l.* or 300*l.* beyond what was returned to the election auditor.

49,039. Without confining you at all to a figure, 10 or 20?—Yes, I think it was about 300*l.*

49,040. Do you say it was not over?—It is my impression it was somewhere about it.

49,041. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you pay any of that yourself, or any of your clerks, or any of that kind?—No.

49,042. It all came through the hands of Mr. Barton and Mr. Truman?—Certainly.

49,043. Now, did the injunction given that no cheque should be paid except by both those gentlemen continue to govern the payments that were made after the election?—I thing very likely that the small payments made after the election were paid by Mr. Truman alone; they were small sums.

49,044. Several small sums will mount up in time; they were paid by Mr. Truman?—I think so; I am not sure.

49,045. Did he come down here, Mr. Doulton, to discharge those bills, or did he pay them, do you remember, in London?—I do not recollect.

49,046. Most likely he would come down here?—I think most likely.

49,047. That would enable you, I think, to say whether you advanced him some more monies than the 1,000*l.* that had been lodged in the bank?—To the extent of 200*l.* or 300*l.* after the election, I am sure.

49,048. Thus making about 1,300*l.*?—I think so.

49,049. (The Chief Commissioner.) I want to ask you two questions in the absence of Mr. Barton. Are you able to tell me in a word what the election cost you?—I always put it down as somewhat under 1,500*l.* I have seen Mr. Barton, but, except a few squibs and so on that were published, there really are no papers.

49,050. I dare say Mr. Barton has them?—I don't think he has. I have searched through with him a tin place full.

49,051. Let us exhaust it a little bit more if we can, Mr. Doulton. Putting it down as near 1,500*l.*, I suppose you mean by that it may well have cost between 1,400*l.* and 1,500*l.*?—I do not think it cost more than 1,300*l.* or 1,400*l.*; but I always look upon it as an expenditure of 1,500*l.*

49,052. You make it up by 950*l.* before the election, and the expenses after the election make it a little under 1,300*l.*; then do you claim now a margin of 200*l.*?—You see you asked me how much, and I say 1,300*l.*; that is the figure I give, that is what I believe it cost me. I say that that is my own personal impression, but that it may have reached 1,500*l.*; that is including my hotel bill.

49,053. You take your own personal expenses in?—Certainly; all my expenses at the hotel were paid by cheques given by Mr. Barton and Mr. Truman.

49,054. They paid for you?—Yes.

49,055. You did not pay your own bill?—No.

49,056. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) That ought not to be taken into account. Deduct that from the 1,500*l.*, would it be 1,300*l.* nearly to a fraction?—I expect so.

49,057. You told us you took the conduct of the election altogether?—Very much. I was always down here.

49,058. You did say that, but I do not want to tie you to it; I only want to remind you, as you were on the spot the whole time while you were here, I suppose you became acquainted with persons and the names of several of the voters of all classes; when names of persons were submitted to you for employment, I suppose you frequently recognised those names as of persons you knew?—No; I did not know them at all before I came down.

49,059. After you had been down here, in the course of your canvassing did you not then put on a great many men?—After I had been down here.

49,060. You came down here and started a certain staff; did you not find it necessary to employ a great many more persons after you had been down here some time?—Yes.

49,061. By that time you had become acquainted with the persons and names of several of the voters, had you not?—Yes.

49,062. Then when those recommendations for employment were made to you, did you not find the names of the persons recommended names you were acquainted with?—Undoubtedly.

49,063. Then in that case you did, in fact, allow the employment of a person who was known to you both by name and person?—If he was considered an efficient person for the place required he was appointed.

49,064. What I am trying to get is this, that in some of these instances, where payments were required, they were of persons with whom you were acquainted; that being so, are you prepared to state that you did not see any one going about as messenger, or carrying boards, whom you knew by name, and whom you knew to be a voter?—I cannot recollect such a case.

49,065. I want to press you on that.—Yes, but I cannot recollect such a case.

49,066. Your agent, Mr. Truman or Mr. Barton, said, "Here is a person"?—I have already stated that some persons who were employed as messengers at 3*s.* 6*d.* a day I did not employ, but if they wanted a special messenger it was different.

49,067. A man named A. B. was recommended to you as a fit person to be employed, and if one of your agents wanted to employ somebody, I presume you would recognise A. B.'s name when you saw it, and would recognise the man as a man you had become acquainted with. Were there any persons you were acquainted with as voters employed?—No; as a general rule, I do not think persons who carried boards were sent to me at all.

49,068. We have not heard that before?—I said messengers and board men at 3*s* 6*d.* a day were not appointed by me.

49,069. Where is Mr. Truman now?—I do not know. He is summoned to come here. I expected him here to-day.

49,070. Have you seen him recently?—Yes.

THIRTY-THIRD DAY.

F. Doulton, Esq., M.P.

8 Sept. 1866.

49,071. When?—I saw him this morning in London, and I believe he came down here. He received a summons, I believe. I do not know his present address.

49,072. Can you not give me his address?—I do not know; but I think he lives in Parliament-street.

49,073. Did he tell you that he had been summoned?—Yes; his address is, I think, Golden-square.

49,074. And Mr. Barton's address?—Walsingham place, Lambeth.

49,075. Is he there now?—Yes.

49,076. After the election was over, after the polling day, Mr. Barton retired altogether from money payments or from taking any part?—I cannot say when he retired or what payments were made.

49,077. Did you ever on any occasion audit the election accounts with Mr. Truman and Mr. Barton?—No, I left it to Mr. Barton.

49,078. Did you ever audit the election accounts with Mr. Truman, the accounts which he had paid away by himself?—Only by his sending to me from time to time what accounts he had to pay.

49,079. You did not see him afterwards, after all the payments were made?—No.

49,080. Mr. Barton, I understand you to say, has all the papers that remain in reference to the election?—Yes, I looked them over with him, and there were no papers excepting a few squibs and songs, and so on, which he kept from curiosity; nothing else.

49,081. Can you tell me what became of the papers?—The greater part of them were given to me soon after the election.

49,082. Do you know what became of them?—I burnt them years ago; this is nine years ago.

49,083. Are you able to tell me whether, when persons who were employed received payment from time to time, they always gave receipts?—I do not know, but I believe they did. You can get that from Mr. Barton.

49,084. I do not know whether it might not be within your knowledge?—I believe, as a general rule, they were very strict indeed as to the mode in which payments were made, and my own impression is that 10*s.* was not paid to any person without a receipt from that person.

49,085. I believe every bill was paid on Friday evening?—Friday or Saturday.

49,086. And you believe that in all instances receipts were given?—I think so.

49,087. Do you think it would be possible to get at any accounts?—I only saw Mr. Barton yesterday; whether he can give you any information I do not know.

49,088. But accounts?—I think the whole of them were given over to me immediately after the election, and I kept them for years.

49,089. Mr. Cross was the agent for Mr. Walters, was he not?—Yes.

49,090. What Mr. Cross was he?—I do not know.

49,091. Do you know whether he was a solicitor or not?—I think he was.

49,092. A solicitor in London?—I am not sure.

49,093. Do you know how many of these persons, ten or a dozen of them, how many of them were employed in carrying boards?—Board men solely?

49,094. Yes, boardmen and messengers, persons paid by the day or by the week?—I should think about 20.

49,095. Not more?—I do not think so.

49,096. I called your attention to it, because no doubt your attention has been called to a fact in reference to the evidence given here, but it may have escaped you. The witness said on every Friday night these men were paid at the "Royal Oak," at Redhill, and it was like a little factory. He used that phrase, meaning thereby that a very large number of persons were being employed?—They came to be paid, and of course there was a very large crowd of persons, as there were at every other committee room, but especially there. I do not suppose he meant to impress on your mind that all who were there were employed.

49,097. I rather think he did. I concluded so, that the majority of those at the "Royal Oak" were expecting to be paid?—No, I think not.

49,098. You say that was not so?—No; naturally a crowd was assembled.

49,099. Would you confine the number of those persons employed to be paid for their week's employment at the "Royal Oak" to something like 30 or 40?—Certainly not more.

(The Chief Commissioner.) Before you go I want to mention this to you, that you being here to some extent to suit your own convenience it has turned out very well, and has not at all inconvenienced us; but you are the first member of Parliament or candidate down here who has been examined before their agents have been examined, and we will examine you again afterwards, if you like, and of course you can, if you like, have an opportunity of giving further testimony as to any statement made by them.

(The Witness.) And by any other witnesses?

49,100. Oh, certainly; by any other witnesses. We have rather interpolated you out of your usual course?—I am much obliged to you for your courtesy.

The witness withdrew.

H. Green.

HENRY GREEN recalled and examined.

49,101. (The Chief Commissioner.) You stated that in 1863 you paid 19*l.* to Mr. Newnham?—Yes.

49,102. What did you give it him for?—I have no recollection, except it was to reduce the amount of his bill.

49,103. Did you know at that time what his bill was, that it was more?—I knew it was.

49,104. Your 19*l.* reduced his claim to 40*l.*?—Yes. I do not exactly know, but I have some recollection; it was mixed up in my mind with other things. I do not know whether he stated it or not, but they broke his windows and went to his house.

49,105. He sent in a bill for 37*l.* for repairs, that was paid?—I did not know that.

49,106. He had a very large bill?—I have no other remembrance, only of that sum.

49,107. Did you ever make any representation to Mr. Smith that he had the 19*l.* which you paid him?—No.

The witness withdrew.

T. Hart.

THOMAS HART, sworn and examined.

49,108. (The Chief Commissioner.) At the last election, in 1865, you were the election agent to Mr. Monson?—I was.

49,109. In 1863 (I think you told me, but I have forgotten) were you agent?—No, I was not.

49,110. For either side?—I acted for Mr. Stuart Wortley, who did not come forward.

49,111. In 1859 were you agent?—Yes.

49,112. For whom?—Mr. Monson.

49,113. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) The present Lord Monson?—The present Lord Monson.

49,114. (The Chief Commissioner.) In 1858, between Lord Monson and Mr. Wilkinson, were you election agent?—Not at all.

49,115. Or in Mr. Doulton's election, in the beginning of the year?—Yes, I was for Mr. Monson in that election.

49,116. That was in February 1858?—Yes; I was for Mr. Monson.

49,117. Now, then, as to 1865, can you tell me when you were appointed agent to Mr. Monson?—I really could hardly tell you.

49,118. You were appointed in writing, I think?—Yes.

49,119. I think I have seen it?—It was a regular legal document.

49,120. Can you give me the date of it?—I was acting before that.

49,121. When did that document come?—It was sent to me as a formal thing to sign, and I signed it a day or two before the election.

49,122. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Before the polling?—Yes, to meet the Act of Parliament.

49,123. (The Chief Commissioner.) When were you employed to work as Mr. Monson's election agent in 1865?—I think as early as April we commenced.

49,124. At that time it was not known?—Perhaps I am mixing up a consultation with Mr. Monson. Before Mr. Monson commenced we waited a long time for the declaration of Mr. Gower. Mr. Monson would not come forward until Mr. Gower had decided.

49,125. Do you recollect when you commenced publicly?—I think in April.

49,126. Were you at that time appointed in writing?—I am pretty sure, not at that time.

49,127. I do not know whether there was another appointment in writing?—No; I have always acted for the Monson family.

49,128. Were the first arrangements made by Mr. Monson for you or together?—Together.

49,129. Did you set at work at first in appointing committees and sub-agents?—I did.

49,130. At once?—Yes.

49,131. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That was one of the first steps?—That was one of the first steps.

49,132. Can you tell me the names of the original sub-agents?—Yes.

49,133. Who were the sub-agents?—Mr. James Nichols and Mr. Thomas Page.

49,134. You appointed them?—In the first instance I considered Mr. Nichols my principal agent. I had more to do with him. I did not see much of Mr. Page.

49,135. Can you tell me when it was you appointed Mr. Nichols and Mr. Page your sub-agents; you appointed them, not Mr. Monson?—There was no formal appointment.

49,136. But you appointed them?—Yes.

49,137. Can you tell me when?—As soon as the election commenced; when the canvassing commenced.

49,138. Would that be in April?—In April or May. I think it was as early as April, because——

49,139. Why?—No, I do not suppose that the appointment did take place before May.

49,140. I thought you were going to say something; you knew something?—I see that the address was settled in April, and that is the only thing that gives it to my mind.

49,141. Then you were appointed at the end of April or May?—I think so.

49,142. Did you tell them what they were to do?—I did, most particularly.

49,143. Did you tell them separately or together?—Only Mr. Nichols.

49,144. What did you tell him?—I said to Mr. Nichols, "Whatever you do, do not let there be the "slightest treating or the slightest bribery."

49,145. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I take that to be at your first interview?—Yes. "If we only "poll a hundred votes, let us do it, and go in upon "petition." I think those are the very words I used.

49,146. Where was this; do you recollect that?—I do not exactly recollect whether it was at my office or whether it was at his house.

49,147. Allow me to read this: "I said to Mr. "Nichols, 'Whatever you do, let there be no treating "'or bribery; if we only poll a hundred votes, let us "'go in upon petition'"?—I did. I made some further remark upon the chance of whether Mr. Gower would stand after his first election.

49,148. (The Chief Commissioner.) Can you tell us where it was that conversation took place?—I think it was at the office, but I cannot tell.

49,149. At this time was Mr. Monson here or away?—He was very much here, I think; at that time he was very much here.

49,150. Did you tell Mr. Monson after you had mentioned this to Mr. Nichols, or had you received from Mr. Monson any direction as to what you were to tell Mr. Nichols?—It was a private understanding between Mr. Monson and myself that he was appointed.

49,151. What made you think so?—Conversation.

49,152. I want to know the conversation if you could manage to give it me?—We were speaking of the election, I think. I gave it as a sort of advice. I said, "Let us do so and so."

49,153. As you had said to Mr. Nichols. What did Mr. Monson say?—He quite approved of it.

49,154. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He apparently acquiesced?—I am quite sure it was his intention.

49,155. We can hardly be sure of another person's thoughts?—I understood it to be so.

4 9,132. (The Chief Commissioner.) After you had given this communication to Mr. Nichols, and it wat once started, did he work at all under you?—Of course he worked under me.

49,157. I thought he would naturally, because you appointed him?—In the first part of the election he did, but afterwards it went out of my hands.

49,158. May I take it that at the first Mr. Nichols worked under you?—Yes.

49,159. What do you mean by that, that he referred to you when he proposed to do anything?—Committee meetings were called, and he attended, and we went through the voters' list together, and suggestions were made as to what course should be adopted.

49,160. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And he accepted your suggestions?—Quite so.

49,161. (The Chief Commissioner.) I should like to know when the appointing of Mr. Nichols took place; do you think it was the beginning of May?—I think there was some little difficulty in the first instance about Mr. Nichols acting, because he was acting previously for Mr. Gower. I am quite satisfied that Mr. Nichols did not intend to become agent until the declaration from Mr. Gower that he did not intend to stand for Reigate.

49,162. Have you got the date?—No.

49,163. When you had this conversation with Mr. Nichols and told him how you should go on; that was in the spring, you say, the end of April or beginning of May?—That was as soon as he had accepted the agentship.

49,164. Were you aware afterwards of a sub-committee being formed at which you did not sit?—I certainly heard that was the case.

49,165. When?—I really cannot charge my memory with dates, because I should have entered these matters particularly in my ordinary business, but as I was to receive a fee I did not enter the attendances in my day book.

49,166. I am asking you rather more, when it was you became aware that a sub-committee was formed at which you did not sit?—I do not know whether you could call it a sub-committee; there were committee meetings.

49,167. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Held independent of you?—Yes. Perhaps if you will allow me, I think I can explain that. The facts were these: you know it is a very important thing at elections to get over our public meeting, and we got through it very well. A committee meeting I appointed, that meeting was to have been a strong committee meeting, at which we should have invited our friends, as well as being a committee; but on the morning of this committee meeting I received a communication from the deputy-chairman that the meeting should be changed. It was a general meeting, a public meeting rather than a committee meeting, and from that I date our misfortunes. I mention that because I think it will elucidate it.

THIRTY-THIRD DAY.

T. Hart.

49,168. After the general meeting did you yourself call together another committee meeting?—There were committee meetings after, certainly; but Mr. Joyes, who is a very active and a most capital electioneerer, was quite disgusted with the meeting, and was angry with me for making it a public meeting.

49,169. After that meeting were there committees sitting?—There were committees sitting.

49,170. At which you sat?—I attended.

49,171. Can you give me the date of the general meeting?—The fact is, I gave you my box with all the papers, and I have no means of refreshing my memory.

49,172. Do you think you can tell me?—I should say it was the 22nd of May. I see in my diary that is entered as a committee meeting, and I should say that was the general meeting.

49,173. There were other committee meetings?—Yes.

49,174. Did you hear of any committee meeting being appointed at which you did not attend?—Oh dear yes; many after the election proceeded.

49,175. But about that time; did you generally consider it your duty to attend all the committee meetings?—No; the latter meetings I did not attend.

49,176. But did you at this time? Shall I say you attended about all the general committee meetings?—Certainly.

49,177. Did you ascertain that committee meetings were being held at which you did not attend?—At a subsequent period.

49,178. How soon after?—I really do not know.

49,179. Some time?—Yes.

49,180. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And without being consulted upon them?—Yes.

49,181. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you know where they were held?—I heard there were meetings at the "Grapes" and at Mead-vale that I did not attend.

49,182. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And at Redhill?—Yes, I attended the meeting at Langridge's.

49,183. At Topliss's?—Yes.

49,184. (The Chief Commissioner.) Were you surprised to hear that there were meetings held at the "Grapes" and other places? Had you any notice of that?—No.

49,185. Were you surprised to hear that?—I was surprised to find it.

49,186. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) It was letting the conduct of the election pass from you?—I considered it had passed in a great measure from my hands.

49,187. Were you consulted upon them?—No, certainly not, upon those meetings.

49,188. Did you remonstrate with any person or persons whom you heard and believed to be managing these meetings?—No, I do not think I did. I expressed my regret to Mr. Monson's friends.

48,189. Very likely you may have done it to the chairman, Mr. Hanbury, or any one in that position?—Exactly.

49,190. But you did not remonstrate with anybody whom you believed to be holding these meetings?—No, not beyond that.

49,191. (The Chief Commissioner.) Now, after these committee meetings which you heard of, were your committee meetings as efficient as they were before?—I hardly think I held any.

49,192. I was coming to that. You rather think after that you discontinued yours?—Yes.

49,193. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Or at any rate partially discontinued them?—Yes.

49,194. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you wholly discontinue them, or partially?—I should say partially; I should think there was a meeting just previous to the election.

49,195. But you felt, did you not, that you were giving up your cards, as it were?—No, I did not feel that, but I thought that it was a very foolish thing.

49,196. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You felt it was passing away?—Yes.

49,197. (The Chief Commissioner.) About this time, that is, in the month of June, did you pay out much money?—I paid nothing till after the election.

49,198. Do you mean literally nothing, not any small sums?—I should pay a bill-sticker or anything of that sort. Dickinson I did not pay till after; Dickinson was a man whom I was in the habit of employing. If any bills for bill-posting were brought to me I should possibly pay them.

49,199. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you pay any considerable sum at all?—Decidedly not.

49,200. None over 10*l.*?—No.

49,201. (The Chief Commissioner.) Were accounts sent in, and were you required to pay money?—No.

49,202. Tell us about how much money passed through your hands before the election?—All my accounts I can tell you in a moment.

49,203. No, merely give me that, because the accounts are afterwards; I am not speaking of your accounts?—These were payments before the issuing of the writ.

49,204. Did you pay any of the sub-agents monies?—I have no recollection of it.

49,205. The election came on, and I suppose you were aware before it did come on that a great number of persons were employed for Mr. Monson?—Yes.

49,206. Did you employ many of them?—No.

49,207. Was reference made to you when they were employed; I am speaking of before the election now?—Of course.

49,208. Was reference made to you when they were employed?—I think Mr. Nichols said now and then, "So and so is a valuable man, we must employ him."

49,209. Are you speaking of sub-agents recommended by Mr. Nichols?—I had nothing to do with anybody but Mr. Nichols.

49,210. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Do I understand that all who were employed were employed by the agency of Mr. Nichols, by his referring to you?—I think so, with the exception of Dickinson.

49,211. (The Chief Commissioner.) With that exception you think they were all put on by Mr. Nichols, or through his agency?—And many of them with my approbation.

49,212. Does that refer to the sub-agents, or did you yourself put on many of the voters who received small sums. You put on Dickinson for one; now can you refresh your memory with any other names, I do not mean sub-agents only, but others did you put on yourself?—Bill stickers or messengers for my own purposes.

49,213. I do not mean for your own purposes?—I know of Dickinson, I must say in justice to him I believe he was paid badly; he was very much in my office filling up forms. Dickinson was employed in carrying out those papers.

49,214. What I want to know is, whether you can recollect employing other small voters?—No, I think not; I think that a man who was under examination I employed, but it is so long that I forget his name at this moment. Corderoy I remember very well, he was very active. No doubt Mr. Nichols had previously spoken to him. I recollect his telling me that his master had given him a fortnight's holiday during the election. I said I was very glad of it, and I know he was a most active man.

49,215. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) When was that?—I cannot say.

49,216. Would that be a fortnight before the polling day?—Before that, he was engaged very early in the election.

49,217. He had got a fortnight's leave?—Yes, he told me he had; those are the only cases I recollect.

49,218. (The Chief Commissioner.) You said you were very glad of it, did you?—Yes.

49,219. Did you put him on?—I think he was working at that time. I forget who had spoken to him before.

49,220. Do you mean that you did not engage him?—There was no formal engagement, but of course it amounted to my sanction.

49,221. I want to know whether you were the first person to start him?—Decidedly not.

49,222. Did he tell you by whom he was appointed?—I dare say he spoke of Mr. Nichols; I know it was by Mr. Nichols, because there was nobody else authorized to do it.

49,223. There was nobody authorized but Mr. Nichols to engage them?—Mr. Page was one.

49,224. If that was so, and no one else was authorized to engage, Mr. Nichols was authorized?—Oh, decidedly.

49,225. But that is an important matter; he was authorized by you?—Yes, that part of the election I left in his hands.

49,226. To engage sub-agents?—Yes.

49,227. And when you left it in his hands was anything said by you to him about Mr. Monson, what he should pay; anything as to terms?—Not at all; I told him to keep down expenses as much as possible.

49,228. But no mention was made as to terms?—No.

49,229. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Am I right in this, that Mr. Nichols was authorized to engage sub-agents, and you left that part in his hands?—I would rather call them canvassers than sub-agents.

49,230. Did you understand him as being a sub-agent or canvasser?—I should say canvasser.

49,231. That is the reason I called your attention to the word?—Yes, the fact is the men were most active, and Corderoy was one, and I should be disposed to pay him according to his services, but I should not have considered him a sub-agent.

49,232 (The Chief Commissioner.) There were sub-agents, were there not; it may be that you recognise no other sub-agents except Mr. Nichols and Mr. Page?—I think I mentioned them in my accounts under the head of agents.

49,233. You have; did you recognise any other sub-agents but Mr. Nichols and Mr. Page; you have stated in your account, I think, nine names?—I dare say there are.

49,234. Were all those persons whom you recognised afterwards in your accounts all appointed by Mr. Nichols?—Yes.

49,235. And appointed pursuant to the authority which he had?—Decidedly, and with my sanction.

49,236. Then he had authority to appoint what we call sub-agents?—Yes; it is merely a term.

49,237. I mean the upper class of canvassers?—Yes, the agent was myself.

49,238. For that reason I put in the word sub-agent. I suppose you had heard a good deal about the election, about the way in which your canvassing for Mr. Monson was conducted. You heard of a good deal being done that you took no part in, whether you had a committee or not?—Certainly.

49,239. Tell me whether you witnessed before the election anything being done which you disapproved of. I want to know that?—I witnessed a great deal of drinking going on in the public houses, which I regretted very much indeed.

49,240. Never mind the regrets, because at this moment I am exculpating you. Did you know who was doing it?—No, I did not; I was quite satisfied that I was not.

49,241. Who was doing it?—It was apparently being done by sub-agents and canvassers.

49,242. For which of the candidates?—Oh, both, there was very little difference; but that did not come to my knowledge.

49,243. Do you mean it did not come to your knowledge as agent, but merely as a bystander?—Yes, as a bystander; every one knew it.

49,244. Did you remonstrate at all?—No.

49,245. At that time when you saw this going on was Mr. Monson here?—I think Mr. Monson was here almost during the whole time; he occasionally left.

49,246. Can you tell me when Mr. Monson first came here?—Certainly, as early as April.

49,247. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Was he at the hotel?—At the "White Hart."

49,248. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you remonstrate about this to Mr. Monson?—I do not recollect that I did.

49,249. If you did not remonstrate, do you recollect on any occasion at all ever calling his attention to it; I do not wish to use the word "remonstrate," because it may be understood in a different sense?—I do not think I did; I always made up my mind to keep myself clear of anything of the kind, and I do not think I interfered.

49,250. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Or did not make it the subject of discussion or conversation?—No.

49,251. (The Chief Commissioner.) After the election did claims come in to you to be paid?—I by the Act of Parliament gave notice.

49,252. Did claims come in within the month, the limited period?—Yes.

42,253. Did you give any notice that they should do so?—I did.

49,254. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Publicly?—By the newspaper.

49,255. (The Chief Commissioner.) I want to get this from you; when did you give the notice, at what time of the election?—I gave it in the papers according to the Act of Parliament.

49,256. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) There are two local papers, I think?—Yes.

49,257. (The Chief Commissioner.) And you said, of course, in the usual way that you would pay them?—Yes, reference was to be made to me.

49,258. Had you before that period given money yourself?—Certainly not.

49,259. You had not?—I had not.

49,260. Had you before this received any money at all for the purposes of the election?—No.

49,261. Do not answer hastily at all?—No, I received ———

49,262. I do not want to know what you received afterwards?—I received two sums.

49,263. At this time had you received anything; you had been conducting the election for some little time, and now the election was over; had you previous to sending that notice out for claims received any money?—Without my accounts I cannot tax my memory. I think there were some payments made before; there were election expenses, I think they were only small things; I think there were some payments.

49,264. What I want to know is, had you at this time been provided with money to pay those expenses?—No.

49,265. I do not mean for 10*l.* or 20*l.*, but any substantial matters?—I think not; I am sure I had not, I had not the accounts before me.

49,266. You can have your own book in your hand if you like?—I want my accounts between Mr. Monson and myself. (The accounts were handed to witness).

49,267. Now I should like to know whether you had at this time received any money at all?—I see now. This puts me in mind that there was before the election; I think I received some money before.

49,268. About how much; I do not care to know exactly?—I seem by this account to have received 171*l.* 13*s.* 7*d.*, and to have paid 152*l.*

49,269. Never mind what it was for at this moment, but had you been provided with money?—Not for the purposes of the election.

49,270. Had you previous to this time, when you advertised for the accounts?—I suppose I had.

49,271. Can you tell me how much?—171*l.* 13*s.* 7*d.*

49,272. How much did you receive before for the election?—I think 32*l.* 19*s.* 10*d.*

49,273. If there were any other payments you paid those, drawing on your own account?—Yes; there is 150*l.* I see.

49,274. I should like to know whether you did make payments; these are subsequently I see. I did not take how you disbursed them; will your banker's book tell you that?—I think this was a private account of mine before the election, but I laid the papers before you.

49,275. What I want you to understand is this, never mind what you received the money for, but I want to know whether, previous to the election, you had received any money at all on account of the election from the Monson side?—It seems that the sums amount to about 170*l.*

49,276. Was that received from Mr. Monson or any person in his behalf?—From Mr. Monson. I should tell you, as regards Lord Monson, the only accounts between him and myself were, that I paid all his subscriptions and never received anything from him.

49,277. Can you tell me whether you received any other money except the 170*l.* previous to your sending in the election accounts?—Certainly not.

49,278. The accounts came in then, pursuant to your notice?—They did.

49,279. Did you set to work to pay them?—Having first of all gone through them with Mr. Nichols.

49,280. Why did you do that?—Because he had employed the persons, and I wanted to know whether the labourer was worthy of his hire.

49,281. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) To measure their services?—Yes, I taxed several of the bills.

49,282. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you do so in consequence of anything said to you?—Yes.

49,283. Perhaps you could tell me how much you taxed?—There were one or two bills I would not pay at all.

49,284. May I say that you taxed some?—Yes.

49,285. That means you and Mr. Nichols?—Yes, certainly.

49,286. Did he join you in taxing?—Yes.

49,287. And assented?—Yes, I told him what I had done; we went through them.

49,288. You may have gone through with him and Mr. Nichols may not have assented to your taxing one single item of any single bill, but I take it that you and Mr. Nichols together did tax them?—Yes.

49,289. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And struck out some altogether?—Yes.

49,290.—(The Chief Commissioner.) Two altogether?—Yes, there were two bills never paid at all.

49,291. Why not; I do not want to know whose bills they were?—Because I found the work had not been done.

49,292. How did you find out?—From Mr. Nichols.

49,293. What bills were they?—One was for the hire of a fly, and we found he had not sent it.

49,294. Do you recollect what the other was?—I think the other was for canvassing; and, if I recollect right, for services professed to have been rendered.

49,295. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Can you recollect the name?—No, but I think the bills are amongst my papers.

49,296. (The Chief Commissioner.) Do you recollect paying a man of the name of John Nye?—No, I do not.

49,297. That is the man I mean; you will see by the receipt (handing receipt to witness)?—If I paid this there is my draft for this; but I should mention one circumstance that I think led into a little error the other day with regard to Corderoy; there were several small bills, something like 20 bills, that I handed over to Mr. Nichols to pay. I drew it all in one cheque, and I think Corderoy's 12*l.* was entered in that.

49,298. We will come to that by-and-by; do you know anything about that particular one?—I have not the slightest recollection about it.

49,299. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) It is paid in October. "Received 4th October 1859."—I do not understand this at all; if I had paid it I should have put a mark upon it. Oh, yes, it is quite right, here is my endorsement. Then this was one that I handed over to Mr. Nichols to pay for me, I have no doubt of it.

49,300. Thomas Hart's signature is drawn over and erased?—You will find all my bills endorsed in that way.

49,301. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That is one of the bills you handed over to Mr. Nichols to satisfy?—I think it may have been.

49,302. Are you sure you paid it?—Oh, I paid it. What is the date?

49,303. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) October 4th the receipt is?—I do not find any draft drawn in that way.

49,304. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Then it must be paid by Mr. Nichols; you paid monies to Mr. Nichols, and he paid that?—I suppose so.

49,305. How else could it be. Did you pay monies to any one else to pay these accounts, except to Mr. Nichols?—No, except, I think, I gave monies to my clerk, and he went and paid a few.

49,306. Then it must have passed through Mr. Nichols. Now one other question upon this amount. Did you receive some papers of this kind receipted before you had paid the money (handing receipts to witness)?—I should say not.

49,307. You think in every instance you had paid the monies before you received the receipts?—Except in a case where I might have given a cheque or something of that kind to Mr. Nichols, to pay some sums.

49,308. (The Chief Commissioner.) It would be so if you gave Mr. Nichols a cheque to pay any small balance?—Yes.

49,309. Then you paid the money before you got the receipt?—Oh, I entrusted Mr. Nichols with the receipts.

49,310. If you had handed over a cheque to pay certain bills, you handed him the receipts?—I handed him receipts in my clerk's handwriting to be signed.

49,311. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And he would bring them back to you from the parties?—Yes.

49,312. So that he would have the money to pay the parties before the receipt would leave your office?—Quite so.

49,313. (The Chief Commissioner.) Do you recollect in any case at all, or in more than one case, Mr. Nichols ever bringing you ready receipted an account?—I do not recollect that, and if he had brought it me it was a bill in the schedule; of course I should make a draft of it.

49,314. You had made out a schedule with him?—Yes; I have no recollection of having done it.

49,315. Is what you mean like that (handing schedule to witness)?—Yes, that is one of the schedules I did make out.

49,316. Do you recollect in any instance a receipt being brought you ready signed before you handed over the money?—No, I have no recollection of it.

49,317. Do you recollect anything of this kind: Mr. Nichols or somebody for him, or anybody else, bringing to you two or three bills ready signed and saying, "Here, Mr. Hart, these men are all entitled "to so much apiece, will you give me the money for "them; here are the receipts"?—If I did it was by draft. If receipts were brought to me of the amounts that I had settled with Mr. Nichols, and brought to me in that way, I should certainly pay him by draft.

49,318. Do you recollect any instance in which that was done?—I do not.

49,319. Do you think it may have occurred in some instances?—It might have occurred.

49,320. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) A receipt signed by the party?—Yes.

49,321. And then you gave him a draft for the amount?—I have no recollection of doing so.

42,322. (The Chief Commissioner.) I have particularly asked you, not whether you remembered any instance, but whether it might have occurred?—Yes, it might have occurred.

49,323. Now I want to ask you this; tell me if you know the handwriting of the body of that (handing Nye's receipt to witness)?—Yes.

49,324. Tell me whose it is?—Dickinson.

49,325. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Your man?—No, Mr. Dickinson's.

49,326. The man you had employed?—Yes, the bill was made out by Dickinson.

49,327. (The Chief Commissioner.) The body of the receipt, which is Nye's, is in Dickinson's handwriting?—Yes, at the top here was written "to pay," date such as it is, July 1865.

49,328. Was Dickinson in your employ?—He was employed the whole time of the election.

49,329. Look at the receipt, October 1865; whose handwriting is that over his signature; you will see it?—I do not think it is the same.

49,330. The man writes in a smaller hand?—There is the same freedom of hand.

49,331. After these men's claims came in you proceeded to pay them?—Yes.

49,332. Where did you get the money from to pay them?—From Mr. Monson. I sent him a copy of the schedule setting out 1,240*l.* which I received. I received that sum in two drafts, one for 667*l.* 9*s.*, and the other for 597*l.* 6*s.* 4*d.*

49,333. How much would that make?—1,264*l.* 15*s.* 4*d.*, which, after the payment of bills, would leave a balance in my hand of 31*l.* 18*s.* 7*d.* The balance would be a balance arising from bills I had taxed.

49,334. And then there is the 171*l.*?—I have not taken the former sum at all; all that was before the election.

49,335. What did you return as the expenses of the election in your expense account?—The very amount I received from Mr. Monson.

49,336. This appears to be 1,232*l.* 17*s.* 9*d.*; there seems to be a little difference?—Yes.

49,337. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Is that the account of money both before and after the election?—Those are the actual sums I have paid.

49,338. (The Chief Commissioner.) There is 30*l.* in excess of that, how is that?—That would arise from sums I had decided I would not pay. I sent in to Mr. Monson the amount of the whole of the bills as they were sent in to me, but between the time of my receiving Mr. Monson's cheque I deducted something off them.

49,339. The money you received would altogether be 1,264*l.* odd, plus 171*l.* odd?—The 171*l.* I do not take any notice of.

49,340. The 171*l.* odd; how do you bring that into account? Did you subsequently give him credit for that?—I have not settled with him yet, not quite, because I have a balance of 31*l.* in my hands now.

49,341. You appropriate the 171*l.* for payment of expenses incurred previous to the election?—Of which I did not send in any account.

49,342. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You did not place that among the expenses?—It did not apply; it was altogether before the election.

49,343. (The Chief Commissioner.) If you please we will discharge ourselves of the 171*l.* You received 1,264*l.* to pay the election expenses, which were about that amount?—Yes.

49,344. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) The 171*l.* would be for some portion of the election?—No, previous to that.

49,345. I mean election expenses; suppose you were to say how much it cost Mr. Monson, you would say 1,417*l.*?—Yes, you would calculate it in the expenses of the election; there were some very heavy printing expenses.

49,346. (The Chief Commissioner.) At this time when you satisfied these claims which came under the head "election expenses," did you pay any more money for Mr. Monson?—Only what appears in the schedule.

49,347. Did you pay any other money?—None whatever.

49,348. You are sure about that?—Quite sure of that; there was a little bill sent in since, 4*l.* odd, which I have not paid yet.

49,349. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you undertake to pay anything more?—No, there is the whole amount.

49,350. You paid for Mr. Monson no monies except those contained in the election expenses?—None whatever.

49,351. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) "I undertook "to pay no more"?—Certainly not.

49,352. (The Chief Commissioner.) Can you tell me at all about what date you had paid all those claims contained in the election expenses?—The receipts would speak for themselves; my memory will not serve me as to that.

49,353. Several of the receipts have no date?—The drafts were answered; I paid nothing except by draft.

49,354. You are sure of that?—Oh, sure of it, except some small sums that I gave a cheque to my clerk for.

49,355. You told us some time Mr. Nichols would send up to you two or three accounts, for which you would give him a draft?—If he did do that I should have done so, but I have no recollection of doing so.

49,356. I understand you to say there were several little accounts which Mr. Nichols sent up to you, and which you paid by a cheque for the whole?—Yes, the schedule will show it, you will see from my papers; I think that Corderoy's 12*l.* was among them.

49,357. I am coming to Corderoy; I find a receipt signed by Corderoy for 12*l.* from you, dated on the 29th of September; that was a good bit after the election accounts were sent in?—Oh, they were not paid till some time after.

49,358. Can you explain that, if you please; this is a receipt signed by Corderoy, dated the 29th of September?—That is scheduled at 12*l.*; I think you will find amongst my papers Corderoy's account and several others, amounting to something above 20*l.*, for which I drew a cheque and gave to Mr. Nichols, and Mr. Nichols paid them.

49,359. Before you got the receipt?—I sent the cheque with the receipts in blank.

49,360. Before you got the receipt signed by Corderoy you had sent the 20*l.* in a draft to Mr. Nichols?—I think so; there can be no doubt about that I think.

49,361. I cannot get the date?—There is among my papers a cheque for the amount, and I think you will find the date, I think you will find amongst my papers a schedule, in my clerk's handwriting, amounting to 47*l.* 1*s.* 7*d.*

49,362. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I see the cheque is paid in your banker's book?—But you see I have many business matters with Mr. Nichols, and therefore it might be an execution or something of that sort; it is a large amount.

49,363. (The Chief Commissioner.) It occurred to me that it was a larger amount probably that contained the aggregate of those. I do not think there is anything else, but if you like you shall look for yourself? (The document was handed to witness)—I should be almost disposed to think now that it has no reference to the election. I always keep a cheque book against the bankers, and I always put what it really was for.

49,364. On the back of the cheque?—Yes.

49,365. Tell me, if you can recollect at all the 10*l.* for Corderoy?—The 12*l.* I recollect perfectly well,

THIRTY-THIRD DAY.

T. Hart.

28 Sept. 1866.

because that I thought him fully entitled to that amount.

49,366. And you and Mr. Nichols agreed he was?—That was the amount.

49,367. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Can you tell me what date that was when you and Mr. Nichols agreed upon the amount; how long after the polling?—After the bills were delivered in.

49,368. Tell me as near as you can say when it was that you and Mr. Nichols agreed upon that 12*l.*?—Of course we agreed as soon as possible, and therefore it was soon after the month.

49,369. Have you any recollection at all yourself of paying that particular 12*l.*?—I have the strongest feeling that that was in the list I speak of; several bills were handed over to Mr. Nichols, and I am pretty sure that that was the case with Corderoy.

49,370. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Then, besides that receipt, with reference to Corderoy for his services of 12*l.*, was it agreed between you and Mr. Nichols, in discussing what Corderoy should be paid, that 12*l.* was a reasonable sum for his services?—Yes.

49,371. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) For all his services?—Of course. Those receipts were made out in my clerk's handwriting.

49,372. (The Chief Commissioner.) That is your clerk's handwriting?—Yes; not the 29th September.

49,373. Have you any recollection, now you see that, about Corderoy's 12*l.* You had agreed that Corderoy ought to be paid the 12*l.*, and Corderoy sent in a claim for it?—He sent in a claim in blank and we agreed upon the 12*l.*, I feeling at that time that he had fully earned it. I saw no man work as he did, I was struck with it; as I said before, he had a fortnight's holiday.

49,374. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Mr. Nichols received the money for this and brought back the receipt?—I think it was so.

49,375. You sent that with other accounts to Mr. Nichols, and he having received it brought you back the receipts?—I think so.

49,376. (The Chief Commissioner.) I concluded that this bill of Corderoy's was paid with others by Mr. Nichols, and that he handed you the bills receipted after you gave him a draft for the full amount?—Inasmuch as I find no cheque; that is my reason for supposing it.

49,377. Yes, we understand that quite well. Looking at the receipt can you say when that was paid?—Not from looking at this; I say that I have no doubt it was handed to me.

49,378. Can you say when the money was paid by you to meet that?—I cannot; I do not see any cheque of mine about that date.

49,379. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Look further on?—Cheques are often held some days before they get into the banker's hands.

49,380. Or a wrong date may sometimes get on a receipt?—On the 29th September I see a draft, "Paid "Nichols, 94*l.* 7*s.*"

49,381. (The Chief Commissioner.) Paid by you?—By me.

49,382. May that have contained Corderoy's claim along with others?—I have no doubt it did.

49,383. Now tell me, if you please; it is clear that Mr. Nichols received the 94*l.* on the 29th September?—It is, there is the date.

49,384. Your banker's book would be as good as anything for that; I mean it cannot be any later date than that?—No.

49,385. Now tell me, please, whether you recollect a sum of money being paid to a man named Ridge?—Perfectly well.

49,386. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) It may be a formal question to ask, but did you know, or had you any suspicion, that any monies had been paid to Corderoy at that time in behalf of Mr. Monson for the services he had rendered?—Certainly not.

49,387. Did you know 50*l.* had been paid?—Certainly not.

49,388. If you had known that would you have given him the cheque for 12*l.*?—Certainly not; I recollect perfectly well paying Ridge myself.

49,389. (The Chief Commissioner.) What did you pay him?—10*l.*

49,390. Was that a 10*l.* note?—I paid nothing but by cheque.

49,391. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Had you gone through Ridge's account with Mr. Nichols?—We agreed upon that sum, that he was entitled to 10*l.*

49,392. Do you know whether Mr. Nichols represented to you that 10*l.* was a fair sum for his remuneration for all his services during the election?—Quite so.

49,393. I see the bills all got paid?—Yes.

49,394. Did you receive any money after that on account of the election?—Not any, I have money in hand now, a small balance.

49,395. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Was that account sent in in blank to you and Mr. Nichols?—It was one of the amounts left for me to settle; I do not mean to say that it might not have been sent in, but the bill would speak for itself if I could see the bill.

49,396. (The Chief Commissioner.) I want to know how this is to be explained; there are some very small sums stated to have been paid by you?—Yes.

49,397. You paid John Le Coutoir?—Yes.

49,398. How was that?—I employed him.

49,399. Was he paid in money?—A cheque was drawn for it.

49,400. Would it be a cheque for that small amount?—No, I do not think I should draw a cheque for so small a sum as that.

49,401. Then Edwin Small was paid?—That was for attending at the election as clerk.

49,402. Richard Tugwell 3*l.*; I do not think there are any more small sums, I will read the list to you (reads list of names to witness)?—Yes, that is right.

49,403. What part did you say you took in 1863?—No part. I was agent for Mr. Stuart Wortley in the first instance, and he withdrew before the polling.

49,404. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Before you go to the election of 1863, in order to get the notes clear, allow me to draw your attention to this. I see "No-"vember 1865, Mr. Nichols 12*l.*," do you remember anything at all about that item?—I have no recollection, but that may be Corderoy's.

49,405. I want to know whether the cheque for 12*l.* to Mr. Nichols is the cheque for Corderoy; can you tell me aye, or no?—With reference to my own book I could not.

49,406. There is the amount, 12*l.*, just refer to that and see whether it is for that amount that is received. Would the 12*l.* be paid into the hands of Mr. Nichols to pay away?—This is one of the papers I referred to; they appear in my schedule as payments made.

49,407. Were there three sums paid through Mr. Nichols?—Yes.

49,408. The cheque I have drawn your attention to has reference to these accounts?—Yes.

49,409. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Before we go from 1865, there are one or two payments I want to call your particular attention to; did you know that Ridge had received 50*l.* from Mr. Nichols?—Certainly not.

49,410. Did you know that he said that 10*l.* of that was for Sir Henry Rawlinson, and 10*l.* for Mr. Monson, and 10*l.* for Mr. Gower?—I saw that in the report in the paper.

49,411. Did you know that?—Oh dear no.

49,412. Would you have sanctioned that?—Certainly not.

49,413. Do not be surprised at my putting these questions; I only wish to give you an opportunity of saying so. Did you see here also a payment to Thomas Ireland? Is that the Thomas Ireland who is since dead?—I do not know.

49,414. It is the Thomas Ireland referred to in Mr.

Nichols' account as having received from him 45*l.*; it is only to-day I have got these accounts. Did you settle with Mr. Nichols in going over the accounts that Thomas Ireland was fairly entitled to 7*l.* 10*s.*?—I must have my schedule, I cannot remember the names.

49,415. Do you recollect settling with Mr. Nichols that Ireland was entitled to 7*l.* 10*s.* for services rendered?—I have no such name in my list.

49,416. It is in the account sent in, it is in the copy of it, "Ireland Thomas, 7*l.* 10*s.*"?—I do not see the name at all; if I have paid that I have made no mention of it.

49,417. You will see it entered in your account as "Thomas Ireland, 7*l.* 10*s.*" (the document was handed to witness)?—Yes, this a proper document, I can tell now.

49,418. Did you come to a conclusion with Mr. Nichols, that 7*l.* 10*s.* was the proper sum due to Ireland for his services?—I have no doubt I did.

49,419. Were you aware at that time that he was paid by Mr. Nichols 45*l.*?—Certainly not.

49,420. Do you know what Ireland was?—I do not; he was a man, I think, who kept a small shop.

49,421. Now, another question I have to ask you; you see put down to young Alfred Joyes, 4*l.* 19*s.*; did you settle that amount with Mr. Nichols?—He sent in the bill for that amount.

49,422. Were you aware that at that time he had been paid by Mr. Nichols about 20*l.*?—Certainly not.

49,423. Now there is Henry Francis; he has been entered here, I see, by the cheque for 5*l.*—Yes.

49,424. Is that the gentleman who has been examined here?—Yes.

49,425. Were you aware at that time 80*l.* had passed through his hands?—Oh dear no.

49,426. You are not angry with me for putting the question?—Not at all.

49,427. I think he says 60*l.* had passed through his hands?—Yes.

49,428. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Perhaps you were not aware that any money had passed through his hands at all?—No.

49,429. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I see "Thomas Jordan, 15*l.*"?—Yes.

49,430. Did you and Mr. Nichols in going over the account settle that as the proper amount for the services he had rendered?—That was one of the bills I took off; the bill was sent in for 20*l.*

49,431. You taxed it down to 15*l.*?—Yes.

49,432. He agreed to that?—He took it.

49,433. Did you consider that was a fair sum for all his services?—I did.

49,434. Were you aware that he had in his hands, however he disposed of it, 130*l.*?—No.

49,435. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was that account taxed down with Mr. Nichols?—Yes, he was quite aware that I did not like the 20*l.*

49,436. (The Chief Commissioner.) I have one more question to ask you about these bills, I want you to explain this; there is a bill without any name, 17*l.* 10*s.*?—That is one of the bills I disallowed, I would not pay it. It came with a name; I am very glad you have found that, because it shows that I was correct in stating I had disallowed one or two.

49,437. In 1863 you took no particular part?—None whatever. I assisted my friend Mr. Smith after Mr. Stuart Wortley had retired, and I had declined to assist any of the candidates.

49,438. In 1859, at the general election, you were agent to Lord Monson?—Yes.

49,439. Mr. Wilkinson opposed him, but did not come down in person, did he?—Did he not?

49,440. We have heard he did not. Was there a a good deal of money spent on that election, the general election in 1859?—The accounts are all in the box, and I have not referred to them since, I could not charge my memory at all; you will find all my accounts of the 1859 election.

49,441. Are you able to tell me what money you received to pay the expenses of the election of 1859?—Not from memory, but they are all there.

49,442. In 1858, in the Doulton election, you were agent for Lord Monson?—Yes.

49,443. Are you able to tell me what money you received to pay for that election?—No, all the accounts are in the box.

49,444. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I want to ask you if you know the handwriting (handing document to witness)?—I should not like to speak with any certainty, but it is handwriting that is familiar to me, but I should not like to speak to it.

49,445. From first to last in the election, did Mr. Monson ever intimate to you that large sums of money had been paid to Mr. Nichols?—Certainly not.

49,446. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you know anything of it?—I did not; I was quite aware that sums of money were being paid.

49,447. By Mr. Nichols?—I do not know who paid them; I had no knowledge by whom those monies were paid.

49,448. You had no knowledge of the machinery?—I had not.

49,449. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Were you aware that large sums of money were being paid in the town to voters?—I was quite certain that that must be the case. I only know that from on dit, but of my own knowledge I did not know anything of the kind; until this revelation I had no idea of it.

49,450. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You knew it was going on?—I knew that large expenses were going on.

49,451. And not from you?—Yes.

49,452. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You were aware that sums of money were distributed, but not from you?—I cannot say that I knew that monies were distributed, nothing of the sort came to my knowledge.

49,453. Were you aware that at Mr. Nichols', for instance, there were refreshments being distributed to a large amount?—I knew that refreshments were going on.

49,454. Did Mr. Nichols ever suggest to you that there was a bill owing to the "Grapes" for refreshments had during the time of the election?—Certainly not, he knew that I never paid refreshment bills for elections.

49,455. Was this the first time that you had the large claim against Mr. Monson of 119*l.* for refreshments on account of the election?—Yes.

49,456. When were you actually appointed the expense agent, you were appointed in writing?—It was a very short time before the election; I put my signature to it a short time before.

49,457. Then, before you were legally appointed the expense agent, in what capacity were you engaged in reference to the election?—I was acting as Mr. Monson's agent.

49,458. But you were not formally appointed?—No.

49,459. You were not formally appointed till about the day of nomination?—No.

49,460. I was alluding to it more with respect to the conduct of the election, as to how far you had control over the conduct of the election?—My rule in conducting the elections always has been never to jeopardize it.

49,461. You mean by a payment of an illegal character?—Yes; I have always said to Mr. Monson, "I "must be in a position to go in the witness box the day "after the election;" I have always prided myself upon that; it may be too much to say, but I have done so. I have been an election agent 50 years.

49,462. Can you point out, Mr. Hart, any other bills which were taxed by you and Mr. Nichols; if you can I should be very glad, I should like to know the character of the taxation. There was a bill of 47*l.* sent into me from Mr. Holdsworth, and I knew that there were refreshments, and I said, "I cannot allow this," and 10*l.* was taken off for refreshment.

THIRTY-THIRD DAY.

T. Hart.

28 Sept. 1866.

49,463. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That is one of the bills taxed down?—Yes.

49,464. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was that taxing of the bills a taxing off of what you considered an illegal claim, and you paid all the legal ones?—Yes.

49,465. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) It was in the course of the Inquiry insinuated rather than stated, that you must have known both of the treating and the expenditure that was going on through Mr. Nichols, that you must have known that he was spending money, and that public houses were open?—I was quite aware that public houses were open and treating was going on.

49,466. It was put to you distinctly whether you were aware that money was passing from Mr. Nichols' hands for the purposes of serving the election?—No I did not; I should not have countenanced it.

49,467. In fact, an expression was used in reference to you, that you must have known that; I take it in the same truthful way, that you did not know money was passing his hands for the purpose of influencing voters?—Certainly not; I knew money was passing.

49,468. Were you aware that in some measure you were superseded by his agency?—I was aware that the election in a great measure was conducted without me.

49,469. Were you aware that monies were coming direct from Mr. Monson's hands through Mr. Nichols. I ask you whether you were aware of it?—I was not.

49,470. (The Chief Commissioner.) Mr. Hart, I must ask you a question upon that; you were aware, were you not, for whatever purpose it might have been, that Mr. Nichols was paying away money?—No doubt he was.

49,471. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You were asked that question?—I was not aware of it more than anybody else in the town might suppose it. It did not come to my own knowledge.

49,472. (The Chief Commissioner.) No doubt you were aware that Mr. Nichols was spending money?—I presumed that money went out, I could not be certain.

49,473. And you presumed it at the time, though you could not be perfectly certain; you presumed that Mr. Nichols was spending money?—Of course I presumed he was so, though I had no knowledge whatever.

49,474. In reference to the election?—Yes.

49,475. You went over the accounts with Mr. Nichols, you have told us?—Yes, I went into the accounts.

49,476. Was anything said at that time between you about other monies?—No.

49,477. Nothing whatever?—Nothing.

49,478. Never by you to Mr. Nichols, or by Mr Nichols to you?—No.

49,479. You understand my question?—Oh, quite.

49,480. At that time did you ask Mr. Nichols point blank whether other monies had been spent?—No, I did not.

49,481. Did he say anything to you about it?—Certainly not.

49,482. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Would the amount of money expended give a larger expenditure than you had reason to think was going on?—I do not quite understand the question.

49,483. Would the 1,266*l.*, or whatever it was, fairly represent to your mind the expenditure that you saw going on?—I thought that there must be something in the background, but it was merely matter of opinion.

49,484. I am not going to fix you with any actions by anybody else?—You shall have all the knowledge I have, but I have no knowledge, and it is not fair to speculate.

49,485. (The Chief Commissioner.) You thought that 1,260*l.* odd would not represent all the expenditure you had witnessed?—I could hardly say I witnessed it.

49,486. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Well, then, suspected it?—That is a very proper term.

49,487. Did you ever ask Mr. Nichols whether he had any claim against Mr. Monson beyond his fee of 100 guineas?—No.

49,488. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did that include everything that Mr. Nichols received; did he receive anything for personal expenses?—No, merely the fee.

49,489. The 100 guineas included it?—Yes.

49,490. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You have for many years been conducting elections; do you believe that the 100 guineas was a fair recompense for Mr. Nichols' service?—I consider that was so.

49,491. And a liberal payment?—Yes; it is only lately that a sub-agent has been paid so well.

49,492. You considered it very handsome and was liberal pay for his services?—Yes.

49,493. (The Chief Commissioner.) Just give me a word on that; when was the amount of his fee arranged?—I am sure I do not know

49,494. Was it before or after the election?—It was not before the election.

49,495. It was after?—Yes, it was after the election I arranged his fee. He said he wanted to have that sum, and that Mr. Page was entitled to 50*l.*

49,496. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I see by your banking book that 105*l.* was paid long after the election?—Yes, it was; I paid all the small sums and kept back the large ones. That was by cheque.

49,497. (The Chief Commissioner.) I may take it that after the election, in going through the accounts, Mr. Nichols stated that he ought to have that amount?—He did.

49,498. And you were of the same opinion?—Quite so.

49,499. For doing what?—For canvassing.

49,500. Canvassing and for countenacing Mr. Monson?—Yes, he was a very active and excellent agent.

49,501. Did you know yourself at that time that Mr. Nichols had incurred any personal expenses?—No, I am quite sure that he must have; I did not know of any certain amount.

49,502. You had not incurred any personal expenses?—Yes, I had, a few.

49,503. Do not tell me what, I do not want to be curious, but you received your personal fee?—Oh, it was 200 guineas.

49,504. I am quite satisfied, I do not want to know the amount?—I included in that all expenses. I had many journeys to London.

49,505. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did Mr. Nichols ever suggest to you that he had incurred personal expenses which ought to be paid beyond the 100 guineas?—We never had any conversation at all about that.

49,506. (The Chief Commissioner.) When you settled with him about his fee nothing was said about any money out of pocket?—No.

49,507. And you did not calculate in his fee any money out of pocket?

49,508. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) It was a general fee to carry all expenses. That would be calculated?—That would be calculated.

49,509. Either then or since?—No, not to me.

49,510. You would be the proper person for him to make the claim to?—Certainly.

49,511. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) It was after the election you state?—Yes.

49,512. Of course you had not known that there were any money transactions between himself and Mr. Monson?—No.

49,513. You recompensed him as if there had been no money passing between him and Mr. Monson?—Exactly.

49,514. I mean, treating him as liberally as if he had not received a shilling from any other quarter?—Yes.

49,515. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) As if no other monies were to come to him for the election?—Yes.

49,516. I think I asked this with reference to this expenditure; in what way was it arranged with Mr. Nichols that he should receive the 100 guineas. What took place between you and him?—Nothing until after the election, when he said he was entitled to the 100 guineas.

49,517. Nothing more?—Nothing more.

49,518. You did not go into particulars to make up the 100 guineas, but it was in a general round sum?—Oh, it was a fee, just as my own 200 guineas.

The witness withdrew.

WILLIAM DICKINSON recalled and examined.

W. Dickinson.

49,519. (The Chief Commissioner.) You are sworn; in whose handwriting is the body of that receipt?—It is mine.

49,520. How did you come to get it; be so good as to tell me that?—Nye asked me to write it for him.

49,521. Where was he when he asked you to write it out?—I cannot say whether it was at home at my own house or not; I have written once or twice for him.

49,522. He came and asked you to write it?—Yes; to make out a bill for him, and I wrote it out according to his dictation.

49,523. Then he took it away?—He took it away.

49,524. Have you ever seen it since?—No.

49,525. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you give it to Nye?—Yes.

49,526. Did he tell you what he was going to do with it?—No, I made it out for him and gave it to him.

49,527. (The Chief Commissioner.) Are the figures yours as well?—Yes.

49,528. And then you gave it to Nye?—Yes.

The witness withdrew.

JOHN NYE recalled and examined.

J. Nye.

49,529. (The Chief Commissioner.) You are sworn?—Yes.

49,530. Just look at that (handing receipt to witness). Do you recollect going to Dickinson, and getting him to write that out for you?—Yes.

49,531. Where at?—At my house in Nutley-lane.

49,532. What did you want it for?—Mr. Nichols said I was to give him a receipt for 5*l.*

49,533. But we have not got at that yet. I want to go by steps. Why did you go to Dickinson to get the receipt?—I asked Dickinson——

49,534. Why did you do that?—Mr. Nichols told me I was to bring a receipt to him to receive something.

49,535. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) For how much?—For 5*l.*, I suppose. I could not read myself. Mr. Nichols asked me to sign the paper, and I did so.

49,536. Having got the receipt written out by Dickinson, what did you do with it?—I took it down to Mr. Nichols.

49,537. When?—I cannot say how soon it was.

49,538. I should like to know?—It was after the election.

49,539. When had the receipt been made out for you; when had Dickinson written it?—I cannot say.

49,540. Had he written it before the election?—No, after the election.

49,541. How long before you took it to Mr. Nichols?—I took it the same day.

49,542. The same day that he wrote it out for you you took it to Mr. Nichols?—Yes.

49,543. When you got there did you find Mr. Nichols?—Yes.

49,544. What did you say?—I told him I had drawn up a bill, and he told me to put my handwriting to it.

49,545. Did you?—Yes, that is my handwriting.

49,546. Go on?—He said he would settle after a few weeks, that he would settle up.

49,547. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did he pay you then?—No.

49,548. (The Chief Commissioner.) And did he pay you up?—No.

49,549. Have you asked him for it since?—No.

49,550. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He told you he would settle in a few days?—In a few weeks after.

49,551. Why did you not tell us that before?—I had forgotten it.

49,552. Now do, like an honest man, tell us the whole truth; why was it you did not tell us before?—I had quite forgotten it.

49,553. The receipt was put into your hand, every possible effort was made to call your attention to it; do tell us, like an honest man, how it was?—I had quite forgotten it. I knew I had signed my hand with Mr. Nichols, but I did not know what it was for.

49,554. (The Chief Commissioner.) Why did you sign a paper for Mr. Nichols?—I do not know; he asked me.

49,555. Why, if he asked me I should not have done it; why should you?—It was for something I was to have for the election.

49,556. That is a receipt for 5*l.*; why did you sign that receipt if you did not have the money?—I did not have it.

49,557. Why did you sign the receipt if you did not have the money?—It was to be something off what I had borrowed.

49,558. And what had you borrowed?—20*l.*

49,559. And then did you give the receipt for 5*l.* off what you owed him?—Yes, to Mr. Nichols.

49,560. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Then you had owed Mr. Nichols a certain amount, and the account was taken off that amount?—Yes.

49,561. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) "Received "4th October 1865;" do you know, in whose handwriting is that?—I cannot read it.

49,562. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Now I implore of you to tell me if you recollect it; now attend to this, because it is serious as regards your own character; did any one speak to you about the evidence you were to give here about the receipt?—Not a soul.

49,563. Either before you were examined?—No.

49,564. Or since?—Not after.

49,565. Nor before?—No, no one has ever said a word to me.

49,566. How is it you have forgotten taking the receipt down; you know we are not indebted to you for knowing this; we are indebted to Mr. Hart, who knows the handwriting. You can give us no further explanation?—No.

49,567. Nobody spoke to you?—Not a soul.

49,568. No one?—No one.

The witness withdrew.

Adjourned till Monday, the 29th of October, at 11 o'clock.

THIRTY-FOURTH DAY.

M. Ireland.

29 Oct. 1866.

THIRTY-FOURTH DAY.

Monday, 29th October 1866.

MARY IRELAND sworn and examined.

49,569. (The Chief Commissioner.) Your husband some time ago lived here at Reigate, did he not?—Yes.

49,570. What was he?—A grocer.

49,571. Did he take an active part in this last election of 1865?—He was here; I do not know what he did.

49,572. Had he meetings at his house?—Yes.

49,573. Did you know where he attended; did you ever see him about anywhere?—No, I was not with him; I was always at home.

49,574. Are you aware of his paying any money away during the election?—I do not know that he did. I do not know anything about that.

49,575. Had your husband a vote?—Yes.

49,576. Are you aware who he voted for; I suppose you would only know from your husband?—Yes, Mr. Monson, I believe.

49,577. Do you say you do not know of his paying any money away?—I do not know.

49,578. Did people come to him to be paid; did they come and tell you that they came to be paid?—No, I do not know anything about it.

49,579. You do not know anything about his paying any money. I want to know whether any people came to him for money. They may have come, and not finding Mr. Ireland at home they may have said, "We "want him to pay us something;" do you know anything of that kind?—No.

49,580. Do you know of your husband receiving any money before the election?—I only know of 10*l.*

49,581. Was that before the election?—I really do not know when it was.

49,582. Where did he get the 10*l.*?—I do not know.

49,583. How do you know that he had 10*l.*?—He told me so.

49,584. Did he give it you?—No.

49,585. How did he come to tell you?—I am sure I cannot recollect.

49,586. What was it he said to you? Did he say, "I have had 10*l.* for the election;" I want you to tell us what it was he said?—I do not remember; I really cannot say.

49,587. Probably you remember something about it?—I do not remember anything about it, only that he had it.

49,588. You remember that he told you he had it?—Yes, but I do not remember more than he said he had 10*l.*

49,589. Did he tell you that in his own house?—Yes.

49,590. Did he show you the money and say, "Here, I have had 10*l.* for the election," or anything of that sort?—No.

49,591. Did he buy anything for you or for the family, and say that it was from the election?—No.

49,592. Did he come home one day and say, "I "have had 10*l.*?"—It was one day he came home and said he had that.

49,593. He said what?—He had 10*l.*

49,594. How did you know it; did he show you the 10*l.*, or do you remember his saying it?—He said so.

49,595. Did he tell you where he got it?—I do not know.

49,596. Did he tell you who paid him the 10*l.*?—No.

49,597. Did he tell you where he was when he received it?—No.

49,598. Nothing about it?—No.

49,599. Did he tell you of any more money he received besides the 10*l.*?—No.

49,600. He did not?—No, he did not tell me.

49,601. Did you see him with any money out of the customary line?—No.

49,602. About the election time did you see him with money?—No.

49,603. Now I have been talking of before the election. After the election did he say anything to you, or were you made aware of his receiving anything?—He was ill directly after.

49,604. Probably people came to see him at home then?—No.

49,605. Do you know of anybody coming to the house?—No.

42,606. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) How soon after the election did he get ill?—Directly after.

49,607. About a day or two after?—Directly after, I could not say to a day or two.

49,608. (The Chief Commissioner.) Do you not think you could recollect a little more about what he said when he told you he had the money?—No.

49,609. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Have you a family?—Yes.

49,610. Did he buy anything for the children?—No.

49,611. Did he act as if he had received a large sum of money?—Not that I am aware of.

49,612. I mean by his acts?—No, he never showed me such actions.

49,613. (The Chief Commissioner.) Do you recollect his buying anything and saying it was with the election money, and he wished to lay it out, or anything of that sort?—No.

49,614. How soon after the election was it that your husband died; can you tell me when he died?—On the 23rd of October, I think it was.

49,615. The election was on the 12th of July?—Yes, I mean September.

49,616. A little more than two months after the election he died?—Yes.

49,617. Was he a careful man with his money, generally speaking?—I did not know but what he was.

49,618. I do not want to ask any curious questions. I am speaking generally, not at all in particular. Did he generally invest his money that he got and buy stock with it, and so on?—Yes.

49,619. Or did he put it into a bank or anything of that kind, generally speaking?—He generally put it into the bank.

49,620. You were the administratrix afterwards?—Yes.

49,621. I do not want to press you about this, but tell me generally, before he died had you cause to know what his property consisted of; did he tell you that?—Yes; at least, I knew what he had in business.

49,622. After his death, when you went to get in his estate did you find that he had more money at the bank than you expected?—No, just the amount that I knew of.

49,623. I do not want to ask any improper questions. Had he told you before he died about what you would find at the bank?—No, I knew it.

49,624. You knew what he had; had you authority to go to the bank to look into his accounts?—I knew what he had.

49,625. And then you found there was about what you expected?—Just the sum.

49,626. Then, as I understand you, you are not aware of his receiving for election money more than 10*l.*?—That is all I know of.

49,627. Can you recollect this: whether he told you in what shape the 10*l.* had come; was it a 10*l.* note or in sovereigns or what?—I do not know.

49,628. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I think you say, Mrs. Ireland, that you do not recollect how long before the election it was?—I do not know when it was.

49,629. You do not know how long before the election it was he told you that he had received the 10*l.*?—I do not know.

49,630. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) It was before the election?—I do not know whether it was before or after.

49,631. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You do not know whether it was before or after the election?—It was some time during the election.

49,632. Did your husband at all communicate to you generally on matters of this kind?—Yes, but he never said much about the election.

49,633. About saying that he had received a large sum of money; was he generally so communicative to you that you think he would have communicated the fact?—I believe he would.

49,634. And was it only to the amount of 10*l.* that he did communicate to you he had received?—Yes.

49,635. Supposing he had received so large a sum as 45*l.*, do you think he would have been likely to have communicated the fact to you?—I do not think it would have been possible for him to have that without my knowledge.

49,636. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You were on those kind and confidential terms that you would have been aware of it?—Yes.

49,637. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Had you any reason to suppose about the time of the election that he had had such a large sum as that to expend?—I had not.

49,638. What was his general occupation?—He was a grocer.

49,639. Was he a grocer in a large way of business or small?—Not very large,—enough to keep him employed himself and another one.

49,640. Who was the other one?—A boy in the shop.

49,641. A boy employed to carry out parcels and goods?—Yes.

49,642. Did you yourself take much part in the business of the shop?—Well, I was always in the shop.

49,643. Always in the shop?—Not all day, but as much as I could be.

49,644. Had you any family?—Three children.

49,645. Of course they would require some portion of your attention?—Yes.

49,646. Did you keep any servant?—Yes.

49,647. One?—Yes.

49,648. One domestic servant?—Yes.

49,649. The domestic servant was attending probably to the house?—Yes.

49,650. And you had your attention more directed to the children?—And the shop.

49,651. What age was the boy in the shop?—Twelve or thirteen.

49,652. Then the boy would not be the person entrusted much in the sale of goods or the business?—No.

49,653. Then the actual business of the shop would rest between yourself and husband?—Yes.

49,654. Then, that being so, you can probably tell me whether you husband was much absent from the shop during the time of the election?—Yes, he went abroad.

49,655. You had more cast upon you during that time?—Yes.

49,656. At what time of the day was he mostly absent?—In the morning between 12 and 1, and in the evening.

49,657. Morning, afternoon, or evening, what time was he mostly absent?—Nearly all day sometimes.

49,658. And did he tell you when he returned home what he had been doing?—No.

49,659. Had he occasion to go out at that time about his ordinary occupation in his own business?—He had not been well, but he did as much as he could when he was at home.

49,660. He was not very well before the election?—No, he died of consumption, and it was upon him during that time.

49,661. How soon after the election did he die?—On the 23rd of September.

49,662. Did his illness at the time of the election at all incapacitate him from the conduct of business, from conducting his business as actively as before?—Yes.

49,663. It did?—Yes.

49,664. (The Chief Commissioner.) During the election?—Yes.

49,665. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) How long before the election, can you tell me, had that weakness and incapacity come on in conducting his business?—I do not know.

49,666. Was it some time before the election?—It was all the summer.

49,667. Ending with this attack of consumption?—Yes.

49,668. Can you tell me whether when he went out on those days it was for his customary business as a grocer, or for change of air, or for what did he go out?—I am sure I do not know.

49,669. Was he in the habit of going out for orders at all in his business?—Only on Saturday.

49,670. Your business was local to the shops but not with families?—People used to come to us.

49,671. They would come to you, but you used not to attend upon families?—That was it.

49,672. Before the election began he had been in the habit of going out?—I cannot remember.

49,673. You cannot remember?—He was out sometimes, but I cannot remember when.

49,674. I mean before the election came on?—I am sure I do not know.

49,675. You cannot recollect?—No.

49,676. How is it you recollect more about the time of the election; how comes it about that you recollect he was out more just before the election, that he was out then more than at any other time?—He was laid up directly after.

49,677. What, in bed?—Yes.

49,678. Now, having been laid up directly after the election, will that draw your recollection to the fact whether or not the 10*l.* had been received before or after the election?—It was some time before the election.

49,679. In all probability it would be before, if he was laid up shortly after?—It was some time before.

49,680. What I mean by before the election is before the actual polling?—Oh, yes; it was before that.

49,681. I am drawing your attention to the day of polling as the time we call the election?—It was before that.

49,682. Can you give me any suggestion at all as to how long it was?—No, I do not remember.

49,683. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I will not trouble you at all, but there is one little question I wish to ask. How is it you know that it was about the election business you received 10*l.*?—Only because he said so.

49,684. He said when he mentioned the 10*l.* it was about the election business?—Yes.

49,685. Did he carry the 10*l.* into his ordinary trade account, his ordinary business?—No.

49,686. You do not know what he did with it?—No; he kept it himself.

49,687. Mrs. Ireland, what rent did he pay for his house that he voted for? Do you live in it still?—Yes.

49,688. What was the rent of his house?—30*l.* a year.

The witness withdrew.

THIRTY-FOURTH DAY.

C. Miller.

29 Oct. 1866.

CHARLOTTE MILLER sworn and examined.

49,689. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You are the wife of Miller, who was an elector of Reigate?—Yes.

49,690. What was your husband's name?—Robert Miller.

49,691. What was he?—He did the bill sticking during the election.

49,692. What was his other occupation; I do not mean during the election, but his general occupation?—Anything that he could get to do; he was not well, he was not able to do much.

49,693. Was he a voter?—No.

49,694. Was he the person who was employed in keeping the door at the hall?—No.

49,695. Do you know of his receiving any money during the time of the election?—I do not know at all what he received; I know he had so much a week, but what it was I do not know.

49,696. Do you know how much a week he had or was to have?—No, I cannot say.

49,697. Did he tell you what he was to have?—No.

49,698. Did he tell you from whom he was to receive the money?—From Mr. Jordan, I believe.

49,699. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What Jordan?—Thomas Jordan.

49,700. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Do you know how long before the election he began receiving any money?—I do not think he received any before the election.

49,701. Do you know of his receiving anything after the election?—I believe he came to Reigate to receive something.

49,702. You think he did?—I know he did; but what it was I do not know.

49,703. Before he came to Reigate did he tell you he was going to receive it?—Yes.

49,704. Did he tell you to whom he was going to receive the money?—He told me he was going to Reigate to Mr. Hart's office.

49,705. To Mr. Hart's office to receive it?—Yes.

49,706. When he received it did he tell you how much he received?—No, I never knew.

49,707. Did you know of his being occupied then on the election in posting bills?—Yes, I knew he was.

49,708. He was not a voter?—No.

49,709. I will put the same question to you that I put to Mrs. Ireland; was your husband at all communicative to you upon matters of this sort?—Yes; I think he never deceived me in anything.

49,710. No, not deceived you; but suppose he received a large sum of money?—I am sure he would have told me.

49,711. Had you any reason to think that he had received so large a sum as 25*l.*?—No, I am sure he did not.

49,712. How long after the election did he die?—He died on the 15th of December.

49,713. What were his ordinary earnings?—From about 18*s.* to 1*l.* a week.

49,714. 25*l.* would have been a large sum for him to receive at any time?—Yes.

49,715. Or for a short space of time I may say?—Yes.

49,716. Do you believe if he had received so large a sum as that in so short a space of time in one payment that you must have known it?—Oh, yes; I am sure I must have known it.

49,717. Did he tell you, or did you know at all, what the amount was that he did receive?—No.

49,718. Not in any way?—No.

49,719. So you are not enabled to give us any information as regards all that?—Only that he told me he was to have so much a week.

49,720. How much?—30*s.* a week. I do not think he had it.

49,721. Perhaps you can tell me within a reasonable certainty how many weeks he was at work?—I cannot say.

49,722. It was after the election, was it not, that he told you he was going to receive money?—During the election.

49,723. When he said he was coming down to the town to be paid?—That was after the election.

49,724. Did he tell you then whether he had been paid anything at all?—I know he told me he got something, but what it was I do not know, and that he was to come to Reigate again to receive some money, but he never did, because he was too ill.

49,725. He was to come to Reigate to receive more, but he was then taken ill?—Yes.

49,726. He died in December; how long was he ill?—He was not well then, but he was worse certainly after the election; still he was able to get about, but he did not come to Reigate.

49,727. Then it would be very shortly after the election that this would take place, when he was taken ill. Was it after he came to Reigate and got some money that he said he should receive more?—Yes.

49,728. But he did not come to Reigate?—No.

49,729. Did you never receive any after his death?—No.

49,730. Or after his illness?—No.

49,731. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Or during his illness?—No.

49,732. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Can you at all give me any idea of how many weeks he was employed?—No.

49,733. Whilst he was being employed in sticking bills did he tell you at the end of the week he had received money for that work?—No, I never saw him have more than his usual earnings.

49,734. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) During the whole time?—Yes.

49,735. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) For whom did he work?—He lighted the public lamps.

49,736. What did he get for that?—18*s.* a week.

49,737. Then during the time of the election did you ever have brought to you for your household expenses, for carrying on your household expenses and so on, more than 18*s.* a week?—No.

49,738. Was it his habit to bring to you his weekly earnings?—Yes, he always did.

49,739. Then, if he had received more than the 18*s.* a week during the time of the election, do you think that he would have communicated the fact so you?—Yes, I think he would.

49,740. And brought it into the general expenses of the house?—Yes.

49,741. If he had any spare money, where did he generally keep it, or was he likely at all to have spare money?—Yes, sometimes, when he had many different jobs.

49,742. Did he give the money to you?—Yes.

49,743. Then you kept the general expenses and the accounts for him?—Yes.

49,744. Did he not bring some money to you after he had gone to Reigate, to bring it into the general accounts of the house?—He gave me a sovereign after he came from Reigate.

49,745. And that was all he gave you?—Yes, that was all I received.

49,746. Had you any reason to believe that he had received more than the sovereign?—No; he was not a man to spend any money at all.

49,747. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You did not see him spend any?—No. Of course I could not tell what he did; he was always out all day long.

49,748. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You knew his general habits pretty well, and you had no reason to suppose that he had spent more money than was usual?—No.

49,749. And after his death did you find any more money than you expected he might be possessed of?—No.

49,750. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You found no money in any form or way?—No.

49,751. Nor any money he lent to anybody?—No.

THIRTY-FOURTH DAY.

C. Miller.

29 Oct. 1866.

49,752. Nor any new clothes he had bought?—No.

49,753. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Or private accounts of his own?—No.

49,754. (The Chief Commissioner.) Tell me, Mrs. Miller, do you know James Nichols?—Yes.

49,755. Was your husband acquainted with him?—I believe he was.

49,756. Have you ever seen them together?—Yes.

49,757. Did you ever know him receive any money from Mr. Nichols?—No.

49,758. I do not mean about the election?—I never saw Mr. Nichols give him any money.

49,759. During the election have you seen him with Mr. Nichols?—Yes.

49,760. What was he doing with Mr. Nichols during the election?—I do not know.

49,761. What were they doing? talking, or what?—Talking together, but what about I cannot say.

49,762. Do you know what your husband was employed on during the election? He took an interest in the election, did he not?—Yes.

49,763. How did he busy himself about the election?—In bill posting.

49,764. On the part of Mr. Monson?—Yes.

49,765. Do I understand you to say that he was engaged in bill posting?—Yes.

49,766. Did you see him after with Mr. Nichols?—Oh, no, not very often.

49,767. But occasionally?—Yes.

49,768. More than once?—Yes.

49,769. Did you live in Reigate yourself?—No, at Redhill.

49,770. Did you ever know him during the election or afterwards receive any money from Mr. Nichols?—No.

49,771. Nothing at all?—I do not know whether he did or not.

49,772. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you ever hear from Mr. Nichols or your husband, or from any one else, up to the time of this Inquiry, that your husband had received 25*l.* from Mr. Nichols?—No.

49,773. From what you know of your husband's habits, and from what you found during your husband's illness and death, do you believe he received 25*l.* from Mr. Nichols?—No; I am quite sure he did not.

49,774. Is that your husband's handwriting (handing document to witness)?—My husband could not write.

49,775. Look at that, it may be his cross?—It is not his handwriting I know.

49,776. That is a bill paid by Mr. Hart for 30*s.*?—Yes.

49,777. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Could your husband write?—He could write, but he never did, because he had a bad arm.

49,778. You have seen him write?—Yes.

49,779. Look at the signature across that stamp (handing another document to witness)?—That is his handwriting.

THOMAS HART recalled.

T. Hart.

(The Chief Commissioner.) Look at those three bills, one for 6*l.* 10*s.*, one for 10*s.*, and one for 1*l.* 10*s.* (The documents were handed to the witness.)

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) 8*l.* 10*s.* in all.

49,780. (The Chief Commissioner.) Those appear to be bills on the face of them that you paid. Do you recollect whether you paid them yourself?—That I certainly paid, because that is my handwriting.

49,781. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You mean the larger one?—Yes.

49,782. (The Chief Commissioner.) You see on the back of this (pointing to document) the aggregate of all the three bills endorsed?—That was endorsed by my clerk, Mr. Small.

49,783. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) That was for bill posting?—Yes.

49,784. He was employed?—Yes.

49,785. Did you employ him yourself, Mr. Hart, or was he employed by Mr. Nichols?—I rather think I employed him myself. I was in the habit of employing him for bill posting.

49,786. He was a respectable man?—Quite so.

49,787. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Let me ask you, Mr. Hart, whether you were aware of any other monies except those which you paid to Miller himself having been paid to Miller?—No.

49,788. On account of the election?—No, certainly not.

The witness withdrew.

JOSEPH JOHNSON sworn and examined.

J. Johnson.

49,789. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What are you, what business do you carry on?—I am a joiner.

49,790. Are you a voter?—Not now; I was three years ago.

49,791. Did you vote at the last election?—No.

49,792. Did you vote in 1863?—Was that Mr. Gower's election?

49,793. Yes; Mr. Gower and Mr. Wilkinson?—Yes, I did vote then.

49,794. What rent did you pay for the house for which you voted at that election?—About 11*l.*; 4*s.* 6*d.* per week.

49,795. For whom did you vote at that election?—For Mr. Gower.

49,796. Had you been using your best exertions to secure his return?—No, not in any way.

49,797. You did nothing at all?—I did nothing at all.

49,798. Did you receive any money by way of expenses, or anything of that kind?—I might have cost 3*l.* or 4*l.*, but the money I received was only 30*s.* altogether.

49,799. Where were you living at that time?—At Horley, seven and a half miles from this place, on the road to London.

49,800. Had you left this place altogether?—Yes; I had left it seven or eight months, and perhaps longer.

49,801. And given up your house?—Yes.

49,802. And you had been away for seven or eight months?—Yes.

49,803. Was there a railway to the place you were living?—No; Mr. Apted fetched me.

49,804. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Which Apted?—Mr. Job Apted.

49,805. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He sent for you in a fly?—No, it was a dog cart; a light cart.

49,806. He sent this to bring you for the election?—Yes.

49,807. You did not pay anything for that?—No.

49,808. How was the 30*s.* expense incurred then?—It was something for my time. I could not afford to lose a couple of days without being paid for it.

49,809. Who paid you?—Mr. Job Apted.

49,810. We will drop the expenses, though you have put them at 3*l.* or 4*l.* There was no expense; you know you had a little treating; you had your beer too?—I should have lost time.

49,811. You did not lose time; you were brought over in a dog cart, and it would not take you more than an hour?—When you begin the day by going out in that way you do not always get back so soon as you actually might.

49,812. Did he drive you back?—He sent me back.

49,813. In his dog cart?—Yes, by a man of the name of Morgan.

49,814. I suppose you were treated well while you were here?—Yes, I had everything I required.

49,815. And you did not pay for that?—No, I did not.

THIRTY-FOURTH DAY.

J. Johnson.

29 Oct. 1866.

49,816. A dog cart is sent for you to bring you here, when here you had everything you required, and then you are sent back in the dog cart; now, what was your expense?—Well, I came down the night before.

49,817. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Had you been before to vote?—No, that was the first vote I ever had.

49,818. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) They did not canvass you the last election?—No.

49,819. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Were you living here in 1863?—No, I had been away.

49,820. You are speaking of 1863?—Yes. I left in the month of February, and the election was somewhere about that time twelve months.

49,821. Was your name still on the list of voters in 1865?—No; I did not vote at the last election. I voted at Gower and Wilkinson's election.

The witness then withdrew.

W. Denman.

WILLIAM DENMAN sworn and examined.

49,822. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—A bricklayer.

49,823. What rent did you pay for your house in 1865 at the election?—11*l.* a year.

49,824. Who did you vote for at the last election?—For Mr. Monson.

49,825. Were you on on his committee?—No, sir.

49,826. You say you were not on Mr. Monson's committee?—I was not.

49,827. Did you do any work for him at the election?—No, sir.

49,828. Nothing at all?—No, sir.

49,829. Before you voted did you receive any money?—Yes.

49,830. Was that paid through Emery?—No; I received it from William Jeal.

49,831. Before the election?—Yes, on the Tuesday night.

49,832. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) How much?—30*s.*

49,833. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did you receive money after the election?—Yes.

49,834. How much after?—7*l.* altogether; 3*l.* 10*s.* for myself, and 3*l.* 10*s.* I was to give to Jeal. I had the whole of it given to me.

49,835. Did you hand the 3*l.* 10*s.* over to Jeal?—Yes.

49,836. Who did you receive the 30*s.* from?—Jeal gave me the 30*s.*

49,837. And who gave you the 3*l.* 10*s.*?—I believe it came from William Woodman, making altogether 5*l.* I had.

49,838. Are you sure you did not receive 6*l.* instead of 5*l.*?—Only 5*l.*

49,839. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was that all you received?—5*l.* was all.

49,840. (The Chief Commissioner.) Do you know where the money came from?—No, sir, I do not.

49,841. Do you know who paid the 30*s.* to Jeal for you?—I believe it was William Coomber.

49,842. Do you know who he had it from?—No, I do not.

49,843. Do you know Langridge, a publican?—Yes.

49,844. Did he pay you anything?—No.

49,845. Did he tell you he had given any money to anybody for you?—I do not recollect that he did.

49,846. I will tell you what Langridge told us; he said, "I paid 12*l.* to two voters, Denman and Jeal"?—5*l.* was all I received.

49,847. Did you say you got 1*l.* 10*s.* from Woodman?—No, Coomber.

49,848. I thought you said Woodman?—No, he paid me the 7*l.*

49,849. Are you sure it was Woodman?—Yes.

49,850. Had you taken any part in the election in 1863?—No, I only voted once.

49,851. You had not a vote previously?—No.

49,852. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Are you a voter now?—No, I am away from Reigate now. I was away at the election.

49,853. (The Chief Commissioner.) You were away before the election came on in July?—Yes.

49,854. When had you left Reigate?—It was early in the year; I think it was February.

49,855. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Which Woodman was it?—William Woodman the bricklayer.

The witness then withdrew.

W. Jeal.

WILLIAM JEAL called, sworn, and examined.

49,856. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—A bricklayer.

49,857. What rent did you pay at the last election?—6*s.* a week.

49,858. For whom did you vote?—For Mr. Monson.

49,859. Previous to the election did you receive any money?—Yes.

49,860. How much?—3*l.*

49,861. Who from?—William ——; I forget the surname.

49,862. Do you mean Langridge?—No, it was Mr. Langridge's fly-driver gave me the money; put it in my hands.

49,863. Was this before the polling?—Yes.

49,864. Was 30*s.* of that for yourself?—Yes.

49,865. And 30*s.* for somebody else?—30*s.* for Denman.

49,866. Had you been on Mr. Monson's committee?—No.

49,867. Had you done anything for Mr. Monson besides voting for him?—No further than going and seeing Mr. Denman.

49,868. Where did you go to see him?—Only about a mile.

49,869. What did you go to see him about?—To know whether he would vote the same way that I was going.

49,870. What did he tell you?—He said he was quite agreeable to go with me.

49,871. After the election did you get some more money paid you?—Yes, 3*l.* 10*s.*

49,872. You say you went to Denman before the election?—Yes.

49,873. Who sent you to Denman?—Mr. Langridge.

49,874. Did you agree with Langridge what you were to have before you went to Denman?—No.

49,875. Did you agree what Denman was to have?—No; all the agreement was, that if we were to receive anything it would be both alike.

48,876. When you got to Denman did you tell Denman what he was to receive?—No, not when I went to him.

49,877. What did you tell him?—I told him that they were come to see us, and they wanted us to vote for Mr. Monson, and I asked him if he was willing to vote for him if I did, and he said yes.

49,878. Did he tell you why? What was the reason that he was to vote the same way that you did?—There was nothing passed about that. We had agreed both to go one way.

49,879. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You and Denman had made up your minds to vote together?—Yes, we working handy one another.

49,880. (The Chief Commissioner.) When you went to Denman did you tell him what agreement you had made with Langridge for yourself?—No.

49,881. You had made an arrangement with Langridge, you know?—Not then I had not; not before we all came together.

49,882. I understood that before you went to Denman; Langridge sent you there and told you —— ?—He asked me to go and see him.

49,883. Well, had you not made an agreement with Langridge about receiving something?—No; not then.

49,884. When was it?—Not till after Denman and we all came together.

49,885. "We all?" Were there any others?—Mr. Langridge, Denman, and me.

49,886. When you met after the election?—Before the election when we met.

49,887. Did you receive money after the election?—After I gave my vote.

49,888. How much?—3*l.* 10*s.*

49,889. Who did you receive that from?—William Denman.

49,890. Do you know who William Denman received it from?—I believe he received it from William Woodman.

49,891. Who is Woodman?—A bricklayer.

49,892. Has he anything to do with Langridge?—I do not know; I suppose there was something between them at the time.

49,893. When you, and Denman, and Langridge met together was before the election?—Yes; on the Tuesday night.

49,894. When you met together what did you agree for?—They agreed to come and fetch us on the voting day, in the morning.

49,895. Anything else?—Our pay was to be 5*l.*

49,896. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Was that in Langridge's house?—No, at the hotel at Godstone.

49,897. (The Chief Commissioner.) Had you voted before, at the election in 1863?—No; I had no vote then.

49,898. Was this your first vote?—No, I voted for Doulton.

49,899. For Mr. Doulton in 1858?—Yes.

49,900. Was that the only other election at which you voted?—Once for Mr. Wilkinson.

49,901. You do not know when that was, perhaps?—No, I do not.

49,902. How much did you get for voting for Mr. Doulton?—I really cannot tell you.

49,903. About?—I was paid weekly.

49,904. How much were you paid weekly?—I believe 35*s.*

49,905. Can you tell about how many weeks, about how much it came to?—About three weeks, I think, very handy to that; it is a long time, I almost forget it.

49,906. You say you voted for Mr. Wilkinson; do you know which election that was?—That was the time before this last election, when Mr. Wilkinson put up.

49,907. When Mr. Gower and Mr. Wilkinson were candidates?—Yes.

49,908. What did you do for Mr. Doulton? Did you do anything besides voting for him?—Yes; I was employed.

49,909. To do what?—To walk about and see; to get people on that side.

49,910. You got 35*s.* a week, you know?—I was to get all the voters I could for him.

49,911. Did you get any voters for him?—Yes; I gained three or four, I believe.

49,912. Three or four that you really got for him?—Yes.

49,913. Then you can tell us who they were?—I cannot; it is so long ago I cannot recollect.

49,914. If you got three or four you can recollect one of them?—No, I cannot now.

49,915. Are they all dead?—I do not know that they are, and I do not know that they are not.

49,916. You can tell us one of them?—I really cannot.

49,917. Tell me what you got for Mr. Wilkinson's election; that was in 1863 that you voted for Mr. Wilkinson?—Yes.

49,918. What did you get for that?—1*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*

49,919. I do not understand that; how do you explain it; it is a very odd sum?—I had 2*s.* 6*d.* from Bonny, and Mr. Holden, the schoolmaster, of Redhill, gave me a sovereign.

49,920. Did Mr. Holden tell you anything about the sovereign when he paid you?—No.

49,921. Did he tell you where he got it from?—I believe it came from Mr. Wilkinson.

49,922. Who gave you the 35*s.* a week at Mr. Doulton's election?—I cannot tell the gentleman's name now.

49,923. Was it Truman?—Yes, Truman, that is right.

JOHN ASHDOWN sworn and examined.

J. Ashdown.

49,924. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Were you a voter at the last election?—Yes.

49,925. What rent did you pay?—6*s.* 6*d.* a week.

49,926. For whom did you vote?—Mr. Monson.

49,927. Were you employed upon the election at all?—No.

49,928. What are you?—A bailiff.

49,929. A farm bailiff?—Yes, at Chaldon.

49,930. Is that in the borough?—No.

49,931. How far is it from the borough?—Seven miles.

49,932. You were living seven miles away?—Yes.

49,933. Somebody asked you to come and vote, I suppose?—Yes, Mr. Woodhouse.

49,934. When did he ask you to come?—I know it was haying time, about June.

49,935. That would be early in June?—Yes, it was early in June.

49,936. Was Mr. Woodhouse the only person who found you out?—One of Mr. Gower's men came over first to see me, James Dormer, that was.

49,937. He came to you from Mr. Gower?—Yes.

49,938. And Woodhouse from Mr. Monson?—Yes.

49,939. And eventually you voted for Mr. Monson?—Yes.

49,940. We will take Woodhouse first, as you voted for Mr. Monson; did he hold out any inducement to you to go and vote for Mr. Monson?—No, not at all.

49,941. How did he canvass you?—He came and asked me if I would vote for Mr. Monson; I told him I should not vote for Mr. Gower. So I agreed to vote for Mr. Monson; at least, I said I would if they would pay my expenses, as it was so far off.

49,942. What did Mr. Woodhouse say to that?—I do not know that he said anything.

49,943. Did he say he would do so?—He did not say he would or would not, not at that time.

49,944. Then you voted? Were you seen by Woodhouse, or by anybody else on the part of Mr. Monson, before you did vote, after Woodhouse saw you at the haying time?—Yes; I came over here one evening.

49,945. How long before the election?—A week or ten days, I think.

49,946. Where did you go to?—Down to the "Grapes."

49,947. What took place at the "Grapes" about your vote?—Nothing more than that we had two glasses of grog; I paid for one, and he paid for one.

49,948. Who did?—Woodhouse.

49,949. Then you saw Woodhouse there?—Yes.

49,950. Did you see Nichols there?—I do not know Nichols.

49,951. The landlord?—I know him by sight, that is all.

49,952. Did you speak to anybody but Woodhouse at the "Grapes"?—Not that I know of.

49,953. Was anything arranged between you and Woodhouse about your coming over and voting?—No.

49,954. As to your expenses?—No, nothing.

49,955. Who paid your expenses for coming over to the "Grapes" on that occasion?—Nobody. I

THIRTY-FOURTH DAY.

J. Ashdown.

9 Oct. 1866.

drove myself over in a light cart, the same as I came to-day.

49,956. Were you paid anything after that election?—Yes, I received 1*l.* for my expenses.

49,957. Who paid you?—Mr. Woodhouse.

49,958. Which Mr. Woodhouse? What is his Christian name?—I do not know.

49,959. Where does he live?—In Nutley-lane. I had three journeys over here.

49,960. One was to have a glass of grog with Woodhouse at the "Grapes"?—Yes.

49,961. You did not mind that journey?—No.

49,962. When was it, in the evening?—Yes.

49,963. After you had done your bailiff work?—Yes.

49,964. Was it your own horse and cart?—No; the master's.

49,965. Did you have leave from the master to drive over?—Yes.

49,966. Dormer asked you to vote for Mr. Gower?—Yes.

49,967. Did he offer you anything?—He told me if I voted for Mr. Gower I should not stop at 1*l.*, nor yet at 2*l.* That is pretty nearly all the conversation he and I had.

49,968. Had you asked him about your expenses before?—No, that is the only time I saw him.

49,969. Had you told him that you had made up your mind how you should vote?—No; he asked me if he should put my name down on the list, and I said, "No."

49,970. On the committee list?—No.

49,971. On the list of promises?—Yes.

49,972. Can you tell me when it was that Dormer called upon you; how long before Woodhouse called?—I do not know, it might be a fortnight before; I cannot say to a few days.

49,973. Was that all the money you received?—Yes.

49,974. Had you voted in 1863?—No.

49,975. Had you voted before?—No.

49,976. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) How did you come over to vote on the day of election, did you walk?—In my master's light cart.

49,977. You paid nothing for it?—No.

49,978. He gave you permission to come?—Yes.

49,979. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You were paid weekly wages?—Yes.

49,980. You had your usual weekly wages from your master?—Yes.

49,981. Therefore there was no loss of time on your part?—No.

49,982. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you receive any beer or refreshment?—No, I did not.

49,983. You did not wait to get refreshment?—No; I think I was the first that voted for Mr. Monson.

49,984. Then you drove off immediately?—I got off in the cart at once, as we were busy hay-carting.

49,985. You say you received money after the election; was it on the day after you had voted, or some days after?—Some days after.

49,986. Did you receive it in Reigate?—Yes.

49,987. Did you come over for it?—Yes.

49,988. How did you know you were going to receive money, except from what Woodhouse had told you?—I came to see what they were going to have; there was nothing said what I was to have, and no one promised me what I was to have.

49,989. But having voted you came to see what you would get, and you got 1*l.*?—Yes.

G. Goodchild.

GEORGE GOODCHILD sworn and examined.

49,990. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What business do you carry on?—I am chief clerk to Mr. Carruthers, the builder.

49,991. Did you vote at the last election?—Yes.

49,992. For Mr. Monson?—No, for Mr. Gower.

49,993. What rent do you pay?—I occupy a house conjointly with my father; it is rated at 20*l.*

49,994. You and your father occupy the same house?—Yes; the lease is made out in our joint names.

49,995. The house is on lease?—Yes.

49,996. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) It is worth more than 20*l.*?—Yes.

49,997. You do the repairs?—Yes. At another assessment we shall probably be put up.

49,998. Let to a yearly tenant without a lease it would probably be worth 30*l.*?—Perhaps it would; it is very old.

49,999. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did many of Mr. Carruthers' men vote for Mr. Gower?—There were several.

50,000. And several received money?—Yes, I am sorry to say they did.

50,001. And some voted for Mr. Monson?—Yes.

50,002. You voted for Mr. Gower?—Certainly.

50,003. Did you canvass the men in the yard?—I did not canvass any one; I should not like to do it, I think it is a very wrong thing to do.

50,004. Perhaps you spoke to them, if you did not canvass them?—No; the utmost that passed between me and the men was in joke, if anything was said as I passed through the shops. I certainly never did the least thing to influence the men.

50,005. Do you recollect what the joke was? "How much will you have?" or anything of that kind?—No; I never said anything about money.

50,006. What was the joke?—The only joke in reference to money was at the last election but one, Mr. Wilkinson's election. One of the men said they had had so much money given by Mr. Gower's party, and I think I said, "I suppose if Mr. Wilkinson came and offered a little more, you would go over to him."

50,007. Did you vote at that election in 1863 for Mr. Gower?—No, I was not qualified then.

50,008. Did you at all exert yourself for Mr. Gower?—Yes; I attended the committees and so on, and I did all I could in the way of setting an example, but I did not canvass or persuade the men.

50,009. You attended the committee meetings?—Yes, pretty regularly.

50,010. And took an active part in aiding the election?—Yes, as far as I could, except canvassing.

50,011. Did you lose any of your time at all?—I think about a day, or a little more.

50,012. What were you paid for that?—Nothing.

50,013. Nothing?—No; I paid it out of my own pocket; that is, I had it stopped in my wages.

50,014. Stopped by Mr. Carruthers?—I stopped it myself; I paid myself.

50,015. You received no compensation for that?—Nothing whatever.

50,016. No monies of any kind?—No.

50,017. Did any monies pass through your hands?—No, I did not receive a sixpence.

50,018. Did any monies pass through your hands to give to the men?—Nothing in any shape; in fact, if I had known that so much money was passing I should not have voted at all. I have a very strong feeling about elections.

I. Short.

ISAAC SHORT sworn and examined.

50,019. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you?—Agent for Pickford & Co.

50,020. What do you pay for your house?—6*s.* a week.

50,021. At the last election who did you vote for?—Mr. Gower.

50,022. Who canvassed you for Mr. Gower?—No one particularly.

50,023. Who asked you to vote for him?—Mr. Green, the builder.

50,024. And you promised Mr. Green that you would?—No.

50,025. Did you make some arrangement with Mr. Green ?—No, I did not ; not particular.

50,026. Not any arrangement at all ?—When he asked me I told him I should not vote against him if I did not vote for him.

50,027. What did Mr. Green say to that ?—He said, " That will do."

50,028. And you did vote for him ?—Yes.

50,029. Did he put you on Mr. Gower's committee ?—No.

50,030. Did you do anything at all for Mr. Gower ?—No.

50,031. Before the election ?—No.

50,032. Before the election did you go to Mr. Green and see him again ?—No.

50,033. Did you receive anything from Mr. Green before the election ?—No.

50,034. Nothing at all ?—No.

50,035. No money, I mean ?—No.

50,036. Did you see him after the election ?—I have seen him many times.

50,037. About the election ?—No.

50,038. Did you receive anything from Mr. Green after the election ?—No.

50,039. Did you from anybody ?—Not a farthing.

50,040. You never have ?—No.

50,041. Did you lose your time at all ?—Mr. Green told me I should be paid for the polling day if I liked to go and vote for them.

50,042. That is the question I asked you before ?—I never received anything.

50,043. What did you say to Mr. Green ?—I said, " It depends upon how my work runs, whether I vote " or not."

50,044. And you did go and vote ?—Yes.

50,045. At Redhill ?—Yes.

50,046. Then you considered that Mr. Green owed you something ?—I expected that he would give me a trifle.

50,047. Did you vote for Mr. Gower because you thought Mr. Green would make up for your loss of time ?—No, nothing particular about that. He spoke to me on the polling morning about five minutes before eight.

50,048. If you expected that he would give you something for loss of time did you never ask him afterwards ?—I never asked him.

50,049. And he never offered it to you ?—No.

50,050. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What did he say you were to have ?—He did not say I was to have any money. He said I was to have something for coming.

50,051. For loss of time ?—No.

50,052. Did you not know what they were getting ?—No. I did not get anything myself.

50,053. Did you hear what they were getting ?—I heard that some had money.

50,054. (The Chief Commissioner.) What did you expect ?—Just a trifle.

50,055. I only want you to tell us ?—Something like 5*s.* or 10*s.*; that is what I expected of him.

50,056. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) The ordinary pay for a working day ?—Yes, that is all ; I did not expect more than that; he never spoke to me about it.

50,057. 5*s.* or 10*s.* ?—I would have taken anything in a fair way ; I would not have taken over a pound.

50,058. If you had been offered 5*s.* you would not have refused it ?—No.

50,059. You were willing to receive anything between 5*s.* and 1*l.* ?—I was willing to receive something. I did not receive a farthing, and I did not ask for it.

50,060. What you mean to say is, that you would not have taken 5*l.*, but you would not have received 1*l.* ?—No, I should have taken that if they had offered it to me.

50,061. Then your price was between 5*s.* and 1*l.* ?—I expected something of that kind.

JOHN WILLIAM TRUMAN sworn and examined.

J. W. Truman.

50,062. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) What business do you follow ?—I am a brick manufacturer and a tavern keeper.

50,063. Where do you carry on your business ?—At 13, Carnaby-street, Golden-square.

50,064. What business ?—The tavern.

50,065. Where do you carry on the brickmaking ?—Occasionally on lines of railway.

50,066. You take contracts ?—Yes ; I do not happen to have one now, but that is my profession.

50,067. Contracts in brickmaking ?—Yes.

50,068. Wherever you find the land which will form the bricks, there you go ?—Wherever an opportunity occurs, so that I can make something worth my while.

50,069. Do you recollect the election of 1858 for this borough ?—I have some recollection.

50,070. I hope more than " some " ?—It is eight years ago.

50,071. I hope your recollection will improve as we go on. You had been introduced to Mr. Doulton at that time, I believe ?—Some time before.

50,072. Was that the first occasion in which you had taken any part in the money matters of an election ?—No.

50,073. Where had you gained your experience in the money matters of election ?—In the Lambeth election of 1857.

50,074. Who were the candidates then ? — Mr. Wilkinson, Mr. William Williams, and Mr. Roupell.

50,075. And you carried the election by a tremendous majority ?—No doubt of it.

50,076. And after that I suppose you were recommended by Mr. Roupell to Mr. Doulton ?—I recommended myself.

50,077. You applied ?—I did.

50,078. And you referred to your services in Mr. Roupell's behalf as evidence of your efficiency ?—Certainly.

50,079. Had you had any experience in the financial department of elections before 1857 ?—I do not think I had, not materially.

50,080. Then, knowing that there was a contested election in 1858, you came down to appear as the financial man on behalf of Mr. Doulton ?—Not in the first instance.

50,081. You came down first to feel your way, I suppose ?—Yes, no doubt about that; but I did not receive my appointment on starting.

50,082. Having felt your way and received your appointment, you came here as the financial man ?—They considered that I should be useful in that position.

50,083. Don't let us beat about the bush. You came down as the financial man to conduct the financial department of the election ?—No, I was not appointed in the first instance. I did not come down with that view.

50,084. When were you appointed ?—Afterwards.

50,085. When ?—About a week after I came down.

50,086. How long before the polling day were you appointed the financial man ?—I suppose about four or five weeks.

50,087. For five weeks you stepped, as it were, into the financial chair for the purpose of conducting the election. Who were with you then ?—It was arranged that I should be the agent for election expenses, and that Mr. Richard Barton should act as legal adviser to Mr. Doulton, and that I should sign cheques, or that Mr. Barton should sign cheques. I hardly recollect the order, but at all events one signed the cheques, and the other countersigned them.

50,088. Then we will take it as five weeks before the polling day ?—It might be.

50,089. You were the expenses agent under the Act of Parliament ?—The acknowledged expenses agent.

50,090. So that when the expenses went in you signed them ?—I believe I did.

50,091. We understand that Mr. Doulton was a candidate; was Mr. Wilkinson a candidate?—Yes, he was.

50,092. And Mr. Walters?—Yes.

50,093. And who else? Sir Henry Rawlinson?—Yes.

50,094. And I believe Mr. Doulton, for whom you appeared, was the only man out of these who went to the poll as against Sir Henry Rawlinson?—Mr. Monson did; Mr. Monson, Mr. Doulton, and Sir Henry Rawlinson.

50,095. Being the financial agent, have you any account, made at the time, of the monies that were expended at the election?—I have none.

50,096. Have you ever had any?—I had at the time, but I handed them over to Mr. Doulton.

50,097. Can you give me, as far as your memory will serve you, the amount of the expenses that were submitted to the election auditor, as he was then called?—You will admit it was some years ago, so that I must give it from the best of my recollection. I never expected to be called upon to give an account of this after the lapse of so long a time. To the best of my recollection I think up to the day of nomination it was between 500*l.* and 600*l.*

50,098. What I asked was, how much was submitted to the auditor for his audit, the entire expenses?—I think, as far as I can recollect, under 1,000*l.*; it was 900*l.* odd; it is impossible to say exactly, I have no account.

50,099. How much money, do you recollect, was paid afterwards by Mr. Doulton through you?—I really cannot recollect the sum.

50,100. A considerable sum?—No. I should think from first to last ——; it would have been a considerable sum if we had paid all demands.

50,101. I am speaking of what you did pay?—I think from 1,300*l.* to 1,400*l.*; about 1,350*l.* perhaps. That included personal expenses, hotel expenses of Mr. Doulton, myself, Mr. Barton, and the other agent.

50,102. The amount of money that you yourself received as your fee is not included?—My fee was a mere nominal fee; it is all included.

50,103. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Then if it was a mere nominal fee you may as well say what it was?—Well, I always said I never had a pipe of tobacco out of it, and I believe it is a fact. I may have had five or ten guineas as a sort of compliment. I did not come down with that view. I knew Mr. Doulton very well, and felt an interest in him; as long as my personal expenses were paid ——. I might have had a 10*l.* note, I do not recollect that I had.

50,104. (Mr. Commisioner O'Brien.) Then we may say that your own personal expenses, and no more, would be included in that amount?—I might have had a little complimentary amount.

50,105. You mean you had no specified fee?—I almost forget whether Mr. Doulton made me a present of a few pounds; at all events, that was no consideration to me.

50,106. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) It probably did not go into the account, as you were not a voter?—I should think it did, any personal amount to me.

50,107. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I mean those monies paid for election expenses; you would hardly consider that a present to you would be included in that. Did you work for Mr. Roupell upon the same terms?—I did.

50,108. You were an entire stranger to the borough?—Quite.

50,109. When you came down in the first instance, before you assumed the financial management, will you tell me what meetings you attended; what meetings were called to feel the pulse of the electors?—I really cannot recollect.

50,110. Some meetings were called?—Of course. There were several meetings in this place.

50,111. And some private meetings, to which the heads of parties, men like Mr. Job Apted and others, were invited?—Would you classify them? Do you mean meetings at the houses of private friends?

50,112. Half committee meetings, composed of some of the leading men in the borough; do you recollect any meetings of that kind?—I hardly understand you. If you will simplify it to me I shall be happy to answer your question.

50,113. Do you recollect a meeting with Mr. Nichols and others, when you said you had had great experience in election matters, that you knew how to carry an election, and that they knew nothing about it?—I do not recollect saying those words. No doubt I told Nichols that I was as good a man as he.

50,114. And that he knew nothing about it?—Well, I thought I was a better man than he.

50,115. And that you would carry the election?—Well, I hope you won't take that, that you will not include that in the document here, because I do not recollect saying those words.

50,116. You do not deny it?—If you like to put it down you can. I do not acknowledge it. I do not recollect those words. There is no doubt I told Nichols that I was quite as good a man at an election as he.

50,117. As good a man in knowing how to expend money?—No, I did not say that.

50,118. Then what did you mean?—In conducting an election.

50,119. What did you mean by conducting an election otherwise than by a careful and judicious employment of money?—By organizing a staff and carrying on the election in a proper manner.

50,120. Employing men?—Employing canvassers.

50,121. Did you employ all the men who were employed at that election?—No, I did not employ any.

50,122. Then that was not what you meant?—It does not matter what I told him.

50,123. You had better attend to the questions. That is not what you meant. You could not mean that you were better than Nichols in organizing and employing men if you did not devote your attention to that. I ask you again, did you not mean by that that you knew better how to expend money judiciously and with proper effect?—No, I did not mean so.

50,124. Then what did you mean?—That by carrying on the election in a proper manner we should secure a return if possible.

50,125. You did not employ the men?—I did not.

50,126. What did you do?—I merely submitted them to Mr. Doulton.

50,127. Submitted what?—Whoever was employed.

50,128. You sent out and collected a number of suitable men to be employed, and submitted them to Mr. Doulton; is that what you did?—I beg your pardon; they applied to me.

50,129. They came to you, and you selected them?—Those that I thought the best suited.

50,130. Of course when they applied to you you looked at the register. You had, I suppose, the register before you as one of the first things?—Yes, no doubt.

50,131. And the moment they applied to you you, as a skilful man, looked at the register?—I never looked at it at all in that case.

50,132. You had the register by you?—I never took that as a rule. We had a register in the room. I never carried it with me.

50,133. You were not walking about; you had an office. Had you a register of voters in your office?—I had no office.

50,134. You had a room?—We had several rooms.

50,135. Where?—We had a committee room at the "White Hart."

50,136. Where were your head-quarters?—I do not know of any at all. We went about from one room to another.

50,137. Where did you stay chiefly?—At Mr. Boult's private room.

50,138. You did not see any persons there?—No.

50,139. Where were you in the habit of seeing persons when they applied for employment?—Sometimes at the "White Hart," and sometimes at Barefoot's at Redhill.

50,140. What was Barefoot's?—A tavern; I forget the name; the "Royal Oak."

50,141. The "White Hart" and the "Royal "Oak;" you were there when persons came and asked for employment. Did you know that most of the men who were employed were voters?—I never inquired.

50,142. Did you know that most of the men that were being employed were voters?—I did not know it. I found out afterwards that some of them were.

50,143. I say most of them, and I say it advisedly?—I cannot say that.

50,144. How many men had you employed?—It is impossible for me to tell.

50,145. Just recollect?—I cannot tell you, I cannot charge my memory; it is eight years ago.

50,146. About how many?—It is impossible for me to say.

50,147. You have not been an election agent since, have you?—Yes, every time.

50,148. Where?—For Alderman Lawrence at the Lambeth election, for Mr. Roupell at the 1859 election, and for Mr. Doulton in the 1863 election.

50,149. Filling the same position?—Not as financial agent; simply as working agent.

50,150. Were you not aware then (I ask you advisedly) that men were employed who were electors?—I know that some were.

50,151. A considerable number?—I cannot say that.

50,152. Were you not aware that more than one elector was employed to carry boards about on their backs?—I really do not recollect whether they were boardsmen or whether they were canvassers or messengers that were electors.

50,153. Are you not aware that men were employed as electors carrying boards?—I am not aware.

50,154. You were not aware?—I do not recollect that they were. They might have been some of them electors, but it is impossible for me to say.

50,155. Did you pay wages every week?—I did.

50,156. On a Friday?—That I cannot recollect; it may have been on a Friday.

50,157. Can you tell me what was the weekly expenditure?—It is impossible.

50,158. About?—It is impossible; I cannot say.

50,159. About?—No, nor about. I will give you the total as near as I can recollect, the total cost of the election; but to give the weekly statement, you might as well ask me to jump over the moon.

50,160. Have you no recollection of what you paid weekly to the men?—No.

50,161. I understand that Mr. Doulton engaged no man except you submitted his name, or sent him to him?—I will not be positive about that. He employed some that I submitted to him, but I fancy he employed some without my sanction or knowledge.

50,162. Whom did he employ?—I cannot tell. Most of them are dead. As to knowing whether they were electors, it is impossible for me to tell you. It is eight years since, and I cannot tax my memory.

50,163. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I dare say you have had time to think of these things?—My time is occupied in getting on in this world, and as to an election eight years ago, it would not come into my mind. I have got to get on in the world, and therefore it won't do to be looking back to what took place eight years ago.

50,164. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) We want you to throw some light on the election, not about your getting on in the world?—I will answer any questions, anything straightforward, but you must not expect me to answer things that I cannot recollect.

50,165. If you would not make a speech we should get on much better?—I do not want to make speeches.

50,166. To your knowledge did Mr. Doulton employ any men except those whose names you submitted to him?—I cannot tell. I have no doubt. I was not down here till some little time, perhaps a week, as I stated. There were some little inquiries and some little arrangements made. I was not the first person down here, and I think if I recollect right——

50,167. Who were the others?—Mr. Doulton, Mr. Featherstone, and Mr. Boult, previous to my coming here.

50,168. Who were your principal sub-agents?—Mr. Featherstone was one.

50,169. Who else?—Mr. Boult.

50,170. Who else?—Well, Mr. James Apted. I really cannot think any more.

50,171. Mr. Barber?—Mr. Barker.

50,172. Who else?—Well, I cannot recollect; but if you do as you did just now I might.

50,173. That is to say, if I know you will know too?—Yes.

50,174. If I can tell you you can tell me?—What I know I know, but I do not know anything else.

50,175. Can you tell us any other names?—I know of no other name, unless you can assist my memory. If you can remind me of them——

50,176. What were their fees, do you recollect? Did you arrange with them?—I read in the newspapers what Barker stated about his fee.

50,177. I am not asking you about Barker. Did you arrange with Featherstone about his fee?—I do not know; I think Mr. Doulton arranged.

50,178. What fee did he receive?—I do not recollect him having any fee.

50,179. He was like yourself then?—I think he had his expenses.

50,180. He was a volunteer?—I think so.

50,181. Now, as to Mr. Boult?—I do not think he had any fee.

50,182. He was a volunteer?—I think he was.

50,183. Mr. James Apted?—I think he received something.

50,184. How much?—I cannot recollect; I have no accounts. I know it was not a very extravagant affair, because I reckoned James Apted was about as good a man as we had to deal with. He was very earnest in the cause, and I don't think he had an extravagant sum.

50,185. What do you mean by saying he was as good a man as you had to deal with; do you mean that he worked cheap?—He had nothing extravagant.

50,186. Did you find many others?—No, I cannot recollect them. Some of them are dead.

50,187. Can you recollect any?—There was Barker.

50,188. Never mind Barker; can you give me the name of any other man?—I cannot recollect them now, but I know there were some.

50,189. Besides Barker, can you give me the names of any sub-agents and the amounts you paid them?—No, I cannot.

50,190. Your mind is a complete blank on the subject?—I do not recollect one word about the amount of the fees paid; I cannot recollect one word. Of course, you know, it is eight years ago, and that is a good time for me to recollect. I was a smart chap eight years ago. Now I am getting old, you know, and my memory is not quite so good.

50,191. You are bound to disclose what you know, and you say your memory is very bad?—I am not only bound to disclose it because you tell me so, but because I know I have a right to do so.

50,192. Now, of all the monies that have passed through your hands, you cannot give me the name of any one man who has acted as sub-agent and received money from you?—I can, but you would not allow me to do so just now.

50,193. Who?—Barker.

50,194. We know all about Barker; but apart from Barker, of whom we have had evidence, do you know of any other man?—I do not.

50,195. Not as canvasser?—No.

50,196. Nor as sub-agent?—No.

THIRTY-FOURTH DAY.

W. Truman.

9 Oct. 1866.

50,197. Nor as boardsman ?—No.

50,198. Nor as bill sticker ?—No.

50,199. Nor in any other capacity ?—No, I cannot recollect.

50,200. If you cannot recollect the name of any man, do you know the amount you paid, the specific amount ?—I say no.

50,201. You say no ?—I do say no.

50,202. Now tell me, when men came to be paid were you there ? Did the money pass through your hands to the different men ?—It did.

50,203. When any man came to be paid; for example, take the case of a man who had been carrying a board about, he would represent what he had been doing ?—Yes, how many days.

50,204. Do you recollect any one that you paid weekly wages to ?—I know what they had per day.

50,205. How much ?—When they were lads they had not quite so much as men, but if they were men they had half-a-crown a day.

50,206. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Is that for the boards ?—Yes, that is to the best of my recollection.

53,207. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I am afraid your memory is not good as to that. Half-a-crown a day is not a large sum ?—They might have had 3*s.* 6*d.*

50,208. I ask you, can you pledge your oath that any voter was employed at 2*s.* 6*d.* a day ?—I beg your pardon.

50,209. Can you pledge your oath that any voter was employed at 2*s.* 6*d.* a day ?—I do not know that any voters were employed. I do not say they were voters who carried boards.

50,210. Can you pledge your oath that any voter in any capacity was paid 2*s.* 6*d.* a day. It won't do, you know ?—I do not quite understand you.

50,211. I asked what was the money the men were paid daily. You say 3*s.* 6*d.* ?—I did not say they were voters.

50,212. What were the voters paid ?—There was no difference; they were all paid alike, if they were voters.

50,213. If they were all paid alike, tell me entirely what they were paid; tell me how much ?—Some of them had half-a-crown, and I know at most they never had more than 3*s.* 6*d.* a day, but I do not think it was more than half-a-crown. At all events, it was not more than 3*s.* 6*d.* a day.

50,214. We have had numbers who have been examined here who stated that they were paid 5*s.* and 7*s.* a day. Do you mean to say that your tariff was not above 3*s.* 6*d.* a day ?—Yes, to the best of my recollection.

50,215. You are only speaking to the best of your recollection ?—I believe I am right, but I should not like to be bound by it.

50,216. You arranged with them, you know ?—They did not like my arrangements, because I was very close with them.

50,217. Did you arrange with them ?—No doubt I did.

50,218. You say they were paid from 2*s.* 6*d.* to 3*s.* 6*d.* a day; is that so ?—I believe it was so, to the best of my recollection.

50,219. We had some men receiving 1*l.* 15*s.* a week for seven weeks from your hands; they said so. However, they may be wrong ?—We are not bound to believe what we hear, sir.

50,220. Now, can you tell me the number of men you employed at 3*s.* 6*d.* a day ?—That is impossible; I cannot recollect it.

50,221. Did you pay all the money yourself; was it paid through your own hands ?—I paid it, but there were others with me at the table.

50,222. Who were they ?—Mr. Barker. I do not say he was always there.

50,223. Who else ? — If I recollect right, Mr. Murphy occasionally was with me.

50,224. And saw the money pass ?—I should not like to swear that he saw the money pass.

50,225. Did either of those gentlemen, Mr. Murphy or Mr. Barker, ever pay any money themselves ?—Not to my knowledge.

50,226. All the money passed through your hands ?—Yes, I think it did.

50,227. Did those who were employed bring you in weekly bills ?—Well, if they did not bring in weekly bills they had to sign a document.

50,228. I suppose you had the names of all the men down, and the week, and when you paid them they put their signature to the 1*l.* 15*s.* at the bottom ?—Not exactly.

50,229. What then ?—If they had a little account (some of them would bring a little account), I simply made out a bit of receipt, and they signed it. I never paid any money to any one without taking a receipt for it.

50,230. And that receipt you copied into a book, I suppose ?—I have no doubt if I did not do that I kept a statement on paper, and it was handed to the election auditor.

50,231. You copied it into a book, and that book you sent, I suppose, to Mr. Doulton ?—Mr. Doulton had it; that is to say, the auditor had it, and I expect the auditor returned it to him. At all events, the anditor had it.

50,232. Had not you submitted it to Mr. Doulton before you sent it to the auditor ?—Mr. Doulton had everything.

50,233. But no money passed through his hands ?—No, no money passed through his hands.

50,234. Now, what is the largest amount of weekly wages that you paid ?—I am sure I cannot say. I should be very happy to do it if I could, but I cannot.

50,235. I have mentioned to you that several men stated that at that time you were paying them 1*l.* 15*s.* You had better be cautious, you know. Thorpe says that he had been employed for seven weeks at Doulton's election, that he had received about 14*l.*, and he was a teetotaler then. Several men mentioned that they had received 5*s.*, others 7*s.*, and some more ?—How many weeks, may I ask ?

50,236. Thorpe said seven weeks ? — And how much money did he say he got ?

50,237. He says he received 14*l.* ?—That would be 2*l.* per week, would it not ?

50,238. Yes.—But then he was not a board carrier.

50,239. I am not confining my questions to board carriers. Pray don't parry the question. Do you mean that, of all the men you employed to aid Mr. Doulton in the election, none of them received more than 3*s.* 6*d.* a day ?—I do not say that. I am speaking of board carriers. Put your questions as you like, I will answer them properly.

50,240. Putting aside board carriers (I did not ask you a question about board carriers for the last 20 minutes) I ask, what was the largest sum you paid to men employed in the election ?—I told you very respectfully that I could not recollect.

50,241. You told me that you did not pay them more than 3*s.* 6*d.* a day ?—I am speaking of board carriers.

50,242. What was the amount you paid to others ?—I do not recollect. I was speaking of board carriers at 3*s.* 6*d.* The question you put to me was what I paid to board carriers.

50,243. I will waive that ?—I am bound to bow to you.

50,244. I will waive that. I ask you, apart from board carriers you engaged other men, what did you engage them for ? How much a day ?—What class of men are you alluding to now ?

50,245. Name any class; canvassers ? — Well, I cannot recollect exactly the rate they received, the wages.

50,246. You need not say exactly, but tell us about how much ?—Some of them 7*s.* 6*d.* a day. It all depended upon——

50,247. What other class had you ?—We had messengers.

50,248. What were the messengers paid ?—I forget. I know some of them had 5*s.* a day.

50,249. In what other capacity were men employed? —We had door keepers.

50,250. What did the door keepers get?—Well, I don't know. That is rather a menial appointment, and I cannot recollect. They had not a great deal.

50,251. Had you any voters as door keepers?—It is impossible to recollect.

50,252. Was there a single canvasser employed that was not a voter?—That I cannot answer. I should be very sorry to say there were not some that were voters, but I cannot name them.

50,253. I ask you to name any one single canvasser employed that was not a voter?—Well, James Apted.

50,254. Was not James Apted a voter?—He was a voter.

50,255. I ask you to give me the name of any man employed as a canvasser who was not a voter.

(James Apted.) No, I was not a voter at that time.

(The Witness.) Then I cannot recollect. I thought James Apted was a voter. There is an answer to the question.

50,256. You cannot recollect any?—No, I cannot.

50,257. Who introduced the men to you to employ? Who brought them to you?—Well, one introduced the other. Perhaps Mr. Featherstone might have said, "There's a man who is a very respectable man, and "a very useful man;" Mr. Boult might have introduced one or two, and Apted.

50,258. What I am asking you is, who did introduce them, not who might?—I cannot tell. I believe those did; they would all, any one would.

50,259. Featherstone, Boult, and Apted? Any one else?—Well, I dare say they did; I dare say there were some others.

50,260. Who recommended Mr. Barker?—I think Mr. Doulton made his arrangements with him himself.

50,261. Did Mr. Barker introduce anybody to you? —There is no doubt of it.

50,262. Who?—I cannot recollect.

50,263. Your memory seems very bad?—I think perhaps after a lapse of eight years your memory would not serve you quite so well, if I am not out of order in saying so. It won't do, these young fellows here are putting down every word I say, and if I make a mistake I shall be all over London to-morrow morning. No, I shall tell you the truth, sir.

50,264. Can you give us the name of any one employed who was not a voter?—I thought that Apted was a voter, but you see I was wrong; and I might now tell you of other men who were employed, and say they were not voters, and they might be voters.

50,265. You do not recollect at all?—It is impossible. If I had had the papers, why then I should have been candid enough to show them, and you would have seen as well as me, but I have no papers, and can only tell you just what I recollect, and nothing more.

50,266. That is an unfortunate predicament to be in. There seems to be a great destruction of papers? —Documents are useful. I only wish I had kept some documents; not in this case, but others.

50,267. Will you tell me, with regard to the 400*l.* or 500*l.* expenses, how they were made up. Did you pay any canvassers after the election?—Well, the accounts were all sent in up to the election; that is to say, there was an account sent in to the auditor up to the nomination, and then after the nomination they were all sent in to the auditor, and I think they amounted to 950*l.* There were several sent in.

50,268. Sent in to you?—Yes.

50,269. By whom?—By Mr. Barker.

50,270. I wish you would leave Mr. Barker out of the question for the present. Anybody else?—There were several, but I cannot tell. There was the landlord of the "Warwick." He wanted to have rather a pull, if I may use the expression, out of Mr. Doulton.

50,271. What bill did he send in?—It was for a committee room. It was after the election. I do not say it was for anything done after the election. It was for a committee room, and he wanted to charge five or six tons of coals for firing.

50,272. What was the amount sent in?—I cannot recollect now; it was more than he got.

50,273. About how much?—It might have been five or ten pounds. That was for expenses.

50,274. What was he paid?—I do not know what he was paid, but there was a lopping off.

50,275. You know there was 400*l.* or 500*l.* paid after the election?—That I deny.

50,276. I understood you to say so?—I said 1,350*l.* altogether.

50,277. Paid after the election?—No, that was altogether; Mr. Doulton's personal expenses and mine.

50,278. Mr. Doulton did not include his personal expenses, did he?—Yes, I paid his bills for him. I paid all his bills for him.

50,279. Apart from Mr. Doulton's personal expenses, which you know are not included in the election account?—Well, we will drop that; the election account was about 950*l.*

50,280. 950*l.*?—I believe that was the amount of the expenses as sent in to the auditor.

50,281. Do you mean that there were no other expenses than those sent in to the auditor?—There might have been a few, but I think they were personal expenses.

50,282. Apart from personal expenses?—Then I do not recollect. I must stick to that. I do not recollect.

50,283. Mr. Truman, you know I have no mode of testing your memory?—Just so; and I have no disposition to say anything that is wrong.

50,284. Do you mean to say, that the money having passed through your hands, no money on account of the election was paid except that submitted to the auditor?—I do not recollect that there was.

50,285. Just think of the question for a moment? —Well, sir, the question was so simple; it does not want much consideration. I say that I do not recollect it.

50,286. Will you pledge your oath that you do not know?—I do not recollect.

50,287. Will you pledge your oath to this, that you do not know there were other monies paid on account of that election than those submitted to the auditor? —Not election expenses.

50,288. I say on account of the election?—Election expenses.

50,289. Apart from any personal expenses of Mr. Doulton?—No, I do not.

50,290. And did not these monies pass through your hands, or some of them?—What monies?

50,291. The monies apart from those submitted to the auditor, after the account was submitted to the auditor?—There were some monies passed through my hands.

50,292. After the account was submitted to the auditor?—Yes, but not election expenses.

50,293. For what?—Private expenses.

50,294. What?—Hotel expenses.

50,295. I am putting Mr. Doulton's hotel expenses out of the question. Did not other monies pass through your hands after the accounts had been submitted to the auditor?—I do not recollect any.

50,296. After you returned to town?—I do not recollect it.

50,297. Did you pay any money after you returned to town?—I do not recollect that I did.

50,298. Did you come down here again?—Several times.

50,299. I mean after the election?—Several times.

50,300. Did you come down to pay or settle any accounts?—I came down when I paid the personal expenses. I believe I came down to pay the personal

THIRTY-FOURTH DAY.

J. W Truman.

expenses; but I came down, separate from that altogether, to enjoy myself.

50,301. I ask you, did not you come down to settle accounts; to settle bills after the auditor had audited the expenses of the election?—Not for election expenses to my knowledge. I came down to settle some expenses. One has just occurred to my mind, and that was this: I lived at Mr. Bolt's, and took apartments. I had a bedroom there, and I came down to pay him a little account I owed him for my bedroom and other little things.

50,302. That would not require you to come down?—Well, I tell you, at the same time I came down for a day's shooting, so that I did not come down exactly to pay him, because I could have paid him at any time after that, but you asked me about what I did after the election.

50,303. Now, did you come down for the purpose of settling bills handed to you after the election?—Bills of that kind.

50,304. What kind?—I have stated personal expenses. I do not recollect any others.

50,305. Tell me any other expenses; personal expenses?—I think I paid Mr. Goldsmith at the "White Hart."

50,306. How much?—I cannot recollect. It might have been 20*l.*; it might have been a little more.

50,307. Might it have been 50*l.*?—I should not like to say it was. It might have been 50*l.*, and it might have been 30*l.*, but I do not recollect.

50,308. You have no recollection at all?—Not the least as to what the amount was. I know we paid something.

50,309. How long did you remain after the polling day?—I came down occasionally afterwards.

50,310. Did you remain here after the polling day to settle any accounts?—The polling day.

50,311. Yes?—I think I went up, not the same night, but the next day, because I had other business to attend to.

50,312. When did you come down again?—In a few days.

50,313. And you paid some expenses then?—Well, the expenses that I have just stated, no doubt.

50,314. You only paid Mr. Bolt and the account at the "White Hart"?—Well, there might have been something at the "Warwick Hotel," and Barefoot's. I paid an account there for expenses.

50,315. What was Barefoot's?—The "Royal Oak."

50,316. Had you paid all the canvassers up to that time?—I think they were paid the very night after the election; I think their accounts came in, and we paid them at that time, to the best of my belief.

50,317. The very night after the polling?—After the polling.

50,318. Who was there then; you and Mr. Doulton?—It is impossible for me to say; I know I was there.

50,319. And Mr. Murphy? Was Mr. Doulton himself there?—I could not tell you; I might believe he was there, but to tell you as a positive fact is impossible.

50,320. Where were you?—I think we paid at the "White Hart," in the front room.

50,321. It is not a matter of thinking, you know?—That was our committee room.

50,322. I mean, you must recollect that?—I believe we paid in the front room, where our committee room was.

50,323. You received the bills and paid them there?—Yes.

50,324. Did you pay the canvassers and the sub-agents?—Yes, whoever had just demands to make; but you may rely upon it that many of them made demands which they did not get quite satisfied?—I used my red ink pen rather freely.

50,325. Putting Mr. Barker out of the question, who made a demand?—I really cannot recollect.

50,326. What is the use of telling me that you paid money to men when you cannot tell me the name of any person?—I cannot now tell you the name of any. I have been trying to think, but I cannot.

50,327. What did they make demands for, do you recollect?—Oh, trifling expenses; treating, a little refreshment.

50,328. I suppose there was a little refreshment going on on your behalf?—We did not allow it.

50,329. We understand that you did not allow it?—I posted large notices, if you will allow me to say so, of very large type in the committee room, forbidding anything of the kind, and not only that, we placed an abstract of the Bribery Act which showed the penalties we were liable to, so that when they did apply for anything of the kind, I just put my finger up to the notice, and if that was not satisfactory I used to give them the book to read.

50,330. What book?—The abstract of the Act. In every committee room we had a notice.

50,331. This is a matter of notoriety. Do you mean to say there was not treating on a rather extensive scale on behalf of Mr. Doulton at that election?—I deny it totally.

50,332. You deny it?—Yes, as far as I am concerned.

50,333. Can you tell me what you paid at beer-houses then, and we shall know what value to put upon your evidence?—We never paid anything of the kind; that is where I used my red ink pen so freely; if they attempted to bring it in I put my pen across it.

50,334. Do you mean to say that you never paid any tavern bills?—What, for refreshment to electors?

50,335. Yes?—Not the least; not a farthing.

50,336. I ask you a simple question; do you mean that you never paid a tavern bill, or an hotel bill, or a public-house bill for refreshment given to voters?—For beer given to voters; certainly not.

50,337. I said for refreshment given to persons upon the election?—Certainly not.

50,338. You mean to adhere to that?—I mean to say that I never gave them anything in the shape of ——

50,339. Did you pay, or, to your knowledge, was anything paid for refreshment given to voters or to persons acting on behalf of Mr. Doulton?—Not to my solemn recollection.

50,340. Did you see the public houses open on behalf of Mr. Doulton?—We had committee rooms at them.

50,341. How many public houses had you?—I cannot say; one or two, three or four, perhaps.

50,342. How many at Redhill?—I do not think we had more than one or two.

50,343. Whoever paid, you paid?—I paid them.

50,344. How many altogether had you at Redhill?—I do not remember more than two; that was one at the "Royal Oak" and I think the "Warwick Arms."

50,345. Are you at all certain that there were no more than two at Redhill?—I only recollect those two.

50,346. How many here at Reigate?—Well we had the "White Hart;" but we would have had more, but they forestalled us for Sir Henry Rawlinson.

50,347. How many had you?—We only had the "White Hart" here. I think not; I think Bonny's and I think Blakiston's were occupied by the other parties, and I do not think we had more than one.

50,348. Seriously speaking, do you mean to tell us there were only three public houses engaged on behalf of Mr. Doulton at that election?—I do not say that; but you asked with regard to Reigate or Redhill.

50,349. Anywhere else?—I think there was one near the common.

50,350. It is your recollection that there were four?—There was a man of the name of Peacock, perhaps some of the inhabitants could inform you what he is; he kept a house in same back street; that is all I recollect.

50,351. That is five?—We might have had one or two more, but I cannot recollect; I tell you all I know.

50,352. I would rather you recollect?—Well, I should like to recollect, because if I could recollect these things perhaps I could get away quicker, but I cannot. I should be happy to give you any information.

50,353. You have seen the account stating that the public houses were extensively opened on behalf of Mr. Doulton?—I have seen it, but I did not not believe it.

50,354. You did not believe it?—Not to the extent it was stated.

53,355. What you state is in a very mild manner indeed; how much did you expend for refreshments?—None at all; not in the way you put it.

50,356. In refreshments of any kind?—None at all; we always set our faces against it.

50,357. Do you mean to say that except Mr. Doulton's expenses, and your expenses, and Mr. Murphy's expenses, there were no expenses paid at all?—Not at all in that shape.

50,358. In what shape, then?—Why canvassers, as I have told you.

50,359. I mean you paid for no refreshment at all?—Not the least.

50,360. Not a sixpence?—Not a sixpence.

50,361. Now let me understand you, because, Mr. Truman, you really must pardon me, but it does surprise me. Do you mean there, in that box, to say that not a sixpence was expended on behalf of Mr. Doulton for refreshments at the election of 1858, except for himself, for you, for the solicitor, and for Mr. Murphy?—Yes, that is my firm belief to the best of my recollection, and I believe that you may take it for granted that it is truth which I tell you, that there was not a penny; and, at all events, if there was anything paid it was not at my instigation, and if I had known of such a thing I should have condemned it.

50,362. At whose instigation could it be?—Some one might have been patriotic enough to have treated some of those who were about.

50,363. On behalf of Mr. Doulton?—On behalf of themselves.

50,364. They might have been patriotic on behalf of Mr. Doulton?—I do not know that that was the fact though.

50,365. If there was any?—If there was any, it was not by the knowledge of Mr. Doulton or his agents.

50,366. It was not to the knowledge of Mr. Doulton or any of his agents that any public house was open at all?—For treating; that is the question?

50,367. Yes?—No.

50,368. You paid Barker 10*l.*?—Excuse me, I do not say that was the sum; it might have 7*l.* or 8*l.* I only fancy it was that.

50,369. Can you tell me what you paid at any of these public houses?—No, I cannot.

50,370. In any one instance?—Not in any one instance can I tell you.

50,371. You cannot tell me the amount that you paid to any of the public houses in any one instance?—I cannot.

50,372. And you cannot tell me the amount you paid to any canvasser in any one instance, except Barker?—I cannot. I won't be positive that Barker is telling the truth as to what he had.

50,373. I say except Barker; putting him aside and just going as near as you can, can you tell me the amount you paid any more of them?—It won't do for me to say anything more than I have because I cannot recollect it. You know what I said just now; directly I open my mouth those young fellows down there take it all down; I must tell you the truth.

50,374. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Don't be afraid of those young gentlemen?—Oh, they know me; they have known me for years, most of them, and if they can give me a lift they will.

50,375. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Then you have no reason to be afraid of them?—It all depends upon which way it is.

50,376. Can you give me the name of any one?—I cannot at all.

50,377. Have not you tried to recollect anything since the summons was given?—I have been trying all the time I have been in the box.

50,378. Before you got into the box?—Trying to recollect?

50,379. Yes?—I do not know that I tried to recollect; I certainly thought things over.

50,380. You mentioned Mr. Boult's name; what pid you pay Mr. Boult?—I really do not know what his account was. I had the use of his drawing room, but I cannot tell how much it was.

50,381. You did not see voters there?—Well, they called to see me sometimes in the morning to get instructions.

50,382. The canvassers did?—I do not say all of them.

50,383. Some of them did?—Yes.

50,384. Then you used his house?—Oh, no, I did use his house; it was simply my own private affair; it was out of the way, and I liked it.

50,385. How do you mean "out of the way?"—Out of the village. When I was in the village I was sought for.

50,386. But canvassers called upon you there?—Not to any great degree; occasionally.

50,387. You said they called to receive instructions?—Yes.

50,388. Who called there?—I know Mr. Featherstone has called there, for one.

50,389. Any one else?—Well, I do not recollect any one else. There was more than Featherstone, but I cannot recollect the name.

50,390. Had you agreed with Mr. Boult before you engaged the apartments?—That I forget. I know I was told that he would make me comfortable.

50,391. Was he a supporter of Mr. Doulton?—Yes, I believe he was, but then you must understand that I knew him many years ago, before ever 1858; in 1838.

50,392. Cannot you tell me what you paid him?—I cannot; it was a private thing of my own. I do not know that I ever had a receipt for it.

50,393. You charged Mr. Doulton, did not you, with the bill?—Well, it was not a very extravagant one. I do not know that I did. I might have charged him with it, but it is impossible for me to recollect it.

59,394. I cannot understand you. Do you mean to say that it was a matter of conjecture; that you came down here not being paid for your time and engaged a bed room and the partial use of a drawing room in Mr. Boult's house, and it is a matter of conjecture whether Mr. Doulton paid you for that at all?—Well, if he paid me it was after the election but had nothing to do with the expenses.

50,395. That is a legitimate election expense?—Well, you can put it in which way you like; my opinion is that it is not.

50,396. Did you or did you not charge Mr. Doulton with it?—I cannot say. I think very likely Mr. Doulton gave me a complimentary fee, perhaps of 10*l.*, but that I cannot recollect. I am apt to think he did, and he might in that have included all those items.

50,397. He might what?—He might have given me a complimentary fee of 10*l.* perhaps, and that would include these expenses.

50,398. These "mights" do not satisfy one at all. You paid Mr. Boult more than 10*l.* for the five or six weeks you were here?—I do not recollect paying him so much.

50,399. What did you pay him?—It is imposible to say.

50,400. But if you do not know that, how do you know that you did not pay him 10*l.*?—I cannot say; I do not think I paid him 10*l.*, but I paid him something. As to telling you what I paid him, I could not. I took his room as a private place to sleep and have rest, not for election purposes, sir.

THIRTY-FOURTH DAY.

J. W. Truman.

29 Oct. 1866.

50,401. You made no agreement?—I made no agreement. He gave me a little bill, and I paid it. I thought it was reasonable, and I paid it; but as to its being 10*l.* I cannot say.

50,402. You came down and had a day's shooting, as many others would like to have?—I am not the only one to have a day's shooting.

50,403. I do not say that. You do not recollect what you paid?—No, I do not. I know it was not a very extravagant affair.

50,404. And you do not know what Mr. Doulton paid you?—I think he might, perhaps, have given me, as I tell you, a little fee of 10*l.*, but he did not pay me what some men would have expected to have.

50,405. How many weeks were you here?—I suppose about five weeks.

50,406. Were you up at all in London during the time?—Oh, yes, every day.

50,407. Every day?—Every other day, perhaps.

50,408. Did you have your expenses paid up and down, or did you pay them yourself?—I paid them out of my own pocket, but I think the 10*l.* cleared me. I think I said to Mr. Doulton, "I don't want "anything for the election, but ——

50,409. There are 35 days in five or six weeks, and every other day would be 17 journeys to London up and down; that would be 7*s.* or 8*s.* or 9*s.* a journey?—That would not make 10*l.*

50,410. No?—But I did not go it in that way.

50,411. How did you go it?—I used to keep my own trap then, and I had horses and a groom, and my offer to assist Mr. Doulton was nothing. I cannot boast it now, but then I used to drive; that is well known; and I used to give a friend a ride. And then when I went by railway we grudged it so that I always used to go third-class, so that you see it did not cost me 9*s.*

50,412. It cost you nothing?—Comparatively.

50,413. Cannot you tell what Mr. Doulton paid you, because I want that as a test?—I cannot tell you. It was simply a complimentary fee. I know it was not more than 10*l.*

50,414. 10*l.*?—It might have been 10*l.*; I do not believe it was a farthing more. I do not recollect it.

50,415. Your memory does not seem good?—Well, I am sorry I cannot please you.

50,416. (The Chief Commissioner.) Just tell me this; I won't detain you; I want to give you the names of these persons; you may recollect them, or you may not. Robert Gage said you paid him 1*l.* 15*s.* Do you recollect whether that is true or not; so much a week amounting to 1*l.* 15*s.* for the time he worked?—What was his occupation, may I ask? Perhaps it is only giving you trouble, because I really do not recollect the name.

50,417. I do not expect you will. It is only to give you an opportunity of denying it, because it is very likely that you did not pay him. He does not say that you paid him anything but for work done?—I never paid anybody but for work done.

50,418. It is only right I should give you the names of those who say they received money. George Harman says he received 3*l.*; William Spence, 3*l.* I do not deny that that this is so much a week for services done?—Just so.

50,419. William Spence, 3*l.*; Edward Thorp, 14*l.* I dare say you will agree to that; Edward Thorp, 14*l.*?—I saw this man in the town to-day and thought I knew his face, but as to recollecting what I paid him I cannot.

50,420. He says you paid him?—Yes, but eight years makes a difference in a man.

50,421. I am not going to dwell upon it at all, but it is only right that I should mention these names. What Thorp said was this, "I "received nothing at any election till Doulton's "election, and at Doulton's election I was employed "about seven weeks. I received 14*l.* In those days "I was a teetotaler." That is all he said, but what his employment was at the election he did not tell us?—I do not recollect that; I do not believe he had it.

50,422. Do you remember a man named Thomas Titchener who said you paid him 5*l.* 10*s.*?—I recollect there was a man of that name, but I do not recollect what I paid him.

50,423. William Wood. That I have queried by whom paid, but he seems to have pointed to you. Frederick Bonny, 10*l.* I have queried whether you paid him, or somebody else. He seems to have been paid by you?—There are several Bonny's. I do not know which it is, unless it is a tailor as Redhill.

50,424. He says he received 10*l.* by cheque; he does not say from whom?—There is no doubt that Banny was employed then, but it was the tailor at Warwick-town. He must have been employed at canvassing.

50,425. "Tailor and draper, freehold"?—He might have received 2*l.* a week, but then, if I recollect, he is rather a superior man.

50,426. He received 10*l.* in a cheque. That might be true?—It might be true, but I do not recollect.

50,427. A man named John Younger says he received 15*l.*?—I can recollect the name of Younger, and if I remember right, he is an elderly man, but I have never seen him from that day to this.

50,428. I do not know that it is anything material, but in case anything should arise?—But he is a respectable man, a man independent; a man of some standing, is not he?

50,429. Yes, he is a retired tradesman.—"I was on "Mr. Doulton's committee and I canvassed for him. "No money passed through my hands. I received "14*l.* or 15*l.* Mr. Truman paid me." That might be true?—It might be, because he was a respectable man.

50,430. Now I come on to a man named Hitchcock, who received 1*l.* 4*s.*, and Barker 24*l.* 3*s.*?—I dare say Mr. Barker received that, perhaps 23*l.*

50,431. Titchener another sum, Groom 5*l.*, and a man named Wood. I only want to go through them all. I have no questions to ask you myself beyond those?—

50,432. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I am going to ask one question upon one point. Were you present at the time the ballot took place?—I was in the place.

50,433. Did you take any part in it?—Not the least; it was an understanding that we were not allowed, none of the agents. It was done by the electors themselves.

50,434. The agents were not allowed to interfere?—They were not allowed to go into the room.

50,435. Some of the agents did interfere, we are told?—Not Mr. Doulton's agents. I recollected that I wanted to speak to some one in the room at Redhill. I think it was a schoolroom where it took place.

50,436. Yes, yes; that was while the votes were being deposited?—Oh, well, all I know is this, that I wanted to go into the schoolroom to see some one, and they would not allow me.

50,437. The schoolroom, if I recollect right, was one of the places where tickets were to be deposited?—I think it was so.

50,438. Then was it at the time that the tickets were being deposited that you wanted to go into the schoolroom and the agents were not allowed to interfere?—I really do not know. If I ever went to the schoolroom or any other room I never went to it to interfere with the ballot.

50,439. I do not say you did. I only want to draw your attention to the fact that the schoolroom was the place where the tickets were deposited, not where the tickets were delivered out, but where they were deposited for voting. That was the schoolroom at Redhill?—Just so.

50,440. And it is there that you went?—I think I recollect inquiring for some one. I did not want to go in.

50,441. I am not speaking of what took place on that day, but what took place when the tickets were being delivered, were being sent out?—Oh, yes; I can give you some information.

50,442. They were put into an envelope, and then they were directed to each of the voters, and then there were instructions given inside, printed instructions, what the voters were to do with those tickets. Now I am drawing your attention to the time when those envelopes were delivered out, not when the tickets were delivered?—I quite understand.

50,443. Were you present when those tickets were delivered out?—No, I was not; but there was something took place after that, and if you will allow me I will explain.

50,444. Let us hear?—The tickets were delivered out; I think they were sent in the Redhill district from Laker's, the hotel, and the others, I think, were sent from the "White Hart," Reigate; they had a private room and I had nothing at all to do with them. We were not allowed, as I said; but about 11 o'clock in the evening, after the postman had delivered them, a man, if I recollect right, whose name was Holden, came to Reigate and found me at the "White Hart" committee room, and he said, "Mr. Truman, are you "aware what Walters' agents are doing," because Walters of course was concerned in the ballot. And I said, "No." "Well," he says, "A man from Lon- "don, a perfect stranger, is going about with a person "of the name of Wood, that is one of the electors, "buying up those tickets as the postman left them at "the doors." "Oh, indeed," says I. We felt indignant about it, because that was one of the Wilkinson's supporters, and I being one of Mr. Doulton's supporters, he thought that two together would be better than one.

50,445. Excuse me for a moment, who was the agent for Mr. Wilkinson?—Mr. Holden was one of his supporters, and I being one of Mr. Doulton's supporters, he thought that two going together would be better than one, and I said, "If you can just put "me on the scent I'll see what I can do for the "fellows." "Well," says he, "if you come along "with me, I know exactly the routine they are "taking." "Very well," said I, and I went. We inquired as we went along at different places and we found that a stout man had been there buying up the tickets. He bought Wilkinson's, and in many places he bought Wilkinson's and Doulton's tickets, and gave them 7*s.* 6*d.* for those two tickets, telling them at the same time that Walters' was the ticket they should put in the box the next day. I went on, because I got scent of the road they were taking, and went from house to house as they went along, and I found the same thing, that they gave them 7*s.* 6*d.* for Wilkinson's tickets, the ballot tickets which they were to put in the box, which they pleased of the three, and advised them to put Walters' in the box. At last I got up to a public house on the common. I followed them so close that I found this big fellow and Wood, I think you have had him before you, in the public house. I took four policemen with me, and I sent in a stranger to this public house and told him to say that I wanted Mr. Wood and the gentleman that was with him. Out came this stout man and Mr. Wood, so I said to the stout man, "I want to speak to you." "What do you want with me?" he said. Directly he got outside I put my back against the door and said, "I want a few words with you, you've been buying "up the tickets and telling people to put Walters' in "the box, I shall collar you and take you to the police "station." "Will you," says he. "Yes," I said. "Allow me," says he, "to go in and finish smoking "my pipe and my glass of brandy and water." I said, "No, not unless you are a better man than I." He said, "Won't I." I doubled up my sleeves. "Let me "pay for my brandy and water, then," he said. "No," I said, "come along with me." So the policeman was silly enough to take him, and walked him from the common off to the police station and kept him there for an hour. I wanted to find Mr. Doulton, but I could not get hold of him, and I was not quite silly enough to charge him myself, and so we let him go.

50,446. What did you do with Mr. Walters' tickets remaining in the houses?—I never took one.

50,447. What was done with them?—All that expense was entirely thrown away. We would not allow any of those tickets to go into the box. We had a meeting in the morning. The friends of each candidate met and decided that not one of those tickets should be put into the box. As the voters came in to ballot they had a piece of paper given them in a quiet corner of the room, and there they wrote the name and put their own writing on.

50,448. They had fresh voting papers?—Their own papers and no one went near them and they went up and wrote their own names.

50,449. Did you, on the part of Mr. Doulton, advance any money for the purpose of buying any of those tickets?—Oh, dear, no.

50,450. That is the reason I introduced the subject. It was said there was money paid?—Oh, no; not on our part.

50,451. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you pay any money except on cheques?—We paid cash to the best of my recollection. We drew a cheque for expenses weekly as much as we should want, and of course got it cashed and paid in cash.

50,452. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You mentioned, in the course of your statement just now, that the tickets at Redhill were sent from Laker's?—I think so.

50,453. Did Mr. Doulton occupy the rooms at Laker's?—No.

50,454. Not any?—No.

50,455. Where did he occupy rooms?—At the "White Hart."

50,456. You say that nothing was paid, excepting for personal expenses, at the hotels?—The committee rooms were paid for. They were held at these places.

50,457. I will just draw your attention to one answer you gave. You came down, after the election and after the account was sent in to the auditor, to pay some accounts at the "White Hart," and the "Warwick Hotel," and the "Royal Oak"?—Yes; personal expenses, to the best of my recollection.

50,458. That was after the election accounts had gone in to the auditor?—Oh, no. Well, it might be. We did not pay any election expenses after we had sent in the final statement to the auditor. Of course we were bound to send in the statement between the nomination and the polling day to the auditor after the election.

50,459. You were bound to send in a statement on the nomination day of everything which had been paid prior to the nomination day?—Then of course there were expenses——

50,460. And then, a month after the election, you were bound to have in, or ought to have had in, all the accounts which had been incurred after the election, or upon the election. Very well; then I understood you to say that after those accounts came in, not included in those accounts, you paid some personal expenses at the "White Hart," the "Warwick Hotel," and the "Royal Oak"?—Yes; that is what I believe.

50,461. And they were small accounts?—I forget; I cannot tell exactly the amounts, but I should think the "White Hart"——

50,462. If they were small accounts or not of much consequence, why did not you get them in during the course of the month; there was a month after the election?—I do not know why we did not do it. I do not know that it was not done, because, although I gave you that answer, I could not positively declare that it was so exactly. I have given it to the best of my recollection; it might have been a week or it might have been a fortnight after, I cannot positively say.

50,463. You say that you paid nothing except for personal expenses at the hotels, and I cannot at all

THIRTY-FOURTH DAY.

J. W. Truman.

29 Oct. 1866.

understand why you could not have got those accounts in in the course of a month after the election. You say that you paid them after the election accounts. You came down to Mr. Boult's?—Will you allow me to explain?

50,464. Yes.—What I mean is this: that we paid nothing for election expenses except what we sent in to the auditor. Now that is what I mean. There might have been a few days afterwards some expenses which did not come in that very night of the polling; but at all events those expenses were included in what I believe to be the 950*l.* produced to the auditor, so that when I came down afterwards it was simply personal expenses that made it a little over the 950*l.*

50,465. What I want to know is, what you mean by "personal expenses incurred at the hotels?"—I think Mr. Doulton stopped at the "Warwick Hotel" a little while because the "White Hart" was full, and occasionally he wanted to get off by an early train; I think I can recollect this; and he said, "Well, I had "better stop at the 'Warwick' a few days; there are "more trains from Redhill than Reigate, because of "the Brighton company." I stopped at the "Royal Oak" myself a little while, but then I preferred going——

50,466. Where is the "Royal Oak"?—Just by the station. At that time it was the only public house that was there, and I stopped there a little while.

50,467. That is your explanation; that those are the personal expenses which you paid?—Just so.

50,468. Was there any strong feeling at that time between Mr. Doulton and Mr. Wilkinson arising out of the Lambeth election?—Well, they say there was, but I do not know that I knew anything about it.

50,469. Mr. Roupell came down?—He came down.

50,470. Mr. Roupell had opposed Mr. Wilkinson?—Well, the electors did. I suppose you may say it was Mr. Roupell, but the electors did it, and no mistake, by a majority.

50,471. But Mr. Roupell and Mr. Doulton were friends, were they not?—Yes, great friends.

50,472. Was Mr. Doulton a supporter of Mr. Roupell?—Yes, at that time he was. He simply came down at the opening.

50,473. You made use of an expression in the first instance, that you came down "to feel the way"?—No; I beg pardon. I said I came down a week after he came.

50,474. You said, "to feel the way"?—Well, I came down to feel my way, I dare say, as well.

50,475. Had Mr. Roupell come down before or after that?—He came down one evening and attended a meeting, and went away again.

50,476. Was that before or after you came down?—I think it was about the time.

50,477. Were you present when it was determined in London that Mr. Doulton should come down?—No, I do not recollect that I was.

50,478. You were not present at any interview?—I met Mr. Doulton somewhere or other, and he said, "We are going to have our first public meeting at "Reigate-town, and I should like to have your "assistance." "Well," I said, "you may have me; "it will be a little change for me;" and they said, "Will you come down?"

50,479. Had you known whether Mr. Doulton had any personal connexion at Reigate?—I had no idea of it.

50,480. You had not heard before of any private personal connexion of Mr. Doulton's?—No, I had not heard anything of it.

50,481. Had Mr. Wilkinson started before as a candidate for Reigate?—I do not know who first appeared.

50,482. Of course Mr. Doulton started before you came down, but you found Mr. Wilkinson in the field?—Yes.

50,483. Do you not believe that Mr. Wilkinson was the first in the field, before Mr. Doulton?—I cannot say; he might have been the first.

50,484. Did you not know it as a fact after you came down?—No, I did not. I do not recollect who was first; I do not think there was much difference between the two. It appears that Mr. Doulton knew Mr. Hackblock, and knew that he was dead.

50,485. Everybody would know that, the whole of England?—He knew his brother, who was living; but I do not recollect who was first.

50,486. I only wanted to see whether you were connecting in your mind any circumstance with Mr. Doulton with reference to the election just before?—There might have been some little feeling, but I am not aware of it.

50,487. There was, was there not?—Not that I am aware of, I only knew them as opponents; as to any private matter I did not know.

50,488. Mr. Wilkinson had petitioned against the return of Mr. Roupell?—Quite right.

50,489. That did not give a very friendly feeling between the parties?—Well, it does not in general, but I only acted as an agent.

50,490. Who was it that spoke to you first as to your coming down as an agent?—I think it was Mr. Doulton.

50,491. Had Mr. Roupell anything to do with your coming down?—No, Mr. Doulton spoke to me first. I was a free agent, quite independent of Mr. Roupell. I dare say I mentioned the matter to Mr. Roupell, and I think I said, "Well, if you can give us any "assistance, all well," and he would do it; and I said I would go down, for I know Reigate is a very nice place.

50,492. I ask you this question because our attention has been drawn to it?—I do not know anything about it. I did not suppose that Mr. Wilkinson and Mr. Doulton were ever cousins, but I did not know that they were not, but I should think not from what I saw here; but it had no effect on my mind. I did not come here to oppose Mr. Wilkinson out of any vindictive feeling.

50,493. Of course you did not?—No, and I am not aware that Mr. Doulton did.

50,494. Whenever two gentlemen oppose each other of the same side of politics, there generally is something besides politics?—Well, I knew nothing about that.

The witness withdrew.

T. C. Barton.

THOMAS C. BARTON sworn and examined.

50,495. (The Chief Commissioner.) Were you in the election of February, 1858, engaged as Mr. Doulton's legal adviser?—Yes, as his solicitor; I came as his legal adviser.

59,496. Were you his solicitor before that?—I was for many years.

59,497. Are you a solicitor now?—I have practised for about 27 years.

59,498. You are practising now?—Yes, I practise in London.

50,499. Had you been connected at all, or had you had any knowledge of Reigate before 1858?—I came down to Reigate with Mr. Bedford in 1841.

50,500. For an election?—Yes.

50,501. And therefore you knew some little about it?—Yes, I knew some little about it, but it was not on that account I came. Mr. Doulton being a Lambeth man, and I being concerned with some previous elections, I came with him.

50,502. You and Mr. Truman were in the habit of signing all the cheques previous to monies being paid away on Mr. Doulton's account?—There was a sum of money placed at the bank by Mr. Doulton; I think it was 1,000*l.*

50,503. Against which you were to draw?—I was to check it.

50,504. Did you ever draw any cheques without Mr. Truman joining you?—Not to my knowledge; I do not remember it.

50,505. I do not care about one or two exceptions; was the course of business for you and Mr. Doulton to draw joint cheques?—To the best of my belief I never drew a cheque without Mr. Truman's counter cheque, and Mr. Doulton was in the town every day and knew what was going on.

50,506. You joined Mr. Truman in signing the cheques?—I did.

50,507. Did you know anything about what the cheques were paid for, or were you only cognizant of the amounts drawn?—I was only cognizant of the amount drawn, but I subsequently knew from the accounts sent in.

50,508. That was after the expenses were incurred?—They were chequed by the receipts after.

50,509. If they were to pay A.B. 10*l.*, signed Truman, and he sent in that for you to put your name and you signed it, would you know what the 10*l.* was for?—I should not.

50,510. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Not at the time of payment?—Not at the time of payment.

50,511. (The Chief Commissioner.) Or rather at the time the cheque was drawn?—I should take it that it was required for the purposes of the election.

50,512. Did you satisfy yourself before you signed the cheque, whether it was a proper payment to make or not?—I did not.

50,513. So far you merely were ministerial?—Just so.

50,514. Did you afterwards go through the accounts sent in to the election auditor?—I did before the nomination and after.

50,515. Do you know how much the amount was that was sent in to the election auditor?—I have a statement of accounts here; I have brought this from the election auditor.

The witness produced a newspaper.

50,516. That is the official account?—Yes. This is an abstract of the accounts, of the expenses in advertisements, printing, and so on.

The document was handed to Mr. Commissioner Smith.

50,517. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) It is an abstract of the expenses incurred by Frederick Doulton, Esq., at the election of a member for the sitting in Parliament, at the borough election in 1858. The total is 937*l.* 18*s.*?—Yes, in two sums; 509*l.* 13*s.* before the nomination, and 428*l.* 5*s.* after the nomination.

Mr. Commissioner Smith remarked that the document the witness had produced was very important, because it gave the election expenses of the different candidates. Sir Henry Rawlinson's expenses were 939*l.* 3*s.* 2*d.*; the total expenses of the Honourable William John Monson were 574*l.* 16*s.* 4*d.*, and Mr. Doulton's came to 937*l.* odd; that was including in each case the fee and per-centage to the auditor.

50,518. (The Chief Commissioner.) Are you aware what monies were paid by Mr. Doulton at Reigate after the election?—I am not aware of any payments; I know applications were made.

50,519. You are not aware what payments were made?—I am not aware of any payments; I know claims were sent in.

50,520. But it is so, that you had nothing to do with any other payments than those which you sent in to the election auditor?—That is all.

50,521. Were you down here most of the time previous to the election?—I came down almost daily.

50,522. Were you aware of any voters being put on to be employed and being paid money?—I was aware of that fact.

50,523. Were you at the time?—Yes, I was aware there were some of them.

50,524. How did you ascertain that they were?—I gave instructions that where they were taken on they were to do their amount of work.

50,525. How did you become aware that voters were put on for employment?—The application was generally made by a voter.

50,526. In many instances were you aware that voters were put on for employment?—I think I have a list of some names; I think there are about 30, as far as I remember.

The witness produced a list of names.

50,527. Very good; how did you get that list?—I found it amongst the papers.

50,528. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Is this a paper written at the time?—At the time, I believe, by Mr. C.; it is not my writing.

50,529. (The Chief Commissioner.) Is there anything on the face of that paper which I have not looked at yet, which states that those persons were voters or not?—No, but I think one or two of them were voters.

50,530. I understood you to say you knew at the time they were employed they were voters, and that you knew it because they stated they were voters?—I cannot say they stated so; they applied for employment mostly, and having applied for employment we may have found it out after, and therefore it may have influenced the employment.

50,531. I quite understand it, I only want the fact; you were aware at the time they were voters?—I had been engaged as the principal agent in the Lambeth election, I had the control of that election; that had been the subject of inquiry before the Committee of the House of Commons, and therefore the meeting of that committee was upon the subject of paid canvassers.

50,532. Can you recollect whether the scale of payments varied, if the man happened to be a voter, whether the scale of payments varied with regard to whether the man was a voter or not?—I am not prepared to say if the scale varied, or what it was.

50,533. Whether, if a man was put on to canvass, he would receive more as a voter than if he was not a voter?—I cannot say how that might influence it; it was left to discretion.

50,534. At that time were you aware that paid canvassers were being employed who were voters; did you at that time know that there was to a considerable extent a good many voters employed, paid voters?—I was always aware if they were employed to any great extent, any considerable employment, it would never succeed; but in the case of a large borough, where perhaps a hundred voters were employed, and there was a large constituency of, perhaps, 20,000, that it would have no effect at all, but that in a small constituency of course it would influence the election.

50,535. During the time of this election you had means of noticing what mode was adopted in carrying the election on on your side; were there many public houses open?—There were many public houses taken for what is called committee rooms.

50,536. Was there a good deal of treating going on?—There was a good deal of excitement, as there generally is at elections.

50,537. Was there a good deal of treating at public houses?—I did not notice particularly.

50,538. I mean by treating refreshments being given?—I am not cognizant of any refreshments being given.

50,539. Were you not cognizant of any refreshments being given in Mr. Doulton's behalf?—I never authorized any or knew of any. He got extracts from the Act and stuck them up in the committee rooms.

50,540. I know you will answer me candidly; tell me whether in effect that was adhered to; was there not on Mr. Doulton's part, as well as on the other candidates' part, a good deal of treating?—Not that I am aware of.

50,541. Do you remember any occasion on which it was stated that Mr. Doulton was attempting to engage all the public houses?—I never heard that.

50,542. You did not?—Certainly not.

THIRTY-FOURTH DAY.

T. C. Barton.

29 Oct. 1866.

50,543. You have not heard it ?—I think I saw the statement in the paper.

50,544. Did you see anything which warrants that statement ?—I saw nothing which warrants that statement; of course there were houses taken, but not more than was necessary.

50,545. I do not mean houses for committee rooms, you know what I mean by refreshments. Did you see anything in the election that in your mind would warrant that statement respecting Mr. Doulton, that he intended to engage all the public houses ?—I did not.

50,546. May I say that you did not know of any treating properly so called ?—I did not.

50,547. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Have you any other document in reference to the election of 1858, which would throw any light on the subject of the election ?—No.

50,548. I ask you, because I see you have a bundle before you ?—They are mostly squibs and addresses and things of that sort.

50,549. I only want to know whether you have got any matter of substance ?—No.

50,550. At what rate were the canvassers paid ?—Some at from 7*s.* to half a guinea a week. I think that would be the standard.

50,551. There were a number of board men employed, did you know of that ?—I knew of that.

50,552. What were they paid ?—About 5*s.* a day.

50,553. Did you know of their being voters ?—I think in a few instances they were.

50,554. Or the sons of voters ?—My impression is so.

50,555. Before a man had a board given to him was it inquired who he was ?—He was generally recommended by some voter, or sent by some person who had some weight with the committee.

50,556. Did you ever hear any person recommend a board man ?—It was the custom to do so, to send a note up from some respectable voter to say so and so wanted employment, and perhaps he would be taken on.

50,557. You used the technical phrase "taken on"? —Yes.

50,558. It was pretty well understood that those persons taken on to carry those boards, who were to be paid, were voters ?—Perhaps it was to favour a voter.

50,559. And perhaps to favour the person who was carrying the board ?—Oh, quite so.

50,560. He being a voter ?—That would be so; it would have its weight no doubt.

50,561. It would have a greater weight than the board ?—Perhaps so.

50,562. The board would not have much influence in getting votes ?—It is generally adopted in metropolitan boroughs, in Lambeth.

50,563. Perhaps that was the first time Reigate had seen the boards introduced from London ?—I do not know.

50,564. Were you in the election at Lambeth ?—Yes.

50,565. A great many board men were engaged there ?—Yes, as they always are at Lambeth.

50,566. Probably that is the way they got introduced down here. You have very little doubt that the persons who were employed in carrying the boards were voters ?—I cannot say that.

50,567. Or closely connected with voters, as being their sons ?—In some cases; but I could not say generally.

50,568. How many board men were employed ?—I do not know; I suppose the nomination day and polling day would be the great days.

50,569. There were a good many employed ?—Yes.

50,570. On the nomination day a great many more; any persons who came and asked for a board to carry for 5*s.* would be employed ?—To a limited extent that would be so.

50,571. Not to an unlimited extent ?—No.

50,572. (The Chief Commissioner.) I understand you to say that you were aware that some voters were employed as paid canvassers. I want to know whether you were aware of that at the time of their employment, or are you referring to what you knew subsequently ? I understand you to say, that you knew at that time that some of the paid canvassers were voters ? —I knew the fact to be so.

50,573. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I have been looking at this list, at this paper which you handed up, and it shows that Mr. Truman's memory is very defective indeed, because I see that there are 14 or 15 public houses for which there are accounts.—For committee rooms.

50,574. Look for yourself (the paper was handed to the witness.) I do not mean treating, but committee rooms in public houses ?—Yes, in public houses and beer shops.

50,575. Fourteen or fifteen ?—Yes.

50,576. And I think you will find a very considerable amount of the expenditure expended on that, both after and before ?—That is so.

50,577. A very large amount indeed of the expenditure is for the public houses ?—Yes.

50,578. (The Chief Commissioner.) Does it tell you what it is ?—Yes, for each house.

50,579. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Now I see Mr. Barker, whose name has been mentioned so often, unfortunately is down for 15 guineas; he told us he received 23*l.*, and Mr. Truman did not contradict him. Can you give me any account of that ?—I cannot recollect about it.

50,580. You told us very candidly, and Mr. Doulton did the same, that you were aware, as everybody was aware, that electors were employed ?—It was impossible at any election to do otherwise.

50,581. (The Chief Commissioner.) You will let me have that paper, I dare say ?—Yes, but I have promised to return it to the election auditor.

50,582. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I understood you to say you were not at all aware of the object for which the money was drawn ?—If 20*l.* was wanted, a cheque for 20*l.* would be drawn.

50,583. But you did not know the object ?—No; I have got a list of the persons who voted for Mr. Doulton. I do not know whether it will be any assistance.

The witness withdrew.

J. W. Truman.

J. W. Truman recalled and examined.

50,584. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Can you give me any explanation of this 15 guineas and the 23*l.* ? —May I look at that ? (The newspaper was handed to the witness.) Is it under the head of canvassers ?

50,585. Yes, I think so ?—Yes; I see 15*l.* I could not say whether it was 15*l.*, or 20*l.*, or 25*l.*

50,586. He said it was 23*l.* ?—I do not say positively.

50,587. But he did so ?—Then I do not remember only 23*l.*

50,588. (The Chief Commissioner.) What he did say was this, Mr. Truman: "Previous to that "Featherstone applied to me for Mr. Doulton at 12*s.* "a day; they gave me a guinea a day during the "election, 23 days, and I was paid by Mr. Truman "23 guineas more after the election." He went on to say this, remember these are his words, not mine, "That was the first bribed election we ever had." He does not say you bribed, but that is what he says, "Plenty of refreshments where there was a meeting, "and three or four meetings of an evening."—If you will allow me, I will first state this: Mr. Barker sent in a bill; I should think, if I recollect rightly, it must have been about 35*l.*, but I may be a little bit mistaken, because I cannot recollect exactly the figures; I know this, that I docked his account in his estimation most fearfully, and from that circumstance he used to write Mr. Doulton insulting letters, and I advised Mr. Doulton not to pay him that amount, and he said when he saw me some little time after the election was gone by, he said, "Mr. Truman, are "you going to get that money for me?" I think I only paid him the 15 guineas, and it was the other he wanted, and more than that. He said, "I will follow "Mr. Doulton as long as ever he lives and I live; I "will write every week." I said Mr. Doulton knew about it as well as I did, and I am quite certain he would not, and Mr. Doulton never did pay him, not to this day.

50,589. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You said there was not a farthing paid for refreshments. Andrews had a committee room, 15 guineas; this was before the nomination and expenses after the election; the "Grapes" and Andrews 8 guineas?—That was for the use of committee rooms; you said refreshments.

50,590. Did you, soon after the election, pay Andrews 8 guineas for committee rooms?—That was the balance due to him for the hire of committee rooms; we had a great difficulty in getting committee rooms here. We had to pay too much; we were bound to pay it, or else we should not have had a committee-room to put our heads in.

50,591. That was 23 guineas. I am only calling your attention to the sum?—That was simply for committee rooms.

50,592. You will find larger sums?—I think it will be better to clear up one at a time, if you will allow me to say so.

50,593. That was for the hire of committee rooms?—For the hire of committee rooms.

50,594. I will call your attention to another. It seems to me to be rather a large sum for committee rooms. There is "Holdsworth, 12*l.* 10*s.*" Is that the "Bell," or the "Red Cross"? There is Holdsworth again, 12*l.* 10*s.*; was that all committee rooms?—Committee rooms; these are things I cannot recollect.

50,595. I find at the "White Hart," where you had your chief head-quarters, "Goldsmith, 1*l.* 15*s.*; "'White Hart,' Goldsmith, 13*l.* 10*s.*;" those were the cheapest you had?—There is no doubt Mr. Goldsmith, if my memory serves me (as you are aware, you cannot get all the accounts in), there might have been a little left on his account that he charged after, he not sending it up at the time, and that makes the discrepancy perhaps.

50,596. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) The learned serjeant is looking at the total, taking the account before and the account after the election?—Quite so.

50,597. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I find over 150*l.* was paid for committee rooms?—That is, I think, a very small amount indeed for a contested election; still, that is a matter of opinion.

50,598. That is about the amount, here it is 150*l.* as near as possible?—Yes.

50,599. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) How do you account for the expenses of Mr. Doulton being about 363*l.* over Mr. Monson's?—I said they were about 1,300*l.*

50,600. Mr. Monson's were 574*l.*?—I think you will find it 950*l.*

50,601. 937*l.* Mr. Doulton, 930*l.* Sir Henry Rawlinson, and Mr. Monson 574*l.*?—Well, you see Mr. Monson was known here, and he had got a host of friends. Lord Monson's estate is here, and everybody knew him and sympathised with him, and some of them did not think of charging him anything for his services. He was a lucky man in that respect, we had to fight our way on rough ground.

50,602. Do you mean to say Sir Henry Rawlinson and Mr. Doulton had to buy the ground?—I think Sir Henry Rawlinson was known, unfortunately, more than Mr. Doulton, although he was not a local candidate; from what I can recollect I think you will find that that is the truth, that he was known, and in fact that he had been working his way some months before this, so that you might almost call him a local candidate. I do not know the relative expenses, I think you mentioned 500*l.* for Mr. Monson; of course Mr. Monson ought to have gone in for nothing.

50,603. I merely drew your attention to the expenses of the three candidates simply to see what your explanation might be?—Mr. Monson, of course, as you are aware, was a local candidate; his estate is here, and that ought to help him a little. Then Sir Henry Rawlinson I know had been down some time before the election. I do not know whether he anticipated anything of the kind at all; he was over here some time before, and was better known than Mr. Doulton; I forget what Sir Henry Rawlinson's expenses were.

50,604. 939*l.*?—I should have thought Sir Henry Rawlinson's expenses, from the influence he had prior to Mr. Doulton's coming here, would have been less. Allow me to say that I am just informed that Sir Henry Rawlinson contested this borough prior to 1858.

The witness withdrew.

G. Simpson.

George Simpson sworn and examined.

50,605. (The Chief Commissioner.) Where do you reside?—At Wray-park.

50,606. On the election of 1865 I believe you voted for Mr. Monson?—No, I did not.

50,607. Did you take an active part in it?—I did not.

50,608. Did you take any part at all?—No part.

50,609. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You did not vote at all?—I did not.

50,610. (The Chief Commissioner.) Had you a vote?—Yes.

50,611. You did not exercise it?—I did not exercise it.

50,612. Did you take any part at all in the election?—I took no part in the election.

50,613. I mean previous to the election?—I took no part whatever in the election, I can explain why to you presently.

50,614. Just tell me this; did you know Mr. James Nichols?—I did not know him.

50,615. Did you take any part with him?—I have never spoken to him in my life beyond two or three years ago.

50,616. I mean touching the election?—No, not touching the election.

50,617. I will ask you this question, which would be more pointed; were you aware of a letter being written previous to the election to a man named John Peters?—I am not aware of it.

50,618. Were you aware he received a letter previous to the election?—From me?

50,619. From you or from any one, purporting to be from you?—No, I am not aware of any letter.

50,620. He says he received a letter on the nomination day, that is just before the polling day?—He received no letter on the nomination day from me.

50,621. Did he receive a letter the day before?—No, no letter in any shape or way alluding to the election.

50,622. No, not alluding to the election, I do not mean that?—No, no letter whatever.

50,623. Did he receive, as far as you know, any letter about the time of the election desiring him to do some work for you?—Peters has worked for me, but I am not aware of having written to him; to the best of my belief I never wrote to him, only he was at work for me almost every day. I have been looking over my files this morning, and I have found bills of work being done at that time, which I have in my pocket.

50,624. We have seen those, and they seem to be right, but what I am anxious to know is whether having work to do about that time you desired him to commence upon it just about the time of the election?—I believe he was at work continuously for weeks previous to the time of the election.

50,625. Are you aware of a letter being sent on

THIRTY-FOURTH DAY.

G. Simpson.

29 Oct. 1866.

your behalf desiring him to go to London on the election day ?—No.

50,626. Or of anything of the sort ?—No.

50,627. The letter was desiring him to get materials for the work on your premises ?—I never sent him any letter of the kind, and I am not aware of any letter. I think possibly there is an explanation of it.

50,628. Do you know the matter I am alluding to ?—I simply read it in The Times. The explanation I would give is this : Mr. Hart and Mr. Monson called on me somewhere about the 10th or 12th of May, asking me for my vote and interest. I said, "So far as "my vote is concerned I shall be very happy to give "it, but so far as the influence is concerned I will not "influence any one about me." A few days after that a man who has worked for me to a large extent (Heath, of the firm of Heath and Batchelor, who was at my back gate hanging up my bell) said, "Who are "you going to vote for;" I said, "For Mr. Monson. "Mr. Hart and Mr. Richardson called upon me, but "my people may vote as they like." I thought he was fishing, perhaps, by the remark. About the middle of June, the 16th or 17th, Mr. Hart and Mr. Richardson called again, and I was then asked if I would use any influence I had in their behalf; I said, "I have "promised Mr. Monson my vote, but with regard to "the people about me, as I told Mr. Hart in the first "instance, I did not intend to speak to any of them "on the subject; go and ask them yourself," but I said, "If there is any bribery or corruption going on "you shall not have my vote." Well, a fortnight perhaps before the election it was a matter of conversation in the place, as to who people were voting for, and Peters told me he was going to vote for Mr. Gower. I said, "Indeed ! I think Peters you "ought to have considered before you voted, because "I do not think Mr. Gower was justified in coming "forward; it is a matter for you to exercise your "judgment." Shortly after this there was a regular system of payment on the part of Mr. Gower. I said, "Well, Peters, what are you going to receive;" Peters' reply was that he was going to have some money on easy terms from some building society he was connected with, some parties were going to advance him money without making the least charge. I said, "Well, Peters, if you wish to borrow money you had "better borrow it in some other way, and not at an "election time." I believe he went to town to get those bricks because he should be out of the way; that is my impression about that. I never asked him to vote the opposite direction, or ever asked any man to vote in the opposite direction ; I deny it.

50,629. He did not vote ?—No ; I should have liked to have spoken touching a man named Gillett, who was a workman in my employ.

50,630. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I think that was all explained, Mr. Prout made it perfectly right ?—Yes, Mr. Prout was in the garden and heard every word.

The witness withdrew.

The Inquiry was adjourned till a quarter to 11, at Mr. Topliss's, Redhill, and afterwards to meet at 12 o'clock at the town hall.

THIRTY-FIFTH DAY.

THIRTY-FIFTH DAY.

Tuesday, 30th October 1866.

H. Topliss.

30 Oct. 1866.

HENRY TOPLISS sworn and examined.

50,631. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I believe you were a voter on the list at the last election ?—Yes.

50,632. What rent did you pay for your house ?—50*l.*

50,633. Did you vote at the last election ?—No, sir.

50,634. Did you receive any money at the last election on either side ?—Yes, sir.

50,635. What did you receive ?—I received the first from Mr. Smith, 25*l.*

50,636. Was it before or after the election that you had received it, do you recollect ?—Before.

50,637. How long before ?—It was about the early part of May.

50,638. What were you to do for that 25*l.* ?—Nothing was said at all ; it was for the use of my rooms.

50,639. Was it said it was for the use of your rooms ?—Yes, it was always said so.

50,640. And I suppose they had the use of the rooms ?—Yes.

50,641. Were any refreshments supplied ?—I only had one meeting for Mr. Gower.

50,642. Was there a committee here ?—It was up stairs. I cannot say much about it, because my arm was broken and in a sling at that time. I had had a fracture of the skull in March.

50,643. That was not the accident for which you are in bed now ?—No.

50,644. Another ?—Yes, so that I was not able to go about. I therefore cannot say exactly what the number of people in the room was. There might have been 40 or 50 in the large room. At the hall meeting I should think there were 250.

50,645. But you said at the one meeting you have been speaking of there might have been 40 or 50 ?—There might have been 100. I do not know, because I did not go up, for I did not wait upon them.

50,646. I was asking you now in reference to the committee meetings ?—They never had any meeting whatever but that one.

50,647. Then the room was only used on one occasion ?—Yes.

50,648. And there were no committees ?—No ; only now and then a person would come in for a little while, and run into the parlour and close the door. Of course they had a right to the use of the house.

50,649. Did you canvass at all for Mr. Gower ?—No ; I was at home.

50,650. When you had 25*l.* for the use of your rooms was anything said about your voting ?—No, nothing whatever ; and never was.

50,651. Did you ever promise your vote for Mr. Gower ?—I never promised my vote to any one.

50,652. Did you receive anything from the other side ?—Yes, I did.

50,653. What ?—40*l.*

50,654. Who paid you 40*l.* ?—Mr. James Nichols.

50,655. When did he pay you that ?—I cannot say exactly, but they have got a paper that I signed.

50,656. Did you sign a sort of receipt ?—I will tell you how it was done. Mr. Nichols called me out one day and took me into the corner of the "Wheatsheaf," and he said, "I have made some money for you ; I want "your place," and I think he must have known what took place ; but I cannot remember directly now, my head is so bad, but he called me into the parlour, and he saw Mr. Newman come in, and he said hastily, "Sign it." I could hardly read it from the short time I saw it, but I saw an account of it in the paper.

50,657. You saw an account in the paper of what Mr. Nichols said of it ?—Yes ; but I do not know whether it was right in the paper.

50,658. Are you quite certain you received the money from Mr. Nichols ?—Yes.

50,659. Was it paid in a cheque or notes, or what ?—It was paid in note.

50,660. And was it all paid at one time ?—Yes.

50,661. And how long before the election ?—I cannot say.

50,662. Was it a month or six weeks, or anything of that sort ?—It was after Mr. Smith's.

50,663. You did not read the paper you signed ?—Only just a portion of it, because, I said, Mr. Newman was coming in, and Mr. Nichols was anxious for it to be signed.

50,664. Did it look like a receipt, or some paper in the nature of a receipt, for you say you saw a part of it ?—It was a small paper.

50,665. Do you know whether 40*l.* was mentioned in it ?—I cannot say, to tell you the truth, as to that.

50,666. You did not see sufficient of the paper to remember what the character of the paper was, what was written on it ?—No.

50,667. Was the 40*l.* paid at the time you signed it ?—Yes.

50,668. You got the 40*l.* when you signed this paper ?—Yes ; it was done there and then.

50,669. Was anything said about your voting at the time you got the 40*l.* ?—No.

50,670. You were not asked by Mr. Nichols to vote ?—No ; because I would not have promised anything, and I never did promise any one thing, though the report was about that I did, but it is quite wrong.

50,671. At that time you did not wish to interfere, probably, with the election ?—I did not interfere. I could not get out because of my arm. I never went to the nomination or anything.

50,672. If I understand you rightly, what was said by Mr. Nichols when he paid the 40*l.* was, in fact, an agreement for the use of your house for the election ?—That is all I took it for. I have had this house at various times let to Sir Henry Rawlinson, Mr. Wilkinson, and Mr. Doulton ; they all three had rooms at one time in my house.

50,673. Then your house was large enough to accommodate all of them ?—Oh, yes; I had a large room there.

50,674. Did Mr. Nichols' party have any meeting at your house ?—Oh, yes.

50,675. Very large ones ?—The first was a very large one indeed.

50,676. You did not vote at all ?—I did not ; but in the morning I saw Mr. Shepherd, who said " It is of " no use your voting, because it is all up. They will " win it with above a hundred. I will bet you two " bottles of wine to one that they will win by a " hundred majority." He said, " It is no use your " voting," and so I did not vote.

50,677. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you intend to vote for Mr. Monson ?—Yes, I was going to vote ; but Mr. Shepherd said it was no use, that the other party would win it by a hundred. He said, " I " will bet you two bottles of wine to one," and we had the wine in. Shepherd said it was all of no use in my going to vote.

50,678. You did not vote ?—No.

50,679. For whom were you going to vote ?—I was going to vote for Mr. Monson.

50,680. Were any refreshments supplied at your house ?—Yes.

50,681. To what extent did you send in a bill ?—There were orders that the refreshments supplied should not exceed 5*l.* ; it was limited.

50,682. You were going to say something about refreshments being limited to 5*l.* Who spoke of the refreshments being limited to 5*l.* ?—Mr. Nichols.

50,683. Was that on the night, at the meeting, that he said they were not to exceed 5*l.* ?—Yes.

50,684. Did they have refreshments ?—Yes.

50,685. And did they exceed 5*l.* ?—No, it was something under that ; by some few shillings I think. I did not have an account in my house, but Mrs. Topliss put it down on paper in the bar. We do not put things down generally, for they are generally paid for at the time, but on this occasion we were not paid.

50,686. That was independent of the 40*l.* ?—Yes ; but I never received any money.

50,687. Did you ever receive the money for the refreshments ?—No.

50,688. Did Mrs. Topliss ?—No.

50,689. Were you never paid it ?—No ; on the next occasion the account was less, it was something under 30*s.* I think. I almost think it made it 6*l.* altogether, I know it was not more than 30*s.* I did not take anything upstairs ; but some of the committee came down and ordered it at the bar and took it up.

50,690. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Then that was never paid for ?—No.

50,691. Then I may take it the amount of the refreshments supplied at those two meetings was about 6*l.*—Yes, or a little over or a little under ; I will not say which. Afterwards I sent a bill in, but Mr. Nichols said " You cannot receive any money now, so " it is no use ; you will not be paid."

50,692. Who did you send the bill to ?—I sent the bill to Mr. Nichols, and he said," Without you send in " your bill within a month after the election you wil " never get anything."

50,693. You sent it in when the month had expired ?—Yes.

50,694. Did you supply the refreshments for the Gower meeting ?—Yes.

50,695. Was it paid ?—Yes.

50,696. Who paid that ?—That was paid, but I was not to put it down as refreshment. I supplied refreshments partly at the booth at Earlswood.

50,697. What was the amount of the bill ?—The bill was 2*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*

50,698. That was at the booth at Earlswood ?—Yes, but there were other things supplied ; but it was said I had better not put it down for refreshments, for it was not allowed, and so it was put down as cab hire : you will find that put down.

50,699. Who recommended you to do that, do you recollect ?—It only came to me second-hand.

50,700. Do you recollect who brought you the order ?—I cannot say who it was ; I do not recollect, but that is what it was.

50,701. Was your house hired in 1863 ?—Yes.

50,702. Did you pay away any money to a person of the name of Richard Bennett ?—No ; I never paid a halfpenny to anybody at any election. When a bill was to be paid Mr. James used to come and give me the money ; and when they had had the amount of money he did not let them have any more. That was when there was a meeting.

50,703. That was in 1863 ?—Yes.

50,704. That was when Mr. James was here ?—Yes.

50,705. Mr. Smith has returned you as having received 5*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.* for conveyances and drivers. Did you receive that amount from Mr. Smith, 5*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.* ?—I cannot say the amount of money.

50,706. But was that about it ?—It might be something about that. Is there any other amount at all ?

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) No ; there is only that 5*l.* odd.

50,707. That would include the 2*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.* for refreshments at Earlswood ?—No, the refreshments were at the booth. I had a party to drive me up there to Earlswood, and I had some men looking at the booth that nobody should cut it, because it was said that some persons would cut the booth. This was in the morning, when there were some refreshments at Earlswood. You must understand me, the refreshments were at Earlswood given to the men ; it was beer given to the men who had protected the booth.

50,708. Well, that would be included in this 2*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.* ?—No, it was not. The other was refreshments, and it was put down as cab hire.

50,709. Was that put down as cab hire ?—It was, 1*l.* 3*s.* There were three items altogether.

The Court then adjourned to the house of William Whitmore, Chapel-street, Mead-vale, when the following evidence was taken.

THIRTY-IFTH DAY.

W. Whitmore.

30 Oct. 1866.

WILLIAM WHITMORE sworn and examined.

50,710. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Your name is Whitmore. I believe you are a voter of this borough of Reigate?—Yes.

50,711. And you pay 10*l.* a year for the house?—Yes.

50,712. How long have you been a voter?—I cannot say exactly.

50,713. Did you vote at the elections of 1859, 1863, and 1865?—Yes.

50,714. Did you vote for Mr. Gower at the last election?—Yes.

50,715. Mazden, do you know him?—Yes.

50,716. Did he canvass you for Mr. Monson?—No, for Mr. Gower.

50,717. He gave you some money?—Yes.

50,718. How much did he give you?—5l.

50,719. Can you tell me how long that was before the election?—I dare say it was three or four weeks.

50,720. And when he gave you the 5l. did he pay it you in one sum?—No,

50,721. How did he pay it to you?—In three different sums.

50,722. On three different occasions?—Yes.

50,723. Was it 2l. and 2l., and 1l.?—No; it was 1l. one time, and 2l. each of the other times.

50,724. How soon before the polling day was it paid?—Ne'er a one, till after all of it.

50,725. All of it?—Yes.

50,726. And did you vote for Mr. Gower?—Yes.

50,727. All of it was paid after the polling day?—Yes, but I cannot say how long after.

50,728. When he asked you to vote did he promise you the 5l.?—Yes.

50,729. And you then told him you would vote?—Yes.

50,730. What were you to do?—Anything that was required of me to do I was to do for the money.

50,731. Did they employ you?—No, there was nothing at all.

50,732. Were you not canvassed on behalf of Mr. Monson?—Yes.

50,733. By Joseph Hewett?—Yes.

50,734. You received some money from him, did you not?—Yes, I received one 15s. It is said I received two, but I did not.

50,735. You also received some trifle from Thomas Jordon?—I received 5s. at two or three different times; 2s. at one time, and I remember 1s. for attending a meeting.

50,736. On behalf of Mr. Monson?—Yes; I think I had 28s. altogether, as far as I can tell.

50,737. What were you to do for that?—I was to attend meetings and to drink beer.

50,738. And you had as much beer as you required?—Yes; there was always plenty of beer.

50,739. Who paid for it?—I do not know.

50,740. Had you promised at all to vote for Mr. Monson?—No; I had not promised.

50,741. They asked you to vote for him?—Yes, and the reason why I did not I will tell you. I said I could not promise at all.

50,742. But that was after you received the promise of the 5l. from Mazden?—No, before that.

50,543. Had you received this money on behalf of Monson before Mr. Hewett talked to you?—He had talked to me, but he had come to no arrangement.

50,744. Before the arrangement was come to had you received the money?—Yes, all of it; I had received some of it before Mr. Gower came out. I had attended meetings, but nothing was settled, and I said I would not go to any more.

50,745. Did you understand from any one how much you were to receive altogether, if you voted for Mr. Monson?—5l.

50,746. Well, that is all I will ask you about the last election. For whom did you vote in 1863?—For Mr. Wilkinson.

50,747. Were you employed at all on that occasion?—Yes.

50,748. In what capacity?—As a messenger.

50,749. Was any member of your family employed also?—My son.

50,750. He was not a voter, I believe?—Yes, he was.

50,751. He was a voter also?—Yes.

50,752. How much did you receive on that occasion?—Five weeks' pay at 5s. a day, but I got a day extra, which was 5s., making 7l. 15s.

50,753. What is your son's name?—John.

50,754. How much did he receive?—The same, all but the 5s., 7l. 10s.

50,755. Where does he live now?—In Camberwell.

50,756. He is not a voter now?—No.

50,757. Did he vote at the last election?—No.

50,758. Did he vote in 1863?—Yes, but he had just left.

50,759. You know he received 7l. 10s.?—Yes.

50,760. And voted for Mr. Wilkinson?—Yes, he had just left here. He lived in Mead-vale here.

50,761. Where he had been voting for?—Yes.

50,762. You are an intelligent man, I have understood, at different elections. I want to know whether in your opinion the election of 1865 was a more expensive matter than the one of 1863?—I should think not so expensive.

50,763. Was the treating greater in 1865 than in 1863?—I should think there was greater treating in 1863 than in 1865.

50,764. You suppose that there was more treating in 1863 than in 1865?—I should think so.

50,765. Did you vote in 1859?—Yes, I did.

50,766. For whom did you vote?—For Mr. Wilkinson.

50,767. That is what they call the people's election?—Yes.

50,768. Then there was no money?—No.

50,769. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Your son had left just before the election of 1863?—Yes.

50,770. But he had a vote?—Yes.

50,771. Did he receive 7l. 10s.?—Yes.

50,772. What did he do for that?—He was down here five weeks as a messenger; they sent for him to come down. They employed him for his vote. He was with me.

50,773. They employed him for the election?—Yes.

50,774. And he got 5s. a day?—Yes.

50,775. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did you do anything?—Yes, now and then, in delivering circulars.

50,776. How long do you think you were employed altogether during the five weeks?—Perhaps a fortnight, or a day or two more or less.

50,777. What are you by trade?—I am a labourer.

50,778. How long was your son employed out of the five weeks?—All, of course.

50,779. Yes, he was engaged the five weeks, but how much time out of that was he actually employed?—Oh, he went out about the same time as I did.

50,780. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What did you do?—I delivered circulars; we had to attend every day from 10 till 4, whether we worked or not, and if we were wanted we had to go wherever they wanted us.

50,781. How many messengers were put on?—A great many altogether.

50,782. Do you think that there was work enough to employ all the messengers that were put on?—No, there was not; it was to secure their votes.

50,783. Was it not more like a colourable employment, and with nothing more to do?—Yes.

50,784. It was about that?—Yes.

50,785. And to secure their votes?—Yes.

The Commission was here adjourned to the town hall.

CHARLES WILKINSON sworn and examined.

50,786. (The Chief Commissioner.) What are you? A plumber and painter.

50,787. Do you live in Reigate?—No, in Redhill.

50,788. What rent do you pay for your house?—I have my house on lease at about 17*l.* a year.

50,789. What, a lease on lives?—No, I have my house on lease for 21 years.

50,790. Who did you vote for at the last election?—I voted for Mr. Richardson.

50,791. That, I suppose, was an after thought; voting for Mr. Richardson?—I should have voted for Mr. Monson if there had been any chance.

50,792. But you know he was not known of till late in the day. Who were you going to vote for? Which side did you work for?—I worked for Mr. Monson.

50,793. You were on the committee, I think?—I do not know whether my name was on. If it was on it was not from my own personal wish.

50,794. Money, I think, passed through your hands. You received money to pay away to some of the people?—From the first beginning of the election that I have voted for in Reigate, which has been now some years, up to the present time I neither received a penny nor paid a penny.

50,795. I thought you had paid money to one or two people?—Never.

50,796. I will mention their names to you; one man says he was paid by you, and I assume he was paid by you on behalf of either Mr. Hart or Mr. Nichols, or somebody. Are you sure you did not hand over money to anybody?—Not to my knowledge.

50,797. Are you not aware of somebody having told us that he received money from you; because, perhaps, you can assist me?—I am not aware.

50,798. In 1865 you say you neither received money from anybody, nor did you pay money for anybody?—I never did in any election.

50,799. Did you receive any money for yourself?—No.

50,800. Were you offered any?—No, not in 1865.

50,801. I am speaking only of 1865?—No, I never was.

50,802. Were you told anything of this sort; that if you gave your assistance you would be repaid for your loss of time?—No, sir. I have always worked in elections since I have been here, and my horse and cart. I never was told such a thing since I have been here.

50,803. First of all, aye or no, were you promised? It is giving you an opportunity of saying so, if you were not. Were you offered anything for your loss of time, if you would assist Mr. Monson?—Nothing of the sort to my knowledge, I never did.

50,804. You mean you never were?—I never were.

50,805. Now, in 1863 did not you pay some money away?—No.

50,806. You understand me, you know, to put those questions in the fullest sense when I say in 1865 you never received or paid money. Did you not receive or pay money's worth?—Nothing at all of the kind.

50,807. Now, in 1863 you did pay some money, did not you?—Who was member then?

53,808. The election was between Mr. Wilkinson and Mr. Gower?—No, sir.

50,809. In 1863 did not you pay a man named Francis Mayall, a mason, a sum of money, 5*l.*?—No.

50,810. Can you explain what he meant by telling us that he received 5*l.* from Wilkinson the plumber?—No, sir.

50,811. Do you know Francis Mayall?—No, sir, I have never paid him anything in my life. I went and fetched him from a place called Walton.

50,812. When? In the election of 1863?—Yes, to come and vote.

53,813. So far I have identified you with Mayall. Where is Walton?—On the hill, about five miles from here.

50,814. Were you sent to fetch him?—I went of my own accord.

50,815. What made you go?—I knew the man very well. He had borrowed some money of me, and I thought probably he would vote the same side as I did, and I went and fetched him at my own personal expense.

50,816. In your own conveyance?—No, I did not.

50,817. What conveyance did you take?—I had a cab from Reigate.

50,818. Who paid for the cab?—I do not know who paid for it; I asked if they would allow me one, and they did.

50,819. Who allowed you one?—It was an agent. I said I thought I could go and fetch some one who would vote, and they said I could get a conveyance from the "Warwick Arms." I went up in the evening, after work time.

50,820. Then you know nothing about the cab being paid for?—No, I do not. I was not to pay for it, and I did not; but all other expenses, we had something to drink, and so on, that I paid out of my own personal pocket.

50,821. Were you repaid that money?—No, I never asked for it.

50,822. Who did you vote for in 1863?—Mr. Monson, I believe.

50,823. In 1863 Mr. Monson was not standing; assume it is a mistake; we shall very soon correct it?—I cannot remember who stood at the time.

50,824. Are you speaking of an election in which the candidates were Mr. Gower and Mr. Wilkinson, or of an earlier election?—I really do not know what election it was; I believe it was about 1863, but I do not recollect. Whenever Mr. Wilkinson put up I was always on his side; I never altered at all.

50,825. Then I may take it you voted for Mr. Wilkinson; and I suppose I may take it that you fetched Mayall to vote for Mr. Wilkinson?—If it was in 1863, I did.

50,826. Then you took an active part, as you went down to the agent and told him you thought you knew of a man that you could get?—Oh, yes, I have always worked very hard in elections; I have always done the best I could for the candidate I have taken an interest in.

50,827. Well, now, Mayall himself at that time was at work at Walton?—He was.

50,828. And you took him away from his work?—I went up in the evening, saw him, and asked him to come and vote. I took him to poll the next morning.

50,829. Did not he object to come without being paid for his loss of time?—I beg pardon; I have made a mistake. This was Mepham, not Mayall; I never had anything to do with Mayall. I thought you meant Mepham; it is a mistake.

50,830. Do you know a man named Francis Mayall?—Yes.

50,831. Did you see him in the election of 1863?—Yes.

50,832. Did he go up and vote with you?—Yes.

50,833. Did you fetch him to come to vote?—Oh, no.

50,834. Did you go with him to the poll?—He walked with me across; he lives close to Redhill polling place.

50,835. Did you take him away from his work?—No.

50,836. But he was at work, I suppose?—His yard is close to it; within two minutes' walk.

50,837. Had you been to his yard to canvass him?—Yes.

50,838. Did he tell you that he should not come unless he was paid for loss of time?—No.

50,839. Was anything of that sort said by him?—No.

THIRTY-FIFTH DAY.

C. Wilkinson.

30 Oct. 1866.

50,840. Nothing at all?—Nothing.

50,841. Was anything said by you that if he would come and vote all right, he should not be forgotten, but should be paid for his loss of time?—No.

50,842. Was anything of that sort said?—Nothing at all of the sort.

50,843. Now did not you afterwards, in fact, give him some money?—No.

50,844. I do not mean out of your own pocket; but did not you receive a certain sum of money for him?—Never.

50,845. Are you sure?—Yes.

50,846. I wish you would try and recollect?—I cannot; it is no good to try.

50,847. He says distinctly that you gave him a 5*l.* note?—No, sir, I never did.

50,848. He said, "I voted for Monson, and I re- "ceived 5*l.* from Wilkinson the plumber." That was in 1863?—It is not me.

50,849. Is there another Mr. Wilkinson a plumber?—Yes; I have a brother.

50,850. That may account for it. Is your brother named John Wilkinson?—Yes.

50,851. That may be an explanation of the whole thing. The other man's name that you fetched from Walton was Mepham?—Yes.

(The Chief Commissioner.) He has been called before us.

(Mr. De Rutzen.) Yes, on the 11th September.

50,852. (The Chief Commissioner.) Do you recollect going to Mepham, and asking him to come and vote with you?—Yes.

50,853. You told him yourself, I think, that you would pay him for his expenses and loss of time?—No.

50,854. Are you sure of that?—I am positive. I asked him if he would oblige me, to come and vote.

50,855. Did not you add you would pay him for his expenses and for his loss of time?—No, sir; he never asked me.

50,856. I never said anything about what he said. What I want to know is, whether you undertook to him to pay him for his expenses and his loss of time?—No.

50,857. He says you did distinctly?—He may say it; I never did.

50,858. I will tell you what he said: "Wilkinson "came to me to ask me to come with him, and he "said he would pay my expenses and loss of time; "but I got nothing from him. I thought I ought to "have 10*s.*, that is 5*s.* a day"?—I never promised him anything of the sort.

50,859. You hear what I have read out, what he did say?—I told you before I was mistaken in the name.

50,860. I am at Mepham now?—I am speaking of Mepham in the first place, and I told you the reason why I did. He came to me for a little assistance, and I thought I would go and ask him to vote for the candidate I vote for. He never once broke the subject to me that he expected money.

50,861. I have never said that he did?—I never promised him anything.

50,862. I was asking whether you told him that you would pay the loss of time and his expenses?—No.

50,863. Have you voted in any election before 1863?—Oh, yes.

50,864. Did you on any occasion receive money after voting?—Never; not to my knowledge.

50,865. Oh, no?—Well, I never did then; I speak truth as far as I can.

50,866. I do not doubt it, only I think it is a thing you would not be likely to forget. You say you have not been in the habit of doing so; therefore I think, if there was any one occasion on which you did, I think it would abide in your mind. Have you or not ever received money after your vote at any election here?—I never received but one thing in my life.

50,867. What was that?—A dinner.

50,868. What election was that?—Lord Monson's.

50,869. Did you ever receive any money?—No.

50,870. Now you answer positively?—I do, as far as my memory goes. You may think I am fencing, but I am speaking the truth.

50,871. Then you mean, although you used the term "to the best of my knowledge," you are confident you never did?—I am.

50,872. I will take it so now you say so; then I have nothing more to ask.

50,873. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You say he owed you some money?—I do not know that he owed me any money at the time.

50,874. You said he did?—I had done such things for him in my time.

50,875. Did he owe you money at that time?—I do not think he did.

50,876. Why did you bring that in, that he owed you money?—I think he had. I did not say that he owed.

50,877. But, if he had had money from you, what is the use of bringing that in if you did not mean to say that had something to do with your going to him?—Oh, no, it was no use bringing it in, only I said he was under perhaps a little obligation to me sometimes.

50,878. And you went to fetch him on that account, because you thought he was under an obligation?—Him and me were friends together, and I thought perhaps he would go the same way as I did.

50,879. Did you mention to any one that you would go to him because he was under an obligation to you?—No, nor yet to him.

50,880. He came to you from his work?—He left his work and came home that night with me.

50,881. And there remained till he voted?—He voted at 8 o'clock in the morning, and then went to work, I believe.

50,882. Did you send him back?—No.

50,883. Who sent him back?—He had some work here, I think.

H. Sparrowhawk.

HENRY SPARROWHAWK sworn and examined.

50,884. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Were you a voter at the last election?—Yes.

50,885. And you have been a voter for some years, have you not?—Yes.

50,886. What rent do you pay for your house?—23*l.* a year.

50,887. What are you?—A boot and shoe maker.

50,888. For whom did you vote in 1865?—Mr. Gower.

50,889. I do not know whether you were on his committee?—No, I was not.

50,890. Did you receive any money at the election of 1865?—No.

50,891. Either for yourself or to give away?—No.

50,892. Did you take an active part in the election?—No.

50,893. Not at all?—Not at all.

50,894. Merely voted?—Merely voted.

50,895. Did you vote in 1863?—I had not a vote then.

50,896. When was your first election, 1858?—My first was Mr. Doulton's.

50,897. Were you engaged as canvasser for Mr. Doulton?—I was on, so much a day.

50,898. What did you have a day?—10*s.* 6*d.*

50,899. Who put you on?—I think it was Mr. Murphy.

50,900. How long did you work for Mr. Doulton?—I cannot exactly say.

50,901. How many weeks?—I do not think it was three weeks.

50,902. Perhaps you can tell me what you got?—About 7*l.* or 8*l.*

50,903. How were you paid?—At the end of the week.

50,904. At the end of each week ?—Yes.

50,905. Who paid you ?—I think Mr. Murphy.

50,906. Where were you paid ?—I was paid at the "Royal Oak," I think it was.

50,907. Was Truman present when the money was paid ?—I won't be certain.

50,908. Were there many others being paid with you ?—Yes. I did not see any one paid with me; there was only one in the room at a time.

50,909. Those who waited outside to be paid; did you see many of them ?—No, I did not.

50,910. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did Murphy pay you on each occasion ?—I think Mr. Truman paid me the last.

50,911. Murphy the other two ?—Yes, I think so.

50,912. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) When you were put on as canvasser had you promised your vote ?—Yes.

50,913. Had you promised your vote before you were put on as canvasser ?—No.

50,914. Who was it asked you for your vote, do you recollect ?—Mr. Murphy.

50,915. Was it at the same time that he asked you for your vote that he asked you to go on as canvasser ?—He asked me to come on.

50,916. Was it then you were promised the payment of money ?—Yes.

50,917. All at one interview ?—Yes.

50,918. What did you do for your 10*s.* 6*d.* a day ?—I went wherever they chose to send me; we used to meet in the morning.

50,919. Did you meet every morning ?—Yes, every morning.

50,920. What were you then ?—A boot and shoe maker.

50,921. Keeping a shop of your own ?—Yes.

50,922. Who attended to your business ? — My mother.

50,923. Whilst you were out ?—Yes.

50,924. How much of the day did you occupy in this canvassing ?—I cannot exactly say now.

50,925. Was it every day ?—Yes, as long as the election lasted.

50,926. As long as you were paid did your occupation of canvassing last ?—Yes, up to the polling day.

50,927. Now, did you only have that money in your hands, or did you have more money ?—No, sir.

50,928. Only the 10*s.* 6*d.* ?—Only the 10*s.* 6*d.*

50,929. Did you make any promises to voters to pay them money when you canvassed ?—No.

50,930. Did you find any difficulty in getting votes ?—No.

50,931. Did you get any votes ?—No, I did not.

50,932. Did you find, not having the power to offer money, that that was a hindrance to your getting votes ?—No, sir.

50,933. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You had no canvassing book, had you ?—No, I had not.

50,934. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Then you merely canvassed as you walked about the town, and might chance to meet a person. Was that the way in which you canvassed ? Did you go regularly out and call from house to house and canvass ?—No, sir, I did not.

50,935. Then how did you canvass ? Did you go far from your own house to canvass ?—I went out.

50,936. You might go out of the front door and go back again, but did you go out any distance from your own house to canvass? You do not recollect that you did ?—No, sir.

50,937. And probably did not. Did you go out from your own house at all to canvass ?—I went about, but I could not get any votes.

50,938. I will take it you did not go about much ?—I had no voice. I had only just come into the place.

50,939. Do you mean you had no influence ?—I did not know the people.

50,940. And they did not know you ?—No.

50,941. And so you could not get any votes ?—No.

50,942. Do not you believe that you were put on as canvasser merely as a colourable employment ? Do you understand what that means ?—Yes.

50,943. Was not it so ? You were put on simply for the purpose of voting, and not to do any real work ?—Yes.

50,944. You believe it was ?—Yes.

50,945. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) They wanted your vote, and you wanted 10*s.* 6*d.* a day. Did you go to them, or did they find you out ?—I believe Mr. Murphy came to me.

50,946. Your name was on the register ?—Yes.

50,947. And I suppose he asked you if you would like to be employed and to be paid for it, and "Would "you like to have 10*s.* 6*d.* a day" ?—Yes.

50,948. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Do you know any of the other men who were employed in the same way as canvassers on behalf of Mr. Doulton ?—No.

50,949. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) There is a brother of yours, is not there, who was employed in the same way in the town ?—I do not know him.

50,950. Yes, you do. Your brother is living at Redhill ?—Yes.

50,951. And he was employed as canvasser ? — Yes.

50,952. Is he a shoemaker ?—Yes.

50,953. And he voted for Mr. Doulton ?—He did.

50,954. What was he then ?—A shoemaker.

50,955. You brother went about canvassing as you did ?—My brother was on, sir.

50,956. Of course he was about as good a man as you; he knew just as much about Reigate or Redhill as you did. Do not you know from him that he was employed as you were ?—He was, sir, but I do not know what he had.

50,957. You know that he was employed, I am not asking you the amount, and to be paid something as you were ?—Yes.

50,958. Is that the one that was minding the shop whilst you were out ?—Yes.

50,959. As you went out canvassing he was in the shop, and as he went out canvassing you were in the shop ?—Yes.

50,960. And this lasted more than three weeks, did not it ?—I do not know. I was not on more than that.

50,961. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Were you attending at the public houses in the evening at that election ?—I do not know; I cannot say that I was.

50,962. Did you know whether the houses were open for refreshment ?—I never saw them.

50,963. You were not out ?—Not in Mr. Doulton's election. I never saw any refreshments.

50,964. Perhaps that shows that you stopped at home a good deal and were not very much out ?—I did not see any of Mr. Doulton's refreshments. Whatever we had we paid for.

GRANVILLE WILLIAM LEVESON GOWER, Esq. sworn and examined.

G. W. L. Gower, Esq.

50,965. (The Chief Commissioner.) You were a candidate, were you not, in 1865 against Mr. Monson ?—I was.

50,966. I believe you appointed Mr. Smith as your election agent ?—Yes, I did.

50,967. You had several sub-agents who worked for you, and I see you have written their names down, the names of a good many persons down on paper, which I have before me. Were those persons' names written down as your agents before the election ?—Did you say I had written them down ?

50,968. I understood so; I thought that was your handwriting ?—No, it is Mr. Smith's.

50,969. You were in the field as a candidate about how long before the 12th of July, which, I think, was the date of the election ? I have forgotten at this moment how long it was?—It was about the beginning of May. I will just look when I made my first speech.

THIRTY-FIFTH DAY.

G. W. L. Gower, Esq.

30 Oct. 1866.

50,970. I will take it the beginning of May; and Mr. Smith was appointed your agent at starting, I presume?—Yes. I never canvassed before the 20th of May; that is the first day I went round canvassing.

50,971. You went round with Mr. Smith, and also with some of his sub-agents?—The sub-agents were not with me on that occasion.

50,972. What were your instructions at starting to Mr. Smith, if you gave him any at all, as to the mode in which your election was to be conducted?—I gave Mr. Smith instructions upon that point, that I would have no bribery, and no engagement of public houses, and no treating; and I told him I did not care if I lost the election, unless I could win it fairly.

50,973. As the election went had you reason to think (I wish you to consider this question) that Mr. Smith was carrying out your instructions?—Yes, I believed so at the time.

50,974. I mean at the time?—Yes, during the election.

50,975. Previous to the polling day; I am ending it at that. You had reason to believe he was carrying out your instructions?—Yes, I had; in fact, he told me so, because he said he had advanced no money to the canvassers.

50,976. I do not mean anything said by Mr. Smith, but did no facts at all transpire which led you to doubt whether he was doing so?—No, there were none.

50,977. I dare say you recollect very well attending a meeting in the town hall both here and at Redhill about a fortnight or three weeks before the election, in which you made a speech about paying voters?—Yes; I can tell the Commissioners exactly what happened.

50,978. I wish you would give me the date?—On the 20th of June, Tuesday. Mr. Smith and my principal sub-agents, all of them, I think, came to my house in London. They stated to me that money was being offered to my voters, and that they could not be sure of retaining those who had promised me. My answer to them was this: I said, "If you will under-"take to conduct this election entirely on purity prin-"ciples, I on my part will undertake, in case we are "beaten, to lodge a petition; bnt it must be on the "understanding that your hands are perfectly clean." And I said, "If there is any impression that I will "pay any of these voters, I will come down to Reigate "the next day and remove that impression at once."

50,979. You said that to them?—I said that to them. It was in the nature of a distinct agreement. Some of them say now that they do not remember it; but it was a distinct understanding between us, that if they would conduct the election fairly, I on my part would engage to petition in case we were beaten, if our own hands were perfectly clean. The next day, the 21st, I had an engagement in London, which I gave up in order to come down here. I called a meeting of the principal gentlemen who were my supporters at the "White Hart." I then stated to them, in exactly the same words, what I had said to these men up in London. From that room at the "White Hart" we came here, where the general committee was sitting. I made the same statement, as far as I can remember, word for word. The statement was not well received, and when I had finished my statement, as I said in evidence before the House of Commons, some of the principal canvassers, I do not remember who they were, said, "Are we to understand that we "who work for you are to have nothing for our ser-"vices?" And I said, "I am not going to have a "number of idle men going about doing nothing, and "expecting to be paid; but those who have been "engaged in real work will be paid for it." That was what took place in this hall. I know the impression of that meeting when I left was not at all what has been said by some of the witnesses, that everybody expected to be paid, but quite the reverse, because the statement was not well received. I may say, with regard to that, I think it was Job Apted in his evidence.

50,980. I will come to that in a short time. I understand you now to say that the substance of that part of your speech to which you are most referring was, that those persons who had really worked for you would be paid?—Yes, and it was addressed to those gentlemen who made the remark. I do not know who they were. They were my principal canvassers; whether Apted or Buckland or Joyes I do not know. It was addressed to them.

50,981. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And intended as a distinct intimation, that those who did not work would not be paid?—I said so in so many words, "I "won't have a number of idle men running about and "expecting to be paid."

50,982. (The Chief Commissioner.) I dare say you recollect pretty nearly the turn which you gave that very sentence when you made that part of your speech, that those persons who really worked, meaning a distinction from those who only pretended to work, would be paid. It agrees with what we have heard from other places?—I think the statement I gave before the House of Commons was as near as possible the words I have used. I may mention, until the committee of the House of Commons, I never heard a word about it. No one ever said to me, "We "expect to be paid." The first I ever heard of it was in the statement of Johnson before the committee of the House of Commons.

50,983. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) It is Question 1644, at the top of page 31.—"When I addressed "this public meeting at the town hall I said I would "not have all these messengers and canvassers that "they required. The meeting was not satisfied with "that statement. Some of them came to me after-"wards and said, 'We have been working for you all "'this time; are we to understand we are to have "'nothing for it.' I answered that 'those who "'work for me will be paid for their work.'" The only thing I wish to qualify is the word "after-"wards."

50,984. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) If you used the word "afterwards," it would mean in the town hall?—I am not sure that I did use the word "after-"wards," but it was at the time.

50,985. (The Chief Commissioner.) Did it occur to you at the time, that that part of your speech was so worded that it might be a little bit equivocal?—No, it never occurred to me at the time, and I never heard a word about it till the Committee of the House of Commons.

50,986. Has it occurred to you since to think that that part of your speech might be variously interpreted, and so rather equivocal?—No, I think not in the sense in which it was spoken. If I had to conduct an election again, I certainly would never make any statement about payment whatever.

50,987. The more important question a great deal is, of course, did it occur to you at the time that you were using an equivocal phrase?—Not at all. It was spoken quite in the contrary sense to what they seem to have taken it. It was followed just immediately with saying that I would not have a number of idle people about.

50,988. I wish to know what was passing in your own mind in the first place, and in the second place to tell you what impression it made on others, when you say that you did not use that phrase intending that people should think you would pay them money if they worked?—Certainly not. The words "well "paid," I utterly deny ever having used. That was an addition of Johnson's; I never used the words.

50,989. He was the only one, as far as I recollect, who added "well paid."—There was a witness named Mitchell, who states that Apted said any one who served on Mr. Gower's committee would be paid well.

50,990. Now you see the effect of it was, as far as we learn from the witnesses who heard it, from a man named Johnson, Huxtable, Chilcott, Bagallay, —I leave out Mr. North; those men I have mentioned, and Apted also; that makes six, say, and more particularly the five, though Apted mentions it, —that they did not expect to be paid till they heard your speech in the hall, and then they had great hopes?—I notice most of the witnesses have been paid at former elections, who say that they expected to be paid.

50,991. A word about that by-and-bye?—If I may say so, it was certainly a week, if not ten days, after that that a meeting at Redhill took place, in which we were accused of starving the election.

50,992. I will come to that. Now that you hear that as many as five, at any rate ordinary persons, leaving out Mr. Apted, who might be more critical perhaps, as many as five persons, interpreted that into a promise to pay them money; does not it now occur to you that your speech in that particular was somewhat equivocal?—No doubt they interpreted it so; I believe it was suggested to them before they went into the Committee of the House of Commons.

50,993. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) It is what they said here?—It was all subsequent to the House of Commons Inquiry. I told the Commissioners I would not make such a statement again, seeing how it has been misunderstood.

50,994. (The Chief Commissioner.) Bearing that in mind, did not you know that in the election of 1863 a very large sum of money had been paid away to voters who had done only colourable work for you?—Yes.

50,995. You knew that at the time?—Yes.

50,996. Would not that itself lead you to think you were using a very equivocal expression, and one likely to mislead the voters at the election of 1865?—No; I can only say it never occurred to my mind to use it with any equivocal meaning whatever.

50,997. You see I take it; you had known the sort of work in which voters had been employed in 1863, and you had known at any rate the extent to which they had been paid?—Yes, but I had spoken so strongly at the beginning of this election that I considered myself safe. Not only did I speak to Mr. Smith, but there was not one of my principal agents but what I spoke to privately on the subject. They will all concur in saying that.

50,998. I thought it was three or four days after?—It was the next week after I am sure.

50,999. It has been stated to us it was about three days afterwards?—I am sure it was longer than that.

51,000. After that speech at the town hall a deputation came to you at Redhill?—No, that is a mistake altogether; the application that was made for money was in an envelope to Mr. Smith.

51,001. I am aware of that, but a deputation came to you, did it not, at the committee room at Redhill?—No.

51,002. A deputation headed by Mr. Apted?—No deputation ever came. That is a mistake that has gone through the evidence of two or three witnesses. The only deputation that ever waited on me was this one in London.

51,003. (The Chief Commissioner.) After the speech made by you at the town hall on the 21st of June, two or three days afterwards, did you receive a letter irom your sub-agents, which has been called a "round-robin," which you handed over to your committee?—No, Mr. Smith received it; it was directed to him.

51,004. I thought you had received it?—No.

51,005. Did he hand it over to you?—He handed it to me in a room at the "White Hart." I was going over to a committee meeting at Redhill. I went from this place round by Mr. North's house, my chairman, called for him, and then went on Redhill, where our committee meeting was to take place in the market hall, taking Mr. North with me. At the market hall we had a private room and also a room in which the committee were to meet, and in our private room I showed that document to Mr. Webb, Mr. North, and one or two more.

51,006. Mr. Smith was there?—Yes; they were all present.

51,007. I think you told them that the business of the committee meeting rather was to consider that letter, that round-robin?—No, I told them privately that we had to consider it, not the general committee.

51,008. You did take it into consideration, and then I think you and the other gentlemen you have mentioned went out into the committee room and met the persons who had sent you the round-robin?—Yes, but never said a word to them on the subject of that round-robin.

51,009. Oh, no, no?—I can tell the Commissioners, as far as I remember, exactly what took place between us privately.

51,010. I think you ought to have an opportunity of stating it?—This memorial was given to me by Smith, and I showed it to these gentlemen who were there. I said, "It is impossible that we can advance "them any money of this kind," and then we discussed generally the subject of the election. Mr. Smith informed us no money whatever had been advanced for the purposes of the election. The election had been going on some four weeks, but we must then begin to have our committee meetings, and it was mentioned in my presence that the sum of 100*l.* should be advanced to them.

51,011. It was mentioned in your presence?—I knew that sum of money was to be advanced, but I did not consider it excessive, because I was told no money had hitherto been advanced, and that sum of money was to be divided among some eight or ten men.

51,012. Did you understand who those eight or ten men were?—Yes; they were Apted, Buckland, Joyes, Mazden, and so on. Their names are on the paper.

51,013. Green, and the sub-agents with whom we are familiar?—Yes.

51,014. After that did you go into the committee room and have an interview with these gentlemen; Mr. Apted, and so on?—Yes, we then had our committee meeting.

51,015. At which they attended?—At which they were all present.

51,016. Do you recollect on that occasion it being mentioned by one of them that the election, by word of mouth to you and the committee, that the election had been starved?—Yes; Apted said so. He said I was not canvassing enough, and that we were starving the election.

51,017. At that time you said you refused to advance money to any extent?—I did not discuss with them the subject of this memorial at all. I merely said, "If I am not canvassing sufficiently I will come "and canvass sufficiently;" and I reiterated my statement about improper payments, but I did not discuss the subject of the document.

51,018. Did any one of them tell you when you declined to advance money, did they say, "Well, if "you like we will work without money, but it must "be on the understanding that in case you lose the "election, and are not likely to win, you will have a "petition to the House"?—I do not remember that; that was my offer to them.

51,019. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Your offer in London?—It was in the nature of an agreement.

51,020. (The Chief Commissioner.) Do you recollect the deputation, we will call it so, I believe the spokesman at the time was Apted, but do you remember their saying, "Well, if you won't advance us "money," or words to that effect, "we will work "without it; but it must be on the distinct understand- "ing, on your promise, that you will present a petition "if you lose, and we will go upon that"?—I do not remember that. Several of them asked me, would I lodge a petition if we were beaten. I said, "Yes, if "your hands are clean I will, not unless."

51,021. When that proposition was made to you, did not you decline to leave it to a petition at all and have anything to do with a petition?—No; I do not remember anything of that sort.

51,022. Are you sure that you did not, that you declined to pledge yourself to have recourse to a petition?—No; I did pledge myself to a petition if they would do that.

51,023. I have now got to another occasion, the occasion at Redhill; you had declined to advance them as much money as they wanted. The sum they wanted was as much as 500*l.*; you declined in effect, either by your own lips or through the committe. Did not they then say to you, "Well, we will work for "nothing and take the chance," adding, "though it is "a bad one," or something of that sort; "but you must "pledge yourself to have a petition and stand upon it "afterwards"?—No, I do not remember anything of that sort being said.

51,024. I do not understand you to say that such a thing did not take place?—I am pretty nearly sure it was not said in that way. They may have said to me, "Will you lodge a petition?" and I should have said the same as I said before, "I will lodge a "petition if you will conduct the election perfectly "fairly on your part."

51,025. What I want to know is, can you with your own recollection take upon yourself to say that this did not pass, that Mr. Apted, I will put it in his mouth, did not say, "Well then, if that is the case, "finding you will not advance money, we will, if you "like, go to work," that was the phrase, "for nothing; "but it must be on your pledging yourself that if we "fail you will have a petition"?—I do not remember it being said. I think if it had been said I should have remembered it. At that meeting I do not remember we had any discussion about it.

51,026. I am quoting him; he says that took place?—Yes, I know he does, but I think it did not.

51,027. You think it did not take place?—I think not.

51,028. At any rate you will not go further than say that you do not recollect it, but you think you would if it had taken place?—This is the statement of Apted on the subject: "A deputation went to Mr. "Gower"——

51,029. What are you reading from?—That is Apted's evidence from The Times.

51,030. I don't want that; I have repeated to you pretty faithfully what he stated before us; I am pretty nearly certain I am right about what Mr. Apted said?—I do not remember it, and I do not think it took place in my presence, because I think I should have remembered it if it had; but I will not swear that it did not.

51,031. How do you account for this, that, having stated what you did state at your house in London, you did not state the same thing to Mr. Apted's deputation at Redhill, about standing on a petition?—There was no deputation there.

51,032. Then I will not call it a deputation; I will say when Mr. Apted and the sub-agents came to Redhill, when Mr. Apted said you were "starving "the election," and you decided to advance money, why did you not pledge yourself to petition, as you had already done at your own house, when you said, "Well, I'll have no improper spending of money at "all, I will rather have recourse to a petition after- "wards"?—If the subject of the petition was mentioned, I am quite sure I should have said that. The statement that I made here I repeated subsequently at almost every committee meeting I attended, as well at Redhill as elsewhere.

51,033. That is about spending money?—No, about the petition; I mentioned that.

51,034. We have heard very little about that except on two occasions?—Every agent will tell you it was bonâ fide between us: if, on their part, they conducted the election fairly I, on my part, engaged to petition if we were beaten.

51,035. What Apted told us was this, "Well, we'll "work for nothing," which is rather a short phrase, and a very intelligible one?—I am prepared to say here that Apted never did make such a statement.

51,036. Pray understand me as not wishing to press you on towards denying it; I only want to test your recollection about it. You say the deputation, you do not like the word "deputation," you say they went away?—It was an ordinary committee meeting. There were others present besids the sub-agents; it was not confined to them. After I made a speech I went away.

51,037. They seemed to think themselves that you all retired from the committee room, Mr. Smith seemed to think so, so did Mr. North, that you all retired from the committee room about the same time?—I think so.

51,038. And went into what you call the private room?—No, I went away; the meeting in that private room took place before the committee.

51,039. Did you not go back into the private room?—No.

51,040. Just after you had left the committee room did you see Mr. Smith talking with some of the sub-agents in the passage, do you recollect?—No.

51,041. But you say you did know that that arrangement was made in that private room, that 100*l.* should be given to the sub-agents?—Yes, a sum not exceeding 100*l.* It was because I had been told that no payments had up to that time been made not for current expenses.

51,042. What was the 100*l.* for? What did you intend it for?—For the legitimate expenses. They had had no money at all I was told; they had been going up by railway to see voters, and so on, and matters of that kind. I understood it to be for legitimate expenses. I should not have sanctioned a larger sum, nor should I have sanctioned that, if I had known their current expenses were being paid.

51,043. Did you know at that time that a great many persons were being employed as canvassers, a great many smaller persons?—No.

51,044. Did you afterwards learn that a great many canvassers were being employed here and at Redhill?—Not until the accounts were sent in to me.

51,045. I mean before the accounts came in?—No; not before the election.

51,046. I mean before the election, much smaller persons than sub-agents?—No, I did not.

51,047. Ten times as numerous; persons who were what has been called "put on:" were you not aware of that?—No, I had no reason to know it; because these men, when I canvassed them this time, the greater part of them, promised me at once. They did not say they would wait, but they most of them promised me their votes at once.

51,048. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You did not meet them out canvassing, did you?—No.

51,049. (The Chief Commissioner.) Whether paid or not, did you not know that a great many persons were employed for you?—No, I did not.

51,050. Did you know of whom your committee consisted?—I met them there.

51,051. I mean those on the list?—Yes.

51,052. Do you not know that a great many of those persons were very small persons?—Yes.

51,053. Did you know that any of them were working for you at one thing or the other, out canvassing, or something else?—No, I did not.

51,054. Did you know that any of them were being paid?—No.

51,055. Did you know that any of them were "put on" with the promise that they were to be paid if they did work?—No, I did not.

51,056. Now, did it not occur to you that those persons, the smaller persons, whose names you saw on the committee, would be the very persons who might come within the definition which you had laid down in the town hall here, as persons who ought to be paid for work done?—No; because I should not consider it work attending a committee.

51,057. What I am endeavouring to test is your knowledge of whether those persons who were on your committee, and who were voters, were receiving money or not?—I have no knowledge of it. I see some of them state they thought that by coming upon that committee, that meant, they were going to be paid. I had no idea of that at the time.

51,058. Before the election, did you not know that the men who were employed for you were voters? I am speaking now of the small men?—I did not know that any of them were employed for me.

51,059. Very well. You were frequently here and at Redhill during the candidateship?—Yes; from about the 21st of June; that was the day of the meeting I stated.

51,060. And you frequently attended committee meetings?—Yes.

51,061. Did you not see a great number of small tradespeople attending the committees that you were present at?—Yes, the committees were very well attended.

51,062. And you knew that these people, of course, were voters?—Yes, they were; they were all voters.

51,063. Did you not know that they were receiving money?—No, I did not.

51,064. Did you not know from anything you were told of them that they were persons who expected money, and had been promised money, for work to be done?—No.

51,065. Your election was conducted by Mr. Smith in 1863, was it not?—Yes.

51,066. Was it conducted much in the same way?—Well, there was a great difference. On that occasion I attended public house meetings, and we engaged committee rooms at public houses; and in 1865 I never entered a public house, nor made a speech in one. When I say I never entered a public house I mean, not to attend a meeting.

51,067. Did not you know that in 1863 a great number of small tradesmen who served on your committee were paid for work they did for you?—I knew it after the election.

51,068. Then, bearing that in mind, can you say that you did not know that the voters in 1865 who were on your committee were not to be paid?—Yes, I can, because of that strong statement which I made to them; and, as I said before, at this election they promised me their votes at once; not like the election of 1863, when I came a stranger and they did not know me. Almost all of them this time promised me early. And also I considered the petition having been lodged in 1863 was a great safeguard, that they would not incur the risk again.

51,069. Then I take it now you say in effect that your speech, made in the sense in which you made it, disarms any imputation of knowledge that voters in 1865 were receiving money?—Yes.

51,070. What do you mean by the petition of 1863, that you considered that would be a safeguard?—Well, I considered that having been petitioned against in 1863 they would not run the risk of incurring another petition in 1865.

51,071. But the petition of 1863 was got over?—Yes, but it was the first petition that had been lodged against the seat here; I always said to them "I will not run the risk of another petition."

51,072. Then, in short, as I said before (I do not use the term at all unpleasantly), you consider the speeches you made about payments in 1865 altogether drew a clear difference between that election and the election of 1863?—Yes.

51,073. You meant to say in effect, "Whatever votes "were paid for in 1863 (whether they were or not), they "shall not be paid for on this occasion"?—Yes, I said it should be on an entirely different footing, we would have no public house meetings; and I may say that those canvassers who waited upon me in London went away apparently satisfied with the arrangement.

51,074. Yes, but it was on that occasion in London you added, "and I would rather stand on the petition"?—And so I did here constantly state the same thing.

51,075. It has been stated to us, as I have told you, that when the sub-agents came to you at Redhill, they told you they would work for nothing if you would pledge yourself to a petition, and that you rather then declined that course?—I am sure it was not so. I never varied from that statement that I made on the 20th of June till the end of the election.

51,076. Going back for a moment to the "round-robin" which you received, and which you took down to the Redhill committee room, have you got that "round-robin," or a copy of it?—No, I gave it to Mr. Smith. I believe it was addressed to him; it was never addressed to me.

51,077. And you have not got it?—No.

51,078. Did you not learn from your sub-agents when they came to you at Redhill, that the other side were bribing to a considerable extent, and they wanted money?—They told me so.

51,079. I believe they told you that the 500*l.* they wanted was because of that; was it not? or told you that which made you understand it so?—I do not think they ever spoke to me on the subject of that 500*l.*, as far as I remember; I am quite sure I never had any conversation with Apted or any of them upon it.

51,080. But you had that conversation with Apted after you had discussed the "round-robin" in the private room and adjourned into the committee room to meet them?—Not on the subject of that "round-robin." It was merely a general statement, the same statement they made in London, that votes were being taken away from our side, and they were not sure of the election.

51,081. But did they not tell you they wanted money to counteract the effect of that?—No, I think not.

51,082. I mean in substance?—No.

51,083. Did they not tell you this; the expression I used before was this; that a great deal of money was being spent on the other side for gaining votes, and that it was absolutely necessary you should give them money for the same purpose?—No; their original statement was, "You must put on more canvassers "and messengers." That I declined to do.

51,084. Did you understand anything particular by "canvasser"; what did you mean by "canvasser"?—I knew what they meant.

51,085. What did they mean?—Merely paying money to voters. That I declined altogether.

51,086. Still you were aware that on that very occasion you did advance, at least your agent did advance them 100*l.*?—Yes.

51,087. That being so, can you suggest a reason why one should not think that that 100*l.* went to "put on" more canvassers of such a description as you meant?—No; because I was told they had no money for the current expenses of the election.

51,088. Therefore you thought the 100*l.* was not so much for putting on canvassers?—Not at all that; I thought it was to be given to these agents.

THIRTY-FIFTH DAY.

G. W. L. Gower, Esq.

30 Oct. 1866.

51,089. Now, bearing that in mind, did you not know at that time that Mr. Smith had made an arrangement to pay a certain sum of money to those very sub-agents?—No, I do not think I did.

51,090. The arrangement was for a largish sum of money to be paid to them; did you not know at that time that those very men whom you say had not received any money, that Mr. Smith, your agent, had arranged with them to pay them so much a head for working for you?—No, I did not know the sums of money.

51,091. If you did not know the sum of money, did you not know that he had arranged to pay them?—I knew they were to be paid.

51,092. Then they could not have wanted the 100*l.*?—It would have been about 10*l.*; there were nine or ten of them, and they had been canvassing ever since the 21st of May.

51,093. And was it to meet their disbursements?—I did not know at that time their current expenses were being paid; what I mean by their current expenses, when they had to go to Godstone, or perhaps to Sydenham, and places of that sort, that their journeys were being paid.

51,094. Did you learn before the election how much these sub-agents were to be paid per head?—No, I did not. I do not remember ever being shown a list.

51,095. I will come to the money part in a short time; let me ask you another question. In 1863 you had canvassed yourself personally, I believe?—Yes.

51,096. Had you ever yourself, I dare say you will understand the phrase, "put on" people in 1863, that is, told them to go and get work for you, and they would be paid for it?—No, I do not think I ever did.

51,097. In 1863 a man named Corderoy was one of your sub-agents?—Yes.

51,098. Do you remember on one occasion canvassing a voter named Apps with him?—Yes.

51,099. A man who was working at the plough?—Yes, I do remember that.

51,100. Do you remember Apps being rather coy about promising his vote?—Yes.

51,101. Declining, in short, to promise it at the time?—Yes.

51,102. Do you remember any suggestion being made by you in Apps' presence to Corderoy, in consequence of which Corderoy made him a promise of money, in your presence too?—No; I have taken a note of that, and I am quite sure nothing of the sort passed between us. I believe Corderoy would say the same. There was nobody else present but myself, and Corderoy, and Apps, and he was ploughing in the field. There was nobody else present.

51,103. It is not suggested that there was; but what I want to know is: is it true, or is it not true, that after you had been talking to Apps, and found him hesitating, you made a significant sign, or gave a significant look to Corderoy, and that he, rightly interpreting it, suggested to Apps that his plough "wanted greasing"?—No, I am quite sure it was not true. I see here he states that Corderoy remained behind. I am quite sure that he went away with me immediately.

51,104. But what he said was this: "Mr. Gower "and Corderoy looked at each other after this," (when he would not promise his vote) "that they "looked at each other,"—his phrase was more than that; "they gave a look at each other, and Corderoy "gave a look at Mr. Gower, and then," as if you assented, "he said, 'By the way, don't your plough "'want greasing?'"—I am quite sure it is false.

51,105. You know a man hesitating about his vote, and anxious to get money for his vote, would be ready to interpret any sign that passed between you and Corderoy, and it would not be difficult to speak in signs on such an occasion. Do you deny that you gave Corderoy any encouragement, which Apps may have so interpreted?—Yes, I deny it positively.

51,106. I do not understand that you have denied Corderoy saying to the man, "Would not a little "grease do your plough good?"—Not in my hearing. There is another statement which he made which I wish to deny most positively.

51,107. By all means; what is it?—That he told Mr. Gower and Corderoy in 1863 that if they would give him 3*l.* first he would vote for Mr. Gower, and they told him he should vote first, and he would be paid afterwards. I deny that most positively.

51,108. Do you deny that any sum of money was mentioned in your presence?—That any sum of money was mentioned in my presence.

51,109. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Or any conversation of that kind or character?—Yes.

51,110. (The Chief Commissioner.) You see it is rather a difficult bit of evidence to be set before you, because, as I have already said, you were supposed to have spoken in signs. It is very difficult to contradict that. As far as it can be done, do I understand you to contradict that you did anything which could be interpreted into offering money, or authorizing Corderoy to offer him a bribe?—Yes, most certainly.

51,111. Assuming it would be a bribe, which I have no doubt about?—Yes.

51,112. Now, then, I will come to another matter. In 1865 I suppose you knew what was the amount of the expenses sent in by Mr. Smith to the returning officer?—Not until after he had returned them. He wrote to me on the 21st of September. I have got the letter here.

51,113. I think the amount sent in by him was 1,356*l.* odd?—He wrote to me on the 21st of September, saying, "I have returned the expenses as "1,356*l.* odd."

51,114. You did not know it until he told you?—No, not until he sent me word of it, and I saw it advertised in the paper.

51,115. That would be afterwards; but you did not know it before?—Not before.

51,116. Did Mr. Smith have any conference with you as to the amount to be returned before it was returned?—No.

51,117. Did you take any part with him in making up the expenses to be sent in to the returning officer?—No, none whatever.

51,118. Did you leave it entirely to him?—I left it entirely to him.

51,119. At that time are you able to tell me whether 1,356*l.* had been paid by you, or was some of it still due?—I had only paid 700*l.*: one payment on the 5th of July of 200*l.*; one of the 12th of August of 500*l.*

51,120. Then, after the 1,356*l.* was returned to the auditor, did Mr. Smith at once tell you, either verbally or by letter, that that did not near cover the election expenses, but that he was bound to return a sum to the returning officer?—No, he did not.

51,121. I do not mean only by letter, but did he make you aware?—Not until afterwards; not until some time afterwards.

51,122. Be particular about this, if you please; do you mean that at the time the 1,356*l.* was returned to the election auditor you were not aware that that did not cover all the expenses?—No, I believed there would be some more.

51,123. There was considerably more, 650*l.* about?—Yes.

51,124. I will give it you exactly; 644*l.* 10*s.*?—Yes.

51,125. Can you tell me how much that election of 1865 cost altogether? What did you pay for it?—The actual sum I have paid is 1,900*l.*: a cheque on the 5th of July, before the election, for 200*l.* (I have got the vouchers for them here); one on the 12th of August for 500*l.*; one on the 20th of September for 700*l.*; and one on the 23rd of October, 500*l.*

51,126. That is in 1865?—Yes.

51,127. Then it did not reach quite 2,000*l.*?—No.

51,128. I thought the election cost you nearly 2,000*l.*?—There is the "White Hart" bill; I do not know whether you count that as part. It is my own private bill.

51,129. No, no; I do not count that. I recollect that very well?—I was going just to say this. Mr. Smith said, when he returned the expenses, "I have "sent in the election accounts to the returning officer "as 1,356*l.* odd; I have actually paid on your account "1,400*l.*, and shall be glad of another cheque. Except "our principal canvassers your accounts are generally "settled." Therefore I knew there was more money to come.

51,130. Don't you know that he had returned in the election expenses the names of the principal canvassers, with the fees paid to them opposite their names?—When I met him in October he told me so.

51,131. No; I mean at the time when the election expenses were sent in, and when you saw 1,356*l.* was the sum returned, did you not know that in that very sum of 1,356*l.* were included your sub-agents' names and the payments to them?—Oh, yes; in the returns.

51,132. What did you understand him to mean when he said, "I have paid most of your expenses, "except the sub-agents;" because they had already been paid?—I spoke to him on that subject when we met in October. I did not meet him on the subject of these accounts until October.

51,133. It was then that you got the explanation from him about them?—Yes.

51,134. It appeared to you, did it not, to require an explanation, because there seemed an inconsistency in returning A, B, and C, election agents, at so much apiece, and then afterwards asking for money to pay them?—Oh, yes; I spoke to him on the subject.

51,135. I do not want to get the explanation of it from you. I know what the explanation is. I want to know how far you were acquainted with it?—I never saw the accounts before they were sent in.

51,136. Oh, you didn't?—No, I never saw them until I saw them advertised in the paper.

51,137. Then you would see, "Sub-agents, so much"?—Yes, oh yes.

51,138. A large sum?—Yes.

51,139. Of course I conclude you thought they had been paid?—Just so.

51,140. Then it was rather surprising afterwards to be told you had not paid your sub-agents?—Yes; I spoke to Mr. Smith on the point when we met in October.

51,141. Had the same thing occurred in 1863?—The returned expenses did not tally with the actual expenses.

51,142. The returned expenses then amounted to 1,900*l.*?—Yes.

51,143. And the election cost you about 2,500*l.*?—Yes, not quite.

51,144. 2,500*l.* nearly?—Nearly.

51,145. Had you found that the same thing happened in 1863, that, although the sub-agents had been returned as paid to the returning officer, they had not been paid, and that you had to pay for them afterwards?—No, I do not remember.

51,146. I think I may fairly assume, may I not—you will tell me if I am wrong—that as in 1863 you had found the actual expenses overtopped the returned expenses by 600*l.*, so in 1865 you might expect to have a great deal more to pay than the sum mentioned in the returned accounts?—Yes; I knew there was more money to be paid.

51,147. Did you know pretty nearly the amount you would have to pay, 650*l.*?—Not until afterwards.

51,148. Not before you paid it?—No.

51,149. I take your word for it, Mr. Gower, without asking you to produce your book, if you will give it me that the actual expenses of the election of 1865, from beginning to end, was something like 2,000*l.*?—Yes, it was. You see these sums of money were paid before I was asked for the money; that is to say, the election auditor was paid 1,356*l.*, while at that time I had only paid 700*l.*

51,150. That I understand; and subsequently you had to make up the 1,356*l.*, and afterwards came subsequent payments, which made it up to something like 2,000*l.*?—Yes.

51,151. Then I take it you give me your word that the election did cost you not more than 2,000*l.*?—No.

51,152. And that the election of 1863 did not cost you more than 2,500*l.*?—2,450*l.*

51,153. Very well; I will take it at that. Now, in 1863 you found, after the election, that a great many demands were made upon you that you had not calculated upon, didn't you?—Yes.

51,154. Did you satisfy them?—I believe they were all satisfied.

51,155. Do you recollect any particular instance which surprised you, any demands made which you did not expect to receive, in 1863?—There were some very large bills from the public house keepers.

51,156. They rather surprised you, I think?—Yes; and I wrote letters on the subject to Mr. Smith. There was one at an hotel at Redhill, the "Wheatsheaf."

51,157. A very large one?—Yes.

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) 200*l.* in all?

51,158. (The Chief Commissioner.) More than that, was it not?—No, I do not think it was.

51,159. 244*l.* The name was Newman or Newnham?—That was why in the election of 1865 I was determined to have nothing to do with public houses.

51,160. Now, among other claims in 1863 which surprised you, was there not a large hotel bill here?—Yes, at the "White Hart." There was a large private bill; but then I was there.

51,161. No, no; I don't mean your private bill?—I do not remember the bill being very large.

51,162. I have heard of your private bill; I do not want to say anything about that. That was a strictly private bill?—Entirely so.

51,163. I don't want to go into that. But during the election your committee room was at the "White Hart"?—Yes.

51,164. Had you a very large bill from there?—Yes; there was a very large bill. All the public house bills were excessive on that occasion.

51,165. They were paid?—Yes; I believe they were all paid.

51,166. Did they strike you as excessive in 1865?—I never had an account of them in 1865. In fact, I never saw the election accounts until they were given in by my parliamentary agents with the petition. That is the only election account I have got now.

51,167. You know the cost of the two elections, I wish you to give it me, and I have no doubt you could give it me from your own banker's book?—The cheques were all drawn on Drummond's bank, and the vouchers for them are all here.

51,168. I only want to know how much money you have paid away through your banker for these elections?—That is the way I made them out. I made them out from my banker's book, with the dates, and when they were cashed. They are not taken from any returns. They are taken out of my banker's book, with the days on which the cheques were drawn.

51,169. I am satisfied if you will give it to me?—I will hand in a statement from my banker's book, if the Commissioners wish for it.

51,170. I want to ask you another question as to the circulars; were you not aware in 1865, sitting on the committee as you did, that a great number of circulars were sent out by an immense number of persons employed to take them out?—I know there were a great number of circulars.

51,171. Did it not occur to you at that time that that was merely colourable employment?—No, it did not; they were my addresses.

51,172. Did you know those persons who took them out were being paid for doing what they did?—I knew those who took them round were paid for what they did.

THIRTY-FIFTH DAY.

G. W. L. Gower, Esq.

30 Oct. 1866.

51,173. You knew that many of them were voters who used to work ?—I knew there were voters, but I was never brought in contact with them.

51,174. Did you know what money any of them were being paid ?—No.

51,175. Have you any idea of the number of persons actually employed in carrying about circulars for you in 1865 ?—No, I have not. I did not see a great number of people, it was generally the same man ; I know there was always one man here in this committee room ready to take circulars and letters.

51,176. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) After the election how much money did you give to Mr. Smith to pay. You were applied to for a sum of money ; was it about 500*l.* or 600*l* ?—In 1865 ?

51,177. Yes, in 1865 ?—Before the election I paid him 200*l.* on the 5th of July, and after the election, on the 12th of August, I gave him a cheque for 500*l.* ; between that and the next election audits were sent. I was in Mr. Smith's debt 600*l.*, and my next payment was 700*l.*, on the 20th of September ; that made in all 1,400*l.*, the auditor's return being 1,356*l.*

51,178. It is in reference to the 700*l.* I wish to draw your attention at the present moment ; I do not think we have had a full explanation of that. Mr. Smith told us he sent to you by letter, or told you verbally that large accounts had been sent in after the accounts had been sent in for the mayor ?—That was after the 700*l.* was paid, between that and the next payment.

51,179. What was the last payment ; I am about that ?—500*l.*, on the 23rd of October.

51,180. That is the payment. Was it by letter, or was it verbally, that Mr. Smith asked you for the 500*l.* ?—It was verbally, about the beginning or middle of October.

51,181. Did Mr. Smith then explain to you the claims which had been sent in for the 500*l.* ?—Yes ; but he told me then, as he tells me in the letter, that they were mostly payments to the principal canvassers.

51,182. That was the first letter you received when the accounts were sent in ?—Yes ; he says here, "I "have actually paid 1,400*l.*, and except the principal "canvassers all the accounts are paid."

51,183. I am referring to the time when he applied for the 500*l.*, in October ?—He repeated that statement, that the demands made upon him then were demands made upon him by the principal canvassers.

51,184. Did you go into detail of what those demands were ?—He showed me a few of them.

51,185. Were they not in reference to demands which had been made upon the sub-agents, and Apted, and those men ?—No ; payments to the sub-agents themselves.

51,186. What was the amount which was to be paid to the sub-agents altogether ; you see they were returned ?—They were returned in the accounts, but they had not been settled out of the election auditor's accounts.

51,187. The sub-agents were returned in the election expenses to the mayor at 305*l.*?—Yes.

51,188. You had been aware of the fact from the advertisements, and from Mr. Smith ?—Yes.

51,189. Then the 305*l.* they were returned as being paid ?—Yes, but they were not paid.

51,190. They were paid some of that ?—No, I was told not.

51,191. That is the letter you have referred to, in which he said he had paid all the expenses ?—Yes ; except the principal agents.

51,192. Well, according to the returns, there would be 305*l.* paid, or to be paid, to the sub-agents ?—Yes.

51,193. Then there was a claim for 500*l.* you say, which was nearly 200*l.* more ?—I do not think that payment was made upon any account to the sub-agents, it was merely put in a lump sum.

51,194. Take it as a lump sum,—305*l.* being the total. Assuming, as you say, this claim was for sub-agents, you would have known that the sub-agents were only to receive 305*l.* ?—No ; because I did not think that 305*l.* represented any real sum. I did not think it was entered as any real claim sent in to Mr. Smith.

51,195. No other money was to be paid except the 305*l.* ?—No more. You do not understand me. I do not think 305*l.* represented any actual calculation of what they were to be paid.

51,196. It was what Mr. Smith said they should be paid ?—The demands were more ; 250*l.* one, and 50*l.* another, and so on. I do not think it was calculated on that basis ; it was merely a round sum put in. Mr. Smith can explain that ; I do not know about it.

51,197. Mr. Smith has explained that, but it is open to suggest that 305*l.* returned to the mayor as having been paid to the sub-agents, was a mere fictitious sum ?—It was not paid to the agents, because Mr. Smith told me so himself.

51,198. Mr. Smith has told us that he has put certain sums of money, some of them had not been paid, to make up the sum of 305*l.* He has estimated each of them, what monies were to be paid ?—I believe when I asked Mr. Smith in October—he can contradict me if I am not right—I believe at that time the principal canvassers had not received anything at all.

51,199. When the 500*l.* was asked for ?—When the 500*l.* was asked for.

51,200. It would require some explanation, because it was published to the world 305*l.* was all that was going to be paid, or had been paid, or was due, to the sub-agents ?—It did require some explanation. I asked Mr. Smith at the time, but I do not think any part of that 305*l.* had gone in payment of the salary of the sub-agents ; that is my impression.

51,201. You thoroughly understand, at the time the accounts were sent in ?—Yes.

51,202. At the time it was sent in it was a fictitious account ?—Yes.

51,203. You, at the time that you saw this in the newspaper, probably would believe 305*l.* was the only amount that would be paid or payable to the sub-agents ?—Yes.

51,204. You did not look upon it when you saw it in the newspaper as being a fictitious item ?—Certainly not.

51,205. Still, my question is equally pointed. When you were asked for 500*l.* for the sub-agents did you ask for an explanation from Mr. Smith of why you were to pay 500*l.* when 305*l.* was returned ?—Yes.

51,206. What was the explanation ?—I spoke to him on the subject, and asked how he was justified in that.

51,207. What was the explanation ?—Oh, Mr. Smith's explanation was the gentlemen were to be paid, and the only course was this, either to let Mr. Smith be out of pocket, or to pay it myself ; I had no option.

51,208. But the money had not been paid ?—Yes, I think you will find it had.

51,209. Then there was a letter from Mr. Smith to you, asking for 500*l.*, or an interview with Mr. Smith, when you were made acquainted that a larger sum had been sent in by the sub-agents ?—I have got no letter.

51,210. Was it not told you at the time by Mr. Smith that a large portion of the 500*l.* was required to pay men who had been put on as canvassers ?—No ; I do not think he put it in that way. I think he said the principal agents and canvassers had to be paid. I made a remark at the time. I said, "How are you "going to justify this expenditure before any com- "mittee of the House of Commons or other tribunal ;" and he said, "It is for work done."

51,211. Did he explain to you what the work was, or did you ask him to do so ?—No ; I did not go into accounts with him. I know the demand he made on me was 2,500*l.*

51,212. You see, Mr. Gower, there is no doubt about this ; you are as well aware of it as we are, from what has taken place before us, that a large number of persons had been employed by the subagents, and those persons were merely employed for colourable employment, and that they were paid for that?—Yes.

51,183. Then we have it also as a fact proved that accounts were sent to the sub-agents, and they transmitted the claim to Mr. Smith, and then Mr. Smith applied for the 500*l.* I want to know whether in substance that matter brought before us was at that interview explained to you by Mr. Smith as to what the claims were for?—There were no details at all.

51,214. No details?—I do not mean "no details"; but he made that demand. I considered they were expensive, and I cut them all down. He applied to me for 2,500*l.*; that was another 500*l.* that was at the same time.

51,215. When you paid the 500*l.*?—Yes, and I said nothing could induce me to give more than the 500*l.*

51,216. What did you believe the money was for; what was it to be expended on? What was your impression as to that?—That the principal agents were to be paid out of it, and other canvassers were to be paid out of it. I did not go into the details. I said at the time, "How can you justify this expendi-"ture?" He said it was for work done, and therefore I did not go into it any further. I believe some of the 500*l.* had been spent before I gave it him, in advance.

51,217. (The Chief Commissioner.) Advanced by Mr. Smith?—Yes; the Commissioners will see that I had only paid 700*l.* by the 12th of September, and Mr. Smith had paid 1,306*l.*

51,218. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Was Mr. Rose's not sent to you?—I do not think it was; Mr. Smith says it was.

51,219. It was in reference to this. Out of the 500*l.* 40*l.* was paid to Mr. Rose and Ede's man, and that 40*l.* was out of the 500*l.* for the purpose of paying Rose's men, who were put on by Mr. Rose was merely colourable employment?—I think Mr. Smith will tell you the same as I say, that the demand was for the principal canvassers, and they paid those men themselves. I mean, they were not claims sent in by each separate man.

51,220. What Mr. Smith said was this; the question was, "When these applications were made to "you for large amounts after the return had been "sent in to the returning officer, you applied to Mr. "Gower for 500*l.* Did you explain to Mr. Gower "what that demand was for." The answer, is "I told "him I had demands for sub-agents for men who "were not paid, and out of the 500*l.* I paid this 40*l.*" I want to know whether Mr. Smith went further than that, or whether you inquired further who those men were who were going to be paid?—No, I did not. Mr. Smith will inform you.

51,221. Mr. Smith was aware at that time, according to his own evidence, what the money was to be applied for, why he wanted the money, and who the men were who were to be paid?—Yes; I said to him, "How are you going to justify this expenditure? it is "excessive. If you go to the House of Commons, and "say 2,000*l.* was paid for the election at Reigate, "they will say it is excessive;" and his answer was, he said "It is for work done." All these payments were for work done; and he also told me there had been no public house treating, which I find now is not the case.

51,222. You had had the experience of 1863?—Yes.

51,223. Was there not a large expenditure at that time for persons being employed for colourable employment, and persons paid for work done?—I dare say there was, but I think the principal payments were for treating at public houses. I dare say there were more employed than ought to have been.

51,224. Then there was the petition, which, of course, taught you with respect to these elections. Did not it suggest to you when this demand was made for 500*l.* to further inquire as to how that was to be paid?—No, but it would have been better. I tell you I was asked for 1,000*l.*, and I said, "No, nothing "will induce me to give 1,000*l.*;" and I said during the election, "If the gentlemen on my committee "would make themselves into a finance committee "to regulate these expenses, it would put a stop to all "this." Unfortunately, it never was done. I asked Mr. North, another gentleman, to form themselves into a finance committee to regulate these affairs. Of course, if these demands had been made upon me before, or at the time of the election, I never should have paid them.

51,225. You say that these circulars that were sent about were your addresses. Did you write many addresses?—No; my original address, and the list of the committee.

51,226. Was the address being perpetually sent round?—It was sent round more than once certainly; at least, I believe so.

51,227. Did you see whether, when you were in committee, other circulars were being sent besides your own address?—No; there was my original addres, then an address I put out after I had completed my canvassing, stating that I was satisfied with it, and I had every prospect of success.

51,228. That would not take many messengers?—It had to be delivered to all the voters, 900 odd.

51,229. It is not so very large a place but what a postman could deliver them in one delivery?—Yes.

51,230. We know that many persons were employed as messengers; did you see more than one person acting as messenger?—I should say more than that.

51,231. Or only one at each place?—What I said was, when I came into this room I nearly always saw the same one standing in the room ready to take out messages, and the same at Redhill.

51,232. Were you at all aware that more messengers were being engaged than was proper to carry out messages?—No, I was not aware that there was an undue number of messengers.

51,233. Was it whispered to you, or did you hear it by report, in any mode, shape, or way, that persons expected to receive money on committee?—No; I see it stated now, but I never heard it during the election.

51,234. It never was rumoured during the election?—No.

51,235. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You have answered everything that occurs to my mind, there are only one or two things I wish to ask you. In 1863 you see the seat was in jeopardy. I will not say more about it than your seat was in jeopardy?—It was petitioned against.

51,236. It was in jeopardy in consequence of the petition?—Yes.

51,237. Mr. Smith was your agent then?—Yes.

51,238. And about the same class of sub-agents were your sub-agents then?—Yes, with one or two exceptions.

51,239. And you found at the end of 1863 that you were called upon for a much larger sum and an amount that you could not justify?—Yes.

51,240. What struck me was this, you have partly answered it already, but why did you not then insist upon knowing from Mr. Smith the terms upon which these sub-agents were engaged?—Well, it was the better thing to do of course, but I did not do it.

51,241. You see they endangered your seat before in 1863; I take it for granted that it was so, I do not go beyond that that they endangered it?—Not by the payments made to them, but by payments made by them to other people.

51,242. By their conduct?—Yes, I remarked upon it to Mr. Smith.

51,243. You partly answered this question; you said you wanted a finance committee to be appointed, but you did not get it appointed?—The gentlemen never refused, but it never came to anything.

51,244. They never set to work, because that would have been the only safeguard in cases of this kind. You did know that the money you advanced to Mr. Smith could not cover the current expenses?—

THIRTY-FIFTH DAY.

G. W. L. Gower, Esq.

30 Oct. 1866.

I had no idea that when I paid Mr. Smith the 200*l.* for the election that he had advanced so much as he had done during the progress of the election.

51,245. Did you know at any time—for example we will take Mr. Buckland, I do not mean any disrespect to him or to any other agent, but we will take him as an example, he is put down as an agent for 50*l.*?—I think at that time he was put down for 25*l.*

Mr. Commissioner O'Brien asked Mr. Smith (who was in Court) whether it was not so, that Mr. Buckland was down for 50*l.*

Mr. Smith stated that was correct.

51,246. And with some of the men Mr. Smith had really arranged; he had contracted with them for a certain amount?—Yes, but I was not told so.

51,247. I ask you candidly whether you consider giving 50*l.* to a man like that a bribe?—Yes, I do.

51,248. I thought so; I take it for granted that if you had known that you would not have sanctioned it?—I sanctioned it so far that I gave Mr. Smith the money for it after, but I would not have entered into that private agreement before the election to have done that.

51,249. Supposing Mr. Smith had entered into an agreement, and mentioned to you that he could get Mr. Buckland for 50*l.*, would you have authorized him to engage him on those terms?—No, I should not.

51,250. Did you find among that class of your supporters in the borough from something that had occurred that you were thrown a good deal on the services of the sub-agents?—I do not understand what you mean.

51,251. Something occurred between '63 and '65 with regard to your representation; did you find that in consequence of that you were thrown a great deal on the services of the sub-agents?—No, I do not think if the Commissioners will look through the list of the names of the gentlemen who voted for me but what I was supported by quite as many gentlemen as before, and I was not confined at all to the lower class of voters.

51,252. You did not feel it?—No, I did not feel it.

51,253. The answer you gave me was with regard to Mr. Buckland; would that apply to most of the agents who were put down at 50*l.*?—Yes, all the sub-agents.

51,254. You would not have sanctioned the payment of 50*l.* for any man for canvassing for you?—No.

51,255. You tell me you had a demand for 500*l.* more than you had paid in '65; the demand was for 1000*l.*, 500*l.* more than you paid?—Yes.

51,256. Were you told by Mr. Smith that promises had been made by the sub-agents on your behalf to many of the voters, which promises were not fulfilled in consequence of your not advancing the other 500*l.*?—I have got a letter in which he says, "I will bring "you account for 2,000*l.*"

51,257. How was that consistent with the demand for 500*l.* more?—I refused that demand; it was after that refusal he said, "I will bring you accounts for "2,000*l.*"

51,258. According to that it would have left some claims?—I dare say if I had given 1,000*l.* people would have asked for more.

51,259. That is not what I mean; your agent stood between you and those people, and your agent says, "I want 1,000*l.*," which is saying these demands are fair?—I did not consider them so, and I refused it.

51,260. He must have considered them fair?—"Expedient" I think is the term.

51,261. That may be so; it would be to your interest to pay them?—Yes.

51,262. Looking to the future, it was to your interest to pay them?—Yes.

51,263. Then do I understand you that up to the close of the poll you were not aware either of the terms on which your sub-agents were engaged or of the excessive employ?—No, I was not until the accounts were sent in to me. I remarked upon it to Mr. Smith when I made the last payment, I asked him how he could justify it; it appeared to me to be excessive.

51,264. Had you any personal friends down here with you?—No.

51,265. I mean your own personal friends, who could have acquainted you with what was going on; they might have been able to have noticed more than you did?—No, and none of the gentlemen in the place ever brought to my ears what was going on, and I was not aware of it, and I believe that those gentlemen were not aware that treating was going on.

51,266. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Or excessive employment?—Or excessive employment; they met me almost every night, and nothing was hinted upon the subject, and I believe before the inquiry took place before the committee nothing of the kind was supposed.

51,267. (The Chief Commissioner.) I will just ask you this; are you aware that there was any political difference between the two candidates in '65; yourself and Mr. Monson?—No, I do not think there was.

51,268. You were much about the same in politics, so far as you know?—Yes; the only difference I know of was with respect to the Oxford test, for which I voted, and Mr. Monson against. You are speaking of '65? because in '63 there was the ballot.

51,269. No, '65. I am speaking rather more of public matters; so far as the public would be able to judge between you, were you much of the same opinions?—Yes.

51,270. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I should think the general constituency here would not care much about the Oxford test?—Oh, yes, they did, a great many of the church people were very strong about it.

The Chief Commissioner informed the witness that they had finished his examination, but if he had any explanations to offer, either then or the following day, they should be most happy to hear them.

The witness stated that he should like to refer to the evidence of one or two people.

Mr. Commissioner O'Brien considered it would be most convenient to take it at once.

(The Witness.) There is a man named William Turner, who said that he told Mr. Gower at the last election, that if he went on his committee he should expect to be paid, and that I said, "Yes, certainly; I "did not want any man to work for me for nothing." That conversation I deny entirely, I do not know the man, I do not know whether I should know him if I saw him; but I deny any conversation taking place between us. There is another case, Alfred Leath; that was contradicted in the House of Commons. If the man were here I am perfectly positive that he would say until he mentioned the distress in his family I gave him nothing.

51,271. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I think you stated that before the committee?—Yes; but here he denies what he said there, he again repudiated the idea of having come to me for charity. I do not say that he came to me for charity at first, but when he found he could not get anything he mentioned the distress that was in his family, and it was in consequence of that I gave him a sovereign, but not until then.

51,272. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He made a claim?—Yes, he made a claim for 3*l.* for the election. I said, "I have nothing to do with the election ac-"counts; those pass through Mr. Smith:" he said that I ought to have to do with them; he was insolent to me. I never gave him anything until he stated the distress in his family.

51,273. He went to your house, I think?—I met him in the road.

51,274. On the way to your house?—Yes. There is one statement which Mr. Webb made, or was reported to have made; he said he was present when the sub-agents came to me and Mr. Smith in the committee room. "Mr. Gower asked what they required; "they replied (so far as he can recollect) '500*l.* down, "'and 1,500*l.* more to carry on the election.' Mr. Gower "said it was preposterous." I am quite sure there was nothing of that kind, I am quite sure that those men never came to me with that demand, it was entirely made by letter, as I have given the account; I never had any conversation with them on that point.

51,275. Was that the substance of the letter, the round-robin ?—That is what I believe it contained.

51,276. We have not got that sum of 1,500*l.* before ?—I do not know that that was in, but that was the substance of what it contained; so far as I myself was concerned, they went away from the committee room not knowing whether they were to have it or not.

51,277. (The Chief Commissioner.) Is there anything else that you would wish to say ?—There was a good deal said about the tent meeting at Earlswood. I do not know whether the Commissioners think anything of that, it was entirely done to avoid meeting at a public house; I wrote to ask for a school-room at Redhill, and I could not have it.

51,278. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Does anything further strike you now with reference to this Inquiry ?—No.

The Chief Commissioner informed the witness that if anything further occurred to his mind the Commissioners would be very happy to have the benefit of the witness's explanation.

The witness withdrew.

THOMAS BUCKLAND recalled and further examined.

T. Buckland.

51,279. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You have been sworn ?—Yes.

51,280. I have one or two questions to ask you, and I think it but reasonable and right to tell you they are with a view of giving you an opportunity of showing, as far as you can, why you, placed in the station you are, a man in your station and occupation should receive money as a "briber." If you can give any explanation, and wish to do so, we give you this opportunity for so doing. You heard Mr. Gower say what he did. You are secretary to a building society; have you any other occupation ?—I act as land agent.

51,281. What is your salary as secretary to the building society ?—It varies, it is sometimes 50*l.* a year.

51,282. But it varies, you say ?—Yes, according to circumstances.

51,283. You are a voter ?—Yes.

51,284. And you voted for Mr. Gower ?—I did.

51,285. And you received or agreed to receive 50*l.* for your services as a canvasser ?—I received that, including some expenses.

51,286. Did you not receive it for your services as a canvasser ?—Not entirely; I had some expenses to pay being out all day canvassing.

51,287. How much ?—7*l.* I paid out of it, and that would reduce it something, and there are various sums always expended in such matters one cannot account for; it really did not amount to 50*l.*

51,288. You gave the amount of 50*l.* to Mr. Smith ?—No.

51,289. Did you not return it as expenses you had incurred in your canvass ?—No, I did not, and that you will find.

51,290. I do not understand you, what do you mean ?—If I had the account I could give out the names, I believe.

51,291. How much money did you receive altogether from Mr. Smith ?—Altogether, including what was paid to Apted, Joyes, and so on, 240*l.*

51,292. No, for yourself ?—I am very sorry I have not my accounts here.

51,293. You are put down as having received 50*l.* as canvasser ?—Yes, but I paid 7*l.* as nearly as possible for my various expenses.

51,294. Did you perform your work as secretary to the building society while you were engaged in this election work ?—No, I had to employ my son.

51,295. How old is he ?—21.

51,296. Did you employ anybody else ?—I do not know that I did, but I neglected my business in part.

51,297. Well, you received 40*l.*, I do not care whether it is 40*l.* or 50*l.*; you did not employ any person but your son ?—I neglected my business.

51,298. I hope you did not neglect the society ?—Other parts of my business suffered; I lost a sale of land very often.

51,299. Had you been engaged before as an election agent ?—Yes.

51,300. What did you receive before ?—Thirty guineas.

51,301. For whom ?—For Mr. Gower.

51,302. Had you been engaged for any one except Mr. Gower ?—No, sir.

51,303. You had not ?—No.

51,304. You always voted for the person who had had your services ?—I never voted till 1863.

51,305. You were not engaged till 1863 and 1865, that is so ?—Yes.

51,306. And you voted for Mr. Gower on both occasions ?—Yes, but I really was not asked.

51,307. How much money passed through your hands ?—The last occasion do you mean ?

51,308. Yes, the last occasion ?—I forget the exact amount.

51,309. About ?—I really could not give you the amount.

51,310. You did not vote in 1863, you are under a misapprehension there ?—Oh dear! yes, I remember, I was under a mistake, I did not, I was under a mistake.

51,311. Then you got thirty guineas for your services ?—I did; I was giving evidence against myself, I was not a voter then.

51,312. Had any money passed through your hands in 1863 ?—A little.

51,313. Tell me what you did expect, paying away money and making illegal promises. Besides that what did you do ?—We had to make a return of the number of persons who promised, we were expected to make out the list every day. We commenced our work early in May, going round amongst the different members of our party to know whether they were inclined to support Mr. Gower if he would come out again. That was our first work. As soon as it was ascertained that Mr. Gower would come forward I met Mr. Apted every morning in order to go through the whole of the list with him.

51,314. You could not have been engaged until you knew that Mr. Gower was coming out ?—We did go to work; in fact, we spent our time.

51,315. You must put that out of the question, we do not take any notice of that. What work did you do after the engagement ?—I considered we were engaged to do that very thing, to see whether there was any prospect of Mr. Gower being supported if he came out; that was the work we spent our time over. As soon as this was understood we made out our list of men likely to support Mr. Gower, and we continued to correct that until the end of the election.

51,316. But you had a dozen ?—We went through the whole district, the Mead-vale, Redhill, Reigate.

51,317. But you are one of eight or ten ?—There were not so many principals.

51,318. There were eight of you, and if you like I will give you their names ?—No, I will not trouble you; I know we went through the lists.

51,319. The idea of eight of you men going round the borough of Reigate, the borough district continuously ?—We worked night and day.

51,320. I must look at your work just as I would that of a gardener with his 30*s.* for his work, just in the same way ?—We worked night and day at it.

51,321. At what ?—Why, in seeing the votes we had, seeing how we were going on, whether our lists were correct and whether the men were keeping to their promises; our whole time was taken up from an early hour in the morning until 11 or 12; and after the election we were engaged a considerable time in paying the men and arranging various matters.

THIRTY-FIFTH DAY.

T. Buckland.

30 Oct. 1866.

51,322. I do not make any observation on that as to the paying of the men; that was a system of labour we will say no more about?—It went on till October; it spread over a very considerable time, a very long space of time. We had to get up the correct list, and it fell upon us to do it very much. I do not know whether you have seen this voluminous list (holding up a long printed list of names.)

51,323. Is that printed?—Yes.

51,324. You are not a printer?—Yes, I am.

51,325. Did you print that?—No, I did not; but we were engaged in correcting this list, in fact we were really at work three months, 13 weeks.

51,326. You are intelligent enough to know that if you were to engage every man in a borough like this and give him 40*l.* they would find work for themselves to do. However these are the explanations you give. Have you any other explanations to give?—All I can say is, I was engaged in canvassing and making out the lists.

51,327. Give me the name of any one man you influenced to vote without a promise?—Gentlemen do not like to have their names mentioned, but there were persons I did influence; but I do not wish to give their names, it would not be proper.

The witness then withdrew.

F. Joyes.

FREDERICK JOYES recalled and examined.

51,328. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You received 50*l.* for your services?—No, 20*l.*

51,329. You are put down at 50*l.*?—I was put down at 50*l.*, and I only received 20*l.*

51,330. Was it not agreed you were to have 50*l.*?—Yes.

51,331. Well, that is the same thing. Did you employ any one to perform your own duties in your own shop?—My brother; I was going rounds, I have rounds in my business.

51,332. Who is your brother?—It was my brother William, who has been examined here.

51,333. What did you pay him?—I paid him 5*s.* a day.

51,334. What did you pay him for the time you were engaged in this election matter?—That is the whole of the time?

51,335. Yes, what did you pay him?—I cannot say exactly; I could tell how many times he went for me; it was perhaps a dozen or fourteen times.

51,336. Can you tell me what was the work you did for which you were to receive 50*l.*?—I did the same work as the others, the same as Apted, Buckland, and so on. We went through the lists, and every morning there were a dozen or fourteen men around you wanting to know what they were to do, and we had to set them to work and so on.

51,337. Have you been so employed upon other occasions?—I have been; the election before, 1863. At that election I went with Mr. Wilkinson.

51,338. Had you been employed in 1863?—Yes.

51,339. What did you receive for that?—I received 35*l.*

51,340. And who did you vote for?—I voted for Mr. Wilkinson.

51,341. You voted for the man for whom your services were engaged?—Yes, I voted for Mr. Wilkinson.

51,342. Had you been engaged before that?—Yes, I had been engaged for Mr. Wilkinson.

51,343. When?—In 1858 or '59, I forget which; but it was of course for Mr. Wilkinson.

51,344. Had you been engaged three times as a canvasser?—Yes.

51,345. What did you receive; there was the 35*l.* and the agreement for 50*l.*, 20*l.* only received?—I forget the other.

51,346. And I suppose you did about the same thing, the same kind of work, at all?—Yes.

51,347. The amount of work was about the same for all?—Just the same.

The witness withdrew.

D. Durrant.

DAVID DURRANT examined.

(Mr. David Durrant.) Will you allow me?

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) If there is anything you wish to say.

(Mr. Durrant.) Yes.

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Well, we don't call you, but if you choose to volunteer.

51,348. You did not receive 50*l.*, I believe?—No.

51,349. How much did you receive?—25*l.*

51,350. What did you do for the 25*l.*? As you have volunteered to stand up I ask you that question?—The same as other men did; I lost my time.

51,351. Well, every man has said that; the gardeners and labourers have said that, and therefore it is particularly right we should examine any person in your station and class of life?—Well, I did not receive sufficient. I am sure I did not receive enough for loss of time.

51,352. What did you do? You see I wish to give you an opportunity of telling us what you did, and so accounting for your loss of time?—I lost my time by going about in the business of the election.

51,353. What did you do?—I went canvassing, the same as others did.

51,354. You are a brewer?—Yes.

51,355. I suppose you employed a man to carry on your business?—There were extra men put on.

51,356. What are their names? Give us the names of the extras you put on?—Richard Skilton, my brother-in-law.

51,357. Any one else?—No.

51,358. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Is he in your employment now?—No.

51,359. Was he before?—Yes.

The witness then withdrew.

J. Apted.

JOB APTED examined.

51,360. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Is Mr. Job Apted here?

(Mr. Apted.) Yes.

51,361. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I am glad to see you here; you have been sworn?—Yes.

51,362. I understand you have an explanation you wish to give?—Yes.

51,363. You are very anxious, I understand, to give an explanation; but first let me ask you, in how many elections have you been engaged as agent?—In every election for the last 28 years, but not paid.

51,364. We will take it from the time you were paid?—I have had three testimonials from candidates when I was not paid.

51,365. Your mind is so very acute, you must see that is not an answer?—I wish to say my services were appreciated so that I received a testimonial from each of those candidates I served when they did not pay me.

51,366. In how many elections were you a paid agent?—In two of Mr. Gower's.

51,367. In 1863?—'63 and '65.

51,368. And never before?—No, sir.

51,369. What did you receive in 1863?—30 guineas.

51,370. Was that the result of an arrangement with Mr. Smith?—They came and asked me if I would undertake it, and I said at the time, "What will be "the sum?" for I had determined not to give up my time again without being paid for it; in fact, I could not afford it, and I said so.

51,371. And 50*l.* or guineas was the arrangement?—Yes, and I would not do it under, and I do not thank them for that.

51,372. Did you ask 50*l.*, or did they offer it?—I sent in my bill for 50*l.* It was considered I was to charge that which was reasonable and just according to the time expended and labour bestowed.

51,373. Were those the terms agreed upon?—Yes, and the talent that was employed.

51,374. Yes, very properly so; do not imagine that I do not appreciate the talent, but you merely sent in your account, "To Mr. Job Apted 50*l.*" You do not give any particulars of your labour?—For my services during the election.

51,375. That was all?—Yes.

51,376. Will you be kind enough to tell me, because I wish to know, we understand you were carrying on business at that time?—I was.

51,377. Did you employ any additional men during the time you were so engaged?—I employed a foreman to do the manufacturing part of my business, and my son did the rest, and my daughters assisted me. I can safely say this, that during the whole of the time throughout the election I never had five hours' sleep any one single night. I have been up to 12 at night going through the lists, and I have been up again at 2 in the morning.

51,378. Did you employ an additional man during the time you were so engaged?—I did.

51,379. Your foreman, you said?—And my son.

51,380. Your foreman is in your constant employ?—A foreman, I said, and for the time.

51,381. What was his name?—Weller.

51,382. How long did he remain with you?—He did all the cutting out part.

51,383. How long?—He is at work for me now; he gets piece-work now. I employed him to do my part of the work, that was cutting.

51,384. In elevating him to the position of a foreman, what was the difference of his salary?—He earned about 5*s.* a day.

51,385. What was the difference of salary?—I pay him no salary, I put him upon piece-work; that is not piece-work.

51,386. And you paid him 5*s.* a day?—Yes, and of course I lost my own judgment in my business, which is worth a good deal to a master.

51,387. Tell me what you did besides the loss of rest; tell me anything you did?—One thing I did was to keep the candidate acquainted with the truth; that is, I let him know precisely the number of votes he was likely to get. I consider an agent is not worth a fig if he attempts to deceive the candidate.

51,388. Well, I am asking you what you did?—Well, I did that, and in fact, assisted by Mr. Buckland, for he and I worked together; we worked up the list of a thousand names. We were obliged to ascertain how many out of that number were likely to support Mr. Gower, and what influence or motives could be brought to bear upon them to make them desert our cause.

51,389. I can understand all this if there were only one or two; but here were a number of persons engaged in the same work for the different districts, for Mead-vale, Redhill, and others?—I can speak for myself and Mr. Buckland, that he and I worked as if the fate of the election depended upon us.

51,390. To keep the candidate acquainted with everything that was going on?—We did to the utmost, letting him know to the utmost shilling what the election was likely to cost; I made him acquainted with it.

51,391. We have heard Mr. Gower's statement; what else do you wish to say, if anything, for you have the fullest opportunity?—I can only say we are looked upon as a kind of whippers in of the Liberal party in this neighbourhood; we acted in that sort of capacity in this neighbourhood, and we go about and represent that the people should join our party; we succeeded in getting a great many votes.

51,392. Of course it is very right for a candidate to have you on his side if he comes down here, but I should also recommend him not to pay you 50*l.*?—I do not think he would get me then.

51,393. If you say that I will not ask you anything more; that shows the motive?—He might get my vote, but I should not be ready to work.

51,394. (The Chief Commissioner.) You are in the same business that you were at the time of the election, are you not?—No; I have undertaken the duty of sanitary inspector.

51,395. Do you not also retain your business?—No; I have given up the wholesale part of it now.

51,396. How long ago have you given that up?—I gave it up last February.

51,397. At the time you gave it up you were carrying on the business just the same as at the time of the election in '65; you carried it on just the same until February, when you gave it up?—Yes.

51,398. Will you tell me what your establishment consisted of in February, just before you gave up the business?—There was myself ——

51,399. I do not mean your domestic servants in the house?—I am a currier by trade also.

51,400. You are a married man, and have a family who give you assistance in your business?—Yes.

51,401. Did any of your children assist you then?—Two of my daughters and one son.

51,402. And an apprentice?—No; my eldest son is out in a situation, and is not able to assist me at all, excepting writing for me.

51,403. I want to know what your establishment consisted of before you gave up your business in February; there was yourself, your wife, two daughters, and one son. Had you any journeymen?—Six men.

51,404. What did your establishment consist of in July, when the election took place, yourself, your wife, two daughters, a son, and six men?—I forget how many men, we are continually varying the number of men.

51,405. Well, it may have been sixteen?—It may have been.

51,406. Then you agreed to work at the election for so much?—I did.

51,407. What part did you take in your trade?—I cut out and sold.

51,408. You sell in the shop?—Yes.

51,409. Your wife also sells, does she?—She does.

51,410. Do your daughters sell?—They take the ladies' shoe department.

51,411. I do not want to go beyond the surface of this; just tell me, when the election came on, you still went on selling in your shop, so did your wife and two daughters, did you make any difference in money, if all the shoes you had not time to cut out yourself your man cut out, you got your man to do it?—I kept the man the whole of the time.

51,412. He was with you before; he was your man?—He is a journeyman and works for himself, and gets so much a pair for making; during that time he did not make, but he did my work instead.

51,413. How much can he earn per day, when he works?—It depends upon how much he likes to do.

51,414. I said, how much can he earn?—About 4*s.* or 5*s.*

51,415. So he gave up the jobbing, and came to cut out for you?—Yes.

51,416. And you paid him 5*s.* a day?—Yes.

51,417. That did not make any difference, did it?—I should think it did. If you were to manage your own business, and then get another man to manage it it would make a difference.

51,418. In so far as he was concerned; forgive me, I do not say he could cut out so well as you?—Not any difference to him that I know of, perhaps not so much manual labour.

THIRTY-FIFTH DAY.

J. H. Apted.

30 Oct. 1866.

51,419. I do not say he can cut out so skilfully as you, I dare say he could not; but your establishment, so far as I understand you, was not altered?—Yes; by the addition of him, he took my part.

51,420. Well, altered in that way, but in point of expense it was not altered?—It made no difference to him substantially. I do not know whether I might be allowed to explain a matter; I will not say a word against Mr. Doulton, but I should like to explain a certain circumstance.

51,421. (The Chief Commissioner.) No; do not let us have anything about Mr. Doulton, you were recalled upon another matter altogether?—I should not say a word against him.

51,422. No; you were only asked in order that we might see whether we should consider you as a briber, and also as a bribee.—Without praising myself, I do not think there is another man in the neighbourhood who knows the men in the neighbourhood better than I do.

51,423. For that reason, Mr. Apted, it occurs to my friends, as it occurs to me, that you would be a very valuable man to have on either side; but whether you have any right to receive money for it is another matter.

The witness withdrew.

Adjourned till 11 o'clock to-morrow morning.

THIRTY-SIXTH DAY.

Wednesday, 31st October 1866.

THIRTY-SIXTH DAY.

Hon. E. J. Monson.

31 Oct. 1866.

The Honourable Edmund John Monson sworn and examined.

51,424. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You were one of the candidates at the last election?—Yes.

51,425. Was that your first election?—It was the first time I had ever been a candidate at any election.

51,426. You had been residing a good deal abroad?—I had been in the diplomatic service for nearly ten years or about ten years; during all that time I was abroad, except occasionally visiting England.

51,427. During that time you had not been connected with this borough, except by occasionally visiting it?—Well, I may have been at times. I may state that during that time I was present in the borough during two previous elections of my eldest brother; during that time I may possibly have been here a week or ten days.

51,428. Which elections?—They were both in the same year, the one early in 1858 and the other in October 1858.

51,429. They were in February and October 1858?—Yes.

51,430. And since 1858 you had not been here?—No, nearly all that time I was in America.

51,431. Did you take any part in those elections?—No; I came so very late on both occasions, more to see the election after it took place than to take any part in the canvassing. I do not think I took any part in the canvassing at all.

51,432. It was more during the time of nomination and polling that you were here in those elections?—Precisely so.

51,433. (The Chief Commissioner.) Was it when Lord Monson was a candidate?—Yes.

51,434. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) May I take it that previous to your appearance here as candidate in 1865 you were not connected with the place, or took any part in the other elections?—No, I did not.

51,435. When was it, Mr. Monson, that you first had an idea of starting for this place; in 1865; as candidate?—I suppose about the first time that I thought of it was very shortly after the election of 1863.

51,436. Where were you residing then?—I had just come home from America, and I was then in Italy. After the petition was compromised in 1863 I received an intimation that it was intended to bring forward an entirely new candidate who, it might be hoped, would unite the whole constituency, so as not to have a division in the party; and it was intimated to me for me to stand.

51,437. From whom did you receive that intimation?—I received that intimation, I should think, in the first place from my brother.

51,438. Lord Monson?—Yes. I was in Italy in the spring of 1863, and I think that would be the first time.

51,439. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Mr. Monson, am I right in taking this, that upon the compromise of the petition in 1863 that was the first intimation you received that a new candidate might be required?—Yes.

51,440. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) That was from your brother?—In the first place I think that was from my brother.

51,441. Now, after you had received that intimation from your brother did you have any communication with any of the inhabitants and persons of influence in the borough?—The first thing I did when I came to England was to know about the prospect of there being a vacancy; I mean, at first I kept back. I spoke to Mr. Humphreys, who had the management of the compromise of the petition. I went and called upon him, and he said it was generally understood that neither of the candidates would come forward, and there would be an opening for me.

51,442. Was Mr. Wilkinson then alive?—He was alive at that time.

51,443. Had you known Mr. Humphreys?—I had not known him before.

51,444. It was entirely in consequence of his connexion with the petition that took you to him?—He was a friend of my brother's, and my brother desired me to go and see him.

51,445. Had Mr. Humphreys been engaged, do you know, on either side in the petition of 1863?—I do not think he was engaged; I believe he acted as a sort of amicus curiæ: he acted on both sides.

51,446. As a sort of mediator?—As a sort of mediator. He knew both parties well, as I understood.

51,447. You made your inquiries of Mr. Humphreys, and did you after that communicate or were you communicated with by any of the voters?—I think not. Eight or nine months must have elapsed before I received any communication. The first communication I received from any person was from Mr. Phillips of Reigate Lodge, about nine months after, as near as I can tell.

51,448. About what time was that?—Some time early in 1864, I should think about May 1864. I should think it was about then, because it was in anticipation of the Government being beaten upon the Danish question.

51,449. Then they found upon that that there was no dissolution?—No dissolution.

51,450. What was the nature of the communication from Mr. Phillips; was it to ask you to come forward?—It was to ask me whether I would be a candidate to come forward in the event of there being a vacancy.

51,451. Now, what was the next stage of the history of your election of 1865 ?—I was then at that time abroad, and nothing more took place except a sort of exchange of letters with Mr. Phillips until the autumn, when I was obliged to return to Oxford. I was a fellow of the college there, and obliged to go on that account.

51,452. That was the autumn of 1864 ?—The autumn of 1864. At that time, before going down to Oxford, I was in Lincolnshire, and I received a visit from Mr. Nichols and Mr. Page.

51,453. We will come to that presently. I must ask you, before you received that communication from Mr. Nichols and Mr. Page had you given to Mr. Phillips or any other gentleman your assent with regard to your coming forward ?—I think I had in general terms given an assent.

51,454. Was that to Mr. Phillips ? — To Mr. Phillips.

51,455. Now, until after you had given that general assent to Mr. Phillips, and until you saw Mr. Nichols and Mr. Page in the autumn of 1864, did you have any other communication with any other voter in the borough ?—I think certainly not.

51,456. We will now come to that interview in the autumn of 1864 with Mr. Nichols. Had you communicated to Mr. Nichols that you wished to see him, or how was it that your interview with Mr. Nichols came about ?—I believe it was in this way, but I cannot exactly say, as I was out of England at that time; I believe it was in this way: a letter appeared in the local paper here, stating that I might probably come forward, and Mr. Nichols and Mr. Page, or Mr. Nichols alone, put himself in communication with my brother to inquire about the truth of it. Lord Monson informed Mr. Nichols that I should be down in Lincolnshire, at his own place, about the month of December; of course he could not interfere in anything of the kind, he being a peer in Parliament, but if Mr. Nichols wanted to see him he had better come to him. Then I had had no understanding with Mr. Gower, and I thought it would be indelicate for me to come here before I understood from Mr. Gower that he was out of the field. I may say I did not wish to come down here canvassing so soon, because there was no immediate possibility of a vacancy, and Mr. Gower was a gentleman whom I did not know, and with him I had not communicated at all.

51,457. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) The seat was full, in fact ?—Yes.

51,458. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) There was some, at least floating, rumour that he would not come forward again ?—I considered it an absolute certainty that he would not come forward again.

51,459. Did Mr. Nichols come down to you in Lincolnshire ?—He came to me in Lincolnshire with Mr. Page.

51,460. That you say was about the autumn of 1864 ?—That was in the autumn; I should think in September 1864.

51,461. Will you be good enough to tell us what took place between you and Mr. Nichols and Mr. Page in reference to your coming forward for the election of 1865; give it us slowly in your own way ?—So far as I recollect we discussed in the first place, as was natural, the probability of a vacancy and the possible candidates, because I wished to see my way very clearly; and they produced for my instruction, what I had not seen before, a letter which Mr. Gower had written. They said, "There is no doubt he can-"not come forward, and there is very great doubt "whether Mr. Wilkinson will." I said, "Under "those circumstances, if you think I am a likely "candidate to be supported by all parties in the "borough, there ought to be no difficulty in getting "up a requisition to me." They said to me, "There "would be no difficulty." And I said, "It would "strengthen my position very much, and I would "much rather come forward on a requisition than "propose myself." And I understood so soon as they returned here they would see how far it was possible to get a requisition up. Then I think at the same time Mr. Nichols stated there were several efficient canvassers who he should wish to be able to secure, and he desired me to authorize him to engage them in anticipation of any election. I am sorry to say that I cannot recollect who they were, with the exception of two names which he said were the two best men in the borough, that was Job Apted and Mr. Buckland; and I authorized him to make an arrangement with those six men.

51,462. He summoned six men ?—I think there were six, or about six at any rate. I think Mazden was another, but I do not recollect that any amount was mentioned; as to what they should be paid for their services, I do not think any amount was mentioned. That I believe was all the arrangement that I entered into with Mr. Nichols at that time.

51,463. Do you remember whether at that time any arrangement was made with Mr. Nichols about the expense of getting up the requisition ?—No. I think I may state positively that not a word was said about the expense of getting up the requisition; in fact, I should hardly think a requisition required much expense to get it up. I thought the cost of the requisition would be the trifling cost of the stationery on which it was written.

51,464. Was at any time the cost of getting up the requisition mentioned by Mr. Nichols to you ?—Yes, subsequently to the requisition itself.

51,465. Was that after the requisition had been got up and presented to you ?—Yes; then he only mentioned it incidentally, not more than incidentally.

51,466. Was any sum mentioned by him at the time of getting up the requisition ?—No, no positive sum.

51,467. Did he at any time require of you any fee for himself in reference to getting up the requisition ?—I do not recollect that he ever did.

51,468. I am asking of Mr. Nichols ?—Yes.

51,469. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He never made a demand to you ?—No, not quâ the requisition.

51,470. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Then I may ask you this: did you at any time agree with him, or did he at any time require of you, the payment of a fee for the getting up of the requisition ?—I certainly cannot recollect that he did.

51,471. Did he at the time when the requisition was presented, or at any near time at all, suggest that the fee for the requisition should be 200 guineas, to your knowledge ?—He received a sum of 200*l.* from me, but I did not understand it was for the purpose of the requisition. That was in September of 1864, the 29th of September 1864. I gave him a cheque for 200*l.*, but I did not understand it was for the purposes of the requisition; it was to carry into effect the arrangement that had been made with me about the engagement of sub-agents. That was the sum he asked me for; it was more than I expected to pay at that time, but I did not ask about it.

51,472. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Was the purpose named for which he required the 200*l.* ?—I understood in general terms he wanted it to carry out the purposes we mentioned in Lincolnshire.

51,473. That was to engage canvassers ?—Yes.

51,474. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) To engage efficient canvassers for the purposes of the election then to come on ?—Yes.

51,475. I wish to understand as distinctly as I can that no sum was mentioned by you quâ the expense of the requisition ?—No.

(The Chief Commissioner.) Mr. Monson only says he thinks so, he does not say decisively.

(The Witness.) I think not.

51,476. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) If you paid so large a sum as 210*l.* quâ the requisition you probably would have remembered it ?—I certainly must say that I understood that the money I had then paid on the 29th of September was in some way connected with the requisition.

51,477. So far as you understand, and as you recollect, was it for the purpose of securing canvassers ?—That was the impression on my mind.

THIRTY-SIXTH DAY.

Hon. E. J. Monson.

31 Oct. 1866.

51,478. I put this the more pointedly to you, Mr. Monson, because we have been told by Mr. Nichols that he was paid 200 guineas for the getting up of the requisition, and considered that he was very smally paid even then for his time?—I can only state that I made no arrangement for the payment of any expenses for the requisition, nor did I understand that any fee would be expected of me for it.

51,479. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I suppose it would have deterred you from coming forward if you had thought you would have to pay for the requisition which you yourself suggested?—(No answer.)

51,480. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Were you yourself aware that Mr. Page was to be paid for getting up the requisition?—No; I understood Mr. Page would be paid for his services whenever my election came on, but I did not understand he was to be paid for the requisition.

51,481. I have mentioned Mr. Page with regard to the election; does that draw your attention to the fact of Mr. Page being paid as one of the six who were to act as canvassers?—No; because Mr. Page and Mr. Nichols were to act as sub-agents; he was not one of the six canvassers.

51,482. (The Chief Commissioner.) What makes you say, Mr. Monson, that they were to act as sub-agents?—To tell you the truth, I imagined their duties would be very much the same as those of the canvassers generally, but it was a more dignified term to call them sub-agents than to call them canvassers.

51,483. Who was the agent they were to act under?—Mr. Hart was my agent.

51,484. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You had not then communicated with Mr. Hart?—I had seen Mr. Hart in London, I think at the end of the year. I do not know that I made it a distinct communication with them, but of course they knew that Mr. Hart always acted as Lord Monson's agent, and they understood that he would be my agent.

51,485. You had known Mr. Hart personally?—Yes, for some time.

51,486. Having acted for your family on previous occasions, you engaged him on this occasion?—Yes.

51,487. (The Chief Commissioner.) Mr. Nichols and Mr. Page were not told that by you?—I do not think they were ever told, but they knew it.

51,488. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did they know it from anything they said to you?—I think from what was said they knew they were to act as sub-agents; they knew it, as a matter of course.

51,489. (The Chief Commissioner.) That is a matter of inference. Was anything said by you that "Mr. Hart will act as my agent, and you must act "under him," or was anything said by them?—I think there was, but I cannot call it to my mind as a positive matter.

51,490. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) When did you have your earliest communication with Mr. Hart, so as to intimate to them he was to be the agent; was it in London?—I fancy it was in London. I think I wrote to him to come up, or he sent to see me.

51,491. Was that before or after the requisition?—Before the requisition.

51,492. That would be before the first 200*l.* was paid to Mr. Nichols?—Yes, I think it was early in September that I saw Mr. Hart.

51,493. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You are positive that you saw Mr. Hart before the 200*l.* was advanced?—Yes, I am positive I did.

51,494. Before the requisition was presented, and before the first 200*l.* was paid Mr. Nichols?—Yes.

51,495. Now, having that drawn to your recollection, can you say with more certainty one way or the other that you never once mentioned Mr. Hart's name, that he should be your agent, to Mr. Nichols or Mr. Page at the time the 200*l.* was paid, or at any time before the 200*l.* was paid?—I really cannot say I ever did mention it, but I assumed, as a matter of course, they knew.

51,496. (The Chief Commissioner.) Was it 200*l.* or 210*l.*?—The cheque was drawn for 210*l.*, though 200*l.* was all that Mr. Nichols received.

51,497. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What became of the other 10*l.*?—I wanted some cash myself, and I kept the 10*l.*, and I cashed the cheque myself.

51,498. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) The cheque was drawn for 210*l.*; you cashed it yourself, and kept 10*l.* Was that 200*l.* given by notes?—Yes, I have the number of the notes. There were four 50*l.* notes.

51,499. That is quite sufficient, but I think you say you have actually the numbers as well?—Yes, I have the numbers.

51,500. Where was the money paid to Mr. Nichols; was it in London, or was it paid at the bank?—I do not recollect, but I think it was paid to him here.

51,501. Here in Reigate?—I am not quite certain that I did not give it him at Laker's hotel, Redhill. I cannot be sure about that.

51,502. What was the next payment that you made to Mr. Nichols?—I think a considerable time elapsed before the next payment.

51,503. Was it on May the 29th?—Yes.

51,504. When you paid the 200*l.* to Mr. Nichols, or after, did you hear from Mr. Nichols whether or not he had engaged those canvassers, or any of them?—I understood he had engaged some. I do not think he gave me any names.

51,505. Now, between the time of giving him the 200*l.*, which was in December, and the next payment on May 29th, when he received 150*l.*, had you seen Mr. Nichols, or had you any communication with him in reference to the election?—Yes, I must have seen Mr. Nichols, I should think, a good many times. I was down here, on and off, during the early months of the year. I wished people to become acquainted with me. I was always going backwards and forwards.

51,506. Then between this time in December and May had you ascertained from him whether he had engaged those canvassers or paid them anything?—I took it for granted that they had been engaged. I do not know whether I ever asked him who he had engaged, or at what fee he had engaged them, but I understood there were certain men he had engaged.

51,507. That was December and May; we are going by stages. Did he then at any time between December and May mention to you anything about the expenses of getting up the requisition?—No, I think not.

51,508. Or had he any authority from you to pay himself 200*l.* in respect of the requisition?—No, certainly not.

51,509. Now we will take May 29th, 150*l.*?—Yes.

51,510. Was that a payment made to Mr. Nichols?—That was a payment made to Mr. Nichols.

51,511. Was that payment made by cheque?—I think it was I drew a cheque for 150*l.*, and that I gave the cheque to him.

51,512. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) In the meantime had Mr. Hart been appointed as regular agent?—Yes.

51,513. Can you give me the date of the appointment?—I never made a formal appointment of Mr. Hart.

51,514. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Until the election probably?—Until I issued my address, which, I think, was the 18th of April, or thereabouts.

51,515. On the 18th of April you issued your address?—Previous to that I met Mr. Hart at Mr. Phillips' house in the presence of Mr. Phillips, Mr. Stevens, and Mr. Walters.

51,516. The formal appointment in writing in conformity with the Corrupt Practices Act, I presume, was not made, appointing Mr. Hart as an election agent, until the eve of the election?—Not until the morning of the nomination, I think.

51,517. It is usual not to do it till then?—Yes.

51,518. But, so far as between man and man, you had engaged Mr. Hart as your agent?—I engaged him as my principal agent.

51,519. In April, when you issued your address? —Yes.

51,520. When you issued your address, till the first appointment of Mr. Hart, it was understood between you and him that he was appointed. Was Mr. Nichols then made aware that Mr. Hart would be the first agent?—I do not think I ever said anything to Mr. Nichols about Mr. Hart's appointment.

51,521. Or do you recollect at any meeting, at which Mr. Nichols was present, its being mentioned that Mr. Hart was your agent, or that Mr. Hart was acting as your agent at that particular meeting?—No.

51,522. Did you ever meet Mr. Nichols with Mr. Hart?—I know that Mr. Nichols has met me in Mr. Hart's offices, but I am quite sure I never said anything to either of them as to the relation of the one to the other.

51,523. Mr. Nichols, you say, had met you at Mr. Hart's office?—Yes, naturally, when I was down here during the election Mr. Nichols would know I was there and run in. I do not suppose I made any appointment to meet him there, but Mr. Nichols knowing I was at Mr. Hart's would come in.

51,524. And at those times when Mr. Nichols came in, and saw you at Mr. Hart's, was the subject spoken of the election, the topic of conversation?—I may say invariably.

51,525. I may take it almost as a summing up, that Mr. Hart having always acted for your family at all elections, and you being present at Mr. Hart's offices, and Mr. Nichols coming there and talking about the election on several occasions, he might very naturally infer that Mr. Hart was acting for you?—Yes.

51,526. And that you may say probably as early as April?—Yes, as early as April.

51,527. When your address was issued?—Yes.

51,528. The next payment I mentioned was May 29th, 150*l.*?—Yes.

51,529. How, having paid Mr. Nichols the 200*l.*, did he explain to you why he wanted 150*l.* in May? —The ground of his asking for money at that time and on every subsequent occasion was always the same, that in consequence of the very close struggle it was going to be it would be necessary to employ a very large number of canvassers, and that he would require money to pay them weekly; or very nearly weekly.

51,530. Did he give you any account then of how he had expended the 200*l.*?—No.

51,531. Did you ask him?—No, I had full confidence in him. I took it for granted he was doing everything that was correct as to the expenditure.

51,532. You did not ask him, as you state you had every confidence in him?—I had entire confidence in him.

51,533. You say you had entire confidence in Mr. Nichols, and you then gave him the 150*l.*?—Yes.

51,534. Was that the first time that you became aware that a large number of canvassers, or a much larger number of canvassers, would be required than was first intimated to you by Mr. Nichols?—Yes.

51,535. Did he tell you what class of canvassers would have to be put on?—No, there was no mention of any particular class.

51,536. Was anybody present at these conversations with Mr. Nichols?—No, I am quite sure there was not.

51,537. You say you think the cheque was paid here?—Yes, I think so.

51,538. Where was it paid?—I think it must have been at the "White Hart," at my rooms.

51,539. Who was the cheque payable to? I think it was to self?—Yes, to self.

51,540. And upon whose bank?—Hoare's.

51,541. Of Fleet-street?—Yes.

51,542. On the 19th of June, I think, there was another payment of 50*l.* payable to self?—Well, I must take your word for it, because the counterfoil is not here; it appears to be taken out. You have my bank book, so I cannot refer to it. (The bank book was handed to witness.) Yes, it is the 19th of June.

51,543. There is a cheque there payable to self for 50*l.*?—Yes.

51,544. Was that cheque paid to Mr. Nichols?—Yes.

51,545. Do you recollect where it was paid?—No, I am afraid I cannot remember where; I cannot recollect about these individual cheques where they were paid. I think in most cases I gave the cheque to him, except in the earlier cases, when I cashed the cheque myself and gave him the notes. I cannot be quite sure about the others, but in that case I have the number of the notes.

51,546. Inasmuch as you have made that observation, I will put this question to you: did you in any of the payments which you made to Mr. Nichols deduct any sum for your own personal expenses, except in the one paid to him on December 29th 1864? —On no other occasion.

51,547. Then the whole of the cheque for 50*l.* on the 19th of June, payable to self, was paid to Mr. Nichols?—Yes.

51,548. Do you recollect whether he was paid by cheque or you got it cashed and paid him the money? —I think by cheque, but I do not feel sure.

51,549. Now at that time did he make any representation to you in reference to the expenditure of the 150*l.*?—Beyond the fact that he had spent it I do not think he made any other statement.

51,550. Except that he had spent it?—Yes.

51,551. Now was the next time, the 22nd of June, cheque for 200*l.*, payable to self?—Yes, that, though drawn by self, was paid to Mr. Nichols.

51,552. That was a large sum coming close upon the 50*l.* cheque; did you make any inquiry of him in reference then to the expenditure of money and how that money was going?—The explanation of Mr. Nichols of these large demands made on me by himself was this, that the other party were spending a great deal of money; he pointed to Mr. Gower's committee list containing 160 names, and said, "I have no doubt "that each of these men are going to be paid 5*l.*, and "unless you allow me to expend more than I originally "anticipated, you have no chance of winning."

51,553. That is a very important answer; was that before you gave the cheque for 200*l.*?—Yes, I think it was.

51,554. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Of course the committee would be all voters?—Yes.

51,555. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Then upon that representation did you give the 200*l.*?—I gave the 200*l.* upon that representation.

51,556. Had you published a list of your committee at that time?—Yes, I had published two lists to Mr. Gower's one; but in deference to the advice of my friends and agents, though I could have made a very much larger list, I did not put the names of the small men, as they call them, upon it.

51,557. Although each man had one vote? I understand what you mean, you kept your list, so to speak, more select?—Yes, more select.

51,558. Instead of putting on all the persons who had votes who were simply labourers in the field?— I must say I thought my friends were right; it was absurd to put men of that kind on the committee who could be of no use as committee men.

51,559. Or have any influence? — Or have any influence.

51,560. Did you understand Mr. Nichols to mean that he required a large sum of money, 200*l.*, to increase his committee?—To increase the number of canvassers.

51,561. He simply used the term "canvassers"?—Yes.

51,562. Not committee?—No, never committee.

51,563. Then I understand you that you got no further account from him as to the expenditure of those prior monies at the time the 200*l.* was paid? —Yes, that is so.

51,564. I have ended now that class of cheques which were payable to self?—Yes.

51,565. Why were those cheques payable to self? —I think simply for the purpose of Mr. Nichols getting them.

THIRTY-SIXTH DAY.

Hon. E. J. Monson.

31 Oct. 1866.

51,566. Was it suggested to you by Mr. Nichols that it was safer for you to draw them on self?—No, I should not have done it on that account.

51,567. Now the next cheque I see is July the 4th, payable to Mr. Nichols; that is for 300*l.* ?—Yes.

51,568. That is a still larger sum. Was any representation made to you by Mr. Nichols of why he wanted the further sum of 300*l.* ?—I think that in the interval between the two payments Mr. Nichols came to town and saw me at my club, in the presence of Lord Monson, because I represented to my brother that the expense was exceedingly high, and very much greater than I had anticipated, and as he was acquainted with the borough I wished to have his advice, though of course he in his position did not like to give it. I said, "I should very much like you to "see Mr. Nichols in my presence, that we may have a "clear understanding of how things are going on." Mr. Nichols saw my brother in the presence of myself. He said it was getting a very serious contest, that the other side were spending a great deal of money, and he did not anticipate that unless I was prepared to spend a similar amount I should have any chance of succeeding; he said that in my presence. I then conversed with my brother and consulted as to what it was best to do.

51,569. (The Chief Commissioner.) In Mr. Nichols, presence?—Yes, at the window; he was out of hearing. We were both of us strongly determined not to authorize any illegal expenditure, but my brother said under the circumstances he would advise me to come to this clear understanding with Mr. Nichols, that so far as money could legally be spent it should be spent, and that I did tell Mr. Nichols. I said, "So long as you can assure me that the money "is legally spent you shall have what is requisite, "but mind, there is to be no illegal payment."

51,570. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What did Mr. Nichols say to that?—He assented to it; I understood him to assent to that most decidedly.

51,571. (The Chief Commissioner.) You have told us in substance, but did he represent more than that it was going to be a very severe contest?—I do not recollect the precise words; I know that is the effect of what he said.

51,572. Did he specify anything more than that "it is getting a very severe contest, and unless you "are prepared to pay more money you will not succeed." You do not recollect his expressions more precisely than that?—No.

51,573. Do you recollect what he said the money was for?—No.

51,574. I am introducing this so as it may not be passed over; he no doubt told you, "It is getting a "very severe contest; the other side is spending very "largely, and if you do not you will not succeed." Did he say "spending" for what? If you do not recollect say so?—I do not think he did.

51,575. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) He did not say how the money was being expended?—No; I took it for granted it was expenditure for canvassing.

51,576. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Pardon me for a suggestion; give us, if you please, what you did yourself, and do not give us any consultations with your brother?—I thought I was bound to tell all.

Mr. Commissioner O'Brien remarked that the witness was the responsible party.

51,577. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I will simply take it as a fact, that after your conversation with your brother you did communicate to Mr. Nichols and explained to him you would have nothing paid except for legal expenses?—Except for legal expenses.

51,578. Did he at that time tell you whether or not money was being paid for votes on the part of Mr. Gower, or did he explain in what way the other party were securing votes?—No, I think not.

51,579. So that it would require money to counteract it?—No.

51,580. He had intimated to you before he received the 200*l.* that they were paying money for men to go on the committee?—Paying men.

51,581. To go on the committee?—Yes.

51,582. That was on the 4th of July?—Yes.

51,583. Then there is a very large cheque?—Yes, for 500*l.*

51,584. That was a payment to Mr. Humphreys?—Yes.

51,585. Was that cheque given to Mr. Nichols?—Yes.

51,586. How came that cheque to be drawn in favour of Mr. Humphreys?—In this way; I was so extremely anxious that there should be nothing done which was illegal, that I begged Mr. Nichols to go every week to Mr. Humphreys, who was a very experienced parliamentary agent, and report to him what he was doing. I had very great faith in Mr. Humphreys, and I begged him to keep Mr. Nichols straight. I thought Mr. Nichols might err from ignorance, not knowing anything about it. When Mr. Nichols told me he wanted so large a sum as 500*l.* it struck me that if nothing had been done before, yet to pay so large a sum as 500*l.* so close to the election must be, in all probability, transgressing.

51,587. The election was coming off on the 14th?—On the 12th, two days after; so instead of giving him a cheque payable to himself for 500*l.* I said, "I "shall be very anxious for you to go and consult Mr. "Humphreys as to what you have done and what you "are going to do." I gave a cheque drawn in Mr. Humphreys' name for this reason; I thought if Mr. Humphreys saw it was such an extravagant expenditure as to be illegal, he would not sanction its being spent.

51,588. Was it paid to Mr. Humphreys' order?—I have been trying to recollect ever since whether it was paid to his order or not, and I cannot, I have not got the cheque; the book does not show it.

51,589. Nor the counterfoil?—Nor the counterfoil.

51,590. You say that you had intimated before that he was to report to Mr. Humphreys the way in which he was spending the money?—Yes, he did, so far as I know; he used to go up every week.

51,591. He did so?—I believe he did, because I used to see Mr. Humphreys every Monday. I always went on Monday afternoon to Mr. Humphreys, and he generally saw Mr. Nichols then himself.

51,592. Did you ascertain from Mr. Humphreys that Mr. Nichols had seen him?—Yes, I did.

51,593. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) And had reported to him?—And had reported to him.

51,594. (The Chief Commissioner.) I understand you to say that you wished Mr. Nichols to report to Mr. Humphreys from time to time, or that you desired Mr. Nichols to report to Mr. Humphreys from time to time?—I imagine that I originally said to him, "I wish you would go up every week to Mr. "Humphreys;" and I imagine I said the same thing to Mr. Humphreys, "I wish you would see Mr. "Nichols from week to week, and see that everything "is going on all right." I never gave him a positive order to do it, but I expressed a wish that he should.

51,595. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Then did you learn that Mr. Nichols did eventually get the 500*l.* cheque paid?—Yes.

51,596. Now that was two days before the election. On the 17th July, five days after, there is a cheque paid in the name of Nichols, 200*l.* Did you give that cheque to Mr. Nichols?—I gave him the cheque; I think I gave it him here in Reigate.

51,597. In Reigate?—Yes, I think so.

51,598. Did he give you any account then of how he had expended the 500*l.* ?—No, he said his reason for asking for 200*l.* was this. He said, "Well, "although you have lost the election, I suppose you "wish to keep your promises to the voters whom I "have employed in your name, the promises which "I have made in your name to the voters I have "employed;" and I said, "Well, there has been such "a great deal said about broken promises down here,

" I won't have it said that any promises incurred for " me are to be broken, and therefore I will keep my " word with everybody."

51,599. And upon that you gave him the 200*l.* ?—And upon that I gave him the 200*l.*

51,600. And that was the only representation that Mr. Nichols made to you in reference to his requirements for money ?—Yes ; in fact, I understood that he employed weekly, and that they were to be paid so much per week, and that he wanted this money to pay for the last week.

51,601. Did you understand what those persons were paid for ?—For canvassing. I was always told it was for canvassing.

51,602. You were always told it was for canvassing ?—Yes.

51,603. Now that was on the 17th. Then on the 22nd there is a payment ?—On the 22nd there is a payment of 120*l.* I see. That was made in consequence of a letter I received from him, saying, " I " have not still enough to pay all that is due, and " 120*l.* are still due ; I shall be obliged if you will " give me a cheque," which I did.

51,604. You have not got that letter, I suppose ?—I am afraid I have not ; I know that he did write.

51,605. You recollect sufficiently to give the substance of it ?—Yes.

51,606. Was that the whole amount of money which passed into the hands of Mr. Nichols from you ?—That is all, I think ; that is the last payment I made to him.

51,607. Now, can you give me the sum total. Is it 1,730*l.* ?—I believe it is.

51,608. Now, from first to last, did he ever give you any other account of how that money had been expended, except so far as you have told us ?—No, never.

51,609. Did you ever ask Mr. Nichols to give you a written statement, or a written account of this expenditure ?—I never did. The fact was that after the election was over I was so very sick of the whole thing, and of the amount of money that had been spent ; I did not know where it was gone ; the money was spent, and I could not get it back by asking how it had gone ; so I did not wish to know.

51,610. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) How did you know it had been expended, or how could you know it had been expended, without being furnished with an account ?—I took it for granted that Mr. Nichols had spent the money ; I believed him.

51,611. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) He told you that he had spent it ?—Yes.

51,612. You have already answered it as a general question earlier, but now that we have got to the end of the list I may ask you again ; did he ever tell you after the last cheque, or at any time, that he had appropriated 200 guineas to himself on account of the requisition ?—No, never.

51,613. Then may I take it as a fact, that he never had your authority to appropriate 200 guineas to himself on account of that ?—No, I never gave him any authority to do that.

51,614. He has delivered to us a long account, to which he has spoken himself, in evidence, but before that account was placed before us here in his evidence did you ever hear any particulars in reference to the expenditure ?—The only single item I ever recollect his mentioning to me was a payment of 50*l.* to Mr. Steer.

51,615. Thomas Steer ?—Steer was engaged as a canvasser, I understood, and I understood that he was to have 50*l.* for it ; but I really do not know whether I am correct in that item. I understood that he had received it. That is the only one I recollect that he ever mentioned to me.

51,616. (The Chief Commissioner.) You say Mr. Nichols mentioned it to you ?—Mr. Nichols mentioned it to me, and I think I may positively say it is the only sum he ever did mention to me.

51,617. You say he mentioned the payment of 50*l.* to Mr. Steer as canvasser ?—Of course I understood it to be for his services as canvasser.

51,618. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Now there is one very large item here, " 130*l.* " Was that ever mentioned to you ?—No.

51,619. Then, with the exception of Mr. Steer, you have never had any sum mentioned to you as paid or appropriated to any one individual ?—No.

51,620. Of course his account of this we have to deal with. Now, did you ever tell Mr. Hart who was your expense agent ?

(Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Or legal agent.

51,621. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Did you ever tell Mr. Hart, your legal agent, that you were paying these large sums of money ?—Never once.

51,622. Did not it cross your mind that Mr. Hart, being on the spot, would be the proper person to know that these monies were being paid, rather than Mr. Humphreys ?—Well, the fact was this. I wish it to be distinctly understood that I looked upon Mr. Hart as one of my agents, and my principal agent I may say, because he signed the election accounts, but Mr. Nichols I looked upon as an agent also.

51,623. Equally as an agent ?—Equally as an agent, because he had acted in that capacity for my brother in conjunction with Mr. Smith. When my brother contested this place against Mr. Wilkinson he employed three agents, Mr. Hart, Mr. Smith, and Mr. Nichols. I always looked upon him as almost equal in dignity, except that Mr. Hart signed the accounts.

51,624. You were aware that, under the Act of Parliament, all the monies expended in reference to the election should properly pass through the alembic of Mr. Hart to the election auditor. Are you aware of that ?—I wish to state that when these payments were made to Mr. Nichols, they were not made with the intention of being secret payments never to appear, because I imagined that they would appear in the election accounts.

51,625. It was only through Mr. Hart that the account could come before the public ?—Yes.

51,626. Mr. Nichols was never appointed in writing, under the Corrupt Practices Act, as your agent ?—No.

51,627. Mr. Hart then, in law, was your only legal agent ?—I do not know, because in parliamentary law agency is such a very vague term ; you may make so many people your agents, or have agency proved against you in so many ways before a parliamentary committee.

51,628. Yes, yes, we understand that perfectly, but I am speaking with regard to legal expenses and the payment of legal expenses ; the Act of Parliament is exceedingly strict that all payments should be made by the legal agent ?—Yes.

51,629. Then he is to make out an account; he is to make all payments within a month, all accounts are to be sent in within a month after the election ; and then within two months he must make his return of what monies have been expended, and he is sworn to do so, and what monies have been expended are to be returned to the election auditor, or in this instance (1865) to the mayor ?—Yes.

51,630. Now, being aware of that fact, I want to know why these monies, these expenditures, were not told to Mr. Hart, who was the legal expense agent ?—For this reason : that Mr. Hart had nothing to do with the engagement or the employment of canvassers. He was never asked anything about it, I know. Mr. Hart was very busily employed at the same time with the county election, and I thought, as Mr. Nichols was a younger and more active man, it would be unfair to saddle Mr. Hart with a great deal that Mr. Nichols could do, and I left it entirely to Mr. Nichols, to engage canvassers entirely, and the money was paid to him to pay those canvassers with, and I did not think it necessary to tell Mr. Hart.

51,631. But you know, under the Act of Parliament, every payment which is made, or, at least, all the monies which are paid before the day of nomination, should have been returned in one separate account to the mayor as the auditor of the accounts, and the payment of canvassers, or whatever the payment is with reference to the election, is just as much a payment, whether made by Mr. Nichols or Mr. Hart?—I wish to explain that; I did not make the payments to Mr. Nichols with any intention of their remaining secret. I went out of England directly after the election was over, and left the final settlement of accounts in the hands of Mr. Hart and Mr. Nichols and Mr. Page. I had nothing to do with the way the accounts were drawn up, and did not know what items were going to appear upon them. I never gave any directions of the kind. I thought that Mr. Nichols and Mr. Hart together would prepare the whole account and submit it to the election officer, or, rather, the returning officer.

51,632. How soon after the election did you go abroad?—I think I was abroad when I made that last payment to Mr. Nichols on the 22nd of July.

51,633. Can you draw your recollection to that distinctly, so as to say whether you were or not abroad at that time?—Yes, I am quite sure of it. I think I left England on the very day that I made the payment of 200*l.* to Mr. Nichols.

51,634. On the 17th?—Yes, I think so.

51,635. That would be five days after the polling?—Yes.

51,636. Had you ever directed Mr. Nichols to communicate to Mr. Hart the expenses which he had incurred on your account?—No.

51,637. Did you leave it to chance or fate whether he did or not?—I did.

51,638. Were you aware that Mr. Nichols was to be paid by Mr. Hart for his services?—Yes.

51,639. Was it arranged between you and Mr. Hart what that fee to Mr. Nichols should be, that he was to be paid 100 guineas?—I think Mr. Hart may have mentioned that sum to me; I won't be positive about that.

51,640. Mr. Hart having mentioned that to you, and you having assented that Mr. Nichols should be paid a fee, did you believe that was the only payment to be made to Mr. Nichols in respect of fee?—Yes.

51,641. Or did you think he was to receive anything out of those monies that you had paid to him privately?—I never understood that he was.

51,642. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) You understood that he was to receive the fee of 100 guineas, and that was to be in satisfaction of all his services?—Yes.

51,643. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) As I understand you you say that was the only fee which was paid to him by your immediate authority?—Yes.

51,644. Now we will go to another class, if you please. 1865, February 23rd, you will see a cheque paid to Mr. Page, 50*l.*?—Yes.

51,645. Did you pay that to Mr. Page yourself?—I sent that to Mr. Page myself in a letter.

51,646. Was that in consequence of some communication which was made to you?—It was a private loan.

51,647. That was a private loan, quite irrespective of the election?—Quite irrespective; entirely so.

51,648. It was only a private affair?—It was purely a private affair.

51,649. Then I will say no more about that. May I say the same in reference to an item I see here in this abstract, on the 6th September?—No, that is a different case.

51,650. What is the history of that?—That cheque, 63*l.* 3*s.*, was sent to Mr. Page in consequence of a letter I received from him, stating that he was very much out of pocket by the election, that he had expended that sum of money on my behalf, and would be much obliged if I would let him have it at once. I understood that he wanted the money at once, and I sent it to him directly I received the letter, I think. As far as I recollect, the letter stated that he had incurred some expense about the requisition; he had been out of pocket about that, and also out of pocket by the election to that extent.

51,651. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) He had made some small payments?—I think he had. I cannot recollect quite what they were.

51,652. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) He sent you no account?—He sent me no account, but said that was the amount he was out of pocket by it.

51,653. And you sent him the cheque?—I sent him the cheque directly.

51,654. He did not give you any particulars whether that was to include any fee to him for work?—No, I understood it was money clearly out of pocket.

51,655. Well, then Mr. Hart: April 25th, 50*l.*; June 1st, 50*l.*; September 5th, 84*l.* 14*s.* 2*d.*; 23rd September, 660*l.* 7*s.* 9*d.*; and October 25th, 597*l.* 6*s.* 4*d.* to Mr. Hart. Now, I will deduct that 50*l.*, which was a mere personal matter, to Mr. Page, and that would make the total 3,228*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*?—Yes, that is what I make it.

51,656. Well, now, how much will that be to Mr. Hart?—I do not know.

51,657. Is it 1,436*l.* 8*s.* 10*d.* to Mr. Hart, and 1,730*l.* to Mr. Nichols?

(The Chief Commissioner.) The expenses were returned by Mr. Hart at 1,230*l.* odd. He considered that there was a certain sum which had reference to previous matters in connexion with the requisition. The election expenses were returned at 1,230*l.*

51,658. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Did that include his own fee and Nichols' fee of 100 guineas? Yes.

51,659. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Now that it is brought to my recollection, did Mr. Nichols at any time before the election came off tell you that it would be necessary to pay some back debts incurred by Mr. Gower, or any former candidate, before he could secure certain votes?—Yes, he did.

51,660. Will you give me your account of the interview; what Mr. Nichols said, and what you said?—I think that what Mr. Nichols said was that there were two or three cases of canvassers he wished to employ, to whom he had been unable to keep his engagement in 1863, Mr. Gower not having supplied him with sufficient money to do so, and that he could not engage them unless I would consent that they should be paid what I thought owing to them for that time.

51,661. (The Chief Commissioner.) Exactly.—And I think he said, or I said, or we both of us said, that it seemed extremely hard that I should be obliged to pay them what Mr. Gower ought to have paid before; but under the circumstances there was no help for it.

51,662. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) And you assented to it, or authorized Mr. Nichols so to do?—Yes, I understood he was going to pay them.

51,663. Did not that strike you as very much like buying the votes?—Well, no, I do not think it did. I cannot say that it did. I thought it might be perfectly reasonable in a man to say to Mr. Nichols, "I undertook to canvass for you last time, and you did "not keep faith with me; therefore I won't do it this "time."

51,664. Quite so; but then the question is the consideration, the payment of money?—If it was payment for the votes, I should rather have said that it was payment for the votes they gave in 1863 than in 1865.

51,665. Was it not rather to secure their votes for 1865?—It was to secure their services. Of course you understand that a man who is going to canvass for you is going to give his vote.

51,666. It would be the payment of a debt owing by another party, and at all events, whatever may be the view in reference to paying that class of canvassers, it would not be payment quâ services rendered?—I did not see it in the light of a bribe by any means, but as a necessary payment to secure men to work.

51,667. And vote?—And vote—naturally; that followed as a matter of course.

51,668. It could not be for the payment of services rendered?—Not rendered to me, no.

51,669. You think that might have occurred in three instances?—Two or three instances, I think it was.

51,670. Were any of the names mentioned?—He did not mention the names.

51,671. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Now, Mr.

Monson, you had, you say, the advice of Mr. Humphreys ?—Yes, I had.

51,672. And you consulted him upon the proceedings of Mr. Nichols from week to week ?—Yes.

51,673. Up to the time when you advanced him 500*l.* ?—Yes.

51,674. Did Mr. Humphreys know that Mr. Hart was your legal agent in Reigate ?—Yes, I think he did.

51,675. Did you ever acquaint Mr. Hart with the fact that you had taken the opinion of Mr. Humphreys with regard to the proceedings of Mr. Nichols ; —No ; with regard to the proceedings of Mr. Nichols, certainly not.

51,676. I understood you to say you told Mr. Nichols that he was not to transgress the legal limits ?—Yes.

51,677. And did you consider that to a man in the position of Mr. Nichols a sufficient safeguard—that he was not to trangress the legal limits—and you had a legal agent here in Reigate whom you kept in ignorance of what was going on ?—I thought Mr. Nichols had sufficient experience as a parliamentary agent to know generally what he ought to do and what he ought not. I had confidence in him to that extent.

51,678. I ask you, were not you warned by some of your most important supporters in Reigate against trusting yourself in the hands of Mr. Nichols ?—I know I have heard Mr. Nichols spoken against in general terms.

51,679. No, my question is more pointed than that. Were you not warned against placing yourself in the hands of Mr. Nichols by some of your principal supporters in Reigate during the course of the election ? —I recollect certainly that I was told that Mr. Nichols was put too prominently forward, but I do not recollect that I was cautioned against trusting him, certainly not ; and I should not have paid much attention to it if I had.

51,680. Very well ; you did not pay any attention. Now I will give you the history of one of these men, and you will see what it is. I will read his evidence for you. Mr. Ridge said he received 50*l.* from Mr. Nichols, 30*l.* for back debts ; 10*l.* for Sir Henry Rawlinson, 10*l.* for Lord Monson, and 10*l.* for Mr. Gower ; and he said also that he had Mr. Nichols' authority for keeping back 10*l.*, which he was entrusted to pay to two men, and that he kept that 10*l.* back. Now, did you sanction such an act as that ?—As keeping back the money ?

51,681. Did you sanction Mr. Nichols to pay him 10*l.* for Lord Monson, 10*l.* for Sir Henry Rawlinson, and 10*l.* for Mr. Gower ?—Certainly ; at the time that I authorized Mr. Nichols to make those payments I had no notion that they were payments to that extent. I won't take upon myself to say now that in the heat and excitement of the contest I would not have allowed him to do it, because I had already told him I was willing to sanction all legal expenditure of money.

51,682. But a gentleman of your intelligence ought to know that that is the most odious form of bribery ; and I will tell you why it is, because it is bribing, and at the same time casting a slur upon your opponents. For example, why should you pay Mr. Gower's debts ? Look at the thing !—In justice to myself I wish to say this, that I regard with a very different eye now the payments that were then made to what I did at the time. You must make allowance for the heat of the contest. I was very bitter, and felt very strongly.

51,683. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Let me ask you one question. I believe I am quite correct ; but Mr. Allen seems to have got an impression, which I think is erroneous, as to what you said. It is in reference to a cheque for 200*l.* Did I understand you to say that that 200*l.* was represented to you by Mr. Nichols to be required for the purpose of engaging canvassers ?—For the purpose of engaging canvassers, yes.

51,684. In December 1864 ?—The first payment made to him.

51,685. You mentioned that he had stated to you about six names ?—About six names, I think, they were.

51,686. Did he—I am sorry to put the question again—did he then, or at any other time, state to you that he required that 200*l.*, or any money, to pay for the expense of the requisition ?—Never, to my knowledge.

51,687. I will put it in this way. Did Mr. Nichols tell you what the 200*l.* was required for ?—Only in a general way ; that it would be required to carry out the understanding previously made for the engagement of canvassers.

51,688. (The Chief Commissioner.) When you were asked before to state in express terms what occurred when Mr. Nichols came to you and said, "I "want 200*l.* to carry out the terms of our arrange- "ment," what you said was, "I understood that it "was to carry out the terms of our arrangement" ?—Yes ; I would rather adhere to my original expression, because I cannot say that he said it in distinct terms. There is no doubt on my own mind as to what the cheque was for, but I cannot say he said it.

51,689. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Had you discussed any other subject in reference to the election, except the engagement of canvassers, at that interview ?—No.

51,690. And at that interview had anything been said by Mr. Nichols in reference to the expense of getting up a requisition ?—Not a word that I recollect.

51,691. Can you draw your recollection closer to the fact, and say that nothing was said in reference to the expense of getting up the requisition ?—I cannot recollect that there was ; I should be sorry to say positively that there was not, but I do not recollect a word of it.

51,692. Mr. Nichols said this, "I suppose that 210*l.* "I had to get up the requisition was to cover all ex- "penses." Now, was any sum of money (210*l.*) paid to Mr. Nichols at his request quâ the expenses of the requisition ?—I never made such a payment for the requisition. I never, to my knowledge, made any payment on account of the requisition to Mr. Nichols ; never.

51,693. I think I understand you to say that he never made any demand of you for payment of expenses quâ the requisition ?—Never.

51,694. And that this 210*l.*, which appears to be the only 210*l.* which he accounts for here in his own account—"self 210*l.*," the only cheque of 210*l.*—you have told us was one that you got cashed yourself, and gave him 200*l.*, and took 10*l.* yourself ?—Yes, I think so (handing cheque book).

(The Chief Commissioner.) Mr. Nichols seems to have forgotten that he received only 200*l.* He has put it down 210*l.*, whereas he only received 200*l.*

51,695. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) And he told us, as distinctly as words could tell us, that that 210*l.* was to cover the expenses of the requisition ?—I certainly did not understand it so ; that is all I can say.

51,696. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I wish to call your attention to an expression made use of : "Mr. "Nichols said there were 150 voters upon Mr. "Gower's committee who were going to receive 5*l.* "each. Upon that I gave him the 200*l.*" Is that correct ?—Yes.

59,697. Now tell me, how could your giving Mr. Nichols 200*l.* affect the 150 voters who were to receive 5*l.* each ?—I did not understand that it would.

51,698. What would it do except bid against them on the other side. I wish to give you an opportunity of explaining that which, I tell you candidly, presses strongly upon me ?—I can quite understand that. I see that myself now, perfectly ; but I confess I did not see it at the time, nor did I think that, after my repeated injunctions that nothing illegal should be done, anything illegal would be done.

51,699. To my mind it would be this : "They are

THIRTY-SIXTH DAY.

Hon. E. J. Monson.

31 Oct. 1866.

"bribing on the other side; we must do the same"?—I quite see that. I see how you put it.

51,700. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) There is one question I want to ask you, Mr. Monson. Did you tell Mr. Nichols the reason why you wished him to go to Mr. Humphreys and get that money, 500*l.*, through Mr. Humphreys?—No.

51,701. You did not?—No; in fact I could hardly say to him, after I had told him not to do anything but what was legal, "I am afraid you are going to do "some illegal act."

51,702. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) I understand you to say that you had believed, previous to this Inquiry, that Mr. Nichols had expended all the money he received on your behalf?—Yes, I did.

51,703. There was a man who gave evidence of having seen you at a public house, and your singing a song at a meeting there. I do not call upon you for an explanation of that, because I did not believe it at the time?—I really did not know whether it was necessary for me to deny it; but it was a mistake upon the man's part, entirely a mistake in identity, and there was not a particle of truth in it, so far as I am concerned.

The witness withdrew.

Mr. Charles Joseph Smith recalled.

C. J. Smith.

51,704. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) I want to ask you, Mr. Smith, a question in reference to the payment of 25*l.* to Mr. Topliss. I may tell you that we saw Topliss yesterday at his private house, and perhaps you may not be aware of what was said. He said this, that the 25*l.* which he received was paid by you to him for the hire of his room at his house. Now I see that in your account returned to the election auditor he is placed under the head of canvasser, and that he never did anything. He was paid 40*l.* on behalf of Mr. Monson for the use of his room for two meetings, and 25*l.* for the use of his room when there was one meeting there. Now I simply draw your attention to the evidence, and to the fact that he was returned as a canvasser for 25*l.*, and I want to know what is the explanation you have to give in reference to that?—I employed him as a canvasser solely, and paid him the sum of 25*l.* That was the sum I engaged him at, and I made a memorandum in my book that I was to pay him 25*l.* I did it because he was recommended to me as a man having considerable influence and feeling strongly in the matter of the licence granted to the South-eastern Hotel, and upon that I engaged him as a canvasser, and he was to have more money, if necessary, for his work. Instead of that, I found he had money from the other side. I have never had a meeting or hired a room in his house. When I complained that he let the room to the other party, he said he hoped I should not stand in the way of his making a little money, and he would take care to work for Mr. Gower. I engaged the man as a canvasser. He never did anything, but took money from the other side.

51,705. He got 40*l.* for the use of his room?—I never attended a meeting there.

51,706. I thought it quite right to mention it?—I did not hear Topliss' evidence. I paid him the money as a canvasser, and I was to pay him more if I considered he worked well.

51,707. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) But he was ill at the time, he stated, so that he could not canvass much?—Oh, he seemed very well; he was at the bar. One day he went with Mr. Gower and myself up round the streets there. He seemed pretty well then, very well when I gave him the money. It is the only case where I consider that I have been done of all my canvassers.

The witness withdrew.

Henry Steed sworn and examined.

H. Steed.

51,708. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) You are the present landlord of the "White Hart"?—I am.

51,709. You were so during the election of 1865?—1865.

51,710. But not at the previous election?—No.

51,711. Did the two candidates at the last election have committee meetings at your house?—They did.

51,712. Had you a vote?—I had a vote, but I did not use it.

51,713. Both parties had committee rooms at your hotel?—They had.

51,714. Now we will ask you in reference to one first; we will take Mr. Monson's. Did Mr. Monson's committee meet frequently at your house?—Yes, in the committee room.

51,715. Were any refreshments supplied to the committee in the committee room?—Not any.

51,716. Were any refreshments supplied on account of the election in any other room except the committee?—Yes.

51,717. Was that a private room?—It was a private room.

51,718. Did you receive any orders in reference to the supply of refreshments there?—Mr. Nichols gave me the orders.

51,719. Mr. Nichols did?—Yes.

51,720. Was it from Mr. Nichols that you chiefly received the orders?—Principally.

51,721. Were those refreshments supplied on several days?—Yes, during the work of the canvassing.

51,722. To whom were these refreshments generally supplied in this private room? Did you know the persons to be voters?—Well, I really could not say; they had voters assisting in the canvassing.

51,723. Can you tell me what, about, the amount of the refreshments was that were supplied? Have you got your books?—No, I have not. The account for the use of the room which Mr. Nichols occupied and the refreshments I had to draw on the nomination and polling days was 42*l.*

51,724. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Was that for the two days?—For the whole of the canvassing as well. Between 5*l.* and 6*l.* was the amount supplied at the bar. There were other refreshments supplied in the room. 42*l.* was for the whole of the time, for the use of the room, and lights, and everything.

51,725. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) What was the class of refreshments supplied at the bar? Wine—sherry?—Sherry, soda and brandy, and so on.

51,726. The whole amount of refreshment was about 42*l.*?—Including the hire of the room as well, half a guinea a day; that amounted to seven or eight guineas.

51,727. Was that the room in which the refreshment was supplied?—Yes.

51,728. As I understand you, two rooms were engaged, one the committee room and one a private room?—One a private room for Mr. Nichols' use.

51,729. In that room which was engaged by Mr. Nichols, the private room, the refreshment was supplied, and in all 42*l.*?—Yes.

51,730. Were you paid that sum?—Yes.

51,731. Now, in reference to Mr. Gower. Did his party have a committee room?—Yes.

51,732. And did they have any private room?—Only the committee room; Mr. Smith's room they called it.

51,733. There were refreshments supplied there?—I think, perhaps, one or two bottles of sherry; nothing more.

51,734. Not more than a bottle or two of sherry?—No, I think not.

51,735. Their account was small?—Their account was small; but then there were other refreshments on the nomination and polling days which amounted to 4*l.* or 5*l.*

51,736. Where were those refreshments supplied; in the committee room?—No, at the bar.

51,737. When the Monson party and the Gower party were both at the bar?—Yes.

57,738. How did you know to whom the refreshments were to be put down?—There was generally one of the heads of the parties there to say so and so.

57,739. The head of one party would say, "Put "that down to Mr. Gower," and the other would say, "Put this down to Mr. Monson"?—Yes.

51,740. Do you know at all whether any refreshments were supplied at the tap?—I do not.

51,741. What was the total amount of Mr. Gower's bill for refreshment?—There was the use of the room, &c., and some dinners given to polling clerks. It amounted to 39*l.* I think.

51,742. What was Mr. Gower's account for the refreshment on the polling and nomination days at the bar?—About 4*l.*

51,743. You were not there in 1863?—No, Mr. Goldsmith was there then.

The witness withdrew.

CHARLES GOLDSMITH sworn and examined.

C. Goldsmith.

51,744. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Were you formerly proprietor of the "White Hart"?—Yes.

51,745. Were you in 1863?—Yes, I was.

51,746. During the contest in 1863?—Yes.

51,747. Had you a vote at that time?—I had.

51,748. And you voted for whom?—For Mr. Gower.

51,749. Had he a committee room at your house?—He had.

51,750. And were refreshments supplied at the "White Hart"?—Refreshments to a very small extent may have gone into the committee room; a glass of sherry and a biscuit, and so on, but I think nothing more than that.

51,751. Have you any means of telling us now the amount of refreshments you supplied during that contest?—Do you mean altogether?

51,752. Yes?—Well, I think the amount would be about 80*l.* That would include the committee room, which was held for several days.

51,753. About 80*l.*?—I think so, as far as I can charge my memory.

51,754. You have not any books?—I have no books. I have left there for three years, and destroyed all the books.

51,755. But you would think it was about 80*l.*?—I think so.

51,756. How much would be due the use of the room?—Something like five and forty or fifty: I cannot charge my memory as to the number of days or weeks.

51,757. Was not the bill much larger; I am speaking, you know, up to the polling day, up to the close of the poll; do you understand me?—I quite understand that. I think that is about the amount up to the close of the poll.

51,758. Had Mr. Wilkinson a room at the "White Hart" on that occasion?—No, Mr. Wilkinson had not; he was at the "Swan," as far as I can recollect.

The witness withdrew.

WILLIAM SHAW sworn and examined.

W. Shaw.

51,759. (The Chief Commissioner.) In Mr. Doulton's election, in 1858, you were engaged for him, were you not?—I was.

51,760. I think you voted for him?—I did.

51,761. And in 1865, this last election, who did you vote for?—For Mr. Gower.

51,762. Had you voted between those two times?—I voted for Mr. Gower twice, I think.

51,763. That is three votes you recollect giving?—Mr. Wilkinson I voted for once, I think; I am not quite certain.

51,764. What are you?—A wheelwright and smith.

51,765. What rent do you pay?—24*l.*

51,766. Were you on Mr. Gower's committee?—No, I was not.

51,767. Who asked you to vote for Mr. Gower?—Mr. Gower himself.

51,768. Did you do any work for him; canvass?—No, I never took any part.

51,769. Did you receive anything from Mr. Gower's side before the election?—No.

51,770. Nothing whatever?—Nothing whatever.

51,771. Did you afterwards?—No.

51,772. In 1865 was there nothing whatever given to you in consideration of your vote or services or loss of time?—Nothing whatever.

51,773. You are quite candid about that?—I am quite candid about it.

51,774. Then I will take your word for it. Now in 1863 you voted for Mr. Gower too. Were you on his committee then?—No.

51,775. Did you receive anything before that election?—No.

51,776. Nor after?—I believe there was something paid for the use of the room; I do not know what the amount was. I cannot say; Mr. Smith has got the receipt.

51,777. For the use of a room? Did the committee sit at your house?—Yes.

51,778. How often?—I cannot say now.

51,779. More than once?—Two or three times it might be, it might be three or four times, I cannot say.

51,780. You cannot tell me about how much? I do not want you to tie yourself down to it at all?—How much they paid for the room?

51,781. Yes.—I cannot. I gave a receipt for it.

51,782. I believe the receipt is there, but I cannot remember myself what is the amount, and I want you to assist me if you can?—I cannot.

51,783. In 1859 did you vote, when Monson and Wilkinson started?—I think I did. I am not quite certain. If I did I voted for Mr. Wilkinson.

51,784. Were you employed on that occasion to do anything for Mr. Wilkinson?—No, I never took any part whatever.

51,785. Did you receive anything for it?—No.

51,786. Do you recollect whether you voted between that (going backward) and Doulton's election?—No, I do not recollect.

51,787. You do not recollect one way or the other?—No.

51,788. Then we will go back to Doulton's election, which was in 1858. At that election you were employed to work for him?—Yes, I was.

51,789. What work was it?—I do not know; I suppose I was employed as a canvasser.

51,790. Who employed you?—I cannot say.

51,791. Do not you remember?—I do not.

51,792. You were employed as a canvasser; what did you do, if you did anything at all?—It is so long ago I cannot recollect.

51,793. Do you remember whether you did anything?—Yes, I remember I was about; I remember I neglected my business.

51,794. A man may neglect his business, you know, in so many ways, without doing anything; it may be merely a sin of omission; but did you, I am sure you will forgive me for asking you, did you carry a board about?—I am sure I did not.

51,795. I will take your word for it. Then what did you do? You remember what you did not do?—I suppose I did canvassing, in one sense.

51,796. You see I want you, if you can, to recollect

THIRTY-SIXTH DAY.

W. Shaw.

31 Oct. 1866.

anything of it; you called yourself a canvasser. I should like to know whether you remember doing anything. You cannot remember? May I say that your statement is, "I cannot remember that I did any-"thing"?—I cannot say.

51,797. Will you authorize me to say that that is a fair answer?—I dare say I might; I do not say that I did or not. I might have done such a thing; it is so long ago that I forget. It is eight years ago.

51,798. What were you paid at that time?—I cannot tell what I was paid.

51,799. Do you recollect how much a week it was? You were paid by the week, were not you?—I do not know.

51,800. I think you were paid weekly; every Friday evening?—I do not recollect.

51,801. Do you recollect what you received altogether?—I do not.

51,802. Do you recollect whether you got 10*s.* a day?—I cannot say.

51,803. Do you think you were paid weekly?—I might be, but I think it was paid after; I think so. I am not certain.

51,804. I should like you to tell me, if you please, who asked you to come and be a canvasser or do any other work, call it what you will?—I cannot tell.

51,805. Did you go to them, or did they come to you? Do you recollect that?—That I cannot tell. It might be that Mr. Doulton came.

51,806. Ah, but I cannot fix Mr. Doulton in that way, unless you tell me more positively. Can you recollect whether you went to them, or one of Mr. Doulton's party came to you? Do you remember going and saying, "Now, then, I have got a vote"?—I cannot recollect doing so. I do not suppose I did do so.

51,807. What then?—Most likely they came to me. I never did take part in an election, only at that.

51,808. Do you remember them saying anything about your vote?—About my vote?

51,809. About your vote at that election?—No, I do not.

51,810. It is eight years ago, and you remember that you had a vote, and gave it for Mr. Doulton?—Yes; I voted for Mr. Doulton once, that is all I know.

51,811. That was the time. Very well, then, I will take it, "I was paid, but I cannot say how much"?—Yes.

The witness withdrew.

H. Green.

HENRY GREEN recalled and examined.

51,812. (Mr. Commissioner O'Brien.) Would you like to give any explanation, Mr. Green? You received 50*l.* for yourself, as you say, as canvasser, and you voted for Mr. Gower?—I sent out a great many circulars, which were directed by myself. I was constantly occupied from 8 o'clock in the morning till very late at night, and my own business was very much neglected.

51,813. Had you been employed for him before as a canvasser?—Yes.

51,814. What were you paid on that occasion?—40*l.*

51,815. And you voted for him?—Yes.

51,816. Were you ever employed as a canvasser before that?—Never before.

51,817. Those were the only two occasions?—Yes.

51,818. Associated with you, you say, there were some others. When did you commence?—We commenced as early as May.

51,819. Had you the Redhill district?—Entirely that district.

51,820. Do not say entirely, because gentlemen have been examined here who say they went over the entire ground?—That is quite impossible; they may say so, but it is quite wrong. You may be sure yourself that these men at Reigate could not do the whole district.

51,821. Do you employ any men in your business?—Yes, I have got my son and another young man; in fact, I have a little business of my own to attend to.

51,822. What I want to know is, did you employ any men while you were canvassing, or did you employ any additional hands or labour to do your own work for you while you were canvassing?—No, I did not.

51,823. And you received 50*l.*?—I did, but I think I earned it very well.

51,824. I wish to bring it under your notice, because you are a gentleman of intelligence (but I do not do it for the purpose of offending you at all in any way), that, though you attended to the Redhill district, you did not employ anybody else to manage your own business in consequence of that. Who else was with you in that district?—Mr. Rees.

51,825. How much did he get?—I let him have 10*l.*, and I think he had a cheque for 30*l.* afterwards.

51,826. (The Chief Commissioner.) Then you had no business that you gave up?—Well, I was doing some work for a gentleman of the name of Faithfull, and it was neglected.

51,827. Your time was not so constantly occupied, I suppose, but that the house kept on rising, kept on being built?—Oh, yes.

51,828. I want you to show that your time was taken up about the election to the cost of other things?—My time was taken up solely by the election.

51,829. I do not say it was not; but was it at the cost of other things?—I think myself many pounds out of pocket; I am quite sure there were many things paid out of it. I was there the whole of my time, in the committee room from 9 o'clock till late at night.

J. Fuller.

JOHN FULLER sworn and examined.

51,830. (Mr. Commissioner Smith.) Do you have charge of the tap at the "White Hart"?—Yes.

51,831. Did you have charge of the tap at the "White Hart" at the 1865 election?—Yes.

51,832. And the 1863 election?—Yes.

51,833. And before?—Yes.

51,834. In the 1865 election did you supply refreshments to the voters?—Yes.

51,835. By whose direction?—Only their own responsibility.

51,836. Did you take the money across the bar?—As I served the liquor I received the money.

51,837. From themselves?—Yes.

51,838. Was that the same in 1863?—Yes.

(The Chief Commissioner.) I have to state that this Inquiry is now, for the present at any rate, closed, and the Commissioners do not at present contemplate calling any more witnesses. In point of form, though the Commission will be adjourned from now till next Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock in this place, there will then not be a real meeting, but it will be probably formally adjourned to a still later date. Therefore practically this Commission closes now. To those persons who have assisted us we beg leave to express our thanks.

Adjourned till Tuesday, November 6th, at 11 o'clock.
